And now comes an Associated Press despatch from London,—Mrs. Jellyby's home,—to tell of a woman who is deeply interested in "humanitarian work among the donkeys, mules and camels of North Africa," and who is soliciting contributions of discarded stockings for their benefit She reports that the donkeys especially suffer from flies lighting on their legs, and she wants all the partly worn-out stockings she can get to keep secure bandages on the animals' lower limbs.

Could—you—beat—it?

Since reading the despatch, I've been letting my own imagination carry me to North Africa, where it showed me squads of donkeys and camels, picking their way through Algerian streets x parked in Tunisian alleys, all with their lower extremities encased in the legs of toe-punctured silk stockings, gathered from London rag-bags.

I've imagined the flies, debarred from their roosting-places on the donkey's shins where the beasts could, in emergency, stamp or bite them off, settling down on their ears and neck where the pasturage was better and the risk of attack less. And I've imagined the camels and donkeys looking down in puzzled amazement at their be-stockinged legs and dully wondering "What Next?"

It would require another Dickens to do justice to the situation. And to the plight of the donkeys. And to the London lady "benefactress."

Naturally enough, I suppose, all this has set me thinking of the fool stunts set by other faddists and propagandists. Even more naturally, of those directed at us farmers.

Some years ago, when agricultural chemistry was in its youth and a bit more self-assured than it is now, its exponents undertook to make farmers believe that all they had to do, to insure bunkum crops, was to have their soils analysed and then shovel on an adequate reinforcement of the chemical elements in which analysis showed them deficient. It was a beautiful theory and it really seems as if it ought to have worked. But even the expert analytical chemist somehow didn't manage to include all the factors of the problem in his alembics and test-tubes. In fact, the wiser chemists soon came to see that there were other influences affecting production than just those responsive to chemical analysis.

Wherefore, we hear much less now about this one-time "sure-thing."

Next came a campaign to make farmers turn into bookkeepers. We had is preached at us from all sides that we must have and keep written up sets of journals and day-books and ledgers and what-not, if we expected to get any business success out of farming. We must keep cash accounts and carry accounts, lists of bills payable and bills receivable, must spend our nights in figuring rates of "overhead" to the tenth decimal, and put in our Sundays taking "inventory." We were assured that this was the way in which "real business men" did things, and we must be copy-cats if we wanted to catch business mice. This was kept up till our self-appointed mentors got tired of preaching in that particular wilderness.

Of course a farmer finds a scratch-pad handy at times when the backs of his old envelopes are all used up. And a memorandum-book, vest-pocket size, is useful to those of short memories and full-grown forgetteries. But to imagine a real "dirt-farmer" keeping a regular set of books is no easier than to imagine a Percheron plow-horse climbing a telephone pole. The thing simply isn't done.

Then the missionaries who volunteer to bring light to our outer darkness began to cry up the folly of using horses and oxen, and the economic wisdom of resorting to tractors. Horses and oxen, they remind us, had to be fed every day, rain or shine, work or not.—As if the man who does the "chores" didn't know all about it!—The tractor, on the other hand, was no expense except when it was actually working. It didn't eat its head off in the periods of waiting idleness.

There is little doubt that the tractor has a place. It is on big farms of level and stoneless land, in the hands of men who are naturally expert in the management of machinery. But it isn't for all farms nor for all farmers.

I know fields right in Connecticut, so tilted up on edge that no tractor ever made could pull a plow up them, nor draw one along the face of the slope without tipping over the first time the uphill wheel struck a stone. I know other fields, also in Connecticut, so stony that a one-man-power hand-hoe has to be handled with pernickety care, if the user hopes to scrape up as much as two handfuls of dirt without breaking the tool. I know other fields, also right in Connecticut, so fenced in and tiny that by the time the plow behind a tractor fairly bit the soil, the nose of the tractor itself would be butting the opposite stone wall. And I also know farmers,—I can see one any time in my own looking-glass,—who don't know a carburetor from a timer, or a gadget from a gasket.

What would a tractor do on such farms for such farmers? The answer is that it would spend most of its time in the repair-shop, running up big mechanics' bills, being mended for another futile attempt at plowing some miniature Lantern Hill.

I can recall the time when my own father, with his wise and steady yoke of oxen, used to plow and raise good rye on hillsides so steep and stony that no one, these days, would think of tackling them. Not only that, but, when his oxen began to grow old, he would buy a pair of steers, fat the old team while breaking in the young one, and sell that old one for beef for more than enough to pay for the steers. His farm power not only cost his nothing, but was made a source of profit.

There are a good many farms in New England, today, which don't decently support their occupants along modern lines, whose symptoms plainly indicate the need for a return to the former system of ox-farming.

Those old farmers weren't such fools as some are inclined to make them out. They didn't try to get rich overnight,—didn't want to;—but they paid their debts and their taxes supported their schools and their churches, brought up big families, and left nest-eggs of savings,—for their sons and daughters to make omelets of.

We may be much prettier than they were, and wear our clothes much more stylishly, and know more about radio. But they had two driving motive powers which too many of their descendants lack,—thrift and common sense.

There are tractor farms, and there are horse farms, and there are ox farms. Outside of a strip in the Connecticut valley, most of our New England farms are better fitted for ox-culture than for tractor or even horse work.

I should dearly like to see what a really thrifty and judgmatical young farmer, hard-headed and stout-muscled, with no tendency to ape city customs but a burning ambition to rebuild the old place into a good farm,—I should dearly like to see what such a chap would do on and with any one of the half-abandoned, less than half-cultivated hill farms of Preston or North Stonington.

They look pretty hopeless, now. But they can't be as bad as they were when the first pioneers tackled them, two or three hundred years ago. If that hypothetical young farmer should miraculously appear from some unexpected quarter, I'm rather inclined to think he'd start, first of all, a county-wide hunt for a good yoke of oxen. I don't think he'd invest in a tractor, nor in a set of blank books, nor in a carload of exorbitantly-priced commercial fertilizers.

And I'm quite sure he wouldn't send to London for discarded silk stockings to keep the flies from tickling his oxen's legs!

McCoy's Rinolin Greatest Help When Constipation Is Chronic

Why Purge Yourself Daily When This Modern Emulsion Will Establish Regular and Natural Bowel Movements In 10 Days or Money Back?

Seems too good to be true, but after you thoroughly remove the wall deposits and expel every particle of poisonous waste from the intestines, the active peristalsis that results will make you forget pills and salts and calomel and all purgatives and cathartics for weeks to come.

And when your bowels move regularly as nature intended they should move, what a difference it will make in you—and all for the better.

Your skin will be clearer and cleaner for one thing and your eyes will sparkle with healthy brightness; for constipation surely does cause dull eyes and sallow skin.

Yes, and your mind will be keener, too, and vigorous physical activity will take the place of lassitude, tiredness and lack of ambition.

For habitual constipation is a condition that is so unnatural that often the blood becomes polluted with the toxins that seep into every fibre of the system—often causing auto-intoxication.

But now McCoy's Rinolin, the new pleasant to take emulsion, tells millions of unfortunate victims of constipation that if they will follow directions for ten days—perhaps less—that bowels will become regular and natural and stay that way for many days to come.

McCoy's Rinolin is the new Emulsion that Lee & Osgood Co. and druggists everywhere are selling so much of. It is guaranteed to rid you of habitual constipation in 10 days or money back—just follow the directions. Rinolin tonight. Pep tomorrow.

BURGESS BEDTIME STORIES

Bowser the Hound Is Upset

When we encounter things perplexing,
They very often end by vexing.
—Bowser the Hound.

Bowser the Hound knows he has been perplexed, which, you know, means being puzzled, very many times; and not a few times he has quite lost his temper over it. He doesn't so much mind being perplexed when it appears reasonable, but when a thing appears entirely without reason, then, good-natured as he is, he sometimes becomes very much vexed.

Now, Farmer Brown's Boy and Bowser are great chums, as you all know. There's nothing in the world that Bowser delights in more than a tramp over the Green Meadows and through the Green Forest with Farmer Brown's Boy. Farmer Brown's Boy has a certain peculiar whistle with which he calls Bowser when they are about to start on a tramp. When Bowser hears that whistle he knows exactly what it means and he always fairly trembles with delight. He will leave his dinner any time at the sound of that whistle.

So it happened one morning that as Bowser lay lazily napping in his little house he heard that whistle. It came from around in front of Farmer Brown's house. Bowser didn't nap any longer. No, sir! You should have seen him scramble to his feet and go bounding around the house, long ears flapping and his tail wagging so that his whole body wagged. His eyes shone with anticipation. He turned the corner of the house with a rush, all ready to leap up on his master and tell him how glad he was they were going to walk. But when he got around in front of the house there wasn't any master. There was no one. You would have laughed to see the expression on Bowser's face. He just didn't know what to make of it.

He sat down for a minute. He suspected a joke. He suspected that his master was hiding somewhere near. He gave an impatient little yelp. Then another. Then he decided that his master must have run around the house. Away went Bowser as fast as his legs could take him around the house. He was sure that when he got to the back of the house he would find Farmer Brown's Boy. But he didn't. He didn't find anybody. His tail ceased to wag. In fact, it began to droop. He didn't know what to make of it all.

And just then he heard that whistle again around in front of the house. He barked a reply and away he raced. When he rounded the corner to the front of the house no one was there. This time he didn't stop. If his master was playing a trick on him by running around the house he would just catch him. So he didn't stop, but kept right on going, running harder than ever. Clear around the house he raced, but not so much as a glimpse of Farmer Brown's Boy did he get.

Such a puzzled dog as Bowser the Hound was! Up to this time he had not thought of that wonderful nose of his. Now he did think of it and at once began to run this way and that way with his nose to the ground, hoping and expecting to find the scent of Farmer Brown's Boy. But he didn't find it. All the way around the house he ran, and nowhere did he get even so much as a whiff of the scent of Farmer Brown's Boy. Something was wrong. Bowser sat down in front of the house and looked up at all the windows. His master wasn't there at any of them. Just then he heard that whistle again, and this time it was back of the house. Once more Bowser bounded away. He tore around the corner of the house and expected to find Farmer Brown's Boy at the back door. But the back door was closed. Bowser gave one look at it, put his tail between his legs, and trotted over and into his little house. He was badly upset, was Bowser. Up in a tree close by Mocker the Mocking Bird chuckled. I wonder why?

(Copyright, 1926, by T. W. Burgess)

The next story—Mocker Has Fun.

He turned the corner of the house with a rush.

STONE MOUNTAIN'S GRANITE UNDERLIES SEVERAL STATES

ATLANTA, Feb. 16, (AP)—How come Stone Mountain?

This question, as simple and as elegant as it may seem, has puzzled geologists ever since there have been any geologists to puzzle about Stone mountain.

Many elaborate explanations have been offered for the existence of the now famous granite monadnock, which rises suddenly out of a seemingly fertile country around it. The one most favored is that sometime along fifty to seventy-five million years ago there was an upheaval in this land, at which time Stone Mountain and the Appalachian mountains and other eastern wonder-rocks were thrust up.

But Stone mountain, on which is being carved the Confederate Memorial, is not all just out there in wide-open DeKalb county. That's only where it shows itself. It extends under most parts of South Carolina, Tennessee, Alabama and Florida.

At the place where Stone mountain seems to meet ordinary earth, it begins a sloping descent into the underneath of Georgia. At Macon, about 100 miles southwest of Stone Mountain, the granite bedrock is reached at about 400 feet. Dr. S. W. McCallie, Georgia state geologist, says that when the granite is struck a person might as well stop, because a drill would go on to China.

Stone mountain will not last forever, declare geologists. There is a devastating force which is diminishing, rapidly as such things go, the size of the mountain. This force is called exfoliation.

When the mountain came into being, it covered probably a hundred times its present size, as evidenced by the numerous outcrops of the same rock extending over a belt several miles in width. At this rate of shrinkage, geologists compute that in another 50,000,000 years, there will not be any Stone mountain.

At present, Stone mountain rises 656 feet above the ground and includes 583 acres of exposed granite mass. In this mass, there are 7,548,750,950 cubic feet. There are about 12 cubic feet of granite to the ton, making the boss weigh in the neighborhood of 628,645,911 tons.

Since about 1865, Stone mountain granite has been used extensively in building, as well as paving.

WALL OF CHINA LEGEND IS A TRAGEDY OF PIOUS WIFE

CHINWANGTAO, Feb. 16.—(AP)—Where the Peking-Mukden railway pierces the Great Wall of China at Shanhaikwan is a temple erected to the memory of a pious wife whose husband perished in the building of the structure.

Chih Huang-ti, the emperor who united all China, came to the throne in 246 B. C. It was Chih who built the Great Wall to keep the country together.

A woman from the south, so the legend runs, brought cotton-wadded clothes for her man, who had been impressed by the emperor to help build the wall. She was told that her husband had died, and that she could not have his body because it had been thrown between the brick facings of the wall and crushed there under tons of rubble and earth.

The woman persuaded a comrade of her husband to show her the stretch of wall where the body of her husband lay. Three days and three nights thereafter she walked up and down that length, until the compassion of the divine power was excited by her laments, and that part of the wall collapsed.

The scandal came to the ears of the emperor, who recognized, beneath his tyranny, that the conduct of the woman had been most orthodox. To regularize the matter, he directed that she be admitted to his household. First, however, he granted her prayer that she be permitted to select the bones of her husband for more deliberate burial.

The woman gathered up her husband's bones and walked to the end of the wall, abutting on the sea, from which, before the guards could stop her, she cast the bones into the sea and herself after them.

The image of the pious wife, in imperial robes, stands in the temple near the spot, while the breach in the wall is now perpetual.

WARTIME MATERIAL REBUILT BY AIR MAIL PLANE FACTORY

CHICAGO, Feb. 16. (AP)—In a little over 25 months of operation, the government airplane factory of the air-mail service at Maywood has developed into a steadily going concern with an output of 50 planes a year.

Almost all of the material used in the factory is wartime surplus, but it is so rebuilt that an almost new plane results. The planes are new, as far as the fuselage and wing surface is concerned, but the wing frames and the engines come from the huge stores of wartime surplus.

Use of this material restricts the ships rather closely to the DH wartime design, but a few modifications have been developed, chiefly in the fuselage.

The greatest changes have been effected in the engine, without, however, any material difference in the design of the 400-horsepower Liberty motor. The plant receives these from storage, stamped with the names of a dozen different manufacturers and rebuilds them completely.

New bearings, pistons and gears throughout, carefully fitted by hand, improve the reliability of the engine tremendously. The construction of 50 ships a year means the building or rebuilding of nearly 500 motors, as the average use of an engine in the service is about three weeks, before it is brought in for overhauling.

Another scheme which keeps the mail deliveries on time is the assignment of a ship to a certain pilot and no other. Each airman also has his own propellor, which may outlast several ships, while the engine is changed every few weeks. When a ship arrives with a different pilot, an inquiry always follows over the airmail radio from the general headquarters at Omaha for an explanation.

This radio, constantly manned, plays a large part in the safe operation of the airmail. Weather reports are constantly exchanged and the arrival and departure of all planes is reported to the next station ahead.

COMEDIAN FINDS ENTERTAINING ROYALTY SUPREME TEST OF ART

MILAN, Feb. 16. (AP)—Angelo Musco, Italy's popular music-hall artist, has found that entertaining royalty and nobility is the supreme test of histrionic temperament. Musco and his company were summoned on short notice to entertain the guests at the wedding of Princess Mafalda and Prince Philip of Hesse.

"Think of it," said the comedian, "fifty-three princes! They sat and gazed at me, and the more I tried my funniest lines, the more serious their faces became. I immediately developed a high fever. My knees trembled."

"Didn't they applaud when you had finished?" asked an interviewer.

"Not a bit," replied Musco. "I thought I was a complete flop. There was only accentuated silence, severe looks and austerity."

BRITISH WOMEN TAKE FENCING TO KEEP FIT AND TRIM FIGURE

LONDON, Feb. 16. (AP)—American women opposed to excess flesh and in search of means to retain an attractive figure might follow the example of those English women who believe fencing keeps them graceful and slender as well as healthy.

The Professional Women's Physical Culture Club, just organized here made fencing one of the principal exercises. The idea is not to develop the Amazonian type of woman, with bulging muscles and large wrists and ankles, but to ensure the health and figure of women who have to remain most of the day in a sitting position.

Some men go when duty calls and some when duty calls and the opposite direction.

AS TIPS DECLINE AMERICAN TOURISTS LOSE POPULARITY

GENOA, Feb. 16. (AP)—Once famous for his tendency to give lavish, excessive gratuities, the American tourists in Europe during the last year or two has fallen so far from grace in the eyes of the horde of European underlings, who must live by tips, as to earn a reputation for miserliness.

So confirmed is the new verdict, according to Mario Signorini, of Milan, train conductor, that conductors nowadays convict the American on sight as a "black valise," which is railway vernacular for "no tip." The tourist remains in the shadow of this dreadful appellation until he proves himself innocent.

But, Signor Signorini hastens to explain, the American is not really a miser. Rather, he becomes one through a misunderstanding and through what European train conductors consider the machinations and misrepresentations of tourist agencies in America and England.

"These agencies," declares Signorini, "sell tickets to tourists on the assumption that all expenses are included in the purchase price. While they may not say this, they intimate it and the tourists make up their traveling budgets accordingly. Many tourists, especially those of the middle class who now travel in great numbers, work out their economic plan on this assumption. In some cases, they spend as much as they can afford and are not prepared for additional expenses.

"The fact is, of course, that service on European express trains is not included in the price of the ticket. This is clearly established by law and is printed in French on the tickets. Americans, however, cannot or do not read the announcement. In addition our company does not permit us to ask payment. The result is that we get the normal payments from all other travelers.

PLAN PROTECTION OF MIDDLE AGED AGAINST MODERN PACE

NEW YORK, Feb. 16.—(AP)—Guarding the middle-aged against Twentieth century strain is becoming one of the principal tasks of American life insurance companies.

During the last 25 years, most of the advance in the direction of longevity has been among children and adults of the younger ages, through prevention of infantile deaths, and warfare against contagious diseases, in the opinion of insurance men.

Now attention is being turned to men and women around 50 years of age and this subject will be the chief topic of discussion at the convention of the Association of Life Insurance Presidents here, December 3-4.

All data in possession of the companies will be studied in the hope that records of the living may best point the way to solution of the problem.

Why, for example, is the percentage of deaths from diseases of the heart, arteries and kidneys in the age group 45 to 64 more than three time as great as the percentage of the group 20 to 29? What tendency, respectively, do accountants, laborers, bookkeepers, lawyers, physicians, farmers, merchants, manufacturers and others show to these diseases?

These and other questions will be propounded and an effort made to obtain agreement among the experts on a practical program for the betterment of conditions affecting the middle aged.

OMENS ALL FAVORABLE TO THE BIRTH OF THE JAPANESE HEIR

TOKYO, Feb. 16. (AP)—Two cranes nesting in an ancient pine tree in the Fukiage Imperial Gardens, adjacent to the palace, have brought joy to the Japanese and the royal household.

The nesting of the cranes, symbolical of married happiness, is traditionally believed to be a most fortunate omen and particularly applicable to the expected birth of an heir to the Prince Regent and Princess Nagako.

When the Prince Regent and the Crown Princess were married, a stork descended into the palace gardens. A white dove visited the palace when young Prince Sumi, the fourth imperial son, was born.

These incidents, with the arrival of the cranes, are looked upon as unusually happy auguries.

OPEN GREEK THEATRES HAVE RIVAL IN CITY OF ILLINOIS

JACKSONVILLE, Ill., Feb. 16—A Greek theatre has been opened in Jacksonville that is described as more perfect in its circular formation and acoustics than many of the open air theatres built by the ancient Greeks.

Its walls form a perfect circle. Professors from the Art Institute of Chicago designed it, directed its construction, and also the first performance in it, occasioned by the Jacksonville centennial.

Half a year ago there was a huge round water reservoir where the theatre now stands. When 500 actors had been drawn from all walks of life to play in the Centennial Pageant the necessity for a large playhouse presented itself. The old reservoir was transformed. The north side of the bowl was partially knocked out to make a place for the entrance and the stage. Circular seating levels were made of concrete, sufficient to seat 5,000 people. The stage was made on three levels, to accommodate instantaneous changes of scenes without curtains. This is accomplished by turning the light of the stage and shining a bright light in the faces of the audience. The theatre is owned by the city. The 50-piece band which plays in it is the Jacksonville Community Band. The musicians get paid whenever there is any money in the treasury, but when there is no money they play anyhow. Their last concert netted them eight cents each for the performance.

OPENING DAYS OF OKLAHOMA STRIP ENACTED AT KIMBERLY

KIMBERLY, Feb. 16. (AP)—Scenes similar to those enacted in Oklahoma when the "strip" was thrown open for settlement, have been witnessed repeatedly in different parts of the South African diamond districts within the last few months on grounds which heretofore had been considered barren.

There are thousands of persons who have become nomads wandering about the country and engaging in every rush possible to stake out claims at the opening of diamond diggings such as took place some weeks ago at Oersonskraal near Bloemhof. The race, as in Oklamoma, is made on foot, by men and women on horseback while others follow up in the rear with their "covered wagons," ground permitting, to furnish the diamond seekers with supplies.

CLEANING UP NEW LONDON'S VICE AND DISPOSING OF MISFIT COUPLES

(Special to The Bulletin.)

NEW LONDON, Feb. 18.—The police force has been moving to clean up some of the vile and disreputable places in the city. A beginning was made at the house at 12 Richard St., and then the authorities moved to lower Bank St., where men and women were found to be living together out of marriage. There were three such couples found living as husband and wife. These were all fined $25. Some of them were fined $25 each. One woman was sent to jail because she could not settle and her consort, a sailor, was fined and will probably go the same way, although he sent a friend to the ship on which he is one of the crew, to try to raise the fine. One of the women found in the lower Bank street place came from Hartford, another from Willimantic and still another from Massachusetts. The Hartford girl represented that her consort was a married Italian with a wife and child in the land over which Mussolini rules as with an iron rod. She said that her father and mother were living apart, the father in Bridgeport where he is working in a factory. She declared that she loved her friend and that, should he get a divorce she would marry him. She also represented that her father would not live with her mother and said the latter had asked Hartford authorities to seek her. The Massachusetts woman was crestfallen when she realized the predicament she was in. She said she was never in such a fix before and wept as she went to jail. She will probably see her sailor friend behind iron bars as a consolation. The Willimantic girl's friend paid her fine and she went away mightily pleased. Several other cases of lascivious conduct were continued for further investigation. All the way round, the prosecutor said, the session dealt with the vilest complaints that have come to the court in years.

Irving Beauchant of Mystic; Arthur Ward, 257 Montauk avenue; Miss Agnes Wadleigh, 48 Granite street; Sylvester Hauboldt, United States Coast Guard destroyer Cassin, state pier; baby Barbara Kaiser, Mrs. Constant H. C. Pittman and John McQueen, one of the member of the crew of the United States Coast Guard patrol boat 126, who was severely frost-bitten and suffered much from exposure as the result of the patrol boat being driven ashore in Narrasansett Bay a week ago during a blizzard, were patients dismissed at Lawrence Memorial associated hospital today.

Albert, infant son of Mr. and Mrs. Albert Henderson, 56 Mitchell street, Groton, died this morning at the residence of his parents.

An automobile owned by William H. Reeves, of Prospect street, was operated to that thoroughfare late last night and when the operator attempted to guide the car to a point in front of the Reeves residence, the wheels skidded on ice and lodged against the curbing on the wrong side of the street. The owner was unsuccessful in driving the machine to the right side of the highway with the result it was left in the wrong place of parking the remainder of the night.

Police Officer William Riordan had a mix-up with sailors from the state pier last midnight, but he landed them into the clutches of the law and they paid the penalty in the police court today. They said the officer called one of the sailors a "yellow cur," and that this was what started the row. The sailors admitted enough of their offense to bring fines of $15, $10 and $5 to them. Then there was an effort made to get in touch with the state pier so that money could be raised to pay the fines, but up to sundown they had not been successful in securing the money they needed.

Mrs. Maria Lamb Roach, 82, widow of Calvin Roach, Ledyard, died at Lawrence hospital last night, where she had been under treatment about a week. She had been an invalid at her home a long time prior to her admission to the New London institution.

Mrs. Frances E. Strickland, 97, widow of Joseph D. T. Strickland, died late yesterday at her former residence, 168 Mohegan avenue. She is survived by three daughters. Mrs. Strickland was born in Montville and was the daughter of the late John and Mary Chappell Lyon.

A deed transferring a building lot on the former Guthrie estate, Pequot, from the Pequot Realty company to Clara Turner Hammond was received for record at the office of the city clerk today.

Silas Maxson Jr., has sold a house and lot on Henry street to Florence H. Hermanns.

P. LeRoy Harwood, treasurer of the Mariners Savings bank, will address the Rotary club of New York, May 7th. He will use as a subject, "Whaling."

Mrs. Mary Watson, 64, widow of Joseph Watson, died suddenly of heart trouble today at the residence of her daughter, Mrs. Frederick Halyburton, 45 Willetts avenue. Mrs. Watson was known to be subject to a weakened condition of the heart, but it was believed that the disease of the vital organ was of a mild nature. This forenoon while about the house, Mrs. Watson suffered a heart attack and expired almost immediately. Medical Examiner Charles Kaufman was notified and after conducting an investigation rendered a verdict of death having been caused by chronic heart disease.

An automobile owned by County Detective William Lewis, Georgianna street, was extensively damaged late last night when it left the state road near Gallows lane and crashed against a stone wall. The state police received a telephone message that an accident had occurred and an officer was sent to the scene of the accident, but before he arrived there Officer Lewis and his machine had departed. A call was also sent for the Lawrence hospital ambulance, but when it reached the scene of the accident there was no need for its services.

The U. S. S.—V1, Lieut. Com. Sherwood Picking, and the largest undersea craft in Uncle Sam's navy, is enroute here and will carry out instructions to berth at the submarine base and prepare to engage in a series of undersea trials off the mouth of the harbor. Among the tests will be a 200 foot dive, a depth to which the craft has not submerged since she was constructed. The boat is expected here from Newport some time Friday.

William Lippe has sold a two family house on Connecticut avenue to John B. Morin, Reading, Pa., Mr. Morin is contemplating removing to this city.

Theodore Smith, 80, died this morning at the State Odd Fellows' home, Groton, where he had been a resident over a year. He had been in ill health several months because of a weakened condition of the heart brought about by his advanced years. Mr. Smith was a native of Norwalk, where he had resided the greater part of his life and was one of the oldest members of Our Brothers lodge, No. 10, I. O. O. F., Norwalk. He is survived by a son, Harry A. Smith, Waterbury and two daughters, Mrs. O. S. Clark and Miss Kate E. Smith, Norwalk.

The project of sewering that section of the city covered by Mohegan avenue and latteral streets is likely to be a more expensive than those who are asking for it consider. A resident on the avenue declares that many of the property owners will have bills as high as $2,000 each to pay if the city goes forward with the plan. It is represented than when the cesspools now in use in that section were placed there that the houses were occupied by families of a very few persons while now many of the houses are occupied by roomers who are students at the college and that the quantity of water used is several times what the cesspools were built to accommodate.

There will be few if any changes in the tenants of stores on the principal business streets of the city the 1st of April, when leases generally ex ire in New London. Rents are considered high now, but the occupants of the stores at present leased do not want to make changes in location.

Policeman E. W. Riordan is off duty tonight, suffering from a sprained wrist sustained last night when he had a scuffle with unruly sailors on Main street.

There is a hole in the highway on Montauk avenue large enough to bury a good sized dog in. The police have been notified that the roadway needs attention.

Anthony Labinsky was the occupant of a cell in the police station this evening awaiting arraignment in a nearby town by state police.

It is understood that the city council does not intend to rearrange the street lighting of Montauk avenue at present and establish what has been called a "white way" there. It will be recalled that Manager Holt a fortnight ago pointed out that he desired to rearrange some of the lights on the avenue, but he then intimated that a so-called "white way" was not among the projects he had in mind. The council has now, it is understood, tabled the whole matter.

THE JACKSONS GET OFF WITH PENALTY OF BUT $250

(Special to The Bulletin.)

NEW LONDON, February 18—Joseph Jackson and his wife "Jimmie" both colored and talented musicians, were brought up with a snap when the police went to their home at 12 Richard street last night and with a search warrant, scrutinized the place. The officers acted upon a complaint made by Sam Litvin, a fruit dealer in this city. The complaint was in the most positive terms and Litvin seems to have had his facts with him in telling his story to the police and to the court today. The Jacksons claim to have an orchestra, but Mr. Jackson earns money on the side by being a tailor, with a shop on upper Williams street. Litvin represented that he lost $190 in the Jackson place and that he was kept a prisoner there when he became "loaded". He said he was in the house from 8 o'clock Monday night until Thursday evening. When he became intoxicated, he said, he was given a room and there he was detained. His clothing, he said, was taken by Jackson and put into a trunk where it was kept in spite of his pleadings to be allowed to go. Litvin represented that he would have been willing to go into the street without his clothing if he had been allowed to do that.

Litvin asserted that he had been at the Jackson house some three weeks ago and then had bought liquor there. He said that Jackson came to his store Monday, representing that Litvin had incurred a debt of $15 for drinks for which he had not then paid. Litvin was surprised at that, he said, and told Jackson he would call that evening and pay whatever he owed. He did call, he said, when he was told that his bill was $17, not $15. He paid the $17 and then remained till he needed more money for he was paying fifty cents apiece, he represented, for cigarettes. Litvin then went on to tell Judge Crandall in the police court that he told Jackson that he would go and get some more money for he had it where he could obtain it by going after it. Jackson was agreeable and invited Litvin to ride with him wherever Litvin desired to go. "You're on!" was the reply of Litvin, so he entered the closed Nash car which Jackson owns and they were off for the Bank street store run by Litvin. They hauled up in front of the store and Litvin went to the safe where he extracted $280 in $20 bills. Then he hustled back into the car for a trip to Happyland, for he saw only pleasure ahead of him. The car headed right for the Jackson house and Litvin was invited to make himself at home. He did that little thing, he said, and there was where he made his mistake. He bought right and left. Then he found himself in bed with little of his clothing on. When he roused up he realized that he was both drunk and sick and pleaded to be allowed to go, but his request was denied and he put up with conditions as they existed. He was finally put out, but he was queried as to whether he was going to complain to the police. He gave no information as to his intention, but he struck a bee line for the police station when he realized that he had only $94 of the $280 which was his when he started for Happyland.

He told his story to Police Sergeant James C. Sullivan and the latter got in touch with the prosecutor and a search warrant was issued that took a squad of officers to the Jackson house to search it. They found no liquor though they found four colored men there and saw one of them, who claimed to be a boarder, go to a sink and dump the contents of an amber-colored pitcher. The boarder then put the pitcher into a pan of suds so there was no odor of alcohol on it when the police got possession of it. The whole party was arrested nevertheless and was presented in court today. Jackson and his wife denied all that Litvin claimed and so did a servant girl employed by Mrs. Jackson. The Jacksons were fined $100 each for selling liquor and Mrs. Jackson was fined $50 for keeping a disorderly house. They paid up and went away from court satisfied. The police declared that the place had the reputation of being a disorderly house at which some wild times frequently occurred.

HAND BADLY CRUSHED WHEN CAUGHT IN PRESS

(Special to The Bulletin.)

NEW LONDON, Feb. 18. — John Shea, 117 Viets street, employed as pressman's helper by The Day Publishing company, suffered the loss of a portion of his right hand late this afternoon when that member became caught between two cylinders of a press and the victim is now under treatment at Lawrence hospital.

Shea was assisting in the running of a new roll of paper into the press and in easing the paper through the numerous cylinders his right hand became caught between the two cylinders. Before the press could be stopped the hand had been terribly jammed, the fingers being crushed almost to a pulp and the flesh extensively lacerated. He was hastened to the office of a nearby physician, where an examination revealed the seriousness of the injury and Shea was then removed to the hospital, where the fingers of the hand were removed close to the hand proper. At the institution this evening Shea was reported to be resting as comfortably as could be expected.

TWENTY-TWO AUTOISTS MUST APPEAR IN COURT

(Special to The Bulletin.)

NEW LONDON, Feb. 18.—The state police, Groton barracks, were busy throughout last night rounding up drivers of automobiles, who violated the law in failing to equip their machines with proper lights. Nearly 200 autoists were held up on the outskirts of the city and the lights of the machines examined. Twenty-two drivers were ordered to appear in the Groton and Waterford town courts because their violation was apparently flagrant, while 66 other drivers were given warnings. The work of the state officers last night is in line with a movement throughout the state to cause car drivers to provide proper lights for their machines in a further effort to minimize accidents.

POLICE CHECK UP ON ALL ROOMING HOUSES

(Special to The Bulletin.)

NEW LONDON, Feb. 18. — The rooming houses in this city are to receive a closer supervision by the police than they have received up to this time. It is claimed that the persons who rent rooms to transients are not exercising discretion as to who they allow to have rooms and that as a result it is an easy matter for disreputable persons to engage rooms for a day, or a night and be asked no questions when they register. It is claimed that recent prosecutions came from the closer attention that the police are giving to the reckless leasing of rooms. One policeman declared this evening that there never was a time when there were so many floaters in the city as are here now. There were nearly a dozen men and women arraigned in the police court today as lascivious persons in behavior. The police say they are to bring other cases to the attention of the prosecutor that he may investigate and put an end to a lot of the wanton association of men and women in this city.

ANNOUNCEMENTS

Capitol Theatre Willimantic.

Harold Lloyd brings to the Capitol theatre, Willimantic, in "The Freshman," a story of college days—the most magical days of that most envious age—the Age of Youth! The age when a fellow comes to grips with life—when he begins to realize he's going out into a big world, either to be a leader or a follower of men.

Lloyd plays the role of Harold Lamb, who goes to college with the worthy ambition to be the most popular boy in the school.

Then, when he thought he had just about dethroned the present college hero, they told him he never could win that coveted place until he got on the football team. So, undaunted, he made a try. The only position open was the one of dummy. They needed tackle practice, but the dummy had given up the ghost, so Harold volunteered and when the coach called a halt Harold understood why the dummy passed out!

Good psychology — sound groundwork for a drama, and, as it is used in "The Freshman," it is a foundation for a story of rib-shaking laughs, heart-touching tears and spine-tingling thrills. This is Harold Lloyd's most ambitious comedy effort.

ANNOUNCEMENTS

Real Estate Sold in Montville

Joseph K. Panek and Nicholas Tymcheck, real estate agents, have sold for Paul and Alin Martinff, the farm with buildings, machinery and stock situated on Fitch Hill road, and known as Browning place. The new owners are Alex and Nellie Abugel.

The same agents have sold for Benjamin Krieger, the three apartment house on Washington street, called Harland place, to Mr. and Mrs. Paul Martinff. The new owners have purchased the property for investment and residence.

Connecticut College Concert

Speaking in his New York hotel recently of the foolish attempts to exclude certain composers from certain programs, Jacques Thibaud, the noted French violinist, who will be heard at Bulkeley auditorium, New London, next Tuesday night, under the auspices of Connecticut college, in an international program of violin music, said:

"If we are to present music of the foreign masters, then let us have representative examples both of men and their work For example, I and Sir Edward Elgar as typifying the British spirit in music. When one plays Elgar he is very near to the musical expression, a curiously shy and half-hidden quality, of the English people. The same with Saint-Saens for our own people. Saint-Seans wrote French music, of the French people and for the French people and for all other peoples. Brahms and Beethoven express the nature of their country and people in their music. Of the Russian school Scriabine, Moussorgsky, Ramsky-Korshoff and Rachmaninoff are truly representative. But to interpret this music one must have a knowledge of the people themselves as well as of their countries."

Tickets are now on sale at Starr Bros. drug store, State street, New London

Breed Theater

Powerful drama, relieved by delightful comedy touches, goes to make one of the season's best offerings of The Wheel, the William Fox production adapted from the John Golden stage play, which begins a two days' engagement at the Breed theater today

Gambling—both indoors over the roulette table and outdoors on the race tracks—forms the groundwork for the plot of this remarkable story. There is action aplenty, suspense that is well sustained to the end, and deft characterization to add to the charm of this worth-while picture.

A well balanced and talented cast appears in The Wheel. Harrison Ford one of the most sincere and delightful leading men on the screen today, is the hero. He gives a splendid portrayal of a role which, at times, needs all his artistry to evoke the audience's sympathy. In the end, of course, he comes through with flying colors although it is chiefly his wife who averts disaster for them both.

Claire Adams as Ted's wife has a different part but she lives up to its requirements in every way. Her natural beauty and her ability in the emotional scenes make her an outstanding figure of the picture.

The "heavy" Manlon Hamilton, as Tom Baker the gambler, gives a somewhat new twist to screen villainy. The novelty of his role must be seen to be appreciated; it would spoil the story for future fans to tell what part Baker has in the climax of the picture. Margaret Livingstone is captivating as the gay sweetheart of Baker.

Other notable work is done by David Torrence, Georgie Harris, Clara Horton and Julia Swayne Gordon.

The clever titles in The Wheel were written by Montague Glass.

Bradley Theater, Putnam

Arrangements have been completed whereby the famous Charles K. Champlin Stock Co. will appear at the Bradley theater, Putnam for a three days engagement, commencing with a special Monday (Washington's Birthday) matinee. For twenty-five years this celebrated company has appeared in all the large eastern cities, and their appearance here was made possible through having an open week in their season's bookings. The company has recently appeared in Middletown, Hartford, Bridgeport, Meriden and other New England cities where they have broken all house records for attendances. The company comes here direct from Poli's theater, Meriden. They carry all special scenery and effects for all plays produced. The opening play announced for Monday is Charles Frohamn's New York Lyceum theater success, She Got What She Wanted, which is conceded to be one of the best plays ever given on an American stage. Tuesday matinee and night Lightnin', Wednesday matinee for ladies only, Discarded Wives, Wednesday night, Strange Bedfellows. The reserved seats are now on sale at the box office.

GOING AHEAD WITH NEW THEATRE BUILDING

(Special to The Bulletin.)

NEW LONDON, Feb. 18.—A conference between Building Inspector Benjamin R. Linicus and officials connected with the erection of the new theatre, State street, took place today. This resulted from the edict of the building inspector a week ago in ordering work on the playhouse discontinued in view of the fact that the east wall was not being erected in conformity with the provisions of the city's building code. As a result of the conference the work will be resumed in a day or two for a compromise was effected. The city's code calls for a 16-inch wall, but in this instance a wall of but a foot in thickness was being erected. The compromise will permit two brick buttresses, four feet by one foot being built against the wall and running from the bottom to the top. Those in conference with inspector Linicus were Arthur W. Johnson, New York, architect who drew the plans; Mr. Harrison, the builder, and Mr. Clapman, engineer, and who has charge of the construction work.

GEO. RATHBURN AWARDED PRIZE IN FIDDLE CONTEST

(Special to The Bulletin.)

JEWETT CITY, Feb. 18—The old time fiddling contest at Finn's opera house Thursday evening drew a large crowd. George Rathburn and Edmond Bechard, both over 60 years of age, played the same two numbers at first and then four of their own selections. The judges were two violinists, William Driscoll and Tyler Gilbert, and Mrs. E. H. Hiscox. They found it hard to decide but awarded Mr. Rathburn the prize on certain technical points of rhythm and intonations.

Treat Colds 2 Ways

With ONE Treatment
WHEN rubbed over throat and chest for all kinds of cold troubles Vicks VapoRub does two things at once:
(1) Its ingredients are vaporised by the body heat and inhaled direct to the inflamed air passages, loosening the phlegm and easing the difficult breathing; and
(2) At the same time it warms and stimulates the skin like an old-fashioned poultice, "drawing out" the soreness and pain and thus aiding the vapors inhaled to break up the congestion.
This double action of Vicks usually relieves the most stubborn cold over night.

Friday evening a Valentine whist party was held at the home of Mrs. T. L. Wilson. Mrs. Ralph Lovell acted as hostess and was assisted by Mrs. Clinton Frink. There were six tables in play. The Valentine favors as well as tallys caused much amusement owing to the funny sayings. Chicken salad rolls, jelly with whipped cream and cake were served.

Saturday the 20th will be observed as Washington night with Mrs. F. Kinnie in charge assisted by Mrs. William Wright.

Mrs. Waldo, who has been ill is reported better.

Mrs. Clinton Frink entertained the Ladies' Aid society Tuesday afternoon.

MARKET WAS IRREGULAR.

NEW YORK, Feb. 18.—(By The A. P.)—The main body of stocks continued to drift within narrow and irregular limits in today's market, but sharply contrasting movements took place in a number of specialties. Buoyancy of American Can, General Electric and Texas Gulf Sulphur was offset by the weakness of Marine preferred and other shippings. Total sales of 1,362,900 shares were only slightly larger than those of yesterday.

Stiffening of the call money rate from 4 3-4, the renewal figure, to 5 per cent., checked the strong rally which started in the last hour of trading. Time money and commercial paper rates were unchanged.

Several favorable dividend announcements were made during the day. The Texas Gulf Sulphur Company raising its annual rate from $8 to $10; the Railway Steel Spring Company placing its new stock on a $4 basis, equivalent to $12 on the old which paid $10 including an extra of $2 last year and United Paper Board declaring a quarterly of 50 cents, the only payment since last July. Texas Gulf Sulphur stock closed nearly 5 points higher at 140, Railway Steel Spring showed a net gain of 2 points at 86 and United Paper Board yielded 2-4 of a point to 33 1-3.

American Can showed a net gain of 11 1-2 points at 331 after establishing a record high price for all time at 331 1-4. General Electric soared nearly 11 points to a new top at 385 3-4 on persistent rumors that the directors would authorize a stock split-up at their meeting in Boston next week, but it settled back to 382 at the close. American Brake Shoe preferred jumped 8 1-4 points to 128 1-4, and net gains of 3 points or more were recorded by Burroughs Adding Machine, Homestake Mining, Nash Motors, Pressed Steel Car preferred and Tobacco Products.

Heavy accumulation of Tide Water Oil issues was based on rumors of impending developments involving the Associated Oil Company, but whether it involves a merger of those properties was not revealed. Tide Water Oil common closed 1 7-8 higher at 33 3-4 and preferred scored an extreme gain of more than 3 points at 101 5-8, yielding fractionally from the high at the close. Associated Oil showed a small fractional gain at 58 5-8.

Shorts were again driven to cover in some of the motor shares. Jordan was run up nearly four points to 63 1-4 and then eased nearly a point from the high, and Hudson closed 1 1-4 higher at 118 3-4 on total transactions of nearly 100,000 shares.

Heavy selling of Marine preferred which broke 7 points to 37, followed the publication of a statement by President P. A. S. Franklin that the freight situation is not at all encouraging, and by the circulation of unconfirmed rumors that the company failed to earn enough to cover its depreciation last year. Other shippings yielded in sympathy, Atlantic, Gulf and West Indies dropping 3 5-8 points to 53 1-2, and American International Corporation closing nearly two points lower at 43 3-4.

Selling of Pan-American Petroleum issues reflected speculative uneasiness over the Mexican situation.

Marked heaviness also was shown by Devoe and Raynolds, Fairbanks Morse, Otis Steel preferred and E. G. Shattuck. Rails held fairly steady with a brisk demand and for the Seaboard Air Line issues, based on the proposed construction of a new Florida railroad as the chief feature.

Most of the commodity markets pointed upward. Wheat futures advanced a cent a bushel on reports that the American carryover of the commodity would be small. Cotton was 7 points higher to 5 lower, with final quotations off from the best on realizing. Coffee futures moved up 10 to 17 points on reports that supply of Rio coffee here for delivery on March contracts had been reduced by sales for consumption. Raw sugar advanced 1-32 of a cent a pound.

The establishment of another new high record by Japanese yen at 46 3-5 cents and the further weakness of French francs, which broke several points to a new year's low around 3.75 cents, were the outstanding developments in the irregular foreign exchange market. Demand sterling held steady at $4.86, but several of the continental rates showed small recessions.

FULL ASSOCIATED PRESS DESPATCHES

The Bulletin.

Norwich, Friday, Feb. 19, 1926

THE WEATHER

Conditions

The disturbance now central over Southern Illinois will move rapidly northeastward with increasing intensity and it will be attended by precipitation Friday in the middle Atlantic and North Atlantic states. Following the passage of this disturbance considerably colder weather will overspread practically the entire Washington forecast district and frost is probable Friday night as far south as central Florida. Fair weather will prevail almost generally East of the Mississippi river on Saturday. The weather will be somewhat warmer Sunday in the Atlantic states.

Winds

North of Sandy Hook: Increasing southeast and south shifting to west and northwest and probably reaching gale force Friday afternoon, diminishing Saturday: Overcasting weather with rain Friday.

Sandy Hook to Hatteras: Fresh to strong south and southwest, shifting to northwest and probably reaching gale force Friday afternoon, diminishing by Saturday; overcast weather Friday with occasional rains.

Forecast

For Southern New England: Fair Friday, colder Friday night; Saturday fair and colder.

Observations

The Bulletin's observations show the following changes in temperature and barometric changes Thursday:

TAFTVILLE

A mardi gras carnival was held Tuesday evening at the German Shooting club in Lisbon, most of the members attending.

A number of residents of Lisbon are to have the wells on their property deepened, a machine for drilling now being operated in this vicinity. At present work is being done in the well of George W. Weller, Jr.

The basketry class held its weekly meeting Thursday evening in the Red Cross rooms in the Ponemah building.

Mrs. John Andrew, of Baltic, was a visitor in the village Thursday.

To celebrate the opening of the provincial conclave at Lynn, Mass., next Monday, a ceremonial with knights, squires and pages of Castle Perilous, No. 3747, K. O. K. A., attending, was held Wednesday evening in the vestry of the Taftville Congregational church. As at all ceremonials, full regalia was worn, and the conclave was preceded by a procession through the body of the church, symbolic of the aim of its members to walk in the footsteps of the Knights of the Round Table. Seats at the conclave were arranged about a round table on which stood a replica of the Holy Grail.

The speaker of the evening was Ernest O. Rodier, of Norwich, who told the members that he had never witnessed a ceremonial of the Knights of King Arthur, but that he hoped to be asked again to visit the castle. He told of the work of various fraternal orders with which he had been connected and of the good that he believed they did. He advised those present to carry out the idea of their symbolic ritual in their every day life, and expressed his satisfaction to witness the work as he saw it carried out at Castle Perilous.

The event at Lyan, Mass., is expected to bring almost a thousand delegates to that city, from all parts of New England next Monday, and it is hoped that a delegation will be able to go from the local castle. The delegates are to be the guests of the Greater Lynn Palatine, which was represented last year in Taftville, by Kenneth R. Henley, who came to assist Howell E. Estey, the grand seneschal of the order, in conferring the knight's degree on two members of the Taftville castle.

The officers of the conclave were: King, Forrest Heinrich; chamberlains Reginald Monty and Manuel Martin; sentinel, Edwin Troeger; seneschal, Frank Moors; constable, Ralph Hunt; musician, James Heap; standard bearers, Albert Airey, Jr., and Edmond Matheson.

The committee that arranged the ceremonial were Albert Airey Jr., Forrest Heinrich, Herbert Airey, Gustave Hedler and Adam Heinrich.

Leo Peltier, of North A street, has resigned his position with the weaving department of the Ponemah company.

Traffic has been resumed over the Gallows hill road into Norwich Town, although the space between the drifts,

Getting Skinnier Every Day

Something Must Be Done and Done Right Now—Quick

Tens of thousands of thin, rundown men—yes, and women too—are getting discouraged—are giving up all hope of ever being able to take on flesh and look healthy and strong.

All such people can stop worrying and start to smile and enjoy life right now for McCoy's Cod Liver Oil Compound Tablets which any druggist will tell you all about, is putting flesh on hosts of skinny folks every day.

One woman, tired, weak and discouraged, put on 15 pounds in five weeks and now feels fine.

We all know that Cod Liver Oil is full of vitalizing flesh producing vitamines, but many people can't take it because of its horrible smell and fishy taste and because it often upsets the stomach.

McCoy's Cod Liver Oil Compound Tablets are as easy to take as candy and if any thin person don't gain at least 5 pounds in 30 days your druggist is authorized give you your money back—and only 60 cents for 60 tablets. Ask Lee & Osgood Co. or any live pharmacist anywhere.

But be sure to get McCoy's, the original and genuine, and bear in mind that for thin, sickly kids they are wonderful—a very sickly child—use 4, gained 12 pounds in 7 months.

GAVE AMERICANIZATION ADDRESS BEFORE WEEKLY MEETING OF LIONS

A talk on Americanization by Rev. S. A. Iclek, rector of St. Joseph's church, featured the weekly meeting of the Norwich Lions club Thursday noon at the Wauregan hotel. President William A. Anderson presided and the meeting opened with the singing of America and grace was said by Rev. Fr. Iclek. The song leader was J. B. Caron. The current topic talk was given by Radolph Henschel who chose for his subject, Rubber. Dr. Charles Solomon won the attendance contest prize, a silver pencil, donated by Edward L. McAvoy.

Earl Taggart introduced as the speaker of the day, Rev. S. A. Iclek, rector of St. Joseph's church. Rev. Fr. Iclek spoke as follows:

Americanization is nothing else than the assimilating, amalgamating or welding together of the different national and racial elements that came here to the land of opportunity. All European countries had, and some still have, the same problem. Some of them succeeded in assimilating the various tribes that originally came to those parts of Europe that now form such countries as France, Spain, Germany, Italy and other great European nations. Some others failed, and in time of great upheavals, disintegrated into the various groups, just like a bundle of wood breaks up and falls apart after you cut the cord that binds it. Austria is an example of such an empire. Some nations succeeded in this work of assimilation, others failed.

The work of assimilation goes on for a long period of time, it takes centuries to accomplish it well. France for instance is considered as a homogeneous nation and still there are great differences among its citizens from the south and those from the Vandee, those from the Pyrenees and those living in gay Paree. The same is true of England, Germany and even small Belgium has its racial problems with the Valoons. Those that are interested in the work of Americanization need not be surprised or discouraged if they do not attain the complete unification of the different nationals now living in our cities and countryside, within the period of a few years, or even one or more generations. Those things take time and in fact the slower they are the better.

Like in everything else there is the right and wrong way of going about this problem of Americanization. What we wish to accomplish is this: We want the foreigner to love our country, its history, traditions and customs, and by loving them we want him to adopt them and become so to say, one of us in speech, dress, habits—good ones of course—in a word we want him to be what we call a full-blooded American citizen, not only by possessing citizenship papers, but be one of us in our way of thinking.

Cannot Force Americanization

If we try to force this Americanization down his throat, if we insist on him giving up his national customs, religion and language we will not succeed in our endeavors. We will do the work more harm than good. No faint heart ever won a fair lady, but you surely will not win her affection by pestering her to death with your charms and by forcing your attentions upon her in some brutal way, same is true with Americanization. We have so many nice things to show the foreigner, we have such wonderful opportunities here, that if we use tact and kindness in approaching the foreigner in these matters we will meet with a great measure of success.

There are two classes of foreigners to consider: 1.—Those that come here to stay, to make their homes in America, and 2.—Those that came here to make money and after they made their stake, go back where they came from. The first class is the desirable one and the second is not so desirable. Then there are races and religions that will blend more easily into the general makeup of American citizenship than others, they assimilate because they have many things, racially and religiously in common with the other foreigners who came here on the Sun Flower or some other rum runner long before prohibition was heard of, and even before the struggle for independence. Then, there is the foreigner and his children to be considered.

Deeds Are What Count

If we have good qualities of loyal American citizenship to offer to the foreign-born, and if we really want them to become good American citizens, we need not hood our faces, we need not parade in our night gowns, we can proclaim our citizenship in broad daylight. I want people to know that it is not the family tree that makes a good American citizen. It's his deeds that count. The Polish, Italian, Jewish or Irish boys that went "over there" and died in the defence of America and what America stands for, were and are just as good American citizens as those that died at Bunker Hill, Gettysburg or any other glorious battlefield. I want you to know that the foreign mother who raises a large family of children, who sends them to school and gives them an education from the meagre salary of her husband is as great a credit to this country as any daughter, granddaughter or great-granddaughter of the American Revolution.

Just bear this in mind, that the foreigner is here. He is here to stay. His children with unpronouncable names are here to stay, their children and their children's children are here to stay, to vote and—don't forget—to rule. Just as we had a Roosevelt we may have a president some day with an Irish, Polish, French or Italian name. All we should do is try and make these future citizens worthy of the heritage they are receiving from those who came here before us, who suffered, fought, bled and died to make this "the land of the free and the home of the brave," to establish here a new democracy, "a government of the people, for the people and by the people." I may say this, that many of the old blue bloods, who amassed great wealth are not displaying the sturdy virtues of their forefathers, are not giving to the new Americans the example that they should give. Our social life, our divorce scandals in the smart sets are not the best things to feed the minds of the foreigners and their children. I wish that the Americanizers, who often see the smallest speck on the foreigner, would look upon their own spotted careers. Not only the foreigner should be a law abiding, moral citizen, but the old acion and his children should also be good, thrifty, industrious, self-sacrificing citizens.

Foreign-Born Are Asset

From the 20 years of dealing with the foreign-born, I am firmly convinced that they are great assets to this country. Their children compare well in studies and athletics with the children of the old stock. You find foreign names on the rostrum of our great football and baseball heroes. Honus Wagner and Babe Ruth come from other shores. It is the foreigners and their children that build our railroads, cultivate the farms that the old settlers have abandoned, fill the factories with workmen and our schools with children. The foreigner believes in a large family and many of the natives believe in blooded cats and dogs. A nice dog makes a wonderful pet, a cat with a red ribbon around his neck is a fine decoration for a limousine but they make damned poor soldiers. I believe in the foreigner, for I came from that stock, if we give him a helping hand, if we teach him the good qualities of those of our forefathers who laid the foundation of this great republic, we will make him worthy of the great inheritance that he receives by becoming an American citizen.

The speaker was given a rising vote of thanks and the gathering closed with the singing of the Star Spangled Banner, followed by the salute to the flag.

CONFERENCE CALLED FOR UNITED JEWISH CAMPAIGN

Invitations have been mailed to 500 Jews in Norwich, Taftville, Bozrahville, Greeneville, Jewett City, Yantic, Hallville, Montville, Preston, Oakdale, New London, Willimantic and Colchester, to attend a conference in Norwich Sunday afternoon at 3 o'clock, at the Buckingham Memorial.

The invitations have been issued by Abner Schwartz, the well known Jewish leader of Norwich, at the urgent request made upon him by Samuel J. Well, Connecticut state chairman.

This conference is called to inaugurate a campaign to raise an adequate "overseas chest" for the continuance of the major activities of the American Jewish joint distribution committee in constructive relief of the sons of thousands of Jews in Europe, who, because of the economic crisis abroad have not been able to become self-supporting. During the past seven years the joint distribution committee has expended in relief work in 42 countries close to $60,000,000 raised by the Jews of America, for the relief of their war and pogrom stricken coreligionists. It has established credit institutions for loans to artisans and tradesmen and for home-building purposes, opened vocational training schools to teach the Jewish youth of Europe useful trades, supported a long chain of cultural and religious institutions and conducted campaigns against disease and epidemic, besides extending immediate aid to hundreds of thousands of sick, starving and nearly naked war victims and sheltered, fed and educated thousands of war-orphans. One of its latest activities is extending aid by way of loans, implements, and live-stock to the thousands of Jews in the past two years have taken up agriculture on the Russian prairies.

In 1922, the state of Connecticut subscribed $350,000 to the $14,000,000 campaign conducted in that year, with David A. Brown as the national chairman, and the leaders of this state are very hopeful of over-topping this figure in the present $15,000,000 United Jewish campaign.

Norwich and vicinity raised the substantial sum of over $25,000 in 1922, under the leadership of Max Hanover, who in the present campaign, is lending his assistance to organize this community for the forthcoming campaign, in the invitations sent out Abner Schwartz states as follows:

"Please be assured that in sending this letter, I seek neither glory nor personal aggrandizement, but I am actuated by the belief that the Jewish people of Norwich cannot afford to be pointed at as having ignored an appeal which is going on throughout the United States."

MEASLES CONTINUE TO APPEAR IN THE STATE

While towns throughout the state are reporting weekly as many as 100 cases of measles, and in some cases a score of cases of scarlet fever and diphtheria, Norwich is evidently fairly free from contagious disease at the present time. Hartford last week reported 110 cases of measles, Bridgeport, 23 cases of scarlet fever, and Hamden, 18 cases of diphtheria. Norwich reported one case of diphtheria, two cases of scarlet fever and one by the state department of health case of measles.

The weekly morbidity report issued shows the following communicable diseases reported last week from towns in eastern Connecticut:

Diphtheria—Norwich, 1; Stonington, 1; Killingly, 1.

Whooping cough—Bozrah, 4; Groton, 1; Killingly, 1.

Scarlet fever—Groton, 4; New London, 2; Norwich, 2; Waterford, 1.

Measles—Bozrah, 15; Griswold, 8, Groton, 5; New London, 22; Norwich, 1; Old Lyme, 12; Preston, 3; Voluntown, 3; Waterford, 3; Hebron, 2; Stafford Springs, 1 Danielson, 4; Killingly, 6; Thompson, 6; Willimantic, 1.

Silvertone Quartette To Sing

It was announced at the Central Baptist church on Thursday evening at the prayer meeting that the Silvertone Male Quartette of New London would fulfill their postponed engagement on Sunday evening. One of the members of the quartette was summoned to report for service at the submarine base last Sunday morning and that made impossible the presence of the quartette on Sunday evening. They have, however, arranged their program so that they can be present in Norwich on Sunday evening, the 21st. They will sing the following numbers: Our Native Land, Blue Galilee, Wandering Child Oh Come Home, I Love Him, and Our Country.

JURY GIVES VERDICT FOR CLAIM FOR COMMISSION

After an hour's deliberation the jury in the superior court at New London Thursday morning, brought in a verdict for the plaintiff in the amount of $2,065.38 in the case of John A Moran realtor, of this city, against the Central Building Co., also of this city. Judge Allyn L. Brown charged the jury Thursday morning, finishing his remarks shortly after 11 o'clock. The verdict which was for the full amount of Moran's claim, $1,950 with interest which figured a total of $2,065.38, was rendered at 12:10 o'clock.

Moran sued for a commission of 3 per cent., on the sale of the Central building to William H. Murphy for $65,000.

VALENTINE PARTY AT LAUREL HILL SCHOOL

A very successful valentine party was held this week at the Laurel Hill school, by the Parent-Teachers' association. Pleasing solos were rendered by Miss Maida Wright, accompanied by Miss Madeline Wright on the piano. Games were played, followed by dancing, for which the music was furnished by John Diachyschyn, piano, and John Counihan, violin. Frederic Doolittle acted as prompter.

Delicious sandwiches, cake and coffee were served by a committee in charge of Mrs. R. Percival and Mrs. C. Cochrane. Miss Frances Bushnell was at the door. There was a large attendance and it proved to be a very delightful evening.

Chosen For Trinity Club

Dudley H. W. Burr, of Baltic, was one of eleven members of the sophomore class at Trinity college, elected to membership this week to the Sophomore Dining club. The election indicated that the men chosen have been most active in their undergraduate class activities. Burr, who was one of the stars of the 1925 football team, is playing on the varsity basketball team and is president of the Debating club. His fraternity is Sigma Nu.

RUTH CHAMPION RUICKHOLDT IS HELD IN NEW YORK

The forgery case against Mrs. Ruth Champion Ruickholdt, formerly of Lyme, and now under arrest in New York, has been continued until Feb. 26. While Mrs. Ruickholdt is being detained Bertilon records are being sent out by the New York police to various cities at their request in an effort to ascertain whether Mrs. Ruickholdt is the woman who has been passing a series of bad checks in eastern cities. The New Haven police are interested in the arrest of Mrs. Ruickholdt, suspecting that she is the woman who posed as one Mrs. Mc-Williams and passed several checks in that city.

Took Prizes in Pinochle Play

The Thursday afternoon pinochle club met this week with Mrs. Samuel Wilson of No. 95 Cliff street. The prizes went to Mrs. William S. Murray, 7,520 and Mrs. Herman Pukallus, 6,740. The club will meet next week with Mrs. John O. Peckham, No. 159 West Thames street.

FORMER TAFTVILLE GIRL MARRIED IN LONDON

The marriage of Elsie Seddon, the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. J. W. Seddon, of Taftville, and Ernest G. Stranz, of Seattle, Wash., New York city and London, England, took place at Kensington Congregational chapel, London, Eng., on February 10th., Rev. Thomas Yates officiating at the ceremony.

Immediately after the ceremony the bride and groom left on an extended wedding tour through continental Europe, and the Mediterranean, returning for an extended stay at Monte Carlo and the Ritiera. Upon their return they will establish their permanent home in London.

Mrs. Stranz is well known in Norwich circles, also in Boston and Montreal. Her husband, who is managing director of the Kraft, Mos, Lasey Cheese Co., Ltd., of Great Britain and continental Europe, is commercially well known throughout the United States and Canada.

AGREE ON $381,000,000 TAX CUT FOR THIS CALENDAR YEAR

Compromise Effected by Senate and House Conferees on the Revenue Bill—About $75,000,000 Below Senate Measure, and Somewhat Above the Amount Voted by the House—Action is Described as Acceptable to the Treasury—Exemption From Inheritance Tax is Increased From $50,000 to $100,000.

WASHINGTON, Feb. 19—(AP)—Tax reduction amounting to $381,000,000 this year and $343,000,000 thereafter was agreed upon today by senate and house conferees on the revenue bills.

This compromise, which must be ratified by both branches of congress before the bill becomes law, represents an increase of about $50,000,000 over the total written into the bill by the house, but is $75,000,000 less than voted by the senate. It was described as acceptable to the administration as within the limits the treasury can afford.

House conferees forced the restoration to the bill, with some modifications, of taxes on inheritances, automobile passenger cars, admissions and dues, which the senate had voted to repeal. Senate conferees, on the other hand, obtained greater reductions in some of the surtax rates than were voted by the house.

The compromise measure will be placed before the house for ratification Monday or Tuesday. If approved, it will be taken to the senate the following day, and upon its approval there, it will be sent to the white house for the signature of President Coolidge, which is expected to make it law in ample time for it to become effective before first income tax instalments are due, March 15.

While considerable dissatisfaction was apparent on both sides as a result of the inheritance tax compromise, which involves allowance of a retroactive cut in this tax, leaders expected immediate ratification of the bill by the two chambers.

The conference agreement on the points in dispute follows:

Restoration of the modified inheritance tax rates voted by the house, including the provisions allowing 20 per cent. credit on account of state inheritance tax payments.

Retroactive cut in the inheritance tax whereby the increased rates voted in 1924 would be eliminated in favor of the lower rates in the 1921 act.

Allowance of the increased reductions in the surtax rates applying on incomes between $26,000 and $100,000 as voted by the senate. This involves a saving of $23,000,000 annually to the taxpayers in this class.

Repeal of the capital stock tax as voted by the senate, increase of the corporation tax, now 12 1-2 per cent. to 13 per cent. for this year and 13 1-2 per cent. thereafter.

Restoration of the 10 per cent. tax on admissions and dues, but with an increase in the exemptions to apply on tickets costing 75 cents and less, rather than 50 cents and less, as voted by the house.

Restoration of the automobile passenger car tax, with the rate reduced from 5 to 3 per cent.

Retroactive reduction in the gift tax to make the lower rates in effect on inheritances in the 1921 law effective. This tax, as far as the future is concerned, is repealed by the bill.

Increase from $50,000 to $100,000 the exemption from the inheritance tax.

MEXICAN REFUGEES IN JAIL AT SAN ANTONIO

SAN ANTONIO, Texas., Feb. 19—(AP)—Six of eight prominent Mexican refugees living in the United States were in various jails tonight, following their indictment by a federal grand jury on a charge of conspiracy to overthrow the Calles government of Mexico.

Four men were arrested today by department of justice agents. They were:

Alfonso de La Huerto, brother of Adolfo de La Huerta, who led the last revolution against Obregon in 1923. Alfonso was arrested in El Paso.

General Salvador Urias, also taken in El Paso.

Jorge Prieto Laurens, former governor of the state of San Luis Potesi, apprehended in Kansas City.

General Lorenzo Nieto, now an insurance man, arrested in San Antonio as he entered his office this morning.

Previously, General Francisco Coss, picturesque revolutionist who entered Mexico City with Carranzo in 1915 and who of late has been selling patent medicines for a living, was jailed here along with R. Esperanz Martines, a former secretary of the Mexican chamber of deputies. Both were unable to make $2,500 bond.

Arrest of the other two men indicted was expected soon, as it was believed they still were in this country, despite reports that they had fled in anticipation of their indictment.

U. S. CUTTER FIRED UPON BRITISH SCHOONER

LUNENBERG, Nova Scotia, Feb. 19—(AP)—The British schooner Eastwood arrived in port here today in a badly battered condition, allegedly due to having been fired upon by the United States Coast Guard cutter Seneca while the schooner was at anchor twenty-one miles off the Long Island, New York coast.

There were no casualties among the Eastwood's crew. The shelling of the schooner, according to her captain, John Spindler, occurred February 15. He added that his vessel had been hit at least sixty-nine times. The crew took shelter in the hold during the firing.

It is understood here that the owners of the schooner purpose to make a protest to the government at Ottawa.

COAL MOVING OVER THE LACKAWANNA RAILROAD

SCRANTON, Pa., Feb. 19—(AP)—The first train made up entirely of loaded coal cars since the reopening of the anthracite mines moved over the Lackawanna railroad from the Scranton yards tonight. It was bound for Secaucus and Hoboken, N. J. Several cars were billed during the day and attached to freight trains. A trainload of 80 cars containing various sizes of coal also moved over the Reading road from the Pottsville district. This was consigned to Philadelphia dealers.

With the tonnage at the various collieries gradually increasing it is expected that a normal supply will be on its way to market inside of two weeks.

CONTINUE HONORS TO THE ROOSEVET HEROES

NEW YORK, Feb. 16.—(AP)—Captain Fried and the seamen of the President Roosevelt who rescued the crew of the freighter Antinoe, today rushed through another programme almost as strenuous as the rescue.

Their day's activities included a luncheon in their honor at the Bankers club, tendered by the British Lloyds committee, at which medals were presented. Then the men made a hurried visit to city hall and an equally quick trip to the New York curb market.

MERGER OF PROVIDENCE BANKS CONSUMMATED

PROVIDENCE, R. I., Feb. 19—(AP)—Directors of the Providence National bank, the oldest bank in the country, having been established in 1791, and the Merchants National bank, which is 108 years old, announced today that they had voted in favor of merging the two institutions under the name of the Providence National bank.

The new Providence National bank would have a capital of $1,500,000, a surplus of $2,500,000 and undivided profits of approximately $380,000 the total for the consolidated institutions being approximately $4,380,000.

BATTLE OF WITS AMONG VARIOUS NAVAL EXERTS

WASHINGTON, Feb. 18—(AP)—A battle of wits among naval experts is under way with the launching in England this week of the 10,000 ton cruiser Suffolk, first of the Washington treaty cruisers to take the water.

The treaty limited the ships to 10,000 tons displacement and guns not larger than 8-inch calibre. Within these limitations, naval experts have been working ever since the treaty was framed to combine gun power, speed, protection and cruising radius in a way to make the most effective fighting craft possible.

Details of the developments have not been published by any country. The treaty shifted naval competition from mass to quality and the unofficial glimpses that have been given of how the struggle is progressing indicate a wide variation in views among the naval experts as to what factor should be stressed, due in part to the geographical situation of each country and the chief mission its navy must fulfill.

In general these unofficial reports on military characteristics, none of which can be accepted as certain, indicate that British designers have leaned to a compromise ship, surrendering something in speed and gun power for armor protection; that Japanese engineers are stressing guns and speed at the cost of protection; that Italian ships will have speed, moderate main batteries and unusual anti-aircraft equipment; that French ships also emphasize speed, and that the American design counts heavily on protection.

BLANTON DECLINED TO PROVE "BEER" CHARGES

WASHINGTON, Feb. 19—(AP)—Representative Blanton, democrat, Texas, ardent dry, has declined, on the ground of "lack of time," a challenge from the wet leader, Representative Hill, republican, Maryland, to take the latter to his home city, Baltimore, there to use him as a subject to test the potency of its beer.

As an aftermath of yesterday's exchange on the house floor, in which the Texan charged that there were fifty "wide open" saloons in Baltimore, Mr. Hill offered to contribute $100 to the Anti-Saloon league, if Mr. Blanton could take him to Baltimore and get him inebriated. Failing in this, under the proposal, Mr. Blanton was to contribute $100 to the association against the prohibition amendment.

While Mr. Blanton insisted today that he knew of at least one place in Baltimore where one could get drunk and added that he wouldn't be surprised if Washington contained an oasis or two, he asserted that he was "too busy with legislative problems to go sleuthing for the prohibition unit."

DOESN'T UNDERSTAND WHY WIFE BECAME ANTAGONISTIC

BRIDGEPORT, Feb. 19—(AP)—After several years of happy married life, George Harrington, Greenwich, graduate of two universities and a professor of botany, could not understand why his wife, Ethel Chamberlain Harrington, Greenwich, suddenly and without explanation became cold, aloof and developed a "deathly antagonism" toward him.

Professor Harrington was granted a decree of divorce by Judge Isaac Wolfe in superior court this afternoon on the ground of desertion. Mrs. Harrington was in the court house during the trial but did not contest the action.

ORDERS FOR ARREST OF JAY-WALKERS IN NEW HAVEN

NEW HAVEN, Feb. 19—(AP)—Orders to arrest all persons found jay walking at any of the intersecting streets in the city have been issued at police headquarters. The step was tkaen following the accident at Church and Chapel streets, Wednesday, when Mrs. Ellen Carey, 80, was struck by a trolley and dragged several feet. Her condition is still critical.

Fire on East Edge of Florida Everglades

Threatens Homes, Orange Groves and Sugar Plantations—Covers Area of 18 Miles.

MIAMI, Fla., Feb. 19—(AP)—Fire sweeping the eastern fringe of the Everglades near Fort Lauderdale tonight threatened scattered homes, orange groves and sugar plantations, meager reports received here said.

The flames, according to the reports, were sweeping over an 18-mile area, sending dense clouds of smoke high in the air, which could be seen from Fort Lauderdale and Miami.

Volunteer fire fighters were dispatched from the United States fire marshal's office in Fort Lauderdale, today, after the blaze, smouldering for three days, became alarming.

The Pennsylvania Sugar company, 16 miles northwest of Miami reported the approach of the fire but officials said there was no imminent danger to the plant or adjacent property.

The fire has centered a short distance northwest of Fort Lauderdale.

WIND TURNED FIRE BACK INTO THE WILDERNESS

FORT LAUDERDALE, Fla., Feb. 19—(AP)—A change of wind tonight turned an Everglades fire back into the wilderness after it had for a time threatened the town of Davie in Broward county. The damage was confined to an area of 25 square miles of rich surface much of which is valued at $7 a ton as fertilizer.

COOLIDGE WOULD HAVE ITALIAN DEBT AGREEMENT RATIFIED

WASHINGTON, Feb. 18—(AP)—President Coolidge feels that failure of the senate to ratify the Italian debt settlement would serve to relieve of Italy of any obligation to negotiate an agreement.

He is convinced that prompt disposal of the question would be to the best interests not only of the United States and Italy but of the entire world. Ratification of the agreement, which has been approved by the house and is pending in the senate, would, in the president's opinion, benefit the foreign trade of the United States, enable the Italian govrnment to map out its fiscal program, and stabilize trade and currency generally.

If the republican party is willing to show a liberal attitude toward Italy, accepting the judgment of the American debt commission as to that nation's capacity to pay, the president holds that democratic opponents of the funding agreement should be willing to give its approval.

It was pointed out at the White House today that, until the Mussolini government became established in Italy, no disposition had been shown to fund the American debt. The question, as laid before the American commission by the Italian representatives was considered, as the president sees it, by a bi-partisan commission of experts who had original sources of information on Italy's capacity to pay.

It was also recalled that a 20-year moratorium was extended to Austria, although that nation was not allied with the United States in the World war, and it is the president's conviction that congress should be willing to extend leniency toward Italy, which was a comrade in arms.

Even if the senate should reject the agreement, Mr. Coolidge is confident that a large vote will be mustered for ratification, indicating to Italy, in view of approval given by the house, by the debt commission and by the president, that a large vote will be mustered for favorable to the pact.

DURANT SEEKS READMISSION TO CONNECTICUT BAR ASS'N

WATERBURY, Feb. 19—(AP)—Harold R. Durant, formerly prosecuting attorney of the Waterbury city court and more recently managing editor of the Famous Players in the motion picture industry today applied for readmission to the Connecticut Bar association.

As a representative from Guilford in the last session of the legislature he was one of the house leaders. Mr. Durant, an authority on college athletics and a literary figure of some prominence, was disbarred here in 1907 by Judge Shumway in superior court on charges growing out of a divorce case in which he figured as counsel. He was specifically charged with encouraging a witness, a Mrs. Delkescamp, to perjure her testimony.

ARRESTED ON SUSPICION OF STEALING AUTOMOBILES.

NEW HAVEN, Feb. 19—(AP)—Suspected by police of having stolen several automobiles within the last few weeks, which they abandoned after stripping of tires and accessories, three youths were arrested today and held under $5,000 bonds each on technical charges of idleness. They are Peter Rezona, Lucius Montano and Philip Scieria, all of New Haven.

Remember Today is Dollar Day

The annual trading event at this season of the year is Dollar Day. It has been arranged by the merchants of the city for today, and with their customary cooperation they have made provision for a sales day that should appeal to the buying public over a large area.

With a complete stock of up-to-date, seasonal goods on the part of the merchants and the usual foresight on the part of the buyers to fill their wants and favor their pocketbooks, today's business should be of large volume and mutually beneficial to all.

Remember Dollar day is today. Plan your buying accordingly and make it a point to do your shopping early for best results.

Steamers Were Fog Bound in L. I. Sound

Steamers Richard Peck and Providence Carried 700 Passengers—Snow Followed Fog.

NEW YORK, Feb. 19—(AP)—Wet, heavy snow tonight succeeded a smoky fog that hovered over the city most of the day. With a gale and a sharp drop in temperature predicted, storm warnings were posted along the coast.

The steamer Providence of the Fall River line from Fall River, Mass., and the steamer Richard Peck of the New London line, were fog bound in Long Island Sound throughout the day. The two, due to dock at seven o'clock this morning, carried 700 passengers.

Delay of ferry services jammed the Jersey tubes until it was almost impossible to reach the trains. Suburban trains and "L" trains were forced to hold to speeds that upset their schedules and automobile traffic proceeded cautiously.

A fireman was seriously injured and three automobiles wrecked tonight when a fire truck skidded on wet car tracks in the Bronx and crashed into the parked machines.

Henry Ecker, fire department chauffeur, was thrown more than 25 feet and suffered concussion of the brain, a fractured right elbow and burns on his face and neck, received when he slid along the pavement.

"DOPE" PEDDLER RELEASED ON WORTHLESS $10,000 BOND

NEW HAVEN, Feb. 19—(AP)—A probe of circumstances surrounding the release in bond of $10,000, which now appears to be virtually worthless, of an alleged narcotic peddler has been ordered by Assustant U. S. Attorney George H. Cohen. The accused, Enrico Esposito, alleged by police to have been the leader of a gang rounded up in 1924, meantime has escaped to Italy.

When accepted by Commissioner B. E. Lynch the bond provided security believed to be worth about $34,000. After Esposito, released from jail in bond, had left the country, the bond was called. An attachment was placed on the property, but it was discovered by U. S. Marshal Joseph Park that previous attachments had been laid on the three pieces of property named. A title search revealed mortgages totalling $38,800, besides other encumbrances. Officials have been advised that the government will sue for the collection of the bond.

COUNTESS CATHCART WINS WRIT OF HABEAS CORPUS

NEW YORK, Feb. 19—(AP)—The Countess of Cathcart, after a ten-day battle for aomission to the United States as a visitor, tonight had scaled the outer wall of the immigration department's defenses. She rested, secured until Tuesday, on a writ of habeas corpus directing the immigration officials to produce her in federal court on that day to show cause why she should not be temporarily admitted to the United States under bond.

While the writ was being served on immigration authorities at Ellis Island, Immigration Commissioner Curran issued a statement from his sickbed in which he announced that he would go before congress as soon as possible to have a bill introduced which would give him absolute authority to decide on all cases of appeal by immigrants and visitors detained at Ellis Island.

DERVISH TRIED FOR FACING NORTHWARD DURING PRAYER

JERUSALEM, Feb. 19—(AP)—For praying while facing northward, in the direction of Jerusalem, instead of eastward toward Mecca, an old dervish of Hebron, the ancient town south of Jerusalem, has been tried by a Moslem religious court, charged with heretic practices.

The dervish, who had persuaded many of his countrymen to follow his example, pleaded that he had been compelled to change the Moslem rule of prayer because Mohamet had appeared to him in a vision and commanded him to pray toward the north. Owing to the extreme poverty of the dervishes, he had not wished to risk the prophet's displeasure and court further distress by disobedience.

The culprits were made to promise the cadi, or Moslem judge, of Hebron, that henceforth they would pray facing Mecca, "home of God's grace."

TWO FIREMEN KILLED BY COLLAPSE OF WALL

VALPARAISO, Ind., Feb. 19—(AP)—Collapse of a wall today during a fire that destroyed the Academy of Music building here caused the death of two firemen and the injury of four others, one of whom may die. The fire damage is estimated at $300,000.

A rear wall of the burning building crumbled precipitating the six firemen from the second floor to the basement.

COOLIDGE AGAINST GOV'T DISTRIBUTION OF LIQUOR

Chief Executive Will Not Sanction Government Ownership of Bonded Medical Liquor—Takes the Same View of the Proposal as That Held by Secretary Mellon of the Treasury—A Survey of the Matter is Underway With Intent That the Government Take Over the Bonded Stocks to Prevent Leaks in Illicit Trade.

WASHINGTON, Feb. 18—(AP)—President Coolidge is opposed to any proposal for government ownership and distribution of bonded medicinal liquor.

A terse statement of the president's position was made today at the White House, disclosing the executive's views on the matter coincided with those held by Secretary Mellon of the treasury.

Assistant Secretary Andrews of the treasury, who is in charge of prohibition enforcement, is conducting a survey of the situation, however, with the view that eventually the government must take over the bonded stocks to prevent leaks to the illicit trade.

COAST GUARDSMEN IN LIVELY SKIRMISH WITH RUM RUNNERS

BOSTON, Feb. 19—(AP)—A night battle with rum runners who fired from ambush, with searchlights playing and the runners ambushed on shore, was reported by the crews of three of the coast guard patrol boat 2336 when it arrived in this port today, a captured speedboat and fifty cases of liquor in tow, but no prisoners, hundreds of shots were fired during the skirmish, but apparently no one was injured.

The fracas occurred off Cohasset last night when the speed boat 417-D tried to run in a cargo of Belgian alcohol. The patrol boat, under Boatswain's Mate Gordon Porter Hammond, was jogging about when a dory was sighted off Whitehead Point. Hammond's suspicions were aroused when he recognized the man aboard it as one Figuerretta, a well known rumner of rum. They were confirmed when the speed boat 417-D hove in sight. Hammond drove his boat straight toward the dory in an attempt to prevent signalling, but too late. Figuerretta set off three red flashes in quick succession, and the rumrunner turned and raced for Cohasset harbor.

After it went the patrol boat. Hammond knew the water was too shallow for him, but followed to the head of the harbor. There the speed boat swung again in. As she passed the coast guard boat the latter fired a shot across her bows, but she flew along, and shots were then fired into her engine room and through the windshield.

Blinded by the gun flashes, the man at the motor boat's wheel ran her fifty feet onto the mud flats, and three men leaped out and disappeared. Hammond started for her in a rowboat, but shots from the shore whizzed about his head, and the rum runners, their numbers evidently increasing, took pot shots at the coast guardsmen, who returned the fire. Hammond with a revolver and Engineer Hammond (his brother) and the lone seaman with rifles, Figuerette escaped in the skirmish.

Then followed a barrage of shots from the rum runners, each side using searchlights to pick their targets. A lucky shot from the patrol boat put out the enemy's light, however, and the battle ended.

But the coast guardsmen had not seen the last of their foes. When they took the speed boat in tow at high tide and started back for Boston, the rum runners put out in another boat and lay in wait off Whitehead Point. The coast guard boat tricked them by going to the southward and around Minot's Light. Seven hours later the prize was delivered to the customs officials here and the liquor she carried was sent to the army base to await formal confiscation and sale.

SHOT HIS BLIND BROTHER WHILE THE LATTER SLEPT

ALLENTOWN, Pa., Feb. 19.—(AP)—After shooting his blind brother as he lay sleeping in bed, Norman Farrell, 28 years old news vendor today told the police he felt he "would be better off if he were dead than I would have rest."

The wounded brother, Raymond, aged 33, is in a critical condition at the Allentown hospital with a bullet wound through his right lung.

"At daybreak," Norman told the district attorney, "while I was lying in bed after a sleepless night, I decided to shoot my brother who had been blind for several years. I bought a revolver about a month ago in a local hardware store and kept it in a bureau drawer. I got out of bed, went to the drawer, got the revolver and went into Raymond's room. He was sleeping as I went to the side of his bed. I saw him lying on his back and putting the pistol close to the covers, I aimed at his heart and fired. Raymond jumped up and ran into the next room, rolling across the bed there. I fired two more shots at him as he ran down the stairs.'

"Do you realize what you have done?" Norman was asked by District Attorney Boyle.

"Certainly, I do, I've shot Raymond. I don't know what will happen to me and I don't care," was the reply.

Norman has sold papers for the last fifteen years at this city's busiest corner. A little more than a year ago he had saved $321.000 and purchased the home in which he lived with his parents and brother and also bought a number of building lots. He also owned an automobile. Today his bank balance was only $100. Police said excessive drinking had affected his mind.

CIVIL WAR VET. SEEKS HONORABLE DISCHARGE

WATERBURY, Feb. 19—(AP)—Owen McCuen, after 61 years, may receive an honorable discharge from the Union army if a bill introduced by Congressman James P. Glynn is passed by the house of representatives.

Owen McCuen enlisted in Company C, 14th Regiment, Connecticut Volunteer Infantry, shortly after the Civil war was declared. Late in 1864, Private McCuen, of the 14th received word that his mother was dying and applied to his captain for leave. The captain went to the colonel of the regiment and, on the grounds that McCuen was an excellent soldier, recommended that he be given leave. Thus did Private McCuen return to the bedside of his mother in Waterbury.

The war ended suddenly while Private McCuen was in Waterbury and, believing there was no further need of him in the army, never returned to his regiment. Because he did not go back, however, he was listed as being "absent without leave."

TROUBLES OF AGED COUPLE IN GETTING MARRIED

NEW YORK, Feb. 19.—(AP)—Delayed by the fog brought their boat from Boston into port several hours late, Charles Hamer, 74, of Harwich, Mass., and Mrs. Lizzie A. S. Ames, 66, of Harwichport, Mass., were further retarded by New York's "pesky subways" today as they searched for the municipal building, where they wanted to take out a license to be married. Arriving at the license bureau just after closing time, they persuaded the clerk to marry them, and immediately after the ceremony started on their honeymoon.

COL. MITCHELL'S TRAVELING BAG STOLEN IN BOSTON HOTEL

BOSTON, Feb. 19.—(AP)—A traveling bag containing a typewriter, personal files of air service records and letters, was stolen today, from the former Colonel William Mitchell while he and his brother-in-law, Charles W. K. Jackson, were lunching in a hotel here. The bag had been left outside in a car belonging to Mr. Jackson who requested the door man to keep an eye on it. After notifying police, Mitchell left for Springfield.

HOUSE TO CONSIDER RAILROAD LABOR BILL

WASHINGTON, Feb. 19.—(AP)—The house today by unanimous consent set aside Tuesday and Wednesday for consideration of the Watson-Parker railroad labor bill, which was unanimously reported today by the commerce committee with only a few minor changes in the draft agreed upon by railroad managers and employes.

Privileged status for the bill was requested by Representative Tilson of Connecticut, republican floor leader, who described it as the first measure dealing with the subject to come before the house with the approval of both the employes and opertaors of the railroads.

Under regular order, only two hours of debate would have been allowed on the measure when it is brought up in the house Tuesday.

LEWIS ACQUITTED OF STATUTORY CHARGES

BRIDGEPORT, Feb. 19—(AP)—A jury at 9.10 o'clock tonight returned in criminal superior court a verdict acquitting William E. Lewis, 31, a vaudeville actor now resident in New Rochelle, N. Y., of statutory charges preferred against him because of accusations made by Betty Denyam, 17, Bridgeport, now an inmate of the House of the Good Shepherd, Hartford.

It was reported the jury took 21 ballots before reaching a unanimous opinion. Once it was reported in court there was so "wide a division" agreement seemed impossible. It was the first jury to hold deliberations at night in this county in five years, being in retirement for eight hours. The jury, it was reported, voted a majority in favor of conviction on the first ballots taken.

GOV'T ACTION IN NATION-WIDE LIQUOR CONSPIRACY

CLEVELAND, O., Feb. 19.—(AP)—The treasury department at Washington is sending special representatives of its intelligence bureau to various cities to make arrests in the alleged nation-wide liquor conspiracy case under federal grand jury investigation here, it was learned today.

Intervention of the treasury department follows reports that high operatives in the alcohol rings have eluded those charged with making the arrests. Forty warrants issued here remain unserved.

Preparations of indictments in the alcohol case was begun tonight by District Attorney A. E. Bernsteen, who was sent into seclusion for that purpose. Between twenty and one hundred persons will be included in the first indictments, Mr. Bernsteen said.

RAILROAD DETECTIVE WAS SHOT FOUR TIMES

OMAHA, Neb., Feb. 19.—(AP)—Ross W. Johnson, railroad detective, was shot four times by a man with a .22 calibre rifle in the railroad yards in Southeast Council Bluffs late tonight. He probably will die, physicians said. Police of the two cities were working on the theory, that the shooter was the so-called "maniac fireman" who had terrorized Omaha five days.

PLANS TO RID CITY OF ALL RAT FAMILIES

(Special to The Bulletin.)

WILLIMANTIC, Feb. 19—War was declared in Willimantic Friday between R. R. Keep, modern Pied Piper and every rat and mouse in the city. Mr. Keep stated upon his arrival here that he would keep warring on the rodents until the citizens could look up and say, "Well, no more rats." Incidentally rats and mice are not only unwelcome visitors in any home but they cause hundreds and probably thousands of dollars worth of damage every year. Mr. Keep is equipped with a letter of approval and recommendation from Dr. W. P. S. Keating, city health officer and from the United States Department of Agriculture. With a well placed dose of barium carbonate, an odorless and tasteless powder, he drives rats out into the open where they die within one or two days. The powder is not poisonous to cats and dogs unless eaten in large quantities. Willimantic is harboring an enormous number of rodents, although this fact is not known to the general public. There are sections of the city, especially on the south side of Main street, nearest the river bank, which are virtually infested with rats. The old Stone Row district for years boasted of huge rats that frightened cats away. The public will undoubtedly keep an interesting eye on Mr. Keep's work while he is here.

Deputy Collector Leon T. Wilson of Putnam, a member of the United States Internal Revenue department is to be at the selectmen's office in the town building here after March 1st to assist those liable for the income tax payment in making out their returns for 1925.

By invitation of the Windham Farmers' association the Dairymen's Institute will hold an all day dairy meeting at Guilford Smith hall, South Windham, next Tuesday, it was announced Friday. The following program will be carried out: 11:00 a. m.—Opening session, called to order by H. L. Garrigus, president. Address of welcome by Fred Rosebrooks, Windham county director of the association. Address, "Grade A Milk as Shipped to Boston Market From Windham County," by a member of the Farm bureau staff.

12:30 a. m.—A talk on Poultry by an expert. 12:30 p. m.—Lunch, furnished by the Windham Farmers' association. 1:30 p. m.—Address, 'Helpful Suggestions for the Dairy Farmers," by H. O. Daniels, Middlesex County director of the association. 2.30 p. m.—Address, "Good Milk as a Fortification," by Professor E. A. Anderson, Connecticut Agricultural college, Storrs. An open discussion will follow each address The meeting is open to the public.

Clarence A. Bowen of this city has entered civil suit against Mr. and Mrs. Carl Edgerton of Mansfield to recover on an unpaid insurance policy. Damages of $20 are claimed and papers in the case have been served by Deputy Sheriff Allison L. Frink of Andover. The case will be heard before Justice of the Peace Dean.

President I. M. Johanson of the Windham County Poultry, Pigeon and Small Stock association stated Friday that the net profits of the association and Company C, 169th Infantry, Connecticut National Guard, from the poultry and small stock show and trade exhibit staged at the state armory here recently would amount to practically five hundred dollars.

Miss Veronica McQuillan, member of the faculty, was selected as coach for the annual senior play, at the meeting of the class of 1926 of Windham High school held Friday. A committee has been appointed to select the play. The class voted to produce an annual publication similar to The Laurel which was published in 1916 and 1917. Dennis Mandell was elected editor-in-chief for the book and John Wrana, business manager. The meeting was in charge of President Thomas Melkel.

Mrs. Elizabeth Randall celebrated her 95th birthday Thursday at the home of her daughter, Mrs. E. C. Sharpe of this city. Several friends called during the day and the mail brought a shower of cards of congratulations and well wishes. In the afternoon refreshments were served and a large birthday cake cut. The cake had been prettily decorated by Mrs. Randall's grandchildren.

Incidentally it might be said that traveling conditions are steadily improving locally and unless another storm visits the section, Willimantic will be on the ground again in a very few days. Continuous rain, which fortunately has not been heavy enough to cause a flood, followed by a dense fog, did much Friday to remove snow and thaw ice which had formed from four to eight inches in thickness on some country roads.

MYSTIC

New London County Pomona grange No. 6 P. of H. met with Mystic Grange No. 171 in their hall in the Main building Thursday. The meeting was called to order at 10:45 by Worthy Pomona Master M. H. Bartlett and opened in the fifth degree. A few items of business were transacted and then six former members from Mystic grange were reinstated and 26 were in the class that took the fifth degree. Stonington grange had twelve and the other granges furnished ten or more making a class of over fifty. Dr. C. F. Congdon, chairman of the committee on dues, read several changes and they were adopted unanimously.

The degree was conferred on a large class in an impressive manner after which the meeting adjourned to Odd Fellows' hall where 125 sat down to the first table and more than 75 at the second table. The grange opened at 2 p. m. with the lecturer, Mrs. Lenny E. Whitham, in charge. A. T. Brundage threw songs on the screen and all joined in singing them. The address of welcome was delivered by Past Master J. W. Pollard who told of the reorganization saying that in less than 16 months there were over 170 members, all of whom extended a welcome to Pomona Grange. Rev. George B. Gilbert, the pastoral parson of the Rural New Yorker, was next introduced. He at once had his hearers convulsed with laughter with his funny stories. He also spoke in a more serious manner and commended the one room school house that is becoming obsolete and spoke of the many great men who received much of their education in the little schoolhouse. He also spoke of the teachers who teach in them and contrasted the difference in those who take them just for a year or two and then seek a city position and the teacher who continues in the country school. He spoke of the community work and of opportunities everywhere. Next was a sketch by Mystic grange talent, Mrs. Ellery Burdick and her daughter Evelyn as a boy and Mrs. Martha Morgan as station master, entitled The Train to Mauro. It created much merriment and was well given. The last was a talk by A. T. Brundage state leader of Boys and Girls clubs on Our Best Farm Crop. He had numerous slides to show illustrating his talk and pointed out ways to help the young to decide what they are best fitted for to take up as an occupation. Time did not permit him to show all the slides he had with him. The dinner consisted of beef loaf, scalloped potatoes, baked beans, cabbage salad, rolls, cake, and coffee. Mrs. Joseph Desley was chairman with Mrs. Carrie Austin, Mrs. Bertha Pollard, assisted by many members.

The Monday club is to meet next Tuesday with Miss Eleanor Fish on East Main street. Mrs. Esther C. Smith will read a paper on Motoring From Coast to Coast. The date of meeting is changed owing to Monday coming on Washington's birthday and because a number of the members are planning to attend the D. A. R. celebration on that day.

There are a number of card photographs in town, taken on June days of a trolley car coming down the tracks across the Tadpole pond. An added value attaches to these pictures now as there will be no more trolleys. The trolley in Jewett City has passed, even as has the boot-jack. Two local girls, sisters, over twenty and up to date and observing, were recently interested in the cover picture on the current number of a Metropolitan magaine. Completing the rude settings of a room and on the floor, was pictured a one time and once much needed boot-jack. The girls had never seen one and were obliged to inquire as to its name and use.

An all day fog Friday with the temperature close to 50, made a good showing in removed the large quantity of snow in this section.

Scates at the Baptist parsonage in Sylvandale. They have begun keeping house in a newly furnished apartment on Hamlin street, Norwich.

A flock of a dozen robins was hopping about the yard at the home of Mrs. F. E. Hyde, Jan. 30th. A week later, when the fields were deep with snow, one robin came to a tree close to the house and probably the rest of the flock were not far distant. The mild days this week, the flock is back at its feeding grounds where grain has been scattered for them.

The twin daughters of Mr. and Mrs. Aleksander Buffan have been named Fannie and Frances.

Town clerk and treasurer Frank A. Mell has been ill with grip several days this week.

There was no service at Newent church Sunday on account of the condition of the roads.

COLCHESTER

The Fire company was called out Wednesday about 12:30 o'clock for a bad chimney fire at the home of A. Alpert on Norwich avenue. The building is occupied by Isadore Mintz, and A. Alpert. The quick work by the firemen subdued the fire and only 10 gallons of chemicals were used. The damage was slight. The firemen claim that the quicker the people get educated to call the fire company as soon as they discover any signs of a fire the quicker the fire losses will be reduced. This has been shown in the past few weeks when several chimney fires have been put out with very little loss.

Edward Mitchell of Salem was calling on friends in town Wednesday.

Edward Gregory of New Haven is spending a few days vacation at his home in Hammonds Court.

Major F. E Baker and wife leave town this (Friday) morning for a few days visit with their son, George, in Meriden. While away Major Baker will attend a meeting of the Uniformed Rank of the Knights of Pythias, to be held in Seymour, Conn. A large class of recruits will be mustered in by a degree team from Belcher Co., of Seymour and the Wooster company of Derby. Several of the members of Oliver Woodhouse lodge of this place are among the recruits.

GOSHEN

S. W. Leffingwell of Norwich was a business caller here Thursday.

A Valentine social was held at the Community club meeting Wednesday evening. The play "Way Down East" was also very pleasingly given. There was a debate, Resolved: That the men's dress of Washington's time was preferable to that of today. E. H. McCall J. A. Thomas spoke for the affirmative, E. W. Jones and E. H. McCall jr. upheld the negative. Both sides were well supported and the debate was declared a draw.

L. M. Jones with his tractor made a good road through the drifts down to the state road, a distance of two miles, Thursday. It seems quite unusual still to see drifts four feet deep in the highway and along the stone walls, while open fields are bare ground.

Wednesday evening at 10:30 o'clock it was pleasing and interesting to listen in over the radio to the Massachusetts State Old Time Fiddlers' contest, there being five contestants, including Harry G. Shippie, 76, of Ashfield, Mass., who played Turkey in the Straw, Washing Day, Boston Fancy, etc. They came on the sound waves from Springfield, WBZ.

A flock of robins was seen here Feb. 13th. The robin is naturally noted for his great amount of sociability, but not even a "chirrup" was heard from one of the large number.

Rev. Lydia Hartig left Wednesday morning to spend some time recuperating at her cottage at Saybrook. During her absence Sunday school will be held in the Goshen Hill school house at 2:30 p. m. followed by the Christian Endeavor service.

CHESTNUT HILL

Miss Mary Babcock celebrated her 93rd birthday on Thursday receiving a number of remembrances for the day from neighbors and friends. "Aunt Mary" is the oldest person in this community, she has been blind for a number of years and for the past year has been confined to her room. She has a brother, John Babcock, who is nearly 96 and a sister, Mrs. Alba Loomis who is nearly 90 years old.

Mr. and Mrs. Edmund J. Peckham and sons Rowland and Homer, of Willimantic, spent Lincoln's birthday with Mr. Peckham's parents.

Mr. Zenowitz, who has been in a New York hospital for a number of months undergoing operations for cataracts on his eyes, has returned to his home here. He has lost the sight of one eye entirely, the other partially.

The terrible condition of roads caused by the snow and rain has made it necessary for the Misses Mary and Elinor Chappell, who attend High school at Lebanon Center, to remain with friends in that place the past week.

A. S. Peckham visited his brother in Willimantic on Tuesday.

Miss Celia Zenowitz, who has been under the care of a Willimantic doctor for some time, suffering from festions on each of her thumbs, is much improved.

Miss Cora Chappell of Willimantic spent the week end with her parents.

Automobiles began to come into use again on Thursday but at that time sleds seemed to be the most popular vehicle.

NORTH STONINGTON

The annual dinner and roll call of the Congregational church, held on Lincoln's birthday, was a pleasant affair, though many local members were prevented from attending by the bad condition of the roads. There were several guests in attendance. A fine chicken dinner was served, following which the pastor, Rev. Inor Partington, called to order for the customary exercises. The church now has 58 members. It will celebrate its 250th anniversary Feb. 22, 1927. A committee to arrange for this event, with Mr. Partington chairman, was named.

Miss Maud Price has been engaged to take charge of the Y. W. C. A. dining room in New London.

Owing to the bad roads the grange omitted its meeting last Friday evening.

Miss Ella Norman, teacher of the school in district No. 9 has been boarding at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Maurice C. Miner because of poor traveling conditions.

GURLEYVILLE

Both violinists that won the two loving cups given as prizes by the Knights of Columbus in their Fiddlers' contest in Warren Memorial hall, Stafford Springs last Tuesday evening used violins that were products of Tolland county. The one owned and used by Arthur Wood was made several years ago by himself from wood grown on the old farm in Willington and is a fine-toned instrument. This same violin was used by its owner in the Fiddlers' contest at the Palace theater last Thursday evening, he winning the first prize of fifteen dollars in cash.

Mrs. Samuel Morse and son Erle and A. Wood attended the entertainment in the Mansfield Center church last Wednesday evening.

The office spends more time in dodging the man than it does in seeking him.

PIMPLY? WELL, DON'T BE

People Notice It. Drive Them Off with Dr. Edwards' Olive Tablets

A pimply face will not embarrass you much lo ger if you get a package of Dr Edwards Olive T. blets. The skin should begin to clea after you have taken the tablets a few nights.

Cleanse the blood, bowels and liver with Dr Edwards' Olive Tablets, the successful substitute for calomel; there's no sickness or pain after taking them.

Dr Edwards' Olive Tablets do that which calomel does, and just as effectively, but their action is gentle and safe instead of severe and irritating.

No one who takes Olive Tablets is ever cursed with a "dark brown taste," a bad breath, a dull, listless, "no good" feeling, constipation, torpid liver, bad disposition or pimply face.

Olive Tablets are a purely vegetable compound mixed with olive oil; you will know them by their olive color.

Dr Edwards spent years among patients afflicted with liver and bowel complaints and Olive Tablets are the immensely effective result. Take one or two nightly for a week. See how much better you feel and look. 15c and 30c.

DANIELSON

KILLINGLY HAS SPENT $4,500 FOR SNOW REMOVAL

(Special to The Bulletin.)

DANIELSON, Feb. 19. — If you should ask the selectmen of the town of Killingly about the beautiful snow over which the poets are inspired, as are some other people who do not have to travel about in it, you probably will get an answer anything but poetic. To date this town has expended approximately $4,500 for snow removal this winter. That's the heaviest bill of the kind Killingly has been called upon to pay for years—and it is not at all impossible that it will be higher still, for February is still with us and March has been known as a bad actor insofar as producing deep snow is concerned.

Practicing a general policy of economy in the administration of town affairs, the selectmen are not at all pleased with the trick Old Man Winter has played upon them. Here was a situation calling for prompt and efficient action, and there was nothing to do but meet it. The town's highways had to be opened. Though it may seem strange to many, the second big snow storm, that of Wednesday of last week, proved more expensive to the town than the first one. With snow piled high where the roads had been broken out after the first big storm, the second one came to fill in the cuts between the snow banks and set up a problem more difficult to cope with than that presented after the first effort had been completed. There are about 300 names on the show removal payrolls that the town has to pay. This indicates the size of the job that had to be done and what a sizeable force was required to do it. Horses and motor trucks also figured in the operation.

Still, Killingly has broken no records for a single winter as yet, as to getting rid of snow and opening its roads. It has paid in excess of $5,000 in the past for the same kind of service and likely will have to do it again. Usually, the town budget carries an item of $1,000 for snow removal. This is merely a fixed figure at which only a guess can be made. In many years it is ample to meet the requirements. In years like this it is wholly inadequate. So when the budget is made up next month the $1,000 fixture will be in the discard and a much higher figure in its place.

The impression one gets from the heavy cost on the snow account this year is that a determined effort was made to get the highways open as rapidly as possible. Such delays as one may recall were due to inability to do all there was to be done simultaneously.

From his home in Academy street at 8.30 Friday morning the funeral of Amadee Varieur was held, with a solemn high mass of requiem at St. James' church at 9 o'clock. Rev. James McCarthy, M. S., Rev. J. C. Mathieu, Wauregan, and Rev. F. X. Richards, M. S., were the officers of the mass. There were numbers of relatives and friends in attendance. The body was entombed at Holy Cross cemetery. Bearers were Amadee Bernier, Fred I. Racine, Pierre Turgeon, F. X. Lemieux, Zelinas Beauvais and F. X. Malihot. Louis E. Kennedy was in charge of the arrangements.

At St. James' church Friday morning at 10.45, Rev. F. X. Richards, M. S., was celebrant of a high mass of requiem for Mrs. Exina Perreault, who died here Wednesday. There was a large funeral congregation, Mrs. Perreault having many relatives and friends in Danielson. The bearers were Henry Perreault, Napoleon Perreault, Omer Perreault, Wilfred Perreault, Eugene Perreault and Nicholas Perreault. There was an automobile cortege to Worcester, from which city the body was forwarded by train to Canada for burial. Louis E. Kennedy was the funeral director.

Friday morning the funeral of Miss Azilda Chenail was held from her home in Goodyear with funeral services at St. Joseph's church in Dayville at 9 o'clock. Rev. Ignatius Kost, the pastor, was celebrant or the solemn high mass of requiem, with Rev. Ludovel Paradis of Voluntown as deacon and Rev. Edward J. Shelley, M. S., of Hartford, formerly of Danielson, as sub-deacon. The body was entombed at St. Joseph's cemetery. The bearers were Alma Forcier, Omer Cote, Albert Belisle, Mose Chenail, Raoul Brunner and Leo Bosquet. Louis E. Kennedy was in charge of the funeral arrangements.

There must be a bear over east of here. In any event the deer are coming right into town, and that must signify something. Ladies who were at the home of Miss Marion D. Cholar were surprised and interested to see a doe come trotting down the lane that runs in the rear of buildings on the north side of Reynolds stret and comes out onto Broad opposete Davis park. The doe paused on the lawn at the Cholar place, crossed the park, leaped to the top of an embankment at the C. H. Bacon place, went to the rear of this property and out between the Whitney and Starkweather properties on Winter street to be surprised by a dog and driven northward into territory in the rear of the T. E. Hopkins estate.

Fog—the great snow remover—was on the job Friday and working effectively. It cut the snow banks more than the rain of las Sunday.

Scores of radio fans here were tuned in on WJZ at 9 o'clock Friday night to hear Marion Talley, the new grand opera star.

So dense was the fog at times Friday afternoon that motor car drivers were running with headlights on the machines glowing, as a precaution against collisions.

Jewett City's victory over the Danielson Town team adds to the interest in the capabilities of these two organizations and as to which is the better outfit. They should play some more games to satisfy the desires of the fans.

LEFFINGWELL

Saturday evening a merry sleighing party went from Leffingwell to the home of Mrs. Ruth J. Ellis. The sleighs were driven by S. Eugene Rogers and Mr. Walter J. Blacker. Very interesting games were played and in a clothes-pin race, Sherman L. Rogers' team won over John Hracyk's team. Randall Sherman and Miss Alice M. Leffingwell received the prize for being the first couple to put in Valentine puzzle together and Roy L. Beard and Miss Mildred F. Leffingwell were given the booby award for being the last couple to finish their puzzle. Refreshments were served, cafeteria style and consisted of sandwiches, cake and chocolate. The rooms were attractive with Valentine decorations. The party left for home at 11 o'clock, during a heavy fall of snow.

Mr. and Mrs. Roy Leffingwell Beard were visitors Sunday with Mr. and Mrs. Clarence H. Amburn of Dunham street, Norwich.

ROCKVILLE

The electrical storm experienced here last Sunday evening between 9 and 10 o'clock, was as severe as many seen in mid-summer. One clap of thunder was very sharp and heavy. The street lights were put out of use as were also some of the electric lights in residences, but no serious damage has been reported. Monday the mercury was in the 50's.

PALACE DISCLOSED BY EXCAVATION IN IRAK

BAGDAD, Irak, Feb. 19—(AP)—Excavations at Ur of the Haldees, mentioned in the Bible as the birthplace of Abraham, have disclosed the site of the palace of Dungi, who reigned 2,250 years before Christ.

It was then already the custom, as today, to bury in the foundations of buildings relics typical of the time, and such have been found. They were in brick boxes, and consisted of copper statues of King Dungi carrying on his head the basket of mortar for laying the first brick and stone tablets.

Mrs. Magdalena Hultgren, aged 86, died at her home, in New Britain, as the result of shock from a fall down a flight of stairs last Saturday.

PUTNAM

NEW PROBE OF DEFUNCT PUTNAM BANK SNARL

(Special to The Bulletin.)

PUTNAM, Feb. 19—The long table in the directors' room of the Citizens' National bank which Receiver George M. Coffin is using as his office until the affairs of the wrecked First National Bank are straightened out was covered today with record books of the bank, and Mr. Coffin and G. Harold Gilpatric are going through them systematically and carefully in an endeavor to trace the purchase, payment and ultimate destination of Liberty bonds the ownership of which are in doubt.

Mr. Coffin has with him his very capable secretary, Miss Helen Sharpe, and a stenographer, Miss Ruth Pratt. George E. Hughes, the Atlanta prison guard who brought Gilpatric to Connecticut, completes the party.

It is no longer an open hearing like those of Wednesday and Thursday when newspaper men sat in by invitation. It has assumed the phase of an accountant's examination, and every lead, through a book entry or other record that promises results will be followed to its end, Mr. Coffin during the past two days displayed a most thorough and comprehensive knowledge of all transactions of the bank that are on record. In addition to the books he has filed and docketed all papers bearing on disputed claims, and which are instantly available to him. Miss Sharpe, through natural ability, training, and her long service in the bank as one of the clerical force is of great assistance. And, although blinded and affected by the peculiar situation in which he is at present placed, is proving of invaluable help to the investigation.

There have been no developments of any consequence today, but Mr. Coffin expressed himself as well satisfied with the progress that has been made.

"There is no question in my mind," he said, "but that Mr. Gilpatric is entirely sincere in his offer to help clear up the discrepancies. That has been manifested several times."

Mr. Coffin also feels that through Gilpatric's own statements there has been established to a great degree the claim made by the receiver that Liberty bonds purchased for the state by Gilpatric when he was treasurer, and now in the state's possession, were paid for with funds of the First National bank, and that the validity of the claims can be proved in court.

At the beginning of the open session of yesterday Mr. Gilpatric made a significant statement in answer to Mr. Coffin's inquiry if the night's reflections had enabled him to throw any light on the reason of his restoration of $47,000 to the bank in the summer of 1920.

"I am unable to explain what led up to that transaction," he said, "although I have racked my brain in trying. I want to explain it, and it seems very probable that something will develop in going through the books that will bring back the details of it to my memory. I have not accomplished what I want to do here—to help you determine what became of the $125,000 or $130,000, that so far has not been accounted for. But I want to emphasize the fact that there are no big things other than the four that have been mentioned, to which the money went. It must be a series of comparatively small losses. I know positively that there is no place where any substantial amount other than the four that we have talked of."

The four "big things" to which the former cashier alludes are the Monson Worsted Co., and Thomas J. Corcoran, Jr., which are one and the same, the Kovert Machine Co., of Worcester, the Vito Construction company and J. J. Burns of Hartford. Continuing the witness reiterated this statement. "If there was another big item my memory would bring it back to me, or rather I would not have to be reminded of what it is. I want to make a complete breast of every thing, to tell the entire story, and if there is anything you can suggest, any clue that might help, I assure you that I shall not hold anything back."

As to how long it may require to secure that information that Gilpatric can give, all the details that his memory may supply him with, Mr. Coffin could make no prediction. "We shall go to the bottom of any matter that is not clear. As I said before I think that Mr. Gilpatric is sincere and that he is telling the truth, and now that he is here on the ground we shall avail ourselves of the opportunity to learn all that we can from him."

The former cashier is staying at the home of his parents, Mr. and Mrs. George W. Gilpatric, on Fremont St. Mr. Hughes, the Atlanta guard, never leaves the house except to escort his charge to and from the bank.

TRADE SCHOOL BOYS COMPLETE FOURTH HOUSE

(Special to The Bulletin.)

PUTNAM, Feb. 19—As a splendid example of what may be done toward directing youthful energy and enthusiasm into channels of usefulness in the way of worthwhile training, House No. 4, recently completed in the town of Thompson by students in the carpentry department of the state trade school at Putnam stands as definite proof of this type of accomplishment. It is the policy of the school to instruct entirely on a medium of practical utility thereby training the future tradesman in accordance with actual standards and practices of the trade. All academic instruction is given concurrently with practical work thus providing a proper balance with the general experiences received on the job. To this end the school takes actual house building contracts making complete plans and drawing up specifications that must be consistently followed. The house was built for Mrs. Grace B. Noyes on the site of the Ballard home on the Thompson road between the Children's Home and Thompson Center.

The work of preparing plans was begun in May, carpentry boys doing the drafting, these plans being revised to suit the desires of the owner. A contract was signed with the school on May 23 and work began on the foundation early in June. The house was completed January 1st. In order to transport the boys to and from the job a light truck was purchased by the school. Sub-contracts were let for plastering, plumbing, heating and masonry. All carpentry work from laying the sills to the placing of the interior finish and hard ware was done by the students of the carpentry department. The electric wiring and the hanging of fixtures was done by students of the electrical department.

The house is a seven-room bungalow, nicely designed and harmonizing in color and structure with its surroundings. The boys are rightfully proud in the consummation of this work. They have also learned that good materials are not more important than the ability and character of the workman. Two students graduated while the work was in progress and received their diplomas on the job.

It is the general aim of the school to build one house yearly during the summer months and wherever possible in such work it is desirable that all plans and specifications be complete so the work may be begun early in the spring. Students who participated in this work are: Arthur Johnston, Normand Dumas, Wilfred Park, Linwood Hopkins, Francis Basto, Aime Basinet, Olney Dodge, Harold Griggs, Eugene Gutknecht, William Richotte, Camille Vandale, John Baker, Floyd Codding, Garon Balin, Stephen Neljadilk, Roland Gaucher, Rosario Rusel, Samuel Jennings, Robert Smith, Harold Eastman, Charles Alvord, Robert Hines, Kenneth Warren, David Johnson. Ernest Stary is the instructor in carpentry.

The third in the series of nine friendly meetings is to be held at the Second Congregational church on Sunday evening. Dr. Clarence D. Usher who served as a medical missionary in Turkey for many years and is the author of the book, "An American in Turkey" will give an address entitled "Before Governors and Kings".

Few men have had such direct contact with hostile people and religions as Clarence D. Ussher, M. D. During the early part of the world war, before the United States entered the conflict, Dr. Ussher was in the heart of the deportation area in Turkish Armenia. He has told the story of his experiences in army camps, public halls and churches in many parts of the country. The address which he will deliver here will be a chapter from his life which he calls "Before Governors and Kings" and is considered one of the most remarkable statements of the Christian idea of God that has ever been made.

The Church Home night at the Methodist church is to be Friday evening, February 26th.

The lenten services at St. Philips Episcopal church are scheduled as follows: Every Wednesday at 7.30 p. m.; every Thursday, Holy Communion at 9.00 a. m.; holy week, daily at 9.00 a. m. and 7.30 p. m.; Good Friday 9.00 a. m. and Three Hours Devotions from 12.00 noon to 3.00 p. m.; Easter Day, Holy Communion 8.00, 9.30 and 10.30 a. m.

The National Oratorical Contest among the pupils of the high schools of Connecticut, New York and New Jersey will be held again this year and Putnam students will take part. Last year Miss Lois Ransom of Pomfret won first honors in Windham county and second in the state. She received a prize of $25 in the county contest and $75 in the state contest. The winner of the tri-state competition got $2,500.

This year the event will be international in scope. Americans who finish first will have to compete with winners of English and other continental schools. The preliminary contests must be finished before April first.

Mrs. Olive Johnson Erickson, 30, died on Tuesday night at the Day Kimball hospital. She is survived by her husband, Clarence Ericson of Woodstock and a baby daughter born February 9.

Miss Hannah Tracy, 72, until a few years ago a life long resident of Thompson, died at the home of her sister, Mrs. Lucy Knight in Oxford, Mass. She is survived by three sisters, Mrs. Lucy Knight of Oxford, Mass., Mrs. Mabel Rhoades of Springfield, Mass., and Mrs. Nellie Bean of Oakland, Mass., and one brother Andrew Tracey of Worcester, Mass. The funeral was held from the home of her sister in Oxford and burial was in Thompson.

Joseph Elliott of Pomfret, who has been spending the winter at West Palm Beach, Florida, is home for a short visit. He expects to return to Florida next week.

Miss Esther Palacois, a missionary at Porto Rico, has given some very interesting talks at the Baptist church this week, both at the church service and to the mission groups. Her personality and interesting accounts of her work among the people of Porto Rico was very impressive. Her coming to Putnam was of especial interest to Mr. and Mrs. Eric Johnson of this city as their son, Donald Johnson, lived at the home of Miss Palacois when he was employed as a teacher in Porto Rico a few years ago.

No definite action has as yet been taken by the trustees of the Baptist church of this city in the matter of calling a regular minister, Rev. F. W. Lockwood has been a very acceptable substitute pastor for the past year.

Wilfred Chapdelaine of the Putnam postoffice left last week for Florida to spend a month's vacation. His brother, Dr. Ernest Chapdelaine is practicing there.

Mrs. French, matron of the Woodstock town farm has been a patient at the Day Kimball hospital for several weeks.

The East and West Bridge clubs were entertained Thursday afternoon by Miss Mary Wheaton at her home on Grove street. Mrs. Frank Thayer, one of the substitute players made the highest score of the afternoon and Mrs. G. S. Adams the lowest. The next meeting of the club will be with Mrs George Twigg on King street.

Adin Chapman of East Putnam, who has been seriously ill at Limona, Fla., is reported as convalescent.

Kenneth C. Sharpe of Wilkinson street is in New York city on a business trip.

Joseph Ayotte, the five year old son of Mr. and Mrs. Samuel Ayotte died at the home of his parents on Powhattan street on Tuesday morning of pneumonia. Funeral services were held Thursday morning from St. Mary's church and burial was in St. Mary's cemetery.

Volney V. Reed of Putnam has been appointed administrator of the estate of Andrew J. Kennedy, late of Putnam by Judge David Flagg.

Mr. and Mrs. Jerome B. Ross of Brooklyn, N. Y., and Mr. and Mrs. Emery C. Munyan and little son of Worcester, Mass., have been the guests of Mr. and Mrs. Lowell D. Ross of Main street.

Mrs. J. Rosenwald of Main street has been the guest of friends at Worcester, Mass., during the past week.

WILL DRAW PLANS FOR NEW CHURCH AT STORRS

The trustees of the Storrs church have engaged Delbert K. Perry of New Britain to draw plans and prepare specifications for the new church at the Connecticut Agricultural college, it was announced Thursday at the office of the Connecticut Federation of Churches. It is expected that ground will be broken for the new church and the contract let for its construction upon the dedication of the community house, which is now nearing completion.

The present church at Storrs built in 1846 was the second or third edifice to stand upon the location set apart by the General Court of Connecticut in 1734 for ecclesiastical purposes. Following the removal of the old church and during the construction of the new church, the assembly hall in the new community house, will be used as a place of worship. The committee on removal of the old meeting house has been appointed by Prof. Geo. C. White, chairman of the board of trustees of the Storrs church. The committee are Prof. Chas. A. Wheeler, Sherman P. Hollister, A. J. Brundage.

The trustees of the Storrs church also announce the appointment of a committee upon the furnishings of the new community house; Prof. A. G. Skinner, chairman; Mrs. Howard H. Seckerson; Mrs. C. L. Hendrickson; Prof. H. D. Newton; Delbert K. Perry, architect.

The decision to build has been made possible through the success of the campaign for funds during the winter. A large number of small contributions have been augmented by several notable ones including one received during the past week for $5,000. The trustees believe that with the continuation of effort in communities where little or no work has yet been done, they are amply justified in moving forward with the construction of the church. The community house when completed will represent an outlay of $80,000 and the church about twice that sum.

DROP IN ANTHRACITE COAL PRICES FORECAST

NEW YORK, Feb. 19—(AP)—A drop in anthracite coal prices of approximately twelve dollars a ton, when normal domestic stocks have been received, was forecast today by coal dealers. The higher price has been necessitated because British hard coal constituted the sole supply. The first shipment of 1,200 tons of domestic anthracite arrived today.

Companies with stocks of British anthracite, which for the most part has been sold in small lots to poor persons, have been asking around $28 a ton, with coke $5 to $7 less.

WHAT WILL CONGRESS DO?

Now that the strike has been settled and the miners are getting back to work, what is congress going to do in the way of acting upon the request of the president, made more than once, that legislation to set up machinery for action in case of a strike?

It is true that the strike agreement is supposed to cover a period of five years and has been signed for that length of time, but there is no telling what may develop under the arrangement that has been made to bring about a strike. Arbitration is the purpose of the settlement but inasmuch as the two mediators who are authorized to select a third if necessary "may" do so it can be seen where the refusal of one to act would be sufficient to prevent an adjustment through such a channel.

Likewise it is being stated that the provision concerning "cooperation and efficiency" includes the question of the check off. Mr. Lewis claims that it meant the checkoff, but there again appears a ground for dispute which may lead to a strike. The hope is that responsibility under the agreement, as assumed by each side, will be sufficient to see that the terms of the pact are respected to the letter, but in case they are not what is going to prevent another strike?

It can be thus understood that it would be folly to bask in the shade of a false security. Through the filibustering of congress there was no chance of preventing the strike from going a record breaking length of time. Because calm consideration of the situation was desired legislation was not urged during the emergency. But with the tension released it is time to get down to business and to act in a manner that will have in mind the prevention of further situations of the same kind. Congress knows what is recommended. It knows what the situation is in the coal fields and what it has been for the past six months. What more trouble does it want before getting down to brass tacks and meeting the situation face to face with legislation that has long been needed and too long neglected.

DEFENSE APPROPRIATIONS

Congress in its wrestle with the appropriation measures indicates its intention to take care of the needs of the army and navy in about the same manner that it has in the past. There was an apparent effort some time ago to take it off its feet in regard to appropriations for defense but that is not indicated in the action which has thus far been taken.

Appropriations for the army for the past three years have been $352,100,000, $348,600,000 and $361,887,000 respectively. For the navy the sums that were appropriated commencing with 1923 were $322,600,000, $332,250,000 and $346,142,000.

The navy bill which has been passed by both houses calls for a total of $321,500,000 with $18,000,000 added by the senate for navy air service while the house committee on naval affairs seeks $100,000,000 to be expended at the rate of $20,000,000 a year for five years for navy air purposes. Thus the two houses are not far apart on this particular matter.

For the army this year the house has approved $339,500,000, which includes $15,250,000 for aviation. On this bill the senate has not acted but there are no indications that it will be radically different in its provision. By the house bill the number of officers and enlisted men remains the same.

The action of congress thus far indicates its determination to deal with national defense in a straightforward manner without being encouraged into unwise action. It gives heed to the need for additional provisions concerning the air service in both the army and the navy but it has not yielded to any radical demands or been hurried into action which is not warranted by the actual facts. Misrepresentation has not served to warp the views of those who must provide the money. Economy is still the watch word but it is not being applied in any such manner as to endanger the departments or to disregard the needs of the country. Thus far congress has displayed a keen regard for the real needs.

TIME FOR INDIVIDUALS TO ACT

Appropriations of funds for the establishment of state and town forests are urged more freely than in former years. There was a time when forests were expected to start themselves, meeting the many adverse conditions as best they could and require no attention until the time came to cut them. That might have been well enough when there was a sufficient acreage to draw upon in meeting the needs and wastes of the country, but in these days when demands have come to be huge and the wastage is enormous it is time for some serious thinking about the timber supply for the future.

There are national forests, state forests and town forests in addition to the privately owned property furnishing large quantities of wood. From time to time there is authority sought for the extension of these public forests. It is desirable that certain natural beauty spots should be preserved and also that through such public lands to inspire others to take an interest in forestry. But the surprising thing is that there are not more individuals and private corporations taking action along this very line. If it can be shown that public forest lands increase in value each year the same would hold good in regard to the private and there are hundreds of thousands of acres which are particularly fitted for such development, many of which are being utilized for no purpose at all.

The Massachusetts State Forestry association is asking that state to increase its forest lands by 150,000 acres. That doesn't necessarily mean that it will be done, but that state already has large holdings and it can be expected to add to them from time to time. But it is not solely in the preservation of existing forests that interest needs to be shown. The acreage is huge where forests have been cut off and remain unused, or where a profitable venture in forestry work might turn in a profit where nothing is being received today. Reaping the profits from forest land requires time but it is not to be sneezed at, it makes a decided contrast with getting nothing forever.

THE ABANDONED GIFT TAX

Just because taxes are levied and collected does not necessarily mean that they are legal. That is they are not according to the decision of Judge Hand of the federal court who has been hearing a case dealing with the federal gift tax which the judge holds to be unconstitutional.

The gift tax applies in those cases where large sums are apparently given away for the purpose of avoiding the taxation that would be experienced in case the funds were held intact. It takes care of those cases where gifts are made to avoid or reduce taxation quite the same as the inheritance tax provides against a person giving away his money or property on his death bed in order to avoid taxation. In order to escape the inheritance tax such gifts have to be made a certain number of years before death.

The abandonment of the gift tax eliminates that form of taxation in the future whatever the appeal from the decision of Judge Hand may result in, but the real importance of the case now surrounds the taxes that have already been collected under this levy. Something like the sum of $7,000,000 has been obtained by the government from such a course and it is not to be supposed that those who have paid it are going to be satisfied until they have gotten it back provided the unconstitutionality of the tax is upheld.

It does not hold good of course that all money that is given away is disposed of for the purpose of avoiding taxation, though that would seem to be the inference from the law and its abandonment, regardless of the decision, is in the right direction.

COUNCIL MEMBERSHIP

Germany is going into the league of nations and as it does so it wants a place in the league council. Under normal conditions and could the situation following the war be eliminated, there would be no question about that. But Germany is not the only country that wants representation on the council. To accommodate any of them it will be necessary to enlarge the council.

Besides Germany, a place in the council is sought by Poland, Spain and Brazil. Each of the countries have those who favor its admission, while each may also have those who oppose the admission of one or more of the others. They can see advantage or disadvantage accruing from the additions to the council, and they are respectively pulling the wires which will strengthen their respective positions. They are taking into consideration not only what the conditions are at the present time but what they will be in case new members are added. Each sees the handicaps and the benefits to themselves and others and they are doing their utmost to look out for themselves and their friends.

Special advantage was what the European nations were seeking in the past and it doesn't appear that they are changing their tactics a great deal. Possibly it would not be well for certain additions to the council but it will be hard to make those excluded see the justice of it. In the struggle for the maintenance of peace in Europe and the world it has long since been apparent that it is bound to be a hard job satisfying everybody.

EDITORIAL NOTES

The man on the corner says: So this is February!

For some of the miners the strike apparently didn't last long enough.

The advance in the price of gasoline cannot be attributed to the unreasonable demand for it.

Every rain at this season of the year means an escape from a further increase in the snow pile.

The reckless driver and his auto may be soon parted but there are plenty ready to take his place.

An old prison in London is now being used as an apartment house. Probably it wasn't fit for housing prisoners.

The ratification of the coal agreement was expected. Now the demand will be for the forward movement of coal.

Smaller paper money it is said will last longer, but it will make all the difference in the world to what use it is put.

Many will agree with the German press that Mussolini's speech is arrogant, but Germany now has a chance to see how kaiserism impressed others.

Those who have been getting cheaper fuel and better results from bituminous coal are not going to care how soon anthracite is again available.

THE MAN WHO TALKS

After an interval of a little more than a week, from Feb. 12 we come to the observance of another birthday that will be forever memorable in the annals of American history. First, let us look at some of the points of likeness in confessedly the two foremost men this country has yet produced—Washington and Lincoln. Beyond all question they were nearest alike in the major things of life that make for character and immortality. They were strikingly alike in the emphasis they put on Americanism—and I use that word in its larger and better sense—as an expression of that form of government in which the people themselves rule. They were alike in their exposition of political freedom. Washington hated the iron grip of Great Britain just as much as Lincoln hated the iron grip of slavery, and in Washington's farewell address, there is a line of thought almost parallel to that of the Emancipation Proclamation.

It may be well to enumerate some of the things that made these two political giants strikingly unlike, and these were things that we most emphatically regard as secondary and unimportant. There was first of all the matter of appearance. They were both tall men. Washington was the heavier of the two, and always gave the most scrupulous care to his personal appearance, and hence we always find him immaculately well-dressed. Lincoln always looked as though somebody had thrown at him a bundle of loose remnants and some of them had stuck to him. Washington was elegant in his carriage and always walked with a princely air in perfect aristocratic fashion; Lincoln often went shambling along as though he was going to fall to pieces. Washington was, every inch of him a patrician while Lincoln was more of the democratic mold. One died the richest man in the United States the other died comparatively poor.

A very beautiful service of dedication was recently held at Newton Highlands, Mass., that was quite out of the ordinary. It relates to the new home of Prof. H. Augustine Smith, the musician and head of the fine arts department of Boston university. A Boston university. A Boston paper has this to say about it: "The occasion of setting up a household in a new residence suggested to the learned and religious sense a dedication to the high purpose of home life. In place of an ordinary house warming of ancient and sometimes of unhappy memory, an altar was erected. His pastor invoked the house blessing." Very impressively did Prof. Smith speak thus to his 50 guests: "Homes should be dedicated as churches and other institutions are. They are the foundation of life and government. In the home lies the power that can limit the evils of divorce and unhappy marriages. The three ideals of the home are love, warmth and beauty." Why not then dedicate the home as we do the church?

The first civil service commission was appointed by President Arthur 43 years ago today-Feb. 20, 1883. This was a step so important along the line of efficiency that we ought not to forget it. It was the first definite official action taken to oppose the vicious custom first indorsed by Andrew Jackson that "to the victors belong the spoils." That means that whatever plums there are in the hands of office holders should be used to pay up political debts, without much regard to qualification for office. One of the blackest things in our past political history has been the spoils system. While nobody would say that we are now entirely free from it, conditions have greatly improved by this courageous and drastic action of Chester A. Arthur, almost forgotten as president of the United States.

The lesson studied in the church schools that follow the international series on Feb. 7, was very illuminating. It presented Jesus as "The Light of the world." We found traits of character existing then that have not been wholly removed from human experience by advancing civilization. In the act of giving sight to the blind man we found that there were three parties involved. First, Jesus the subject, and foremost actor in the scene; secondly, the blind man who was the object, or the party acted on, and thirdly, the scribes and Pharisees, or the party looking on, finding fault and scolding. Wherever Jesus went, or whatever he did, there you would find these pests who always tried to overthrow, or at least, underrate his spirit and deeds. And do we not find the same combination today? The people who do good because there is need of it; those who always need help; and still those who do nothing but growl at those who do?

If we take this experience of our Lord as an example, we learn the good that can be done by utilizing our wayside opportunities. The setting of this scene is very simple and perfectly natural. The blindman did not have an appointment with Jesus. There is no evidence that Jesus ever saw him before, and hence he had no opportunity to "study up" his case. There is nothing stilted or dramatic about this episode. These introductory words show that it was a chance meeting: "And as Jesus passed by," he ran across a man who had been born blind and probably was begging. It was simply utilizing a wayside opportunity. Jesus was always on the alert to do good; he had trained his faculties to discover cases of need. And here is where he differs from us. To be sure we are not heartless to turn need down, but often it has to be buried at us before we see it.

One cannot deny that blindness is a terrible affliction, whether partial or total. We ought to be very thankful that in our cold climate it is far less common than in the lower latitudes; also that it is less frequent among civilized peoples than savages. In those parts of the orient where vegetation is scarce and the soil is rocky and sandy, the reflection of the heat upon the eyes is very injurious, and hence we can understand why there are so many cases of congenital blindness. There are three general reasons for blindness: first, those who are blind from their birth; those who are made so by disease or accident, and those who suffer in this way from the failing strength of old age. While it is true that "the sins of the father are visited upon the children to the third and fourth generations" we ought to be very careful in making such imputation, for we simply do not know. By no means are all children born blind the product of sin.

One ought to remember that there are other and worse forms of blindness than the sightless eyeball. It is bad enough to have cataracts and paralysed optic nerves, but it is far worse to have paralysis just above and back of the eyes. It is serious to have sightless eyeballs, it is infinitely more so to have a paralyzed understanding. Which would you rather be, blind or idiotic? The blind eye has some compensations, but the blank mind has none. Did you ever notice that the blind usually have genial dispositions? They are usually sunny and social, while they have remarkably keen mental perceptions. It would seem as though the mind said: "Poor eyes, you are knocked out, I will take your place as far as I can!" No extra mentality is given to the blind, but they learn to use their minds far more than those who see. But the worst blindness of all is the moral because under it the whole man degenerates.

IN THE PUBLIC EYE

In selecting Dr. Raymond A. Pearson to be its president the University of Maryland is assured of getting an undisputed expert in his chosen field of work. Dr. Pearson's reputation rests largely upon his long term of service as president of Iowa State College, one of the finest of the agricultural colleges of the mid-west. Cornell University educated him in the fundamentals of natural science. He specialized in agriculture, and on the basis of his record was summoned in 1895 to the department of agriculture in Washington to be chief of its dairy division. During the World war his services were again enlisted by the department of agriculture to become one of its assistant secretaries. In the interim he had served as professor of the dairy industry at Cornell and for four years was New York state commissioner of agriculture. In 1912 he was called to Iowa to become head of the state college.

A NATURALIST COLLECTS BY RADIO

The possibilities of radio as a direct and practical aid to science have been demonstrated in a rather surprising fashion during the past year by Thornton W. Burgess, author and naturalist. Something more than a year ago Mr. Burgess founded the Radio Nature league through Station WBZ, at his home city, Springfield, Mass. The purpose of this league as set forth is to preserve and conserve all desirable American wild life, including birds, animals, flowers, trees and other living things: also the natural beauty spots and scenic wonders of all America. An invitation to enroll in this league was extended to all who would subscribe to this purpose as set forth. From the very beginning the interest was widespread. At the present time more than 20,000, of all ages, have enrolled. The meetings are held every Wednesday evening at 7:30, eastern standard time, with Mr. Burgess presiding at the microphone.

Since October the Boston Museum of Natural History has been co-operating by supplying speakers for fifteen-minute talks on the league program on alternate weeks, and by putting at the service of league members the museum's facilities for supplying information on natural history topics. These talks by noted naturalists became popular from the start. The public was quick to recognize the educational value of them, and the Radio Nature league soon became one of the most popular features of WBZ.

But Mr. Burgess believes in reciprocity. He appreciated what the Boston museum was giving to the public, and he believed that the public was ready and willing to do something in return if opportunity offered. He learned that the museum was planning an exhibition group of white weasels of New England. The weasels had not yet been obtained. "I'll get them for you," said Mr. Burgess.

"How will you get them?" was the inquiry.

"I'll collect them on the air," was the reply. "I'll ask for them."

"And you expect to get them as simply as that?" said the director.

"As simply as that," replied Mr. Burgess.

At the next meeting of the Radio Nature league he told briefly the needs of the museum, and asked that any listener who might have trapped or shot a white weasel and felt that the weekly programs of the Radio Nature league were worth one white weasel, should send it to the Boston Museum of Natural History. Within ten days seven white weasels of three species were received from five states. The first one received was a rare one, such specimens having been taken but a few times.

"So far as I know," said Mr. Burgess, "this is the first attempt to collect natural history specimens by radio. It saves a great deal of labor, expense and inconvenience; likewise, it saves a great deal of time. If I want anything along these lines all I have to do is to step up to the 'mike' and ask for it. It is an extraordinary convenient way of getting things.

"During the open season last fall an investigation of the status of the ruffled grouse was conducted throughout the range of this bird. As many specimens as possible were desired for pathological examination in order to determine to what extent disease or parasites might be responsible for the periodic disappearance of the grouse. Of the 300 specimens sent in to Dr. Allen, of Cornell university, and Dr. Gross, of Bowdoin college, in charge of this work, a large percentage came from my request on the air that they be sent in.

"Records of the appearance of white herons in New England during the summer were wanted. I asked for them. I promptly received reports of nearly a hundred of these birds, and many of these reports were so accurate in their description of the birds that it was possible to tell whether these herons were the snowy egret, the American egret or the immature little blue heron, all of which are in white plumage.

One or two cases of albinoism in both animals and birds were reported to me. I asked for more. I got them. I have a surprising list as a result. A case of albinoism in a certain flower was reported to me. I told of it on the air. Within 24 hours I had received two offers to take me to places where I could see albino specimens of this flower growing. An authentic record of a box turtle, or tortoise, at least 107 years old, and still living, was reported to me. Within a week after broadcasting this I had a record of another of these chelonians 111 years old. This record still stands so far as I am concerned.

"By the way, I claim the long-distance record for calling birds. One night during the course of one of my talks I put on the tremolo call of the screech owl. The next day I received a letter from Hartford, Conn., 26 miles away, stating that the night before the writer was listening in, using the loud speaker and having the windows of the house open, immediately after my screech owl call a screech owl in a tree in front of the house replied. It was the first time the writer had ever known of an owl being there. I thought this pretty good, but the following day I received a similar story from Wallingford, Conn., 50 miles away, where the very same thing happened. As a screech owl will almost invariably answer to the call, there is little question that these birds actually were replying to the radio call. So the record for distance calling of birds stands at 50 miles.

"This winter a report of two or three mocking birds wintering over in southern New England, led me to ask for identification of this southern songster wintering in other places in the north. The replies came in promptly. One is wintering as far north as Waterville, Me.; another at Lewiston Me., and a third at Londonderry, N. H. Several are wintering in central and southern New England.

"So it goes. Every mail brings me specimens for identification. They have run all the way from flowers, leaves, caterpillars, worms, cocoons, to an albino squirrel, a saw whet owl, snake eggs and a living snake. So far as possible, everything has been identified and the replies broadcast or sent by mail. So, you see, the public is benefiting, and at the same time we who are vitally interested in the study of natural history are also gainers. The radio reaches those whom it would be impossible to reach in any other way. It reaches the very ones most likely to see those animals or birds regarding which it is desired to obtain more information. The trapper in the wilderness is listening in; the fisherman in his cot on the shore, the lighthouse-keeper marooned on his island the boy in the lone farmhouse at the foot of the mountain—they are all getting the message. I know, because I hear from all of them. Thus the appearance of a moose in a little Connecticut town was reported to me at once, and this, put on the air, brought reports of Moose in other places where they were supposed not to exist. A panther has been reported from Vermont, where the last one was shot 40 years ago.

"As for constructive work, let me merely offer the fact that when the league had 10,000 members enrolled 3,000 of these had reported to me at my request that they were feeding the birds. When I explained last fall that the beautiful fringed gentian is an annual, or biennial, and must not be picked because it is absolutely dependent on ripening seeds to preserve the species, pledge after pledge not to pick these flowers reached me. The radio is the greatest educational force in the world today. As a medium for disseminating information it is without equal; and for obtaining information it is equally effective. If you want a thing just ask for it on the air."

Sunday Morning Talk

GEORGE WASHINGTON

The nobility and bravery of Washington's character were shown in his early manhood when at the risk of his own life he saved a boy from drowning. The mothers words expressing her gratitude came true in his later life.

"God will reward you," she said, "as I can not. He will do great things for you in return for this day's work, and the blessings of thousands besides mine will attend you." And so it was; for, to the hero of that hour, were subsequently confided the destinies of a mighty nation. We see this same noble spirit of self-sacrifice in his later life. No hardship was too hard to endure for his country. His country called; unappalled by danger and suffering; he fought, he conquered. He imparted his spirit to those about him. He invigorated despondency, dismaying treason, disdaining vice. He inspired others by his example to do and be their best. "First in war, first in peace, and first in the hearts of his country men." Just human, temperate sincere, dignified and looking to God for strength and guidance. Before his nobility, vice shuddered, and the good and true felt that they had met a friend that could be trusted.

Stories That Recall Others

Not the Right Color

The colored woman who was part time maid was just completing the cleaning of the bathroom and as she laid down the freshly washed rug she sighed and surveyed it critically. The small son of the house who was right at her heels following her aimlessly and endlessly, suggested:

"You didn't get it clean, did you Vira?"

"No, sir, honey, I didn't. It don't look very appetizing does it?" she replied.

Astute Johnnie

Johnnie had intently watched the moving of the family that had come to occupy the house next door, but his chief interest lay in the child who seemed to be his own age. All attempts to make friends with the child were unavailing, however, so it was with a great deal of enthusiasm he announced:

"I know what the boy's name next door is. It's Original."

It was with no success at all that his mother tried to dissuade him from this notion or interpret it until she heard her neighbor next door calling: Oh, Reginald.

From Small Beginnings

Collis P. Huntington

One day in a southern state a 15-year-old boy, Collis P. Huntington, went about trying to sell clocks. Eagerly and boylike he explained the advantages of the clocks he wished to sell. "Will you buy one?"

Who that smiled at the boy's efforts could realize that he would grow up into one of the greatest railroad builders in the United States, that he would construct lines where none before had existed, and that at his death he would leave more than $50,000,000!

The clock peddler was a Yankee boy from the good old state of Connecticut, and he knew by instinct how to sell and buy. Perhaps in that southern journey he became interested in negroes. Later, when he had as many millions as he once had clocks, he gave great sums to such institutions as Hampton and Tuskegee for the benefit of negroes and of indians. Perhaps too, the pictures on the clocks of his day interested him in better pictures. At any rate when rich he gathered together $3,000,000 worth of pictures.

When he was a young man he sold hardware from his own store in California, not yet knowing that he was to make lines of solid steel spread across our land. He was a good business man and saw the needs of the country. He made himself the friend of people who, like him were thinking. He was quick, clever and honest in handling money, and he knew how to plant one dollar and see a whole crop of dollars grow up. A group of men who were building a railroad asked him to take charge of many of its financial problems. His Yankee brain was equal to the emergency, and he delighted his friends by making his dealings highly successful.

From that time on he himself became, not a clock peddler or a hardware merchant, but a railroad king. When he was 40 years old he was directing a railroad for every year of his life.

Then he reached out into dominion of the sea, and began there with steam boats. With Yankee shrewdness he extended power and opportunity for good constructive work.

With it all he kept the kindly heart of his youth built a beautiful church in honor of his mother in the Yankee town where he had been born, and gave liberally to charity. He was 79 when he died.

IN THE DAYS NEWS

NEPTUNE'S FIRE WATER

"Phosphorescence bright enough to make newspaper headlines readable, which was recently encountered by the navy aircraft tender Patoka in the Gulf of Mexico, "is a fairly common phenomenon in many parts of the world," says a bulletin from the Washington, D. C., headquarters of the National Geographic society. "The ghostly, eerie fire of the waves, however, has nothing to do with the substance that goes into the manufacture of matches, despite a remarkable resemblance and an obvious derivation of name.

"For, although sea water contains salts of phosphorus, called phosphates it has no free, uncombined quantities of the element. Luminescence, the name preferred by recent investigators, is a more appropriate term, as the light is largely the result of the oxidizing, or burning, of minute particles of dead animal and vegetable matter, the oxygen being derived from small amounts dissolved in sea water.

"In addition there is a phosphorescence, or luminescence, of living organisms. Several varieties of protophyta, tiny single-cell plants that float on the surface of the water, diffuse the dull glow called 'milky sea' in the Far East, or 'white water' of the Gulf of Aden. Certain forms of bacteria are also luminescent, and are often visible on sand and on fish cast up by the sea. This glow is not due to decay, for when decay sets in its luminescence ceases.

"Some forms of sea fire are highly incandescent, giving off an intense, almost white, light. Sometimes it is difficult to believe that one would not have one's fingers burned by touching it. Others are golden yellow, blue and even red and green, giving weird, uncanny effects on dark nights. It may have been from some such inspiration that Coleridge drew the atmosphere for 'The Ancient Mariner.'

"Norwegian fishermen distinguish between two kinds of the phenomenon: 'dead phosphorescence' and 'fish phosphorescence.' The former resembles stars in a clear sky, myriads of tiny, nearly invisible, points emitting a scintillating light; now increasing, now decreasing in intensity. 'Fish phosphorescence' consists of bubbles of light caused by fish rushing through the water. The fish disturb minute phosphorescent organisms, which flare up suddenly in response to the irritation produced.

"It is the latter variety that so delights the visitor to strange lands and waters. It is this phosphorescence that gives the midnight wave tops their brilliant sparkle as they break on the shore, or bathes the oar in a magic glow as it ruffles the surface, or leaves the cometlike track of the stone dropped into the water."

The doors of the Bridgeport plant of the Abraham Wolfe company, clothing manufacturers, will be closed within two weeks if the assaults on the 150 employes who did not strike are continued.

POLISH ARCHBISHOP TO HAVE NEW YORK FUNERAL

The funeral of Archbishop John Cieplak, Roman Catholic Metropolitan of Vilna, Poland, who died on Wednesday night in St. Mary's hospital, Passaic, N. J., will be held next Thursday at 10 a. m. in St. Patrick's Cathedral New York, and will be attended by M Ciechanowski, minister of Poland at Washington; M. Gruska, Polish consul general at New York; Polish prelates and priests and Americans of Polish descent from many American cities.

The service will be a solemn high mass of requiem. Rt Rev. Joseph Schrembs, Bishop of Cleveland, will preach the sermon.

A service will be held tomorrow morning in Henry Polish Catholic church, Passaic, as Archbishop Cieplak was a guest of the Rev. Stanislaus Kruczek, its pastor, when he was stricken with pneumonia. The body will then rest in a vault until just before the service in New York.

From the cathedral the body will be taken to the steamship Homeric. On arrival at Vilna there will be a great public demonstration of mourning.

FORESTERS HOLD FOURTH NIGHT IN PINOCHLE

The fourth night of the pinochle tournament being conducted by the Foresters of America resulted in many changes after the play of Friday night. With a score of 5,830 John Le Doux who was leading dropped to third place and D. Kohanski moved up to first.

The winners for Friday night were: Harry Clement, 7,810, James McNulty 7,440, Elroy Bolduc 7,360, Charles Johnson 7,300, Stanley Kohanski 7,300.

The first eight in the standing are as follows: S. Kohanski 27,140, Wm. Ryan 26,690, John LeDoux 26,270, A. Tetreault 25,980, J. Kohanski 25,500, J. Ryan 25,500, H. J. Clement 24,720, H. Gauthier 24,210.

The tournament will be postponed next week on account of a club night to be held in the club rooms, to which all of the members have been invited and for the success of which the house committee is working hard. An entertainment followed by a banquet will be the order for the night.

FOREIGN WAR VETERANS CONDUCT WHIST EVENING

R. E. Hourigan Post, 594, V. F. W., held a very enjoyable whist in the post rooms Friday night, followed by dancing, music being furnished by Prof. Whitmarsh's orchestra of four pieces.

The prizes were won by Mrs. Peterson first, Mrs. L. Brunette second, and the consolation went to Mrs. A. J. Turner; gentlemen, first, F. T. Burke; second, A. W. O'Connell; and the consolation, Mr. Bingham. The committee in charge of the successful affair comprised the following: Henry King, John Pawelec, A. H. Fitzgerald, and the Commander Leo Jacques.

IDEAL MOUTH WINS TIME OFF FOR 801 SCHOOL CHILDREN OF NORWICH

Attaining the goal of "An Ideal Mouth", which was the mark towards which the dental hygienist, Miss Helen Christ, has been urging the pupils of the public and parochial schools since September, 801 pupils of the Norwich schools were given an hour off Friday afternoon as their reward. They were allowed to go home at 2:30 instead of waiting for the regular afternoon dismissal at 3:30.

The "ideal mouth" means four things in relation to the teeth. If there have been any cavities discovered, they must all be filled. Then there must be no teeth remaining that are in need of extraction. A third requirement is that the teeth shall be well brushed, and the fourth requisite is that the gums shall be healthy.

That the children showed ambition to measure up to the standard is shown by the fact of so many qalifying. One room, that of Miss Anna Curtis, third and fourth grades, at Broad street school, came very close to making a 100 per cent record, but a final tally showed that one boy with an unfilled cavity had spoiled the perfect mark for the room.

IMPERFECT DRIVING CAUSE OF MOST MOTOR ACCIDENTS

It is suggested in the current issue of the Connecticut motor vehicle department bulletin, out Friday, that the state might adopt some plan of state aid to towns which would enable small municipalities to have traffic policemen for work within their limits.

Under the plan suggested any town which desired might have a state policeman stationed at some intersection or other dangerous place in its confines by sharing the expense with the state. "Many of the accidents which happen on state highways," according to the bulletin, "have been within the limits of small towns and villages due, of course, to the fact that there was no apparent reason for slowing down and keeping control of the car, and insufficient local police regulation."

Most of the 22,568 motor vehicle accidents which were reported to the motor vehicle department last year were caused, the bulletin points out, by "that portion of the whole group of motor vehicle operators which may be classed as undesirable because of imperfect driving. This shows that the attention of the police and of the state departments must be more closely directed against them and that penalties for violation of law must be more serve and license suspensions more frequent."

During the year 1925, the motor vehicle department suspended 7,093 licenses and there were 13,518 convictions and 937 complaints of violation of the motor vehicle laws.

The observation is made in the bulletin that more children were hurt by automobiles in 1925 than in 1924, indicating need of concentrated teaching and continued watchfulness on the part of parents and guardians. The adult pedestrian, however, shows up better in the 1925 statistics. "He shows the effect of the additional years experience with difficult traffic, the results of better traffic direction, better obedience and realization of his own part in it."

In passing, it is noted that "horses seem to show the effect of education, as there were only twenty-nine runaway horses involved in motor vehicle accidents last year as against sixty the year before.

Far fewer accidents were attributed to defective equipment in 1925. Whereas 207 accidents were attributed to glaring headlights in 1924, only 88 were laid to that cause in 1925.

INVITATION AND RECEIPT DATING BACK TO LONG AGO

As the result of the old programs that have recently been reported, Nathan E. Whiting, on Friday, brought to The Bulletin office, what is apparently the front cover of an invitation extended to Miss Lydia L. Waterman to attend an Independence ball July 2, 1818, at Captain Avery Morgan's assembly room at 2 p. m. The committee in charge included R. Randall, J Packer and N. Whiting, the last named being Mr. Whiting's grandfather and who afterwards married the young woman to whom the invitation was sent. The card was about the size of a playing card and has the decoration of a face card on the outside.

Mr. Whiting also has a receipt bearing the date of January 15, 1791, also in good state of preservation. It reads: "Bozrah, January 15, 1791. Received of Josiah Rogers, five shillings which is payment in full of all debts, dues and demands of what manner or nature forever from the beginning of the world to this day and witness my hand in presence of Josiah Rogers." The signature has apparently been detached.

GIVEN SURPRISE PARTY FOR ELEVENTH BIRTHDAY

In honor of her eleventh birthday Miss Myrtle Browning was given a surprise party this week at her home, East Great Plain. The young hostess recived many gifts. Games were played and there were piano selections by Miss Kelly. Refreshments were served by Mrs. Charles Browning, Mrs. Francis Toomey and Miss Bessie Howe at a prettily decorated table.

Those present included Betty Sargent, Lucy Kelley, Elizabeth Toomey, Adaline Crotti, Sadie Gaweric, Edith Hill, Doris Johnson, Iselene DesJardine, Myrtle Browning, Kenneth Browning, Percy Browning, Donald Browning, Irvin Bowers, Raymond Johnson, and Lina DesJardine.

SINGAPORE INSECT'S BITE POISONS SENATOR'S SON

(Special to The Bulletin.)

WASHINGTON, Feb. 19.—Henry W. Keyes, Jr., son of the senator from New Hampshire, is desperately ill from the bite of a poisonous insect and is in a hospital at Singapore which point he had reached in a trip around the world with his mother. Young Keyes is a Harvard senior, taking a year off to make the trip. The British ambassador and state department here have cabled that British officials to extend every care and courtesy to Mrs. Keyes and her son. News received by Senator Keyes this week by cable is more encouraging but his son's condition is still critical.

VALENTINE SOCIAL FOR BAPTIST YOUNG PEOPLE

The regular monthly social of the B. Y. P. U. of the Central Baptist church was held Friday evening in Bushnell chapel with an attendance of about 25 young people. The affair took the form of a Valentine social. There were games during the evening and refreshments of Jello, whipped cream, fancy cakes and candy were served. The committee in charge comprised Miss Amy March, Miss Mildred Cass, Miss Frances Bushnell and Austin Covey.

PUBLIC HEALTH LECTURES BEGINNING AT STORRS

(Special to The Bulletin.)

STORRS, Feb. 19—Courses in public health for students of Connecticut Agricultural college and others of the Storrs community, which are given under the auspices of the Connecticut state department of health, got under way this week with 118 enrolled.

Dr. Millard K. Knowlton, director of the bureau of preventable diseases, in the first lecture, discussed the conquest of disease, treating the relation of disease to mankind; the nature and control of communicable diseases and the personal responsibility for disease control. The present plan for this course calls for one lecture a week. Unless some important college function interferes the lectures will be given on Wednesday evenings.

The course will be given as follows: Dr. Stanley H. Osborn, state commissioner of health, Your Health and Mine; Dr. Daniel E. Shea, chief division of venereal disease, A Clean Mind and Healthy Body; Dr. A. Elizabeth Ingraham, director bureau of child hygiene, Postural and Orthopedic Defects; Dr. Greenberg, U. S. public health service, Industrial Hygiene; Dr. Mary J. Haskins, conference physician, Muscle Strains; Dr. Warren J. Scott director bureau sanitary engineering, Sanitary Environment; Dr. Daniel E. Shea, A Healthy Body Makes a Healthy Community; Prof. Hiscock, associate professor school of public health, Yale university, What a Community Should Do; Dr. Welling, director bureau vital statistics, How To Measure Public Health Results; Dr. Winslow, professor of public health, Yale university; Modern Public Health Movement, and Dr. Stanley H. Osborn, The Machinery Public Health.

SETTLEMENT IS REACHED IN SUIT FOR $10,000

Withdrawal without costs from the superior court docket has been made in the $10,000 damage suit brought by Alexander Plona, of Waterford, administrator of the estate of his wife, Cecilia Plona, late of Waterford, against the Connecticut Co., and Robert W. Perkins, receiver of the Shore Line Electric Railway Co.

The suit has involved much litigation and has been in court since 1923. Plona sued for $10,000 for his wife's death, alleging that she died as a result of injuries sustained when struck and run over by a trolley car near Station 12, Waterford, on Nov. 22, 1922, and that the defendant was negligent.

The case first came to trial in March, 1924, before Judge Christopher L. Avery and a jury, the latter returning a verdict of $5,000 for Plona. Judge Avery refused to set aside the verdict and the defendants took the case to the supreme court of errors.

On Nov. 27, 1924, the supreme court handed down a decision in which error was found and ordered a new trial, which was to have been started in New London this week. A settlement was effected, however, by counsel in the case, Attorney Thomas E. Troland for the plaintiff and Attorney Charles B. Whittlesey for the defendants.

FORMER DANIELSON PASTOR GOING TO TAUNTON

Rev. W. Douglas Swaffield, whose first pastorate was in Danielson, has just resigned the pastorate at the Baptist church in Keene, N. H., and is going to the Winthrop street Baptist church in Taunton, Mass. He expects to remain in Keene a month or more.

Rev. Mr. Sheffield is a graduate of Brown University and of Newton Theological school. His first pastorate was in Danielson, Conn., where he remained for seven years. His next call was at the Trenton Street Baptist church, Boston, where he worked four years. He went to the Baptist church in Keene from Boston and has been there about five years.

ST. ANDREW'S NEW RECTOR ASSUMES CHARGE SUNDAY

Rev. John Rees Jones, recently ordained as rector of St. Andrew's Episcopal church, Greeneville, will assume his charge Sunday. Rev. Mr. Jones, who comes here from Andover, N. B., will reside for the present with the rector of St. Alban's church, Danielson. On the arrival of his household goods from Andover he will take up his residence at the rectory in Greeneville. He is a native of Wales and a graduate of Durham university and of Dorchester Theological college. He was ordained in Canada, in 1914, by the bishop of Qu'Appelle.

AUTOMOBILE HIT TREE ON STREET AT NIANTIC

An automobile operated by A. Rassmussen of South Lyme was badly damaged in Pennsylvania avenue, Niantic, shortly after 8 o'clock Friday morning, when, in avoiding hitting a motorcyclist, the driver of the machine turned the car to the left of the road and crashed into a tree. The car was rendered useless by the impact and had to be towed to a garage for repairs, but the driver was not injured.

Orchestra Made Futile Trip

A colored orchestra of seven pieces that drove here from Hartford Friday night to play at a dance at Pulaski hall, for which members of the orchestra said they had been engaged by a Norwich man, found the hall dark when they arrived; neither could they locate the man who had hired them. After an appeal to the police to help them out of their difficulty they took the back track to Hartford, swearing vengeance on the man who had induced them to come here.

For Parkin Violations

Nazzareno Ruffo and Alex Goldberg two taxi drivers, who had not been disturbed in parking in Rose place during the snowy period, but had been warned, according to the police, that they must do so no longer, were arrested Friday night by Officer Hugh McAvoy when they were found parking in the forbidden spot. They will appear in court in the morning.

Chosen To Read Composition

Paul Blankenfeld, formerly of this city, who has been attending night school at New London, was one of those chosen to read a composition at the graduation night this week. He was in the third year class.

BOOZE RUNNERS CASES CONTINUED BY COURT

Clifford Adams, 20, and Fred Spencer, 25, both of Waterbury, who were arrested here Thursday night by state policemen when the machine the men were driving was found to have four dozen bottles of beer in it, had their cases continued till Monday when they were presented in the city court Friday morning. Bonds were put at $1,500 for Spencer and at $2,000 for Adams. Both went to jail in default of bonds.

A Norwich man who was before the court on a breach of the peace charge for making trouble in his home paid $24.50, being obliged to settle for a former count against him.

A New London sailor paid a fine of $25 and costs for operating an automobile without a license.

Harry Cohn, 21, of Laurel Hill avenue was before the court on the charge brought by the state police of driving with improper lights. Cohn was given a warning on Laurel Hill when State Policeman Kulowski found him driving with one headlight minus a lense. After Cohn had been home to supper, he started for a garage in the center of the city to get his light fixed and was again stopped by the policemen who gave him a summons to court. The officer claimed that Cohn could have got his lense fixed at a garage on Laurel Hill, but Cohn alleged that one of the garages there was closed. He said that the lense had only been out that day, having broken when it fell out.

Judge Libby said he would give Cohn the benefit of the doubt and nolled the case.

Nettie Lawton Howard, who has lived on West Main street, was sent to the state farm for women, which is located at Niantic. Her case was heard in chambers by Judge Libby.

VERDICT FOR $14,261.30 FOR SAYBROOK ACCIDENT

A verdict in the amount of $14,261.30 in favor of the plaintiffs, James W. Rogers, of New London, and Pratt, Read & Co., of Deep River, was returned by a jury in the superior court for Middlesex county at Middletown before Judge John W. Banks at 5:40 o'clock Thursday afternoon against the New York, New Haven and Hartford railroad. Attorneys Arthur T. Keefe, George Curtis Morgan and Abel P. Tanner, all of New London, represented the plaintiffs.

The verdict ends much litigation in the courts, the case having been tried some time ago in the superior court when the jury returned a verdict for the defendant. The plaintiff's attorneys appealed the verdict to the supreme court which overruled it on the ground of error in the charges and remanded it back to the superior court for a trial.

The present verdict under the statute is apportioned to both plaintiffs, Mr. Rogers receiving $8,000 and costs and Pratt, Read & &Co., being awarded $6,261.30.

The action was primarily brought by Rogers to recover damages claimed as the result of injuries received June 2, 1920, when a bus in which he was riding enroute to the Pratt, Read & Co., for whom he worked, was struck by a valley train at the Saybrook crossing. Under the compensation laws, the employers were responsible for Rogers from the time he left his home and thereby became plaintiffs in the suit Rogers received injuries to the head and a fractured leg, which Dr. George P. Cheney, of New London, testified as being permanently injured with 75 per cent. of its ordinary usefulness impaired. Attorneys J. T. Carpenter and John O'Connell represented the New Haven road. This case was a test case and five other suits aggregating $100,000 are pending.

ADVICE TO SPORTSMEN ON USE OF BUTTONS

The town clerk's office is in receipt of a letter from John W. Titcomb, relating to complaints from town clerks and sportsmen that the license buttons recently provided, cannot be reliably fastened and hence duplications are asked from the state board of fisheries and game.

Superintendent Titcomb calls attention to each applicant upon obtaining their license button to the importance of pressing in the loop which holds in the end of the pin and which may be bent outward in locking. The use of pliers to bend down the loop to make a better fastening is advocated. But for the fact that it is sometimes necessary to change from one coat to another, as will be the case, particularly with the combination license, the point of the pin could be bent a trifle over the loop. Superintendent Titcomb says: "Most of the sportsmen are co-operating in this innovation of using buttons as it will result in compelling those who have avoiding taking out a license and contributing their share toward the support of the work to do so hereafter. In New York state, when the change was made to buttons, the increase in revenue amounted to around $70,000."

CLARA BARTON TENT TO ENTERTAIN VETERANS

The Daughters of Veterans, Clara Barton Tent, held its regular meeting this week at Buckingham Memorial with the president, Gladys Newbury, presiding at the business session during which the report of the secretary was read and accepted. Mrs. Cora Botham was awarded the mystery package, containing six iridescent tumblers. Mrs. Jennie Newbury read an article on the conditions existing at the Fitch's soldiers home at Noroton. An invitation was received and accepted from Ann Rogers tent, No. 1, of New London to be their guests on Friday evening, Feb. 19. There was one application for membership, and announcement was made of a public supper this month. An invitation was extended to Sedgwick Post, No. 1, G. A. R., Sedgwick Woman's Relief Corps, No. 16 and Sedgwick Camp, No. 4, Sons of Veterans to be present at a Lincoln and Washington entertainment on March 2, which is to be held following the regular meeting to be called to order promptly at 7:30 o'clock. The meeting closed with the salute to the flag.

SPREADING THE TABLE FOR THE BIRD GUESTS

A Norwich man relates the following interesting experience and gives directions how to attract the birds.

When the heavy snow came covering the earth with a thick mantle, we noticed one morning a flock of English sparrows chattering noisily and apparently bemoaning pitifully the lack of food for breakfast.

Accordingly in a sheltered spot we swept away the snow and scattered on the ground a plentiful supply of dry bread crumbs. They were not long in finding them. In a short time the crumbs disappeared.

Next morning the birds were waiting for their breakfast and again crumbs were supplied. Muttonfat that had been cooled and hardened was thrown out on the snow and that was found by the juncos, whose black heads and backs and light breasts were easily distinguished from the sparrows.

Several large pieces of tallow (beef fat) tied up securely with string, and suspended from tree limbs, brought other bird neighbors. First the hairy and downy woodpeckers would dine on the fat and after they left the bright and cheery chick-a-dees took turns alighting on the suspended food. The little black capped birds would utter their happy "chick-a-dee-dee" and allow one to approach within a few feet and continued pecking away regardless of the proximity of man.

A food table placed on a high post was covered with crumbs and starlings and sparrows fed there at the same time.

One other neighbor, the blue jay, the Beau Brummel of birds, with a voice like a rusty hinge, darts about and cautiously drops down and devours the food.

Each morning now our bird friends are waiting in the lilac bush or flashing around the corner of the house for their accustomed food.

The nut hatch is also a winter resident and beginning at the top of the tall elm walks head downward the length of the tree trunk to the ground, uttering his frequent "Yank, yank." By reason of his note he might be called the "Yankee" bird.

The feeding of song and insectivorous birds at this season is quite as necessary as feeding the game birds for upon them do we depend for their aid next summer, while the game birds supply sport only for the winter.

A night or two of extreme cold with the ground deeply covered with snow and no food obtainable, is often fatal to our useful birds.

Every one then, who has an opportunity, should supply food for our feathered friends of our own near east.

ALL-YEAR EXERCISE IS REQUIREMENT FOR HEALTH

Some Exercise All Through the Year, is the caption of a health talk in this week's health bulletin issued by the Connecticut state department of health. The bulletin says:

Professional athletes—baseball players, tennis champions, golf enthusiasts—are fortunate enough to follow the sun as they swing around the globe in their respective pursuits of business or pleasure. And they benefit accordingly, for this enables them to extend the summer season for twelve months, and so live an out-of-door life.

Thus their exercise which has become a regular part of their daily lives, is uninterrupted throughout the year. With such exercise comes an attendant routine of personal hygiene such as daily tub baths, frequent shower baths, brisk rub-downs, a well-balanced diet, and definite hours of sound sleep. All this forms the basis for good health which makes possible such a strenuous life.

It is not possible for all of us to become professional athletes nor is it our desire. But we can each learn something from the program of personal hygiene which is a part of their lives. Recently our friends have remarked, "How I miss my golf. I don't seem to feel 'in trim' as I did at that time." Or, maybe it was tennis or swimming. Again, more recently, lame backs and shoulders have been much in evidence as the result of excessive shoveling of snow. Had this strenuous exercise followed immediately after the summer season there would not have been such adverse reaction to it.

Lack of exercise makes soft flabby muscles, circulation becomes sluggish and fatigue products accumulate more quickly in such unused muscles. Such effects are noted even after short periods without exercise.

So it behooves us to adopt some form of exercise for each month of the year. This will vary according to the season, no difficulty being encountered in the warm summer months when there is a definite urge to outdoor sports. But in the winter unless some definite plan for exercise is made, there is danger of neglecting this most important factor in health.

Will Attend Educators' Conference

School Superintendent E. J. Graham is to attend the Washington conference of the National Education association, leaving here this (Saturday) morning and taking the special train at New London which will carry the New England delegation.

Results of Campaign on Lights

The state police campaign in this city Thursday night against defective lights on automobiles resulted in 81 drivers being warned, 78 given warning tags and 26 summoned into court. Only one of these has appeared so far, and his case was nolled.

Night Schools in Last Week

The Norwich night schools, which have been conducted at the Broadway and Greeneville school houses, will finish their term of 75 nights next week. The registration has been about the average of recent years.

FRENCH TENNIS PLAYERS ELIMINATE THREE RANKING AMERICAN STARS

NEW YOK, Feb. 19.—(AP)—Sweeping to a triple triumph on the seventh regiment armory courts, France's brilliant Davis cup team today overwhelmed three leading American players, including William T. Tilden, and carried the tricolor into the semi-finals of the national indoor championship in the biggest series of tennis upsets since this country gained international net supremacy six years ago.

Vincent Richards, No. 3 in national ranking, and Francis T. Hunter, former indoor title-holder, fell with the national outdoor champion before the flashing racquets of the European team as a crowd of 2,500 looked on with mingled amazement and admiration at the unexpected victory of the foreign contingent. All three were eliminated in straight sets, Tilden succumbing to the spectacular net attack of Jean Borotra, 13-11, 6-3, Richards bowing to the terrific stroking of Rene Lacoste, 6-4, 6-3, and Hunter going down before Jacques Brugnon, 6-4, 6-4.

The success of the French players was a reversal of defeats they suffered here last summer in the Davis cup challenge round and subsequently in the national turf court championships. Tilden was on the brink of defeat against both Borotra and Lacoste in the concluding chapter of the international series, but he came from behind to triumph over each in gruelling five-set matches.

Richards, who did not play in the Davis cup matches, encountered Lacoste in the national outdoor event, however, and scored a straight set victory.

Today's unexpected results forecast an All-France final on Monday and indicate that for the second time in as many years the title will go back to France, where it was carried for the first time in the history of the event last year by Borotra.

A lone American remains to carry on the defense tomorrow in the semi-finals, John Van Ryn, the young Princeton university player being bracketed against Lacoste. In the other half of the draw, Borotra will play his own countryman, Brugnon.

The defeat of Tilden, considered by tennis critics as partially due to a lapse in his game he entered upon a professional stage career, nevertheless was accomplished by Borotra through a brilliant and decisive net attack which would have troubled the American star at his best.

"Borotra was unbeatable today, and I have no excuses to offer," Tilden declared at the finish. "He covered the court with whirlwind speed, and Borotra at his best is a great tennis player."

Tilden tried everything in his great repertoire of strokes to stem the French tide. He mixed his terrific forehand drive with a baffling chop, but the ball came booming back to him with an unerring accuracy which piled up the points for the Frenchman.

At the net, Borotra raced through the forecourt to cut down Tilden's returns with crisp, sharply-angled volleys—and there were few games in which the champion of 1925 failed to reach the corded barrier. Tilden finally went to his lob, but Borotra was even more dependable overhead than on the ground, smashing the ball with terrific speed into the American's court.

Although Tilden was unusually erratic in his stroking, driving the ball far out of court or skidding it along the ground in weak returns, the stroke analysis indicates that the Frenchman's triumph was scored largely on clean placements at the net. Borotra had to his credit a total of 25 placement aces to 12 for Tilden in the first set, while each made a total of 55 nets and outs in the second set, each again made seventeen errors, but Borotra brought off 13 placements to five for his opponent.

The defeat of Tilden followed the elimination of Richards, who was decisively outplayed by his European rival in both sets. The Olympic champion began his match with his usual brilliant net attack forging to the front at 3-1 as the result of a break through service in the second game.

But Lacoste, driving cleanly and accurately from the baseline, evened the score at 3-all, and then took the next two games.

Games were tied again at 4-all, Lacoste then won his service and broke through Richards for the set.

The second set passed quickly, Lacoste making two breaks through service.

Brugnon completed the American singles route with an unexpected victory over Hunter.

ADNOPOZ BEATS OUT BRAUMAN IN FREE-THROW

The local competition for the national free throw tournament came to a successful close in the Y. M. C. A. gym last evening, when Milton Adnopoz the final contestant looped 43 baskets out of his 74 possibilities, thus beating out Brauman who had been leading with a score of 45. Third honors fell to Aubrey Brown who scored 43 on the competition. Other close cagers in this division were A. Armstrong, 40, St. Germaine 39, C. Jackson 38, Jarvis 37, H. Ludlow 37 and MaPascouche 31.

Topping the intermediate division in which 60 trials were allowed was John Tiger who scored 33 counters, followed closely by . Burke 29, W. Jackson 28, L. Pitt 26, F. Deatri 25 and F. Barber 25.

Thomas Lynch captured first in the junior division by a score of 21 baskets out of 40 trials. C. Henschel followed with 19 and Anthony Golembieski third with 13.

The team honors went to the C. F. C.'s who scored a total of 214 baskets, while the Taftville Celtics were a close second with 210 baskets. The Y. M. H. A. juniors captured the intermediate class with 127 points in their favor.

The best scores made have been sent in for the national competition, and will be compared with the scores made by other cities when the contest committee meets in Charleston S. C. on the 24th of this month. At that time the winning teams and individuals will be broadcasted by radio.

NORWICH GIRL COMMENTS ON WILLS-LENGLEN MATCH

Miss Madeline Thune of Norwich, a student at Connecticut College, in a letter to a New London paper in answer to the question "Do you think Helen Wills' defeat at the hands of Suzanne Lenglen necessarily indicates the superiority of the French woman as a tennis player?" writes as follows:

"From the talk going back and forth about the exciting tennis game it is almost difficult to decide so great an issue. And of course Helen Wills belongs to us, she is a fine sportsman and so much younger than Mlle. Lenglen that our sympathy is naturally with her. But I do not think that we should blind ourselves to the real issue. 'Tis true, a bad knee, a tumble and a linesman's unexpected decision about a ball have much to do with victory or defeat but it is most certain that Mademoiselle Lenglen plays a hard, skillful game with a muscular power and brilliant technique that make her almost unbeatable. Yet, whether it is due to her Latin temperament or to natural inclinations, she has decidedly not what we would call sportsmanship."

Munro Wins Belleair Tourney

BELLEAIR, Fla., Feb. 19—(AP)—Jack Munro, Zanesville, Ohio, won the Washington's birthday golf tournament today defeating George J. Morse, of Rutland, Vt., six and five after 18 holes.

NEW HAMPSHIRE LEADS IN WINTER SPORTS MEET

HANOVER, N. H., Feb. 19—(AP)—Four eastern colleges were bunched for the lead in the first annual championships meet of the International Winter Sports Union here after the ski races and skating events had been concluded today in a drizzling rain. New Hampshire stood first with 15 points, followed by Dartmouth with score. Conditions for the ski races were 14, McGill 13 and Williams 11. Loyola had 2 points while Bates was yet to bad on account of rain which caused the cancellation of one of the ski proficiency events.

The meet will be concluded tomorrow with snow shoe and ski cross country races and a ski jumping contest.

The summaries:

One mile ski race—Won by Michaelson, New Hampshire; second, Proctor, Dartmouth; third, Baubien, Loyola; fourth, Rutherford, McGill. Time 2 minutes, 35 2-10 seconds.

Ski proficiency test—Won by Proctor, Dartmouth; second, Rutherford, McGill; third, Michaelson, New Hampshire; fourth, Maxwell, McGill.

Two mile skating race—Won by Cunningham, Williams; second, Teteley, New Hampshire; third, Wendell, New Hampshire; fourth, Laffey, Dartmouth. Time 7 minutes 3 seconds.

440 yard skating dash—Won by Cunningham, Williams; second, Laffey, Dartmouth; third, Wendell, New Hampshire; fourth, Teteley, New Hampshire. Time 45 seconds.

SANDY PATCH WINS HIS FOURTH STRAIGHT VICTORY

NEW YORK, Feb. 19—(AP)—Sandy Paten, owned by J. C. Ellis, gained his fourth victory in as many starts at Miami today by taking the Palmetto, an allowance race at 5 1-2 furlongs in 1:05 4-5. Dudley closed strongly for the place and Postillion defeated Coronation by a stride for third.

The Ocklawaha at Miami, a mile and 70 yards, went to Gay Comet, in 1:43 4-5 with Mount Beacon and Mission ary following. King's Ransom was left in fourth position.

Uncle Parks registered at New Orleans in a claiming event for three year olds at a mile and 70 yards to pay $50.20 while Skivesdale, in second place, paid only $2.60. Blue Torch was third. The feature fourth was carried by Dondelle, which left six furlongs behind in 1:13 1-5. Cherrycote and Ada Blackjack followed.

Queen Anna Maria showed a wonderful burst of speed to win the 5 1-2 furlongs spring at Tia Juana by six lengths over War Bells and Bryndear. The time was 1:07 on a muddy track.

Rasull captured the mile at Winnwood park Tampa, in 1:57. Dr. Carr took the place from Lady Braxted.

Miss Van Wie Wins Florida Title

WEST PALM BEACH, Fla., Feb. 19—(AP)—Miss Virginia Van Wie, seventeen year old Chicago golfer, today won the women's championship of Florida when she defeated Mrs. Loren Q. White, Cohasset, Mass., 3 and 2. Miss Van Wie was the medalist with a card of 78.

MILLIGAN EVENS UP SCORE WITH ZIVIC BY WINNING VERDICT IN FAST BOUT

NEW YORK, Feb. 19—(AP)—Tommy Milligan, Scotch welterweight, evened his score with Jack Zivic of Pittsburgh in a ten-round match at Madison Square Garden tonight when he was given a judge's verdict after a torrid match.

The fight was a slugging affair with both men bleeding from the nose and mouth and hammering away with both hands.

The decision was of the hairline variety but a majority of the 15,000 fans indicated by applause that Milligan earned the verdict.

Sammy Vogel of New York won a verdict on points over Billy Petrolle of Fargo, N. D., in the first ten rounds event.

Vogel weighed 134 3-4; Petrolle 132 1-2.

The decision for Vogel brought forth a storm of protest which echoed throughout the huge arena for several minutes after the termination of the match.

Vogel, a clever boxer, actually won the greater number of rounds but Petrolle inflicted the greater punishment. Vogel was down for a count of eight in the second round and nine in the tenth round and was on the verge of a knockout when the bell rang but under the rules of the state athletic commission, the winner is determined by the number of rounds won.

Tommy Freeman of Hot Springs, Ark., battled his way to a judges' verdict over Joe Simonich of Butte, Mont., in the second ten-rounder. The men are welterweights.

Freeman clearly outboxed his opponent throughout but Simonich did some damage when he landed. The fight was slow in spots and the crowd called frequently for action. Freeman weighed 150, Simonich 148 1-2.

Johnny Haystack, Binghamton, N. Y., middleweight, fought a draw with Freddy Krebs of Bayonne, N. J., in a four round preliminary. Krebs weighed 162 1-4 while Haystack tipped 161.

Johnny Vacca of Boston won a decision over Davy Abad of Panama in a six-round match. Both boys fought furiously all the way. Vacca weighed 119 1-4, Abad 117 1-4.

TO MATCH BERLENBACH WITH RISKO OR RENAULT

NEW YORK, Feb. 19—(AP)—Matchmaker Jess McMahon of Madison Square Garden sought permission from the state athletic commission today to match Paul Berlenbach, world's light heavyweight champion with either Johnny Risko of Cleveland, O., or Jack Renault, Canadian heavyweight.

Official sanction was withheld until next Tuesday, Chairman Farley said, but he intimated that the permission would be granted. This concession will be made to Berlenbach, it was pointed out, in view of his promise to risk his title against the winner of the Mike McTigue-Jack Delaney fight.

In spite of these preparations for Berlenbach's advent into heavyweight ranks, details for his tour of the fight centers of the country are progressing. Three times this tour has been arranged only to be cancelled because of pending matches here.

Berlenbach's first match will be in Boston, March 10 against Jack Sharkey, if the Boston heavyweight is in shape by that time He will fight in St. Louis, March 22 against any available opponent while at Cleveland, March 26 he will fight Martin Burke of New Orleans, La. He has been booked for March 29 at Memphis, Tenn., and he will fight at New Orleans, La., sometime early in April. His title will not be at stake in any matches booked outside of New York city.

Dan Hickey, Berlenbach's manager, said today that the tour would be made whether matches now pending here are made or not.

"If Paul gets permission to fight either Risko or Renault we will return to New York for that match and then take to the road again," he said.

YALE RELAY SWIMMING TEAM BREAKS THREE RECORDS

NEW HAVEN, Feb. 19—(AP)—Yale's relay team broke three world's records for the 200, 250 and 300-yard events tonight in defeating the Massachusetts Institute of Technology swimming team, 46 to 6 in Carnegie pool, here, but the records are not allowed because Peterson, of the Eli, started illegally. The new time for the 200-yard relay was one minute 35 and 5 seconds, 3-5 of a second under the present world's record held by the Cincinnati Y. M. C. A.

The time for the 250-yard relay lowered Yale's own time of 2 minutes 2 seconds and 2 minutes flat. The 300-yard relay, also disqualified, was completed in 2 minutes and 25 seconds, 3 minutes under the old time. The Eli swimming team holds the intercollegiate recor, for the 200-yard relay and the intercollegiate, and world's record for the 250 and 300-yard relays.

Grover, of the visitors, was the star of the meet, winning both the 50 and 100-yard dashes. Yale won the other first places.

RUTGERS SWIMMERS SET NEW RELAY RECORD

NEW BRUNSWICK, N. J., Feb. 19—(AP)—New eastern collegiate swimming records for the 440-yard swim and relay were established today by members of the Rutgers university team in defeating Swarthmore college 47 to 12.

Don Warner, of Cranford, clipped two seconds from the old record of 4 minutes 38 1-5 seconds for the 440-yard, which he also held.

The former eastern collegiate relay record was 1 minute 42 seconds. It was lowered today to 1 minute 41 and 7-10 seconds.

BOSTON UNIVERSITY BASEBALL SCHEDULE CALLS FOR 14 GAMES

BOSTON, Feb. 19—(AP)—Boston university's baseball schedule for the coming season was announced today as follows:

I.; 8, Boston College; 12, Tufts at Medford; 15, Worcester Polytechnic, at Worcester; 18, New Hampshire university, at Durham, N. H.; 22 Williams at Williamstown.

AMERICAN PLAYER FARES WELL IN CANADIAN TOURNEY

BOSTON, Feb. 19—(AP)—Today's play in the national racquets champions on the courts of the Tennis and Racquets club here reduced the field to eight without any startling overturns.

Winners of the second round were Clarence C. Bell, New York; Hewitt Morgan, New York; Stanley W. Pearson, Philadelphia; Stanley G. Mortimer, New York; Philip Wharton, Boston and A. S. Cassils, Montreal.

Lineups, Gauthier, Yerrington, St. Germain, forwards; Pingree center; Phaneuf, Eccleston, guards; Jarvis and Lamothe subs. For games call 1973-4 any night between 6 and 7.

MISS WILLS SHOWS IMPROVED NET GAME AS SHE WINS TWO VICTORIES

BEAULIEU, France, Feb 19—(AP)—An hour on the tennis courts this afternoon was enough for Helen to advance two stages in the singles of the Beaulieu tournament, thus entering the semi-finals. Without leaving the court she disposed of two opponents with the loss of only a single game, taking advantage of her great superiority to experiment to improve her game.

Two English girls were her victims. Miss Emily Wright went down in two love sets, one of them finished in the unusual time of nine minutes. The American champion then disposed of Mrs. Randolph Lycett, the former Joan Austin, now wife of the British Davis cup player, by the score of 6-0, 6-1.

Miss Wills spent her hour largely in work to improve her overhead game, paying particular attention to volleying. This was especially true of her match with Mrs. Lycett, who is considered one of the best woman players at the net in England. Marked improvement in volleying was evident in the California girl's play. She rushed to the net in true Borotra style and tried to kill the point immediately. She netted a few shots and was passed a few times, but generally her play at the net was markedly better than when she arrived on the Riviera.

Helen also experimented with a new service having a severe twist to the extreme left hand corner of the service line. This service has less speed than her usual first ball, but takes a twisting bounce, causing the opponent to reach to the extreme outside of the forehand, the ball generally being returned into the net or just into the court for a prompt smash to kill. The American girl served not less than six aces against Miss Wright and four against Mrs. Lycett. The point scores of today's matches is as follows:

Miss Wills	5	6	4	4	4	4	—27
Miss Wright	3	4	1	1	0	1	—10
Second set
Miss Wills	3	4	4	4	4	4	—28
Miss Wright	6	2	0	1	2	2	—13
First set
Miss Wills	5	4	4	5	4	4	—26
Mrs. Lycett	3	2	2	3	2	1	—11
Second set
Miss Wills	4	6	5	4	4	4	—31
Mrs. Lycett	2	3	3	2	0	0	—15

The last three games of her match with Mrs. Lycett were played by Miss Wills with a terrific offensive at the net. Experts were puzzled by the sudden change in the California girl's tactics, but she kept her own counsel. After the match, she merely said: "All you gentlemen have been saying that I am weak at net volleying. Then, of course, you must be right. I am trying to improve my playing in this particular weak spot."

Miss Wills will play Miss E. Harvey in the semi-finals of the Beaulieu tournament tomorrow morning. It is considered certain that the English girl will be defeated and that in all probability the American champion will face Mrs. Phyllis Satterthwaite in the finals Sunday morning.

Mrs. Satterthwaite is the only prominent player on the Riviera who has not played against Miss Wills in the present series of tournaments. Although Miss Wills eliminated Mrs. Satterthwaite at the Wimbledon championships in the summer of 1924, it is generally commented that the Englishwoman will give her an opportunity in the present tournament to test her improved game.

Mlle. Lenglen generally defeats Mrs. Satterthwaite with the loss of one or two games. The French champion, who has been absent from the tennis courts since her match with Miss Wills on Tuesday, will return to the game tomorrow afternoon, playing in the women's doubles.

PLAINFIELD DOWNS BROCKTON Y. M. C. A. FIVE IN FAST GAME

(Special to The Bulletin.)

PLAINFIELD, Feb. 19—The Plainfield town team advanced another step toward the New England basketball championship here tonight when it disposed of the Brockton Y. M. H. A., one of the foremost contenders for the title, Plainfield won by a score of 36 to 21. The score does not tell the true story of the game which was far from one-sided and proved to be one of the fastest games of the season. Nate Hurowitz, New England's star forward, was the main menace of the visitors but the Plainfield guards were equal to the occasion and held the star to four baskets.

The Plainfield team played brilliant basketball as the score indicates every man figuring in the scoring for at least six points. Madden at left guard was the scoring demon of the game although his work was to guard Hurowitz. The summary:

ATHLETICS LEAVE FOR SOUTHERN TRAINING CAMPS

PHILADELPHIA, Feb. 19.—(AP)—With a squad of pitchers and catchers acting as advance guard, the Philadelphia Athletics began their annual pilgrimage southward tonight. The party included Mickey Cochrane, catcher, Freddy Heimach, pitcher, Al Simmons and Bing Miller. They will be joined in Baltimore by Ed Rommel, Lefty Groves, Jimmy Fox and Ike Powers.

Several young flingers, who will make a try for the majors this season will take part in the spring training at Fort Myers, Fla.

The Phillies will be but three days behind the Athletics, the first departure for their spring training camp at Bradenton, Fla., being scheduled for Monday.

But few players from either team will start the trip from Philadelphia this year. From now on, however, until the training is on in full swing, players will be leaving from all over the country for the south.

Manager Connie Mack and several trainers accompanied the party of American League players.

KID KAPLAN TO FIGHT AT HARTFORD MAR. 1

NEW YORK, Feb. 19—(AP)—Louis (Kid) Kaplan, of Meriden, Conn, world featherweight champion, and Billy Petrolle, of Fargo, N. D., have been signed to meet in a 12-round match at Hartford, Conn., March 1, according to an announcement by Scotty Monteith, one of Kaplan's managers.

Monteith also announced that Kaplan will oppose Eddie (Kid) Wagner at Philadelphia, March 8.

SPENCE SETS NEW MARK FOR BREAST STROKE

PASSAIC, N. J., Feb. 29—(AP)—Walter Spence, of the Brooklyn Central Y. M. C. A., set a new mark for the 100-meter breast stroke in a 60-foot pool here tonight. Spence's time of 1:15 3-5 was 1 2-5 seconds better than the world mark made by John Farley, of the Illinois A. C., at Chicago, March 6, 1924.

NO DECISION REACHED AT DEMPSEY-WILLS CONFERENCE

RICHMOND, Va., Feb. 19.—(AP)—A conference here today between Floyd Fitzsimmons, promoter of the Dempsey-Wills bout, and Herman Taylor and Bob Gunnis, Philadelphia bidders, failed to produce a decision as to the scene of battle. The discussion, Fitzsimmons declared tonight, did not advance to the question of terms.

"The fight," he said, "will be staged between September 1 and 20 in probably one of five cities."

The promoter expressed a preference for the mid-western the place for the fight, although he said no decision would be possible until he had considered all of the five propositions made to him.

Dempsey arrived this afternoon for an exhibition bout tomorrow night. His wife, Estelle Taylor, was expected to arrive later.

The champion declared his preference for Los Angeles as the scene for the fight, but said his name was on the dotted line and any place Fitzsimmons chose suited him. The promoter apparently leaned toward Chicago in case boxing in that city should be legalized at the polls April 13. He said that definite announcement as to the location would be made by May 1.

KEELEY WAS UNRELIABLE SAYS COMMISSIONER DONOHUE

NEW LONDON, Feb. 19—(AP)—Edward Keeley, suspended by the New York boxing commission, ran out of two bouts in Hartford on February 9, claiming an injury to his arm, State Commissioner Donohue, said tonight. Keeley and John O'Brien, a manager who made bouts for the Bridgeport heavyweight, also banned by the New York body, are under indefinite suspension in Connecticut.

Keeley ran out of matches arranged by the Atlas Athletic club of Hartford, the first being in January. Each time he had been widely advertised by the club, Mr. Donohue said, and to regain favor in Connecticut, the Bridgeport heavyweight must reimburse the Atlas A. C., for all expenses incurred for the two shows. Keeley will also be required to make his reappearance before the Hartford club unless he is released by them.

The commissioner believed that Keely was "unreliable," stating that several stories had been heard about the boxer boasting his own state couldn't produce opponents for him.

SONS OF REST BEAT ACADEMY INDEPENDENTS

The Taftville Sons of Rest defeated the Academy Class at the Y Friday afternoon by the score of 31 to 19. The first half was bitter, the score being deadlocked 8 to 8. Pingree proved to be the star cager with 6 baskets, closely followed by Jackson with 5 baskets and 1 foul.

TINKER'S BRILLIANT PLAYING WINS FOR WINDHAM OVER KILLINGLY HIGH

(Special to The Bulletin.)

WILLIMANTIC, Feb. 19—In a closely fought contest on the local school basketball court Friday night Windham High's quintet piled up 26 points against Killingly's 17 in its second victory over the visiting outfit this season. The first game was played in Killingly and resulted in the score of 22 to 24. The score at the end of the first half in Friday night's classic was 15 to 13 in favor of the Windhamites. Killingly held the game closely until the final two minutes of play when Heller broke loose and scored three baskets in rapid succession breaking the nip and tuck of the battle. Coach Callaghan refrained from starting Capt. Meikle in the game and this coupled with the loss of the services of Eddy Nichols made the aggressive Danielson outfit a good match for Windham. Tinker featured for Windham with four baskets, Brennan led the Killingly players with three baskets.

In the preliminary game the Windham Girls five decisively trounced the girls from Putnam by a one-sided score of 42 to 17.

LEADERS BUNCHED IN QUEBEC DOG DERBY

QUEBEC, Que., Feb. 19—(AP)—The second day's race of the Quebec international dog derby was run today, and so closely bunched together are the five leading teams that the experts are not endeavoring to predict who will be the victor after the third forty-one mile lap is completed tomorrow.

In elapsed time only 18 minutes and 40 seconds separate the first and the fifth leading teams.

One of the most remarkable features of the race today was the demonstration of G. Cheverette, who, driving only four greyhounds, covered the distance in 4 hours, 30 minutes. He increased his one minute lead of yesterday by a full minute and forty seconds.

N. Y. COMMISSION HAS SUSPENDED SEVERAL BOXERS

NEW YORK, Feb. 19—(AP)—Edward Keeley, Bridgeport, Conn., heavyweight, was indefinitely suspended by the state athletic commission today at the request of the Connecticut board. John O'Brien, a manager, was likewise banned indefinitely. Reasons for the requests were not given by the Connecticut officials.

Louis (Kid) Lewis was suspended for 30 days for fouling Bobby Tracey at the Discus A. C., in Jamestown, N. Y., Monday night. Harry Felix of New York, who is scheduled to meet Harry Cook at Buffalo, N. Y., February 22, cancelled the match owing to a strained back and the commission gave him 30 days to get in shape again.

CONN. AGGIES BEAT VERMONT FIVE IN FASTEST GAME OF THE SEASON

(Special to The Bulletin.)

STORRS Feb. 19—In one of the fastest games seen here this year the Connecticut Aggies downed Vermont University in basketball by a 47 to 41 score, but only after an extra five minute period had been played. It was a game in which the final outcome was in doubt until the last whistle with the lead alternating between the contesting fives.

Coach Dole after the contest was over described it as the fastest basketball game that the Aggies five has ever played since he came to Storrs in 1923. Three eastern Connecticut boys, Bitgood and Williams of Danielson and Allard of Putnam all contributed to the Aggie victory.

Connecticut staged an uphill battle in the first half as Vermont took an early lead outplaying the Storrs team in the first minutes of the fray. Twice the score was tie, then after twelve minutes of play the Aggies went into a 13-11 lead on Eddy's basket. Connecticut increased the lead as the half continued and at the end of the second was leading 25 to 18.

Play got underway at a furious pace with the opening of the second half. Connecticut's offense worked smoothly and the Aggies lead was increased until the score read 31 to 25. Vermont rallied with an exhibition of fast and clever basketball, however, and cut down the Aggie lead. They tied the score and finally went ahead. Exactly ten minutes of the last half had been played when a basket by Prentice of Vermont sent his team into a 32 to 31 lead.

Playing speeded up even still more after this, Vermont trying to maintain its advantage and the Aggies trying desperately to come from behind. Then with a three point lead Vermont began to stall in the closing minutes of the game. Eddy of Connecticut intercepted a Vermont pass in the back court, dribbled in and made a basket, cutting the Vermont lead to 36 to 35. Once more Eddy repeated his tactics, this time sending the Storrs team into a 37 to 36 lead. Vermont retaliated a moment later, however, when the Aggies tried to stall. Post intercepting a pass to cage another basket sending Vermont ahead again with a 38 to 37 score. Eddy came back with another basket and once more the Aggies lead this time 39 to 38. Then with but ten seconds left to play Price was fouled by Schofield of Connecticut as he was shooting for the basket. This gave him two free throws and Schofield was sent from the game because it was his fourth personal foul. Price took his place at the foul line and although Hawley armory was packed by one of the largest crowds of the season stillness prevailed as he got ready to shoot. His first shot was true and the score was tied at 39 all. His next shot missed by a hair, however, and with it went Vermont's hope for victory. Time was called ending the regular playing period with the score deadlocked at 39 all.

With the beginning of play in the extra overtime period Price was fouled again but once more his shot missed. A moment later Makofske of Connecticut put his team to the front with a beautiful shot from well outside the foul line. It went clean through the hoop failing to touch the rim. Allard of Connecticut followed with another a moment later and then Eddy connected with one from the floor, followed this with another from the foul line, after which Price made a double decker for Vermont. The game ended with Capt. Makofske scoring from the foul line, bringing the final results to a 47 to 47 count. The summary:

THE SOCIAL CORNER

GOOD TEMPER IS LIKE A SUNNY DAY

SOCIAL CORNER POETRY

Sunset Gates Ajar

Tonight as I sat at my window
When the west was all agleam
With that strange and wonderful splendor
That is fleeting as a dream;
I thought that the hands of the angels,
Had flung open heaven's gateway wide
And I caught a glimpse of the glory
From the hills on the other side.

Is it not a beautiful fancy,
This sunset thought of mine
That the gates of heaven are always
Flung open at day's decline?
That those whose day is ended
Of earthly woes and ills,
May pass to the morning sunshine
That dwells on the heavenly hills.

When for me the Sunset gateway
Shall at days decline enclose
And I pass in through its portals
To that long and sweet repose
I know that I shall remember,
In that city so fair and far
My strange and beautiful fancy
Of the Sunset Gates ajar.

Perhaps while I sat there dreaming
Of the gateway in the west,
Some poor soul went through its portals
To a long and endless rest;
Passed through the sunset gateway
To that city "paved with gold"
Passed into the new life's gladness
To be no longer old.

The All Sufficient Grace

Sufficient for days of doing,
When duties crowd and press,
For hours of strenuous toiling
In the thick of life's storm and stress.
Then it is strength for the labor,
When tasks are hard and long,
When head and hand are weary,
Grace to be strong.

Sufficient for days of walking,
Mid old and commonplace things,
When the spirit longs to be lifted,
Soaring on mighty wings.
Then it is strength to plod onward,
Lacking the vision we crave,
Treading the dusty byways,
Grace to be brave.

Sufficient for days of waiting
When hope is long delayed,
When the heart grows faint with watching,
And the eager feet are stayed.
Then it is strength to be patient,
To rest till we know his will,
Just to be quiet and trusting,
Grace to be still.

LETTERS AS CHRISTMAS PRESENTS

Social Corner Friends: You have had a rest from my chatter for the last few weeks; now I will begin again. First I must thank a Social Corner Member for my pretty calendar which I like very much. Have received a calendar from the same kind friend for three or four years now, and I appreciate the kindness and thought too. At Christmas time one sister suggested that instead of sending so many cards we write a letter to old friends and relatives whom we had not heard from for sometime. I had been thinking along these lines also, and had made a list of old friends whom I had not heard from in years. I just made a grand effort and wrote to eight friends. One of them answered the very next week. A good newsy letter, nearly as good as a visit with her. Another friend spent an hour of Christmas day to write to me. I had not heard from her (except by card) in five or six years. So she could and did write me a good "chatty" letter. Have received an answer to another letter the past week, and expect in due time to hear from the others. Those whom I wrote to are busy people and do not find time to write letters very often, but when they do write the letters are worth reading and waiting for. While I'm on the subject want to say, I certainly do enjoy the letters from Susie when the Times sheets page contains every Tuesday. Jack's Wife likes them too. She saves them all and puts them into her scrap book. Perhaps—years from now—somebody who reads Susie's letters will laugh as each over them as I do.

I do enjoy reading scrap books. I have one which my dear mother made — [illegible] years ago (1880) and when I was small and ailing she would open it for me to look at the pictures and read some of the stories and poems. Years later, when she was ill, blind and sold the farm, she gave me the scrapbook as I was the only one in the family who she thought would care for it. Then I have a book of the same sort which my mother made over 50 years ago, and I have three or four others which I gave away. Of course I value these books very much and I suppose after I am [illegible] some body will have a scrapbook [illegible] of my treasures.

I was glad to read that Free Air is enjoying itself in the south. More than once this winter I have wished I was in Florida. I have always been pleased when we had snow on the ground, everything looked so pretty and clean covered with snow. But I assure you I have seen all the snow I want this time. Had to plough through drifts up to my knees to get to my work in the morning and at night to get home. At the present time I am confined to the house with a "cold" a gentle reminder of the snow storm.

To those who remember the storm of '88 this storm would not be considered much but I am sure the people who were out in this storm of '26 will argue with me that it's bad enough, and we've had enough for this year thank you. I presume the youngsters will have a fine time in the snow when it gets packed sot hey can slide. Everytime I see a crowd of them out sliding I wish I could go out with them.

I have received two velentines from my young friend "in the country." He didn't make them. One he bought and the other "just grew" but I liked both and laughed over one of them too.

I reckon everyone who owns a sleigh will have some old fashioned good times while this snow lasts. It reminds me of one time when I went out sleighing by moonlight—the drifts do not look any different from the level. Well my brother's chum came to give me a sleigh ride. We had intended to go to Bozrah church to a basket supper, but at the last moment heard that the road was so filled with drifts nothing but sleds and oxen could get through, so we went to N—instead. If I remember right the old horse didn't go faster than a dog trot all the way. At Backus hospital corner we got into a drift and we got "upset" the big fur robe slipped out first then I followed it and the driver landed on his feet beside me (but I didn't land on my feet.) Nobody hurt so he pushed the sleigh over onto its runners and we settled ourselves in it and finished our ride. We decided to keep our "spill" a secret for we didn't want to be laughed at. I have laughed over it many times. Oh, you flappers, listen—the driver wore huge, red mittens. I wonder what the girls would say now if a young man took them out riding wearing red mittens?

Think I've told enough so will give some one else space.

ORMANDINE.

FLAG ETIQUETTE

Dear Editor and Social Corner Sisters: As there seems to be so many who do not know flag etiquette I thought I would write just a little about it.

The flag when displayed outdoor should be permitted to fly with the breeze.

It should be hoisted and lowered by hand and should never at any time be allowed to touch the ground.

The flag should not be hoisted before sunrise nor allowed to remain up after sunset. It should not be displayed on stormy days, or left out over night.

The union or blue field should always be at the top of the pole.

The flag is flown at half mast or half staff as a symbol of mourning.

Flag at half-mast should be raised to the top and then lowered to half-mast position.

The flag should always be placed high enough to be above the heads of the people, and should be uppermost in any scheme of decoration.

For indoor decorations, the flag can only be used as a drapery. It cannot be used to cover a bench or table, desk or box or where anything can be set or placed on the flag. When used as an altar cloth, the Bible may be laid on it, nothing more.

It is an unwritten law in the navy that the flag is never to be washed. It it always to be considered immaculate.

There is a lot more but am afraid the editor will think I have taken too much space already.

Yours for Old Glory.

WETONA.

REMEMBERS MR. CADY

Dear Editor and Sisters of Social Corner: Haven't written for so long, feel as though I didn't really belong to the Social Corner, but am going to try to get reinstalled by writing a few lines, and without promises hope to do better in the future.

Am so situated I can attend only a very few of the clubs' meetings, therefore, do not meet many of the sisters, and know them by their real names. But I enjoy the different letters, and wonder where all the writers live and if I ever see them, not knowing they are Corner sisters. By the way, the brothers seem scarce.

Was glad to hear Olga say she liked moving pictures. I have a tendency that way and often go three times a week if weather permits.

Have been looking to see something from Batchelor Maid, in the Corner. Think, someone would take dictation and send in a line from her. Someone thinks of you often.

Think the whole Club No. 4 will be ready for the pincic at Oakland beach, that Twice Twenty is planning. Hope I can be there.

When I was young went to dances where Gurdon Cady prompted. In one square dance, the floor was so slippery that when my partner swung me around I fell down. Mr. Cady saw me and called out "That young man whose lass is on the floor pick her up and swing some more," still keeping time with the music and calling off the different changes so fast it took the attention off my downfall.

Them were good old days.

KATY DID IN FLORIDA

Dear Editor and Social Corner Friends: I have not written for sometime so thought I would get busy. Am wondering if there are any other Social Corner members in Florida. We are at Daytona Beach, came down the last week in November and expect to be here till the first of May.

Foxglove: To bad you could not be down here with your husband. Hope he will soon regain his health.

White Clover: Your card received today. Think I can be with you some next summer.

Practical Polly: Your letter received today. Very glad to hear.

Little Sister: Thanks for the pretty card.

Amy: Sent you a card a few weeks ago. Hope you are feeling better.

This is a beautiful city. From our windows we look out on the Halifax river and hear the boats when they whistle for the bridges to open for them to pass through. There are four drawbridges that we can see from here and have to cross to get to the bathing beach. All are toll bridges.

The weather now is about as warm as our June weather in the north, but we have had lots of rain. The mocking birds are singing and there are so many birds that I do not know the names of.

My letter is getting too long so will ring off. Best wishes for good health and prosperity to the members for the new year from KATY DID.

A GOOD DESSERT

Dear Social Corner Members: Thought I must send just a line to say that the unsigned letter in last Saturday's paper was mine then the sisters to whom I refered will know who was talking to them.

Tafts: Had some of your prize brown bread for dinner. Every one said it was fine. A friend was showing me a new dress the other day. It was like the sample of yours you sent me, only a shade darker.

Now when oranges are cheap here is a good dessert. Peel and cut up in small pieces half a dozen oranges, sprinkle with 3-4 cup of sugar. Put one quart of milk in double boiler and when hot gradually pour in the following mixed smooth with a little cold milk: 3 egg yolks, 1-3 cup sugar, pinch of salt, and 3 tablespoons of corn starch. Cook until thick, stirring well to keep it smooth. When cool pour over the oranges. Make a meringue of the egg whites beaten stiff with a little sugar. Drop by spoonfuls on pudding. Brown in the oven and serve cold.

VALENTINE GREETINGS

Dear Social Corner Editor, Sisters and Friends: A Valentine greeting to you all. I think it time I sent in a letter to the Corner page. I am feeling fairly good now, but don't expect it will last very long for I do not recover from one cold before I have another. But hope I won't get another this winter.

I want to thank the one who sent me the lovely calendar and signed herself A Social Corner Member. I wish I had her address. I would send her a valentine. I wish also to thank those who so kindly inquired for me in the Corner page. It is so good to know that you are not forgotten.

It is over a year since I have had the pleasure of meeting with the club. I would be almost as much of a stranger as if I had never belonged, but there are several members I have a regular correspondence with. Calla Lily wrote me about Club No. 2 changing its headquarters and I hope to meet with them in their new home when the good old summer time comes.

Aunt Sarah: I thank you for your kind thoughts of me and wish I could see you. Your mother has passed on since we met. I don't suppose you come to New London now she is gone but if you ever do I wish you would come and see me. I would like your address if you will be kind enough to send it to me.

Sister Foxglove: I did not know of Mr. Foxglove's illness. Hope he will come home with restored health. You must be very lonesome without him these long winter evenings. I hope you and Whirlwind will come and see me, that I appreciate your sympathy and thank you, and as you have expressed a wish to see me I hope the time will come when we can greet each other with a hearty handshake.

I, too, have attended a good many dances with "All Ready, Mr. Cady" as prompter. He was a very popular man in his time.

I have just received a lovely box of flowers from the florist's. There was no name with it, but it is supposed to be a valentine and that is the first I have received. There are many thanks waiting for the donor. The flowers are lovely and fully appreciated.

Welcome to all the new members and happy greetings to all those who enjoy the Corner page as much as I do.

DON PEDRO (March 23.)

HINT ABOUT BREAD MAKING

Dear Social Corner Sisters, and Brothers, too: Here is a question which makes me curious. How do you thread a needle? I have heard it said that a women pokes the thread into the needle and a man puts the needle on to the thread. My mother was right-handed and so am I, but she held the needle in her right hand while I hold it in my left, now, which is which?

Here is a pointer for some young housekeeper who bakes her bread if there are any such, for most people buy it.

I never have had quite as good bread in winter as in summer, and decided that my oven was too hot when it first began to bake, so I left the oven door wide open, put in a little thermometer, made for an oil stove oven, and kept the temperature down to 200 degrees to start the baking, and gradually let it rise to about 400 and my bread is much better. One is never too old to learn.

Crimson Rambler: I have just finished piecing a log cabin quilt, but the prettiest pattern I have seen is a rising sun.

Delight: I tried your pineapple dessert, and can say it is fine.

Silent Stranger: Why don't you name your town? Perhaps we might be acquainted.

Balsam Fir: Thanks for Christmas greetings.

N. O. T.: Glad you remember that polish. I should have said it was Rising Sun.

SILENT PARTNER, (Dec. 25.)

HOW TO START YOUR PLANTS

Dear Editor and Social Cornerites: As it is a long time since I have written I will now say "present" in answer to the roll call. As it is near time to start plants for summer I will tell you how I have success with mine.

I put a layer of coarse earth or fine gravel for drainage in the bottom of a cigar box then fill within an inch of the top with good garden earth; if too dry water it. Next put in a thin layer of sifted soil. I used an old strainer for a sifter. Smooth the dirt nice and level with a piece of pasteboard or stiff envelope then make little furrows across the box by laying a lead pencil or smooth stick inside and pressing down. Make the rows about an inch apart. Next drop the seed into the furrows and cover with sifted earth. Take a piece of cloth large enough to cover the box and hang over a little. Wet it and draw over the top of the box. It will require wetting at least twice a day until the seeds come up, then discard the cloth and water between the rows. Give all the light you can. I keep them in the boxes until setting out time but of course you will have nicer plants by transplanting to larger boxes. Asters, salvia, verbenas, ageratum, calendula and many others can be started now.

Azile: My petunia is budded and my rose bush has 30 buds and blossoms.

Lilac Lady: Is the sedan already to start?

Auntly No. 1: I hope you are not moving out of town.

Strawberry: That pie recipe sounds good.

Golden Glow: I see you and the pony going by once in awhile.

Mr. Editor: If there are any pins left, I would like one. Thank you.

ROCK MOSS.

PATIENCE WITH CHILDREN

Dear Social Corner Sisters: I don't care to be called a slacker so I will try and write a few lines while my son is having his afternoon nap. He doesn't aprove of my writing letters so I will have to hurry. I surely have my hands full with this child and really wouldn't know what to do with more. I don't think the younger set has the patience that the older people had. Lots of young people haven't the time to bother with their children. But my friends know that isn't the case with me as it is very seldom I go out and if I do my son goes too. We surely are having a terrible day. I am sick of snow. A branch of a tree just broke across the street and was burning so fast I was afraid of a fire as the wind is strong this afternoon and there are so many fires. Well I will have to stop for this time as sonny is waking up and I will have to take him. Hoping all are well and beside the fire today.

Tuny Ann, Alfara and Too Late: It is time you wrote.

PALEFACE.

AN UNFINISHED QUILT

Dear Editor and Social Corner Sisters: First I want to thank some one for the pretty blue bird calendar I have it on my writing table and it was much appreciated. I was pleased to read the Dying Californian. Have wished so many times I had the words for my husband used to sing it and it brought back pleasant memories.

I enjoy all the letters.

The patch work quilts reminded me of by gone days. I was four years old when my mother started me sewing patch work and I well remember how interested I was to see the squares mother would cut out and baste together in the evening. I have the quilt now all ready to be quilted but never has been done yet.

I look at it and can remember so many of the pieces. If children were taught some useful duty now they would be better off.

Delish Deal: Am glad to know you are better.

Pisces: We had a good friendly visit at Twice Twenty's last summer and maybe we will again at Oakland beach.

I am trying your remedy but have not much faith in it. We have plenty of snow. How are all the sisters in E. K.; snowed in and no transportation out?

I take much pleasure in feeding the birds and it is surprising how much they eat. Well we will all be glad I guess when spring comes and can get out once again.

LORETTA.

MAKING BROOMS LAST LONGER

Dear Social Cornerites: Here I am again, too soon, perhaps, but then, you know, one must write when the spirit moves. What busy sisters we have with rug making, quilt piecing and the like. Forty years ago I pieced a beautiful quilt in the log cabin pattern. It was a bouncer, amply long and wide to tuck in on a cold night, but, do you know, that quilt top has never been made up yet, either as a thin covering or a tied comfortable. For years I carried it about with me when I lived in a couple of trunks and now after two score years it is still in a trunk, unwept, unhonored and unsung as one might say. Always I have looked forward to the time when, a finished thing, I might lie beneath it but never yet has there seemed to be a chance to finish it.

Last week I did a quick job on three new brooms—what I call dressing them. First, of course, I gave them a good hot bath to strengthen them and prolong their lives, then I took the lower part of three cast off underdrawers legs, good heavy ones, and pulled over the brooms from the handle end down, allowing the cloth to cover half the broom part. Then I turned under the raw edge and sewed strongly across broom. Then fitted cloth smoothly at top of broom where it meets the handle. They look real neat and will wear much better thus protected as I have learned by experience during the past year.

I am still on the lookout for articles on shut-ins and nurses. After all, I suppose each one of us must work out his or her own salvation as we say. I am learning that a nurse should live just one day at a time, be as good a diplomat as Metternich, do with as little sleep as Napoleon, be as patient as Job, wise as Solomon, gentle as a lamb, strong as a lion and at the right time be blind or deaf or dumb as the particular occasion calls for. How fine it is to realize that whatever our joys or sorrows we are sure to find many in our Corner membership to laugh or weep with us. My sincere sympathy goes out to those who are passing through afflictions.

It is dreary outside today but in two weeks March will be on hand. That cheers me so much. Greetings to all members old and new.

EVELINE BURR.

A GOOD CAKE FILLING

Dear Social Corner Sisters: As I have been writing letters nearly all day guess I will send one to the Corner. This is a dreary day.

Crimson Rambler: I was glad to receive your letter. During these days you are fortunate to have old Dobbin. I heard a man say the other day he thought people ought to take their hats off to the horses. Wonder if you still are making rugs.

Silent Stranger: I hear you had some time getting through the snow.

Kensy and Forget-me-not: Have you been shut in this spell of weather? Next summer when we are all at the beaches we will have forgotten all about this weather.

Some of you speak of a picnic at Oakland beach. I have never been there but hear it is a pretty place but a long ride.

Interested Reader: I thought of you eating hulled corn today.

I do so enjoy the letters from the sisters who are in the south. Hope they write often.

Here is a filling for layer cake we like. Make just a plain frosting of powdered sugar stirred up with hot water, then mix in 1-2 cup of candied orange peel and 1-2 cup raisins that have been run through the food chopper, add a little lemon or orange juice or the extract of either and stir this into the sugar frosting. With this rich filling I give the top layer a good coating of powdered sugar instead of frosting.

I extend sympathy to Deliah Deal in her bereavement.

E. L. M.

PRACTICAL DUST CAP

Dear Corner Sisters: Although it is cold and with plenty of snow at present in, a month's time our thoughts will turn to the spring housecleaning and of course, we will all need dust caps. So I am sending in directions for a pretty one as well as useful. Take a man's handkerchief (preferably with a colored border) turn the right and left sides of handkerchief back 2 1-2 inches. Now stitch 1-2 inch back from fold.

Get 1 1-2 yards of ribbon 1 inch wide to match border, cut in two pieces and draw through to the ends and tie in a bow, the ruffle and bow to come at the ears and the front and back plain. It is very quickly made and easily laundered.

Guess: You have my sympathy in the loss of your mother. Your maiden name and mine were the same, but I do not think we can claim any relation.

Lo: What a large birthday party you are going to have, March 3.

Crimson Rambler: Glad you were pleased with the book. Snowball likes his new home very much and we like him.

Come one and all to the anniversary meeting next month in I. O. O. F. hall and partake of a bountiful dinner.

Yours as ever,

TRUE BLUE.

JOINS THE CORNER

Dear Social Corner Editor: I have attended your Social Corner meetings and enjoyed them very much. So now I am writing a short letter to ask to join your Corner; and longer letters I will write when I am a member. I will also do my share in active parts as all members are expected to do.

I think that club No. 5 is very interesting. I would like to be a member of it. I also feel quite well acquainted with Club No. 5's members and their letters are interesting.

For my pen name I will take

ROSE BUD.

ANOTHER CORNER MEMBER

Dear Editor of the Social Corner: If you still have room in your big Corner I would like to join. I have never been to any of the meetings but I have lots of friends that belong and would like to meet more. I will take for my pen name.

PLEASANT.

(The pen name you selected belongs to another member. If this one doesn't suit you are at liberty to pick some other.—S. C. Editor.)

MAKING RUGS AND OTHER THINGS

Dear Friends of Social Corner: Have been interested in each letter you have sent to the Social Corner page and enjoyed reading all. Have been intending for a long time to "do my bit" as a good Social Corner member should, but couldn't get at it. Can't remember when I wrote last, think it was early in the summer. I enjoyed so many nice rides during the warm weather. My son came every two weeks and took me out. Then I went a number of times with friends. One day my son and family and I all went to Saybrook Point. We stopped at a place near New London where we called on my aunt, (81 years young) and took her with us to Saybrook Point. We all had our lunch near the beach and watched some people who were bathing near us. They were certainly having a fine time (and so were we.) Another day we went to Hammonansset beach near New Haven. That was a wonderful trip and H— beach is a wonderful place; but so noisy. All right for young people or those in good health, but rather nerve racking for elderly or sick people. That night when I crawled upstairs to bed I was so tired I thought I never would get rested if I lived to be a hundred but next day I was O. K. and would have gone for another ride if I had got a chance.

Now that we are having the cold stormy weather I love to think of the places I visited last summer and the many beautiful sights I saw while riding.

Will say to the sisters who have been making quilts and rugs, I have been doing the same. Last spring and summer I pieced four quilts and have two more started. Had to stop as I have used all pieces (friends gave me all they had also.) I began making rugs when cooler weather came. Had been working on the rugs all summer getting them ready, washing and dyeing and then cut them in strips, etc. Had them in the store room upstairs so they were out of the way and the litter was all in one place. I began braiding rags about Thanksgiving time and made three good sized rugs for Christmas gifts, made a large one since which I gave a friend and have made four more for myself. I have enough rags for three or four more but they will all need to be dyed and its too cold to dye now.

Crimson Rambler: Have you ever made any thimble holders and needle books combined, a small crocheted hat with thimble setting into crown of hat? If you have never seen one I will send one to you. I made 70 of them before Christmas and New Year's. I had given one to a friend who works in the mill here and she showed it to some of the women in her department and everyone who saw it, wanted one or more. She asked me if I was willing to take orders for them, (I was delighted to do so) and she sold 50 of them for me. Some of them were sent to England and some east, west, north and south in this country.

Since I have been ill and not able to walk much (for the last four years) I have found it pretty hard to be obliged to sit in my chair and see other people so active but dust at present I am prefectly willing to sit in my nice warm room and look at the beautiful snow, which is in high drifts all around my house and I have no desire to go out in it or plough the drifts as I can see my neighbors all around me doing. I have not been away from the house for a number of weeks. My son came to see me last Sunday and asked if I would go for a ride, but I declined with thanks. I would prefer to wait until warmer weather and there's no snow.

Whirlwind: Your card received and I will answer it soon if I do not freeze or the house does not blow away with me in it. I live on a hill where the wind always blows a gale. Sometimes the house shakes.

N. O. T.: We have heard that the relative whom we spoke about when you were here (I sent you her address later) has "passed on." We do not know when or anything about it only that she is gone.

I want to thank a Social Corner Member for my pretty calendar. Was hoping I would receive one again this year. Have it hanging over my table where I sit and look at it many times a day. It's such a cheery little picture.

Best wishes to all.

JACK'S WIFE.

DONATION AND ANNIVERSARY DAY MARCH 10

Dear Social Corner Members: Good morning one and all. How many got a report of our donation meeting? I did by radio, but I understand the storm kept a lot from getting the report even that way.

They were not the Silent Seven, but the Jolly Seven, and who wouldn't have been to have made the expenses. Congratulations. I know you'd have plenty to eat, but I was wondering what you did for a coffee bag. There was too much static to hear about the coffee.

Just to keep your memory refreshed this is like a story To Be Continued.

Anniversary day, and Donation day are going to be celebrated together on March tenth.

I am glad to say much interest has been shown, as to what could be done with our donations, as long as we couldn't get to meeting. The March meeting will give all a chance to do their bit.

Little Sister: If you are where a phone is call me up some day.

A sister called me the other day, and told me of Samantha's illness, and we are asked to remember her with letters and cards.

Her address is Mrs. W. A. Allen, South Manchester.

NEIGHBOR EVEREADY.

WELL IMPRESSED WITH CORNER

Social Corner Editor: Having been an invited guest at the last Social Corner meeting at the Buckingham Memorial it is with pleasure that I write this letter that I may be numbered among them.

Such a wonderful dinner, as they did serve, everything delicious from the first course to the last. An outsider need go there but once to find the members courteous, efficient cooks, happy and carefree enjoying to the utmost their fellowship together.

Cooperation is what made the day so pleasant and agreeable, everyone helping the other fellow out.

I am planning to attend the next gathering and hoping for a successful year for the Corner.

JANET.

FALLING AND WISDOM

Dear Social Corner Members: I want to thank A Social Corner Member for the cute little calendar with blue birds on it. I do love birds on any thing. Last year I got my first calendar when I was in the hospital. I am glad I am not there again as I am feeling pretty good. I don't like this snow but it makes me think of when I was a kid (I am now) and went to school and was always falling off the sled into the snow, but that wasn't so bad as when I fell down the cellar stairs with a new five pound box of butter. I think one of my knees never got over where I fell on a big rock. I never could seem to keep right side up among rocks and stones.

I don't know how many times I have fallen down stairs but if falls acquire wisdom I ought to be as wise as Solomon by now.

Please can I have a pin, and thank you.

BRAVE.

CLUB NO. 2 CELEBRATES ANNIVERSARY MARCH 3

Dear Social Corner: I mean to get a letter in the Corner page but Wednesdays get by me and that is the day all letters should be sent in for the Saturday paper. It seems I am kept busy all day in the home. I think cooking dinner for 6 p. m. uses up the afternoon one would have to go out calling or shopping. As long as it has to be done and the family carry their lunch I don't see any use of complaining about it, but just do it with a smile and say, "Well, I'm glad I've got them all to do for" which I am. I make anywhere from eight to ten loaves of bread each week. Guess its good bread for they rather have home made than baker's. Ask Wetona if it's good.

Did any one who takes the Bulletin wake up any morning especially on the stormy mornings with sleet, snow and cold winds and think of our brave boys delivering the paper to each door? I did and on going to the door my paper was put in between door casing and knob up out of the snow. To me that is worth more than the 12 cents a week the paper costs. My paper boy never has to ring my bell. He knows just where to look for his paper money and what does he find? Why a few cents extra every week for himself. Always 15 cents. Its not much but its little ip for kindness. I find it pays in return on delivery. We wouldn't go to a restaurant or hotel for a dinner without slipping ten per cent of the price of our bill under the plate, which they expect. So why not be good to our paper boy who gets up between 4 and 5 o'clock to get our paper here at the door, which my paper is, at 6 or 6.05 every morning.

Deliah Deal: My sympathy in the loss of your dear husband. I trust you are feeling better. I must have missed your last letter in the Corner as I did not see it.

Silver Locks: You asked sometime ago about the graduation song of our sons and B. H. S. class of 1913. Perhaps some graduate may see this who has the words and will send it to the editor to print for us all. If not try an phone Principal Frederick Newton of Nathan Hale school New London. He was principal at the time. I never went to Gurdon Cady's dancing class but used to go to dances in Grand Army hall (where the new bellas building is) and he used to prompt. He was a relation I believe of our Cady of Club No. 2.

Strawberry: Don't hurry, any time for the address will do. Yes, hope you can get out for March 3rd meeting in I. O. O. F. hall. It's the anniversary of the Bulletin Social Corner page, and we expect something good and a specially prepared dinner. My helpers are coming at 9 a. m. As we look for those visitors who are planning to come to us we want to be ready with good things to eat as we usually have plenty.

What a nice big crowd at the last meeting! I told Nellie Bly, our tables must be added to, to set them all at once.

Chocolate, and all the sick ones, I hope you will be well so as to attend the March meeting.

Chelsea: How are you and your shut in? Hope to see you and triplets at our next meeting.

Old Glory: Hope you will be out.

Jennie: I'll write you soon. Come and see us.

Whildwind; Glad you have reached the M. E. C. station. Guess there are quite a few Pythians in the Social Corner. Isn't it a wonderful order?

Dom Pedro: I told a Social Corner sister to call on you. Hope she has. I'll ask her in March if she did. You will like her very much. Hope you are better.

Balsam Fir: Who owes the letter?

Uncle Charles: Why so quiet? Let the Lion roar in our Corner. Then N. O. T. makes up and there is something doing.

I'm just waiting for the Rev. D's announcement of arrival at Grace church. Won't everybody be glad to see him. As a Rev. he is a wonder.

Guess I'll stop and give three cheers for our anniversary page and long may it continue as a help and cheery Corner.

CALLA LILY (Club No. 2.)

STAINS IN WOOD

Dear Social Corner Friends: Here are a few ways of removing stains in wood.

When ink is spilled on a mahogany table, it should be removed as quickly as possible. Soak it up with blotting paper, then rub the stain with salt and vinegar. This applies to all kinds of wood.

Stains on the plain wood of kitchen tables and sink boards frequently yield to the ordinary methods of cleaning but special treatment is sometimes required.

If a large quantity of grease is spilled, pour cold water on it. This causes it to harden and prevents it from sinking into the wood. It may then be scraped off with a blunt knife and the board sprinkled with sand and scrubbed with hot water and soap. When rinsed and dried, there will generally be no stain left.

An old grease stain should be left covered for twenty four hours with a paste made of fuller's earth and water, and then scrubbed using scrubbing paste.

A tar stain will be softened by being covered with lard; then it may be rubbed with turpentine and thus removed.

Old ink stains may be removed by rubbing with a pad dipped into salts of lemon dissolved in boiling water.

Rubbing with turpentine will generally remove paint stains.

To remove an old enamel stain, chip off the incrusted part with a blunt tool and treat with turpentine what remains.

Those annoying testimonies to the careless placing of hot dishes on a dining room table may be removed by rubbing the stained part with linseed oil and a little pure alcohol.

THE OLD TIME FAVORITES

Dear Social Corner Friends: It has been a long, long time since I have written so I dare say have long since been forgotten but there have been so many nice poems sent in I have enjoyed so much, as well as all the letters, I thought I would like to send in a favorite of mine, Sunset Gates Ajar.

I would also like to tell the sisters who would like all the old time favorite stories and verses in "book form" they have been published in two volumes and can be procured from any stationer. The titles are Heart Throbs and More Heart Throbs. I don't know how many sets I have given away to those I thought would appreciate them.

The price is 75c per copy, $1.50 for the two books.

Airy: Ever since I received my pretty card from you I have racked my brain to think who you could be and have asked a great many people. Are you my friend Mrs. M. in Hamilton avenue? Thanks for the card and please tell me if I am anywhere near correct in my guess.

Best wishes to all.

HORTENSE.

Many a man has lost a lot of money through the hole in the top of his pocket.

THE SIGN PISCES

Dear Editor and Members Social Corner: We are now leaving sign Aquarius and entering the sign Pisces. (The Fishes) which is the 12th sign of the zodiac and the negative pole of the water trinity. Pisces begins February 18 and ends March 20th each year. Pisces rules the feet of humankind and governs females in the home. The tribe is Naphtali, meaning "wrestlings" and aptly describes those born in Pisces for they have anxious, life-long fights with their own faults and outer circumstances. The planet is Neptune and the gem amethyst. May and September are the favorable months of the year. Wednesday is the important day of the week. From Aug. 5 to 12th; and from Nov. 12th to 20th are most fortunate weeks of the year for Pisces people.

Now that the quilt and rug making is all finished and the thoughts turn toward spring and its possibilities, how many are planning to raise poultry? "In the spring a young man's fancy fondly turns to thoughts of love," so we have St. Valentines day. But we who are older and wiser (?) begin to figure out how to make two grasses grow where only one grew before; also how to get two eggs at the expense of one (double-yolked ones, you know.) I reckon a "lay" called—A Venture in Poultry, which I hope will please you and also prove instructive when it can be printed. All my plants froze this winter as usual, so I would like the sisters to save me a slip from their plants for my Social Corner flower garden this year.

Geraldine: The begonia you gave me is at the home of a neighbor of mine to save its life.

Aunt Jerusha: I gave away many slips from the ones you sent me last year, thereby giving joy to other plant lovers.

So glad to see such interesting letters in our Social Corner. Keep up the good work.

Some sister suggested that for entertainment at the Social Corner meetings the members whose birthdays occurred in the month provide the program. The following suggestion may be of aid as a spicer for a party:

Ask all those whose birthdays come in January to group themselves in one corner, those with February birthdays in another place and so on. After each month is separate appoint a leader in each group, and then give them five minutes to prepare a stunt or entertainment. It is great fun to see the variety of stunts they will select, and it gives every one a chance to take part, and get acquainted.

Kind thoughts to all from

ARIES (April 13.)

MAKING OVER HIGH SHOES

Dear Social Corner Members: Did I hear some one say what shall I do with those old high shoes? In this days of oxfords and strap slippers most people have one or two pairs kicking around. Anyway, I'll tell you what I did with mine. I found I had two pairs of laced high shoes, one pair practically new and these I put back in the closet. The other pair was too good to throw away, yet I knew of no one who would be glad of them. With heavy shears I cut the uppers off, close to the stitching around the vamp, continuing around the sides and heels. Then they looked quite like pumps but I found they slipped as the heels didn't fit tight as a pump does. I cut two pieces of 5-8 inch black elastic 6 1-2 inches long and two pieces 3 1-2 inches long.

I measured from the seam in back of heel 2 3-4 inches each way and marked the measurements. Using the shorter pieces of elastic I slipped one piece inside of shoe, at a slight slant at the marking and sewed with strong thread through the original stitching of the shoe. Then sewed the other end of elastic in the same way to opposite side of shoe and repeated for other shoe. The 3 1-2 inch elastics I sewed together the same as garters.

When the shoes are on my feet I slip the garters over the shoe and instep and up under the heel and they look quite like two strap slippers. I gave them a good blacking and as the heels and soles are all good I'll get much wear from them and they are really quite good looking.

The snow seems to be slowly going and some say winter's back bone is broken. I do hope we have our winter now and get it over with and not have such cold days when it should be springlike. I've seen four blue birds in my yard, but that doesn't make it springtime.

My sympathy goes out to those who have lost dear ones and to the sick and shut ins.

ANOTHER CORNER MEMBER

Dear Editor: Wonder if I could step in your Social Corner. I read it so much that I just had to write. Haven't anything to write about but here's a little bit for it:

S is for social and it surely is
O for our Corner and it's sure full of biz.
C for comfort in reading and take I do

I for idle I know it fits none of you
A for ambition; every one of them are
L for love and loyality proven so far
C for Cornerite, a name that fits all of you
O for outsiders, they seem welcome too.
R for remembrance for those who troubles must bear
N for no one forgotten in sickness or care
E for eat at their suppers will fill any
R for rah rah rah for that dear Social Corner.

WANTS DIRECTIONS FOR KNITTING MITTENS

Dear Sisters and Brothers: I was glad to know that Marigold liked my way of making johnny cakes. Here is a good recipe:

Apple Sauce Cake: 1 cup sugar, 1-2 cup butter creamed together, 1 egg well beaten, 1 tablespoon molasses, 1 teaspoon clove, 1 teaspoon cinnamon, 1 teaspoon nutmeg, 3-4 cup raisins, 1 cup apple sauce, 1 teaspoon soda, 1 salt, 2 cups flour. Bake in a slow oven one hour.

I have not forgotten Twice Twenty's kindness in sending me her direction for making a baby bonnet. Now will Grandma of Twin Oak Cottage kindly send in the directions she has for knitting mittens for her small grandchildren and accept my thanks in advance.

HAPPY GO LUCKY

PUZZLES, BOOKS AND APPLES

Dear Social Corner: Before I go any further I must thank the editor for my yellow slip which was indeed a surprise not being aware that I had written anything of special value. Not having spent it yet I can't tell, like Silver Locks, what I did with it. I shall not need to buy a pocket dictionary as I have had one for a good while but never used it much till the last year and now it is beginning to show signs of wear.

Silver Locks: I agree with you on the subject of puzzles. My husband and I are what you might call puzzle fans and seize eagerly on every one we can find and wish the Bulletin had one every day. They brighten up our ideas and refresh our memories and we find words that we never knew existed (and some that we say never ought to exist.) Some of the hard ones need

POETRY

The Water-Mill

Listen to the Water-Mill,
Through the live-long day;
How the clicking of the wheel
Wears the hours away.
Languidly the autumn wind
Stirs the withered leaves;
On the field the reapers sing,
Binding up the sheaves;
And a proverb haunts my mind,
As a spell is cast—
"The mill will never grind
With the water that is past."

Summer winds revive no more
Leaves strewn o'er earth and main,
The sickle never more shall reap
The yellow garnered grain;
And the rippling stream flows on,
Tranquil, deep and still;
Never gliding back again
To the Water-Mill;
Truly speaks the proverb old,
With a meaning vast;
"The mill will never grind
With the water that is past."

Take the lesson to thyself,
Loving heart and true;
Golden years are fleeting by,
Youth is passing too
Learn to make the most of life,
Lose no happy day!
Time will ne'er return again
Sweet chances thrown away.
Leave no tender word unsaid—
But love while love shall last:
"The mill will never grind
With the water that is past."

Work, while yet the sun does shine,
Men of strength and will!
Never does the streamlet glide
Useless by the mill.
Wait not till tomorrow's sun
Beams brightly on thy way;
All that thou canst call thine own,
Lies in this word: "Today!"
Power, intellect and health
Will not always last:
"The mill will never grind
With the water that is past."

Oh! the wasted hours of life
That have swiftly drifted by!
Oh! the good we might have done!
Gone, lost without a sigh!
Love that we might once have saved
By a single kindly word!
Thoughts conceived, but ne'er expressed,
Perishing unpenned, unheard!
Take the proverb to thy soul!
Take and clasp it fast:
"The mill will never grind
With the water that is past."

Oh, love thy God and fellow man,
Thyself consider last.
For come it will when thou must scan
Dark errors of the past.
And when the flight of life is o'er.
And earth recedes from view,
And heaven in all its glory shines,
Aided the good the pure, the true—
Then you will see more clearly
The proverb deep and vast:
"The mill will never grind
With the water that is past."
Sarah Doudney.

To Sleep

Sweet-wooded way in life, forgetful Sleep!
Dim, drowsy realm where restful shadows fall,
And where the world's glare enters not at all,
Or in soft glimmer making rest more deep!
Where sound comes out, or else like brooks that keep—
The world's noise out, as by a slumberous wall
Of gentlest murmur; where still whispers call
To sunniteless gladness those that waking weep;
Beneath the dense veil of thy stirless leaves,
Where no air is except the calm of space,
Vexed souls of men have grateful widowhood
Of restless sense; there thoughts are bound in sheaves
By viewless hands as silent as the place:
And man, unsinning, finds all nature good.
—Maybury Fleming.

HUMOR OF THE DAY

Olivia—"He is a Brown man."
Felicia—"I just love these out-of-door people."—Cornell Widow.

"I have a relative in some town in France."
"Nice?"
"No. I think it's a nephew."—University of Oklahoma Whirlwind.

Secretary—A man was just in here to see you.
Boss—Was he tall or short?
"Both. He was tall, and he wanted to borrow $10."—Hamilton Royal Gaboon.

Bobbie: Grandma, which is the right side of you? Mother said if I'm a good boy and keep on the right side of you, you might take me down to Smith's hardware store to buy roller skates.—Good Hardware.

The Philistine and the Poet together viewed the advent of dawn.
"Ah," cried the Philistine, "it is the beginning of day."
"Alas," the Poet sighed, "it is the end of night."—Punch.

"What's Helen doing?"
"Making a shrimp salad."
"I didnt know we had any shrimp in the house."
"We haven't, but there's one going to call on her this evening."—Boston Transcript.

"I am speaking," said an especially long-winded orator, "for the benefit of posterity."
"Well, take your time," said an irritated listener, "if you keep on much longer your audience will be here."—Phillips Academy Mirror.

"After two years in medical college my son now says he doesn't wish to be a doctor."
"How is he going to earn a living?"
"Oh, he has learned to play the saxophone and already has more engagements than he can fill."—Louisville Courier-Journal.

KALEIDOSCOPE

Buenos Aires was established in 1535.

The blade of a plow directed by George Collier, of Washington, N. J., lifted an earthenware pot from its century-old sanctuary and hurled it on the furrow ridge. Collier picked it up to throw it on a pile of stones. The cover came off and a stream of colonial coins spilled out. The dates ran from between 1732 and 1766.

When Mrs. Raymond Adams found a hard object in a chicken's gizzard at Gloucester City, N. J., she said it was a diamond, and her family laughed at her. Their opinion was that it was only glass. Mr. Adams took the stone to a jeweler, who said it was a perfect diamond, worth about $80. He was ordered to set the gem in a ring.

A man calling himself Earl Jackson appealed to the congregation of a Wichita (Kans.) church to pray for his deliverance from evil. After his confession of sin and repentance had brought tears to the eyes of many and a purse of $25 had been taken up for him, while he told of being an orphan and wandering from place to place, and otherwise held the attention of the worshipers, his partner on the outside looted all the motor cars parked along the street by members of the congregation.

The Australian output of singers has been unusually large during the last half-century. Melba was the first whose patriotism caused her to assert herself as an Australian, and Amy Sherwin and Ada Crossley were other fine singers who identified themselves with the country of their birth, much to its advantage. Lately the tide of incoming artists has swelled high. The fact that the British National Opera Company recently included from Australia and New Zealand, Rosina Buckman, Florence Austral, Gertrude Johnson, Elsie Treweek, Clara Serena, Fred Collier, Browning Mummery and some others, says an English critic, raises the question whether there is any reason to hope that the British race in Australia is likely some day to rival Italy as a voice producer.

ECHOES FROM THE LODGE ROOMS

MOOSEHEART LEGION

A very successful whist given by the Women of the Mooseheart Legion was held at the home of Mrs. H. Retkovske at 276 Boswell avenue Thursday evening. Five tables were in play. During the evening the players were entertained by piano selections by Mrs. George Geopfert. The first ladies prize was awarded to Mrs. H. Mason, the second to Mrs. Agnes Hastedt and the consolation went to Mrs. Irene Burns. The first gentlemen's prize went to Rienholdt Thoma, second to Charles Ladd and the consolation to Mrs. Grace Walz. A buffet lunch was served by the hostess Mrs. Herman Retkovske assisted by her two daughters, the Misses Anna and Frieda Retkovske. Following the whist play vocal and piano selections were given during the social session.

CATHOLIC LADIES OF COLUMBUS

Mercier assembly, No. 13, held a meeting in their rooms Tuesday evening. Miss Elinore Donovan presided. After the business meeting a social time followed. The Musical club assisted by Miss Minnie Mingo furnished a very pleasurable entertainment. Refreshments were served and a general good time was enjoyed.

The committee of the pre-lenten party express their thanks to the following for courtesies extended during their recent card party: Jack's Sport Shop, Connecticut Council of Catholic Women, Catholic Women's club and Ladies' Auxiliary of A. O. H.

MACCABEES

Assets of $26,961,589 are shown by The Maccabees in the financial statement of December 31, 1925, according to a recent communication received by local members of the order from A. W. Frye, supreme commander.

A report of the year's activities issued by Mr. Frye from the association's headquarters shows an increase in assets of $4,012,016 during the past year. 22,562 new members were admitted in 1925 and $27,948,000 insurance written. $193,344,000 insurance is in force and $159,326,000 has been paid to the members in benefits since organization in 1878.

The Maccabees, which is essentially a home protecting organization, advanced $5,279,968 in mortgage loans to assist in the erection of homes last year, Mr. Frye states. A still larger sum will be available for this purpose in 1926 and the society's policy of investing its reserve funds to help the man of moderate means to own his own home will be continued. $8,053,033, or approximately one third of The Maccabees' reserves are now invested in that way.

The Maccabees have nearly 200,000 members and lodges in every state and in Canada. On January 1 of next year the international headquarters will be moved into the new Maccabees Building which is being erected in Detroit at a cost of $2,500,000.

WOMAN'S BENEFIT ASSOCIATION

The Women's Benefit association held a social Wednesday evening in Buckingham Memorial for the members and their friends. A short meeting was held, after which whist and pinochle were played. The winners at pinochle were: Ladies first Mrs. H. Lapre; consolation Mrs. Hollisay. Gentlemen first, Mr. Conatay, Mrs. Eckstein consolation. In whist, ladies first, Mrs. Eckstein; consolation, Genevieve Wiese; gentlemen first, Gerald Burk; consolation, George Lobarge. Refreshments of sandwiches, cake and coffee were served by the committee. Red roses were given the ladies and pink roses to gents as favors. The next meeting night of the review will be given over to a public whist.

ODD LADIES, M. U.

The regular meeting of Loyal Victory lodge, No. 4, was held Thursday evening in Steiner hall with N. G. Mary Greenhalgh presiding for the business meeting, which transacted routine business and was followed by whist. Those to take the prizes were the following: Ladies, first, Irene Wholey; second, Mrs. Unsworth; consolation, Edna Krodel; gentlemen, first, Edna Pidoell, second, Frank Hargreaves; consolation, Warren Andrews.

PATRONS OF HUSBANDRY

A programme that has been anticipated with much interest by the members of Norwich grange, No. 172, will be carried out at its meeting next week when an old folks concert will be given at the lecturer's hour. The programme is in charge of Mrs. John E. Fanning who has enlisted a prominent array of the talent in the grange to assist in the programme.

The February meeting of the New London county Pomona grange was held at Mystic Thursday as guests of Mystic grange, No. 171. Patrons of Husbandry. The meeting was called to order by Pomona Master M. H. Bartlett of Norwich, and after routine business a class of 48 candidates were received into the Pomona or fifth degree.

Shortly after 12:30 o'clock a recess was declared for dinner, which was served in Odd Fellows' hall to about 175 visitors. The committee in charge was Mrs. Joseph Desley, Mrs. S. J. Austin, Mrs. F. W. Pollard, assisted by a score of waitresses.

At 2 o'clock the meeting reconvened and was thrown open to fourth degree members and invited guests.

The program opened with community singing led by A. T. Brundage, state club leaders of the boys and girls clubs.

Mrs. L. P. MacLellan and Miss Delia Williams rendered Poet and Peasant, after which Past Worthy Master J. W. Pollard extended a welcome to the Pomona.

The principal speaker of the afternoon was the Rev. George B. Gilbert of Middletown, widely known as the Pastoral Parson of Rural New Yorker fame. Mr. Gilbert's subject was Happy Hillsides of Old New England and in a humorous vein and withal a serious strain to it, told of some of his experiences in keeping alive in the back country the spirit of religion. He spoke of the necessity of making farm life attractive to the young people and thus stop the exodus to the cities which has reached an appalling total of two million people a year and that it was high time New England looked to her laurels as he expressed it, and produced more of her necessities, not relying upon the rest of the country for everything that she used.

A one-act play, The Train to Mauro, was presented by Mrs. Elery Burdick, Miss Evelyn Burdick and Mrs. Margaret Morgan of Mystic grange.

A. T. Brundage of Connecticut Agricultural college spoke on Our Most Important Farm Crop—the Boys and Girls. Mr. Brundage told in an interesting manner what was being done and had already been accomplished for the young people in rural communities and of the need of still further efforts to keep up the interest in rural life by forming clubs for boys and girls and giving them an objective to strive for.

JUNIOR AMERICAN MECHANICS

Buckingham council, No. 14, held the regular meeting Wednesday evening, at Cadillac hall, with Councilor George Faulkner presiding. Seven applications for membership were received and several committees were appointed. The building committee met and acted upon several important subjects.

Tuesday evening February 23, the degree team is to initiate a large class of candidates at Noank. There is to be a bus leave Buckingham Memorial at 7 o'clock for the degree team and members desiring to make the trip.

Noank and New London councils held the first match of the bowling league, New London winning by a margin of 89 pins.

The Noank bowler's met the Norwich team Thursday evening. There are to be six games in the tournament, the team having the highest total pinfall winning.

EAGLES

Norwich Aerie, No. 867, held its regular meeting Monday evening with Worthy President George Nadolny presiding. The class initiation committee for the class of Feb. 27 reported that every thing is in readiness, and promised a surprise in the line of entertainment for that evening. On March 1 the aerie will have an open meeting for the public and a smoker. The principal speaker on this occasion will be Judge John O'Donnell from Kansas city who represents the organization Department; also Past State President William F. Kelly of Naugatuck and State President Foley will be present as speakers.

GROTTO

Nemrod Grotto has set Friday, March 19, as the date for its next ceremonial and plans for making this event a big success were discussed at the regular Grotto meeting Monday evening with Monarch Edmund Hindle presiding.

It was announced also that the recent whist and dance held by the Grotto was so well received and popular with the members and their friends that the committee is to make plans for another.

DAUGHTERS OF AMERICA

Lady Buckingham, Council No. 14, held its regular meeting Thursday evening, which was opened in regular form with Councilor Katherine Blanchard in the chair. The supper committee have plans completed for a supper Saturday night. The degree team spent the evening rehearsing as there is a class of candidates to be initiated in March.

REBEKAHS.

Hope Rebekah lodge, No. 21, held its regular meeting on Wednesday evening in Odd Fellows' hall, Mrs. Mabel Wheeler, noble grand, presiding. The following were elected delegates to the Rebekah state assembly, which will be held this year in Stamford: First delegate, Mrs. Mary Adams; second, Mrs. Ella Stapleton; third, Mrs. Bertha Collins; fourth, Mrs. Minnie Amburn. At the next meeting of the lodge, March 3, a class will be initiated. At the close of the meeting a masquerade dance was held which was well attended, Swahn's orchestra furnished the music. The dance was in charge of the entertainment committee, Mrs. Ivy Peckham, chairman.

KNIGHTS OF COLUMBUS

The last meeting of White Cross council, No. 18, proved one of the most interesting and enjoyable in the history of the council, for on that evening the chaplain, Rev. John J. Reilly, held the interest of all with an illustrated lecture on "The Mass." With his usual marked ability to imbue any subject with an appeal and interest, Fr. Reilly only added further lustre to his fame, by his treatment of this subject which to the average lay-man at first thought might seem incredible. The many who had the pleasure of hearing this talk will attest to the fact that the main ceremony of the Catholic church with all its beauty, dignity, and reverence was brought home to them in a way never before attained and all look forward to further exposition of the matter along similar lines at subsequent meetings.

Meetings are in progress weekly of the joint committee from Mercier assembly, Ladies of Columbus, and White Cross council, Knights of Columbus having in charge the production of a dramatic offering during the post Lenten season. Matters are still in formative stage but the keen interest displayed and the surprising wealth of available material has inspired the committee to unusual hopes and expectations of its success. The various sub-committees having in charge the details of the production are now being formed and will be announced shortly.

Many Cases of Grippe Reported in Norwich

Local People Urged to Use Vigorous Measures to Combat Further Spread of Deep Grippy Colds.

PNEUMONIA CHIEF DANGER

Grippe Attacks Weaken Body's Resistance to Germs of Pneumonia—All Colds Should be Treated Promptly.

Deep grippy colds have been unusually prevalent here this winter. The situation is fairly general throughout the States. In some sections these colds are called "influenza," but the majority of health officers report that they are much milder than the original epidemic and resemble more closely the old-fashioned la grippe. They are usually accompanied by a headache or achy feeling over the body, "running of the nose," sneezing and frequently by gastric and intestinal complications such as hiccoughs, nausea, diarrhea, etc.

Colds are too often neglected until they have lowered the vitality sufficiently to permit the lurking germs, which cause pneumonia, bronchitis and influenza to attack the body.

Don't Take Chances

The only safe plan is to attack a cold right at the beginning. A hot foot bath, a laxative, a sweat and a vigorous application of Vicks Vapo-Rub at bedtime over throat and chest will often break up a cold over night.

For hours after Vicks is applied the vapors of camphor, menthol, eucalyptus, thyme and turpentine, released as vapors by the body heat, are inhaled directly into the infected air passages. At the same time it warms and stimulates the skin like a poultice, 'drawing out" the soreness and pain.

It is an obstinate cold indeed that can resist this direct, double action.

Vicks Vapor Steam

If the air passages are badly stopped up, try the "teakettle and tent" treatment. This method—fully explained in the directions—consists, briefly, of vaporizing Vicks in a teakettle and arranging a newspaper "tent" over the patient's head so that the combined warm steam and medicated vapors can be inhaled.

Mothers especially appreciate Vicks for the frequent colds of children, as it can be used freely and often, without disturbing the digestion—you "just rub it on." Over 23 millions jars are used yearly.

THIS IS DOLLAR DAY TODAY

Our big advertisement in Friday's Bulletin demonstrates that the Boston Store is offering you bargains which are unusual, even for this big event.

Dollar Day is the day, of all the days in the year, that such prices are offered to the public.

IN ADDITION TO THE ADVERTISED BARGAINS

Are hundreds of lots of merchandise—seasonable merchandise—the prices of which have been cut to the lowest point. These are prominently displayed upon our counters and will have the attention of every thrifty woman.

DOLLAR DAY IS THE BIG DAY OF THE YEAR. DON'T MISS IT!

EAGLEVILLE

Mrs. Henry Richardson is seriously ill at the home of Mr. and Mrs. John Richardson in South Willington.

E. M. Chadwick of Storrs spent Wednesday with Mr. and Mrs. James Green.

Mrs. Myra Medbery and son, Lewis visited Miss Esther Medbery in Willimantic Tuesday.

Mr. and Mrs. B. M. Loomis of Hartford were week end guests of Mrs. H. F. Thompson.

Mrs. George Eaton is a patient at St. Joseph's hospital, Willimantic, where she underwent a minor operation Monday.

The entertainment which was to be held Friday night under the auspices of the Young Men's S. S. class has been postponed until a later date on account of so much sickness in the community.

Mr. and Mrs. Wm. Converse entertained friends from Somers on Sunday.

WAUREGAN

The teachers and officers of the Wauregan Congregational church held a very enjoyable meeting, Wednesday evening, in the church hall. The committee in charge comprised Mrs. Johnson and Mrs. Robinson.

The mild weather of the past few days has done much to make the roads in this section better for travelling.

Naghi de Gharheozlon, son of the former Persian minister to the United States, and Miss Kathryn Ladd of Washington got a marriage license in Baltimore Tuesday.

BURGESS BEDTIME STORIES

Mocker Has Fun

To fool your neighbors isn't right,
And it, of course, is impolite.
—Old Mother Nature.

Mocker the Mocking Bird was having a lot of fun. First, he had fooled Peter Rabbit by imitating Welcome Robin's spring call. It had brought Peter hurrying up to find Welcome Robin. Then Mocker had fooled Bowser the Hound by imitating the special whistle with which Farmer Brown's Boy called Bowser to go afield. Poor Bowser! He was upset. Yes, sir, he was upset. He was so puzzled that he had sneaked off out of sight in his little house. He felt that he was being made fun of, but he didn't know who was doing it. As a matter of fact, he thought his master was playing a trick on him, and it hurt his feelings. It did so.

Mocker tried that whistle once more, but Bowser didn't come out of his little house. Then Mocker looked around to see who else he could play a trick on. While he was looking Mrs. Brown came out of the house and went over to the henyard with some scraps. She clucked to the hens and the hens all came racing out of the henhouse, each one trying to get there first. You see, they were very greedy. Mrs. Brown went back into the house. The hens finished up all the scraps. Really there were not enough to go around. Finally some of them went back into the henhouse and the others huddled together in a warm corner where the sun would reach them.

Mocker sat watching them for quite a while. Finally he flew over to one of the corner posts of the henyard nearest the place where Mrs. Brown had thrown the scraps. Mocker began to cluck. It sounded just like the cluck of Mrs. Brown. You should have seen those hens! Out of the henhouse as fast as their legs would carry them with their wings half spread they raced. The same thing happened with the hens huddled in the corner. They rushed and crowded and shoved each other, and ran about in the craziest fashion, trying to find something to eat.

Mocker nearly choked. He did so, he nearly choked trying to swallow his laughter. What silly things those hens were! This was great fun. He kept quiet until the hens had gone back and had stopped talking about it. Then, when they were all quiet, he did the same thing over again.

This time the hens became very indignant. They were a noisy lot, those hens. Each seemed to think that her neighbor had been greedy and had gobbled up all the food. They were quite out of sorts to judge by their voices. They made so much fuss about it that Mrs. Brown came to the door to see what the trouble was. But all she saw was a modest-looking bird sitting on a post watching the hens walking about with their heads stretched up and all talking at once.

"I don't know what ails those hens," said Mrs. Brown. "They don't act frightened. I don't see anything for them to be frightened of. I guess there isn't anything. Hens are silly creatures, anyway."

And that is exactly what Mocker the Mocking Bird was thinking, as he sat on the post, his eyes twinkling.

THE JULIET

TODAY, the Bride-to-be has a new privilege ... the right to exercise her own fine taste in helping select the ring.

And now, in leading jewelers shops of your own city, is the world's loveliest ring—but just perfected!

After the greatest lover, it is called ... Juliet. Here it is illustrated.

Since 1843, more than 80 years, we have been making Bowden rings. But never have we equalled this masterpiece—in exquisite design—in delicacy of craftsmanship that only fine hand-made things can have.

Brides-of-yesterday, too, may have this lovely ring. Simple plain-gold bands remade, in beautiful design of white gold. Or exchanged for a new ring (full value allowed).

See this new ring. Miss Bride-to-be!

WESTERLY

ELEVEN CHARGED WITH OPERATING SLOT MACHINES

(Special to The Bulletin.)

WESTERLY, R. I., Feb. 19—No less than a dozen Connecticut state troopers, under Sergeant Clifford Gorgas, of the Groton barracks, swarmed into Pawcatuck this afternoon, either bringing with them or collecting when they arrived, spoils in the nature of slot machines, of the type in which one draws lemons, cherries, and other such symbolic fruits of tangible form, in the nature of checks, which can be used in certain stores as currency and also (if one takes the trouble to turn the knob) a package full of mint wafers. The proprietors of the places where the slot machines were seized received invitation to accompany the troopers before Judge William A Wilcox of the Stonington town court. Before their departure $25 each was left to assure their presence in court in Borough hall, Stonington, next Tuesday morning at 9 o'clock, Monday being Washington's birthday and a holiday when no court session is held. The slot machines, together with their contents, were taken to the Groton barracks, the formal complaint to be made out later. A considerable crowd gathered along West Broad street about 3 o'clock as the word spread that the raids were being made.

Pawcatuck Police Patrolman C. Wilson Brown entered the scene when he visited the judge's office and requested the state trooper operating the touring car filled with slot machines to please come out and head his auto in the direction of the general traffic and not in a direction contrary to law, which was immediately complied with.

Among the places visited was that of George Matzel, Grossman avenue, Mystic. Here the state trooper found the slot machine strangely missing but secured punch boards and brought them along with him.

Places raided by the state police were as follows: James Denise, 117 Water St. Stonington; James Marie, 10 or 11 Pearl St., Stonington, lunch room; Joseph A. Girard, 15 West Broad St., Pawcatuck, lunch room; Ollie King, Water St., Stonington; Joseph Leahy, Water St., Stonington, Peter Havelas, 9 West Broad St., shoe shine, Pawcatuck; Walter Mousie, Coggswell St., lunch room, Pawcatuck; E. A. Bliven, general store, Mystic, Bertha Bliven, bondsman; C. T. Ash, 48 Mechanic St., Pawcatuck, general store; Harry Trefes, Coggswell St., Pawcatuck, Horace Vardillos, bondsman; George Natzel, 54 Greenmanville Ave., Mystic, billiard and pool room.

In the regular session of third district court in the court rooms on Union street Friday morning, Judge Oliver H. Williams read the following:

Criminal docket: State, Elmer A. Smith, chief of police of Richmond, compl't vs. John Habereck, continued one week; state, Thomas J. Brown, chief of police of Westerly, compl't vs. Samuel Maine, continued one week, State, Frank H. Brown, chief of police of Hopkington, comp't vs. Harry H. Ullman, continued one week; State, Amos L. Kenyon, director of public aid, compl't vs. Richard Waters, continued one week; State, William L. Kay, deputy chief of police of Hopkinton, compl't vs. Frank P. Gorman, on motion of Solicitor Ferguson, discontinued; State, J. E. Norman, state trooper, compl't vs. Charles Golden, continued one week; State, Thomas E. Brown, compl't vs. Antonio Flore, continued one week; State, Thomas E. Brown, compl't vs. Thomas Flore, (two cases) continued one week; State, Thomas E. Brown, compl't vs. Henry F. Narone, manslaughter case, continued two weeks; State, Thomas E. Brown, compl't vs. William E. Coon, marked ready; State, Thomas E. Brown, compl't vs. Thomas Sullivan, ready; State, Thomas E. Brown, compl't vs. Percy L. Perry, continued two weeks.

Civil docket: Clifton D. Hall vs. Angelo Pucci, alias, continued one week; Samuel Fishman vs. Thomas Dortch, on motion of Attorney Roche, discontinued and entered as settled; W. E. Barrett Co., vs. Nathan A. Collins, Jr., continued one week.

William E. Coon, charged with operating a motor vehicle on the Potter Hill road on Feb. 13th., while intoxicated, entered a plea of "nolo."

Judge Williams warned the young man of his rights. When in presenting his own case Coon said that he had never been arrested before and had always been a law abiding citizen and didn't think he should have been arrested on the charge.

Solicitor Ferguson said that Highway Engineer Leon, as constable, had arrested Coon, when the accused ran into a gang of men clearing the highway of snow. Trying to persuade Coon to return home, Constable Leon had stepped on the running board but as Coon reversed his auto the constable was thrown off. A test of the young man's sobriety was made, he said, by asking the accused to close his eyes and touch his nose with his finger. This Coon failed to do by half an inch each time. He was also observed by the examining physician to stagger when he walked.

Judge Williams then sentenced Coon to ten days in Providence county jail and ordered him to pay costs.

Thomas Sullivan was represented by Attorney John F. Gallagher, who entered a plea of "nolo" for him on a complaint of assault. The attorney said that the defendant had been in the vicinity of Chestnut street Sunday evening, and, while under the influence of liquor, had saluted and accosted by an innocent mistake, one whom he thought a very close friend. Of good antecedents, he was never in trouble before, was married and had five children.

Solicitor Ferguson said that he agreed on the subject of intoxication but that mistaking the party didn't reconcile with his first statement made while he was in front of the postoffice. In the assault he had walked up and taken a woman by the arm saying "come along." Jamaica ginger was reported as the beverage he used and when Judge Williams considered the case he said that he did not agree with intoxication as an excuse but thought that respect for the man's family and to protect society he would impose a fine of $50 with the payment of costs.

Many Westerly passengers were on the eastbound morning accommodation, which was derailed Friday morning, east of the Mystic river drawbridge, when all the rolling stock but the last car left the rails. It so happened that the New England express, taken by early morning commuters to Westerly, was reported late so that the passenger list was even larger than usual for the accommodation. The early mail for Westerly was delayed by the derailment and Westerly mail shipments had to be sent on the forenoon accommodation. The Westerly station was filled with commuters and the two coaches of the New England express, which was sent east making all the accommodation stops, worked overtime to care for the increase of patronage. During the day many Westerly automobilists went to Mystic to watch the work of getting the derailed cars back on the iron.

Thursday evening the Westerly D. D. C. club held a meeting in Vet's hall, West Broad street, Pawcatuck, when in the absence of President Mrs. Jessie C. Davidson, Vice President Mrs. Charles S. Larkin was the presiding officer. After the business session, "The Land of Romance," an entertainment of novel form, was presented. A large sized map of the evening's tour was placed on the wall, and all started from Heart Green, across Hold-up Ferry, waded Bubbling Brook, strolled through Paradise Lane, climbed Cupid's Peak and on until they reached Sweetheart Inn. At this point luncheon was served. The ladies brought lunch boxes packed for two, and by drawing numbers couples ate their luncheon at different places designated about the rooms.

After luncheon the journey continued through Moonlight Lake, dense forests and caves, and finally ended the route by following the swallows home to the point of starting.

This tour afforded so much pleasure that the club will take the same tour at the next regular meeting on March 18.

The committee in charge of the evening's event included Misses Dorothy Krebs, Doris Hartridge and Marion Schwenk.

That the showing of pictures by Westerly artists during the past week, in the art room of the Westerly Memorial and Public library building on Broad street, has been one of more than average attraction is evidenced by signatures to be found in the register kept on a table near the entrance to the gallery. Up to 1 o'clock Friday afternoon 428 names had been signed. It is certain that many other persons have visited the exhibit without leaving their names. Although Westerly is given as the address in a majority of cases, several other towns and cities are listed, including Ashaway, Potter Hill, Stonington, North Stonington, Shannock, Wakefield, Providence, Alton, New London, Boston New York Washington, St. Louis, Bristol, N. H., and East Marion, N. Y.

The exhibiting artists are John R. Frazier, of Providence, William H. Drury, of Newport, Howard A. Coon, of Gloucester, Mass., and Stephen W. Macomber, of Westerly.

Mrs. Hattie A. Freeman entertained the Hancock W. R. Corps Sewing society Thursday afternoon at her home, 117 West Broad street. The meeting was called to order by President Alida Chappel. Secretary Grace W. Smith and Treasurer Gertrude Dunham read their reports. The quilt was finished and a number of the women read interesting articles. A social time was enjoyed. Mrs. Freeman served lunch, assisted by her two granddaughters. There were 25 members and 6 guests present. The next meeting will be with Mrs. Evelyn MacDonald, East avenue, March 4.

The corps have been invited to meet with the Stonington corps Monday evening, Feb. 22.

SOCIAL CORNER

not only a dictionary but a map of the world, a grammar, histories, both ancient and modern, and the Bible, beside a few foreign language dictionaries. But I like them all the same and they have passed away many a dull hour cheerfully.

Persis wants to know if I remember the books in Westminster Sunday school library as well as I do the apples in our old orchard. Indeed I do Persis, but I remember some of them with more pleasure than you do, for the days when I went to Sunday school there and read that library through from top to bottom and then began over again was sometime before your advent, and at that time there was really some very good books there. But unfortunately somebody got up the idea of changing books with some other library and let all the best ones go, and the other library, not foxy, unloaded their most undesirable ones on us. The Sunday school used to buy a few new ones every year then. I would like to read over some of those books again and would be glad to find some of them, but probably never shall. They were not all of the particularly pious kind either. There was The Queer Home at Rugby Court, Tim's Troubles, Broken Idols, Silver Rifle, Mildred Gwynne and Grandmother's School Days all of which I remember with pleasure. The last named was a sweet story of a girl who went over the seas to England to live with her aunts and go to school there, and in some vague way, The Secret Garden by Frances Hodgson Burnett reminds me of it. Just a lovely little story without any special plot or moral. Such stories are restful and peaceful once in a while. I can't remember when I didn't read everything that came in my way, like yourself. My people used to take three weekly papers the New York Independent, the Norwich Courier and the Windham County Transcript and I always pounced eagerly on them, as soon as my elders put them down, to read the stories, and when other reading grew scarce I went up in the garret and overhauled the barrels and boxes of old papers, carefully stored away. Newspapers weren't so plenty then and they were carefully put away.

It would be some job and a useful now to save all the papers and nobody would want them either.

Persis: A friend of mine has the Child's Life of Christ and Story of the Bible in small paper bound editions which she says are very nice and not babyish. Just about right for your children I should think.

Aunt Jerusha: I also remember the pound sweet apples you speak of though they didn't grow at my old home, but at a place where I have since lived. There was an old tree of them and how good they were baked in a slow oven. They were so large it took a long time to cook them through. Also at the same place was a number of Chesebrook russet trees and they are a fine fall apple for cooking—make beautiful pies. You don't often find them now.

You are right, Cakkie, it never did any harm yet to be polite and civil and sometimes it does a whole lot of good. When you mentioned the girl who was so hurt because another girl didn't speak, I thought of an experience of my own when I moved to a town which an old acquaintance had also moved to a few years before. I anticipated some pleasure in seeing her, but when I first met her she acted as if she didn't care to see me and the next time didn't know me at all. I don't know the reason why to this day, but I was so hurt that I cried over it. Life is too short for such things, if we only stop to think about it.

And now I think I have said plenty for this time and will say good morning.

IOLA.

RECIPES FROM TAFTS

Dear Editor and Members of the Social Corner. Thanks to the Corner Member who was glad I received a prize but she did not have a name signed so don't know who to thank. (Bee's name was somehow lost.—S. C. editor.) Am sending a recipe for delicious waffles. Had them for supper the other night and the memory of them lingers still. So good.

Waffles: Three eggs, beat yolks, add 1 cup flour, (I used pastry) sift first before measuring, 1 heaping teaspoon of baking powder, 1 heaping teaspoon sugar, little salt, 1 cup sweet milk, 2 tablespoons melted butter. Beat well and last fold in beaten whites of eggs, flavor with vanilla. Bake in hot waffle irons. Heat them, then have a thick pork rind cut from salt pork and grease your iron with it. Fine with maple syrup.

Date Pie: Here is a date pie that was served at a country club dinner in New Hampshire to General Pershing. He asked for the recipe and others copied it off. Bake a pie shell on an inverted plate, stone one package of dates, pass through food chopper, pour boiling water over them to soften and drain, beat 1 pint of heavy cream, add dates and a pinch of salt, beat up and pour into shell. Beat whites of 2 eggs stiff, add 1 tablespoon sugar, pour over pie and brown in oven. Serve cold.

Caramel Custard: Put 1-2 cup sugar in frying pan and stir until it melts and when melted add a little water. When brown add 1 pint hot milk, add 2 eggs, little salt, add to milk teaspoon of vanilla. Bake, setting dish in pan of water. Serve cold, when there should be a brown sauce at bottom of custard.

Incombustible Dresses: By putting an ounce of alum or sal ammoniac in the last water in which cottons are rinsed, or a similar quantity in the starch they will be rendered almost inflammable or at least will with difficulty take fire, and if they do, will burn without flame. Remember this and save the lives of your children. TAFTS.

SPARK PLUG JOINS CORNER

Dear Editor and Sisters: After reading the Social Corner last Saturday thought I too would like to become a member. I always read the Social Corner with great interest. I enjoy Grandma Gray's and Rural Aunty's letters very much, only Grandma Gray doesn't write very often.

Hinkie and Vira: Where are you? I think I know you both.

You wrote a very interesting letter, Cakkie. Try again.

Have often wished Rural Aunty would invite me to one of her Social Corner picnics. Hope she will if I become a member.

Do many of the sisters work the cross word puzzles? I do and think them very interesting.

If no one else has it, I would like the name

SPARK PLUG.

THE BEAUTIFUL SNOW

Dear Sisters of the Social Corner: February has given us a popular topic, so while it lasts we must make full use of it. We have experienced two, all day snow storms, less than a week apart. Frequently we hear the experiences of "beautiful snow," yes, I think we can all agree that the pure white snow, as it fills the air in its descent, and when it does not come in the force of a blizzard, is really a beautiful feature of nature. And after the storm when the sun comes out, it is then the snow covered fields appear in marvelous beauty, emblematic of purity. To be sure it makes work, and traffic must be restored, but also there are many pleasures included. We can all turn back our pages of memory, and think of the many good times we had sliding down hill, and of the sled that was ours, which we estimated was equal to any other in service.

I am here reminded of my first sled which was painted red with green trimmings and the name Snow Bird painted in white letters and I always had a little bell attached to it. It was of the frame design and room enough for two little people, but as I was an only child, I had the full use of my sled. However, I will say in justice to my youthful sympathies, I was always willing to share with other children, who perhaps were less fortunate than myself. Many of us can recall many a pleasant sleighing party we enjoyed either a school party or a little later when we went to a "kitchen" dance, at a country homestead, where those "old time fiddlers" played Money Musk, Virginia Reel, the quadrilles and several other favorites which we have not forgotten. It is only fair we should equalize our enjoyments in each season, as it comes along. When the snow has gone, we shall welcome springtime, with all its newness of life, and as we emerge into summer days, with its complete fullness, there are many opportunities for other pleasures. Today, as I look out upon the fields of snow, its purity has become tainted, the paths about the yard, show a mixture of soil, as the snow disappears at the present mild temperature. However these conditions will not remain long, and in a few weeks the sleeping grass will awaken to obliterate all trace of the snowpath. The daylight does not reveal all the beauty or defects of the snow covered ground; but consider the bright full moon, as it shines down on the sparkling whiteness, on a crisp clear night!

In closing, I pause to reflect, in the memory of a dear friend of my girlhood days. About that time she wrote her signature to a little sentiment in my autograph album. It has much meaning and can apply to us all and is illustrative as the snow may remind us.

"May your life be like a snowpath
Which leaves but a track, and not a stain."

Dear kind friend that she always was and whose character was spotless and pure as the drifted whiteness she still lives in my cherished memory, while today the snow, so beautiful covers the mound over her silent form. Let us not despise the snow for there is beauty, when we take the correct view, as in all expressions of nature. I trust that our several shut-in sisters may note my sentiments on the subject of "beautiful snow." Kind wishes to each and all.

JEANNIE.

LOOKING FOR SPRING

Dear Editor and Social Corner Sisters: Hello, every one! Some winter weather, the good old fashion winter. Keep up good spirit, spring will be here soon.

I wanted to thank the Social Corner Member for my pretty calendar.

Crimson Rambler: How are you? I often think of you and Mr. Rambler up on your good farm. Nothing like it, living on the farm. It makes me lonesome when I read the letter that the sister wrote telling about the apples that grew years ago.

Blackberry Briar: What has happened, are you up in the country under five foot snow banks? Crawl out and let us see you March 3 at Odd Fellows' hall.

L. C. E.: How are you and lame knee? Don't you slid down hill and hurt it. Do you remember the good time you and I had when we lived in Colchester? Do you ever go up there now?

Please send me a Social Corner pin. Good luck to all the Social Corner clubs.

GOLDEN GLOW (Club No. 2.)

CRIMSON RAMBLER'S CHATTY LETTER

Dear Corner Folks: Who said snow, beautiful snow? I am wondering if they have had all they want of it in the two last storms? I was very sorry to see the death of Delilah Deal's husband in the paper. May God give her strength to bear up under her sad affliction.

Sassy: Your letter in last week's paper made me think what a lady told me once about her mother. They sold their home and had an auction. When many things were put up for sale, her mother would say, "Oh, put that back we can't let that go." Then when they had collected many pieces of junk they were to make into a bon fire, her mother went out got a big basket full of things and bought them into the house. She said "Why mother what are you going to do with all that old junk?" Mother said, "I never can see all those things burned up." The only thing she could do was watch her chance and touch a match to it when her mother's back was turned.

What nice poems we are having. Hope they continue coming in. I generally save all, especially those that appeal to me. I have a goodly collection. I have several scrap books, so I have them handy and often run them over in my spare time.

We have always heard a deal about the women with a past. Life's drama always sees her billed away up in the cast; but when our birthday rolls around and wife comes from the store, the woman with the present is the one whom we adore.

E. L. M.: Your very interesting letter is before me. No, you have not got my number yet. I am going to write you a letter very soon, and I will make explanation very clear. At present I simply will say you are in the right church, but in the wrong pew. I know this party you spoke of driving that jitney to P. C.

J. E. T.: Your letter was a good cure for the blues. I have laughed many times over it. Have you anything new in regards to the baby elephant? Seems to me it must be time for us to hear something about it?

Joan: I was much concerned over the contents of your last letter. I wish I could have seen those pictures. Those parties you named were slightly related to me through marriage. I'd love to be at your home sometime when they call.

I extend my sympathy to all those who are in trouble and have sickness.

Catnip: Glad you escaped with flying colors and hope you are over your nervousness.

TRAINING CITIZENS FOR TOMOR ROW

Dear Social Corner Members: Persis letter of Feb. 6th inspired me to give a few of my opinions on what I consider a vital subject, Training Citizens for Tomorrow.

In the first place, I think too much is left to people outside the home.

We must not shirk our responsibility. The children are sacred trusts given to us personally. Ours for which we must render a strict account of our stewardship.

Parents should teach children to be obedient, they should teach them to be law abiding, unselfishness citizens, to be polite and courteous to all, at all times, to be honest and truthful in all their doings. Children with these rudiments well instilled will have a fair start to make good, Citizens for Tomorrow.

In the old days when country children were not in school, they had tasks to do. They were not allowed to spend their time roaming the streets or visiting the movies and dance halls without a chaperon. What was the result? Generally a healthy well developed family, not afraid of work and when these children left the (today despised) one room school for an academic course they were well prepared, and their standing in classes was excellent. The country children have never been classed as backward in their studies. Do modern methods improve the country schools? Decidedly No!

How can a good citizen of our grand United States sit quietly and let legislatures and federal government take our inherent rights from us?

If we let these things continue, perhaps we may retain the right to bring children into the world, clothe, feed and care for them while they are helpless or sick, but on condition that we do not ask anything, even obedience or respect in return.

I wonder who has the interest of children most at heart, parents or politicians. I wonder too if the politicians would be as much interested if there was not so much money to be dispensed. I wonder also how people can allow our constitution to be violated by allowing pet schemes to be annexed to that good constitution as amendments.

If this continues, our good old constitution that was framed by wise men for the good of all citizens of the United States will be lost sight of in a mass of amendments, framed for selfish ends.

I hope we may never see the proposed child labor amendment pass (only out of sight and hearing.)

If children do not work and know the necessity of it before they reach the age of 18 years they never will be great Citizens for Tomorrow.

It is serious to give into the hands of law the right to interfere with our homes. We do not want to substitute government agencies for home control, and these agencies are not so zealous for our welfare. Their greater interest is power, and salary.

We are not ready yet to have some federal officer tell us what we, or our children shall wear, what we shall eat or when we shall bathe. The worm may turn. There may be a limit to the infringment on peoples' rights.

Three cheers for our glorious United States, and our good old Constitution, that gives us what we boast of, liberty and freedom to all. Let us stand firm for it, as it always has been.

All these new schemes have hidden teeth.

Yours for the best for our Citizens of Tomorrow, and our helpful Social Corner.

Sincerely, CONUNDRUM.

CORNER'S LOSS BY DEATH IN PAST YEAR

Dear Editor and Corner Friends: I was pleased to receive the very dainty and pretty calendar from A Social Corner Member for which I'll say Thank you. Like Aunty and Calla Lily I treasure the calendars and have kept them all. I think they ought to remind us to write oftener for the Corner page.

It was with genuine sorrow we learned of the death of our dear sister Busy Bee. Her pen name was characteristic of her as her life was full of duties which she carried out in a commendable way, in her home and in the community and in her church. The many beautiful flowers that were about her casket were a silent tribute of her esteem. We shall miss her smiling face and cheery greeting. When she met with us in November we little thought that would be the last time. The Corner lost twelve members by death in 1925, L. H. K., Anna Mell, Red Clover, Just Me, Betty Brown, August, Bee Lyx, Wrinkle, C. E. S., Eloise, Rubiston and Rest-a-while.

As we look down the avenue of weeks and days in the year before us we little realize what is in store for us, but if we can say of the Lord, "He is my refuge and my fortress; My God, in Him will I trust" there will be no dread of the future.

Spry Bird and Cricket: Our sympathy in your sorrow. It came as a great surprise that L. H. K. had passed away as I had not heard she was ill. Her last letter to the Corner was written about a year ago and in her letters one could see the underlying current that controlled her life and made her ready when the summons came. The last words she wrote to the Corner were "Which ever way the wind may blow. Whether it comes with rain or snow. My heart of hearts will always know. That God is love."

What a beautiful testimony and benediction: that was characteristic of her gentle, quiet life.

Club No. 1 held their meeting the 10th on schedule time although an extremely bad day. We were told over the 'phone that we never had postponed or missed a day, and the omission is not on record yet, but the memory of it will be classed with that other blizzard in March, years back, when we met in Valley street, Papa's Boy can tell us the year, as I guess the memory of it is vivid in more than one Lebanon sister's mind.

The donation day program was postponed till next month. The attendance was somewhat curtailed but we had an abundance and the usual variety for dinner. As our hostess, Neighbor Evereddy was snowed and banked in she was very agreeable but hope the weather will permit her and her helpers to carry out their plans in March.

Is there a pin for me, please?

THEODA.

MAN

Dear Editor and All Corner Folks: I have been told by one sister that it was my duty to write a letter for the Corner once a year, at the least, if I did not want to be called a slacker.

Now as mere man has been a very interesting study for the so called weaker sex ever since the creation of Adam and Eve, I am writing a few items on men which may interest the sisters, and no doubt the brothers will read them too and express their views of them. What say you Happy Go Lucky?

A man that uses a few words to say a lot is a smart man. A man that uses a lot of words to say next to nothing is an orator.

It is easy enough for a man to be a fool. But it is mighty hard for him to fool his wife.

The minute a man becomes serious in love he begins also to be foolish.

Any fool can talk but only wise men know how to think.

Wise is the man who knows that he doesn't know it all.

The man who is too busy to think of safety may have plenty of leisure in the hospital later on.

Man a man who smiles and says nothing is a liar.

Don't think that because a man is idle he is a loafer. He may have a political job.

Many a poor man would be glad of the opportunity to make an after-dinner speech.

The only way a man could be perfect would be by following the advice he gives to others.

Some men have to take a vacation to discover how useless they really are.

There will always be a place for the man who knows how, but the man who knows why, will always be boss.

The man who ridicules honesty, virtue and truth may not be insane, but he might as well be.

The greatest accomplishment any man can have is an ability to mind his own business.

A man can sometimes learn a great deal by studying the disposition of women, but the tuition usually comes high.

Married men get a lot of wireless messages from their wives.

Do you think I am a slacker now?

ZANY.

After a girl has been married six times she uses fewer adjectives.

TREAT YOUR EYES RIGHT

If your eyes trouble you now and you continue to neglect them, what condition do you suppose they will be in later on—say a year from now?

The longer you neglect your eyes the worse they will get. And it is just as true that the better care you give your eyes now, the keener your vision will be in later years.

Don't wait! Have your eyes examined NOW!

IN NORWICH FIFTY YEARS AGO

Fifty years ago this week John H. new men; John H. Hoxie, captain; D. Hoxie was elected captain of Company A., Third Regiment, D. Burrows, first lieutenant and John Lyons, second lieutenant. The week, as a whole was a quiet one in Norwich, little out of the ordinary occurring. Extracts taken from the files of The Bulletin of 1876 are as follows:

Monday, Feb. 14, 1876—Company A, Third Regiment, has elected the following officers, nearly all of whom are Burrows, first lieutenant; John Lyons, second lieutenant; Henry Hill, first sergeant; George Clark, second sergeant; Otto Graef, third sergeant; Sidney Rathbun, fourth sergeant.

The magnificent weather of the last two days has given the streets the appearance of spring. Everybody has been out and Saturday night was as crowded as it is in pleasant evenings in May. Yesterday many people strolled into the country. The churches were all well filled, especially at the evening services.

James Downie of Greeneville, died suddenly Friday evening. He was employed in the Chelsea Paper Mill and had been at work in the morning. John H. Norris of the Mowry Axle and Machine Company died very suddenly the same evening. He was lieutenant of Company K, 11th C. V. during the war.

Tuesday, Feb. 15, 1876—P. G., P. W. Bruce of Uncas Lodge, has been elected director of the Odd Fellows funeral aid association of the state. The organization now numbers 1,500 members.

We learn that Sharpe's Rifle Company which moved to Bridgeport instead of coming to Norwich, has just mortgaged its property to the Continental Life Insurance Company of New York for $62,500.

A son of Stephen Hunter of Bean Hill, had one arm caught in some machinery at Startevant's upper mill the flesh and muscles were torn off from the elbow to the wrist, leaving the bones exposed.

Wednesday, Feb. 16, 1876—The tea party at the Baptist society at Greeneville last evening was a decided success and surpassed anything of the kind ever held there. It will be continued tonight. Visitors from the city can take the car which leaves the city at seven o'clock.

Gardner, the artist, has painted a picture of the scene just after the accident on the Southside railroad last summer, which will be exhibited in Ripley's window.

The Wauregan Steam Fire Engine Company have refitted their rooms very handsomely and will give a reception to their friends tomorrow night.

There was an unusually high tide yesterday and a heavy sea in the river near the wharves.

Thursday, Feb. 17, 1876—The reception or open house last evening by the Wauregan Hook and Ladder company, was a decided success, in point of number of visitors. Every visitor was profuse in praises of the appearance and beauty of the rooms. The rooms when lighted showed to good effect.

The little old house at Norwich Town, occupied by Mrs. Farrell, where Catherine Dixon was murdered, has been deserted since the former's imprisonment. The windows have been broken, doors torn down and the house itself hardly used.

J. F. Smith, the Norwich Town florist, has our acknowledgments for a bunch of choice roses. If a thing of beauty is a joy forever, whoever gets anything from Smith's conservatory, ought to be eternally happy.

Friday, Feb. 18, 1876—The masquerade of the City Guards in Steiner's hall Monday evening promises to be one of the most enjoyable of the season. All persons will be obliged to unmask before a committee before they will be allowed on the floor.

A house situated on the north side of Trading Cove, owned by Thomas R. Wilbur, took fire in the attic yesterday morning, and was nearly burned down. The furniture in the lower rooms was saved. It was insured for $600.

The Rev. N. G. Lippitt will deliver his lecture on Dreams in the Methodist church, Danielsonville, Wednesday evening, Feb. 23.

Saturday, Feb. 19, 1876—The Wauregan House will be closed the first of April for a month during which time it will be thoroughly repaired and refurnished. All the rooms will be heated with steam, new cooking apparatus put in and new furniture in all the rooms. Over $25,000 will be spent in making these changes. Mr. Doolittle of Waterbury will probably have charge of the house when it is reopened.

The Norwich District Ministerial Association comprising 50 churches meets in South Coventry, Feb. 21st-23rd, beginning Monday evening and closing Wednesday evening. All who attend from north of Tolland and from south of South Windham, will receive free return passes over the New London Northern road.

Yesterday gave us the first touch of winter we have had for many days. The air was fresh and bracing and just cool enough to make vigorous exercise comfortable. The streets were filled all day.

An attempt was made to burn Mr. Brand's henhouse on East Broad street, about midnight Thursday, but the fire was put out with a few pails of water.

GALES FERRY

The Long Cove auxiliary of the Ladies' Aid society of the Methodist church with Mrs. Fred E. Richards, president, held their Wednesday afternoon meeting at the home of Mrs. James A. Stoddard with a good attendance. The work was on quilts. Next Wednesday afternoon the auxiliary will meet with Mrs. Frank C. Newbury of Long Cove.

Miss Sarah T. Latimer returned last week from a visit of several weeks, with Mrs. C. C. Bell in Wilmington, Del., stopping enroute in Washington, D. C.

At the March meeting of the Woman's Home Missionary society to be held at the home of Mrs. Nelson Parker, Mrs. Robert A. T. Bitgood of New London, will be the speaker in the interest of the work.

In an Associated Press dispatch of Feb. 12 was noted the death of the Rev. Emma A. Harrison, at a private hospital at Unity, Me. The Rev. Mrs. Harrison, was the first woman to be ordained a deacon in the Maine Methodist conference and was pastor of the Methodist Episcopal church at Dixmont, Me.

Rev. Mrs. Harrison some years ago resided, with her son Rev. Charles Wilson Harrison, at the M. E. parsonage here, coming with him from a pastorate in Ireland. She was then known as Sister Emma an ordained deaconess of the English Methodist church.

Mrs. Walter M. Buckingham, Mrs. Everett Noyes and Mrs. Joseph De Rusha attended the millinery class, directed by Miss Mildred Annan, a specialist from Connecticut Agricultural college, Storrs, at the farm bureau rooms in Norwich Thursday afternoon. Instruction was given in the making of felt hats.

Miss Dorothy Birch, will spend the week end with a class mate of the N. F. academy, Miss Marion Chapman at the latter's home in Uncasville.

Mr. and Mrs. Billings T. Avery, Mr. and Mrs. Avery Main, Mr. and Mrs. Wallace Norcross and son, Warren Norcross, Miss Mabel Smith, Alfred Erickson and Miss Ida Erickson, all members of the Ledyard grange were among those from the western section of the town, who attended an all day meeting of Pomona grange held in Mystic Thursday.

Mrs. Ellie B. Stoddard, is spending some days at the home of Deacon and Mrs. Isaac G. Geer at Geer Hill, Ledyard.

Mrs. Fanny A. Molthrop returned from a visit of several weeks at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Courtland E. Colver at the Submarine base.

Mr. and Mrs. Edward Young of Waterford were guests Wednesday of Mr. and Mrs. Latham E. Smith and Miss Mabel Smith at Rose Lawn farm.

Miss Sarah T. Latimer attended the funeral of Mrs. Frances E. Strickland, widow of Joseph D. T. Strickland, in New London, Friday.

Miss Myrtice Coman will be the guest for the week end of her class mate at the N. F. academy, Miss Justine Chapel at her home in Uncasville.

Mrs. Arthur O. Pafford, left Monday to visit a friend in Pittsfield, Mass.

Miss M. F. McDonald of Norwich has been supplying as third trick operator at the Gales Ferry railroad station for Miss Vera Lee of Jewett City.

CANTERBURY GREEN

Rev. Mr. Payne is expected to supply the pulpit Sunday unless the weather proves too severe.

A meeting of the Ladies' Aid society was held Tuesday afternoon with Mrs. Clinton Frink. Mrs. Frank Nelson will entertain at the next meeting which will be in two weeks.

Nelson Lyon, who has been ill with grip, is much improved.

Mrs. Waldo has nearly recovered from a recent illness.

Mrs. Fred Lyon of Plainfield, who has been caring for the sick ones, has returned home.

Schools here have been visited this week by Supervisor Floyd and the school nurse.

Mrs. James Appley is home after staying at North Stonington with her son, Walter, during the latter's illness with pneumonia.

Miss Josie Shea of Hyde street is a guest in Norwich at the home of her brother, Daniel T. Shea.

The grange meeting Wednesday evening was well attended. The lecturer's hour was open, several young people taking part in the program of music and speaking. Harmonica playing was one of the features. Doughnuts and coffee were served.

A ground hog who persistently stayed out in expectation of an early spring met an untimely end Thursday morning. Napoleon Laraviere reports seeing and killing a woodchuck at that time. Its hole was probably so covered with snow drifts that he couldn't locate it when he decided that a longer nap would be the proper thing.

SOUTH GRISWOLD

Mrs. A. Eugene Gray has returned home from Springfield, Mass.

Mr. and Mrs. Amiel Brosofske of Norwich, visited Sunday with Mrs. Harriet E. Douglas.

Mrs. A. P. Culver and son, George, were callers Sunday at E. O. Burdick's.

Serving with Distinction

PACKARD has served the first families everywhere for more than a generation.

Packard reputation, like Packard beauty, comfort and distinction, is a heritage from a long line of fine cars—each built for those who asked no compromise with price.

The new series Packard Six is a worthy descendant of the cars which made the name "Packard" a hall-mark of motor car excellence and good taste the world around.

Yet the Packard Six of today is not an extravagant nor even an expensive car. For example the five-passenger sedan is $2585 at the factory, and may be purchased on a business-like monthly payment plan.

There is now no reason why additional thousands should not have Packard cars standing before their doors—ready to serve with both distinction and economy.

The Packard Six may be had in nine beautiful and distinguished body types, four open and five enclosed

ASK THE MAN WHO OWNS ONE

MANY STREETS IN NEW LONDON NEED ATTENTION OF STREET DEPARTMENT

(Special to The Bulletin.)

NEW LONDON, Feb. 19—The highway department of the city will have much work mapped out for the attention of its working force within the next few weeks for there are an unlimited number of streets that demand the early attention of the repair forces. Particularly among these highways is Montauk and Ocean avenues, highways that are the most thickly traversed of any of the streets of the city by automobiles and heavy vehicles, both motor and horse drawn. Montauk avenue is particularly in immediate attention of the repair gang for there are innumerable depressions in the macadam highway that exist and which are a danger and menace of automobile traffic. That particular highway has not received the attention it demands for five years, the only repairs that have been made are those of placing a small quantity of blue stone and tar in the places where the depression exists. This form of repair is but temporary and with snow and ice have existed on the highway several weeks, the conditon is now such that only a constant series of ruts exist. Ocean avenue as well as Pequot avenue are but in slightly better condition for any amount of depressions exist on those streets.

The city, however, has caused the major portion of ice and snow to be removed from the streets and with a fog and rain prevailing throughout today practically all of the streets were rid of their vast accumulation of snow and ice. In some places ice exists in the gutters, but this is gradually being removed by workers of the highway department.

The body of Mrs. Mary Watson, whose death occurred suddenly at the home of her daughter, Mrs. Frederick Halyburton, 45 Willets avenue, yesterday, was sent to Yonkers, N. Y., this morning. The funeral and interment will take place at Yonkers Saturday.

Mrs. Maria Williams, 74, died last night at the Spicer home, Groton, where she had resided about four years. Miss Spicer was a native of Mystic and had resided in Mystic since birth. In 1912 she became a resident of the home and until about six weeks ago she enjoyed sound health. So far as is known there are no surviving relatives.

Mrs. Patrick Shaughnessey and infant son, 7 West Colt street, and Mrs. Harry Rakowsky and infant daughter, 64 Colt street, patients at Home Memorial hospital, were discharged yesterday afternoon and today.

Anthony Labensky, New York, was taken into custody in Mystic late yesterday, charged with abandonment by the New York authorities. Labensky was brought to New London and held as prisoner until the arrival of a New York officer to take him back to that city for trial.

The New London police have been requested by the New Haven authorities to be on the look out for a Ford roadster, bearing registration, H-923, Connecticut issue, which was stolen from New Haven Thursday night.

The condition of George R. Hempstead, warden of the borough of Groton, who has been confined to his residence, Pleasant street, is reported today as being vastly improved.

The trial of Tony Caldrello, 40 Pearl street, operator of a public service automobile, will come at the session of police court tomorrow morning of the charge of operating an automobile for immoral purposes. He is now at liberty on bail of $1,500 furnished at the time of his arrest a week ago, by Louis Lifenbein.

The arrest of Caldrello may result in the washing of much "dirty linen," for the arrest of the taxicab driver was obtained upon information furnished the police by Mrs. Helen H. Hilek, 11 Brewer street, and her companion, Miss Myrtle Hunt, alias Miss Myrtle Harte. The young women are not over 19 years of age and to Sergeants Nelson Smith and John Cavanaugh they related their experiences and exploits about the Whaling City and its surrounding territory, much of which time, the girls allege, was spent in the car operated and maintained by Caldrello. According to the girls their conduct was to the knowledge of the taxicab operator. After the girls had related their stories to the police, Caldrello was taken into custody. Besides incriminating Caldrello the girls are said to have given the names of many men, some of them drawing a salary from the city. Whether any of the city employes will be brought into the "mess" it is not known, but there are good and likely chances that they will be.

The girls are strangers in New London, neither of whom has been a resident of New London six months, but during their stay in the city they have spent the greater part of their time in the company with sailors from the personnel of the United States coast guard. The girls, it is said, will be on hand tomorrow morning and repeat the testimony they furnished Sergeants Smith and Cavanaugh.

The United States coast guard destroyer Beale, stationed at the local sectional base, No. 4, arrived in the harbor this evening at 5 o'clock, and at once steamed to the pier. The big destroyer, a four-stacker, was illuminated from stem to stern and rendered a vivid marine spectacle as she glided slowly over the waters of the Thames.

There is a revival of interest in the matter of locating a Masonic temple on the site of the Mercer property on Huntington street, south of the court house. The site is one of great advantage for it overlooks State street and is on high ground. Both Union and Brainard lodges have been interested in whether the temple shall be constructed but they seem, through committee, not to be able to come to an agreement that will enable the work of construction to commence. The lodges now have separate meeting places and are under expense that seems to be double what it should be in that the new building would accommodate both lodges and all the other Masonic bodies under one roof. A temple that would be used exclusively for the Masonic orders has been the dream of the fraternity for years.

Jacob M. Liniow will be before the police court tomorrow accused of having run down Agnes Svenberg, of Evergreen avenue, while he was driving down Montauk avenue some weeks ago. The girl was quite badly injured and was in the hospital for a considerable time, but it is understood that she has substantially recovered from the effects of her injuries. Mr. Liniow declares, it is said, that he did not see the girl, who had alighted from a street car, and who started to cross the street. Miss Svenberg was employed in a local store and was on her way to her home when the accident happened.

Search lights from the submarine base were playing on the harbor this evening when the destroyer Beale came into port, creating a picture not often seen in the harbor. The power of the searchlights was such that the big destroyer was plainly visible, the boat resembling a train of cars as the moved along to the state pier.

Woich Ustach, a freight trucker for the Central Vermont railroad here, was paid $18 for his labor yesterday afternoon. A few hours later when he was taken into custody for intoxication he had a single dollar left. He has disposed of his money for booze and for eats and his appetite was good when he had supplied his desire for drink. Woich had a load that gave him the notion that he was selected to direct traffic in the streets. He entered upon that stunt on Potter street where he took a position in the highway and sought to stop and start the horse of a farmer plodding through that roadway. When Officer Hill came upon him he had no knowledge of the appointment of an additional traffic cop so he took Woich to the police station to explain. The fellow couldn't do that so today he was presented in court where he was fined $5.

Charles Frick was to have appeared in court this morning as a fugitive from justice in New York. He didn't keep his engagement however for he had returned to New York to meet any charge that was lodged against him.

Edward Smith, a sailor, who was sent to jail yesterday as a person of lascivious conduct and behavior, was paid out late in the evening and announced his intention of settling the fine and costs imposed upon his female consort, who was also committed to jail. The pair expressed great admiration for each other both at the jail and before they were locked up. Whether the mutual admiration will continue friends of the couple would not say today, but they did say that Smith would secure the money needed and release the woman from the forced residence behind prison walls.

Patrolman Edward Riordan, of Perry street, is absent from duty for a short time having sustained a sprained thumb Wednesday night when he engaged in a battle with a coast guard sailor.

Ensign Nathaniel Fulford, commander of the United States Coast Guard patrol boat 126, also with Stanley Mimus, a seaman aboard the craft, were dismissed today at Lawrence-Memorial associated hospital where they had been under treatment a week for frost bites and exposure suffered as a result of their craft grounding on a sand-bar in Narragansett Bay ten days ago, during a blizzard. Other patients dismissed today were Charles Sanford, United States Coast Guard destroyer Burrows; Robert Jacques, 29 Eighth street, and William Wheaton, 238 Jefferson avenue.

A nurse connected with Lawrence hospital informed the police today of the existence of a dangerous depression in the highway, corner of Montauk avenue and Riverview avenue. The matter was reported to the highway department.

Pauline Varsallo, 19, who was taken into custody by the police Tuesday at the request of the Hartford authorities, who hold a warrant against the young woman charging her with being in danger of falling into ways of vice, was taken back to Hartford today by Officer Carroll, of the Hartford department and will be given a hearing in the Hartford court. The girl was taken into custody at the residence of Gaetano LaBruno, formerly of Hartford, at 832 Bank street, where the couple had resided three months as husband and wife. LaBruno was prosecuted in the local police court yesterday charged with adultery and was fined $25. LaBruno, it is claimed, has a wife and five children residing in Italy.

James Smith, until yesterday a lodger at 147 Bank street, and who was discharged during Thursday from a private hospital where he had undergone an operation, left last night for Rochester, N. Y.

John Shea, 17 Vista street, apprentice pressman in the employ of The Day Publishing company, who lost all the fingers of his right hand by that member being caught in a press while he was assisting in the threading of the machine, late yesterday afternoon, is reported this afternoon as resting comfortably at Lawrence hospital, where the amputation of the fingers took place. It is possible that it may be necessary to amputate a portion of the hand.

The funeral of Mrs. Frances E. Strickland, widow of Joseph D. T. Strickland was held this afternoon at 2:30 o'clock at her residence, 168 Mohegan avenue, and was attended by many mourners. The services were conducted by Rev. J. Beveridge Lee, pastor of the Second Congregational church. Burial was in the family plot in Cedar Grove cemetery.

Was In Agony With Blisters On Hands Cuticura Healed

"Eczema broke out in very small blisters on the backs of my fingers. After a few days the blisters would break and then dry up. It itched and burned terribly and scratching caused very red eruptions. I could not put my hands in water or do any work without wearing rubber gloves. I could not sleep nights on account of the irritation, and was in agony most of the time. The trouble lasted about a year.

"I read an advertisement for Cuticura Soap and Ointment so purchased some. After using them a short time I could see an improvement. I continued the treatment and now I am healed." (Signed) Miss Bessie Shannon, R. F. D. 2, Orleans, Vt., Sept. 15, 1925.

Keep your skin clear and your pores active by daily use of Cuticura Soap. Heal irritations and rashes with Cuticura Ointment.

DEATH OF JOHN LYNCH, A NATIVE OF NORWICH

(Special to The Bulletin.)

NEW LONDON, Feb. 19—John Lynch, 75 died this morning at his home, 24 Willetts avenue, Mr. Lynch had not been ill long, but his decline was rapid. He is survived by a son, John N. Lynch, employed as locomotive engineer by the New York, New Haven & Hartford railroad, and by three daughters, Mrs. Henry C. Wilbur and Mrs. R. Glenville Wilbur, both of this city, and Mrs. C. B. Harden, of New Haven.

Mr. Lynch was born in Norwich, but had resided in New London many years and during the greatert part of that period was employed as a moulder by the Brown Cotton Gin company. His wife died about a year and a half ago.

FISH TRAINING STORIES OF SOUTH SEAS PROVEN

AGANA, Guam, Feb. 19 (AP)—Students of Chamorro life in the Mariana Islands who have long been puzzled by legendary allusions of the South Seas people to "trained fish" and "stone bait" have been given an explanation of these terms by H. G. Hornbostel, field representative of the Bishop Museum of Honolulu.

Present-day inhabitants of the Mariana Islands are as unfamiliar with the training of fish or the use of stones in catching them as are the fishermen elsewhere who whip trout streams or sein the waters of the seven seas. But the ancient practices substantiated until now only by legends and by strange rounded stones excavated from graves in the old burying grounds of Guam and other islands have been authenticated by Mr. Hornbostel. Furthermore, he has found an island where the natives gain their fish supply in this very manner.

On the island of Rota, which produces so little copra that ships in the past rarely visited it, and now under Japanese mandate, Mr. Hornbostel learned at first hand this oldest art. On Rota, prehistoric native customs have persisted long after they vanished from other oasis of the South Seas.

Illustrating his story of the investigation which he conducted with some of the fishing stones purchased by him Mr. Hornbostel told of their use as follows:

The bait is a smoothly formed hemisphere of stone about five inches in diameter. It is suspended from tough cords of cocoanut fiber with the flat surface of the hemisphere uppermost. To this side is attached a hollow cone of cocoanut shell, its edges gummed firmly to the stone. There is a small opening in the top at the point of the cone. Into this hole the native fisherman squirts from his mouth a pulp of cocoanut meat which he has chewed fine. Then the bait is ready for use.

During the months of June and July the natives dangle the stones from their canoes, keeping them close to the bottom at a depth of some 50 feet. By jiggling the bait up and down they spread the cocoanut pulp through the water. A fish called "Achuman," the Chamorro word "achu" means stone, is particularly fond of cocoanut.

After two months of regular feeding they are trained to follow the stones daily. Then during August and September the stones are brought nearer the surface of the water, until the fisherman with a hand net can gather in his unsuspecting victims, and the trained fish become food.

AMERICAN TRAINED PROTEGE SOUGHT BY ROSA PONSELLE

NEW YORK, Feb. 19. (AP)—Rosa Ponselle, prima donna of the Metropolitan Opera Company, is conducting a quiet search for an American protege to succeed her.

The dramatic soprano has no intention of an early retirement—she is yet to reach thirty years of age and the full height of her career. The protege is being sought because Miss Ponselle desires to show that others may succeed in opera and concert work with training in America.

Far too occupied to consider letters or interviews, she is making the search personally as time permits.

Miss Ponselle has been interested in music all her life, but her jump from vaudeville to grand opera occurred in only a few months. It was in March, 1918, that her vaudeville contract expired and she went before Gatti Casazza, Metropolitan manager, for an audition.

She was engaged immediately and after only seven months of previous intensive study and training, she made her debut in the revival of Verdi's Forza del Destino. A month later she sang the leading role of Rezia in the revival of Weber's Oberon. Within a space of six weeks she established herself as one of the country's foremost.

Miss Ponselle first sang opposite Caruso in a leading role in La Juive. Only recently she sang the opera for the first time since his death. To the famous tenor, the star gives much credit for her success.

While a singular opportunity was largely responsible for her immediate triumph, hard work and conscientious study have been factors in her success. The period between May and October has been devoted to training. In addition to regular appearances, the singer averages two and sometimes four rehearsals a week. At least two lessons are taken from her teacher, Romano Romani.

"I have not been to a single performance of opera this season other than my own," Miss Ponselle said. "Neither have I been to a Broadway show. My only party was one for Gloria Swanson."

The prima donna will leave the Metropolitan during January and will not rejoin the company until April for engagements in Atlanta and Cleveland. The intervening time will be given to concert work, as will the latter part of May.

RICE SUCCESSFULLY RAISED IN LAND OF WHEAT AND CORN

LEWISTOWN, Ill., Feb. 19. (AP)—Highly successful rice cultivation in the land of wheat and corn has been accomplished by Bart Edwards, who manages a farm near here. He has just harvested a crop on a 135-acre patch with the bumper yield of 5 bushels to the acre. This is the first time that rice has ever been grown commercially this far north. Lewistown being in the northern half of the state.

Cultivation of rice as an experiment was started two years ago. The result has been so successful that it is planned to gradually extend rice growing until there are 1,500 acres in cultivation.

ANNOUNCEMENTS

At the Breed

An air of sophistication is a woman's chief charm! In fact the sophisticated woman is in fashion again and the naive ingenue must take a back seat.

That is the opinion of Lew Cody, popular screen leading man, who comes to the Breed Sunday in His Secretary, a M-G-M production starring Norma Shearer.

"Sophistication is a much misunderstood word," says Lew Cody. "The average person understands it to mean hard boiled, while it is nothing of the sort.

"The sophisticated woman is the one who has read the latest books, seen the latest plays and is able to talk intelligently about them. She is also a woman who knows how to dress well—so that she is always charmingly gowned but does not seem conscious of her clothes. She must know how to carry on an intelligent dinner conversation. She should be witty, but always remain calm and poised. Such is the sophisticated woman and that certainly does not mean 'hard boiled.'

"The flapper is rather refreshing at times, but she has not enough poise to hold the interest of the intelligent man. The flapper is very wearing because she never knows when to be still. She is usually interested in nothing but herself and her own doings.

"Indeed sophistication is a woman's chief charm!"

In His Secretary, in which Lew Cody supports Miss Shearer, the latter is cast as a plain stenographer who attempts to become beautiful and sophisticated in order to win her employer's love. It is only when she sheds her simplicity and becomes fascinatedly sophisticated that she wins the love she craves.

Willard Louis, Karl Dane and Mabel Van Buren play the leading roles in His Secretary.

Broadway Theater

Lorraine of the Lions, a Universal-Jewel, is the feature picture starting tomorrow at the Broadway theater. So completely free from any plot ideas ever utilized before and so filled with unusual incidents, the story was made into the big release of the current season by Universal.

With thrills, heart-throbs, and delicate comedy interwoven; the story is declared to be one of the strangest and most original ever written for the screen.

Norman Kerry is starred with Patsy Ruth Miller playing opposite him. Joseph Wowlins, Fred Humes, Philo McCollough, Harry Todd, Frank Newburg, Rosemary Cooper, Doreen Turner, Jackie Goodrich and W. Stuart McCrea are in the cast, comprised of an unusual galaxy of stars.

The difficulties encountered in filming the picture were immense. It took more than three months' work on three elaborate sets before production could be started. A San Francisco millionaire's mansion was reproduced in every detail, both inside and out, at a tremendous cost. A steam heated jungle covering an area of six acres was grown with vegetation brought from the South Seas.

The second feature on this same program will be The Demon Rider, a new Davis Distributing Division release, which will have as co-stars Ken Maynard the whirling Texan and his marvel horse Tarzan. This picture is said to be one of the best features this fine organization has produced. Without mentioning all the other excellencies of this offering the sheer high tension speed contained therein will satisfy even the most critical audience. A glimpse of The Hollywood Beauty Sextette will be a treat for your eyes. Twenty five cents will admit you to all this in addition to a comedy and new Kinograms.

Conn. College Concert

Jacques Thibaud, the distinguished Franch violinist who will play at Bulkeley auditorium, New London, next Tuesday night under the auspices of Connecticut college, was born in Paris of parents who were in moderate circumstances. Like most of his race he is very proud of his pure French ancestry but curiously enough it was an Italian master, Maestro Gossa, who paid for his first appearance which took place in Berlin—that is, his first real concert appearance although he had played much in Paris. Maestro Gossa heard young Thibaud play and immediately suggested the trip to Berlin and further offered to pay the expense of an Italian tour for the violinist.

Thibaud made a great success in Berlin playing with orchestra and as recital artist and it was then that a German, Dr. Herman Wolff, made a similiar offer to that of the Italian. He wanted to pay for the Italian trip and include Thibaud's return to Paris and then again to Berlin.

Mr. Thibaud says: "You see it took a Frenchman, an Italian and a German to get me really started. I had a good success in Italy, of course, my native Paris treated me very kindly, but before the war I was very well received in Leipsic and Frankfort. The violinist must play where he can get appearance, not so much for the good of his art but for the purpose of studying the character of the people whose music he sets out to interpret. It is only by a study of French, Italian and Russian people that one can hope to interpret their music."

Attractive Moving Picture at Y. M. C. A. Sunday.

At 4 o'clock on the coming Sunday afternoon in the big gymnasium of the local Young Men's Christian Association, there will be shown most attractive moving pictures and the Boy Scouts of the city will be special guests with seats reserved for them. The pictures shown will be as follows: A specially fine two reel feature on "The Real Roosevelt," which will be an intensely interesting picturization of the great man whom the country still mourns. One can learn much about a real American from this biography which journeys from Africa to San Juan Hill, and Panama Canal to Oyster Bay. The public never tires of thinking of and studying the sterling life and characteristics of this almost ideal American. Two special reels under the title "America's Heritage," is a very interesting story of a Boy Scout hike by motor truck, taking in Bretton Woods, Niagara Falls, Lake Champlain and Old Orchard Beach. The story is unfolded through daily letters which one of the scouts writes to his mother. This picture will appeal, not only to Boy Scouts but to all who are interested in boy life. In addition to the above a beautiful reel on "Our Four Footed Pals" will be shown on the screen. A brief address will be given by a leading financial man which will be appropriate to the occasion. To this service the Boy Scouts are specially invited; also all men and women will be cordially welcomed.

The music will be furnished by Hugh Kinder.

Next Week at United Congregational Church

The Sodalitas meets in the Junior department rooms at half past seven on Monday evening. Members are asked to come equipped with scissors, needles, thread, etc., as work on layettes for the Public Health Department of the United Workers will be continued.

The King's Daughters will meet on Tuesday evening, at the home of Miss Hattie Carter, 54 Laurell Hill avenue.

The adjourned church meeting will be held in the church school rooms at 7:45 on Thursday evening. The committee appointed at the annual meeting will report at this time.

The February meeting of the Missions Department of the Guild will be held at the Community House at three o'clock on Friday afternoon. An especially fine program has been planned, with Mrs. Frank Gaylord Cook, of Boston, recently returned from an extended trip in the Orient as speaker, a play by the Junior Guild and tea and a social hour. Women of the other Congregational churches in town are most cordially invited.

The Brotherhood "School" will be held at the Community House at eight o'clock on Friday evening.

USE ULTRA-VIOLET RAY TO GET MORE AND BETTER EGGS

MADISON, Wis., Feb. 19 (AP)—The ultra-violet ray, already employed profitably by medical men to heal humanills, is being used at the University of Wisconsin to produce "more and better" eggs and chickens.

Nearly three times as many eggs can be produced by action of the ray, the departments of agricultural chemistry and poultry have found.

Heavier shells in irradiated pens also increased marketability of eggs and greater hatchability resulted. The ultra-violet light was found to cure fowls suffering from rickets.

On January 1, 1925, four groups of pedigreed Ayrshorns were put on similar rations in identically arranged pens, without natural light. The pens were artificially lighted during daylight hours.

Two groups were subjected to ultra-violet radiation. When the eggs were collected two to three times as many eggs were found in the irradiated pens as in the ordinarily lighted houses. Egg production began to increase markedly within eight days after ultra-violet light was applied.

MEMORIAL BED IN HOSPITAL FOR "LITTLE WOMEN" CREATOR

LONDON, Feb. 19. (AP)—Two generations of girls—English as well as American—have loved 'Little Women,' Louisa M. Alcott's famous book, and have laughed over the experiences of Meg, Jo, Beth and Amy.

Here in England it is proposed to erect a memorial to them and their creator, a "Little Women" bed in the Washington ward of the Royal Free Hospital, Gray's Inn Road. Each bed will be dedicated to a famous American.

PRINT GERMAN EDITORIALS IN ENGLISH TO AVOID SUSPICION

ST. PAUL, Minn., Feb. 19 (AP)—Daily editorials in German are republished in English each Saturday by the Tagliche Volkszeitung of St. Paul.

The practice was instituted with the announced intention of making the editorial policy thoroughly understood by the English reading public and to minimize "an element of suspicion with which an American unable to read German or any other foreign language might naturally look upon any newspaper printed in an alien tongue.

STOCK MARKET UNSETTLED.

NEW YORK, Feb. 19.—(AP)—Today's stock market again failed to develop a definite price trend. Industrials were inclined to sell off on a renewal of professional selling pressure but the decline was held in check by the brisk demand for the railroad shares, several of which closed one to two points higher. The impending holiday led to rather extensive evening up of speculative commitments which accounted, in part, for the confused price movements. Trading continued in moderate volume, the day's sales aggregating 1,487,600 shares.

Call money renewed at 4 3-4 per cent., but was marked up to 5 in the early afternoon when banks began to call loans, presumably as a result of the publication of the federal reserve report showing an increase of nearly $45,600,000 in brokers' borrowings in the week ended February 10. The only dividend news of general interest was the declaration of a 25 cents extra on Ohio Oil.

The weekly mercantile review reported little change in the general business situation. Dun's business is still a fact that favorable business reports predominate," describing conditions as "inherently sound." Bradstreet's sets forth that "wholesale trade appears to be leading retail and manufacturing by a good margin," adding that "spring goods in most lines are moving well, and there are enough orders for immediate consumption to make up a very fair total."

Revival of speculative interest in the railroad shares was inspired in part by the hope of a satisfactory solution of the wage problem when representatives of the railroads and the brotherhoods meet next week, and in anticipation of a favorable showing in the annual reports which will shortly make their appearance. New York Central and Atlantic Coast Line stood out with net gains of two points each, while the Chesapeake and Ohio, Reading and several others advanced a pointormore.

American Can and General Electric again established new record highs at 333 and 386 1-2, respectively, but the latter sold down to 381 3-4 at the close, and was as low as 375 earlier in the session, Texas Gulf Sulphur also touched a record top at 142 3-4 in further response to the increased annual dividend, but it slid back to 141 on realizing.

Strength of the tobacco shares was widely attributed to buying for the account of the Whelan interests. United Cigar Stores soared 6 3-4 points to 95, closing just below the top; Tobacco Products showed a net gain of 3 5-8 at 107 5-8 and Consolidated Cigar moved up 1 3-8 to 66. American Snuff broke 6 3-8 points to 150 5-8 on publication of a relatively poor 1925 earnings report.

Bear traders succeeded in uncovering several weak spots, centering their activities on issues of companies which did not share extensively in the general prosperity last year. American Woolen common was hammered down to 31 1-2, the lowest price in 10 years, and the preferred broke 5 points to 77 1-2, but both rallied when the directors declared the regular preferred dividend, the last named making up its loss. Other conspicuous weak spots were American Radiator, Fox Film A, General Gas and Electric, Manhattan Modified Guaranteed, National Distillers, Pathe Exchange, Savage Arms, United States Industrial Alcohol, United Bag and Paper, United Fruit and Wright Aeroplane, all off two to nearly four points. Commodity markets all lacked a uniform trend. Wheat futures moved within a narrow range but closed lower. Cotton was firm, largely on account of the congested near month position. Coffee sold 8 to 15 points net lower on pre-holiday realizing, and sugar futures were barely stead.

Time money and commercial paper rates were unchanged.

The principal foreign exchange rates moved within narrow and irregular limits. Demand sterling held steady at $4.86 and French francs rallied to 3.59 cents after getting down around 3.56 earlier in the session. Scandinavian rates also rallied toward the close on foreign buying.

GREENEVILLE

A weekly meeting of the Woman's Guild of St. Andrew's Episcopal church was held recently at the home of Mrs. Charles Evans of Smith avenue, eighteen members and two guests being present. The meeting was opened by the president, Mrs. Fitch A. Dolbeare and reports from committees were read and accepted. The supper committee of February 11th reported $80 cleared. Coin cards were made for the members of the parish. It was voted to hold a sale of cake, pies, bread and other kinds of food next week at a Greeneville store Mrs. Evans, assisted by Mrs. John Telford served refreshments. The next meeting will be with Mrs. James Johnson.

NORWICH TOWN

Mr. and Mrs. Zabriskie of Vergason avenue were pleasantly surprised Wednesday evening by a party of young people from Norwich Town. The affair was carried out as a Valentine Party and the room was prettily decorated with red and white festoons and chains of hearts. The evening was spent in playing games, after which sandwiches, fancy cakes, candy and cocoa were served by the hostess, assisted by Mrs. Wellington Miner. At the close of the evening all joined hands and sang "Blessed be the tie that binds."

Miss and Mrs. Zabriskie are very popular with the young people and a good time is always enjoyed in their hospitable house.

Those present were: Misses Coffie Ladd, Elizabeth Gifford, Gertrude Brown, Florence Brawn, Inez Edmiston, Hazel and Gladys Cruthers, also LeRoy Miner, Lewis Aldrich, John Keyser and William Moore. Mr. and Mrs. Wellington Miner chaperoned the party.

At his work for the Carpenter Manufacturing Co., Albert Johnson, shipping clerk of Oneco street, met with a painful accident Wednesday injuring his left hand. Mr. Johnson was sawing off the end of a board by machinery when his fingers were caught and the end of the third finger severed below the nail. He also received cuts and bruises to his other fingers.

Mrs. Johnson at the time was visiting relatives in Massachusetts for two weeks, having left Monday morning. She was notified of her husband's accident Friday evening Mr. Johnson was suffering intense pain from the injured fingers.

PROGRESS IN ORGANIZING REAL ESTATE BOARD

The committee of five real estate agents, Archa W. Coit, chairman, James L. Case, secretary, and Francis D. Dunbar, Richard L. Tarrant, and David J. Kerr, selected by a recent largely attended meeting of the real estate agents of Norwich, met at the Wauregan Hotel at noon Friday to formulate a constitution and by-laws for the Norwich real estate board.

Louis St. Clair Burr, a prominent Hartford realtor and an official of the state association, met with these men for co-operation and consultation. It is planned soon to have a full meeting of Norwich real estate men to complete organization plans and make such other arrangements as are necessary to create the Norwich Real Estate board, which will be affiliated with the state and national organizations of realtors.

Norwich will have the distinction of having the first real estate board in the territory east of the Connecticut river.

Embarrassing eruption on face disappears when Resinol is used

Hadley, Mass., May 28:—"For some time I had been troubled with an eruption on my face which nothing I tried seemed to relieve. I had read about Resinol and decided to give it a trial. For a week I bathed my face every night with warm water and Resinol Soap and then applied the Ointment. At the end of that time the eruption had entirely disappeared. I cannot praise the Resinol products too highly." (Signed) Lilian Hull.

MONTVILLE POWER HOUSE EXPANSION IS TO BE DEVELOPEMENT OF FUTURE

At a hearing before the public utilities commission in Hartford Friday for approval of the proposed merger of the Connecticut Light and Power company, the Meriden Gas and Electric company, the New Milford Electric Light company, the Woodbury Electric company and the Westport Electric company, J. Henry Roraback, president of the Connecticut Light and Power company indicated that in the not distant future the large power resources of his company will be interconnected with the Eastern Connecticut Power company. The Eastern Connecticut Power company which has its main office in this city, is now controlled by the Connecticut Electric Service company.

Both the Connecticut Light and Power Co. and the Eastern Connecticut Power are under the same ownership now, it was stated here Friday night, and plans are already being made for the connecting referred to. This will be by running a power line from the Montville station of the Eastern Connecticut Co., to Meriden which is the nearest point where connection could be made with the Devon station of the Connecticut Light & Power Co. The Devon station gives 100,000 horse power with ample facilities for increasing it to 400,000 horse power. The Montville station gives at present about 40,000 horse power, but has possibilities for expansion to 500,000 or 600,000 horse power. With the connection between the eastern and western ends of the system an expansion of the Montville power house is to be expected. The load could then be carried at either end as seemed expedient.

There was no opposition at Friday's hearing to the approval of the proposed merger. It was brought out that the Connecticut Light and Power company will issue 66,912 shares of common stock at $100 for each share to secure the properties of the other companies in the merger. At the close of the hearing the commission reserved its decision.

Attorney Edward M. Day, who represented the Connecticut Light and Power company, emphasied that the proposal was technically a merger and not a consolidation of companies. In explaining the difference in the meaning of the terms Mr. Day said that the companies would be merged with the Connecticut Light and Power company and become a part of the latter company, and that then the corporate existence of each of the merging companies would terminate. The Connecticut Light and Power company would remain intact when it had absorbed the other conipanies. Chairman Higgins remarked that sometimes the terms merger and consolidation were used as if they were synonymous, Mr. Day admitted that was so, but there was a technical difference in their meaning and that the courts had recognized the difference.

J. Henry Roraback, the president of the Connecticut Light and Power company, in a statement to the commission, said that the company's hydro-electric station at Stevenson was completed in 1920 with a total capacity of 30,000 horse-power. The necessity for additional energy for power and lighting purposes led to the building of the Devon station near the mouth of the Housatonic river. This station gave 100,000 horse-power with ample facilities for increasing it to 400,000 horse power. Arrangements led to intimate relations with the New Milford, Woodbury, Meriden and Westport territories, and finally brought about negotiations with the Connecticut Light and Power company for the purchase by it of the franchises and property of the respective companies furnishing electric service in these territories. Mr. Roraback said that very substantial economies can be effected in the management of the light and power business in their various localities if the operating responsibility was placed within the control of one company. The overhead expenses can be reduced, multiplicity of intercorporate accounting can be obviated, and the power production, distribution and sale can all be done through one organization.

RETURNS TO NORWICH TO REMAIN HERE

After a long tour through the country playing with the leading orchestras in every state in the Union, Rafael De Gruttola, well known in Norwich as a leading player of the saxophone and cello, is back home to stay. He is now engaged with the Maccabees, one of the strongest fraternal organizations in America, but in the meantime he practices his profession.

He has studied music from his childhood. Before he came to this country he was one of the distinguished members of the Municipal band of Naples. While in Boston he entered Boston Conservatory of Music, from which he graduated six years ago.

DESTITUTION AMONG JEWISH POPULATION IN POLAND

At the mass meeting to be held at the Buckingham Memorial Sunday afternoon under the leadership of Abner Schwartz, there will be present the popular Rabbi J. D. Jurman, of Waterbury, who will make the principal address. He is well known in Connecticut for his powerful and interesting addresses and usually draws a very large attendance. This meeting is called for the starting of a campaign for the relief of Jews overseas.

According to the latest cables and letters received from Miss Irma May, the United Jewish Campaign special commissioner in Poland, by David A. Brown, the national chairman of the fifteen million dollar drive, the destitution of the Jewish population in Vilna, Lodz, Bialystok and other cities in Poland has reached an unparalleled peak of tragedy.

In Lemberg, capital of Galicia, trade and commerce, on which the livelihood of 80,000 Jews depended, are completely wiped out. Needle trades, painting, shoemaking, are 100 per cent. dead, and starving storekeepers have sold their last possessions, to escape imprisonment for non-payment of taxes.

"The Jews of Galicia," as Miss May sums it up in her cable, "are so exhausted by the terrible situation that they have lost all their resistance and all of their resources. Help—immediate help, is necessary, otherwise it will not be possible to do anything to save them."

BOARD OF RELIEF HEARINGS ABOUT OVER

This is the final day for hearings given by the board of relief for taxpayers who feel aggrieved by the figures that have been put on their property by the assessors. The board of relief sits for three weeks in the assessors' room at the court house and then takes one week to make up its report of the abatements it will allow or the additions it will make to the grand list.

The members of the board are James C. Fitzpatrick, Francis Beique and Robert J. Swanton.

A February Snowdrop.

Thursday afternoon, while there was a foot or more of snow surrounding the piazza at the residence of Mrs. Edward D. Fuller, 263 Broadway, and while sleet was falling, a snowdrop was noticed pushing up to the light. Friday, the courageous little blossom had braved the chilly rain, the fragile plant being up two or three inches—something quite unusual for a snowy February 19th.

To Preach at Willimantic.

By invitation of the rector of St. Paul's Episcopal church, Willimantic, Rev. C. Montgomery Budlong, rector of Christ church, Norwich, is to give the Lenten address at the Willimantic church. Wednesday evening next.

SHORT MOTION LIST BEFORE JUDGE BROWN

Judge Allyn L. Brown heard several motions at the short calendar session of the superior court in New London Friday morning.

The judge ordered that default be opened and that the defendant should file a pleading within one week in the case of Johnson against Wilcox.

In the case of Smith, and others, against the Automobile Insurance Co., of Hartford, in which the motion to separate defenses was argued, the papers were taken by the court.

In the case of the state of Connecticut against John J. McCook, executor, and others, a motion for the termination of continuance was argued by Attorney Arthur M. Brown, representing the state. The judge took the papers on this motion while a second motion for appointment of a committee to assess damages went off.

Textile Engineering Co., against the Braided Thread Corp.; (1) motion to expunge; (2) motion for more specific statement.

Textile Engineering Co., against Still; motion for more specific statement.

Textile Engineering Co., against Still and others; (1) motion to expunge; (a) with respect to answer of Braided Thread Corp.; (b) with respect to answer of G. E. Still, (2) motion for more specific statement with respect to answer of Braided Thread Corp.

H. G. Craig & Co., Ltd., and others against the Uncas Paper Board Co.; (1) motion and approval of sale by receiver to John G. G. Kerry, Toronto, Can. pursuant to order of Dec. 31 1925; (2) approval of receiver's conveyances of real and personal property to John G. G. Kerry; adjudication on mechanic's lien of H. F. & A. J. Dawley.

The following cases went off:

Savings Bank of New London against Livento and others; foreclosure and limitation of time.

Smith, administrator, against Sciabba; judgment by default.

WORKMEN'S CIRCLE GAVE SUCCESSFUL BENEFIT CONCERT

The Community house was filled to capacity Wednesday evening when a benefit concert was given by the Workmen's Circle, which resulted in a great success. The opening number of the program was furnished by D'Atri's Wauregan hotel orchestra with a popular program of musical selections. This was followed by a speech by Mr. Bailin of New York on the good work of the Workmen's Circle. The next number was by Miss Frances Dembo of 96 Washington street, who rendered two piano selections, Sonata Pathetique, first movement, by Beethoven and Second Waltz by Godard. Miss Bessie Shuback of New York entertained with vocal selections accompanied by Mrs. Manes of this city. Rubin Goldberg of New York, the well known humorist and cartoonist, kept the audience in constant laughter with his anecdotes and was accompanied by Miss Frances Dembo in several of his musical sketches. Miss Rose Nemi, also of New York, who was to have sung, was unable to do so because of a severe cold but, Miss Shuback filled her place. By special request of the audience Miss Nemi took part in a comedy sketch with Rubin Goldberg, which was highly appreciated by the audience.

REMEDYING TRAFFIC JAM ON BOSTON POST ROAD

Reasons for widening the Boston Post road from Greenwich to New Haven, engineering difficulties met in the project, and the present condition of the work were given this week by Arthur W. Bushell, engineer of the state highway department, in charge of the plans.

Mr. Bushell, who was formerly division engineer for this section of the state, having his office and residence in Norwich, presented a paper which proved the feature of the opening day's session of the forty-second annual meeting of the Connecticut Society of Civil Engineers, which was held at New Haven.

Mr. Bushell said that the traffic congestion on the Post road was three or four years in advance of projects for full relief but that widening the present turnpike had been decided upon as the most immediate hope of an abatement of the crowded situation. He described the grade changes, removal of the dangerous corners and establishment of new locations in several towns. Mr. Bushell said: The Post road is the principal entrance road to New England from New York city and points south and west. It is the bottle neck through which traffic for Connecticut has to pass, so, if traffic is retarded on the Post road, it affects traffic throughout the whole state and to an extent, all of New England. Consequently the first place to help traffic conditions throughout the state should be on the Post road. Statistics show that traffic has been increased at the rate of twenty per cent. a year so that at present there are double the number of machines on the road than there were five years ago. Last July a traffic census taken on the Post road at Greenwich gave over 16,000 vehicles in twenty-four hours and over 12,000 from 7 a. m., to 7 p. m., an average of 1,000 per hour and at Darien while less than Greenwich, a traffic count gave over 12,000 vehicles in twenty-four hours. Check figures taken during the summer and early fall for twelve hours at a time showed even greater traffic density.

Traffic on the Post road can be loosely divided into slow moving heavy vehicles and fast-moving light vehicles. The congestion, of course, is caused by the slow moving vehicles, or, by trucks, and could be relieved by one of three ways: First, prohibit the use of this road by trucks; second, widen the present traveled way to permit of passing of the trucks without interfering with traffic in the opposite direction, or, third, by providing a parallel route for fast-moving cars. It is obvious that trucks could not be prohibited on the present Post road. The highway is already three or four years behind the traffic demands. A parallel route to the present Post road will have to be located north of it, due to the cost of right of way of property in proximity to the present Post road; and, as we go north away into the country, we immediately run into heavier grades.

Basing the estimate on the curve of population increase and registration rates, in thirty years three and one-half times the present traffic can be expected so that, even if the present highway were double in width, a parallel route would soon be necessary. The pavement on most of the Post road was worn out and needed to be rebuilt. It was decided to widen the present Post road immediately and, after that was finished, to proceed to build a parallel road, making of it a high-speed road or parkway because: First, a widened road could be started immediately and would take care of the congestion as fast as built; second, it could take care of the congestion route carrying both light and heavy traffic; third, a parallel route would naturally connect with a New York route that carried only high-speed traffic, and fourth, because of the question of location and acquiring rights of way. A start was made in 1924, taking the sections of road most congested and most badly needing repair. Five miles were built in Greenwich and Darien, costing $675,000. In 1925, the second year's work, at a cost of $1,200,000, 3.6 miles of pavement were built and property was acquired and fifteen miles of railroad were graded. Next summer it is hoped to build the fifteen miles of road which were graded the past year and grade the remaining sections of road.

ALLEGES DESERTION IN SUIT FOR DIVORCE

Suit for divorce on the ground of desertion has been brought in the superior court by Rowland S. Browning of Franklin against Alice B. Meech Browning of Windham. They were married Dec. 9, 1903, and desertion is alleged on Feb. 7, 1923. The husband asks the custody of five minor children, three sons and two daughters, aged 17, 14, 10, 8 and 5 years. The suit is returnable in March.

Broadcasting From Hartford

A group of New Londoners will broadcast from Station WTIC, Hartford, this (Saturday) evening from 8:30 to 9:30. There will be solos by Mrs. Richard M. Butler, soprano; Miss Estel Barrett, contralto; David Carlyle tenor, and Shirley Beebe, bass. Thomas Rondomanski will play 'celle solos, Walter Cole piano selections and Miss Roberta Bitgood, a sophomore at Connecticut college, will play piano duets with Mr. Cole.

BEGINS LENTEN LUNCHEON ADDRESS AT Y. M. C. A.

Enthusiasm and genuine interest marked the opening of the Friday noon Lenten series at the Norwich Young Men's Christian association. Luncheon was begun at about twelve o'clock, and at 12:25 President James C. Macpherson announced the opening hymn, "Sweet Hour of Prayer." This was followed by prayer by Rev. J. Harlow Graham, of Trinity Methodist church, after which Hugh Kinder, the pianist of the series, sang impressively, "When I Survey the Wondrous Cross," as arranged by himself. Mr. Macpherson, in behalf of the management of the Y. M. C. A., welcomed the audience of business men, and also warmly welcomed Mr. Danforth, who gives the addresses for the fourth season. As Dr. Danforth arose to speak, he was given hearty applause which showed the esteem in which he is held by Norwich men.

The general topic of the series this season is "Power," the special topic of the day being "The Power of the Past." The speaker said in part:

"The general theme of our Lenten talks this year will be Power. It is an essential of all motion and accomplishment. It comes from various sources. We need it every day. Its nature and sources may well engage our attention at these noonday luncheons on Fridays here in the Y. M. C. A.

Power has its space and time relations. It can be conveyed for miles if you have it in the right shape to be transmitted on the wires. It may be got from the stored resources of past ages of the geologic history of earth, if you will dig for it as coal or drill for it as oil. But power we must have.

Today we think of this latter source. It is from the past that we can get much power if we are not of those who foolishly discard the wealth of yesterday.

From the past of our race we have inherited the health of many centuries of life out of doors. Do not pity the savage generations of remote antiquity. Thank them. From those ancestors of ours we gain stored up health. They formed for us the habit of growing up and getting well. The children that grew up became our ancestors. The people who recovered from their wounds lived to fight and work another day. There are lasting mental habits which have come from the past. They had to make careful observations and correct deductions from them in order to understand and meet the perils with which they were surrounded. That is the basis of our science and invention.

Surrounded by the Power that made them they were conscious of their relation with the great unseen universe. All nations and all times have had their faith for God who has not left Himself without witness in any nation or any time. Precious is the Bible of the past. From it we learn the nature of the present and the line of progress toward all that is best in the future. In it we learn of prophets and apostles and of Him who stood between them and stands by us. From what Christ said two thousand years ago we learn to look for Him and find Him too in our own generation. The past has made the road for us, but we must do our own walking. Let us do it."

Dr. Danforth closed the service with a fervant prayer for all men and especially for the Y. M. C. A., as it attempts to be of real service to them. Comments after the service indicated that the message had in a definite way reached the hearts of the men present. The topic for next Friday will be "The Power of the Present."

RESTAURANT STOVE WAS TO BLAME FOR FIRE

For the second time within three days the fire department was called out Friday morning for a fire at the Chinese restaurant over J. B. Caron's store on Main street. Heat from the cook stove was responsible for the fire which was quickly extinguished by the firemen. Some damage to stock and fixtures in Mr. Caron's store was caused by the blaze. The restaurant is preparing to remove into the Fay building and for this reason was allowed to continue in business without making repairs after the first fire.

POLICEMEN SAVED REPORTER FROM MOB OF KLANSMEN

Barred From Meeting in Bridgeport, the Scribe Was Detected on the Roof of the Building, Listening in at a Window—Previously the Police Had Prevented the Klansmen From Interfering With a Reporter—Though the Meeting Was Secret, Large Sums of Money Were Seen Being Paid in by Members.

BRIDGEPORT, Feb. 21—(AP)—More than 1,500 Knights of the Ku Klux Klan, coming from all over Connecticut, Rhode Island and Massachusetts, arriving in automobiles and busses, this afternoon, assembled in the new mosque of Pyramid temple, Nobles of the Mystic Shrine, on State street, in the first "klorero" that has ever been held in this city.

The utmost secrecy guarded the meeting. At the entrance, which was blocked by a large group of klansmen bearing "usher" badges, everyone was stopped and ejected if his due card was not paid up in full. Large sums of money were seen being paid in by members.

Reporters were barred from entering the building. A newspaperman who made his way into rear rooms on the second floor, was saved by policemen from violence on the part of the enraged knights when he was discovered on the roof of the structure, listening in at a window.

An angry mob of klansmen who rushed from the building gathered at the foot of the ladder and seized him when he came within reach. Two officers seeing the members coming from the mosque, arrived just in time to rescue the reporter from the klansmen and escort him to safety.

Later seeking an interview with Dr. Hiram Wesley Evans, of Texas, imperial wizard of the klan, who spoke at the meeting several newspapermen were pushed back. Wizard Evans, however, approached the reporters and made the following statement:

"I am the imperial wizard of the klan and I am here on klan business. The klan is a secret order which has business of its own and which attends to its own business."

The members of the three realms began to arrive late in the morning and continued coming until late in the afternoon. One bus, from Providence, did not arrive until a few minutes before the end of the "klorero."

When the meeting opened the cars were lined up on the sides of the street for a quarter of a mile and were crowded into the parking lot next to the mosque. There were six busses from Providence, R. I., one from Danbury, one from Seymour and several others whose origin could not be learned.

Several of the bus drivers were ignorant of the fact that they were driving klansmen until they arrived in this city. The busses from Providence were chartered by the National Emblem association.

Before the opening of the meeting a reporter was interfered with in taking down the license numbers of the cars in which the klansmen arrived. A delegation was detailed to prevent him in this, but were halted by the intervention of police.

CLERGYMAN PROPOSES A TWENTIETH AMENDMENT

BUFFALO, N. Y., Feb. 21—(AP)—Dr. John Richelson, pastor of the Kenmore Presbyterian church from his pulpit tonight proposed a twentieth amendment to the constitution as a solution to the prohibition problem. This amendment would provide for a national referendum as the need might arise, on any amendment or other portion of the constitution.

Should such a twentieth amendment be passed Dr Richelson said, the country would have the right to vote on the eighteenth amendment and the result of such a vote should be abided by unequivocally.

Speaking as an avowed dry, Dr. Richelson asserted that he was not afraid of the vote of the people and "if the vote of the majority is against the dry position what right have we to insist on dry laws?"

Dr. Richelson said he would take his proposal up with Senator Wadsworth immediately in an effort to enlist his support.

"It were better for this country to repudiate the 18th amendment and the Volstead act" said Dr. Richelson, "than to continue the present gross lawlessness and lack of enforcement due to failure of adequate supporting sentiment; how be it yet we protest solemnly that the best interest of our country would be served by prohibition legislation enforced by public sentiment.

"The morale of the support of the eighteenth amendment is badly shaken. The shock has come not from the enemy, but from the ranks of those who were numbered among the delivered and were presumed to have been singing in the chorus of rejoicing. It will do no good to berate those who differ from us. They are too important to be ignored."

Dr. Richelson referred to the report on prohibition enforcement made by the research department of the federal council of churches as a "body blow" and discussed the stands taken by sections of the Protestant Episcopal church and groups of the Lutheran clergy.

PRESIDENT COOLIDGE IS STILL INDISPOSED

WASHINGTON, Feb. 21.—(AP)—Still a bit under the weather from the cold that has bothered him for several days, President Coolidge remained away from church today although his condition was reported greatly improved.

He paid a brief visit to his office to look over personal mail, and then ventureade outdoors for a trip by automobile to the office of Dr. Charles W. Prichardson, throat and nose specialist whom he visits frequently for treatment.

Full confidence was expressed at the White House that the president would be able to address the department of superintendence of the National Education association here tomorrow night. An extensive hook-up of radio stations has been arranged for broadcasting the speech, which is scheduled to begin shortly after 8 p. m.

$1,500,000 GIFT TO YALE IN HONOR OF C. W. BINGHAM

NEW BRITAIN, Feb. 21—(AP)—A gift of $1,500,000 to Yale university in honor of Charles W. Bingham, class of 1869, of Cleveland, Ohio, from his sons and daughters will be announced by President James Rowland Angell to the graduates here for alumni university day tomorrow.

From the fund a new dormitory to replace Osborn Hall at the corner of Chapel and College streets, diagonally across from Hotel Taft, will be built. The estimated cost will be $500,000 and the dormitory will be known as Charles W. Bingham hall.

From the balance of the fund a portion will be used for maintenance and the remainder placed in the general endowment fund.

WAYNE B. WHEELER GIVES A LITTLE POLITICAL ADVICE

HAGERSTOWN, Md., Feb. 21—(AP)—Governors who can sing the "Star Spangled Banner" are badly needed in New York and Maryland, Wayne B. Wheeler, general counsel of the anti-saloon league of America, declared in an address here today. Mr. Wheeler attack Governors Smith of New York and Ritchie of Maryland for their opposition to the Volstead law.

"The states of Maryland and New York would be better off if their governors would get up and sing the 'Star Spangled Banner', and forget their own song 'How dry I am'," he said.

In appealing to his audience to organize and vote for candidates who would support prohibition measures, Mr. Wheeler denied that prohibition had been a failure except to brewers, distillers, saloonkeepers, bar tenders and brothel keepers.

"It has been a success to the masses," he declared. "It has made America the richest nation in the world."

Mr. Wheeler denied that states had no obligation in enforcing prohibition and quoted from a decision of the supreme court of Massachusetts, which held that concurrent power is conferred on congress and the several states to enforce the law of the nation and that it is their duty to do so.

George W. Crabbe, state superintendent of the Anti-Saloon league of Maryland, asserted that prohibition has already "worked wonders". In Maryland, but that it had not been given a fair trial.

OSTRICH FEATHERS ON PARIS SPRING MILLINERY

PARIS, Feb. 21—(AP)—Ostrich feathers have followed rooster feathers into favor with Paris milliners as part of a general reaction of spring styles against the too-simple hat, toques tastefully adorned with flowing plumes are appearing in increasing numbers among the favorite models displayed at the great millinery and dressmaking exhibitions and in shop windows.

It will take a long time, milliners admit, to make the Parisienne abandon her prejudice against the mountainous, topheavy headdress which ostrich feathers suggest to her, but the fashion is already showing signs of success. Small hats of violet with turquoise blue feather hanging over the right ear are the ruling models.

BRIDE AND GROOM FOUND DEAD OF ILLUMINATING GAS

NEW YORK, Feb. 21.—(AP)—Surrounded by half opened packages containing dozens of wedding presents, Pablo Rodergyez, 25, and his bride of a night, Nadavedo, 23, were ound dead in bed from illuminating gas in their East Side home when friends called to congratulate them today.

Police expressed the belief that after the guests had gone home from the wedding, which took place late at night, the bride and groom stayed up to examine their presents. The string which had secured one of the packages was found caught about the handle of an open burner of a gas range, where it apparently had been tangled without the knowledge of the bridal pair.

NEW PENAL CODE MAY BE ADOPTED IN SPAIN

MADRID, Feb. 21—(AP)—The big criminal faces life imprisonment while the shortcomin gof the small fry is merely a misdemeanor under the modified, modernized, penal code about to be introduced in Spain to replace the present antiquated system.

Under the old code all thieves, petty and big, were subject to severe penalties.

The new code differentiates between petty larceny of ten pesetas ($1.50) or less which will be a misdemeanor, and the greater crimes.

Larceny of more than ten pesetas will be penalied gradually so that he who gets away with 1,000,000 pesetas ($150,000) or more faces life imprisonment.

DARTMOUTH STUDENTS HELPED EXTINGUISH FIRE

HANOVER, N. H., Feb. 21—(AP)—More than 300 Dartmouth students and townspeople turned out before dawn today to subdue a blaze which caused estimated damage of $40,000 to the Allen Drug store building here. The flames were extinguished after a two hour battle.

ALICANTE, Spain, Feb. 21—(AP)—The almond harvest is in full swing and exceeds all expectations. The United States still remains the principal buyer of Spanish almonds. Artists have seized upon the opportunity and are to be seen in the orchards reproducing in oil and pencil the picturesque gatherers of the fruit.

RAILROAD BROTHERHOODS TO SOLVE HOUSING PROBLEM

CLEVELAND, Feb. 21—The American Home Builders Inc., a financial institution, national in scope, through which labor under the direction of officials of railroad brotherhoods hopes to solve the workers housing problem has been launched with headquarters here, it was announced today. The purpose of the organization, an Ohio corporation, capitalized at one million dollars, is "to reduce the cost of home ownership to workers and to originate safe and profitable investments."

Walter F. McCaleb, one of the founders of the labor banking movement is president of the home buildings, W. G. Lee, president of the Brotherhood of Railroad Trainmen is chairman of the board and L. E. Sheppard, president of the Order of Railway Conductors and ten other transportation brotherhood officials are members of the board of directors.

In addition to the board of directors an advisory council of thirteen is composed of prominent business men and brotherhood officials.

Five branches have been opened in Buffalo, Toledo, Columbus, Cincinnati and Marion, O., others in New York, Syracuse, and Jersey City are in process of organization.

The brotherhoods are in no way identified with the movement other than their members becoming stockholders and officials of the home builders, Mr. Lee said today.

TO SEEK A REPRIEVE FOR GERALD CHAPMAN

HARTFORD, Feb. 21—(AP)—Stay of Gerald Chapman's hanging, set for one week from Wednesday, will be sought tomorrow by Frederick J. Groehl, chief of defense counsel, who will confer with State's Attorney Hugo M. Alcorn in Hartford in an attempt to have Mr. Alcorn agree to a reprieve.

Petition for a writ of certiorari which will bring the case to the supreme court of the United States has been drawn. It is being printed preparatory to filing of the appeal. Counsel Groehl and Ray M. Wiley, of Springfield, of the defense counsel, were in Washington Saturday in conference with Assistant U. S. Attorney General Donovan. They will confer in Hartford tomorrow with Joseph M. Freedman, also of the defense counsel.

Following this the matter of the reprieve will be presented to Mr. Alcorn.

"Until Mr. Groehl confers with me I have no comment to make," Mr. Alcorn said tonight.

It is understood that Governor Trumbull will not return to Connecticut from St. Petersburg, Fla., until the latter part of the week. He expects to leave again March 2, the day before the execution scheduled at Wethersfield.

41 ARRESTS FOR NATION-WIDE LIQUOR CONSPIRACY

CLEVELAND, O., Feb. 21—(AP)—Arrest of the forty-first person in the alleged nation-wide liquor conspiracy under federal grand jury investigation here and apprehension of another suspect who turned government witness were the only known developments over the week end.

District Attorney A. E. Bernsteen is not expected to return from the east until after reconvening of the grand jury Tuesday. He is preparing an indictment covering at least 100 overt acts and including names of between 20 and 100 persons.

The latest arrest reported was in St. Paul late yesterday when Morris Goldberg was taken into custody in connection with the phase of the alleged conspiracy uncovered in "the twin cities million dollar rum ring." When authorities prepared to arrest another suspect in a mid-western city, he promised to tell what he knew of the case. His testimony is expected to bring more names into the case which has already involved to some extent or other more than 1,000 names. At present it is believed more than one hundred will be indicted.

Rev. Paul Eugene Roy

QUEBEC, Feb. 21—(AP)—The Most Rev. Paul Eugene Roy, Archbishop of Quebec, and Roman Catholic primate of Canada, died last night in St. Francois D'Assize hospital here after a long illness.

Coming from a family which gave to the Catholic church four other priests and a sister, Paul Eugene Roy was born at Berthier, Quebec, November 9, 1859. He was seventh son. One of his brothers is Mgr. Camille Roy, rector of Laval university, Quebec. He was ordained a priest in 1886 by Cardinal Taschereau, but it was not until 1890 that he was given a charge, and was then appointed parish priest of St. Anne at Hartford, Conn. He held that incumbency for nine years.

He was called to Quebec in 1899 by Cardinal Begin, whom he succeeded as Archbishop of Quebec on the latter's death last July.

Scott Nearing Had Trouble in Boston

Returned, After Arrest, and Spoke From Steps of Hall That the Police Had Closed.

BOSTON, Feb. 21—(AP)—Scott Nearing, author and lecturer, was escorted to the nearest police box when he started to speak on the streets here today, but finally returned to deliver an address to a throng of several hundred persons in front of Paine Memorial hall, from which he had been barred by the police. The hall was closed on reports that an attempt would be made to hold an indignation meeting there for Anthony Bimba, Lithuanian lecturer, who faces trial for blasphemy in Brockton next Wednesday under an ancient Massachusetts statute.

Arriving from New York today to find his meeting cancelled, Nearing visited the district police station and secured permission to speak in the street if he "didn't block traffic."

He returned to the hall steps and began his address, but Sergeant Charles W. Miller and Patrolman Mc-Nally assigned to watch the hall, halted the meeting by ordering the speaker to a patrol box. McNally's conversation with the station house was not made public by the police, but amid the jeers of the crowd Nearing was released and returned to finish his address.

He did not mention the Bimba case, confining himself chiefly to the work of the committee for the recognition and defense of soviet Russia, which arranged for the meeting. The gathering broke up in an orderly manner.

100TH ANNIVERSARY OF THE PRINCETON ALUMNI ASS'N

PRINCETON, N.J., Feb. 21—(AP)—Princeton alumni today opened the celebration of the 100th anniversary of the founding of the Princeton Alumni association with a special chapel service in Alexander hall. Dr. Sam Higginbottom, class of 1903, principal of Allahabad Agricultural Institute, India, was the preacher. Dr. Higginbottom told of Princeton's place in helping solve the problems of modern India and paid tribute to the alumni who have taken high places in public life.

Today's activities included an organ recital by Dr. Alexander Russel, university organist, and vespers conducted by President John Grier Hibben.

Several hundred graduates have returned and more are expected for the ceremonies tomorrow. In addition to a program of sports and the selection of two trustees, a picture of James Madison, class of 1771, first president of the aulmni, will be unveilde.

TO DETERMINE WHETHEH DOG HAD THE RABIES

BRANFORD, Feb. 21—(AP)—A collie dog, which had bitten two women and had killed a number of chickens, was killed near the residence of Philip McKeon today. The head is to be sent to the state laboratories to determine whether the dog was a victim of rabies.

Mrs. Edward Danberg, one of those injured, was attacked in the center of the town after the animal had been chased away from the chicken coops of L. Barthomoleus. A short time later Mrs. Eugene Bohen was bitten.

WASHINGTON

He bore the noblest title man may hold;
"The father of his country"—Washington,
Whose name, bright as the freedom that he won,
Still rings today as in the days of old.
No thought of greed or gain lived in his mind,
No selfish personal ambition bore
Him to the heights that he achieved; his store
Of wisdom labored only for mankind.
He looked into the years ahead, and saw
His well-beloved country struggling
To carry out the hope of Freedom's law,
Laid down by him prosperity to bring.
Washington, we salute you! Now, as then
You stand for freedom to your fellow men.

Warns of Tax Increase At the End of This Year

Chairman Green, of the House Committee, Declares $387,000,000 Tax Reduction Will Create a Deficit.

WASHINGTON, Feb. 21—(AP)—A warning that an increase in taxes may be necessary at the end of a year was issued today by Chairman Green of the house ways and means committee, with final action by congress on the pending $387,000,000 tax reduction bill in prospect early this week.

The statement was aimed at terms of the bill as finally agreed upon between representatives of the senate and house, and Mr. Green, who headed the house conferees, insisted that, for the condition he predicted, "the responsibility must rest upon the senate."

Representative Green is known to have opposed strenuously, the senate provision for a retroactive reduction in the inheritance tax, accepted by the other house conferees to obtain restoration to the bill of the new inheritance levy, which the senate had voted to repeal.

Some house members, including Representative Newton, republican, Minnesota, have declared they will seek to have the bill sent back to conference with instructions that the retroative provisions be eliminated and stubborn fight is expected when the compromise bill comes up for final approval in the house Tuesday. Leaders believe, however, that it will be accepted both in the house and senate promptly.

Revised treasury calculations, Mr. Green said today, show that the bill will result in an estimated loss of revenue of $309,000,000 in the fiscal year 1927, which begins next July 1, and will cut receipts in the remainder of the current fiscal year ending June 30 by $109,000,000.

"The estimated surplus for the fiscal year 1927, when the budget estimate was made was $330,307,000." Mr. Green continued "but this does not take into consideration large additions which will probably be made to the expenditures listed in the budget."

TENTH ANNIVERSARY OF THE BATTLE OF VERDUN

VERDUN, France, Feb. 21—(AP)—A solemn ceremony commemorating the tenth anniversary of the Battle of Verdun was held today at the tomb of Colonel Driant, heroic leader of the vanguard of the defense, who with hundreds of his "blue devils," lost his life in the effort that turned the tide against the Germans.

A number of organizations of ex-soldiers met and adopted resolutions called upon President Doumergue to use his influence to shorten "the sterile labor of the politicians" and reestablish the financial equilibrium of France.

Fascists took advantage of the anniversary to hold a meeting at which they adopted a resolution demanding "the suppression of parliamentarism" and the establishment of a dictature chosen by former combatants. The socialists and communists held simultaneous meetings, which were without incident.

EXTENSIVE IMPROVEMENTS ARE TO BE MADE IN HAVANA

HAVANA, Feb. 21.—(AP)—Plans for beautifying Havana submitted to Secretary of Public Works Carlos Miguel De Cespedes by M. Jean Forestier, French expert, call for extensive changes throughout the city.

M. Forestier's plans provide for a number of wide streets and beauty spots throughout the city. One of them is a miniature park surrounding the recently completed Maine merorial monument, at the entrance to the Vedado, Havana's most popular residential section.

MAN AND WOMAN SHOT DEAD IN FAMILY FIGHT IN A PROVIDENCE TENEMENT

PROVIDENCE, R. I., Feb. 21.—(AP)—A man and woman were shot to death and a second man, father of the woman, seriously wounded, in a family fight staged in a tenement at 94 Cedar street early tonight. Police are looking for the woman's husband, Joseph Geanetti, aged 34, whom they allege did the shooting when the others tried to eject him from the house.

The dead are Mrs. Lucia Geanetti, 30, mother of three children, and her uncle-in-law, Rafalli Bevilacqua, aged 57 years. Francesco Colasanta, aged 59, father of the woman, was shot twice in the abdomen and is in a serious condition at the Rhode Island hospital. Bevilacqua was hit twice in the chest and died almost instantly. Mrs. Geanetti was wounded twice in the abdomen and once in the forearm. She died half an hour after the shooting, as she was being admitted to the hospital.

The Geanettis were married about four months ago but lived together for but two months in a rooming house. The woman had been married twice before and divorced. Since her her separation from Geanetti she has lived with her parents while Geanetti continued to live in different rooming houses.

Tonight, members of the family say, Geanetti came to the Cedar street tenement and at once began an argument as to who should repay $200 which he and Lucia had borrowed when they were married. The family refused to talk with him and ordered him to leave the tenement. He is alleged to have backed to a door off the kitchen and then began firing. His first shots struck Bevilacqua, then his wife and then his father-in-law, Frank Angelo, a boarder, was in the house at the time but says he did not witness the actual shooting.

500 WILD ELK ARE BEING SHIPPED TO MASSACHUSETTS

Are Being Transported From Montana—They Occupy Ten Large Sized Baggage Cars—The Cars Are Heated by Steam and Have Electric Lights—Consignees Propose to Raise Elk on a Commercial Basis For the Marketing of Meat.

CHICAGO, Feb. 21—(AP)—In specially equipped cars, 50 wild elk from the government ranges in the Flathead Indians reservation near Moise, Montana, claimed to be the largest shipment of wild animals ever recorded, passing through here tonight en route to Middleboro, Mass.

The elk were in ten large-sized baggage cars and the train was rushed through by the Northern Pacific and Burlington roads on passenger schedules.

The animals' horns were sawed off, their cars were steam heated and electric lighted and the car floors were shorn of the usual stripping lest the small feet of the elk were caught. The lights were kept burning because elk are said to be tamer in the light than in the dark.

Their destination is the 22,000 acre tract in Massachusetts owned by Percy R. and M. A. Jones, brothers, who are paying transportation costs.

LARGEST SHIPMENT OF WILD ANIMALS IN HISTORY

MIDDLEBORO, Mass., Feb. 21.—(AP)—The largest shipment of live wild animals in the history of this country will reache its destination tomorrow when 400 elk from the Dixon National Bison Range, Moiese, Montana, are brought by special train to the Nemasket range here. To provide succulent elk steaks for the eastern market is the ultimate object of the Elk Breeding and Grazing association which sponsored the project.

The elk will cover the distance from Montana to Middleboro in slightly over 70 hours, barring unforeseen delays.

Percy R. Jones, of Middleboro, president of the association, is in charge of the shipment with an official of the Franklin Park Zoo, Boston, as expert adviser. On the Nemasket range, where already there is the nucleus of a herd, the elk will be kept, bred and fatted for market.

The Elk Breeding and Grazing association, which took over last year the partnership of E. B. Jones and Sons here, claims to be the only firm in the world which is raising elk on a commercial basis for the purpose of marketing the meat. The land was fenced in November, 1924, and the first herd of nine elk was brought here from Rushville, Ill., early in 1912. Officials of the association claim that elk thrive on less food than any other member of the deer family or any other animal near their size, are immune to disease, "dress heavier" than any other animal, and yield a meat far superior to any other on the market."

Wild elk, which once ranged over the greater part of the North American continent, were banished from eastern Massachusetts before the days of the Pilgrims by the large Indian population of the Atlantic coast. The last elk in the east was killed about 30 years ago near Yardley, Pa. Breeders claim that while the whole of New England is adapted to the raising of the animals, Massachusetts, part of Connecticut and a part of Rhode Island are more suitable than the northerly section, where the underbrush and small growth are less dense. In the coastal area, swept by storms from the sea, the snowfall is lighter and the small browse which constitute the greater part of the elks' winter food, is more accessible.

"SNIPER MANIAC" OF OMAHA HAS DISAPPEARED

OMAHA, Neb., Feb. 21—(AP)—Omaha and Council Bluffs residents breathed easier today in the belief that the "sniper maniac" who police believe has killed two, wounded two and shot at several persons during the past week, has disappeared.

Not a trace of the "sniper" or a report of his activities have come to the attention of police since Friday night when Rose Johnston was shot and seriously wounded in the Wabash railroad yards at Council Bluffs. Although police found a .22 calibre cartridge near the scene of the shooting—the same calibre cartridge which has been found near the bodies of his other victims, William McDevitt and Dr. A. S. Searles—some believe Johnston, a Wabash special agent, had been mistaken for another who was attacked several months ago.

For the first time in a week, the "maniac's" activities failed to get the "streemer" in Omaha papers Sunday morning. Many newspapermen who were quite positive there was some connection between the shootings now believe that either the "sniper" had gone or that the murders were the result of grudges. Police, however, continue to scour the cities, arresting suspects. No definite clues have been obtained.

SLENDERIZING PROVING HARMFUL TO WOMEN

NEW YORK, Feb. 21—(AP)—The American woman, who grew slender to win the approving smile of fashion has drawn upon herself the disapproving frown of science by that same action.

Spurred by reports of widespread ill health among women who diet too much to conform to the slender styles of the present, twenty-five eminent physicians and scientists open a two day conference in New York tomorrow with the hope of evolving a normal weight scale for adults.

The conference was called by the American Medical association at the request of the Delineator Magazine. It resulted from attempts to answer about 20,000 letters from women to the magazine. Which "revealed the alarming fact that this fad for slenderness which has swept the country to its remotest villages constitutes an actual menace to the health of America's womanhood and potential motherhood," said the official announcement of the conference which was issued today.

DRIVE BY SOME SENATORS AGAINST WORLD COURT

CHICAGO, Feb. 21—(AP)—A drive by senators opposing American adherence to the world court to bring about the defeat in the coming campaigns of senators who supported that proposal was formally launched here tonight by Senator Reed, democrat, Missouri.

Speaking at a Washington birthday celebration at Palmer House, Senator Reed denounced the court and the method by which the issue was forced to a vote in the senate through the invoking of the cloture rule.

"I appeal from the 'gag' rule of the senate to the 'unmuzzled' judgment and voice of the American people," Senator Reed said. "My prediction and my hope is that every man who voted for this iniquitous measure and supported these tyrannical and outrageous methods will be defeated for reelection.

"To all of them, I recommend to the voters a vigorous application of the maxim of Donnybrook fair.

"'Wherever you see a head, hit it.'"

TWO MEN WERE BURNED TO DEATH IN HOTEL FIRE

EAST ST. LOUIS, Ill., Feb. 21—(AP)—The charred bodies of B. Lee Cato, 52, a civil engineer, and H. L. Cole, 62, hotel clerk, were removed today by firemen from the ruins of the Arnold hotel which was destroyed by the fire early Saturday.

Although it is impossible to make a complete checkup of hotel guests, it is believed only two perished in the flames, no one else is reported missing. The fire caused damage estimated at $10,000.

FORMER N. L. BASE SAILOR MURDERED IN PHILADELPHIA

PHILADELPHIA, Feb. 21—(AP)—E. T. Gill, chief machinists mate, United States Navy, who was found unconscious on the street last night with a fractured skull, died today. Police believe he was murdered, and that robbery was the motive. The position of the injury, they said, indicated that he had been struck from the rear.

Gill was married and his home was in Oswego, N. Y. He was attached to the submarine N-1, stationed at the Philadelphia navy yard.

A number of persons have been questioned in connection with the case, but no arrests have been made. The detectives are searching for a member of a gang known as "The Sluggers," who was said to have been seen washing away a pool of blood on the sidewalk where Gill was found shortly after he was taken to a hospital.

Gill died without regaining consciousness. Shipmates said he had quite a large sum of money when he left the navy yard. Only a small amount of change was found in his clothing.

Navy yard officials are aiding the police and are also conducting an independent investigation of the case.

OSWEGO, N. Y., Feb. 21—(AP)—Chief Machinist's Mate Edward T. Gill, U. S. Navy, who was fatally injured last night in Philadelphia, was a native of this city, and had been attached to the submarine service of the navy for 10 years. For several years he had been attached to the Submarine Base at New London, Conn., and recently was given a temporary assignment at Philadelphia.

Accompanied by Mrs. Gill and a naval detail, the body will be brought to this city.

FOUR PROHIBITION EMPLOYES TO BE DRAFTED IN CONN.

HARTFORD, Feb. 21—(AP)—Lack of appropriations for federal prohibition enforcement will result this week in the dropping of four agents from the employ of the government in the Connecticut district, it was announced tonight. This will bring the working staff of agents down to ten men from an original fifteen, one man being dropped three weeks ago.

The work of these men has not been confined to investigation of infractions of the prohibition law, but they have functioned as overseers in the removal of all supplies of alcohol, and have supervised conditions pertaining to proper use of permits to handle alcohol and liquor. Whether this reduction in the staff here is to be followed by general reduction measures throughout the country in keeping with some new policy of General Andrews, is not known. Advance notice has been received at the Connecticut headquarters and the deputy administrator is awaiting its confirmation.

RAID WAS DIRECTED BY POLICE COMMISSIONER

NEW YORK, Feb. 21—Leaving his wife to wait for him in their automobile in the street, Police Commissioner McLaughlin personally directed a raid early this morning on the Howard Rest, a Brooklyn cabaret, where Elsie Regan, who was found murdered in a snowbank in Manhattan had been employed as a dancer.

Three men were arrested and held for arraignment later. They were Edward J. Rose, a waiter, charged with selling liquor; Frank North, manager of the cabaret, and Moe Koenig charged with impairing the morals of a minor, when the commissioner found his 5 year old daughter, Doris Koenig asleep at a table in the cabaret.

DANIELSON

EARLY MORNING FIRE AT BOUCHER RESTAURANT

(Special to The Bulletin.)

DANIELSON, Feb. 21—The peace of a quiet Sunday morning was disturbed, just after 6 o'clock, by an alarm from Box 24, for a blaze in the rear of the restaurant of J. J. Boucher, in the A. E. Withington property, corner of Main and Furnace street—a real danger spot.

Smoke pouring out of the frame building, which is flanked on all sides by other wooden structures, caught the eye of Chief John McFarland, who was standing almost directly across the street near the gatetender's station at the Main street crossing. Chief McFarland pulled in an alarm from the box just across the tracks, and when the firemen came Chief A. P. Woodward immediately ordered an attack with water. The situation was too dangerous for dependence on chemicals, for a fire in this part of the borough, once out of control, has unlimited possibilities.

In the meantime, Chief McFarland had aroused residents in apartments in the Winkleman block and in the Danielson inn as a precaution in the interest of their safety in case the fire should get out of control.

The department made short work of the blaze and were back in quarters well within an hour. No accurate estimate of the damage was available Sunday, but it is probably not in excess of $500. A pipe leading from a baker's oven is believed to have become overheated and caused the fire.

It was of interest to citizens to know that the Captain Put pumper was back in service to cope with the fire, after being temporarily disabled by the collapse of a forward wheel in returning from a fire of the past week. A new wheel was obtained Friday and put on at once.

There was some comment of onlookers that the response of the department for the Sunday morning fire was slow. Everything considered, it only seemed so. Danielson has a volunteer department. No firemen are constantly on duty at the central station. Nevertheless, the big pumper was moving out of the station in 4 minutes and 10 seconds after the alarm came in. That does not compare with the speed in getting out achieved by the department on daytime alarms, when they are frequently on their way within one minute of the sounding of the alarm, but it is mighty good time, however slow it might have seemed to nervous onlookers Sunday morning.

Men who are suddenly awakened, have to dress and get from their homes to the station do as mighty well when they do it as fast as they did Sunday morning. Doubters of this may try it some time and check themselves for speed.

TAYLOR-PATE MARRIAGE AT ST. ALBAN'S CHURCH

(Special to The Bulletin.)

DANIELSON, Feb. 21—At St. Alban's church, Saturday afternoon at 3 o'clock, Miss Elsie Alfreda Pate, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Alfred Pate of the West Side, and Hubert Taylor, son of Mr. and Mrs. Fred T. Taylor of High street, were united in marriage by the rector, Rev. Leonard R Richards. Miss Helen Cronin, student at Mt St. Vincent's college on the Hudson and a former classmate of the bride at Killingly High school, was the bridesmaid. Alfred Pate, a brother of the bride, was best man.

The bride's gown was a handsome creation of peach colored georgette over silver and was caught up with silver flowers. The hat was to match. The bridesmaid wore a salmon mesaline frock. Her hat was a picture model in black satin. The bride and bridesmaid wore corsage bouquets of Ophelia rosas. About 200 relatives and friends of the bride and groom witnessed the marriage ceremony. Mrs. F. O. Arnington, organist, played the wedding music.

Following the marriage there was a reception at the home of the bride's parents. Theb ridal party left here in the early evening for Providence, where a wedding dinner was served at the Providence Biltmore hotel.

Mr. and Mrs. Taylor returned hers Sunday afternoon, having deferred their honeymoon trip to a later date.

The bride, a former student at Killingly High school and a graduate of Fairhaven, Mass., High school in the class of 1923, received many beautiful gifts.

Mr. and Mrs. Taylor are to make their home in Danielson, where the groom is assistant to his father, superintendent of the finishing department of the Paco Manufacturing company.

Alphonse Pelletier, 73, one of the first French-Canadians to settle in Danielson, died Saturday morning just after 10 o'clock at the home of his daughter, Mrs Bertine Gosselin, at 129 Quebec square, on the West Side. He had been in failing health for some time. For many years Mr. Pelletier, who had lived here close to half a century, had been in the employ of the Quinebaug company as an outside man. He was a consistent and faithful worker, a good citizen and a man of many appealing qualities. Mr. Pelletier came here from Canada as a young man and elected to remain here the remainder of his life. He was a member of St. James' parish. Mr. Pelletier leaves the following children: Mrs. Bertine Gosselin, Amadee, of Lonsdale, Mass., Napoeleon, Mrs. Evelyn DeForest, Mrs. Odna Beaudoin and Mrs. Marion Muray, all of Danielson. Mrs. Pelletier died a number of years ago.

Details of the annual report of the Goodyear Tire and Rubber company have come to the many stockholders of the concern in Killingly, where a subsidiary of the big corporation, The Goodyear Mills, Inc., is located.

These reports show that the total net sales, less returns, discounts and freights, all inter-company sales excluded, amounted the past year to $205,996,828.57. The total profits of the year were $21,005,598.84. The surplus on December 31, of last year, was $36,649,218.95.

While no forecasts are made as to the prospects of earnings during 1926, there is evidence here in Killingly that the big corporation is very busy and probably headed for new high records of sales. The mill at Goodyear is running to capacity, has a night as well as a day force, and is one of the very important industrial assets of this town.

Those hopeful that the state might make Blackwell's brook a leased stream have little promise that this will be accomplished this year. This brook, running from Elliott's down through Brooklyn and into the town of Plainfield is one of the best natural trout brooks in Southern New England. It is a wonder brook in a great many ways; an ideal for use in such intensive stocking as the state of Connecticut is now undertaking. But the development of such a plan as the state has entered upon involves much work and negotiation before a brook is ready to be listed as "leased" and to be stocked and patrolled. It is not too much to expect that Blackwell's brook eventually will be listed among the leased streams of the state. Probably it may attain that favored position next year. At least that is the hope of sportsmen here's outs.

In the meantime, trout fishermen will tell you that all the good brooks hereabouts will benefit by the intensive stocking of Snake Meadow brook, to the east of Danielson, naturally the fishermen will flock there this year. When they are fishing there they will not be fishing elsewhere, so the brooks that that neglected will improve as prospectively good fishing and that, likely, is just what will happen.

Mrs. E. H. Keach of Broad street is to have the members of the Fortnightly club at her home for a meeting Tuesday afternoon.

Thursday afternoon of this week the Roundabout club is to meet with Mrs. John A. Gilbert of Spring street.

Mr. and Mrs. L. E. Kennedy are entertaining Mr. and Mrs. Michael Comiskey of Worcester and Miss Nellie Sullivan of Hartford over Washington's birthday.

Danielson is interested in the suggestion that it is a pagan town—but it is far from believing it, and it isn't and never has been since Christianity first was preached in this area. Exceptions do not prove a rule, in this particular case.

Mrs. Lawrence Thayer (Maude Pilling), who died suddenly at her home in Holbrook, Mass. She was a resident of Danielson in her early years and a student at Killingly High school. Mrs. Thayer was a niece of Luther Pilling and Miss Emma F. Pilling of North Main street.

Probably as many people hit the ground unexpectedly Sunday as have done so any day this winter. A light fall of snow that came during the night covered ice and made walking particularly treacherous.

Miss Katherine J. Thayer of Putnam spent Sunday with Mr. and Mrs. J. C. Witter of Cottage street.

In observance of Washington's birthday there should and probably will be a generous display of flags in Danielson today.

Officer John Ryan, dead at his home in Putnam after a brief illness, had many friends here, who regret his passing so unexpectedly.

Sunday afternoon there was a funeral service at St. James' church at 2 o'clock for Dorothy Evelyn Panizzi, infant daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Fred Panizzi, who died on the West Side. Rev. F. X. Richards, M. S., read the service. The body was entombed at Holy Cross cemetery. D. E. Kennedy was in charge of the funeral arrangements.

Deep ruts, walled by ice, on many streets of the borough make them, in effect, one-way thoroughfares, for it is almost impossible to get car out of the ruts once one ventures into them. The situation is one that irritates drivers, but there appears to be no particular or immediate help for it.

This week brings the closing sessions of Killingly's board of relief, which has been sitting throughout the month to hear the complaints of those who would appeal from the ratings fixed by the board of assessors.

PUTNAM

ENGINEER ATTEMPTS SUICIDE —IS TAKEN TO NORWICH

(Special to The Bulletin.)

PUTNAM, Feb. 21 — Addison L. Tourtelotte, a New Haven locomotive engineer, attempted suicide Saturday by turning on the gas in a cooking range, at his home on Chapman street. He inhaled enough of it to render him unconscious, fell against the coal range and was severely burned. He was discovered in this condition by members of his family. Upon being restored to consciousness and physicians summoned, his mental derangement was so pronounced that he was taken to the state hospital at Norwich.

Mr. Tourtelotte's health has been impaired for several years and worry over this brought on an attack of high blood pressure which led him to attempt to end his life.

He has been in the employ of the New Haven railroad for many years and was regarded as capable and trustworthy. Besides his wife there are three children all of whom are highly esteemed. They came up Putnam about eight years ago from East Thompson. The father's continued ill health has preyed on his mind and to this alone is attributed his attempt to make away with himself.

TWO ACCIDENTS RESULT FROM FALLS ON SUNDAY

(Special to The Bulletin.)

PUTNAM, Feb. 21—Mrs. Margaret Hand, who is cook at the boarding house at the Cranska Mills at Moosup, slipped and fell when getting out of an automobile, this morning and broke her leg. She was brought to the Day Kimball hospital where the fracture was reduced.

Mrs. Rose del Pasco, 43, slipped on the ice near her home in Danielson and sustained a badly fractured right ankle. She is now a patient at the Day Kimball hospital.

GILPATRIC SHOWS FATIGUE AFTER WEEK'S EXAMINATION

(Special to The Bulletin.)

PUTNAM, Feb. 21—G. Harold Gilpatric was tired out, after nearly a week of continuous questioning regarding his transactions extending over a period of years that had brought about the wrecking of the First National Bank. He showed his weariness on Saturday morning, and welcomed the rest that came in noon. Receiver George M. Coffin went to New York Saturday afternoon and as Monday is a bank holiday he will not return until Monday evening when he will again take up the records of the bank with Gilpatric in an endeavor to account for the $91,000 which has disappeared and left no trace.

Speaking of the former cashier, Mr. Coffin said that he thought Mr. Gilpatric was doing the best he could handicapped as he is by being blind and carrying a bullet in his brain. He said Gilpatric showed the evidence of the ordeal he had been through the past week and that he had told him he had not slept Friday night because of worry over the construction that had been placed on his remark "that he had kept $100,000 on hand to play with."

"What he meant," continued the receiver, "was that he kept $100,000 of state funds in New York or Boston banks in order to facilitate settlement for Liberty Bonds purchased by the state. There was nothing wrong about this practice.

"It is my mission to recover as much as possible of all monies due the First National Bank and I can get more help from Mr. Gilpatric if he is as fit as possible both mentally and physically.

"It was the $200,000 purchase of Liberty Bonds that Gilpatric at the hearing this week testified he had delivered to the state treasury, after that state had ordered $300,000 more of these bonds, eighteen months later. Gilpatric was not able to inform the receiver where the $300,000 was expended, there being an apparently unexplained shortage of $91,000, and the receiver is most anxious to ascertain what happened to this money before inquiry is started along other lines.

Mr Coffin added that no effort had been made to check the Victory Loan Bonds, the fifth issue, made by Gilpatric for the state.

The newly formed Masonic Club, which lately took over the club house of the Arcanum club, is steadily growing in membership, due to the attractive program arranged by those at the head of the organization. The membership roll is now 121.

At a special meeting Friday night more than fifty per cent of the members were in attendance and arrangements were consummated for tournaments in billiards, pool, whist, cribbage, checkers and chess.

It has been decided to remodel the upper floors that it can be used for dancing or card parties. The work of alteration will be begun immediately.

Joseph Cadell, an employe of the Edward Bloom Silk company left yesterday for the Newport Naval hospital for treatment for a stomach trouble in the service during the World War. Mr. Cabell came to Putnam from Rhode Island about a year ago and has been in very poor health for some time. A few weeks ago Mrs. Cadell with her baby died in a Worcester hospital, the mother leaving five children. Mr. Cabell's parents will care for the children while he is seeking to have his health restored.

PATROLMAN JOHN T. RYAN DIES FROM PNEUMONIA

(Special to The Bulletin.)

PUTNAM, Feb. 21—Patrolman John T. Ryan, 53, of the police force of the city died Saturday night at his home on South Main street from pneumonia. He had been off duty for six days because of illness, which began with a severe attack of grip. Not until three days ago had his condition become alarming.

He was born in Tipperary, Ireland and came to this country as a young man. He is survived by his wife and five children, the two eldest are children of a former marriage, his first wife having died before he came to Putnam, twelve years ago from Rhode Island, to enter the employ of the Manhasset company. Two years after he married Katherine Rogers of this city. He has been a patrolman for the past three years.

United States Deputy Collector of Internal Revenue Leon T. Wilson, of Putnam will be in this city from Feb. 23 to 27 inclusive, for the purpose of assisting the general public in making out income tax returns for the year 1925. Mr. Wilson will be at the Council chamber in the municipal building as he was last year. No charge will be made for this service.

Mrs. A. Vanetsky and Mrs. N. S. Bradford who were in charge of the annual valentine tea given under the auspices of the Women's Board of the Day-Kimball hospital will have over $1,000 to add to the treasury of the board. This is the largest amount ever made at any one of these annual events. In addition to the large amount taken in at the hall there were several substantial checks received to help swell the proceeds.

Mrs. Joseph Menahan of Newport, R. I., is the guest of her parents, Mr and Mrs. Richard Gilbert.

Mrs. John Kenyon and Mrs. Lawrence Bassett and daughter of Dayville, have been guests of Mrs. Eno of Bouquet.

The Ladies' Aid Society of the Baptist church is to meet in the Community room Wednesday.

Miss Gertrude Warner has been the guest of Mrs. Boylston Merrill, in Boston.

Miss Lavinia C. Fries spent the week end with her father, William Fries at South Coventry.

Miss Ethelind Pinkerman has just installed a new radio.

WESTERLY

DESPONDENT, HENRY CARTER ATTEMPTS TO CUT HIS THROAT

(Special to The Bulletin.)

WESTERLY, Feb. 21.—Henry Carter, 52, a weaver in the Potter Hill Woolen mill, is in a serious condition at the Westerly hospital, as the result of attempted suicide at his home on Laurel street, Potter Hill, Sunday morning, about 11.30 o'clock. The attempt to take his life was reported as the result of despondency and from the fact that his wife, the only member of his family had been in the hospital for some time.

Chief of Police Frank H. Brown of Hopkinton was called to the house on Sunday morning when the rumor had spread that murder was being committed there, which caused a crowd to congregate. Some one telephoned Medical Examiner Dr. Michael H. Scanlon of Westerly, and he went to the place, which is just over the Pawcatuck river in one of the mill houses in the town of Hopkinton. He found that a razor had been used and that a deep cut across the throat, starting under the right ear had caused the loss of about two quarts of blood; the rooms of the house were sprinkled with blood. Another cut just below the first one, but not so deep had barely cut the neck cord. Placing the unconscious man whom he had given medical attention in his automobile he was accompanied to Westerly hospital by Chief of Police Brown. At the hospital further treatment was given the injured man by Dr. Scanlon and Dr. John W. Helfrich. Chief Brown returned to his home in Ashaway Sunday afternoon.

Work was begun Saturday dressing down a cedar pole 25 feet in length which is to be placed in jaws set in a block of cement and located on the embankment west of the Westerly station of the New Haven railroad near the two brass cannon now located there. The work of securing and placing the flagstaff in position has been carried out by Sergeant Richard Joseph Rooney, a long term service man in Connecticut military organizations who was instrumental in having the cannon removed from the present site of the Westerly Town hall and given "their place in the sun" there. It was first hoped to have the pole and flag in place on Lincoln's birthday and then on Washington's birthday and these patriotic holidays being over now a later date will be set for the formal inauguration.

With the thirty-first annual election of the Cyclone Steam Fire Engine company, No. 3, held this year, the annual banquet was observed Saturday evening at the inn, in Pawcatuck, when forty-five members and guest gathered at 7 o'clock. The committee in charge consisted of James Maxwell, Charles O. Wills and Michael Brown. The menu was:

Oysters on the Half Shell
Vegetable Soup Dinner Crackers
Celery Sour Pickles
Roast Vermont Turkey, Giblet Sauce
Cranberry Sauce String Beans
Mashed Potatoes Mashed Turnips
Pineapple Fritters with Lemon Sauce
Green Vegetable Salad
Mayonnaise
Parker House Rolls
Raisin Cake Lady Fingers
Macaroons
Neapolitan Ice Cream

Following the banquet the firemen went to their quarters at the fire engine house on Union street for a social time.

Washington's birthday in Westerly will be observed today by the general closing of banks in both Westerly and Pawcatuck. Holiday hours will be observed by the Westerly post office, when the closing time will be at 10 p. m. as on Sundays. The public schools of Westerly are closed today, as they will be for the remainder of the week.

The time for holding court session in Stonington for the trial of alleged slot machine proprietors, who were given summonses in Pawcatuck, Stonington and Mystic on Friday last, has been changed from Tuesday as originally set. The session will be held in Borough hall, Stonington town court, on Thursday at 9 a. m., with Judge William A. Wilcox on the bench.

Westerly Fire District Tax assessors were at the town clerk's office Thursday noon for the purpose of assessing a fire district tax on all real estate, as well as ratable real and personal estate taxable to persons, co-partnerships and bodies corporate, this being the time set for the closing of the list from which taxes are to be assessed. All properties transferred after this date will not appear until next year's list is made up. For the purpose of receiving accounts of taxpayers, Tax Assessors Walter C. Hiscox, Oliver P. Crandall and D. Harold Rogers were present at the town clerk's office from 1 to 3 p. m. Friday afternoon Feb. 19th. The tax rate voted at the annual fire district meeting August 26, 1925, was 15 per cent. on every $100 of real and personal ratable estate in the enlarged fire district. With this rate taxes will be levied due and payable on or before the 30th day of April.

Recorded in the office of the Westerly town clerk appears the following transfer:

Feb 17—Guiseppe Lugui and wife, Theresa Toscana Ligui, to Vincenzo Capalbo, certain tracts or parcels of land, Lote Nos. 102, 103, 104 and 105, Liberty Park tracts.

Having been taken into custody by Rhode Island State Trooper James E. Norman, Philip Rakatansky of Providence before Judge Oliver Culma in a special session of the third district court Saturday. He was charged with procuring a bank check on the Rhode Island Hospital Trust Company of Providence to the order of E. G. Wells of Hopkinton in the sum of $29.50, with intent to defraud. He was found probably guilty and bound over to the April term of the superior court for Washington county. Tessie Rakatansky of Providence furnished bail of $1,50.

A number of accidents occurred in Westerly Saturday, the first being when Everett M. Kinney, foreman of the crusher of the Sullivan Granite company at Bradford fell on to the chain revolving on the crank wheel of a stone crusher. Kinney sustained serious fractures to the left arm below and above the elbow. Kinney's life was saved by the quick judgment of one of the operatives of the plant who shut off the power running the crank just in time to prevent Kinney's being caught in the cogs.

SUCCESS OF FRENCH TENNIS STARS IS OUTSTANDING EVENT LAST WEEK

NEY YORK, Feb. 21.—(By The A. ')—Jean Borotra, bounding racquetman from France who defeated the American champion, William T. Tilden, in the national indoor tennis championships here last week, says he United States has nothing to fear regarding Davis cup prestige.

Borotra has proved himself one of the most popular court men since Maurice McLoughlin, smiling, fighting Californian of more than a decade ago. One of the greatest court coverers of the present day, a marvel at the net and steady in other departments—above all a conqueror of a man undefeated in seven previous years of championship competition — this "bound-basque" speaks with authority.

"It is foolish to think so," he said modestly when asked if France expected to win the Davis cup play in the summer. "Yes, I defeated Tilden in this tournament and I gave him a great battle last year in the Davis cup play and Rene Lacoste defeated Vincent Richards, your No. 3 player, here. I admit all that.

"But I will say this: Both Tilden and Richards were off stroke. You can well imagine that such a thing will not happen in the international indoor matches next week or in the Davis cup play. They will be ready for us. I think we will take a licking next week.

"And one more thing: Lacoste and I cannot stand the heat of your American August, when the Davis cup matches are played. We have done our best before and failed. It is foolish to think we can win then."

During the past week the Basque, who meets his teammate, Lacoste, tomorrow for the indoor title, which he acquired last year, has gained many American friends through his sportsmanship. Whenever he thought the officials were wrong he deliberately evened the score by tossing away the next point and smiled as he did so.

Americans are accustomed to regard a doubtful official ruling as only a "break" in the game which must be accepted by the one affected without thought of return of any kind. They seek the benefit of close decisions, especially in baseball, where the officials are called upon to render numerous verdicts. Seldom, and not more than once, does a player in baseball arise from the dust at second base and remark: "Mr. Umpire, I was out by a foot. You have made a mistake."

The football player tries to move the ball even an inch nearer his opponent's goal, the baseball player argues that foul ball is fair, the track star endeavors to beat the gun—it is the American idea of sport, what the athletes call "fight." But when Borotra deliberately squared matters by outing his return when he believed an official had erred Americans applauded in appreciation of a sportsman's act.

Borotra and Jacques Brugnon differ from Lacoste in that they are sensational performers, fast and furious, with Borotra constantly calling his laughing "oui, oui," as he plunges for an elusive ball. Lacoste is cool, deliberate, steady, well grounded in every essential, a master workman.

Tomorrow Borotra and Lacoste clash in the indoor finals and once thing is certain—the championsip goes back to France for another year.

MANY INTERESTING EVENTS ON "Y" ESHEDULE THIS WEEK

ILLINI FIVE WINS BY VERY CLOSE MARGINS

CHICAGO, Feb. 21.—(AP)—Winning basketball games by the proverbial skin of its teeth seems to be force of habit, and this reality has put it in the undisputed lead of the western conference race.

In their last three games, the fighting Illini took two from Purdue and defeated Iowa by margins of one point, and the other from Ohio by a four point edge.

Two defeats during the week jarred Wisconsin from the top, which it has held virtually since the season began. Purdue forged ahead of its neighborine rival, Indiana, by downing the Badgers last night, and divided third place honors with Ohio state and Iowa.

Western conference basketers have just three weeks in which to catch up with or surpass Captain George Spradling of Purdue, whose monopoly on first place in the big ten high scoring roster seems to be permanent. His total points are 85 including 31 goals and 17 free throws.

Spradling has averaged nearly nine and a half points in the nine games he has played and he has three more contests before him. Behr of Wisconsin, who lapsed during midseason and has had a scoring rejuvenation, is the Boilermakers' nearest competitor with nine points less, but with a higher average per game and with five more games to play.

C. F. C. vs. Mystic Tonight

Monday evening at 7:30 on the "Y" court the local C. F. C. five will meet the All-Stars from Mystic. The game is scheduled to be a fast one as both teams have met in a large part of their games. The local men will have attacking posts of Lambert and Lefflingwell. Ludlow will play center and Armstrong will be on the defense as guards.

COLUMBIA LOOMS AS BASKETBALL CHAMPIONS

NEW YORK, Feb. 21.—(AP)—Columbia, with victory registered in every contest over half of the schedule, looms as 1926 champion in the eastern intercollegiate basketball league. Dartmouth pressed until last night when Princeton downed the Hanoverians, 35 to 26. The meeting between Columbia and Dartmouth in New York tomorrow night is expected to settle the issue.

Captain Carl Loeb of Princeton refuses to grant all honors to the New York Quintet, however, his 52 points adding the individual scoring lead with "Red" Laub of Columbia in close pursuit. Pennsylvania has shown an excellent scoring machine with Davenport, Lindsay and Goldblatt well up in the list while Rothenfield, who teams at forward with Laub is in a tie with Davenport.

While Dartmouth and Columbia are at grips tomorrow night the last place Yale five encounters Princeton at New Haven. There are three games next Saturday, as follows: Princeton vs. Cornell at Princeton, Dartmouth vs. Yale at Hanover and Pennsylvania vs. Columbia at Philadelphia.

The team standing at Philadelphia:

Team	W.	L.	Pct.	Pts.	O.Pts.
Columbia	5	0	1.000	164	103
Dartmouth	4	2	.667	134	127
Pennsylvania	4	3	.571	175	153

BATTERY E WINS ANOTHER VICTORY IN WESTERLY LEAGUE

(Special to The Bulletin.)

WESTERLY, Feb. 21.—At the state armory on Dixon street Saturday evening Battery E basketball team defeated St. Michaels team in a closely contested match, which resulted in a score of 19 to 18. It was difficult to pick out the outstanding star for the team work of each aggregation was of the best order.

The score by periods follows:

Battery E	2	4	2	11—19
St. Michael's	5	3	0	10—18

Dancing was enjoyed until midnight. Next week opponents of the Battery team will probably be players from Taftville.

The Stonington A. C. A. A. Jrs. went down to defeat for the first time this season at the hands of the Westerly Magestics by the score of 21 to 20. The high scorer of the game was W. Barber, the Magestic center with six field goals and one basket from foul. The game was played in Arion hall, Stonington on Friday night.

The Westerly High School Basketball team will play the Stonington High school this (Monday) evening in Arion hall, the game starting at 8 o'clock.

THISTLEWOOD CAPTURES FEATURE AT TIA JUANA

NEW YORK, Feb. 21.—(AP)—Thistlewood, running the first quarter in 23 seconds, captured the speed handicap of six furlongs at Tia Juana today from Runstar and Sunnytand.

Before the start of the event Runstar ran away and made the circuit of the track before his rider could get him in hand.

Jack Fairman made a surprising showing in the mile and one furlong handicap, winning by eight lengths over Firth Ok Tay. Freya was third.

No Princeton-Cornell Game at N. Y.

PRINCETON, N. J., Feb. 21.—(AP)—Dr. Charles W. Kennedy, chairman of the Princeton board of athletic control, today announced that a tentative Princeton-Cornell foot ball game in New York had been eliminated by an agreement just reached by the two colleges providing for games at Princeton and Ithaca.

RECORD SMASHING BIKE RIDERS OFF FOR NEW YORK

CHICAGO, Feb. 21.—(AP)—Having established a new record for laps stolen in a six day bicycle race, riders, trainers and officials of the event which closed last night at the Coliseum, left today for New York where the riders will engage in another race in two weeks.

Bobby Walthour and Reggie McNamara won the grind covering 2,296 miles and 8 laps and piling up 330 points in the sprints. The team finished six laps ahead of Fred Spencer and Franco Georgetti, which, however, had 657 points. The third team was the Belgian combination of Stockelynch and Beckman finished fourth. This team was tied in mileage with Beneatto and Petri but scored more points in the sprints.

The record for laps stolen was 225 which bettered the old record of 198 and is expected to stand for years.

HOPPE TO DEFEND HIS 18.1 BILLIARD TITLE

CHICAGO, Feb. 21.—(AP)—Willie Hoppe, for 16 years champion of the balkline billiard game and present titleholder in the 18.1 division, tomorrow begins a three-day 1500 point 18.1 match here with Jake Schaefer, 18.2 champion.

They will play blocks of 250 each afternoon and evening, finishing up the blocks with 25 points of three cushions. The match is in preparation for Hoppe's forthcoming contest with Edouard Horemans, European champion, when he will defend the 18.1 title he has held for 20 years. The 18.2 title is not at stake in the match with Schaefer.

YOUNG COULON TO START TRAINING AT ONCE

Young Coulon, knownin the army as Al Beauregard, was at his home in Taftville over the week end on a short furlough. Young Coulon said that he is stationed at the army base in Boston and will start training immediately upon his return to the army post. He will be under the instruction of a former army boxing champion who is to groom him for the army flyweight and bantamweight championships.

Young Coulon is much pleased with the army life and expects to get plenty of work as he to fight in both the flyweight and the bantamweight divisions as he can easily make the weight in either class.

BALLANGRUD WINS THREE EVENTS IN SKATING RACES

OLSO, Norway, Feb. 21.—(AP)—In the world's amateur championship skating races, contested at Trondhjem yesterday and today, the Norwegian, Ballangrud was victorious in three events. These were the 1,500 meters which he won in 2 minutes 25 4-10 seconds, the 5,000 meters, 8 minutes 42 7-10 seconds, and the 10,000 meters, 18 minutes 9 1-0 seconds. King Haakton witnessed the events.

The skiing match was held near Gjovik. There were several standing jumps of extraordinary length.

VANGUARD OF PIRATES OFF FOR TRAINING CAMP

PITTSBURGH, Feb. 21.—(AP)—The first squad of the world champion Pittsburgh Pirates left tonight for the spring training camp at Paso Robles, Calif. The contingent was headed by Manager William McKechnie and consisted of batterymen and coaches. Other pitchers, catchers and trainers were scheduled to join the party tomorrow at St. Louis and Kansas City. Arrival at Paso Robles was set for next Thursday.

The balance of the Pirates will leave for California next Sunday.

British Golfers Win

ST. AUGUSTINE, Fla., Feb. 21.—(AP)—Archie Compston, British professional champion and Arnaud Massy, French open champion today conceded a handicap of eight bisques to two of America's best women golfers and won their match by one up. Their opponents were Miss Glenna Collett of Providence, women's national champion, and Miss Mary K. Browne of California, runner-up in the 1924 national championship.

MISS WILLS AND MLLE LENGLEN WILL NOT MEET UNTIL WIMBLEDON PLAY

NICE, France, Feb. 21.—(AP)—Helen Wills and Suzanne Lenglen will not met again in the tennis singles on the Riviera this season. Mademoiselle Lenglen decided this evening to refrain from play in singles until the St. Cloud or Wimbledon meetings.

She has even cancelled her entry for the singles of the Nice club tournament, which begins March 7. Explaining her action, the French champion said:

"I consider the French open championships and Wimbledon more important than Riviera tennis. My doctor tells me if I continue to play in the Riviera tennis I will be stale by June. I am leaving for a quiet spot in the mountains tomorrow, but will return on Saturday to play in the doubles for the Beaumont cup at Monte Carlo with Did. Vlasco, but I will not enter any tournament until the Nice meeting, and then only in the women's and mixed doubles."

Miss Helen Wills, playing high class tennis today, defeated Mrs. Satterthwaite in the finals of the women's singles in the Beaulieu tournament, 6-1, 6-1. The California girl showed impressive style, overwhelming the English player in a manner that Suzanne herself might envy, and gave a display of baseline, overhead and ground work that the experts agreed almost reached perfection.

Mademoiselle Lenglen and her mother received The Associated Press correspondent this evening, and Suzanne announced her decision not to play.

"I have now met and defeated Miss Mills," she said. "I am sure that no one can say I am afraid to meet her. I will be pleased to face her under circumstances more appropriate for tennis than those under which our match on Tuesday last was played at Cannes.

"Miss Wills will have two other chances to meet me within six months. That should be enough. At any rate I would rather play on grass courts, for instance Wimbledom."

When informed that Miss Wills had played remarkable tennis against Mrs. Satterthwaite, Suzanne asked the score. She was informed, and she remarked:: "That is very good indeed. That is about the same score as I beat Mrs. Satterthwaite."

Mademoiselle Lenglen reached her decision to withdraw from play in the singles before the Wills-Satterthwaite match, when her physician absolutely forbade her to play anither "hectic" singles match for at least four months.

Miss Wills' playing today is described by oldtime experts as the best any woman player has shown. She appeared to have gained confidence since her meeting with Suzanne, the French champion's collapse after that game and her retirement from play in the singles during the past week, while the American girl returned to the courts and defeated the best players in the Riviera with the loss of only four games, improved her tennis. She seemed today to have everything that goes to make a champion; she played electrifying tennis at the net, while her baseline and ground stroke game was just as severe as ever. Her volleying overhead game, which has been her weak spot, was magnificent, and she followed up her service to the net killing points several times on service returns.

Mrs. Satterthwaite won the first game; then Helen reeled off seven straight and the set. She also won the first game in the second set, but Mrs. Satterthwaite rallied and took the second game. But the American champion was not to be denied, and she won the next five games, set and match.

Mrs. Satterthwaite gave her a hard battle, playing desperately and bringing six games to deuce, and not losing a single game at love. The fourth game in the first set went to deuce seven times.

The point scores:

First Set.

Miss Wills—	2	4	7	12	7	4	4	—40
Mrs. Satterthwaite—	4	1	5	10	5	2	1	—29

Second Set.

Miss Wills—	7	4	7	4	4	4	5	—33
Mrs. Satterthwaite—	5	4	5	2	2	2	3	—25

The summary of the match shows the severity of the American girl's game, as she earned more points by irretrievable placements than she made through her opponent's errors.

MISS NORELIUS SETS NEW RECORD IN 400-YARD SWIM

TAMPA, Fla., Feb. 21.—(AP)—Martha Norelius of New York, registered an unofficial world's record in the 400-yard exhibition free style swimming race here today when she negotiated the distance in five minutes 18 1-5 seconds. Miss Norelius' performance was part of the second day's program of the aquatic carnival being held under auspices of the Tampa Board of Trade. Her mark was not certified to the A. A. U. because there was only one official timer at the pool. Two watches were held during the event, however, and both registered the same.

Miss Norelius' opponent was Edwina Krnich, of the Detroit Athletic club who made the distance in 5.47 and won the event in which she had been given a handicap of 50 yards.

The official record for the 400 yard free style race is 5:22 1-5 made by Gertrude Ederle at Brighton Beach, N. Y.

PELL'S TITLE AT STAKE IN RACQUET FINALS

BOSTON, Feb. 21.—(AP)—Two New York players will fight it out tomorrow in the finals of the National Racquets championship tournament at the Tennis and Racquet club here as a result of victories in the semi-final round today. Clarence C. Pell, defending champion and Stanley G. Mortimer, were today's winners.

Pell defeated Hewitt Morgan of New York in a hard-fought match which went to extra games. The score was 15-8, 15-10, 9-15, 15-12. Mortimer had little trouble in winning from Stanley W. Pearson of Philadelphia, 15-0, 15-12, 15-12.

DANIELSON TOWN TEAM AT TAFTVILLE TUESDAY

The Taftville Crescents will entertain the Danielson Town team at the Parish hall court on Tuesday evening. This is the first basketball game played in Taftville in a number of weeks, since Johnny Murphy turned the team over to Red Burelle.

Jones and Armour Win.

ST. PETERSBURG, Fla., Feb. 21.—(AP)—Bobby Jones, national amateur champion and Tommy Armour, representing the Whitfield club of Sarasota, won their sixth straight victory today when they defeated Walter Hagen, national professional champion Gil Nicholls, 4 and 3 in an eighteen hole match at the Pasadena Country club course.

Lockhart Breaks Record.

BAKERSFIELD, Cal., Feb. 21.—(AP)—Frank Lockart won the 25 mile automobile sweepstakes here today on a dirt track and set a new A. A. A. record for the distance. His time was 18:33.4. The previous record of 18:41.29 was made by Ralph De Palma at Syracuse, N. Y., September 19, 1925.

SPORT WORLD BRIEFS

For seven years Mlle. Lenglen, the French tennis star, has never been beaten except in the one set that she played with Mrs. Mallory in 1921.

After an interval of three years Eddie Butler of the Crescent A. C. of Brooklyn has regained the A. A. U. national one-wall court handball championship.

Jim Barnes, Gene Sarazen, Walter Hagen, Leo Diegel, MacDonald Smith and John Farrell are all probable American competitors in the British open golf championship this year.

Weather conditions during the first half of February were all that could be asked for by the promoters of the numerous inter sports carnivals in northern New York and New England.

The Union Boat Club of Boston, which has just celebrated its seventy-fifth anniversary, was the first American club crew to figure in a winning race in the Royal Henley regatta.

Luis Firpo and Paul Berlenbach began their careers as wrestlers. A number of prominent wrestlers, including French Gotch, Dr. Roller and Wayne Munn, tried to become boxers, but were rank failures in the mitt game.

Major league baseball fans this season will miss the familiar face of Everett Scott, the veteran shortstop. So far the Deacon, who was given his unconditional release by the Senators last Fall, has manifested no inclination to return to the diamond.

Jules Aaronson of the Arena of Philadelphia has booked Jack Delaney and Romero Rojas to appear on the program of the Washington's Birthday fight show at his club.

William Muldoon, who has been reappointed to the New York State Athletic commission began his career as a New York city policeman and later gained renown as a professional wrestler.

The bloodiest battle ever fought since glove contests superseded the old bare-knuckle fights was furnished by Billy Papke and Stanley Ketchell on the occasion of one of their four meetings in the ring.

Jilted. Bars All Women.

Not once in the 50 years during which he lived alone in a six-room cottage in Windsor, England, did William Pritchard, who died at the age of 90, allow a woman to cross the threshold. It is believed that the old man, who was known as the Hermit of Old Windsor, was jilted about 70 years ago when he was a soldier in The Blues.

NEW LONDON DRESSMAKER KILLED-RUN DOWN BY UNKNOWN MOTORIST

(Special to The Bulletin.)

NEW LONDON, Feb. 21—Miss Catherine Hogan, about 50, residing with her sister, Miss Margaret Hogan, 40 Colt street, was run down by a speeding automobile on Colt street and almost in front of her home, early Saturday, sustaining a fracture of the skull. She died almost immediately upon being admitted to Lawrence-Memorial hospital.

The driver of the speeding automobile is not known for after hitting the woman the automobile was speeded away and witnesses of the fatality failed to obtain the registration of the car. So far as could be ascertained the automobile was a Ford roadster. The police instituted a search for the driver of the machine through Saturday night and this morning, but no trace of the car, nor the driver was obtained. The search will be continued, however, and if the driver is apprehended he will be charged with manslaughter.

Miss Hogan, a dressmaker, had been shopping and was on her way home when run down. As she neared the corner of Washington and Colt streets she started to cross the latter highway to go to her home. Hardly had she stepped to the street, when the delivery car, headed in a westerly direction, rounded the corner at a speed estimated at close to 45 miles. Miss Hogan was caught in the road and before aware of her danger, was struck and hurled to the macadam highway. She was rendered unconscious and when assistance reached her, she was bleeding from the nostrils and ears, indicating a severe hemorrhage. John A. Harvey, 839 Montauk avenue, grilled up in his automobile, as pedestrians were rushing to the assistance of the injured woman. Harvey, with the assistance of Palmer Carroll, 4.7 Bank street, and George Kelley, 60 West Colt street, who were coming from the state armory, placed the women in Harvey's car and she was rushed to the hospital, where death occurred before she could be operated upon. Harvey later visited the police station and was interrogated by Medical Examiner Charles Kaufman. Harvey explained that he also was driving in a westerly direction. He stated that when his car was in front of the Elks' club, on Washington street, the Ford delivery car, travelling in the same direction passed to the left of Harvey's automobile and at a terrific rate of speed. Harvey estimating the speed of the car at close to a mile a minute. But a few yards away the driver of the death car encountered the blind course and as he rounded it the automobile still travelling at a high rate of speed, Miss Hogan was caught in the middle of the road, run down and fatally injured.

BAD WOMEN RETALIATE BY MALIGNING POLICE

(Special to The Bulletin.)

NEW LONDON, Feb. 21—With the prosecution in the police court Saturday morning of Tony Caldrillo, 40 Pearl street, a public service operator, charged on two counts of using his automobile for purposes of prostitution four members of the New London police force are declared by the two women, who claimed to have used the Caldrillo car, of having been on intimate terms with the women. As a result of the confessions of the women, City Manager Wilbert A. Holt has already started an investigation.

In court Saturday Caldrillo pleaded not guilty of the charges but he was fined $200 and sentenced to 20 days in jail, by Deputy Judge Lewis Crandall. He took an appeal to the next term of the court of common pleas and furnished a bond for his appearance at that time. Caldrillo denied on the witness stand that the women used the car for the purposes alleged, but stated that they had been passengers in his car when the machine had been hired by sailors; but of any wrongdoing to occur in the car Caldrillo professed ignorance, declaring that on some of the occasions when the woman declared that they had been in the car, the machine was out of service, undergoing repairs.

The women, Mrs. Helen Flick, 19, wife of Eugene M. Flick, submarine base, and residing at 11 Brewer street and Helen Hunt, 18, were charged with lascivious carriage and a fine of $25 was imposed but the fines were ordered remitted.

The women declared in statements, that they made their confessions to Sergeants Nelson Smith and John Cavanaugh against Caldrillo and the four members of the police department only after they had been detained at the police station two days and on one occasion from 11 o'clock in the forenoon until 10 at night because they were tired of the grilling they had been subjected to and wanted to end the entire affair.

The girls declare, it is understood, that they had been in the company of the members of the department on various occasions, giving the names of the officers, who, they allege were their companions and the places they visited. The officers stamp the statements of the girls as being malicious and false.

In the police court Saturday forenoon, the case of Jacob M. Linicus of Glenwood park, charged with reckless driving, was scheduled to be tried, but another continuance, this time until march 27th was obtained. Linicus was arrested three weeks ago, the automobile he was operating on Montauk avenue having struck Miss Agnes Svenberg, 20, of 28 Evergreen avenue, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Oscar Svenberg, as the young woman alighted from a Connecticut company trolley car, corner of Sherman street. The young woman besides sustaining a fractured leg, suffered serious bruises and is now a patient at Lawrence hospital. It is believed that when the case is called next month Miss Svenberg will be able to be present in court herself as a witness against the accused.

The charge of breach of the peace against Joseph Cargano was nolled. The accused engaged in a row at his home, about two weeks ago.

Harold Ireland, a sailor, and a member of the crew of the United States Coast Guard destroyer Jouett, having enlisted but two weeks ago, was charged with intoxication. Judgment in his case was suspended and he returned to his ship.

Thomas Carroll was fined $5 and costs for intoxication. Being unable to pay, he was committed to jail for a stay of two weeks.

Mrs. Mary Maher of 7 Williams St., Lewis Benham, Mohegan avenue; Miss McDonough, 967 Pequot avenue; Lewis Stegona, United States Coast Guard destroyer Patterson; Mrs. Arthur Dearing and infant daughter, 9 Colver street and Jack Horn, Henry Gorges and James B. Molles, members of the crew of the United States Coast Guard destroyer Cassin, were patients dismissed at Lawrence-Memorial hospital Saturday.

The funeral of Mary Silveria, 7, daughter of Mrs. Mary Silveria, whose death from pneumonia occurred at the Mitchell ward of Lawrence hospital Friday, was held this afternoon at 2 o'clock at the residence of John Perry, 35 Moore avenue. Burial was in St. Mary's cemetery.

The funeral of Mary Silveria, 7, daughter of Mrs. Mary Silveria, whose death from pneumonia occurred at the Mitchell ward of Lawrence hospital Friday, was held this afternoon at 2 o'clock at the residence of John Perry, 35 Moore avenue. Burial was in St. Mary's cemetery.

George L. Chaffe, 69, died Friday night at his home, 251 Montauk avenue, from kidney trouble. Mr. Chaffee is survived by his widow and for many years was employed as superintendent at the plant of the Whiton Machine company. He was a member of Brainard lodge of Masons and a past master of the organization.

Mrs. Alice K. Griswold died Saturday at her home at Poquonoc Bridge, after a brief illness.

Mrs. Charlotte Bancroft Hankey has purchased from Waldo E. and Daisy L. Clarke a residence on the east side of Montauk avenue, near the corner of Glenwood avenue. The price paid was $20,000.

John Walter has sold a house and lot on Woodbridge street to Mikata Kolotoe.

Anthony Lobansky is under arrest at the New London police station having been taken into custody by State Police Officer Henry Albricht, Groton Barracks, charged on a warrant issued by the Brooklyn, N. Y., police with abandonment of his wife and five children. The accused is being held pending the arrival here of an officer to take Lobensky back to New York.

Mrs. Raymond Murray, 151 Connecticut avenue, complained to the police early Saturday evening that eight pounds of roast beef, which she had placed in an ice box an hour before had been stolen.

Chief of Police Thomas Moffatt of Oswego, N. Y., Saturday night communicated with the New London police requesting that Mrs. Gill, wife of Edward T. Gill, be notified that her husband had died in a hospital at Philadelphia. Gill was a former member of the United States navy and had been employed in Philadelphia.

Judge Charles B. Waller of the court of common pleas, is confined to his abode, Vauxhall street by illness. Although his illness is not considered serious, there was no session of the court here Saturday.

Miss Beulah Cleveland, instructor at Williams Memorial Institute, is spending a few days with relatives in New York.

Miss Frances Noonan, New York, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Dennis Noonan, 36 Mountain avenue, is visiting her parents.

Miss Alma Clarke, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Waldo E. Clarke, is in Bridgeport, being entertained by Miss Alma Fones, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Byron Fones, former residents of New London.

Mr. and Mrs. Max Fern, 1116 Ocean avenue, are entertaining Mr. and Mrs. Max Moscowitz of Boston, former New London residents.

Constables Peabody and Brigham, of Waterford, were patrolling the New Haven turnpike in the former's automobile last night on the lookout for violators of the automobile law and they declare that when their machine was nearing the Golden Spur, headed westward, a Ford commercial car headed eastward, passed the officer's machine at the rate of 60 miles an hour. Brigham stopped his car and turned it around and gave chase to the speeding Ford car, but was not successful in overtaking it. The officers believe that it was this car that struck the woman and Constable Peabody asserts he could identify the machine if he saw it again.

This evening Patrolman Edward Daniels brought to the police station, Charles Lemon, Elderkin avenue, Groton, who was driving a Ford commercial car and in a manner that gave the officer the impression that the driver was none to familiar with the handling of automobiles, as the car was operated around a corner at a fast rate of speed. Lemon was questioned at length and stated that he was employed by E. W. Gay, Groton farmer, in the delivery of milk. He asserted he was in New London with the car making deliveries of milk. Lemon however, in relating the route he took and which was between 8 and 9 o'clock, declared that he was not south of Spain street, making stops only on Crystal avenue, Oneida, Williams, Huntington, Meadow, Main, Mill and Winthrop streets and then back to Groton, where he placed the car in the garage. Lemon, however, did not possess registration for 1926 and he was ordered to appear in the police court Monday morning and answer to a charge of violation of the motor vehicle law. Lemon denied being anywhere near Spit street the night before and there were no marks of disfigurement on the car, which is this year's model.

For the holiday, Monday, Washington's Birthday, there is but little business scheduled to occupy the attention of the police court for tonight but one arrest had been made since Saturday afternoon. During Saturday evening Patrolman Braxton Hill took up to custody a boiler-maker who was in a bad state of intoxication on North Bank street. He was later released on bail for his court appearance.

The Jibbon club will hold its annual celebration and banquet Monday afternoon, that day being set aside for the yearly jollification of the tars. The celebration and festive event will take place in the banquet hall of the Odd Fellows' building, Bank street. All of the older members of the organization, including Captain Charles Niles, 90, are expected to be present.

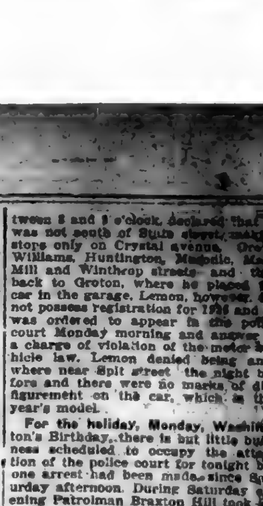
New Fruit Is Like Olive

A delicious fruit, hitherto unknown to the civilized world, has been discovered in the Tres Marias Islands, off the west coast of Mexico, according to the reports made by the California-Mexican expedition that recently returned to the United States. Specimens of the fruit, which somewhat resembles the ordinary olive in size and color, were brought back by the expedition.

Grant's Grandson May Become Washington City Manager



Major U. S. Grant, grandson of President Grant, and assistant to Lieut. Col. C. O. Sherrill, Director of Public Buildings and Grounds, in Washington, may succeed Colonel Sherrill in that post according to current reports. Colonel Sherrill has resigned to become City Manager of Cincinnati at a salary of $25,000 per year. In addition to being Director of Public Buildings and Grounds in the national capital, the man in that position is a member of more boards and commissions than any other Federal officeholder.

TAX AGREEMENT

It is good news that an agreement in the senate and house has been reached on the revenue bill and that this will now move forward for the president's signature. Such final artillery of speeches as are yet to be fired will serve to relieve pent up feelings in certain quarters, but will not prevent the bill appearing before the president this week. It was high time that the measure was brought to such a stage that it could be ready for enactment, as the time for the first payments on 1925 incomes is rapidly approaching. May returns will not be easy to compile, and as it is there will be some confusion and the demands for time extensions are likely to multiply above previous records. But the situation will not be so serious as it would have been if the passage of the bill had been delayed even for another week.

Tax reductions of $381,000,000 this year and $243,000,000 thereafter will benefit millions of citizens to no inconsiderable degree. With some modifications as to the tax on inheritances, this measure was put back in the bill by the insistence of the house conferees, although its repeal had been voted in the senate. It is too early yet to abolish this tax altogether without injury to the treasury. But ultimately it will go. Perhaps the repeal will not come next year, perhaps it will be longer delayed. But the support of the tax in congress is steadily dwindling and even among those who endorse it by their votes are many who would move to eliminate it if they could be convinced that the federal revenue would stand up under the loss. The same may be said of certain nuisance taxes which are retained in the readjusted bill in spite of the senate's effort to get rid of them.

CRITICIZING JUDICIAL ACTS

It is difficult precisely to define the phrase "constructive contempt of court." Plainly, however, Charles E. Hughes, former justice of the United States supreme court and former secretary of state, was not unmindful of the necessity of upholding the dignity and independence of the bench when he argued before a judge of the New York supreme court that to punish an editor for fair critical comments upon the practice of reducing bail in criminal cases was to violate the principle of free discussion and to threaten civil liberty.

Not infrequently bail fixed by judges of inferior courts is reduced by judges of higher tribunals, and the latter, not being infallible, may make mistakes. Where discretion is conferred upon the court, and in the exercise of it several sets of circumstances must be taken into account, honest differences of opinion are unavoidable. What one judge deems proper bail another may think excessive and unreasonable.

Citizens have a right—which, indeed, may be a duty—to direct attention to grave crime conditions and to draw the inference that reductions of bail tend to encourage professional criminals. Even an individual judge may be criticized for a disposition to reduce bail, provided his actions are not misrepresented and his motives impugned.

Mr. Hughes so effectively pleaded the case of the editor threatened with punishment for contempt that the judge who had summoned him, admitting that the limits of appropriate and just criticism had not been overstepped, granted an acquittal.

Discussion of judicial acts and decisions, if it be sincere and intelligent, is useful, not detrimental, to the sound administration of justice.

JURY SERVICE FOR WOMEN

Under the plea that it is an attempt to place women on an equal footing with men in their duties as citizens, a bill has appeared in Massachusetts to compel women to serve on juries. Just how much of a popular demand there is among the women of Massachusetts for compulsory jury service is hardly ascertainable, but it is strongly to be suspected that this is in reality a law proposed by a few women to force a majority of women to do that which is utterly obnoxious to them

If that is so, this proposed bill is of that type of law by which minority groups seek to impose force upon a majority. By the imposition of force the principle of majority opinion is sacrificed and public consent is ignored, bringing about a situation that is inconsistent with the principles that must control among a self-governing people. It takes a pretty strong government to enforce that which is distasteful to even a strong minority and we have yet to see good results attained by either federal or state governments forcing majorities to do that which they do not want to do.

Should the bill be tempered by making jury duty optional rather than compulsory, so that only those women who want to serve on juries would be eligible, it may be argued that in many cases such women would be just the kind of women who as jurors would make a farce of justice. As Representative Sylvia Donaldson of Brockton recently said at the hearing on the bill: "The women of Massachusetts want justice to be tempered with mercy, not with mawkish sentimentality."

It is strongly to be suspected that a bill for jury duty, optional or compulsory, would find no great support from the women of Massachusetts themselves in a referendum vote.

PHILIPPINE INDEPENCE

It is a fact so self evident as scarcely to need mentioning that the time and method of granting independence to the Philippine Islands will be determined by the United States in accordance with a policy long ago determined and often stated. The American government is to act as guardian until the Filipinos demonstrate that they are able to go it alone. The agitation of Filipino politicos counts even less than their judgment of when this time has arrived. But the boycott which they are attempting to put into effect against American interests is impudent and dangerous as Representative Underwood has pointed out on the floor of the house. It might even reach the point where counteraction may be necessary. But neither the contemplated boycott nor the measure [illegible] it has any direct bearing upon the problem of independence. Both are aside and beside the way. There is an unavoidable issue between the United States and the Philippines as long as this sovereignty and guardianship continues, and that relationship will be better with all the parties' interest come to the realization that boycotts and retaliatory measures will have no bearing after all upon the problem of when independence should be granted.

IMPROVING THE OLD ORDER

It is something new in history for [illegible] to be called upon to defend its actions towards a dependent, and inferentially, non-civilized country as France has been called upon by the Mandates Commission of the League of Nations to answer charges of maladministration and face its accusers in the case of Syria.

There is every probability that France has done its best with an exceedingly tough job in Syria. If mistakes were made, it is unquestionably because French administrators are human like the rest of us. The French people will be glad to see such mistakes rectified. In the bad old days civilized nations regarded themselves as all in the same boat: they had to hold up each other's hands and no one more than another was in position to throw the first stone. But a change has come over international relations, and the point in the situation between France and Syria is that errors of judgment and the results thereof can no longer be concealed or glossed over in silence. The other nations, to a considerable extent, lose their personality when they sit upon such a board as the Mandates Commission. In defending her course, France tacitly commits herself to a standard, even though guilty of nothing worse than poor judgment in her administration of the Syrian mandate. This is definite improvement over the old order

WOMEN IN LIFE AND IN THE KITCHEN

SUGGESTIONS FOR THE HOUSEWIFE

Strong salt water will freshen faded rugs and carpets.

Hardened paint brushes will become soft again if boiled in vinegar.

Iron laces and embroideries on a Turkish towel to bring out the pattern.

Teapots and percolators should be thoroughly washed and scalded after using.

Warm the chimney flue by burning a newspaper in its throat and the new fire will start more readily.

Lay newspapers over the freshly scrubbed kitchen floor to prevent the tracking of dirt while the floor is still damp.

Use a piece of candle instead of a cork in the glue bottle and the glue will not dry out.

When making small buns or cakes flour the tins well instead of greasing them. This plan is much less expensive and the cakes never stick to the tin.

When baking potatoes grease them first with a little butter. When cooked they will be beautifully brown and crisp, with the glazed appearance that makes them so appetizing.

You will be surprised at the good results obtained by washing grained wood with cold tea, a small part of the surface at a time, and rubbing well with a flannel cloth before it becomes dry.

Ham becomes very tough if fried in a very hot pan; bacon burns. Place ham or bacon in a cold pan, then set over a moderate heat and cook slowly until ham is tender and bacon is crisp

To remove shine from a black dress use ammonia and soap, say one ounce of rock ammonia and half an ounce of white castille soap in a pint of hot water. When dissolved dip a small sponge into the mixture and gently rub over the shiny spots.

When boiling new milk, to prevent a skin from forming on the top as it cools add two tablespoons of cold milk to every pint when at the boiling point, and stir for a minute. The so-called "skin" will then be re-absorbed and the milk will not be improverished.

HOW TO CHOOSE GOOD BEEF CUTS

The best beef is obtained from a steer four or five years old, and the quality of the beef depends on the age of the steer and the manned of feeding. Good beef is of fine grained texture and firm, of a bright red color and well mottled with fat, which is of a yellow color and firm. Suet should be dry and crumbly.

Meat should be removed from the wrapper as soon as it comes from the market, as the paper absorbs the juices. All meats should be kept in a cool place. Before cooking, wipe beef with a clean cloth wrung out of cold water, but never let it stand in the water as the juices will be drawn out.

DRY AFTER USING

Steel wool will last much longer if dried in the sun or oven after using. If left in a damp wad it will rust and be of no use to you.

HEALTH AND BEAUTY

A cup of cocoa before retiring is a sleep inducer.

The amount of food value in a large orange is equivalent to that found in half a slice of bread.

Just because it is colder out of doors, don't neglect to ventilate each room in your house every day for at least a little while. It means a sweeter atmosphere in the home and the fresh air will heat much more quickly than stale.

An excessively oily condition which is called "oily subborhoea darkens blond hair and makes frequent shampoos seem necessary. The oil glands in the scalp are too active. This trouble calls for the use of an astringent tonic and for regular brushing and massage. In brushing the hair use forward, upward strokes, so that air may get to the scalp. The general health also needs to be improved.

TO PROTECT THE HAIR

A good many women must attend to their furnaces, at least part of the time. Those who have this to do will find it convenient to keep a rubber bathing cap in the basement to slip on if they are obliged to dump the furnace or sift the ashes. There is nothing better for preventing dust from getting into the hair, as these caps fit closely around the head and dust cannot sift through them.

CLEANING BATH TUB

It is simple to remove the dingy rim that mars the daintiness of gleaming white porcelain, if one but use the right cleansing materials.

In some cases dirty porcelain means carelessness in rinsing the tub after using, but in other cases, especially where hard water is used, it is almost impossible to prevent the accumulation of a deposit on the smooth surface.

A quick daily cleansing with pure soap and water, aided by a few drops of kerosene, will be found effective in such cases. Put a few drops of kerosene on a wet cloth, rub it with the soap and go over the solid surface with the cloth. The dirt and grease will disappear immediately without any hard scrubbing. Rinse thoroughly with clear water and dry with a clean cloth.

IN THESE DAYS OF COLD

In our home, worn sheets, pillow slips, etc., are laundered and then cut into 12-inch squares and placed in a pile in the linen closet. Then when a member of the family is suffering with a cold these clean squares are used instead of handkerchiefs. They are burned when soiled and save a disagreeable job for the laundress and spreading of the cold through the house.

GOOD WINTER FOOD

During the winter, when fruits become scarce and costly, canned tomatoes are considered one of the most economic sources of vitamins. They contain the same vitamin that is found more commonly in raw than in cooked foods.

DICTATES OF FASHION

An evening frock of acid green velvet has a girdle and flowers in beige velvet.

The spring silhouette retains the flat back and the below-the-knee flare.

The high neck line is passing out rapidly. The bateau line is better for spring.

Flowers treated in some way that renders them luminous at night are among the recent novelties.

Very attractive and unusual is a negligee of turquoise blue satin embroidered with chenille in a design of field flowers.

White homespun is being used for some charming sport suits for southern wear or for later wear in the north.

The smart New Yorker is carrying a very large handbag of soft brown or gray leather, lined with white kid.

Very reasonable and extremely pretty are ruffled voile curtains in shades of rose blue, pink, green and yellow.

Long strings of filigree beads, from Venice make charming accessories to lighten the dark tones of one's costume.

Enormous bows of ribbon are being used on the hip, to decorate evening dresses with the flare line.

New offerings in footwear include sandals and pumps made of satin in a shade of fallow which is somewhat deeper than blood, but lighter than tan.

A flannel dress for walking has inverted pleats to give width to the skirt at the sides, and shirring in front of the shoulders, to give room in the upper part of the frock.

The flannel frock is an excellent buy to bridge the gap between winter and spring. It comes in the most fascinating colors and may often be worn with a tailored blouse.

There are many new developments in millinery, first in importance is the turban which is developed in felt, and in silk and in metal fabrics. Next comes the large hat, untrimmed and exceedingly smart.

NEW CURVES IN CORSETS

Corset and brassieres are undergoing a decided change in style. The modern silhouette is now emphasizing bust and waist line which heretofore have been gently but firmly suppressed by rubber and boned garments. Now corsets are relaxing in directions and increasing their grip in others. The flat boyish front is becoming noticeable by its absence.

TRICOLETTE VESTS

The stout woman will find better service in the tricolette vest if the hem is featherstitched in instead of stitched. When sewn in, there seems to be no "give" to the garment and "runs" similar to those in silk stockings result. The featherstitching takes very little longer, is far prettier and is well worth the effort.

THE NEW PINK

"Enfant Pink," the new shade, is sharing honors almost evenly with white at every important social event. Pink and gold lace scarfs and black hats seem to form the natural complement to gowns of this shade.

LAUNDRY HINTS.

When hanging clothing to dry, let the strain of the weight come on the warp threads, not the wool. This is especially important with table and bed linens.

Clothes will last much longer and be a better color if always laundered before they are very badly soiled, to say nothing of its being a much easier task.

White clothing should be well rinsed before placing in bluing water. Some types of bluing will make tiny rust spots on the material if the soap has not been thoroughly removed.

Flannels and blankets will keep soft and white and will not shrink if washed with a tablespoon of ammonia in the first water.

Before taking down the clothesline rub a damp cloth along it, taking away the dust that has gathered while it has been hanging. That will prevent any of that dirt from getting on your clothes the next time it is used, besides being more pleasant to handle.

SOAP FOR CLEANING CARPET.

Just about now we are thinking about what we'll do at housecleaning time and a good carpet cleaner is bound to be welcome. Two large cakes of pure white soap, one-half pound powdered borax, five cents worth aqua ammonia, four ounces ether. Cook the soap and borax in two gallons cold water and the ammonia and lastly the ether.

WILL PRESERVE THEM.

Pour a slight inch of olive oil on top of the brine in the half finished bottle of olives and then cork tightly. The olive will last indefinitely and still retain their flavor.

BRUSH THEM FIRST

Thoroughly brush the wool garment before attempting to clean it. You will be amazed at the dirt and dust that will come out in this manner. Then clean spots and soil.

FRIED POTATOES.

When frying raw potatoes, wet the potatoes as little as possible before frying. Dry on a towel after paring and you will have better results.

Allow a half pound of fish to each person when the fish is the main course. When it is just for a single course, 1-4 pound per person will be ample. The same will apply to fillet, one fillet for a course per person and two fillets if the fish is the mainstay of the meal.

LET WELL ENOUGH ALONE

If the food sticks to the bottom of the saucepan and you are afraid of a scorched taste, remove the contents immediately to a clean pan and continue cooking. Never stir up the stuck portion int othe food or you will surely stir the scorched taste along with it.

CONCERNING WOMEN

Utsire, a small island off Norway, is governed by 11 women.

Mrs. Lillian R. Sire is head of the division of aliens of the New York state department of labor.

Girls employed in the stores of Pittsburgh exceed in number the industrial girls of the Smoky City.

Women are now allowed to compete with the men for the highest positions in the British government service.

Mikiko Miki, an employe of the Japanese postal savings bureau, is the champion adding machine expert of that empire.

The only shingled member of the British royal family is Princess Alexandra, wife of Prince Arthur of Connaught.

HOT CAKE BATTER

Mix the batter for hot cakes or waffles in a wide-mouthed pitcher. Then it can be poured onto the griddle without spilling all over the stove.

TO HOLD ITS SHAPE

Fish will hold its shape and can be handled more easily if wrapped in a piece of cheesecloth before placing in water to boil.

RECIPES

New Cabbage Salad: Select a small, solid head of white cabbage, remove the outer leaves and cut the head in quarters; crisp in ice or very cold water, drain and dry on towels, remove the hard stalk and slice each quarter crosswise in shreds as fine as possible. Two and one-half cups add three-fourths cup each of blanched and shredded almonds and freshly grated cocoanut. Toss lightly together and moisten with cream dressing, made as follows:

Mix one-third cup of orange juice, one-half tablespoon of lemon juice, one egg slightly beaten and one cup of sugar; cook in a double boiler about ten minutes, stirring constantly. Cool and fold in one-half cup of triple cream and a few grains of salt.

Orange Cream Sherbert: Cook two cups of sugar with two and one-half cups of water and a thin paring of the yellow rind of half a lemon five minutes; then remove the rind. And the grated rind of two oranges, two cups of orange juice and one-half cup of lemon juice. Chill. Turn into the freezer and freeze to a mush. Beat two and one-half cups of heavy cream, add two-thirds cup of confectioner's sugar and one-eighth teaspoon of salt. Beat the yolks of two eggs until very light, add to the whipped cream, then fold in the whites of two eggs beaten until stiff. Add to the frozen mixture and finish freezing. Serve in tall-stemmed glasses.

A woman always makes up her mind about a thing before she asks a man's advice, and if he happens to agree with her his reputation for wisdom is forever established.

From Small Beginnings

Thomas Hood, the Great Poet

It is one of the strange things of life that the men who are most gifted with humor are the men who are also most gifted in expressing pathos. It is also strange that many of the world's greatest laugh-makers have themselves led the most miserable lives. All this was true of the great English humorist, Thomas Hood who is now chiefly remembered for two of the saddest poems in the English language. The Bridge of Sighs and The Song of the Shirt.

"Tom" Hood's father, a book-seller, died when the boy was only three years old. The youngster was a sickly boy who did not seem to have long to stay on this earth, and he was almost abnormally fond of books. He read everything that he could lay hands upon. In this way, and with help from others, he gained a degree of education. From being a clerk who gave much of his time to the scribbling of poetry he became an engraver, and at last, through acquaintanceship with some literary friends became an editor. He had remarkable power in extracting humor from words, for he was a great punster. People very quickly came to look upon him as only a humorist.

Three of his poems, however, so appeal to the deep wells of pity in every human heart that they have lived while the Comic Annuals have been forgotten. The three great poems are Eugene Aram, The Bridge of Sighs and the Song of the Shirt every one of them an appeal for sympathy for those who are unfortunate in life. In these poems, written when Hood was an invalid, there is a fine pity that made such an immediate appeal that it was instrumental in improving the condition of unfortunate people in England.

Thomas Hood himself, in his last days, fell into want and was glad enough to experience some of the kindness that he himself had dealt. When he died at the age of only 45 there was great mourning among the workmen of England, all of whom knew that they had lost a friend. They were glad to contribute from their earnings for the erection of a monument in memory of a man who had done so much to arouse the world to sympathy with the poor. That monument today marks the memory of one of the great friends of labor everywhere in the world. It is in a sense a sacred shrine.

A still greater monument is pointed out when attention is called to the fact that every collection of English poetry includes at least the three great poems that have been named. The power of human sympathy cannot only remedy the evils of life; it can also give fame.

IN THE PUBLIC EYE

Frank L. Stanton, who today enters upon his seventieth year, is often called the Robert Burns of the south, its poet of humanity, its singer of the common lot. He is said to be the most quoted poet of his time. Mr. Stanton is a native of Charleston, S. C., but Georgia has been his home state these many years. He loves Georgia, loves the south, its people, its romance and traditions, its sunny skies, its lovely landscapes. Mighty Lak' a Rose, Just a'Wearying for You, and other of his poems are known throughout the English-speaking world. That he is eminently a song writer is attested by the fact that scores of his poems have been set to music in England and America. A year ago Mr. Stanton was named poet laureate of Georgia in an official proclamation by Governor Walker.

Stories That Recall Others

A Baffling Vocabulary

Eugene, age three, and his grand mother had spent a delightful day with his aunt.

The following day was bitterly cold and Eugene ventured just far enough to visit his grandmother next door.

"Shall we visit Auntie today, Eugene?" she inquired.

"Oh, no, grandma," said he, stoutly "It's 60 below."

"Surely not as bad as that," argued grandmother. "Who told you that?"

"The vomiter," he promptly informed her.

Why!

Mary, age four, whose family has a custom of giving a gift to members of the family on their birthday, heard one of the older members of the family mention February 12 being Lincoln's birthday. Immediately she spoke up and said, "Why, mother, can't we send Mr. Lincoln something for his birthday?"

At the reported age of 153, Mario Perlas succumbed to an attack of malaria, in Manila. His birth date was accepted as July 16, 1773. Perlas was married four times and was the father of 12 children. He was the only man in the island known to have seen the grandsons of his grandsons.

BURGESS BEDTIME STORIES

Farmer Brown's Boy Becomes Excited.

Who believes quite everything he hears,
Is much too trustful of his ears.
—Mocker the Mocking Bird.

Farmer Brown's Boy likes winter. He wouldn't be a real boy if he didn't like winter. He likes to skate. He likes to slide. He likes to feel the cold, bracing air. He likes to see the beautiful, white, glistening landscape. But you know we get tired even of things we like. Farmer Brown's Boy was beginning to think of spring. He was beginning to have a longing for green things. He was thinking of the coming of spring signs and wondering when he would discover the first one. It looked to him as if already the buds on the maples were beginning to swell. He had been down to the sugar house and put everything in readiness for the first run of sap, from which the maple syrup and maple sugar he liked so well would be made. Now he was just waiting for a sign that it was time to tap the trees.

On this particular morning Farmer Brown's Boy was a little discouraged. It was a cold morning. It was so cold it seemed to him that Jack Frost was settling down to stay a long time. It didn't seem possible that spring could be anywhere near. So Farmer Brown's Boy was feeling a little downhearted as he walked from the house to the barn. Halfway to the barn he stopped abruptly, threw up his head and listened. Such an expectant look as there was on his face—that good-natured, freckled face. For a long minute he stood. Then he suddenly shouted "Hurrah!" and raced back to the house.

"Winsome Bluebird has arrived," he shouted. "Winsome Bluebird has arrived and now we know that Mistress Spring is almost here."

"Nonsense," said Mrs. Brown. "It is too cold this morning for any Bluebirds to arrive. Any Bluebird that was up this way would promptly turn about and go back."

"But I heard him," cried Farmer Brown's Boy. "Don't you suppose I know a Bluebird's notes when I hear them? No one who has ever heard Winsome Bluebird can ever mistake another bird for him. Come to the door and listen."

So Mrs. Brown went to the door and stepped out on the doorstep. There she and Farmer Brown's Boy stood and listened. In a moment they heard those soft, plaintive notes that seemed to come from nowhere in particular and everywhere in general, the notes of Winsome Bluebird.

"There!" cried Farmer Brown's Boy. "There! What did I tell you? Winsome Bluebird is here!"

"He certainly is, Son," replied Mrs. Brown. "My, isn't it good to hear him? I wish I could see him. But it's too cold to stand out here. Winsome Bluebird may think it is spring, but I don't." With this, Mrs. Brown went in the house.

But Farmer Brown's Boy didn't go in. No, sir, he didn't go in. He wasn't satisfied with just hearing Winsome Bluebird; he wanted to see Winsome. So, after listening for a few moments to those soft, plaintive, whistled notes, he made up his mind that Winsome Bluebird was on the other side of the house. So around the house he went. He looked up in all the trees. He looked over on all the fence posts, for he knew that Winsome often sits on a fence post. He looked everywhere that he could think of that Winsome Bluebird would be likely to be. Winsome wasn't to be seen. Still he heard that soft whistle. It was most provoking and, at the same time, it was most exciting. You see, that whistle just couldn't be placed. It seemed to be just all around. Sometimes it seemed to be far away and sometimes it seemed to be close at hand.

Farmer Brown's Boy went completely around the house. He went out through the Old Orchard. He even went down the Long Lane that leads to the Green Meadows, now snow-covered. He didn't see Winsome Bluebird. He was still excited but he was also disappointed as at last returned to the house. Mocker the Mocking Bird flew from the food shelf Farmer Brown's Boy kept spread for him. He flew up in a nearby tree and as Farmer Brown's Boy looked up at him, Mocker whistled that beautiful spring message of Winsome Bluebird.

The next story: "Black Pussy is Teased."

Halfway to the barn he stopped abruptly, threw up his head and listened.

Little Talks on Thrift

MANHATTAN ISLAND

The three-hundredth anniversary of the purchase of Manhattan island by Peter Minuet will soon be here, for it was on May 6, 1626 that this historic transaction took place. Comment often nas been made on the great increase of values that have taken place during the three centuries that have passed since the island living at the mouth of the Hudson was taken over from the Indies for trinkets said to have been worth about $24.

But the amazing increase in values involved in this story are not more remarkable than are those which come with the development of compound interest. The though of the purchase of Manhattan island the most valuable piece of land in the world today for the sum of $24 appeals strongly to the imagination, while there seems little or no romance in the patient upbuilding resulting from the reinvestment of funds. Yet the actual figures are amazing. The present wealth of the United States is about $320,000,000,000, according to the latest official reports. The entire sum could have grown in three hundred years from an original investment of $6 500 with interest compounded semi-annually at 6 per cent.

If $1,000 were set aside today at 6 per cent compounded semi-annually it would amount to $369,360 in one hundred years. Sometime ago it was stated that $70 was deposited in a bank with the stipulation that it was to be left untouched until the year 2224 when at the bank's current interest rates it will amount to $14,000,000. At 6 per cent it would grow to over $3,500,000,000.

These figures are beyond the grasp of the imagination. There is a lesson contained in them, however, which can be grasped by all of us. And that is that if we save our money and let it grow along perfectly natural and normal lines it will bring rewards beyond belief.

Wealth generally comes through patient upbuilding and the working out of perfectly natural processes.—American Thrift Society.

Holding A Job in Turkey

One-man occupations are unknown in Constantinople today. Theoretically, all posts are nominally held by Turks, under recent rulings, but actually the Turks do little of the work.

For instance, none but Turks can hold automobile drivers' licenses. Yet Turks do not know how to drive. The result is, when one hires a taxicab one must hire two men—a Greek who drives the car and a Turk who sits on the seat beside him doing nothing.

In the banks it is the same way. A Greek or Jew actually sits at the window and does the work, but beside him sits a Turk, the authorized and official bank employe, who is automatically disqualified for the work by his inability to read or write.

A Canadian visiting at Veazie, Me., asked to have the following notice sent into the Bangor Daily News: "I lose my dog about two week, his color about black, his tail cut short to my body, if find her, keep him, I belong to it."

"LUMBAGO" OR A LAME BACK

"Heet" Relieves Instantly

Use applicator attached to cork and brush "Heet" over the pain area immediately, you feel this harmless, glorious, penetrating heat draw the pain, soreness and stiffness right out of your lame, aching back. Besides, "Heet" scatters the congestion and establishes a cure.

"Heet" instantly relieves rheumatic or neuritis pain in any joint, muscle or nerve, whether in the arm, shoulder neck, legs or body. "Heet" contains two soothing, penetrating ingredients too expensive to use in ordinary liniments or analgesics. "Heet" is a clean, pleasant liquid; doesn't stain, blister or irritate the skin and costs only 60 cents at any drug store.

Feel Glorious!
Nicest Laxative,
"Cascarets" 10c

Don't stay headachy, bilious, constipated, sick! One or two pleasant candy-like "Cascarets" any time will gently stimulate your liver and start your bowels. Then you will both look and feel clean, sweet, refreshed. Your head clear, stomach right, tongue clean and your skin rosy.

Because cheery, harmless "Cascarets" never gripe, inconvenience or sicken, "Cascarets" have become the largest selling laxative in the world for men, women, children. Don't a box at any druggist.

MOTHER!

Child's Harmless Laxative is "California Fig Syrup"

Even if cross, feverish, bilious, constipated or full of cold, children love the pleasant taste of "California Fig Syrup." A teaspoonful never fails to gently clean the liver and bowels and sweeten the stomach.

Ask your druggist for genuine "California Fig Syrup" which has directions for babies and children of all ages printed on bottle. Mother! You must say "California" or you may get an imitation fig syrup.

FRENCH SENATE TO BE GIVEN FINANCIAL BILL TUESDAY

PARIS, February 21.—(AP)—The senate finance committee virtually finishes its work on the financial projects today. It adopted M. Doumergue's stamp tax on industrial transactions, which the chamber rejected, and made minor changes in a number of articles which have already been accepted by the lower house. It seems assured that the measures will be ready for discussion by the senate Tuesday.

Townsend said today, permits to shoot deer and foxes have been granted six Westchester county residents who complained that the animals are ruining their property. Townsend said deer were numerous in towns along the New York city boundary, and seemed to have no fear of straying about in the upper reaches of the metropolis.

QUIET WEEK END FOR LOCAL POLICE

The week end proved light in local police circles no arrests being made either Saturday or Sunday. The only business before the city court this (Monday) morning will be a number of continued cases involving faulty headlights and rear lights on automobiles, the driver having been summoned to court last week by the state police.

THAMESVILLE PAPER MILL WHICH IS TO RESUME OPERATIONS SOON

THAMESVILLE PAPER MILL TO BE RE-OPENED WITHIN FEW WEEKS TIME

Early resumption of operations at the Thamesville paper mill property, which was bought at auction two weeks ago for $250,000 by John G. G. Kerry of Toronto and Montreal, Canada, is to be expected, according to the plans of the new owner, who is president of the Canadian Paperboard Co.

Mr. Kerry, who first had his attention attracted to the property about three weeks before the auction sale when he came here to see about buying one of the paper machines, spent some time at the mill last week studying the situation and making plans to put the mill into operation. Early this week he will have Frank Crawford, superintendent of construction of the Canadian Mills, arrive here to supervise the alterations which have been decided upon, consisting of repairs to the buildings, machines and power plant, all of which will be completed before the manufacture of board is undertaken By starting the work at once it is expected that by the end of March at least one of the large machines will be in operation and will be turning out board at the rate of 100 tons per day.

The present equipment of the mill is three paper making units, two of which have a capacity of 100 tons a day and the other of about 40 tons. It is understood that the present owners of the property took upon the mill as inadequately supplied with beaters and motor equipment so that such new equipment as will be put in will be to remedy this condition in order to bring the mill up to its full capacity for production.

The Canadian Paperboard company, of which Mr. Kerry is president, makes the same kind of paper board and folding board as is manufactured at the Thamesville mill. It operates mills at Montreal, Quebec and at Campbellford and Frankfort in Ontario and turns out in the vicinity of 140 tons of paperboard per day. It also owns and operates its own pulp mill at Frankford and likewise owns the Quinte and Trent Valley Power Co., operating in Central Ontario.

The old staff in the Norwich mill and office will be employed as far as possible, this including the retention of Frank C. Mousley as superintendent, but the manager is yet to be selected.

The Norwich mill will be operated under Connecticut incorporation and a representative of Mr. Kerry was in New London Friday and Saturday, in consultation with Attorney Frank L. McGuire regarding the incorporation. Mr. McGuire having acted for Mr. Kerry in bidding in the property at the auction sale. It has not yet been definitely decided what the name of the new corporation will be. Saturday Mr. Kerry's representative spent the morning at the mill, meeting Mr. Mousley and Frank M. Browning, who made the sale as receiver for the Uncas Paperboard Co.

When operating to capacity the Norwich mill employs about 200 hands, with an approximate payroll of $5,000 weekly, making a very decided asset to the business and manufacturing interests of the city, so that it is a source of much gratification to learn that it has fallen into the hands of interests thoroughly familiar with the paperboard business in all its phases. The plant on the Thames river is ideally situated and with experienced management and with the necessary capital which will be furnished to the new company, both for improvements and for working capital, there is no reason, it is stated, why this mill will not assume its former position as an important factor in the industry.

Mr. Kerry, whose purchase of the mill insures its continuance as a Norwich industry, is president of Kerry & Chace, consulting engineers, Toronto; president of Canadian Paperboard Co. president of Quinte and Trent Valley Power Co., director of M. J. O'Brien, Limited, Ottawa; managing director of Boundary Investments, Limited, vice president of Seaman, Kent Co., and consulting engineer for the Timiskaming and Northern Ontario Railroad commission.

He is a graduate in engineering of McGill university, Montreal, and was with the Canadian Pacific railway; from 1886 to 1888 on the construction of the main line and the Algoma branch. Others of his important business activities have included the following: Member of Montreal harbor commission, 1888-1889; resident engineer of Charleston, Cincinnati and Chicago Railway and Baltimore and Ohio Railway, 1890-1893; assistant professor in the faculty of applied science at McGill university, 1893-1907; member of the royal commission on the Quebec bridge disaster, 1907-1908; consulting engineer to fourth vice president of Grand Trunk railway, 1899-1907; and president of Electric Power Co., 1908-1914. In 1913 he became president of Kerry and Chace consulting engineers of Toronto which firm has carried out and superintended the construction of a number of municipal hydro-electric plants at Calgary, Winnipeg and other cities. The company also did considerable work in irrigation and in 1920-1923 built the hydro-electric power plant of the Hollinger Consolidated gold mines.

HELD FAREWELL GATHERING FOR ORD LESEMAN

The members of R. E. Hourigan Post, V. F. W., turned out in large numbers to attend a farewell party given at the Post rooms on Main street Saturday evening in honor of Ord Leseman who is to leave Norwich soon to take up a business position in New York state. During the evening Mr. Leseman was presented a gold fountain pen.

Past Commander George A. Turner made the presentation in behalf of the Post. In his remarks the past commander made reference to the splendid service Mr. Leseman has rendered the Post from the time it was organized six years ago until the present time. Mr. Leseman was one of the first ten charter members and through his untiring efforts helped increase the membership from ten to the present number, 134.

Mr. Leseman has held several offices in the Post and at the last annual election was chosen Post quartermaster, which position he held until recently when he was obliged to resign owing to his removal from town. The Post comrades regret that Mr. Leseman is to leave Norwich and extend him best wishes in his new field. Mr. Leseman graciously acknowledged the gift of the Post. During the evening a buffet luncheon was served by the kitchen police detail, H. Kavanaugh, Martin Burns, and G. Shrove.

COMPOSER HEARS OPERA FROM DISTANT STATION

Of a native of Windham the Providence Journal said at the week end: The unusual opportunity of hearing selections from an opera of his own composition broadcast from a distant radio station was last night afforded Dr. Jules Jordan of 238 Waterman street, music teacher and composer.

Parts of the score of "Rip Van Winkle," composed by Dr. Jordan several years ago, were broadcast from station WSAI, the George Peabody College for Teachers, in Nashville, Tenn. The Ensemble Singers, under the direction of D. R. Gephrt, were the broadcasting artists. The local musician has been in touch with Mr. Gephart for some time, as the latter has shown great enthusiasm over the opera, "Rip Van Winkle." It has already been produced by the Nashville team and he plans another production this spring. Dr. Jordan hopes to have it produced in Providence again.

TWO CALLS FOR FIRE DEPT. OVER WEEK END

Two telephone alarms were answered by the local fire department over the week end. The first call came at 7:20 o'clock Saturday night for a fire caused by blazing soot in the stove pipe at the barber shop, No. 1[illegible] Franklin street, Walter Abendroth, proprietor. Sunday afternoon at 3:18 o'clock the department was called to the Del Hoff hotel, No. 26 Broadway where an overheater pipe was causing trouble.

Officials of the fire department Sunday night again sounded a warning to the public to be especially careful in burning semi-bituminous coal and oil for heating purposes. These substitutes for hard coal give off large quantities of smoke and stove and heater pipes soon became clogged with soot. Stove and heater pipers should be cleaned out regularly.

Holland is growing as a producer of pork.

MRS. NELSON T. CROWELL SINGS IN NEW LONDON CHURCH

In the brief absence over the holiday of Miss Gladys Pettigrew, soprano of the First Church of Christ, Rev. Dr. J. R. Danforth's church, New London, Mrs. Nelson T. Crowell, of Norwich sang in the quartet Sunday. Dr. J. L. Erb is organist at this church and the other members of the quartet are Mrs. Helena M. T. Church, Norwich, contralto, Mr. Lambdon, bass and Mr. Smith, tenor.

At the morning service the anthem was Dr. Erb's arrangement of "Crossing the Bar," the other beautiful anthem being "The King of Love My Shepherd is." At the evening service, the quartet gave the anthems, "Let Not Your Heart be Troubled" and "O, Saviour of the World." Mrs. Crowell's fine voice afforded much pleasure to the congregation and to the members of the choir. For the past four years she has not been singing in public.

GAVE INSPIRING ADDRESSES AT SPIRITUAL ACADEMY

Two large congregations greeted Rev. Jennie Southworth at the Spiritual Academy Sunday and were edified by her spirited and scholarly discourses. She presented her spiritual teachings in a very concise manner and followed her addresses with psychic messages in which she gave consolation and joy to a number of those in the congregations.

It was announced by President Charles W. Dowsett that Amelia Adams, the famous flower medium will speak at the academy next Sunday at 2:30 o'clock and 7:30 p. m.

FLO LEEDS ILL IN HOTEL IN NEW YORK

NEW YORK, Feb. 21—(AP)—Flo Leeds, who arrived from Florida four days ago, was reported to be confined to her bed today by illness in her apartment, which she leases under the names of Mrs. K. Lincoln, Mrs. Leeds, who was mentioned in the Stillman divorce suit as the intimate of James A. Stillman, now on a "trial honeymoon" with his wife in Europe, was not accompanied by her son Jay Leeds.

TITLED ENGLISH LADIES SEE AS MANY POWDER-PUFF GIRLS

LONDON, Feb. 21. (AP)—Assertion that love of the open air and sports has sounded the death knell of the flirtatious, powder puff girl are refuted by Lady Forbes-Robertson. Lady Martin-Harvey and others who maintain that the young women of today are as feminine as ever.

The physical training instructress of the Blackburn Education Committee contends that when a girl's leisure is devoted to healthy outdoor recreation "she has neither the time nor the mind to powder her nose, or wonder if she is sufficiently attractive to men."

Concerning this view, Mrs. Joan Rosita Forbes, the explorer and author, says flirting is out of date because good comradeship between men and women has taken its place.

Lady Martin-Harvey believes that all the sports girls have indulged in have not taken away their charm nor made "man girls" of them in the least.

As Gertrude Lady Decies sees the question, any suggestion that the modern English girl, because she indulges in sports and athletics, neglects her dress and personal appearance is far from being a fact. "Watch girls playing games," she avers. "They are invariably neat and tidily turned out."

Lady Forbes-Robertson says: "Sport "Sports for girls is necessary, but so, also, is the powdering of one's nose. I don't believe sport deprives a girl of the time for flirting, for most girls love flirting at any old time."

MOVIE SCHOOL SOON TO TURN OUT GRADUATES IN PICTURES

NEW YORK, Feb. 21. (AP)—A movie school graduation, in which the making of a picture is the test and contracts the diplomas for successful students, will soon be held in New York.

In this unique school the course of study includes the art of kissing before the camera, dancing anything from the classical to the Charleston, pantomime, emotional control, character study, loss of self consciousness, scenarios, swimming, gymnasium exercises, and fencing.

With the growth of the motion picture industry, the need of skilled players became apparent. Famous Players officials conceived the idea of establishing a training school. From 25,000 applicants 19 were selected. This number was reduced to sixteen after three students fell behind the rest of the class, which began work in July.

Completion of the first photoplay, tentatively given the title of Glorious Youth is near, and the acting ability displayed by the students will determine who will be placed on the road to stardom.

Marian Ivy Harris of Atlanta, and Charles Rogers of Olathe, Kan., have the leading parts in the film, but each of the other students also has a good role.

"The long hours of training have seemed like play," was the way Miss Iris Grey, of Wichita, Kansas, described her opinion of the school. "The work gave us all enormous appetites soon after we started and as a result all of us have been dieting. But what is a little dieting when there is a chance to make good in the movies?"

LOW ROBBERY RECORD LAID TO POLICE DEXTERITY WITH GUNS

SAN ANTONIO, Tex., Feb. 21.—(AP)—Down here in the shadow of the old Alamo, folks generally and the police in particular, have a reputation for being quick on the draw and quicker on the trigger. But San Antonio, with a population of more than 200,000 and a police department of 193, has not had a major robbery in five years.

The remarkable absence of gunmen, safe blowers and others of that portion of the population is accredited to the fact that there are 25 men on the force who are expert pistol shots. The whole force, including the marksmanship medal-holding Chief T. O. Miller, engage in pistol practice at regular intervals. It is said that if officers were beaten on the "draw," they would hand over their weapons in disgust.

The 193 persons of the force, which includes matrons and other attaches, patrol an area of approximately 50 square miles.

FLIGHT SURGEONS STUDY AIR HAZARDS TO REDUCE EFFECTS

WASHINGTON, Feb. 21. —(AP)—The gamut of ills to which flesh is heir is not going to be increased unwittingly by man's adventures into the air realm if army flight surgeons can help it.

A summary of recent experimental investigations by the air service special school for doctors discloses the intense study that is being made of the physical effects of such things as high altitude, cold, motor exhaust gases and the like upon army flying personnel.

And it additionally shows that the flight doctors of the school put in nearly 300 hours of high flying in the last calendar year to carry out their researches, much of it above the 15,000 foot level.

Some phases of the study of the effects of low oxygen on men doing physical work, had to do with the efficiency of airmen who are called upon to undergo work strains at high altitudes.

GEESE SHOD WITH TAR WHEN MARCH TO MARKET BEGINS

BERLIN, Feb. 21. (AP)—Holiday geese driven many miles from Poland to markets on the German frontier, are shod with a tar preparation in order to stand the strain of the long walks. The tar sticks to the feet and prevents bruising.

What roast turkey is to the Anglo-Saxton dinner, roast goose is to the Germans. A goose in the hands of a German housewife is utilized as completely as the pig in an American slaughter house. The fat and even the entrail's are used in making "drippings," a delicacy which takes the place of butter on the family table.

Eighty per cent of the population of India get their living out of the soil.

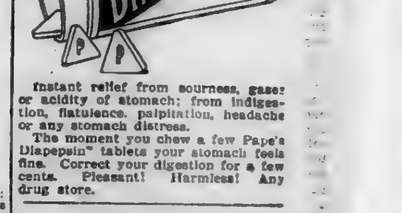
INDIGESTION!!!
UPSET STOMACH
GAS, GAS, GAS

Chew a few Pleasant Tablets, Instant Stomach Relief!

Instant relief from sourness, gases or acidity of stomach; from indigestion, flatulence, palpitation, headache or any stomach distress.

The moment you chew a few Pape's Diapepsin" tablets your stomach feels fine. Correct your digestion for a few cents. Pleasant! Harmless! Any drug store.



Whispered Sweetness!

A charming voice—and a breath like Spring? Both bad eaters heartily, but neither feared to talk with heads close together. Chewing a Stuart tablet puts one at entire ease! Such a simple and delightful corrective of any sour condition!

When will you discover you can eat anything? Just carry a pocket box of Stuart's—and keep it filled! Instantaneous relief. Hearty eaters—hard smokers—high livers—find it a boon and blessing.

Full Box FREE:

Every druggist has Stuart's tablets, 25c and 60c. Or, if all box Free if you write the F. A. Stuart Company, Dept. G, Marshall, Mich.

ANNOUNCEMENTS

Henry Field's Thanksgiving Jubilee

Henry Field, who is owner of the well-known station "KFNF" at Shenandoah, Iowa, celebrates Washington's birthday, Feb. 22, in his own inimitable way. Mr. Ford has been invited to attend a monster "Old Time Fiddlers' Contest" which will be a part of the program.

Because of the recent installation of the most modern plant the Western Electric people know how to build, and since "KFNF's" second anniversary falls on Washington's birthday, Mr. Field is doing an unprecedented thing. He will give away to everyone who sends him a telegram between the hours of 7 a. m. Feb. 22 and 12 noon the 24th, a prize worth the cost of the telegram, a prize worth friends can send as many telegrams as they like.

The local telegraph office will remain open as long as is necessary to handle the expected hearty response to Mr. Field's invitation.

Conn. College Concert

Jacques Thibaud, the young French violinist who will be heard in Bulkeley auditorium, New London, next Tuesday night, under the auspices of Connecticut college, likes New York to live in and work in. Or rather, he tried to like it until his landlord changed from his hotel to an apartment when he had to fiddle almost night and day to keep liveried servants well paid and comfortable in their high-powered cars. He was just on the verge of making a living in his expensive apartment when the landlord said he did not think Thibaud would be able to afford another year there and he had better move into one of the more expensive hotels.

Thibaud packed up his violin, Madame Thibaud, the two boys, Roger and Philip, and made for one of the upper Broadway hotels where he says he is very comfortable when in New York.

When he is not playing the violin or enjoying a few hours reading his rent bills for the current month, Thibaud reads voraciously almost confining himself to classic literature. He considers it great intellectual sport. Out in the open he plays a fast game of tennis and for from bad golf. In his music room, the piano and the labor of composition for his own amusement form a sort of musical relaxation from the violin.

Tickets are now on sale at Starr Bros. drug store.

Bread Theater

Norma Shearer has always been known as an especially versatile young woman, but it was not until after seeing His Secretary at the Bread Theater last night that her talent as a comedienne was brought forcefully to the mind of the writer.

In this Hobart Henley production for Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer, Miss Shearer has given her most interesting performance. Stepping directly from a tremendous hit in an exceedingly dramatic picture, The Tower of Lies, Miss Shearer plays the comedy scenes in His Secretary with all the lightness of a Constance Talmadge, yet she retains the sympathy of the audience, and gives her role a whimsical quality that is seldom achieved in a comedy of the type of this story by Carey Wilson.

New Cody is again seen with Miss Shearer. Cody's change from villain roles to light comedy has been achieved with very little fanfare and blowing of trumpets, but he has created an individual style that no one else can approach.

Willard Louis has the fattest part of his career as John Sloden. He is the funniest fat man on the screen, today.

Henley's direction is well nigh perfect.

A word should be spoke here of the titles which were written by Joseph W. Farnham. They are the best seen on the local screen since Proud Flesh, which happened to be written by the same man.

Mabel Van Buren, Karl Dane, Gwen Lee, Estelle Clark and Ernest Gillen are all deserving of special notice that space does not permit. Hope Loring and Louis B. Lighton adapted the story to the screen from an original by Carey Wilson.

Why W Yawn

Why is a yawn contagious?

People have a natural tendency to yawn, to cleanse waste products from the blood with a gulp of oxygen, strongest when tired, but always present. The sight of another indulging in the luxury of a yawn is all that is needed to stimulate this unconscious craving.

It is not only the power of suggestion that turns this latent desire into an irresistible impulse, but even more the element of mimicry. Man, like the monkey and all other animals, has a tendency to imitate the actions of another, especially if such actions appeal to any subconscious desire on his part.

Such is the explanation of the trait offered in the physiological laboratory of the Middlesex College of Medicine and Surgery by Dr. Francesco Maurello, assistant to the head of the department, and Dr. A. Edward Balboni, professor of neurology at Middlesex, after Dr. Walter B. Cannon of Harvard had admitted his inability to answer the question.

Miss Jane Jennings enjoys the distinction of having played more mother parts than any other actress in the films. Recently she appeared in the role for the 175th time.

MYSTIC

CHAMBER OF COMMERCE DIRECTORS ARE TO MEET

(Special to The Bulletin.)

MYSTIC, Feb. 21—The directors of the Chamber of Commerce are to meet Tuesday evening and discuss matters which have come up since the last meeting. Some new members will be voted on and the date of the next meeting of the members is to be announced. The talk of incorporating the town of Mystic furnishes a topic for discussion among those interested and somew ho do not look upon it as advisable.

Sixteen were present at the Missionary meeting at the Baptist parsonage Friday afternoon, Mrs. J. B. Cerborn presiding and the program furnished by the Missionary society was carried out. It consisted of scripture readings, prayer, singing of hymns and the printed exercise.

Mrs. Max Bendett is visiting relatives in New York.

James Chesebro of New London road is in Norwich hospital for treatment.

Mystic Grange met Thursday evening. L. O. Allen, worthy master presided. It was voted to form a corporation of the grange. Following business, the men's degree team, Leslie Haley, master, conferred the first and second degrees on a class of five young men in a most efficient manner. It is expected they will make as fine a team as the women's degree team and the grange will bep roud of both teams. In place of the lecturer's hour, Past Master J. W. Pollard read a detailed report of the annual state meeting held in Hartford in January. Lecturer Miss L. R. Schroeder gave a report of the lecturers' conference. The grange closed in due form and the cake with coffee, left from the Pomona dinner was utilized for the lunch. It proved a hard day for the women members, with a Pomona all-day meeting and grange meeting in the evening but they were equal to the task and received the praise due them. Some of the men were of great assistance to them in the work during the day.

The play given by the World Wide Guild in the vestry of the Baptist church Thursday evening, "Fun on the Podunk Limited," filled the room, a few standing. Previous to the train starting Miss Elizabeth Thorp played piano selections and Mrs. Joseph Johnson and Mrs. Fanny Trevena, members of the church quartet sang duets. The audience was kept laughing by the experiences of the pasengers all the way to the final stop. The bride and groom had as many difficulties as the other passengers.

Friday night at St. Patrick's church, the regular Lenten service was held with the Stations of the Cross and benediction of the Blessed Sacrament. The Men's league received holy communion in a body Sunday morning at the 8:30 o'clock mass. During Lent, there will be a sermon by a visiting priest and benediction of the Blessed Sacrament every Wednesday night, and every Friday night there will be stations of the cross and benediction of the Blessed Sacrament.

The Samaritans of Ahab Sanctorum were hosts to their brother Odd Fellows and women guests last Saturday night. Grand Monarch A. O. Lewis started the meeting at 7:30. Among the important business was nominations of officers for the coming year and instructions in new ritual work. An entertainment followed given by C. Dexter Wicks of Niantic, formerly of New York with clever specialties. Dancing followed music being furnished by Brown's orchestra, Prof. Littlefield Prompton. Lunch was served.

William G. Strickland and Miss Florence Oakes who were quietly married at St. Patrick's rectory, Feb. 16th, by Rev. Thom

FINANCIAL AND COMMERCIAL

WEEKLY FINANCIAL REVIEW

NEW YORK, Feb. 21.—(AP)—Price movements in this week's stock market were irregular and inconclusive in seeming harmony with the tradition that February is an off month in the securities markets. Several developments outside the market, however, attracted considerable interest, notably the declining trend of commodity prices, the continued stiffness of call money rates, the ten cent weakness of French francs, which carried them down to within about 1-8 of a cent of the extreme record low of 3.43 cents established in 1924, and the large influx of new bond offerings which ran close to $260,000,000 the highest of any single week in over a year.

Bear traders started a "weeding out" process in the stock market, and succeeded in forcing a sharp downward readjustment in the quoted values of several industrials, particularly in a number of new and unseasoned shares which had been pushed up to levels apparently unwarranted by their asset value and earning power. On the other hand, bullish demonstrations were successfully staged in American Can, General Electric and a number of other industrials and specialties, some of which are known to harbor a large short interest.

Weakness of French francs reflected the budget and tax difficulties of the Briand government. French government and municipal liens, however, received good support. A sharp advance in Japanese yen, which carried them to the highest price in three years, and in the Scandinavian currencies, reflected the efforts of those governments to bring their exchanges nearer dollar parity.

Cotton and wheat failed to break out of the trading area within which they have been fluctuating for some time. Weather and consumption reports are being closely watched for indications of a definite priced trend.

TAFTVILLE

A very well attended whist party was held Thursday evening at the K. of C. rooms on Providence street, under the auspices of Ponemah council, No. 34. Ten tables were in play. The first prize for gentlemen went to William Carson; the second to William T. Delaney and the third to Henry Phaneuf. Miss Antoinette Tetreault had high score for ladies and was awarded the first prize: Miss M. C. Garvie the second and Miss Annie Hasler the third.

A valentine whist was given Tuesday evening by Ladies' Auxiliary of Division 16, Ancient Order of Hibernians in their rooms, which proved to be very successful. The prizes were donated by the members and were awarded as follows: Ladies, first, Mrs. Joseph Laramie; second, Mrs. George Tetreault. Gentlemen, first, Matthew Tetreault. Gentlemen, third, Mathew Garvie; second, James Murphy, consolation, Joseph Laramie. A social hour followed, refreshments of home made cup-cakes, doughnuts and crullers being served by the following committee: Mrs. William J. Malone, chairman; Mrs. J. Walch; Mrs. Tenas Breault and Mrs. William Nolan. The scorers were Miss Mary Murphy and Miss Mary Nolan. Vocal solos were given by James Garvie. The committee in charge were highly pleased with the large attendance.

Charles Lamoreux has resigned his position with the weaving department of the Ponemah company.

Mr. and Mrs. Arthur J. Roy have moved from the West block on Merchants avenue to another house on Merchants avenue.

Mrs. Axel L. Aberg of North Third avenue has been a guest this week of Mr. and Mrs. William Jackson of Baltic.

Assistant Postmaster Edward V. Murphy announced Friday that the schedule of hours at the local postoffice today (Washington's birthday) will be as follows: 7 to 8 a. m.; 12 m. to 1 p. m.; 6 p. m. to 6:30 p. m.

Scores of income tax blanks for use in reporting the 1925 incomes were received at the local postoffice Friday, from the Hartford office of the collector of internal revnue. Inserts accompanying the blanks as a special notice to taxpayers show that there has been a change made in the law governing the liability of filing a return. A single person having an income of $1,500 instead of $1,000 is liable to a return, and a married person having a net income of $3,500 instead of $2,500 must file.

Wilfred Bibeau of Norwich was a visitor in the village Friday.

The members of the N. F. C. met Wednesday evening with Mrs. Gustave Hedler of Terrace avenue. After the sewing hour a buffet lunch was served by the hostess.

In connection with the account of the funeral of William Dupuis of Taftville it was stated that D. Lambert, R. Gerard, N. Phaneuf and H. Phaneuf represented the St. Louis Society of which Mr. Dupuis was a member. This should have read D. Lambert, R. Gerard, N. Phaneuf and N. Frechette, representing the St. John Baptiste society of which the deceased was a member.

MONTVILLE MAN FINED IN WATERFORD COURT

Seventeen motor vehicle operators from various towns in this section of the state were arraigned in Waterford town court Friday afternoon because of defective lighting equipment. The arrests were the result of a drive started Wednesday night all through the state by state police officers under orders of State Motor Vehicle Commissioner Robbins B. Stoeckel, to clear the highways of defectively lighted cars.

Most of the defendants were arrested by the state police for failure to have tail lights and had their cases nolled upon payment of the costs, upon recommendation of the prosecutor, but were warned by the court that all future arrests will be handled more severely by the court.

Raymond C. Davis of Montville, arrested by State Policeman George Sisson, entered a plea of guilty to a charge of speeding and Judge Frederick N. Dimmock fined him $10, to which costs were added, which he paid.

Blind from birth, Howard Cook, 19, of Huntington, W. Va., opened his eyes Saturday and observed the wonders of nature for the first time following an operation by Dr. C. M. Hawes.

HARTFORD PRIEST OPENS SERIES OF SERMONS AT ST. PATRICK'S CHURCH

In the first of his series of sermons to be delivered during the Lenten season at St. Patrick's church, Rev. Matthew Brady, spiritual director and professor at St. Thomas' Seminary, Hartford, spoke Sunday evening on two important questions facing man: Why are we here? and Whither are we going? taking his text from the gospel of St. Matthew 16.26—"For what shall a man be profited, if he gain the whole world, and forfeit his soul"?

Witnesses to the life of the Lord have heard these accounts and have told them to instruct future generations. They tell of the appearance of the Angel Gabriel to the Virgin Mary, of the flight into the wilderness, stories of Jesus in the temple and then they are silent on the early life of Jesus. We then hear more about Jesus. His meeting with John the Baptist and His baptism in the Jordan. Jesus then went into the desert and fasted for 40 days and 40 nights, thus practicing the penance He was soon to preach. It is to imitate this and honor His penance that we observe Lent. We set aside this time to consider eternal things and ask Why we are here and whither we are going.

At the opening of this season of Lent we distribute the ashes to remind us that as from dust we came, to dust we must all return; that we have an immortal life beyond.

At the beginning of this penitential season let us set a solid foundation and look back to the origin of races and the purpose of life, whence we come and why we are here. In this life we find endless phases and cross-purposes and many attractions. A hundred years ago none of us were here. Whence came we? Was it from our parents? They might answer "We have neither given thee breath, soul or life! look to the heaven and the earth, all this God made from nothing and mankind likewise."

So-called scientists claim it is all by chance, atoms whirled about until they became what we see today. Another teaching, so prevalent in our universities, is that man came from some lower form of animal life! this is evolution.

It is true that the church allows you to believe as you desire concerning the human body, but the church cannot accept this concerning your immortal soul, which was a direct act of God. Concerning evolution as far as the body goes, you are free to have your theory as you will, yet even this is but theory, unproven. As for our faith, what matters it whether God took dust or animal into which He breathed an immortal soul? If we believed these teachings of evolution there would be no need of a future life, or God. We cannot reason thus, for science and evolution does not satisfy the longings of the human heart; science can never explain this human harmony.

Let us consider the successive generations of human life which must have had its beginning at some time. Some being who had life himself could only have created man; something with life must have put life into nothing. This being must have been all perfection and must live for eternity. We call that being God, remembering that wherever we are, there He is also.

Once we admit the existence of God, the rest is history. God told the first beings the purpose of their life. He created heaven, earth and mankind. We learn of man's first sin and learn the redemption promised. The Redeemer came, suffered and died to restore man to the friendship of God.

Then we must ask whither are we going? We must ask ourselves why did God make me? This question is answered in the words to know, love, serve in this world and be happy in the next world with Him. It may be stated in five words, To save our immortal souls.

That soul God has shackled to our body, the intellect has been dulled and the will weakened, for there are many attractions which influence us. We take some joy in our own importance and are swept along in the current to get all the fun and pleasure out of life and that is possible. This is a pursuit which does not satisfy, for there is always the cry for more. We were created for the purpose of saving our immortal soul, not to have a good time.

Many men strive for wealth and power; they care well for bodies and their homes, but they have little care for their immortal souls, or the souls entrusted to their temporary keeping. Why should man wait until death makes him realize he must leave all this behind? Beware then ye seekers of wealth, wisdom, learning, and ye who seek to indulge in all that life offers, for they are but for a few years and then all shall be taken from you!

The Lord spoke in parables for mankind to understand. Seekers after knowledge have interpreted these parables and found them applying to many things in life. The parable of the vineyard and the householder who put all men at work, is one of these.

God is the householder and the world is the vineyard, in which we must work to save our immortal souls. The hours in the parable are the various periods in our life, when we must work for that promises reward, the eternity of happiness.

Why is the vineyard ever dry, barren ground? Why must the church be always calling out "Why stand ye here all the day idle"? It is indifference! we are thinking of our own importance. Does the balance in life swing to worldly pleasures or to the side of working in the vineyard? think, lest the fearful thought come, the thought of the saying that "it were better that this man should never have been born" should apply to you!

God places a great value on the immortal soul. He created man from nothing and made him in His own image, the soul is the center of all and it is shackled to our body. Think ye not that the stars which shine, the earth with its flowers, and filled with animal life, were not all for the glory of God. God has His chosen few and when all are gathered home darkness shall come and all shall be destroyed, for the world and man shall have served its purpose.

More proof of God valuing the soul is shown when He sent His Son to die. The Saviour spent thirty years in poverty, three years in preaching and then died upon the cross between two thieves. This cost God more than all else! He spoke, and the world was created and all things therein, but the blood of His Son was given for the saving of man's soul.

We cannot value the soul, the Creator alone has this right. God gave us the Church to aid, He sent the Holy Ghost to aid, sent Angels as messengers and gave us a guardian angel. God sent His son and He has His Saints in Heaven, secure in their happiness, but pleading for ours. Bishops and priests, they teach us, missionaries go out to foreign lands, all to aid in the salvation of immortal souls.

The work of saving your soul is a personal thing, no one else can save it for you. God can create you, but He cannot save you. You must work in His vineyard for your salvation or all has been waste. You should work, that when the eleventh hour comes and God sends out the final call, you may hear the words, "Well done thou good and faithful servant, enter thou into the joy of Thy Lord."

The musical part of the service was under the direction of Organist Henry J. LaFontaine and was one of marked beauty. The special chorus for the Lenten series possessed exceptional qualities and the choir numbers were unusually pleasing.

In the Magnificat, by Mozart, adapted from the Twelfth Mass, the singing was with precision and understanding, the choral effects being remarkably well given.

The vesper program as arranged under the direction of Organist LaFontaine included:

Domine ad Adjuvandum ..... Rosewig
Dixit Dominus ..... Rosewig
Frank R. Murdy, baritone
Confitebor ..... Rosewig
William Farmer, basso
Loretta Bellefleur, contralto
Laudate Pueri ..... Rosewig
Mrs. Edward McCune, soprano
Roderick F. Sullivan, tenor
Walter LaFontaine, tenor
Laudate Dominum ..... Rosewig
Mrs. Bernard M. Coyle, soprano

OVER 8,000 AUTO DRIVERS LOST LICENSES

The suspension power was more extensively used by the state motor vehicle department during the past year than at any other time since the law was adopted authorizing this form of discipline for motor vehicle operators.

In the constant purpose to curb carelessness on the public highways and promote public safety, the department took away, for periods varying according to the offense, the licenses of 8,434 drivers during the calendar year 1925, which was 677 more than the total of suspensions for the previous year and 3,198 more than the number of operators suspended in 1923.

Reckless driving was the cause of 3,009 of the 8,434 suspensions ordered during the past year. Intoxication of operators cost 1,204 of them their operating privileges. The suspensions charged up to intoxication increased by nearly 200 during the year, those for reckless driving barely exceeded the 1924 total.

New Haven had the most suspended operators, 1,039, but was closely followed by Hartford, with 1,000. Bridgeport had 632, Waterbury 387, New Britain 385, New London 139, Meriden 141, Stamford 276, Ansonia 77, Norwich 103, Torrington 83 and Willimantic 42.

Evasion of responsibility is a most serious offense for which the department required the surrender of 198 licenses in 1925, as against 191 in 1924. Fifteen operators were detected operating while under suspension, and subject to further discipline.

Sixty-one operators lost their licenses because the department, after investigation, adjudged them "improper persons" to have the right to control motor vehicles on public highways. Four lost their license for loaning it to others and 1,236 were caught operating without a license and therefore put on the ineligible list for the time being. For "overlooding," 247 operators, mostly truck drivers, were required to send back their licenses, 823 others met the same discipline for operating unregistered cars and 239 lost their license as a result of being involved in fatal accidents, for which the state law requires immediate suspension until completion of coroner's investigation. When finding shows no criminal responsibility a hearing for reinstatement is set, but in cases where operator is at fault the law calls for one year's suspension of license.

DOLLAR DAY CROWDS THRONG NORWICH STORES

In the opinion of thousands of shoppers who thronged Norwich streets Saturday, when Dollar Day was being observed by all the leading stores of the city, the bargains offered were by far the best ever placed on sale for a Dollar Day in this city.

The stores opened promptly at 9 o'clock, an agreement by which it was possible to treat all customers alike and from that time until the stores closed at night the stores were filled with people in search of the bargains.

Merchandise was seasonable and of high quality and the bargains were unlimited. Merchants went out of their way to bring their stock to the fore and bring prices down to an extremely low level and the people were quick to realise that Dollar Day was a bargain day and they were on the street bright and early awaiting the opening of the stores.

Selling was general all along the line, every class of business feeling the impulse of business during the day. Smiling faces were general, equally distributed among buyers and merchants, for both benefited through the offerings of the day.

Stock moved fast and counters had to be replenished many times during the day with fresh stock, prices were made as visible as possible and the service was all that could be expected on a "rush day", all this being an aid to the Dollar Day shoppers and the merchant for it saved time for both.

Dollar Day has evidently become an institution in this city and Saturday was one of the best ever for all concerned.

FAULTY HEADLIGHTS BRING FINES IN CITY COURT

As the result of activities by the state police 24 motor vehicle operators were before the city court Saturday morning, each having received a yellow ticket on Thursday night. Out of the 24 offenders 21 of them were charged with having faulty headlights or tail lights on their machines, two were charged with failure to have operators licenses with them and one was charged with speeding.

Cases against 16 offenders were nolled on payment of $5, two on payment of $3 and one, charged with speeding, paid $15. Five cases were continued until Monday morning.

A number of those charged addressed the court and said that they considered the action of the state police rather hasty, a number of them claiming that notification to have lights adjusted or repaired would have been sufficient and there was no deliberate intention to violate the law.

One clash came when the case of Attorney Leslie L. Brewer of this city came up for trial. Attorney Brewer was charged with having a faulty head light. According to what was brought out in court Mr. Brewer, before leaving his house about 7 o'clock in Thamesville to go to Trinity Methodist church for a meeting, looked over his lights to see if they were lit. Seeing that everything was O. K., at the time he got underway and was on West Thames street when hailed by one of his neighbors that his left front light was extinguished, "and that the state police are down at the foot of the hill trapping unwary autoists."

Attorney Brewer said that he got out and saw for himself the trouble, tried to remedy it but could not. However, seeing that the street at that point was probably properly lighted so that he would use his dimmers, which were in good condition continued on his way.

Going down West Thames street near the Richmond Radiator foundry, Attorney Brewer claimed that he was hailed by two cops, one of whom said that everything was O. K., but Policeman Bobnick told him to throw on his other lights with the result that only one of the lights burned. The officer handed him a summons.

Officer Bobnick in his testimony on the stand told of seeing a car parked about 200 feet distant on top of the hill with only one head light but would not say that it was Attorney Brewer's car. The officer admitted on cross examination by Attorney Brewer that the lights were legal if the headlight had been burning. The state policeman, however, did not agree with Attorney Brewer in regard to lights in the vicinity so that dimmers could be used.

Attorney Brewer stated that if a man could be summoned into court in this manner where there was no intent to violate the law it was "an abuse of authority on the part of the state police." A warning would have been sufficient, Mr. Brewer contended. He claimed that he use dall the precautions that an intelligent man could use without violating the law. The defendant also stated that there were arc lights about every 150 feet, besides other lights on signs, etc., which would make an object visible for more than 200 feet.

The case was put over until Monday inasmuch as Mr. Brewer wished to secure more witnesses in regard to the lighting facilities in that section and Judge Libby stated that this was the only point needed clarifying. The defendant said that he would have plenty of witnesses on this point on Monday.

Henry Wragg of Mansfield Depot pleaded guilty to speeding but finally changed his plea to not guilty. Wragg testified that he started his trip to his home from the foot of Broadway Hill and was arrested at the junction of Union street and Broadway and that the officer gave him a ticket right away.

State Policeman Sisson claimed that he had to jump out of the way to avoid being hit by the Wragg machine and that he and Officer Kennerson blew their whistles and that the Wragg car stopped in about 45 feet and was travelling at about 30 miles an hour.

Wragg denied this speed, testifying that he was traveling between 20 and 25 miles an hour according to the speedometer in his car. He testified that he went at about 25 miles an hour to pass another car ahead which was going about 15 miles an hour. He said he could have stopped in quicker time but that it was slippery. The state officers admitted the slippery condition of the highway.

Judge Libby, after hearing the testimony fined Wragg $15 and costs, totalling $25.44 after he had found the accused guilty of the charge.

Ralph Kinder claimed he had just left his home when he was stopped for a defective taillight on his car. He claimed it had gone out suddenly. His case was nolled on payment of $5. Similar action was taken on the case of William J. O'Brien of Norwich.

City Attorney Robbins informed the accused that he should have parked his car and walked to the nearest station for a bulb. Judge Libby informed O'Brien that he should have a good extra bulb.

Others pleading guilty to having faulty tail lights and given a blanket fine of $5 flat were: Joseph O. Morse, Gordon W. Simms, Edward W. Carson, Walter O. Treat, Frank Krupinski, Alphonse Dubreuill, Thomas J. Shahan, Edward Gudeon, Teodel Ethier, Jr., William Fox, Frank Donnelly, James L. McSheffery, Ovid C. Lacroix, George A. Bullard, all of Norwich.

Nolled upon payment of three dollars was the disposition of the cases of Henry L. Williams and Clyde Carpenter, both of this city.

The following five cases were continued until Monday: Lawrence Hoffman, Dr. John W. Callahan, Attorney Leslie Brewer, Lincoln D. Rogers.

CHURCHES PLAN CANTATA FOR PALM SUNDAY

During the services Sunday at the Central Baptist church it was announced that the choir of that church, assisted by choirs of other Protestant churches of the city, is planning to render a cantata, The Seven Last Words, by Dubois, on the evening of Palm Sunday, at 7:30 o'clock.

Members of the Central Baptist choir are Mrs. William Crowe, Jr., soprano, Mrs. Reuben P. Potter, contralto, Frederick J. Maples, tenor and director and Frank Steinke, baritone. Miss Louise Fuller is at the organ.

GOLDEN RULE AND POLICIES OF AMERICA

The prayer used at the Church of the Good Shepherd, Universalist, Sunday morning was the prayer written by George Washington when he was 20 years old. Rev. A. N. Foster, the pastor, spoke on the subject, The Golden Rule in Patriotism. His text was: "The Golden Rule in Patriotism" Text, Matthew VII.—12. Therefore all things whatsoever ye would that men should do unto you, do ye even so to them for this is the law and the prophets. He said in part:

The towering and august personality of Washington commands our patriotisms and in such a presence we are not prone to resort to trickery and trifling and double dealing. America has received much of the bounty of Nature and much of the favor of circumstance in the life of the world and is therefore greatly responsible for the wise and generous use of such advantages.

On the anniversary day of the Father of his Country, we may well consider the possible application of the golden rule to the policies of America.

America has led in the work of international co-operation and has sent forth missionaries and educators to compass the ends of the earth.

She has also opened wide the gates to immigration and has bidden the people of all countries to come here and help us till the fields and build railroads and factories and mills and tell us about the art and the architecture and the music of the older civilizations; to come here and escape the oppression of the extravagant courts of the old world and the dictation of monarchs and nobility. That generous policy has resulted in the great migration of all history and the American form of government even has been copied in most of the nations of the earth—east and west—and all within 150 years.

We realize however, today that we witness a reaction for America now frowns on co-operation and repels immigration.

Within our own city an aged couple has lately been deported to a foreign country.

An editor is arrested in the industrial center of Brockton for denying a belief in God and in the divinity of Christ under the authority of a Massachusetts statute of 1697.

Does this mean that he is the first man in 200 odd years to commit "blasphemy" in that historic commonwealth or does it mean race discrimination and social caste?

A young English woman, in the shadow of the Statue of Liberty is refused entrance to the country; not because she has broken the laws of the land but because she confessed moral slip to an immigration official.

Apply the golden rule. How would you like to be deported in your old age through the efforts of official detectives? How would you like to be subject to arbitrary arrest on the authority of a statute ignored for over 200 years?

We remind ourselves that we are living—not in Prussianized Germany before the war nor in Russia 50 years ago but in America in the 20th century!

Applying the same standard, how many Americans returning from Paris with divorces will be held up at Ellis Island?

In fact, America leads the world in the number of divorces and is notorious for "crime waves" of murder and banditry and theft and embezzlement and her citizens would lustily resent any such questionaire at the frontier of any other country in the world.

If American citizenship shall surrender the right of private judgment to the government and shall here repeat the bureaucratic exactions, the racial hatreds, and the caste tyrannies of the old Europe of the past, she has lost her natural leadership and thrown away her great advantages.

She has forgotten the requirements of the golden rule and may well study and meditate further on the principles and integrity of the great George Washington.

SECOND WATER BOARD ISSUE IS SOLD

Saturday noon Mayor Milo R. Waters, Corporation Counsel William H. Shields, Jr., and Councilman Frank H. Quinley, president of the board of water commissioners, opened bids for the second block of bonds to be issued by the city for the water department, to build the new Deep River reservoir.

Several bids were received and the highest premium, that received from H. L. Allen & Co., Gibson & Leefe and G. L. Austin & Co., jointly, is the highest given any city bid in recent years, the amount to the city being $6,403.95. The bid accepted for this batch of bonds was $101.2198 for each $100 par value, a total of $531,403.95. The bid on the first $210,000 issued was at $100.24.

The present issue of bonds calls for $525,000 four and one-quarter bonds, dated March 1, 1926, due $15,000 annually March 1, 1931 to 1965, inclusive. POETRY

Washington.

Stalwart he stood 'mid men of stature less,
Giant in figure, with frame full leonine;
Golden of heart, he proved a hundred fine;
Minded for justice, truth and goodliness,
Human in full, not he to scorn success
Trailing the redskin, dragging surveyor's line,
Forging an army into a strong design,
Sharing with suffering soldiers their distress,
Looming he stood, the monumental man,
Called for the colonies' momentous hour,
Equal to any task that must be done,
Shielding the nation when it thus began;
First in his hearts, in peace and war a power,
Father of rights,—the essential Washington.

Keep on Keeping On

If the day looks kinder gloomy
And your chances kinder slim,
If the situation's puzzling
And the prospects awful grim,
If perplexities keep pressin'
Till hope is nearly gone,
And bristle up and grit your teeth,
And keep on keepin' on.

Frettin' never wins a fight
And fumin' never pays;
There ain't no use in broodin'
In these pessimistic ways;
Smile just kinder cheerfully
Though hope is nearly gone,
And bristle up and grit your teeth
And keep on keepin' on.

There ain't no use in growling
And grumbling all the time
When music rings everywhere
And everything's a rhyme.
Just keep on smilin' cheerfully
If hope is nearly gone,
And bristle up and grit your teeth
And keep on keepin' on.

A collection of precious autographs has been discovered at Mantua in the archives of the Gonzaga library. Among the famous autographs come to light are the signatures of Rubens, Lucrezia Borgia, Titian, Tasso, Aretino, Ariosto, Palestrina and Galilei. Kilnsea, England, an ancient little village, appears destined for the bottom of the ocean, a fate experienced by other Yorkshire towns of centuries past. The sea for some time has been working its way toward Kilnsea at the rate of about thirteen inches a month. Coast erosion, due to high seas, has been causing concern all along the east Yorkshire coast. It is being washed away at the rate of 2.27 feet per annum near Bridlington, increasing to 15.5 feet at Kilnsea, which is near Spear point.

The reversible cloak idea imported in England from the Riviera has been taken up by the best people of England, who can not afford automobiles. The London reversible wrap is very gay on one side, suitable for the theater and the ballroom, and the other is anything but flashy. The dull side is worn in the subways, the buses and trams. The scheme became popular because so many society women use this means of travel. It enables them to do a quick turn change just before arriving at their destination.

A bottle thrown into the sea by the United States fishery bureau off Chatham, Mass., was recently picked up at Brixham, England, having accomplished its voyage across the Atlantic in just two years, says the Manchester Guardian. Similar experiments over a considerable number of years by Captain Simpson, F. R. S., yielded some interesting results. Of several thousand bottles which he committed to the waves about 1 per cent were picked up in various parts of the world, and the particulars asked for in the letter inclosed in each bottle were supplied by the finders. Many of these bottles drifted 10,000 miles before coming ashore, the average rate of travel working out at about half a mile an hour. One of Captain Simpson's bottles took four and one-half years on its sea trip, in which time it traveled from Capetown to the Shetland Islands.

OMAHA'S "MANIAC KILLER" WAS TRANSIENT FARMHAND

Frank Carter, 46, Captured by a Railroad Section Foreman 36 Miles Southeast of Omaha, Tells Incoherent Story—Just Had an Inclination to Shoot—Used a 22 Calibre Automatic Pistol, Mounted With Silencer—Boasted of His Shooting Eye—Had Killed Two Men, Wounded a Third and Terrified Residents of Omaha and Council Bluff, Iowa.

OMAHA, Neb., Feb. 22—(AP)—Frank Carter, 46 years old, a transient farm hand was arrested today charged with being the "maniac killer" who in the past week has caused the death of two men, the serious wounding of a third, and terrifying the residents of Omaha and Council Bluffs, Iowa.

Carter, in jail here tonight, was unperturbed and talked to police and newspapermen of the killings explaining they were the result of a career of crime, and that he had to kill to hide himself. A gun and holster were found upon Carter.

"I shot because I didn't want to get caught. I just get the inclination to shoot," he told police.

Carter was found walking along a railroad track near Bartlett, 36 miles southeast of here this morning by a railroad section foreman, C. C. Bruce. Carter had crawled out of a haystack but a few minutes before he was seen by Bruce, who ran his speed car into Bartlett, gathered four friends to his aid and returned to the railroad, capturing Carter. Bruce identified the man by his leather coat.

William L. McDevitt, a dairyman, shot a week ago last night on the street and Dr. A. D. Searles, shot two nights later in his office were Carter's victims. He used a 22-calibre automatic pistol, mounted with a silencer.

Carter in his leather coat was easily recognized by the section foreman. It was from under this coat and two shirts that the gun, encased in a rubber hose holster was taken.

Taken into Bartlett on a handcar Carter was jovial with his captors. He was turned over to Council Bluffs officers at Pacific Junction, Iowa, and later was given to Omaha police to face probable first degree murder charges.

In each case, Carter said, he shot his victims to prevent his own capture and identification.

However, the McDevitt slaying was in vain, because after he had fired at the fleeing victim, he ran from the body he had felled with a shot behind the car when a pedestrian appeared, who saw him.

Although Dr. Searles' body was not found until Wednesday morning, Carter shot him about 5:30, Tuesday night, he said.

He killed when the doctor refused him money, and took the physician's watch. He had the time piece when caught, police said.

Aside from the slaying of McDevitt and Dr. Searles, Carter admitting having fired into the Thompson drug store last Tuesday night, shattering a plate glass window and putting bullets through neighboring residence windows. No one was injured by these.

"I wanted to keep the cops thinking some one in the neighborhood was doing it so they wouldn't look for me somewhere else," Carter asserted. So well did his ruse work that constant patrol of the neighborhood was maintained night and day.

Carter claimed Ackley, Iowa, as his home, but said he had been here since Jan. 1. He had been to Sioux City and Cedar Rapids, Iowa, he said, for short stays. Last summer he worked near Kansas City as a farm laborer. He claimed to be unmarried.

Carter expressed regret that he had shot Johnson, but again reverted to his excuse of self-protection. "I thought he was after me, so I shot," he stated.

Carter used a 32 calibre weapon, he explained, because it was easy to carry, easy to silence and "sure". He boasted of his shooting eye.

Carter stressed that when he fired into the drug store window a block from where he had felled McDevitt, that no one was in his line of fire. The bullet barely missed a woman clerk.

After shooting Johnson, Carter said he fled to a nearby cornfield. When he saw the fire which the same night destroyed the trans-Mississippi grain elevator with a loss of $300,000, he thought it was a fire to light up the surrounding countryside in the search for him. While the fire was in progress, he fled to nearby railroad tracks, which he followed to within a few miles of where he was captured.

The town of Bartlett declared a holiday this afternoon. The $750 in rewards offered by Omaha newspapers probably will be paid to it officials.

BISHOP BROWN BECOMES ADVOCATE OF REVOLUTION

NEW YORK, Feb. 22—(AP)—Bishop William Montgomery Brown, who was deposed from the Protestant Episcopal church for alleged heresy but later consecrated a bishop in the Old Catholic church, discussed the subject of "Revolution" today before several hundred negroes in Harlem.

He described revolution as the supreme moment of evolutionary progress.

"I spoke to you on Lincoln's birthday on the subject of emancipation," he said, "and I was severely criticised. Lincoln's birthday apparently was not the time to mention any such subject as emancipation and Washington's birthday is no time to introduce the subject of revolution.

"Oh with the revolution! They that impeach! Statistics or no statistics, the time has come when you want to breathe, when you want to have life and have it more abundantly.

"Our government, in fact, has become so futile that nobody seems to be able to take it seriously any longer," he said. "Congress is a joke, and it is generally recognized that our administrative departments are for sale at bargain prices."

Bishop Brown charged that Americans no longer take their churches seriously. "When the people want any real advice as to how to live in a real world, they no longer ask their ministers and bishops. They ask their scientists."

He again offered to lead a march of the negroes to the fashionable Cathedral of St. John the Divine to "proclaim the gospel of freedom and equality."

ACTION AT CONVENTION OF POSTOFFICE CLERKS

MIDDLETOWN, Feb. 22—(AP)—Delegates to the annual state convention of the Connecticut State Federation of Post Office Clerks, assembled here today, went on record as favoring the following:

Increased annuity from $720 to $1,200; reduction in night work; a half holiday on Saturday throughout the year; elimination of the speed-up system; reduction in retirement age from 65 to 60; liberalized present retirement law and liberalized injury law.

The following officer were elected at the afternoon session: President, W. J. Groves, New Haven; first vice president, A. B. Shippee, Bridgeport; second vice president, E. P. Lawton, jr., Hartford, third vice president, John Sheehan, New Britain; secretary, Harry Norton, Hartford and treasurer, J. H. Smith, Ansonia.

The guests and delegates were entertained tonight at a banquet and dance in Stueck's tavern. Thomas F. Flaherty, secretary and treasurer of the national organization, delivered the principal address.

MARY LOUISE SPAS ENGAGED TO HERBERT W. SINGLETON

DENVER, Colo., Feb. 22—(AP)—The Denver Post says today that Mary Louise Spas, whose adoption by Edward W. Browning, wealthy New York real estate man attracted such wide comment that it caused the annulment action, is in Denver and engaged to Herbert W. Singleton, 21, of Rochester, N. Y. Singleton, the Post says, admitted that he and Mary were engaged "informally" and added that "I hope to marry Mary some time next summer."

He said Mary's mother and his parents would be here before the marriage.

Singleton's father, the Post says, is president of a candy company at Rochester.

TAX REDUCTION BILL TO REACH THE HOUSE TODAY

WASHINGTON, Feb. 22—(AP)—The $387,000,000 tax reduction bill was dressed up today for its final congressional journey, which starts tomorrow, when the house will be asked to ratify the compromise agreed upon by senate and house conferees.

Chairman Green of the house ways and means committee, spent the day preparing a report on the action of the conferees and announced to the house he would call up the bill for consideration the first thing tomorrow.

While Representative Newton, republican, Minnesota and some others are ready to ask recommitment of the measure to conference with instructions that the provision for a retroactive reduction in the inheritance tax be eliminated, leaders confidently expect the house to approve the bill within two hours.

If the house gives this approval, the measure will be brought up Wednesday in the senate, where early ratification of the conference agreement also is expected, dapite some opposition.

Under this program, leaders believe the bill will be sent to the white house by Thursday. President Coolidge is expected to sign it immediately, making most of its tax reducing provisions effective at once.

Many of the taxes which the measure would repeal also will be wiped out upon its enactment. All the reductions in income taxes will be effective on 1925 incomes, on which taxes are payable this year, beginning March 15.

ANNUAL OFFICERS' SCHOOL OF AMERICAN LEGION POSTS

BRIDGEPORT, Feb. 22 (AP)—More than 150 newly elected officers and members of American legion posts and auxiliaries from all over the state today attended the second annual officers' school held in the Harry W. Coggdon post building, 307 Goldan Hill street. The school was in two sessions, morning and afternoon and consisted of lectures by past officers on the duties and problems of post officers. One of the speakers was Harry C. Jackson, New Britain, state commander.

Members were present from the posts of Bridgeport, Bristol, Torrington, West Hartford, Shelton, Wethersfield, Norwalk, West Haven, Waterbury, Seymour, Westport, Ansonia, Meriden, Stratford, Danbury, New Haven, New Britain, Branford, New Milford, Greenwich, Orange, Hartford, Derby, Stamford, Berlin, Danielson, Plainville, Milford, North Haven, Westville and Fairfield.

TO PRESENT PROGRAM OF AMERICAN FOLK SONGS

NEW YORK, Feb. 22—(AP)—American folk songs, many of them new to the concert stage, will be presented next Saturday morning by Marshall Bartholomew at Aeolian hall.

Mr. Bartholomew, conductor of the University Glee club of New York city, and director of undergraduate music at Yale, has arranged the songs in five groups after having adopted accompaniments to many learned on the plantations of the south and in the mountains of North Carolina.

Some of the songs to be presented are:

"Dearest Billie," "Grandma, Grunta" and "Possum Tree." Missionaries Reach Hankow

HANKOW, China, Feb. 22—(AP)—Eight American missionaries reached Hankow today from Sinyangchow, 125 miles north of Hankow, where a group of Americans has been under the fire of the contending Chinese armies. They tell a grim story of pillage, looting and murder in connection with the strike of Marshal Wu Pei Fu's Hupeh army and the Kuominchun, or national army, which supports the Peking regime.

For British Service Men

LONDON, Feb. 22.—(AP)—The government's scheme adopted in 1919 to settle former service men on the land at the cost of the state will have cost British tax payers nearly £10,000,000 by the end of the present financial year, March 31, according to a report prepared by a committee of the ministry of agriculture. The report says that if it was the intention of parliament to make such a costly experiment it is not for the committee to criticise this policy, but the committee thinks the country ought to realize the cost. Apart from its expense the committee admits the scheme has been very successful.

COUNTESS OF CATHCART TO "FIGHT TO THE FINISH"

NEW YORK, Feb. 22—(AP)—The Conutess of Cathcart today turned the tables, at least temporarily, on government officials, while she was enjoying the sights of New York city, harried officials spent most of the holidays consulting on the status of her case.

Federal Attorney Buckner, one of the consulting officials, considered that the countess passed from the jurisdiction of the federal courts back to that of the immigration bureau of the department of labor when she signed a personal bond last night for her liberty for ten days. This made it necessary, he said, to hold the scheduled hearing in federal court tomorrow on the writ of habeas corpus which she obtained before being released from Ellis Island under $500 bond.

The announcement that there would be no habeas corpus hearing was made by Mr. Buckner after he and two of his assistants had conferred for an hour and a half with Assistant Solicitor Reitzel of the labor department.

It was explained that the countess would stay here ten days, forfeit her bonds by not returning to Ellis Island or leaving the country, be arrested on a warrant, returned to Ellis Island and then, perhaps, be released on another writ of habeas corpus.

While the officials were occupied with their problems the countess was enjoying her temporary liberty, attending a luncheon at the Ritz-Carlton hotel, receiving visits from friends and sightseeing in New York. She maintained that she was determined to "fight to the finish."

YONKERS MAN KILLED BY HUNGER-CRAZED DOGS

YONKERS, N. Y., Feb. 22—(AP)—Henry Griffin, a one armed mechanic, today was found dead on a lonely road, after an encounter with two hunger-crazed dogs.

His clothes, with the exception of his shoes, were torn from his body, scarred by tooth marks, and the torn sod over a large area bore mute witness to the struggle, believed to have occurred about nine o'clock last night. The body was found by a small boy, who spread the alarm.

One of the dogs was killed later today in an outbuilding at Zadler's Grove, but the other was still being hunted tonight by eight policemen armed with shotguns.

Griffin had been visiting Adolph Gordella, foreman of the Yonkers city dock, and was believed to have taken the short cut over the road where his body was found when Gardella asked him to go on an errand. Money given him by Gardella was found in a remnant of his overcoat.

The dogs were traced 200 yards from the scene of the encounter to the outbuilding by footprints in the snow and blood stains and the one was killed when cornered.

The caretaker at the grove said the dogs had made the outbuilding their home several days ago and had been unable to oust them.

OFFICERS CHOSEN BY STATE ASS'N OF LETTER CARRIERS

GREENWICH, Feb. 22—(AP)—William A. L'Hommedieu, of Meriden, was elected president of the Connecticut tate Association of Letter Carriers, at the annual business meeting here this afternoon. He succeeds John Sargent of this city.

Edward J. Gaynor, of Washington, president of the National association, was the principal speaker this afternoon and also tonight at the annual dinner. Other speakers were William J. Gorman, Brooklyn, member of the executive committee and Bernard Curtin, Lynn, Mass., member of the executive committee of the Mutual Benefit association.

More than 75 delegates were present. They were guests of the local letter carriers. It was the 32nd annual convention of the state organization.

Other officers elected were: Vice president, John S. Burns, New Britain; secretary, Frank B. Whitney, Hartford; treasurer, Andrew J. Norris, Stamford; first, second and third trustee, William S. Ghent, Waterbury, William Ponge, Bridgeport and Harry M. Hubbell, South Norwalk, respectively.

PASSENGERS TRAPPED IN BURNING TROLLEY CAR

HARTFORD, Feb. 22.—(AP)—Trapped in a burning trolley car when the front door failed to operate, three passengers of a westbound Elizabeth Park ope-man car were saved from fire and smoke by the presence of mind of Motorman Roger Monahan, who threw open the rear door. Flames burst from beneath the control box when the car was about 400 feet east of Sisson avenue. When Monahan tried to operate the automatic air-driven door, it failed to respond to the lever. Monahan took the lever to the rear and succeeded in throwing open the door. A passerby turned in an alarm to the fire department.

The trolley car was put out of commission and had to be towed back to the car barns.

BOSTON MURDER PROBABLY THE RESULT OF VENDETTA

BOSTON, Feb. 22.—(AP)—With two bullet wounds in his back the body of Luigi Militaire, was found today in a North End alley. Police expressed the belief that he was the victim of a vendetta, following discovery of crude chalk drawings of a dagger and crescent in the hallway of the lodging house where he lived. The police were also convinced that Militaire was murdered at some other place and his body tossed into the alley.

Beale Sentenced For Grave Robbery

Binghamton Man Confessed and Told of Mental Anguish He Had Undergone Since His Crime Was Discovered.

DELHI, N. Y., Feb. 22—(AP)—Fred G. Beale, of Binghamton pleaded guilty to a grave robbery charge in Delaware county court late this afternoon and was sentenced to serve an indeterminate term of from two to four years at hard labor in Auburn prison.

Beale made a complete confession to County Judge Andrew J. McNaught, detailing all of his movements since the night of September 25 last when he robbed the grave of James H. Davis in a cemetery near Hancock and afterward sent the body plunging over a cliff in his automobile in an attempt to make his friends and business associates believe he had been killed in an accident. He was arrested recently in Miami, Fla.

Indictments charging grand larceny and first degree forgery, which stand against him in Broome, Sullivan and Delaware counties for his alleged mismanagement of the Mobinco Brokerage company of Binghamton of which he was president, will be held in abeyance, it is understood, until he has completed his prison sentence. Beale will be taken to Auburn tomorrow.

Beale's confession was dramatic.

"My punishment," he told the court, "has been going on ever since that day in Boston when I found my crime had been discovered. I have seen my friends turn from me. I have seen my father and mother turn away from me and then ask God what for and why I ever was born. I have seen my sister and brother spurned by their friends because of my act. I have seen my little girl, who used to come up to me and ask me to kiss her, turn away with loathing. I've been in hell for five months. I am ready to accept any sentence your honor may impose on me and I only ask to be given the opportunity to save what I have made in Florida to be devoted to my wife and family."

FRENCH REVENUE BILL TO PRODUCE 6,235,000,000 FRANCS

PARIS, Feb. 22—(AP)—The report of the senate finance committee on the chamber financial restoration bills will recommend the adoption of measures, which, according to the estimates, will produce 6,235,000,000 francs new revenue.

M. Doumer, the finance minister, overcame the last hesitations of some of the doubting members of the committee by the declaration that this sum was the absolute minimum required in addition to the three billion francs voted in November, to make the treasury safe, the deficit, said the minister, amounts at the present time to 5,585,000,000 francs.

The taxes proposed by the senate committee with the Loucheur taxes will total 9,235,000,000. If they are voted as recommended they will provide a surplus of 3,650,000,000, which with the proceeds of the lottery authorized by the chamber will assure financial equilibrium against further fluctuations in exchange, and finance a sinking fund which is expected to reduce the debt progressively and relieve the tax burden.

ATTEMPT AT EXTORTION BY HIGH SCHOOL GIRL

CHICAGO, Feb. 22—(AP)—Helen Britt, 16 year old high school girl, who, for "a thrill", attempted to extort $1,000 from a vaudeville actor whom she had seen at a theatre, and who said "of course I didn't expect to get the money, but I got a kick out of it," was released by the police today.

"It all comes from a misguided sense of humor—she is a practical joker," her father said. "This, together with the fact that she is a movie fan, I suppose, accounts for her trouble."

RE-ENACTED MEETING OF FIRST AMERICAN CONGRESS

PHILADELPHIA, Feb. 22—(AP)—Wearing costumes of the period, members of the First American congress at Carpenters' hall here September 5, 1774.

He came here in 1918 and has built Bridgeport's circulation up to over 1,000,000, placing it second in circulation among 47 cities of between 100,000 and 200,000 population, led only by Springfield Mass.

Winners of Harvard Advertising Awards

Ernest Elmo Calkins, of New York, Was Awarded the Gold Medal For Distinguished Personal Service.

CAMBRIDGE, Mass., Feb. 22—(AP)—Announcement of the winners of the Harvard Advertising Awards for 1925, founded by Edward W. Bok and carrying $21,000 and a gold medal in prizes, was made tonight by Dean Wallace B. Donham of the Harvard Business school.

Ernest Elmo Calkins, president of Calkins and Holden, Inc., New York Advertising Agency, was awarded the gold medal for distinguished personal service to advertising.

The $2,000 prize and certificate for the national campaign most excellent in planning and execution was awarded to Young and Rubican, advertising agency of Philadelphia, and the Postum Cereal Company, Inc., for the campaign of Postum. No differentiation was made this year between institutional and merchandising campaigns.

Joseph Richards Company, Inc., New York Advertising Agency was awarded $2,000 and certificate for the Tidewater Oil Sales Corporation's "Tydol" campaign, as the most excellent local campaign of a manufacturer.

For the best local retail campaign, Pedlar and Ryan, Inc., of New York and Ovington's New York Specialty store were awarded $2,000 and certificate.

H. G. Weaver of the General Motors Corporation won a $2,000 prize and certificate for a research which developed an index of effective buying power for consumers by counties in the United States. No other research award was made.

Three awards of $1,000 cash each and certificates were made for distinguished individual advertisements. Merle Thorpe of "Nation's Business", Washington, D. C., won that for most effective use type by an advertisement appearing in that journal. For the advertisement most effective in the use of pictorial illustration, the award was made to Willard D. Humphrey of McKinney, Wash., and Cushing, Inc., Detroit agency, for an advertisement of the Hay's Sales company. Roy F. Heinrich of Detroit was the artist. For the advertisement most effectively combining these two factors the award was made to Mrs. Erma Perham Proetz, of the Gardner Advertising Agency of St. Louis, for an advertisement of "pet milk." The artist was Andrew Loomis of Chicago.

Mr. Calkins, winner of the distinguished persons service medal, has been a partner of his firm since 1902. Trained as a printer, he realized the importance of art and helped organize the first art department in any agency. He was equally progressive in other lines. He has written magazine articles and books upon advertising and was given the honorary degree of doctor of literature by Knox college in recognition of his work in advertising.

The jury of award met at Harvard in January. It made recommendations for several changes in the awards, the most important of which were the inclusion of an award for the advertising campaign of industrial products deemed best and an award for the best local campaign produced locally in any small city or town.

DECLINE OF BAGGAGE TRANSFER BUSINESS

HARTFORD, Feb. 22—(AP)—"Unless women dress up, the baggage transfer business, which has been gradually dropping off during the past few years is doomed," was the prophecy made tonight by the proprietor of one of the city's leading express companies.

"When a woman travelled a few years ago," he said, "she used a half dozen trunks. Today, this same woman uses a single trunk, or even a lone handbag. It is all in the way women dress. Their clothes are much lighter and more flimsy today and if they continue their present dress scheme, all of Hartford's baggage business will some day be left to one or possibly two transfer firms."

Another contributory cause to the decline of the baggage transfer business, local expressmen have pointed out, is the using of taxicabs to carry baggage along with passengers.

ANTI-PROHIBITIONISTS IN "FACE THE FACTS" MEETI

Members of Both Houses, the Clergy, Leaders of Wo... Clubs and Others Advocated a Modified Form of P... bition to Correct Alleged Evils Due to the Stringen... stead Act—Speakers Generally Assailed Cond... Which Have Arisen From Prohibition.

WASHINGTON, Feb. 22.—(AP)—The battle cry of the Anti-Prohibitionists for a modified form of prohibition to corect alleged evils among the youth of today and save the morals of the coming generations was sounded today and tonight by numerous speakers at the second annual "Face The Facts" conference of the association against the prohibition amendment.

Called to meet on what was described as a propitious day in view of the principles of liberty and self control taught by George Washington, hundreds or delegates to the conference heard a series of emphatic speeches in support of legislation for legalization of light wines and beer from members of both houses of congress, the clergy, leaders of women's clubs and others.

The speakers generally assailed conditions which have arisen with prohibition, declared six years of the law had shown it could not be enforced, and called for imediate relief.

Senator Edge, republican, New Jersey, one of the recognized "wet" leaders in congress, renewed at the association's Washington's birthday banquet tonight, the vigorous attacks launched during an afternoon session at which Senator Edwards, democrat, of the same state was the principal speaker.

Declaring the drive of the modificationists was "not a campaign for booze, but rather a practical effort for temperance unobservable today," Senator Edge said he would welcome a nation-wide referendum on modification of the Volstead act, and amendment of the 18th amendment, "to a point of common sense legalizing of spirits and liquors, with all the safeguards which can practically be devised."

"In that manner and that alone," he asserted, "can we solve the entire problem, if ever it can be solved."

SIR HENRY LUNN DELIVERED WASHINGTON DAY ADDRESS

NEW YORK, Feb. 22—(AP)—America cannot separate itself either from the affairs of Europe or from the interests of humanity the world... Sir Henry Lunn, prominent ... man, said in a Washington's ... address today.

Sir Henry was the principal ... at the Sulgrave Institute's ... Washington memorial dinner. ... subject was "The Philadelphia C... tutional Convention of 1787 ... Lessons for Today." After a ... delving into American history ... pare himself from London. Sir ... said he had become convinced ... the condition of the world ... compared in many ways with ... problems of the confederation imm... ately after the revolution.

Sir Henry said he found not only the example for political concord, but economic freedom in the United States, "which produces everything from an iceberg to a banana," and where "free and untrammelled exchange of commodities exist."

Of Washington, Sir Henry said: "In 1783 George Washington completed his task as commander-in-chief and laid down his sword in the assembled congress with a speech which for simple grandeur has seldom been surpassed. At that moment he was the hero of his nation. And if he had been of mea nambition, he might have established a personal dictatorship. But the ambitions of a Caesar or a Napoleon were unknown to him."

R. E. L. SANER ADVOCATES WORLD COURT MEMBERSHIP

NEW YORK, Feb. 22—(AP)—The "handmaidens of strife and desolation —imperialism, territory ambition and the spirit of conquest," will be discredited if the United States is accepted into the world court, A. E. L. Saner of Dallas, Texas, said today in a Washington's birthday address.

Mr. Saner, who is president of the American branch of the International Law association, and a former president of the American Bar association, expressed hope that "only a short time shall intervene before the nations supporting the world court may accept the adhesion of the United States to the permanent court of international justice upon the reservations adopted by the senate."

CHAPMAN CONFIDENT OF SIXTY DAY REPRIEVE

HARTFORD, Feb. 22 (AP)—A reprieve of sixty days will be sought for Gerald Chapman tomorrow, as the first move to allow his counsel time to carry his case to the United States supreme court.

Attorney Frederick J. Groehl, of New York, senior counsel for Chapman, made this announcement today following a conference here with his associates, Joseph M. Freedman and Ray M. Wiley, of Springfield, Mass. He delegated Mr. Freedman to ask State's Attorney Hugh M. Alcorn tomorrow to request Governor Trumbull to grant a stay of execution for that period.

Mr. Alcorn declined to reveal what his attitude on such a request is until he has talked with Chapman's counsel.

Emphasizing that Chapman had only nine days of life under the present sentence and was scheduled to die on March 3, Mr. Groehl said that a reprieve was imperative to give him time to petition the United States supreme court for a writ of certiorari, as he plans to do within this week. He was confident, he said, that Mr. Alcorn would accede to his request when it appeared to the state's attorney that he was serious in his intention to appeal the case to the supreme court at once.

After a visit with Chapman at the state prison, where he and Mr. Wiley and Mr. Freedman spent more than an hour with their client, Mr. Groehl reported Chapman as confident that Mr. Alcorn would acquiesce in the move to reprieve him until the highest tribunal in the country has passed on his appeal.

DE PAOLO WINS MIAMI 300-MILE AUTO CLASSIC

MIAMI, Fla., Feb. 22—(AP)—Peter De Paolo, maintaining an average speed of 129.29 miles per hour, won the inaugural of the 300 mile automobile classic here today, over a field of 18 drivers and established a new record for the distance.

De Paolo finished two laps ahead of his nearest competitor, Harry Hartz, Bob McDonogh was third.

In winning today's race, De Paolo lowered Tommy Milton's former record of 109 miles set at Kansas City in 1925.

Under ideal weather the 18 drivers were started on the long drive by Barney Oldfield, former speed king. Ralph Hepburn shot into the lead at the start but on the third lap surrendered the position to Dave Lewis. At the end of the first 100 miles Leon Duray was leading the procession with De Paolo in fourth place and Hartz fifth.

At the half way mark De Paolo and Hartz had moved up a place with Duray and Devore setting a dizzy pace. Bennett Hill, in fifth place, was sent to the pits when a blowout caused his car to skid and turn around three times.

Devore shot into the lead at the 141st lap and De Paolo crowded the former pace marked into third position. De Paolo and Duray played see-saw for second place until the 151st lap when the latter was forced into the pits with tire trouble.

Devore set a new world's record for the 200 mile distance over a wooden bowl when he went the distance at an average of 131.04 miles an hour. The old record of 129.40 was set last Thanksgiving Day at Culver City, Cal., by Earl Cooper. He had been forced to the pits on the 173rd lap and De Paolo took the lead, never to be headed.

De Paolo had a pair of his baby's shoes fastened to the steering gear of his machine. It was the second race the little Italian had won with these "pilots and mascots" as he termed them.

Prayers for independence were read all over the Philippines on the occasion of Washington's birthday.

SEVEN LIVES LOST IN HOTEL FIRE AT HURLEYVILLE, N. Y.

HURLEYVILLE, N. Y., Feb. 23 22 (AP)—Holiday joy turned to mourning tonight for a score of survivors of a fire which early today destroyed the Schindler Prairie House here, causing the loss of at least seven lives, and injuries to nearly 25 other persons. Five guests of the hotel have been missing since the fire, and the ruins were being searched for trace of them.

The hotel was in a group which caters to winter resort activities and many of the guests had come here expressly for Washington's birthday sports. Radio and card games occupied the attention of the guests last night, but the last of the visitors had retired before the fire started.

Shortly before 2 a. m. smoke seeping under doors awakened several of the guests, and many escaped by leaping from upper story windows, but within a few minutes the building was in flames, and when daylight fell on the ruins, a check up showed at least 12 guests and employes to be missing. By noon seven bodies had been discovered, and further search during the afternoon failed to reveal others, although state troops and firemen were convinced that more persons had lost their lives.

Because practically all of the victims were in their night clothes, only four of the seven bodies recovered had been identified by this afternoon. They were Benny Sand, of Jersey N. J., and Charles Garfinkle, address unknown, waiters at the hotel, Max Dimmeller, a chambermaid, and Bert Bastian, a porter, both of whose addresses were unknown.

Guests who were missing, and who were believed by state troopers to have died in the fire, are Louis Cohenjn 1715 Bryant avenue, New York city; Mr. Schorr, 1640 Topping avenue, the Bronx; Julius Hochsten, Mr. Yanknowitz, and Mr. Molloch, none of whose addresses were known.

As fast as other occupants of the burning structure leaped from windows and fled from the lower floor in their scanty attire, they were placed on sleighs and rushed to the Monticello hospital, six miles away by direct road, but nearly 15 today, with many of the roads blocked with snow.

LIQUOR LADEN AUTO CAPTURED IN HARTFORD

HARTFORD, Feb. 22.—(AP)—After a chase through the south part of the city tonight, State Policeman Robert D. MacKesson captured a liquor laden automobile after it had struck another car, and arrested the driver, Max Spector, ex-motorman, charged with transporting liquor and with several counts of motor vehicle law violations. Spector was released under $1,000 bonds for appearance in police court tomorrow. The automobile contained seventy-five gallons of alcohol.

SPEED BOAT RECORD SMASHED AT PALM BEACH

PALM BEACH, Fla., Feb. 22.—(AP)—Smiling Dan III owned and driven by Richard Loynes, of Long Beach, California, won the Poinciana trophy here today, gained a leg on the new $5,000 Elgin trophy, and set an official and an unofficial world's record.

This record does not stand however, because the rules stipulate that the boat must make six attempts at the mile distance due to yachts crossing the course. Loynes withdrew his boat after the initial attempt.

Smiling Dan, won the fifth and final heat of the race for 151 hydroplanes this afternoon, by covering the five mile distance in 3.14. In this heat, Dan set the time of 36.434 miles an hour, which is a world's record time for ... class under competition.

SALE OF TWO FIRE-HOUSES IS TO BE DECIDED TODAY

(Special to The Bulletin.)

WILLIMANTIC, Feb. 22—There is much speculation here asto the outcome of a special city meeting this (Tuesday) afternoon at the town building to vote on the proposition to sell the Montgomery House company brick building on Jackson street and the Hilltop House house on Summit street, along with the land on which the buildings stand. According to a recommendation of the fire committee of the common council, Walter R. King chairman, the proceeds of these sales will be applied to making an A-1 central fire station of the present Bank street Engine Co. No. 1 building. The board of aldermen voted to adopt the recommendations at the February meeting and upon the acceptance of a set of resolutions, Mayor John C. Tracy issued the call for the special meeting. The other members of the fire committee besides Chairman King are Aldermen Charles H. Beebe and Arthur J. Dubreuil.

Judging from current talk, the project will not be accepted without a dissenting vote. The opposition is for retaining the properties which are considered valuable for other uses by the city, if not occupied by the fire department. Interest centers about the Montgomery building on Jackson street. This two story brick structure is valuable, especially when considered from a replacement value. There are some who would like to have it used as a voting place for the third ward and provide a plan to include it in the third ward, which has a boundary line on the opposite side of Jackson street, leaving the building just within the second ward. Not much has been said relative to the Hilltop House. This is a wooden building which has been kept a good repair. It is located in a very desirable residential section and no difficulty is anticipated in disposing of it at a handsome price. Both buildings have been in practical disuse since the reorganiation and motorizing of the fire department, in June, 1917. What equipment is to be found in them is of a style and year which would make a drawing card at an antique sale. Advocates of the proposition realize, as every other citizen does, that Willimantic is badly in need of additional or new fire equipment and they feel that the business-like way of making these purchases is to sell all obsolete holdings which cost quite a sum to maintain and use the money for improvement. It is understood that if the plans of the fire committee are carried out in full, there will be no change in the fire rates in the city.

ST. JEAN BAPTISTE SOCIETY INITIATES 117 MEMBERS

(Special to The Bulletin.)

WILLIMANTIC, Feb. 22—At an initiation of one hundred and seventeen members of St. Jean Baptiste society, held Sunday night, the following entertainment program was carried out: Addresses by Rev. H. C. Belec, spiritual director of the membership campaign, Rev. Adelard Jaibert of Baltic and Rev. E. A. Mathieu, of this city. Illustrated lecture by Professor Arsene Croteau, teacher of French and Spanish at Connecticut Agricultural college. Recitation by nine-year old Francis Croteau. Vocal solos by Arthur Roy, Andrew Roux and Hector Lussier. History of the local society, by Alphonse Chagnon.

Comedy by M. Potvin, J. Gadbout and T. Chapentier, of Woonsocket, R. I. Closing address by President Alexis Caisse. The committee of arrangements consisted of Edmond Sylvestre, Omer Lafontaine, C. E. Dufresne, Armand Perreault, and Joseph F. Paulhus. The society was formed May 30, 1880, with forty members, of whom there are but three survivors—J. O. Blanchette and Henry Belair of this city and John Bosse of Hartford. The present officers are: President, Alexis Caisse; vice-president, Edmund Sylvestre; chaplain, Rev. J. J. Papilion; corresponding secretary, Ovila Garceau; financial secretary, Armand Perreault; secretary, Louis Veghrd; treasurer, Alphonse Chagnon; honorary president, Joseph F. Paulhus.

Mose Bombeia, 58, died at his home, 100 Quercus avenue, Monday morning. He had been an employe of the American Thread company for nineteen years, coming here from Altona, N. Y., where he was born October 3, 1857. He was a son of David and Amelia Dane Bombria. Surviving him are his wife and eight children, Charles of Plattsburg, N. Y., Allen, of Denmore, N. Y., Edward, George, Grant Bombria, Mrs. Charles Reynolds of this city and eleven grandchildren. He was a member of St. Joseph's parish.

Substituting a Reo delivery truck for the chemical truck which was out of commission, two members of Engine Company No. 1 put one over and kept traffic waiting patiently for their appearance while they were actually in the midst of it all. The firemen, armed with chemical extinguishers were responding to a still alarm for a slight blaze in the rear of the Popular Lunch on Main street, about 4:20 o'clock Saturday afternoon. The siren at Bank street was sounded and traffic stopped. No one paid any attention to the delivery truck as it speeded down the street and within a few minutes sped back. After all of five minutes of waiting traffic started up, at first cautiously and then with a sweep.

Those interested in numismatics find much of interest in studying a large collection of rare old coins possessed by J. Zephire Mathieu, recognized as this city's only professional numismatist. Mr. Mathieu is displaying two coins which bear on the face a likeness of George Washington. On one coin is inscribed "George Washington, born Virginia, February 11, 1732." On the reverse is a brief review of the life of Washington. It reads: "General of the American Army, 1775, resigned 1783, president of the United States 1789." The discrepancy on the birth date on this coin remains a mystery. The second coin is of more recent coinage and gives the date of the birth of Washington as February 22, 1732. On the back is the date of his death, December 14, 1799 and underneath a picture of his tomb is the word "Resurgimus."

Aldermen Robert H. Fenton, Charles H. Beebe and William A. Buck, members of the water committee of the common council, have called for sealed proposals for the purchase of all the city ice now stored at the Mansfield pond on the pumping station property. The bids will be opened Saturday evening next.

Fire Chief Henry J. Kelley stated Monday that the Reo chemical truck which has been in use at Engine Company No. 1 for eight years is being dismantled, all the equipment and the body being transferred to a new chassis and motor. It will be several weeks before the work is completed. In the meantime a Reo delivery truck has been in use and Monday a truck arranged with a combination chemical chasis and special body was put into temporary commission.

The Stars and Stripes were again conspicuous in the Shenandoah uniform flag display standards, in the business section of the city, Monday, Washington's Birthday. The arrangement at the town hall was unusually attractive. There are twelve flags on the High street side and seven on Main street. A large flag is placed on the tall pole on the east lawn.

Three gallons of chemicals were used to extinguish a chimney fire at the home of Edward Marrotte, 30 Mountain street, at 8 o'clock Sunday morning. Engine Company No. 1 responded to another chimney call Saturday night at 8 o'clock in the apartment at 124 High street, occupied by Misses Julia and Mary Duggan.

At the meeting of Natchaug Lodge No 23, Knights of Pythias held Monday night arrangements were made for the trip to the Past Chancellor's celebration of Damon Lodge No. 17, of Rockville, next Wednesday evening.

A snappy minstrel directed by John Sucrue is to be the entertainment at the meeting of San Jose Council No. 14, Knights of Columbus this (Tuesday) night.

Mr. and Mrs. William Turner entertained at Lemus hall, Sunday afternoon, in honor of the eleventh birthday of their daughter, Lorraine. There were twenty-eight guests. All enjoyed games, dancing, music and luncheon. The little girl received many pretty gifts. She and Master Joseph Zagara appeared in solo dances with Miss Lemus as accompanist and Miss Jennie Zagara playing the tiple.

A continuance was granted in a juvenile case, scheduled to be heard in police court chambers Monday morning, to allow Probation Officer S. Arnold Peckham time to investigate the charges.

But one arrest in an entire week and none over the week-end comes as a new light record for business at police headquarters. So far in February there have been but twenty-three arrests. Ten of these were made in one night on charges of maintaining a gambling house, gambling and frequenting.

Mr. and Mrs. Luke P. Allain received many friends Sunday evening who had called to give them a house warming in their newly purchased home. They were presented a beautiful bridge lamp.

The Right Breakfast for Workers

Eat Food that Supplies "Balanced" Ration After Night's Fast

IF YOU feel tired, hungry, "fidgety" hours before lunch, don't jump to the conclusion of poor health. Thousands have unenergetic mornings because they start days with breakfasts lacking in certain food elements.

To feel right, you must have a well-balanced, complete breakfast ration. As most other meals—lunch and dinner—you get it. But breakfast is a hurried meal, often badly chosen.

Then Quaker Oats, containing 16% Aleurin, food's great tissue builder, 68% carbohydrate, its great energy element, plus all-important vitamines and lime "alkali" that makes laxatives seldom needed, all, is the dietetic urge of the age sroun today.

PURCHASERS OF FRANCS KEENLY DISAPPOINTED

(Special to The Bulletin.)

DANIELSON, Feb. 22—(AP)—Danielson people who purchased francs of the Republic of France just after the war in the belief that they would promptly achieve a handsome profit through the transaction when the restoration of the franc to its normal value came about, look with dismay at the status of the franc today, shrunk in value to a basis of about 28 to the dollar. The looked for recovery seems farther away than at any time since the war. Individuals here are known to have invested as much as $2,000 in francs when they cost 6 to 8 to the dollar. The investment shows a very heavy loss just now, but one that likely can be made up at some distant time in the future. The situation is particularly discouraging to the investors, for they have not only taken a heavy loss on the money put in, but also the interest income from their invested funds. There is no way of determining just how much money Danielson people have tied up in francs, but it is believed to total a considerable number of thousands of dollars.

It appears that there is no present foundation for the story, which has gained some circulation here, that the Quinebaug bridge is to be replaced by a new structure by the state highway department. The bridge, spanning the Quinebaug river in Main street between the towns of Killingly and Brooklyn, is in good condition, though it has been in use for nearly forty years. When the time does come to replace this bridge it is going to mean great inconvenience, for there is no other state trunk line route across the river nearer than Wauregan.

Monday morning the funeral of Mrs Amelia L'Homme was held from her home in Goodyear with funeral services at St. Joseph's church in Dayville at 9 o'clock. Rev. Ignatius Kost, the pastor, Rev. Oscar Normand of Moosup and Rev. Ludovic Paradis of Voluntown were the officers of the solemn mass of requiem. The bearers were Harry LeMay, Fred Mathieu, John Duffy, of Putnam, Floyd Sweet of Danielson, John Loiselle and Henry Beaulac of Plainfield, all relatives of the deceased. There was a large congregation. The body was entombed at St. Joseph's cemetery. Martin T. Burns was the funeral director. Mrs. L'Homme died Saturday morning after an illness of eighteen months. She was a devoted Christian woman, a loving mother, a kind friend. She leaves three sons, Theodore, Louis and Alfred, and a daughter, Mrs. Odias Touchette.

Scores of pupils in the schools of the various communities of Killingly and Brooklyn were interested and delighted in Monday's press despatches telling of the consideration by the navy department of sending the famous old war vessel Constitution on another cruise. These children, some months since, gave in varying amounts to a fund being raised to repair the famous vessel and save it from destruction. The drive for the fund in this territory was conducted by members of the order of Elks, and the children became enthused over the proect. They see in the plan to send the Constitution on a cruise a reward for their interest and their giving, and assume that the ship will not be dismantled and broken up, as it was intended to do before the fund was raised to repair the vessel.

Late in April the annual charity ball of Putnam lodge of Elks is to be held at the state armory in Danielson. While the headquarters of the lodge is in Putnam, this important social event has been held in Danielson, where there are many members of the lodge the past two years. The large drill shed at the armory gives more floor space for dancing than is available in any of Putnam's halls. A committee has been named to make the arrangements for the ball, the proceeds from which are each year devoted by the lodge to charitable works, particularly at Christmas time.

Following a high mass of requiem at All Hallows' church, Moosup, Saturday morning, the body of Victor Stringer of Central Village was entombed at the Sacred Heart cemetery in Wauregan. Rev. J. E. McCarthy was celebrant at the requiem mass.

A few back country highways remain unmarked by wheel tracks or any other sig nof vehicular traffic since the snowstorm of February 4th. Other routes that are open are being used in place of these isolated highways.

Physicians are treating numbers of cases of what are commonly described as the grip, and there appears to be more illness just now than at any time during the earlier part of the winter.

Miss Jean Storer, who is studying in Boston, has been a visitor with her parents, Mr. and Mrs. F. E. Storer.

Arrangements were under way Monday looking to the adjustment of the fire loss Sunday morning of the Boucher bakery, in the Withington building.

Observing the holiday, postal service here was curtailed Monday, the office closing at 10 o'clock, though the lobby was open throughout the day. Mails were despatched as usual.

J. Carl Witter and N. A. Witter were at Putnam Monday conducting an auction sale at the Putnam Hardware store.

Dealers say that February has produced a surprising volume of automobile chain business, the best of any month in years. There has been a heavy demand for cross chains to replace others worn out in the hard usage of the past three weeks.

Danielson's town basketball team will be in Thompsonville this (Tuesday) evening for a game with the Crescents, who lost to Danielson on a recent appearance in this town.

One hears of nice things that Danielson Rotarians are doing in the quiet way characteristic of the organization—things about which they are not anxious for publicity.

All motor vehicle operators' licenses for the past twelve months expire at midnight next Sunday night. Many applications for renewals are going out from the town this week.

In the town court Monday morning, Judge W. Kenner Woodward imposed a fine of $1 and actual costs on Charles H. Simpson of Providence, remitting the fine. Mr. Simpson paid $4.39 for driving a motor car on which the tail light was out.

Charles Henry, 70, a native of this town and always resident in the vicinity of East Killingly, died Monday forenoon at his home in that place.

PUTNAM

WIFE OF "KID" McKENNA BRINGING DIVORCE SUIT

(Special to The Bulletin.)

PUTNAM, Feb. 22—Mrs. Helen C. McKenna has begun proceedings in the Windham county superior court, against James P. (Kid) McKenna for divorce. She asks for the custody of their minor child, James F. McKenna, Jr. Kid McKenna, the Mechanicsville boxer some time ago went to Reno, Nev., established his residence there and began suit for divorce against Mrs. McKenna. In her petition, Mrs. McKenna charges intolerable cruelty. While no specific acts of cruelty are set forth in her complaint, she gives her version of the milk bottle episode named in her husband's petition. He alleges that she hit him over the head with a milk bottle. Mrs. McKenna admits that she tried to do this, but not until her pugilistic husband had punched her in the mouth, nearly knocking two of her front teeth down her throat. The teeth were returned only after being wired after an X-ray had been taken and considerable money spent to save them.

Mrs. McKenna also says that her husband left for the west as soon as she withdrew a complaint for criminal assault in a justice court in Thompson, and that she will show other acts of cruelty when the case comes to trial.

The writ, issued by a Putnam attorney, has been served by registered mail on the defendant at Reno. McKenna is widely known in ring circles as Kid McKenna.

TALK BY DR. C. D. USSHER, WHO MARRIED NORWICH GIRL

(Special to The Bulletin.)

PUTNAM, Feb. 22—There was a large audience last evening to hear Clarence D. Ussher, M. D., of Worcester give his lecture, at the Second Congregational church. Dr. Ussher was born in Illinois and after receiving his diploma practised medicine at Kansas City, Mo. In 1913 he was sent as a medical missionary to Turkey by the First Congregational church of Springfield, Mass. After serving at Harpoot a year he was transferred to Van and while there married a Connecticut girl, the daughter of Rev. John Otis Barrows of Norwich Town, who died during the war, while doing Red Cross work. In 1919 he headed Unit No. 1 of the A. C. R. N. E. Red Cross to the Caucasus and the same year was sent to the Peace Conference in Paris. Here worked in the Caucasus under the Near East Relief, in the midst of danger from the Bolsheviki when official appointees had fled for safety. He was invalided home and was in poor health so long that he was unable to return. He is now practising medicine in Worcester, and is in constant demand as a speaker on the Near East situation. Dr. Ussher's talk was of unusual interest. Among other things he told of his most critical situation when a fanatical young Turkish governor-general invited him to his house to give him a chance to accept the Mohammedan faith before being deported.

Joseph Smith, Jr., has moved with his family from East Thompson and is now living in the Flagg house on Chapman street in this city.

Mrs. Harry F. Barrows, who has been visiting Mr. and Mrs. John P. Grosvenor in Pomfret has returned to her home at North Attleboro, Mass.

Miss Priscilla Smith of Boston spent the week end with her parents, Mr and Mrs. Arthur E. Smith of Seward street.

Mrs. Carlton Blossom of Woodstock avenue have been entertaining friends from Danielson.

Francis Curran a student at Holy Cross college, at Worcester, spent his holiday with his uncle, and aunt, Mr. and Mrs. William Killian of Woodstock avenue.

There is to be a meeting of the Social Circle of the Second Congregational church this (Tuesday) afternoon, at the home of Mrs. John J. Russell.

Washington's birthday was observed in Putnam by the closing of the banks, partial closing of the postoffice, that is, there was no delivery of mail and the schools were closed for half the day. The Shenandoah system of flag decoration was used.

Is spring near? A few days ago some robins were seen and appeared to be perfectly happy, blue jays are singing and this morning red headed woodpeckers were busy.

Miss Mable Ritch, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Benjamin Ritch of Woodstock broadcasted on the Friday morning musical at the Biltmore Hotel in New York last week. Paul Althouse and a number of other well known musicians were also on the program. Miss Ritch who spent her girlhood in Woodstock has many friends in this vicinity who are interested in her musical career. Her selections were mostly from Italian operas.

TO HEAR NORWICH SPEAKER AT WILLIMANTIC ROTARY

(Special to The Bulletin.)

PUTNAM, Feb. 22—A number of the member of the Putnam Rotary club are planning to be present at the birthday party to the Willimantic Rotary club to be held this (Tuesday) evening at the Y. M. C. A. rooms at Willimantic. Rev. Alexander H. Abbott of Norwich will be the speaker. It is the fifth anniversary of the club and is to be held at 6.30 o'clock. Clubs from Norwich, New London, Putnam and Danielson are to be represented. Norwich and New London are parent and grandparent respectively to the Willimantic club while Putnam and Danielson are son and grandson to it.

When the reorganization of the Anselm Mayotte post, American Legion was effected at the chamber of commerce rooms, the question of whether the post would be continued after its two years of activity was not even considered, as all present were enthusiastic for a working post and the number present would indicate that Putnam will again have an active legion post. It was voted to call the next meeting for March 1st, and an enrollment committee consisting of Dr. F. E. Perry, Charles A. Ryan and Kenneth C. Sharpe was appointed. A nominating committee was also appointed. Five ex-service men who have recently taken up residence in the city become members for the year, either by transfers or by taking out membership cards. Several men who served in France are planning to attend the 1927 legion meeting in Paris and a membership in the legion for the current year is one of the requisites.

Miss Edith Child, a freshman at Simmons college, Boston, spent the week end and holiday with her mother, Mrs. Annie C. Child.

Mr. and Mrs. Ambrose Normand of Hartford, who were married recently are spending part of their honeymoon with Mrs. Normand's grandmother, Mrs. A. St. Jean.

Lewis Barry of Richmond, Vt., is the guest of his cousin, Arthur Benoit.

Miss Susie Chillcott of Eastford, a graduate of Putnam High school is a student nurse at the New London hospital.

Thomas Haworth of Worcester spent the week end and holiday at his home in the city.

Miss Irene Robinson, a student at Simmons college, in Boston, spent the holiday and week end at home with her parents, Mr. and Mrs. E. L. Robinson of Church street.

Henry Dumas of Huntington, Mass., spent last week with his parents, Mr. and Mrs. Frederick Dumas of Providence street.

GRISWOLD

Pachaug Grange held its meeting Thursday evening. Thirty eight attending. A short interesting and enjoyable program was rendered, including the song, Stay on the Farm, by the Grange. Reading quotations from Lincoln and Washington, by members of the Grange. Song by Mrs. George Briggs, harp accompaniment; report of poultry tour by Brother Merton Bartlett. Song by the Grange.

CIVILIZATION STORY OF OLD IS FOUND IN RUINS

DENVER, Colo., Feb. 22—(AP)—Excavation of archaeological ruins in the Southwestern United States has uncovered records of an ancient civilization established perhaps as long ago as the beginning of the Christian era.

Dr. Jean Allard Jeancop, curator of archaeology of the Colorado State Historical and Natural History society, in his research has pieced together a picture of that life which existed 1,500 years before Columbus came to the new world.

From the shape of the skulls unearthed he has formed the theory that the first civilization in this region was established by a people of Asiastic origin, resembling in stature the modern Japanese. His work in the Pagosa Springs district of Colorado, along the New Mexico border, led to their classification as the Basket Workers, the Post-Basket Workers and the Pre-Pueblo race.

The two first were primitive but the last highly advanced, using the bow and arrow, baking pottery in kilns and cultivating several varieties of corn. The Basket Workers did not fashion pottery; used a thrown stick instead of a bow to hurl their flint-tipped arrows, and wove rabbit hair into Yucca fabric for body covering. The Post Basket Workers made a crude, unbaked pottery, and grew coarse, flint corn, being otherwise virtually barbarian.

The change in skull and skeletal form prompted the belief that the Pre-Pueblo race conquered the others and from their advent began a highly interesting and "efficient" state of life. They were agriculturists of no mean degree and many of the principles of gravity irrigation were known to them. Irrigation ditches, miles in length, were constructed and they dammed streams and made reservoirs for the storage and conservation of water. Their principal crops were beans, corn, several varieties of squash. They used as food the edible seeds, tubers and roots of wild plant life. A short staple cotton was grown and used for garments, while the Yucca furnished food in the form of fruit and fibre for ropes, baskets, mats and other textile articles.

House building reached a high point of development, the architecture of some of the ruins comparing well with modern buildings. The Yucca House, a ruin in the lower Montezuma Valley, is a structure covering many acres of ground. It is several stories high and was capable of housing several hundred persons. This and other examples such as the Cliff Palace and Spruce Tree house, excavated in this part of the country, tend to show that this early race lived communistic lives.

The structures were habitations during inclement weather only, being mainly utilized as storage and burial places. There seemed to be no individual ownership of the rooms, buildings or the adjacent land.

Specimens dug from the ruins disclose a well-developed artistic sense as expressed in beautifully decorated pottery or weird, grotesque designs not alone in these ceramic products but in the woven sandals, baskets and head and breast bands, and on the surfaces of rocks and canyon walls which they carved.

Certain of these petroxyphs have a religious or ceremonial meaning and sometimes are duplicated in the modern carvings or paintings of the Pueblo Indians.

When this civilization ceased is not definitely known, but it ended probably 600 years ago. Scientists believe the culture of these Indian inhabitants was wiped out quickly, but are undecided as to whether it was by an upheaval of nature, conquest, or the simple scattering of the clans to other regions, leaving behind a silent record for the archaeologist to explore.

Women Use

Then dispose of this new hygienic help easily as tissue—no laundry

WOMEN by the millions are discarding the old-time "sanitary pad" for a new and scientific way.

A way that offers protection unknown before. A way, too, that solves the old embarrassment of disposal.

It is called "KOTEX." Eight in 10 better-class women now employ it.

Discards as easily as a piece of tissue. No laundry. No embarrassment.

It's five times as absorbent as ordinary cotton pads!

You dine, dance, motor for hours in sheerest frocks without a second's doubt or fear.

It deodorizes, too. And thus ends ALL danger of offending.

You ask for it at any drug or department store, without hesitancy, simply by saying "KOTEX."

Do as millions are doing.

WESTERLY

PHEBE GREEN WARD CHAPTER HAS WASHINGTON EXERCISE

(Special to The Bulletin.)

WESTERLY, R. I., Feb. 22.—Phebe Green Ward chapter, D. A. R., held its annual Washington's Birthday observance Monday. At 2.45, the chapter was called to order in the church school rooms of Christ Episcopal church on Broad street by the regent, Mrs. Carrie E. Savage. The programme was opened with Washington's prayer by the chaplain, Mrs. Samuel G. Cathcart. The salute to the flag by the chapter members was followed by a most pleasing presentation of the dramatic production, "The Ladies of Cranford," by Red Rose troop of Girl Scouts of America, Mrs. Raymond H. Hiscox, leader, the coaching by Mrs. William G. Clarke. A piano solo was played by Miss Ruth G. Wilcox of Pawcatuck. The formal exercises closed with the singing of America by the chapter.

Refreshments were served from the dainty tea tables. Those who poured were George L. Barbour and Mrs. Howard M. Barber.

The Washington's birthday observance was in charge of the ways and means committee, Mrs. Elisha C. Burdick, chairman, Mrs. Frank A. Sullivan, Mrs. Everett Barnes, Mrs. Hiram W. Barber, Mrs. Fayette F. Freeman, Mrs. William A. Wilcox, Mrs. Charles S. Larkin, Mrs. Alexander M. Blake, Miss Anna S. Pendleton and Mrs. Walter P. Dixon. The regent, Mrs. C. The court session will be in charge of Fred T. Mitchell of Westerly, sheriff of Washington county. The other court attendants are: Court crier, Deputy Sheriff Thomas W. Pierce of North Kingston and court officer, Deputy Sheriff and Jailer Fred W. Bull of Kingston. The docket, or Westerly calendar, is almost a record for brevity and when action was completed last Wednesday at the court house at West Kinston on the assignment docket and motion calendar, Justice Sumner stated that the adjourned Westerly session would be a short one.

Many members of the Christian Endeavor societies of the five churches in Westerly, making the trip by specially chartered motor busses, train and automobiles, were in attendance Monday in Providence at the fortieth annual convention of the Rhode Island Society of Christian Endeavor which opened at 10.30 at the First Baptist church with a business session. A luncheon was provided at noon. During the afternoon Miss Alice Bushee, professor at Wellesley college, Rev. Arthur W. Cleaves, D. D., pastor of the First Baptist church, and Rev. Ralph Taylor Andem of the Broadway Baptist church spoke. A banquet was served prior to the evening business session at 7 o'clock. The motto of the "Loyalty Convention," as it is called is "They stood every man in his place," and its song, "Loyalty to Christ."

The death of Sarah Annie, 79, widow of Thomas A. Gardner, occurred Sunday at her home in Wakefield. She was a lineal descendant of John and Priscilla Alden and was born in Baltimore, Oct. 6, 1846. When a young girl she moved to New Haven, Conn., where her uncle, Oliver Winchester, founded and developed the Winchester Arms company. She later returned to Rhode Island, where she married Thomas A. Gardner, and since that time had resided in Kingston and Wakefield. She was a deaconess of the Pierce Dale Congregational church, and in a quiet way supported all charitable activities in her town.

Monday morning at 8 o'clock at the church of the Immaculate Conception the marriage of Miss Elizabeth St. Ours, of White Rock and Alfred Hermenegilde Buck of Smith street, was solemnized by Rev. J. F. Vincent. The bride's gown was of old rose satin. She wore a bridal coronet of silver lace. The bridesmaid, Miss Lorenza Davis, was gowned in lavendar silk, with toilet band to match. Following the ceremony, a breakfast was served to relatives at the home of the bride. Mr. and Mrs. Buck left on a trip to Canada and Niagara Falls. Upon their return, they will reside at 9 Smith street.

When Amos P. Chapman auxiliary, No. 21 Sons of Union Veterans, held its last meeting in V. R. W. hall with the newly installed officers for 1926 in charge, one application was received. Common Stock (Par value $25)	650,000	400,000

HISTORY AND BUSINESS:

The Company was incorporated under Connecticut laws, June 1st, 1921, and started business with a paid in capital of $2,500, which, including present financing, has now grown to $750,000. Gross business has increased from $581,456.29, in 1922 (the first full year of operation), to $3,761,534.93, in 1925. Gross business for 1925 showed an increase of over 106% over 1924 and 1924 an increase of over 171% over 1923.

The business of the Underwriters Finance Company consists of the financing of sales for well known and responsible automobile dealers in the State of Connecticut, and also of an insurance agency business in connection therewith, and the company's policy is very conservative. Contracts are accepted only with dealers of recognized business standing and financial responsibility, and the financing is undertaken of only such makes of cars as have a good resale value. Only paper which matures in twelve months or less is accepted, and an initial payment of at least 33 1-3% of purchase price is required. Cars are sold under conditional bill of sale, and the specific protection for the finance Company's investment includes: (a) Title to the car: (b) general financing responsibility of maker of note, whose standing with respect to financial and moral risk has been investigated: (c) general financial responsibility of dealer, the endorsement of whom is required in each case: (d) insurance on car covering all lines applicable. Under this plan of finance the Company has thus far purchased notes and obligations to the total of $6,997,483.58 without a single unrecoverable loss.

DIVIDENDS AND EARNINGS:

Regular dividends have been paid on Preferred stock without omission, and regular dividends of 10% per annum on Common stock, commencing with 1922, and extra dividends have been paid as follows in 1922, 20%; in 1924 a stock dividend of 20 %; and in 1925 stock subscription rights worth $17 per share were issued. Net profits for the past three years have been as follows: 1923, $13,024.44; 1924, $39,334.92; 1925, $71,190.70. The amount last named is equivalent to more than 3¼ times the dividend requirement on this entire issue of the Preferred stock to be presently outstanding, but was earned without the use of the increased capital now provided.

We recommend this stock for investment and we believe that the stock purchase warrants will become valuable.

Legality approved by Robert P. Butler, Attorney for the bankers.

BUSINESS STABILITY

In a recent letter to members of the National Founders' association, the members were urged to cooperate with federal agencies working upon the problem of the causes and possible methods of preventing periods of business depression. Without the support of trade organizations, the extent to which the government can go into this matter is, of course, limited.

The country has been pronounced panic proof and it probably is safe. That is it has come out of an expensive war period with no panic record is about as much proof as can be offered in support of the contention that business, banking and industry are on a sound footing. The whole business structure rests on faith in promises to pay and these have been so well protected that business faith is greater today than it ever was before. Operating towards this end are the federal reserve banking system, good federal and state banking statutes in force and a system of trade information distribution, all of which unite to make a more complete combination than anything previously devised to protect business.

It is of course unwise to assume that there can never be another panic. There is no accounting for the fear that precipitates such a condition, nor can there be any assurance that men will not stampede in the face of wild rumors. But it can be predicted that if the government receives proper support in its programme of panic protection, it will reduce the possibility of panic to a very considerable extent. The best safeguards are informed business leaders, men who have the courage and understanding that springs from positive knowledge. The waste of seasons of depression and exuberance is enormous, and if stabilization, now carried well past the panic protection stage, can be realized to the further extent of economic stability, the material prospects of the country can be immeasurably improved. The government's activity should have the cooperation of all business men. The leaders have already been won, and all should help as a matter of national pride.

EDUCATORS IN SESSION

During the present week fully 15,000 men and women engaged in educational work will be in session in Washington in the series of meetings held by the National Education association. Those attending will include the men and women who are engaged in directing the work of teachers in their supervisory positions, state-wise or community-wise, whether of the local grammar grades or institutions of higher learning.

This gathering of educators will serve to call attention to the steadily higher plane of efficiency and practical usefulness which is the course of education in the United States. General scholastic training is accompanied by vocational training. The chief effort is to prepare the young people for lines of work in which they will be successful in adult life. The routine of reading, writing and 'rithmetic is not neglected, for this is fundamental, but every course of study is shaped to meet the needs of the younger generation as prospective participants in the actual work of life It is the duty of these superintendents and state directors of education, who are now in session, to maintain the balance between courses of study to insure practical development without neglecting the elementary educational lines and to insure an efficient personnel in the teaching staff.

Time was when the schools of the country, rural and urban, were pawns of politics. They are now, to a large measure, removed from that category. An intelligent public opinion has been developed in favor of the divorcement of the schools from political influences, with merit as the basis of appointments and promotions, and with the welfare of the children solely in view is the first consideration.

A STATISTICAL CALAMITY

In a sharp swing upward during January, merchandise imports to the United States reached the figure of $414,000,000, the highest for any month since the boom days of 1920. The result was to wipe out the export total by a margin of about $15,000,000. The American economic unit bought more than it sold by this amount.

This fact is gall and wormwood for the calamity Janes of the vanishing trade balance—but to no others. In the first place one month's statistics cannot tell anything like the whole story. It can scarcely hint at the general plot of the tale. Even the fiscal year is short enough to give a complete idea of the general economic situation.

Taken with other facts, however, it does indicate a trend. The "favorable" trade balance which America has so long enjoyed is vanishing as surely as America's state of indebtedness to the rest of the world has become a thing of the past. It is a result that is natural and inevitable and is to be regarded simply as a fact and not as a calamity.

The United States has become a great creditor nation. It has added financing to its merchandising. Goods sent and goods received can no longer cover or control the sum of our national economic transactions. It is in financial figures that America must find its "favorable" balance. Though not quite so visible—in fact entirely invisible concerning any one month—these are the figures that count.

SWORD RATTLING

Practically every nation has a professional alarmist who keeps talking for at least one of two reasons. Either he loves to hear the sound of his own voice or he may believe what he he says. Premier Mussolini seems to be filling this place for Italy and he has no intention of permitting his sword to become dull or rusty. He regards peace as a good thing, but about him there are wars and rumors of war. Consequently he is urging Italy to be prepared, and to the chamber of deputies he said: "Italy desires peace. I was at Locarno and I shall return there but while the words of peace glisten on the horizon, I must recognize that the skies have become populated with prodigious airplanes and that new and deadly arms are appearing within the sea. Therefore, I must say that, as in the Garden of Islam, peace is only sure under the shadow of our swords." As a gesture towards peace the premier announced that seventy-six regiments of troops would be distributed in the chief cities of Italy, "regardless of prayers in the cathedrals and processions in the streets, all of which will be useless."

The old doctrine of the inevitability of war is cropping out again and a Fascist newspaper of Rome, for example, speaks of "the inevitable war which every one deprecates, but which is already predictable by so many signs." Signs of war are, unfortunately, always present, but this seems to be one that America has missed. The conflict in which Italy is "inevitably" going to engage, with France as an ally, not as an enemy, it is hoped, has certainly not been clearly visioned in this country. The world—or at least the Fascist part of it—has refused to learn its lesson, awful as it was. The vast peace machinery which has been set up is dismissed with a mere gesture, and the League of Nations and the World Court are exploded with a jingoistic breath. It is the insidious planting of the seed to prepare a people for another orgy of slaughter as something that cannot be escaped.

Such a preparation should not succeed. To make it succeed, in view of the world wide yearning for peace, is a task that requires more than sword-rattling.

COLLECTING ANTIQUES

A nationally known figure who not so very long ago declared that all history is bunk is now displaying his reverence for things of the past by scouring New England for shrines that are contributions to New England history. A few months ago Henry Ford purchased the "Wayside Inn" and established it as a permanent institution, and now he has acquired the "Village Smithy", likewise celebrated by Longfellow. The old smithy will be moved to Sudbury and added to the collection there of old New England buildings and implements. The old shop was built in 1787 and is therefore nearly 140 years old. It will be a problem for the ingenuity of engineers to accomplish its removal to the site that will be selected for it at Sudbury.

While Mr. Ford is indulging his penchant for assembling these relics of literary antiuity, there is another for which he would doubtless give a great deal, but unfortunately it is beyond his reach. There is little question that he would pay handsomely for the "one-hoss shay" of which Oliver Wendell Holmes sang in immortal verse. But the shay is no more. In fact, the poem chronicled its dissolution which was so complete that nothing was left for relic hunters. Still the Detroit manufacturer might reproduce it, or failing to do so might bridge the gap to some extent by finding the first product of his own factory, which probably is still running or possibly stored away in some barn. Then he might re-create the flying machine of Darius Green, the literary fore-runner of present day heavier than air machines, and thus put Trowbridge on the map of his interesting community at Sudbury.

WASHINGTON AFFAIRS

(Special to The Bulletin.)

WASHINGTON, D. C. Feb. 23—Congress is bent on making an early adjournment, and the tentative time fixed upon is May 1st or as near that date as the business can be wound up. June 1st was thought to be the date until this week, but after the tax bill was ground out, and all annual appropriation bills well under way, the republicans of both senate and house found their estimate of necessary time veering towards May instead of June. "Give the country a rest from legislation is one of the arguments used; Don't give the enemy a chance to sick 'um, boys." is one of the arguments used behind the scenes, for it is a well known fact that on the eve of an election, no methods are spared to stir up factional and party troubles. But this year, congress has split along lines that know no party bounds, and apparently both republicans and democrats are satisfied to turn over a new leaf and stand together for adjournment as soon as legitimate business is out of the way. The administration program will be completed by May 1st; and unless complications arise in the aircraft measures, it is more than likely that congress will put up its shutters nearer May 1st than June 1st. The democrats are rather inclined to be silent on the principal issues of the campaign they propose to make this fall. Probably it will return to the tariff, as in years long gone, for there seems to be no other plank on which the democrats, as a party, have stood firm in congress this session. Representative Oldfield, of Arkansas, who is chairman of the Democratic campaign committee of the house, said this week, that he expected the tariff would come out in a new dress, and take a prominent place in the coming campaign. And on that hint, is based the expectation of the form of issue to be put before the voters of the country. Both republican and democratic campaign committees of congress are getting ready for the fight.

Congressman Tilson and William L. Slate of the Connecticut Agricultural Experiment station appeared before the senate committee on appropriations this week asking for aid for Connecticut in the extermination of the Asiatic beetle which has made its appearance in that state and already has done great damage to lawns in and near the New Haven section, with prospect of extending its devasting work to other sections of the state. They urged an appropriation of $15,000 to be put on the appropriation now in the senate, and which is still pending before the committee. Col. Tilson called attention of the committee to the fact that the state of Connecticut has already taken strong steps towards suppressing the beetle, but that national aid is needed to effect a cure. He and Mr. Slate both stated that while Connecticut is doing all in its power, it has not the necessary machinery to do the work, while the government already has the necessary equipment. This would result in better and quicker work and suppression of the beetle pest.

Col. Tilson feels certain the senate will receive the suggestion with favor and looks forward to the appropriation being added to the pending bill.

Col. Tilson as republican floor leader is taking a strong hand in seeing that no time is wasted on useless debate or the bringing up in the house measures not likely to pass. As leader he is exerting his influence to complete necessary legislation as quickly as possible and is seeing to it that no needed legislation is side tracked by lack of time. In this move he has the support and aid of leading republicans holding chairmanships or other prominent positions.

The congressional work of the past week has been entirely of broad national interest, the tax bill taking up most of the time of debate. There have been practically no measures of exclusive New England or local importance brought up before congress, although various committees of both senate and house have given hearings in which New England was especially interested. Among them were those on the Asiatic beetle as above mentioned, and the widening of the scope of the Weeks forestry bill. With the anticipated quick passage of the public buildings bill in the senate, the matter of completing post office buildings for which sites have already been purchased will materially brighten. Connecticut has several which can properly be classed as emergency cases and to which the Connecticut delegation will promptly draw the attention of the post office and treasury departments. Col. Tilson has been especially active in pushing through this bill, for he believes it a worthy one. He said laughingly today that he could not be accused of selfishness in the matter as apparently the most urgent cases on the "preferred list" seemed to be in other districts than his own.

Congressman Freeman, ranking member of the rivers and harbors committee, has reason to be well satisfied with the reports thus far submitted by the board of army engineers, although some of the projects in which Connecticut is interested fell through. But they did not fall through any lack of interest, zeal or hard work on the part of the Connecticut delegation, which has shown fixed determination to press on congress the needs of that state in all pending measures in which the state is specifically interested.

When the group of Arapahoe and Cheyenne Indians visited the White House this week to extend greetings to President Coolidge, each met its match in silent cordiality. But the Indian chief bore a name that belied his taciturnity and also made the nick-name of "Silent Cal" stand out in prominence. The chief bore the name of "Mag-pie" when translated into English. But the exchange of compliments and courtesy between the president and the chief lacked nothing either in expression or contrast. The Indians, who were here to appear before a congressional committee were decked from head to foot in feathers, beads, ribbons, and blankets of gay color. The president wore, as usual, a dark sack suit. It would be hard to say which man talked the less, or smiled the least. All the same everybody was content and the brief interview was declared a success. White house officials say that the meeting of the president with this delegation was almost as picturesque as one that President Roosevelt held during his administration, and ended in a joke on the president that he dearly loved to tell "on himself." It was along this line: The Indian delegation came to the white house; Roosevelt and the chief exchanged formal courtesies, but all comment was made through an interpreter. The garb of the Indians was wondrous to behold—feathers, war paint, blankets, beads and ribbons were of the most glaring color. The president made what he thought was a fine speech, it was translated to the Indians who stood stolidly in front of him. Roosevelt noticed that, as each sentence was translated, a series of grunts, followed, with something much like "Bush-wah-Bush-war" uttered with what seemed like low growls. Being interested and thinking it something complimentary Roosevelt asked the interpreter what Bush-war meant, and the man replied, "It means Bunk, Mr. President"—whereupon Roosevelt is said to have fairly snorted with delight.

With Henry Ford setting the pace for state championship in fiddlers, New Hampshire followed in line, by sending out to the capitol, its champion, known far and wide as "Cash" Radford. And the 80 year old fiddler had the time of his life. He was as lively as the proverbial cricket; he fiddler for the New Hampshire society at its annual ball; while other men wore dress suits and the women were in conventional evening gowns, and there prevailed the usual glitter of formal functions, old "Cash" wore his high leather boots, leggins, corduroy trousers, and brown sweater, just as he would do up on his New Hampshire farm. His keen old eyes twinkled; his face was clean shaven, except for the stubby tuft of iron grey whiskers on his chin. His comments on Washington high life will long be remembered here: "Cash" stepped somewhat gingerly across the highly waxed floor of the Willard ball room, but once safely landed on the low platform, where some of Washington's crack musicians were playing waltzes, Old Cash came into his own. He fiddled away as unconcernedly as though Money Musk, The Arkansas Traveler and Pop Goes the Weasel were every day sounds in the ears of Washington's dancing set. And when old Cash twanged the strings of his fiddle with a large, rough sturdy thumb, as he "popped" the weasel, it was no faint uncertain pop that responded to his vigorous touch.

From Small Beginnings

Captain John Smith, the Orphan Saved by Pocohontas

How old was Captain John Smith when Pocohontas, the Indian princess, threw herself over his prostrate body and saved him from the war club of Powhattan, her father? Ask anyone you meet and he will be likely to say: "Oh, Captain John Smith was a man in middle age—a man with a big bushy beard and a rough-looking sailor sort of face." That is the sort of person that the old pictures present. The reality was far different. Captain John Smith was a young man, only 27 years old, slender and wiry in figure, bold and handsome in face when Pocohontas saved him.

Captain John Smith, the hero of so romantic an escape, was born in the same section of England that gave birth to Robin Hood. When he was a child both his father and mother died, and left him adrift on the world—and what a drifter he was! going to many lands, exploring fearlessly, sailing through storm and fog, escaping from Powhattan's club, and dying in 1631 at the age of 51. Into those 51 years of life he had crowded volumes of adventure. The orphan boy made himself into one of the greatest heroes of romance—and adventurous, ideal figure.

He had the good fortune to attach himself as a page to a rich man who was to travel on the continent. With his patron he went far for those days. Then the love of adventure, grew, and he ceased his orderly journeying with a rich man and became a wandering soldier, one who drifted from land to land seeking adventure, wherever adventure promised. When the greatest adventure of all was to sail over the unknown oceans to the new discovered America, Captain John Smith could not be restrained from going farther across the seas than anyone else. And he went across the seas in a tiny boat, put down mutiny, explored unknown rivers, went among the most savage Indians, learned their ways, and in one of his many the fierce Powhattan.

He met death at 51. In his tossing cabin he found time to write a half dozen books that told of his adventures in the new land of America. He was the very spirit of adventure.

IN THE PUBLIC EYE

Dr. William B. Scott, to whom the National Academy of Science has awarded this year's Hayden medal for distinguished work in the field of geology, has been professor of geology and paleontology at Princeton University for more than 40 years. Dr. Scott, who is now nearing his seventieth year, was born in Cincinnati and on his mother's side is a direct descendant of Benjamin Franklin. He received his A. B. at Princeton university when only 19 years of age and three years later was graduated from Heidelberg with the degree of LL. D. In 1883 he joined the Princeton faculty as an assistant in geology and the next year became a full professor. Dr. Scott is the author of several text books and numerous monographs on geological subjects. His work in his chosen branch of science has been recognized in honorary degrees bestowed upon him by Harvard, Pennsylvania, Oxford and other prominent universities.

Rare paintings are well done.

ACROSS THE HALL

Mrs. Burlingame was just beginning to unpack her trunk when her neighbor from across the hall ran in, as she said, to welcome her home.

"I know I should not stay a minute when you are busy," she apoligized, "but I'm so glad to see you that I feel I must have a little chat. I've missed you dreadfully, and," she lowered her voice, "it's high time for you to be here. I knew you'd be glad to have me keep my eye on your apartment. You'll be astonished at what I have to tell you. It's a case of the old saying, when the cat's away, the mice will play. I thought of that all the time I watched that little mouse-like maid Lillian sitting in the sun parlor like a lady of leisure, embroidering and reading by the hour."

"Really?" remarked Mrs. Burlingame.

"Did you know that Lillian has a beau?"

"Why, no. Has she?"

"Tll say she has! Such goings on! He was here at all hours of night and day. It was simply scandalous. And if you'd seen the meals she cooked up for him! The grocer boy left fruit and vegetables here every day. You'll have some bill to pay. I'd just like to hear what she has to say when you tell her that you have found out how she behaved while you were away."

"You may," said Mrs. Burlingame, with sudden animation. She stepped to the door and called, "Lillian, please come here," and a pleasant-faced young girl came into the room rather shyly. "I must ask you, Lillian," she said, "to give me an account of yourself during my absence. Did you finish embroidering the monogram on the napkins?"

"Yes'm, all but one, and I can do that afternoons."

"You did well to get eleven done, and there's no hurry about the last one. Now I wish to know if you read the 'Young Folks' History of the United States' that I gave you?"

"Yes'm and I read the 'Pilgrim's Progress' book, too."

"That's splendid. And how about the 'Beatitudes'!"

"Yes'm, I learned them by heart the way you told me to."

"Please repeat them, Lillian."

"Yes'm." She began hesitatingly, but soon gaining confidence she recited beatitudes without mistake.

"Very good, indeed." Mrs. Burlingame turned to her visitor, "I wonder if we could do so well. Now, Lillian, I want to know if you carried out my instructions about eating fresh vegetables and fruit?"

"Yes'm, and my—"

"I'm glad to hear that, and I hope you passed most of your time in the sunshine and fresh air on the sun porch."

"Yes'm."

"And, Lillian, I wish to know whether your brother was able to stay with you? You know I didn't wish you to be alone in the apartment at night, or eat alone any more than you had to."

"Yes'm, he was here all the time he wasn't working. He said it was like a vacation, and he wants to do something for—"

"Yes, Lillian, and now that will do thank you, if—" Mrs. Burlingame turned again to the caller, "If you are quite satisfied?"

"Of course, it's your own business, but I—"

"Yes. I agree with you, and you must feel perfect freedom from care or anxiety about my flat the next time I leave home. I hate to have you worried. So good of you to run in so soon. Oh, must you be going?"

When the door had closed after her neighbor, Mrs. Burlingame sighed contentedly and resumed her unpacking. "That's that," she said to herself. "I wonder if its a permanent cure."—Chicago News.

Black Pussy Is Teased.

Who is his neighbors always teasing,
Can hardly hope to be thought pleasing.

—Old Mother Nature.

Farmer Brown's Boy felt foolish. Yes, sir, he certainly did feel foolish. As he looked up at Mocker the Mocking Bird and heard those soft, plaintive notes of Winsome Bluebird, he knew that he had been fooled. "You fraud!" he cried. Then he chuckled. He had to. The joke was on him. He thought of how he had gone all around with his head tipped back looking for Winsome Bluebird and absolutely sure that Winsome was around somewhere, when all the time Winsome probably hadn't started from his winter home in the Sunny South. He chuckled all the way as he went into the house to tell Mrs. Brown how they had been fooled by the feathered guest they had fed all winter.

As Farmer Brown's Boy opened the door to go into the house Black Pussy the Cat slipped out. She sat down on the doorstep and yawned. Then she looked this way and that way and the other way, trying to make up her mind where to go. She felt the need of a little exercise and the most delightful way to get that exercise would be to go hunting. There is nothing Black Pussy enjoys quite so much as hunting. She doesn't hunt for the sake of something to eat. No well cared for cat ever does. They hunt for the sheer love of hunting and killing. Never in her whole life had she gone hungry.

Black Pussy started over toward the Old Orchard. She had decided she would prowl along the old stone wall on the chance that she might surprise Chatterer, the Red Squirrel, or a Mouse, or possibly Striped Chipmunk poking his head up to see what the weather was like. You know, once in a while he does that even in the middle of winter. It was useless to plan to catch any birds this time of year, because it was only once in a while that there were any birds on the snow where she could have a chance to catch them. So Black Pussy wasn't thinking of birds. No, indeed, she wasn't thinking of birds at all.

But hardly had Black Pussy started down along beside the old stone wall, when in the bushes ahead of her she heard a chirp of a bird. Black Pussy couldn't believe her own ears; that chirp was the chirp of Welcome Robin. She knew it. My, what fun it would be to catch Welcome Robin! Black Pussy crouched still, all but the tip of her tail, and listened. Yes, that was the chirp of Welcome Robin; and, goodness, there was the cry of Kitty the Catbird! You should have seen her yellow eyes glare with excitment. She knew the Catbird liked those bushes along the old stone wall and had built a nest there last spring. She didn't stop to think that she never had seen Kitty the Catbird in winter. Then she heard the notes of small birds of various kinds. It sounded as if there must be a party—a feathered party—down in those bushes.

Her tail twitching, her eyes glaring, Black Pussy stole along as only Black Pussy can.

Her tail twitching, her eyes glaring, Black Pussy stole along as only Black Pussy can

Black Pussy stole along as only Black Pussy can. Every two or three steps she stopped and listened. On she went, growing more and more excited with every step. This would be good hunting, yes, indeed, this would be good hunting. She was sure of it.

But presently Black Pussy began to wonder why she didn't come up with those birds, why she didn't see one of them flitting about. To judge by the sounds, they were moving along as fast as she was. She had almost reached the end of the old stone wall, yet she hadn't caught a glimpse of one of those feathered people. Then the twittering and the chirping began back of her. Black Pussy didn't know what to make of it. She turned about. There was no doubt that those birds were in the bushes through which she had just come. Ha! She caught a glimpse of one. It was Mocker the Mocking Bird. But Black Pussy didn't know this. She began sneaking back again and always that twittering and chirping was just ahead of her. Finally it stopped Mocker the Mocking Bird had flown away. But to this day Black Pussy doesn't know why she couldn't find those birds along the old stone wal on the edge of the Old Orchard.

Stories That Recall Others

A Pessimist

Recently a suburbanite had been driving several miles with a man ten years his senior. When they started to get out of the car the companion's left knee pained him severely and it was with difficulty that he got out.

On learning that his guest often suffered that way the driver inquired for the remedy and received the following reply, "Why, there ain't any remedy. In about ten more years they'll both be that way."

Caveat Emptor

A well known man recently traded for a new automobile and as a preliminary shopped around considerably to get the best deal possible for the time honored family chariot, which had done noble service and was still a "mighty good car for the shape it was in."

One morning after the deal was completed a somewhat testy citizen called on the telephone and announced he was the man who had bought the old car. A daughter of the household answered the telephone. She had followed the negotiations for a new car with keen interest and felt it more or less incumbent upon her to uphold the sales talk used by her father in disposing of the old car.

"Father isn't here now," she told the man at the other end of the line, "but I heard him say that anyone who gets the old car will have a bargain."

"That's right, that's right," replied the new owner of the old car, "but what I want to know is why the pesky thing won't start."

Solution of Yesterday's Puzzle

New Discovery Banishes Sleeplessness, Quiets Nerves and Stops Headache

The most wearing-out process which could afflict a person is that which is caused by lack of sleep Fitful, insufficient slumber tears the nervous system to pieces and causes much of the weakness, irritability and susceptibility to disease which is often blamed on other causes.

Lack of sleep ages one, destroys beauty and certainly shortens your life. And yet it is so easy to have the deep refreshing slumber of childhood

A sleep that will make you feel like a person and add five years to your life—a slumber that will banish the "blues" and give you the strong, healthy nerves which mean a sunshiny, cheerful outlook on life. And you can get all these benefits from a new, harmless, easy-to-take preparation called Neura.

Neura contains no opiates or habit-forming drugs The results from the use of Neura have been so remarkable, however, that it is now dispensed by Lee & Osgood and druggists everywhere with a guarantee to return the small cost if you are not amazed and delighted with the results from the use of the very first package. Get a good night's sleep tonight by taking Neura today.

COLDS THAT DEVELOP INTO PNEUMONIA

Persistent coughs and colds lead to serious trouble. You can stop them now with Creomulsion, an emulsified creosote that is pleasant to take. Creomulsion is a new medical discovery with two-fold action; it soothes and heals the inflamed membranes and inhibits germ growth.

Of all known drugs, creosote is recognized by high medical authorities as one of the greatest healing agencies for persistent coughs and colds and other forms of throat troubles Creomulsion contains, in addition to creosote, other healing elements which soothe and heal the infected membranes and stop the irritation and inflammation, while the creosote goes on to the stomach, is absorbed into the blood, attacks the seat of the trouble and checks the growth of the germs.

Creomulsion is guaranteed satisfactory in the treatment of persistent coughs and colds, bronchial asthma, bronchitis and other forms of respiratory diseases, and is excellent for building up the system after colds or flu. Money refunded if any cough or cold is not relieved after taking according to directions. Ask your druggist. Creomulsion Company, Atlanta, Ga. (adv.)

DON'T LOSE YOUR HAIR

Parisian Sage Stops Falling Hair In Two Weeks, or Your Money Refunded.

Look at your comb. Hair coming out pretty fast, isn't it?

Getting so thin on top that you are commencing to feel rather fidgety.

Perhaps you are even beginning to worry?

Don't worry; don't despair; don't lie awake nights; don't wait another day, but go to any drug or toilet counter and get a bottle of Parisian Sage.

The people in this city and vicinity ought to know that all druggists are authorized to guarantee Parisian Sage to stop falling hair, to cure dandruff, to stop itching scalp or money refunded.

As a hair dressing, and especially for ladies of refinement, it has no equal. It has a most delightful yet delicate odor.

It will, in one week's time, change harsh, unattractive hair into lustrous and luxuriant hair. The women who use Parisian Sage never fail to add wonderfully to their attractiveness.

"I have used and seen used, several hair tonics and so-called renewers, but never had any come to my notice that can ever compare with Parisian Sage. It leaves the hair clean, fluffy and silky, and does not leave one particle of stickiness."—Mrs. Ida Wilcox, hair dresser.

Parisian Sage is sold by Lee & Osgood Co. and drug and toilet counters everywhere. It's not expensive.

Cured His Rupture

I was badly ruptured while lifting a trunk several years ago. Doctors said my only hope of cure was an operation. Trusses did me no good. Finally I got hold of something that quickly and completely cured me. Years have passed and the rupture has never returned, although I am doing hard work as a carpenter. There was no operation, no lost time, no trouble. I have nothing to sell, but will give full information about how you may find a complete cure without operation if you write to me, Eugene M. Pullen, Carpenter 239 M Marcellus Avenue, Manasquan, N J. Better cut out this notice and show it to any others who are ruptured—you may save a life or at least stop the misery of rupture and the worry and danger of an operation.

Gargle Aspirin for Tonsilitis or Sore Throat

A harmless and effective gargle is to dissolve two "Bayer Tablets of Aspirin" in four tablespoonfuls of water, and gargle throat thoroughly. Repeat in two hours if necessary.

Be sure you use only the genuine Bayer Aspirin, marked with the Bayer Cross, which can be had in tin boxes of twelve tablets for few cents.

COLDS

Break a Cold Right Up with "Pape's Cold Compound"

Take two tablets every three hours until three doses are taken. The first dose always gives relief. The second and third doses completely break up the cold. Pleasant and safe to take. Contains no quinine or opiates. Millions use "Pape's Cold Compound." Price thirty-five cents. Druggists guarantee it.

Mrs. Crandall was a native of Montville, and would have reached her 90th birthday on April 24 of this year. In early life she was united in marriage with Charles L. Crandall of Gales Ferry. Mrs. Crandall has been a widow for many years. Mrs. Crandall's brother, Dr. Albert Sidney Bolles and Mrs. Bolles, of Williamstown, Mass., who were in Washington at the time of her death, accompanied Mrs. Pierce home with the body Monday morning.

Her nearest surviving relatives are her brother, Dr. Bolles, and sister, Mrs. Pierce.

Dr. Bolles was a former editor and secretary of The Norwich Bulletin, in the early "70's"; also was judge of probate of the Norwich district.

CLAIMS MOVE TO REPLACE BISHOP ACHESON

Claiming that an organized attack has been made by the episcopal clergy in Connecticut to get rid of Rt. Rev. E. Campion Acheson as suffragan bishop of Connecticut, A. F. Stebbins, a deacon in the church in New Haven, has sent an open letter to all clergy in the state and to all clergy in the state and to all lay delegates to the diocesan convention urging the lay delegates to use the power they have to beat the clergy opposed to Bishop Acheson.

Mr. Stebbins declares in his letter that "both the Catholic and low-church parties in the state made efforts at the 1925 convention to demate the present suffragan without valid reason or ethical consideration. Moral justice was blighted in an effort to elect a partisan priest over the head and in the place of the consecrated bishop now suffragan and thus degrading him.

"What moral right has one to require that Bishop Acheson resign his Episcopal office in Connecticut in order that some priest may step into it and assume greater responsibility than that of the bishop he would displace?"

"When the clergy shall have elected a broad-minded tolerant gentleman, I believe the lay-delegates will affirm the clerical vote. If a controlling number of clerical delegates should go so far as to elect a party-priest to the sacred office, one who could upset the splendid work done by our noble Bishop Brewster then it would be reasonable and proper for the lay-delegates to take sufficient time seriously to consider the power that lies in them as delegates."

COMMON COUNCIL AUTHORIZES HALF MILLION DOLLAR WATER BOND SALE

By a unanimous vote of the court of common council Monday evening authorization was given for the issuing of water bonds to the amount of $525,000. The action taken Monday evening means approval of the sale of the bonds to H. L. Allen and Co., Gibson and Leefe and G. L. Austin Co., jointly. The proceeds of the bonds are to be used for the construction of the new Deep River reservoir for Norwich.

Members present and voting aye on the motion to accept included Mayor Milo R. Waters and all aldermen and councilmen with the exception of Alderman Alfred G. Lillibridge and Alderman F. Russell Smith, absentees.

The issue of bonds authorized calls for bonds totalling $525,000 issued in bonds of $1,000 each, totalling 525 bonds and bearing interest at the rate of 4¼ per cent. per annum, dated from March 1, 1926, due $315,000 annually on March 1, 1931 to March 1, 1965, inclusive, interest payable semi-annually March 1st and September 1st at the Hanover National bank of New York and at the Merchants National bank of Boston.

Previous to voting on the question Mayor Waters read the eight bids received for the bonds, the best offer, the one accepted, being that offered through H. L. Allen & Co., at $101.2198 for each $100 par value a total of $51,403.95, and accrued interest to the date of the delivery of the bonds.

Previous to putting the question Mayor Waters informed the council that Norwich was to be congratulated on the price offered for the bonds as it was the highest paid in a number of months for municipal bonds bearing 4¼ per cent. interest.

The meeting was opened at 8 o'clock by Mayor Waters and after the routine business Clerk Weston C. Pullen read a communication from the Norwich Council, United Commercial Travelers, requesting that the mayor and council attend a business men's luncheon at the Wauregan hotel on the evening of Thursday, March 18, 1926, at which time members of the city goverment of New London would also attend. Mayor Waters explained the reason for the meeting and stated that the New London city government is to attend the dinner and that he hoped all members of the court of common council would attend, if possible, as he believed that the meeting would lead to a closer cooperation between the cities of Norwich and New London. It was voted to accept the invitation.

The communication received from the United Commercial Travellers was as follows:

To the Honorable Mayor and Court of Common Council of the City of Norwich:

Gentlemen: The United Commercial Travellers, Norwich, Council No. 309, through its two hundred members, are directly interested in promoting the Mercantile growth of Eastern Connecticut and particularly that of Norwich and New London.

Our membership is about evenly divided between these two neighboring municipalities.

It is our contention in promoting and developing Industry, Commerce, Banking, Mercantile establishments, or anything of a Civic nature, in or between these twin cities, must of needs be of mutual benefit.

Because of the many advantages unheralded, that are so generously abounding on either shore of the Thames river, we feel that some plan can be worked out, through a joint meeting of the executives of these progressive cities, that will lead to or accentuate our future development along lines before mentioned.

Norwich Council, No. 309, U. C. T. of A., at a meeting of its Executive and Civic committees, held recently, unanimously voted to extend an invitation to you, and through you, to members of the court of common council, to attend a joint meeting to be held in the Wauregan hotel on the evening of Thursday, March 18th, 1926.

A Business men's luncheon will be served at 7 p. m. at a cost of $1 per plate.

May we hope that every member of the council will be present.

C. W. PEARSON,
Secretary.

NORWICH PEOPLE ATTEND JENNINGS SCHOOL DEDICATION

A number of Norwich people attended the dedication of the new Jennings school in New London Monday. The eulogy to Charles B. Jennings after whom the new school was named by delivered by Walter A. Towne.

A handsome bronze tablet bearing the relief busts of Nathan Hale and Charles B. Jennings, measures 30 to 60 inches and was unveiled by Mrs. Jennings, widow of the late schoolmaster.

The tablet contains the following inscriptions:

"Have honor for two schoolmasters of this city.

"Nathan Hale, From whom one of our schools is named. Having volunteered for service in Washington's army, he departed this city and a few months later gave his life to his country's cause, Sept. 22, 1776. His was that inspired message—'I only regret that I have but one life to give to my country.'

"Charles B. Jennings. In memory of whom this school is named, of a later generation but also imbued with the spirit of loyal service and patriotic citizenship. Connected with the schools of this city as teacher-principal-superintendent of schools 1866-1918. He gave over 50 years of his life to the devoted and loving instruction of two generations of the youth of the city. His death occurred Aug. 30, 1924. A bank book among his effects evidenced that, 33 years earlier, he had made an initial deposit towards a fund for erecting near this spot a suitable memorial to Nathan Hale as the 'teacher-patriot.' This fact, together with his own loyalty and zeal for the youth of the city, make proper the linking of his name with that earlier schoolmaster—in loyalty to his exemplar, and the nation's perfect hero and martyr.

"Tablet erected by the great company of those who were pupils or loving friends of this later schoolman."

WASHINGTON SOCIAL PROCEEDS FOR AUXILIARY CHARITY FUND

On the afternoon of Washington's birthday the ladies of the Rose of New England Ladies' Auxiliary, No. 40, Independent Order of B'nai B'rith celebrated the holiday with a social tea and dance at the Buckingham Memorial hall. The men of the Rose of New England lodge, No. 898, I. O. B. B., were the specially invited guests. Several ladies of the Young Women's Hebrew association also attended the entertainment. About 100 men and women were present. The hostesses were: Mrs. Hyman Schwartz, Mrs. Alexander M. Pasnik, Mrs. Rubie Alexander, Mrs. Abraham Bruckner, Mrs. David Trachtenberg, Mrs. Abraham Curland and Mrs. Alexander M Manes. The ladies contributed homemade food, such as doughnuts, cookies, and specially prepared candy and tea.

There were fine bridge prizes awarded to the winners who were Miss Leona Serling, of Syracuse, N. Y., who also qualified as a charming Charleston dancer; Fred Schwartz, Mrs. Barney Rubenstein, Mrs. I. Graff, Mrs. Alexander M. Manes. A whist prize was awarded to Miss Betty Snitman of Hartford. The Charleston prize for graceful dancing was won by Miss Dorothy Pasnik, who came from Connecticut colege to attend the social.

Several B'nai Brith ladies and gentlemen from neighboring towns attended the social, expressing themselves as greatly delighted with the entertainment.

The proceeds of the event will be applied to the auxiliary charity fund and it netted the ladies a considerable sum as a reward for their efforts. The whole affair was one of the most enjoyable socials held by the organization. It fulfilled the scope underlying the principals of the B'nai Brith Auxiliary of Norwich—that of patriotic celebration of all American holidays in a true American way and at the same time bringing together all the members in a closer harmony and good fellowship. Miss Marcia Bruckner is to be commended for the beautiful red, white and blue favors which she made for the occasion. They were a real work of art.

FILLING UP HOLES ON THAMES STREET

Street Commissioner John C. Donovan has a force of men at work filling up the bad holes on Thames street and West Thames street. The filling in of the holes, especially between the Connecticut Company's trolley tracks, is welcomed by automobile drivers.

Whist and Pinochle Party

An enjoyable evening of pinochle with four tables in play was held Monday evening at the home of Mrs. Samuel Miller, No. 15 Pearl street. The first prize was won by Miss May Danahy, score, 8,600; second prize by Mrs. William Farrell, score, 8,090 and the consolation went to Mrs. James Manning, score, 6,730. Refreshments were served by the hostess.

Suzanne Lenglen is still the greatest woman tennis player.

CONNIE McDOWELL APPEARS AT BROADWAY THEATRE

Monday was local talent night at the Broadway theatre and the programme arranged by the theatre management made a hit with the delighted audience. Worthy mention is due all who took part in the programme.

Zim's Novelty orchestra, led by Sammy Zimmerman started the programme with flying colors. Deafening applause greeted the conclusion of the first number. C. L. Perkins of Hanover added a touch of comedy and some nice playing with his fife.

Then came John Diachyshyn of Laurel Hill avenue. This youngster of fourteen, a pupil of Professor Farrell played as only a master of this instrument can.

Another selection was rendered by Zim's orchestra with a solo by John Kelly "The Prisoner's Song." This was an instant hit and the reception given demanded an encore which was equally well received. Another number given by Mr. Kelly which met with many laughs and was indeed a hit was a parody on "Barbara Fritchie."

Henry Muller of Baltic St., is a comer on the accordeon if the way his selections were received is any criterion.

Mary Cosentino of this city offered a toe dance that was as finished as a professional's. Her dance music was by the band.

Master David O'Neil a youngster of twelve gave two beautiful selections on the cornt. His brother followed with two numbers on the violin.

George LaFleur and Edward Slater of Willimantic offered two solos and then aduet.

Zims novelty orchestra concluded the musical program with a very snappy selection that kept the audience demanding for more. One encore was given as the hour was growing late.

And then came the big surprise of the evening—Connie McDowell. His first offering was a few humorous sketches that kept everyone in spasms of laughter. And then came his dramatic offering. Suspense and awe were noticeable on many faces and not a ripple of laughter could be heard in the dead silence, so did he grip everyone. Thunderous applause broke out on his exit.

NEW MEMBERS FOR MAYFLOWER DESCENDANTS

The board of assistants of the Society of Mayflower Descendants in the state of Connecticut held a meeting at the home of the secretary, Mrs. George B. Kingsbury, on February 17th.

The following applicants were unanimously elected to membership in the society: Mrs. Oliver Hoyt Anderson, Riverside, Conn., 9th in descent from John Howland; Danford Newton Barney, Farmington, 9th from Isaac Allerton; Mrs. Martin Cantine, Lakeville, 9th from William Brewster; Miss Frances Cantine, Lakeville, 10th from William Brewster; Mrs. Edward W. The secretary reported the death of Mrs. Albert T. Candee of New Haven on Nov. 27th, 1925. Mrs. Harold Read, of Cambridge, Mass., was transferred to the Massachusetts society. Mrs. Edward B. Field of Hartford, was elected to membership on the board of assistants. The society now numbers 465 members.

WASHINGTON DANCING PARTY GIVEN AT ARCANUM CLUB

The members of the Arcanum club entertained at a Washington's birthday party Monday evening, with proverbial hospitality. About a hundred and fifty guests enjoyed the freedom of the clubhouse on Webster Heights at a dance of modern and old-time numbers. The ballroom was gay with flags of all nations and the favors and streamers were in patriotic colors.

Ice cream, cake, and punch were served. The affair proved especially sociable and enjoyable, due to the well arranged plans of the entertainment committee, Arthur C. Brown, Calvin L. Swan and Edward S. Smith, aided by the officers of the club, Dr. C. A. Spear, president, Tyler D. Guy, vice president and Frank I. Royce, secretary.

Guests From Hartford

Mrs. B. F. Pendleton and daughter, Miss Gertrude Pendleton, now of Hartford, were in Norwich to spend the week end and holiday with the former's son, Richard F. Pendleton and family, of 109 Franklin street. Mrs. Pendleton is remaining for a week's visit. Miss Pendleton returned Monday to Hartford, where she is in charge of a department in the Albert Steiger store. Mrs. Pendleton and daughter are very pleasantly located in Hartford. During the week, the latter joined the Hartford Business Women's club.

WEDDINGS
Moore-Calkins

A pretty wedding took place Monday evening at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Wesley J. Calkins of No. 585 Main street when their daughter, Ethel Lucina Calkins was united in marriage with Joseph H. Moore, son of Mr. and Mrs. George W. Moore of Canterbury turnpike.

The ceremony took place promptly at 8 o'clock, when to the strains of Mendelsohns Wedding March, the bridal party entered the dining room and the bride was given in marriage by her father. The service was of the Episcopal order and was performed by Archdeacon J. Eldred Brown, rector of Trinity Episcopal church. The bride was attended by Miss Catherine Rushworth and the groom by James Delaney, both of this city.

The dining room and adjoining rooms of the house had been most tastefully decorated for the occasion, the ceremony taking place beneath a lattice work of white, supported by two large white pillars, from which led streamers of smilax and daffodils. Numerous baskets of roses, carnations and greens set in attractive manner between trellis work afforded a most attractive setting for the ceremony, which took place in the light of candles placed about the rooms.

The bride was charmingly gowned in nile green silk crepe and wore a fillet of pearls and carried a shower bouquet of bridal roses. The bridesmaid was gowned in pink silk and her shower bouquet was of pink roses.

The ceremony was witnessed by relatives and a few intimate friends of the couple and at the reception which followed the ceremony covers were laid for 26 and a chicken dinner was served by a caterer. During the ceremony and reception which followed music was furnished by Zimm's orchestra, which gave a most pleasing program. A feature of the dinner was the cutting and serving of the large wedding cake, supporting a large white bell, boxed pieces of cake being passed to each guest by the bride.

The bride received many beautiful gifts of cut glass, electric lamps, linen, blankets, several checks and a substantial sum of money. The gift of the bride to her maid was a fancy gold pen, while the groom presented his best man a set of gold cuff links.

Following a wedding tour which will include stops in Providence, Boston and several Massachusetts cities Mr. and Mrs. Moore are to reside in their newly furnished apartment on Main street, where they will be at home to their many friends after April 1st.

The bride was born in this city and attended local schools and has been living at home with her parents. She is a member of the Central Baptist church. The groom is also a native of Norwich and received his education in local schools and attended the Norwich Free academy. He is engaged in business with his father, George W. Moore, in the automobile repairing business. Mr. and Mrs. Moore are prominent in the younger set of this city and their many friends wish them happiness in their married life.

INCIDENTS IN SOCIETY

Mrs. Weston C. Pullen, of Crescent street, entertained the Monday Afternoon Sewing club this week.

Mr. and Mrs. F. Russell Smith, of Carroll avenue are back at Miami, following a visit to Palm Beach. They are planning to return North about the first of March.

Mrs. John S. Blackmar gave a Washington supper Monday evening at her home on Broadway. Afterwards there were four tables of bridge, the prizes being won by Mrs. Edwin A. Harris, Mrs. William H. Oat and Mrs. Henry W. Lanz. The decorations and favors were in the patriotic colors.

Monday afternoon from 4 to 6, General Ebenezer Huntington chapter, Children of the American Revolution, was entertained by Miss Emily Bidwell, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. E. Allen Bidwell, of Bliss Place. Although a Washington party, special emphasis was laid on the centenary of Jefferson and a sketch was given of his famed home, Monticello. The chapter voted $5 toward the purchase of the home. Mrs Elisha E. Rogers, the president, directed the exercises of the afternoon and in the absence of the Junior Vice President, Rose Standish, Betty Spear, the historian, presided. Upstairs, there were games for the smaller children, in charge of Mrs. Roy F. Judd, the prize winners being David Brewer, Beatrice Babcock, Beatrice Eggleton and Buddy Edmond. Miss Emily Bidwell had charge of the various patriotic games for the older members. The favors were flags, cherries and other Washington emblems. Delegates chosen to attend the National Congress in Washington are Agnes Greenman and Howland Brewer; the alternates are Emily Bidwell and Marion Mitchell. As the date was near the birthday of Dolly Edmond, a decorated cake in her honor was a surprise feature of the Washington supper.

BETTER THAN CALOMEL

Thousands Have Discovered Dr. Edwards' Olive Tablets are a Harmless Substitute

Dr. Edwards' Olive Tablets—the substitute for calomel—are a mild but sure laxative, and their effect on the liver is almost instantaneous. These little olive-colored tablets are the result of Dr. Edwards' determination not to treat liver and bowel complaints with calomel.

The pleasant little tablets do the good that calomel does, but have no bad after effects. They don't injure the teeth like strong liquids or calomel. They take hold of the trouble and quickly correct it. Why cure the liver at the expense of the teeth? Calomel sometimes plays havoc with the gums. So do strong liquids. It is best not to take calomel. Let Dr. Edwards' Olive Tablets take its place.

Headaches, "dullness" and that lazy feeling come from constipation and a disordered liver. Take Dr. Edwards' Olive Tablets when you feel "logy" and "heavy." They "clear" clouded brain and "perk up" the spirits. 15c and 30c.

RHEUMATIC PAINS GO SWOLLEN JOINTS VANISH

Twisted, swollen, unsightly joints are rapidly freed from pain and brought back to normal with Rheuma.

Lame people walk without aid; sleep comes to those who have been unable to lie in bed, hands that were helpless because of terrible rheumatism are now able to do their share for the support of the family.

Rheuma is a wonderful remedy for rheumatism, gout, neuritis, lumbago and neuralgia.

It is a wonder-worker; it never falters, never gives up until every vestige of poison is expelled from the body.

Rheuma acts on stomach, liver, kidneys and bladder all at once and quickly brings long prayed for comfort to distressed sufferers. Lee & Osgood and all druggists sell it with guarantee of money back if it isn't satisfactory.

Acid Stomach

"Phillips Milk of Magnesia"

Better than Soda

Hereafter, instead of soda take a little "Phillips Milk of Magnesia" in water any time for indigestion or sour, acid, gassy stomach, and relief will come instantly.

For fifty years genuine "Phillips Milk of Magnesia" has been prescribed by physicians because it overcomes three times as much acid in the stomach as a saturated solution of bicarbonate of soda, leaving the stomach sweet and free from all gases. It neutralizes acid fermentations in the bowels and gently urges the souring waste from the system without purging. Besides, it is more pleasant to take than soda. Insist upon "Phillips." Twenty-five cent bottles, any druggistore.

McCoy's Rinolin Helping Thousands

Natural Way to Overcome Constipation and Be Free From the Vicious Habit of Daily Purging

Here—right in this city at Lee & Osgood Co. or any druggist you can get a bottle of McCoy's Rinolin, a pleasant to take emulsion that in 10 days, if the simple directions are followed, will rid you of chronic constipation and establish normal and regular bowel action without artificial aid for a long time to come.

If it doesn't do it your druggist is authorized to return to you the money you paid for it.

So why should any sensible man or woman continue with violent purgatives, salts or calomel—a vicious and harmful habit—when such surprising results can so quickly be obtained with McCoy's Rinolin.

Like McCoy's Cod Liver Oil Compound Tablets which have benefited millions, McCoy's Rinolin is guaranteed to establish regular bowel action and rid the intestines of poisonous waste. Rinolin tonight—Pep tomorrow.

SUSIE WRITES ABOUT A NUMBER OF THINGS IN HER WEEKLY LETTER

Although the local sports season is rather slack Susie finds plenty to write about in her weekly letter to the sports editor. Susie writes as follows:

Dear Sports Editor:

There ain't much in the sportin' line to write about these days in little old Norwich an' I'm gettin' my sports in small doses through the sportin' page of the Bulletin. I sees where them baseball fellers is all packin' up their duds and leavin' for the south for their practice games. They's a lotta golf bein' played down in Florida where they don't have no snow to shovel. I don't no nothin' about that golf game but I'm goin' to learn next summer.

Gosh want it tough luck that American dame, Miss Wills, let that French jane wallop her in that outdoor ping-pong game. That's a nother game I ain't on speakin' terms but I'm willin' to try anythin' once. I guess my sportin' edication is been neglected.

The only sport what I know of just at the present is the game of "Keep the Lights Burnin'". Its played by a coupla cops, a driver of a auto and a police court judge and the percentage is all agin the driver. It's a kinda give and take game—the judge gives you ten and costs and it takes a coupla weeks to raise the dough for the ante and you ain't got no chance of winnin' it back. I sees that the game just become popala last week an' was introduced by the States cops. Then the city cops take it up. The game is to try an' sneak by a cop without him seein' that your glims ain't what they outta be. If you get by you cutta notch on the steerin' wheel but if you don't the judge cuts a coupla five spots outa your roll an' you is declared out. The boy friend ain't took his buggy out since the game come to be popala 'cause he says he ain't got no skeleis to throw away.

I bet any feller what hangs them fines on them auto drivers ain't never drived no car through and over the streets in Norwich specially during this snow. Maybe he don't own no car an' if he don't he's a lucky feller, but if he did I bet he'd do just like them fellers what he hangs a red tag on. I'll bet he ain't never been out on no country road some night and hit a coupla holes in the road an' have his tail light go flooey. If he did I bet he kept right on goin' just like me an' the boy friend did. The feller what's got giarin' headlights autaget knicked for some berries but its kinda tough on the feller whose lights get short circused from splashin' through puddles and when he puts in a nother lamp and drives along and that gets a bath an' goes out again.

The boy friend says when he an' me goes out in his buggy he's goin' to rig up a seat out on back so's I kin sit out there and watch that tail light. I says I ain't goin' to do no such thing but he'd better get a periscop, so's he can keep a eye on that thing. Gosh, I'd hate to get out on a road an' have a tail light go bum and have to walk a coupla miles before I could get a nother.

Course the law's got be upheld for its for the pertection of the people's life and liberty an' them judges is elected or appointed to do their duty in inforcin' them laws. If people braks 'em they must expect to get nabbed but its kinda tough sometimes when you don't know you're breakin' till some cop nabs you and gives you a red tag what entitles you to pay 5 or 10 bucks to the city and then you don't even get the tag as a sovenir. Fellers what drives autamobiles with bum lamps better do like the boy friend, put the car in garage an' walk, then you don't hafta worry an' yyou can laugh when the other fellers get nicked.

Gosh, ain't it funny what a small world this is. Last week I gets a coupla letters from some folks what I knew once. A guy up in New Britain writes saying he's seen my letters but he thinks I'm all wet about that "Boost Norwich" business. He says I ain't got no chance to wake up Norwich, 'cause he thinks somebody give it morphine. He says he ain't heard of Norwich only twicet since he's been livin' in New Britain. Oncet was when a Norwich feller pulls a coupla hold-ups and the other time is when a feller what's tryin' to enforce prohibition stages his stuff there. He says a feller's gotta get outa town to make good 'cause when they is a job open in Norwich they go outa town to get some feller to fill it.

Speakin' of sports the feller says that he thinks "Sheik" Leonard must be goin' to retire or he wouldnt gone to Norwich to live. He says Yong Coolon joins the army 'cause there ain't nothin' doin' in Norwich. He says in closin: As you say Susie, Don't Knock—Boost, but how can you do it when the people you are boosting Norwich to-say 'where is it?' I'm sendin' you the letter so's you can read it.

The other letter come from Jewett City Gussie and she tells about goin' to Providence to see the Stewed Prince. Gosh I ain't seen Gussie since she was a dirty faced kid up on Lake street an' to think she's goin' to them high class shows an' ridin' in automobiles. Guess Gussie must be steppin' out these days. Beware of them auto rides Gussie 'cause you know every car what rattles ain't always a Ford.

The boy friend says that the Oney feller has got back at Dinny Bowen for paintin' his face black. Dinny fell asleep a coupla nites ago an' somebody sprinkles his face all over with red ink. When Dinny wakes up an' looks in the lookin' glass he thinks he got the measle or scarlets fever and beats it for the docs. The doc tells him to go home an' wash his face but he soaks him three bucks just the same. Kinda a mean trick to play on the sorrel topped drummer.

Well I gotta stop now and 'cause its late. Oh, yes I gotta coupla valentines but they ain't the kind I is proud of and I ain't callin' in the neighbors to gaze upon 'em. O' course I gotta coupla nice ones with some mushy verses on 'em. Maybe you can guess who sent me one. Well hopin' you gotta lot of valentines yourself I am, as ever,

SUSIE.

JEWETT CITY TOWN TEAM PLAYS TAFTVILLE CRESCENTS

At Jewett City this coming Wednesday the Taftville Crescents will be the opponents of the newly organized Jewett City Town team. The Town team has as a necleus on which to build a team four members of the crack Jewett City Pros, namely, "Porky" Blake, "Beau" Barry, "Action" Benjamin and "Jumpinjack" Faber, added to this collection of the town's finest is "Johnnie-cake" LeClaire, ex-Putnam Trade School wizard. Lined up in the following order they present a most formidable array: LeClaire and Blake, forwards; Faber, center, Barry and Benjamin guards.

As this is purely a local club and will play a strictly Taftville team the fans of both towns will have their first opportunity of the winter to watch their own boys perform. The Taftville line-up will be announced tomorrow, also any last minute changes in the Jewett City order.

The preliminary is between the undefeated Fisk Red Tops and the sensational Plainfield Buddies. The Buddies are an aggregation that is far above the usual run of teams and is considered by many to be a leading contender for the Eastern Connecticut basketball crown.

WOMAN'S SWIMMING RECORDS ARE BROKEN AT TAMPA

TAMPA, Fla., Feb. 22.—(AP)—A mermaid from the west outclassed her eastern sisters here today to win the national women's amateur fancy high diving crown while east and west divided honors in a series of exhibition swims where one world's record was broken and another equalled.

With 100.62 points, Mrs. Betty Becker Pinkston, Los Angeles, easily left Evelyn Fehr, Detroit, in second place for the national diving title. Kathryn Brown of New York was third.

Martha Norelius, New York, who set three new world records at the St. Augustine meeting, flashed a new one today in the 500 yard free style swim, clocked in 6:45 2-5 she clipped one-fifth second off the old record.

Eleanor Garatti's world record for the fifty yard free style swim, 27 2-5 seconds, was equalled when Ethel Lackie, Chicago, splashed ahead of a fast field to win today's exhibition event.

CHERRY TREE WINS WASHINGTON HANDICAP

NEW YORK, Feb. 22.—(AP)—Cherry Tree, with a brilliant sprint in the stretch to pass Dr. Clark, won the Washington Handicap at a mile and 70 yards at Tiajuana today in 1:43 1-5. Suspero finished third, five lengths behind Dr. Clark. Jockey L. Schaefer, who scored in the sped feature with Thistlewood yesterday, rode Cherry tree.

The George Washington at Miami for three year olds at a mile and 70 yards went to Silver song in a sensational finish with only noses separating the winner from Bookbinder and Southwind. The Place Horse barely overcame Chicago in the dash down the stretch. The time was 1:43 3-5.

Tampa's feature was the Washington Birthday Handicap at 1 1-16 miles, with Gliding Fox registering over Seth's Alibi and Geo. De Mar in 1:54. Postillion gained the Yorktown at six furlongs with Chatterer second and Dudley, third.

Georgie came in a rush at the end to beat Southland Girl in the Washington Handicap at New Orleans, with Spandor third. The time for the 1 1-16 miles was 1:45 1-5, equally the track record.

MISS WILLS WINS IN BEAULIEU MIXED DOUBLES

BEAULIEU, France, Feb. 22.—(AP)—Miss Helen Wills, of California, added another cup today to her collection, the second in two days and the seventh since she began play on the Riviera tennis courts.

She and Charles S. Kingsley, of England, defeated Miss Eileen Bennett, of England and H. M. B. Fisher, Zealand, in the finals of the mixed doubles, 6-4, 6-3. A short time previously Miss Wills terthwaite of England, and Bela Von and her partner defeated Mrs. Satkehring, of Hungary, 6-0, 6-2.

The American champion then went to Monte Carlo ready to play the first round of the singles in the tournament which opened there today, but was informed that her opponent Miss Molla Westselaar, of Denmark, had scratched.

TAFTVILLE BEATS WESTERLY IN FIRST LEG OF POOL MATCH

The wielders of the cue from Taftville emerged as winners in the first leg of the ten game pool match played at Taftville on Monday evening by a score of 339 to 311. Barber had a high run of 24 while Shean had an unfinished run of 13 when he ran out his match with Reynolds. The scores:

Taftville—Lavalle 75, Shean 75, Winchester, 53, Barrett 56, Dugas 75—339.

Westerly—Main 39, Reynolds 74, Acolina 75, Salemena 75, Barber 48—311.

The next match will be played at Westerly next Monday evening.

ALONZO WINS BUFFALO TENNIS AND SQUASH TITLE

BUFFALO, N. Y., Feb. 22.—(AP)—Manuel Alonzo of Spain won the singles championship in the Buffalo Tennis and Squash club's invitation tournament today. Paired with Eric Worm, of Denmark, in the doubles finals, however, he went down to defeat in straight sets before his opponent in the singles finals, Arnold Jones of Providence, who had George Lott, of Chicago as his partner.

Battery B Unable to Play

The Battery B five will be unable to play the Danielson town team at Norwich on Friday evening owing to unforeseen circumstances. A later date may be arranged by communicating with Battery B management at the Armory.

"Y" SENIORS DEFEAT NEW LONDON DORMATS

There was plenty of speed in the Y gym last night when the Y Seniors met the fast Dormat quintette of New London, defeating them by the score of 41 to 18. Despite the wide margin in the score the game proved an interesting one throughout. During the first half the teams alternated in the scoring, which brought them at half time to an 18-18 score. With the introduction of Brown in the second half and every Y'er playing at his best, the Y'ers set too fast a pace for the visitors.

KEEN COMPETITION EXPECTED IN GRAMMAR SCHOOL MEET

Some keen competition and excitement is assured for this afternoon when the school lads representing the Broadway, Greeneville and Elizabeth Street schools clash in the YMCA gymnasium to battle for the grammar school indoor athletic supremacy. The best athletic material of these schools has been assembled for the big contest, and many of the school children are planning to be on hand to cheer their school to victory. Special seating arrangements are being made and indications are that the big gym will have a capacity crowd.

YOUNGSTER MAKES 72-FOOT SKI-JUMP AT DARTMOUTH

HANOVER, N. H., Feb. 22—(AP)—A 12-year old boy made a 72 foot ski jump here today. James Packard accomplished the feat in the seventh annual children's carnival, in which nearly one hundred sons and daughters of Dartmouth faculty members and Hanover townspeople took part.

Professor Lingley's son William won the meet with 12 points.

ANDERSON WINS NEW YORK SKI-JUMPING TITLE

LACOSTE BEATS BOROTORA FOR TITLE IN NATIONAL INDOOR TENNIS FINALS

NEW YORK, Feb. 22.—(AP)—Rene Lacoste of France today became the 1926 national indoor singles champion by a triumph over his countryman, Jean Borotra, in a sparkling four-set struggle which brought together two foreign stars as finalists in an American title tournament for the first time in tennis history. The youthful rivals, who share No. 1 ranking in their homeland, battled through two hours and a half of spectacular stroking before the match was decided by scores of 15-13, 6-3, 2-6, 6-2.

The title, won last year by Borotra, thus passed to France for the second successive year over a trail cut through the ranks of three outstanding American players—William T. Tilden, Vincent Richards and Francis T. Hunter. International team matches later this week are expected to indicate how much significance may be attached to this series of upsets as pointing to a possible passing of international net supremacy from America to France.

Lacoste's victory followed a scintillating five set contest of more than two hours for the doubles title, with the Olympic champions, Richards and Hunter, bowing to Tilden and and the late New York player, Fred Anderson, 3-6, 6-3, 6-4, 3-6, 12-10. Thrill followed thrill in a match of brilliant shots, with Tilden's cannonball service and Richards' matchless volleying chief factors in the rival offensives, as the national outdoor champion and his partner rescued one title for America from the invaders. Borotra, paired with A. W. Asthalter, won the team crown a year ago.

The result of the singles match was a triumph for cool, machine-like driving over the dashing, colorful net attack of Tilden's conqueror. The 1925 champion spent himself in the very first set, his sensational volleying and smashing bringing a gallery of 3,000 spectators to their feet repeatedly. Twice he fell heavily making marvellous returns and although he rallied to win the third set in a courageous stand, Lacoste quickly regained control of the match in the fourth set and clinched a decisive victory as his compatriot tired from his exertions.

Despite the fact that Tilden and Anderson had triumphed in the semi-finals over the Wimbledon champions, Lacoste and Borotra, Hunter and Richards ruled favorites to win the doubles. Each had his severe first service ball booming into the forecourt with consistency in the first set and they sailed through the giants to quick victory. But in the second and third sets, Hunter lapsed into errors, often on apparently easy kills, and Tilden's powerful service and driving carried his team to the front.

Richard's covered the court with lightning speed and brought off so many brilliant net shots that the Olympic champions saved the fourth set. They then entered upon the twenty-two game final and here Anderson came to Tilden's support with his best tennis of the tournament. The set produced several tense periods, both sides frequently being within a point of victory before Tilden and Anderson finally broke through.

SHAEFER WINS FIRST BLOCK FROM HOPPE

CHICAGO, Feb. 22—(AP)—Jake Shaefer today defeated Willie Hoppe, veteran champion, in the division, in the first round of their three-day exhibition match at 18.1 balkline billiards. Trailing through most of the 14 innings played, the present 18.2 title holder ran out the 250 point block with 100 when Hoppe had a total of 231.

The 1500 point match is to condition Hoppe for his forthcoming match with Edouard Horemans, Belgian, for the 18.2 world's championship.

Hoppe said that a conference will be held with Horemans in New York within ten days for the announcement of the date, providing the number of points and other details. He favored early April.

Schaefer announced he would challenge the match winner immediately after the title is decided.

Challenge.

DANIELSON TOWN TEAM AT TAFTVILLE TONIGHT

One of the games to have a direct bearing on the eastern Connecticut basketball championship will be played this evening at Parish Hall Taftville when the fast Danielson Town team clashes with the Taftville Crescents in the second game of the series between these two clubs. Bitter rivalry has marked all previous games and tonight's encounter is expected to be just as bitter.

Taftville will put its strongest lineup on the floor to combat the following aggregation representing Danielson: Keach and Reeves, forwards; Blakely, center; Poirier and Godreau, guards. Taftville's team will include the following: Gauthier, Jimmy Murphy, Eddie Murphy, Tom Coleman, Eccleston and Coady.

The Celtics will play the Ponemah Wheel club five in the preliminary contest.

HUBBARD SETS NEW RECORD FOR 65-YARD SPRINT

BOSTON, Feb. 22—(AP)—A world's record that has stood for eighteen years was broken in the seventh annual running of the American Legion track games here today when Dehart Hubbard, negro athlete, sprinted 65 yards in 6 4-5 seconds. The old mark was 7 seconds.

Hubbard, who is holder of the world's record in the board jump, twice covered the distance in the new time, first in a preliminary heat and again in the final. His performance rounded out a strenuous day in which he won the 50-yd. dash and finished second in a 60-yard low hurdles event.

Jimmy Connolly, veteran New York A. C. miler captured the Massachusetts Legion mile, one of the features of the program.

Another feature, the Colonel Gaston 600 yard run was won by Bill McKillop of Boston college.

Three championships of the New England association of amateur athletic union were decided.

George Leromd, Boston A. A. national six mile champion won the New England two mile title. Joseph Ingoldsby of Boston College, captured the 600 yard title.

Al O'Neil, Harvard student, became 1,000 yards champion.

YALE SWIMMING TEAM BEATS N. Y. BOYS' CLUB

NEW HAVEN, Feb. 22—(AP)—The Yale swimming team defeated the Boys club of New York, here this afternoon, 40 to 21. The strength of the visiting team forced Coach Bob Kiputh, of Yale to use his strongest lineup for the first time this year. In the 150-yard back stroke, House, of Yale, was the first man in but was disqualified for making an illegal turn, the race being awarded to Wohl, of the Boys club.

Mason of Yale was second, but no third place was awarded because Woods of the visitors who came in last was also disqualified for making an illegal turn.

In the 100-yard dash, Captain Bronson, of Yale, set a new intercollegiate record for the event with a time of 52 and 4-5 seconds, but the mark does not stand because it was not made in intercollegiate competition.

TWO WORLD'S RECORDS ARE BROKEN AT MILLROSE A. A. TRACK MEET

NEW YORK, Feb. 22—(AP)—Two world's indoor records were shattered and a third equalled today in the track and field games held under the auspices of the 245th Coast Artillery in the Thirteenth Regiment Amory while the Brooklyn-Queens marathon was in progress.

Willie Ritola, Finnish-American "iron man" tumbled the first record when he conceded big handicaps to a score of rivals in a 5,000 yard race and passed them all to break the tap in 13 minutes, 32 seconds. This was seven seconds faster than the former standard for the distance, set by Ritola himself at St. Paul, Minn., last year during his transcontinental tour with Paavo Nurmi. Ritola finished fully fifty yards in front of his nearest rival, A. I. Totten of Union college who had a handicap of 100 yards.

Alan Helffrich shared record-breaking honors with the sturdy Finn by toppling the 600 meter mark which Vincent Lally of New York had set less than a week ago. Helffrich, former Penn State flier now sporting the colors of the New York A. C., spurted to the front at the gun and set the pace all the way, beating off a challenge by Lally to win by ten yards in 1 minute 22 2-5 seconds. Lally's former mark was 1:24.

A special 75-yard high hurdle race was captured by Carl Christiernson of the Newark A. C. in 9 4-5 seconds, with his club mates, Herb Meyer and Tom Farrell, second and third.

Louis Clarke, former Johns Hopkins star, now representing the Newark A. C., equalled the world's indoor record when he sped to victory in the 100 meter dash in 11 seconds flat, closing with a fine burst to nose out his clubmate, Chester Bowman, J. O. McDonald of Pennsylvania was third, and John Tiedman of Union College, fourth.

Russell Payne of Pennsylvania, former Ohio State and Olympic star, won the 1,500 meter run in decisive fashion, beating off a challenge by Paul Farnham of Lafayette to break the tape 15 yards in front. John O'Neill of the Newark A. C. finished third. The time was 4 minutes and 9 seconds.

NEW LONDON COURT PROVES LENIENT WITH A GOOD SAMARITAN NEIGHBOR

(Special to the Bulletin)

NEW LONDON, Feb. 23—Charles Lemon was in the city court today for operating a commercial automobile without possessing registration. It turned out that he was wrongfully accused for he established beyond doubt that he possessed the necessary paper, but he was not driving his own car, so the registration was not readily found. Lemon is a fireman on the New Haven railroad and has been such for five years. His neighbor in Groton, Edward L. Gay, is threatened with pneumonia and Lemon agreed to deliver milk for him in New London. This he did Saturday and during the time he was thus engaged a commercial car ran down a woman in Colt street. The police were instructed to get information as to every Ford commercial car they found in use so, the car Mr. Lemon was operating came into the police drag net. Lemon could not find the registration in the car and this was regarded as a suspicious circumstance. When he went back to Groton he was told where the registration was to be found and there he discovered it. So the complaint against him was nolled. It was shown that Lemon had not been in Colt street where the fatal accident occurred, for Lemon described the exact streets he had travelled through.

DANIEL J. DONOVAN CLAIMS MISTAKEN IDENTITY

(Special to The Bulletin.)

NEW LONDON, Feb. 22—Daniel J. Donovan of Groton will be in the police court tomorrow to answer to a charge of having obtained money by forging the name of Mrs. William Knowles of Groton to a check and collecting some $15 at the Union bank in New London. It is understood to be the defense of Daniel as he goes to judgment that some other Donovan forged the signature of Mrs. Knowles and that he is guiltless. But the bank officials who gave the money on the check are said to have picked out Donovan, the accused as the Donovan who should be charged with the crime, so he is held to answer. There are three men in New London carrying the name of Daniel Donovan and there is nothing surer in the world than that neither of these committed the offense alleged against the man accused.

The city of New London is likely to have a heavier bill for street repair next spring than it has had in many years. Some of the highways have been badly washed and the surfacing has suffered deterioration as a result of the frost that his disturbed the roads. The cold patching that was done on lower Bank street has worn well, but it appears not to be substantial enough to stand the wear it gets on a much travelled street. The fact is apparent that sooner or later the city must establish a plan of laying permanent paving or cement each year. That plan will be expensive at the start, but the opinion is that it will be found to be economical in a series of years. City Manager Holt recommended that the city take that course some time ago, but his recommendation has not yet been acted upon, so far as is known.

A call to the police office was received Sunday that a man was down and out in the Prest lot, off Garfield avenue. Officers Ray and E. W. Riordan responded to the call and found Walter Banning within a few feet of a brook carrying a heavy volume of water. He was drunk, so he was taken into custody for the second time within two weeks. Banning insisted that he was able to take care of himself if allowed to do so, but the officers held a different opinion and insisted that Banning should "sleep it off" in the police station. Today in the police court Banning indignantly denied that he was intoxicated and claimed that his personal liberty was being interfered with. He was fined $5 nevertheless and then on suspension of the execution he was placed in the custody of the probation officer.

Mrs. Corrine Roberts, colored, of 32 Douglass street, was arrested late last night charged with assault upon her husband, Stanley Roberts, but she escaped prosecution in the police court this morning because both Roberts and his wife denied that the later had attacked the husband with a knife and inflicted a wound on the right leg that required 10 stitches to close. There was no evidence in the possession of Prosecuting Attorney Perry J. Hollandersky that the woman inflicted the wound that demanded her husband being admitted to Lawrence hospital for treatment.

Roberts appeared at the police station late Sunday night and requested that medical aid be obtained for him, as he had suffered a bad cut by falling through a window. The wound was examined and City Physician George P. Cheney was summoned. Because of the size of the wound Roberts was removed to the hospital where the gash was sewed up, after which the patient was discharged. Patrolmen Augustus Ray and Edward Riordan, who were sent to the hospital, reported that Roberts had declared that his wife inflicted the knife wound and it was upon that assertion that the woman was arrested. However, prior to the convening of the police court and with both Roberts and his wife declaring that the wound was sustained by Roberts in falling through a window and with nothing to support the allegation of the police, the Roberts woman was discharged.

Alex Steinberg, 34 North Bank street, complained to the police this morning that he had suffered considerable annoyance because of one or more youths smashing a plate glass window. Patrolman William Graham was assigned to the case and ascertained the identity of the guilty youths. They were turned over to Probation Officer Richard W. Mansfield.

Sergeant Martin Kane, of the New York, New Haven & Hartford's force of special agents, detected a boy of 15 attempting to steal a ride on a freight train this forenoon. It developed that the youngster formerly resided in Providence and was trying to return to that city, although his mother now resides in New London. The boy was turned over to Probation Officer Richard W. Mansfield.

The funeral of George L. Chaffee, formerly superintendent for the Whiton Machine company was held this morning at 10:30 o'clock at his home, 371 Montauk avenue, and was attended by many mourners, including a large representation of employes of the Whiton company. The services were conducted by officers of Brainard lodge, of which order Mr. Chaffee had been a member many years, also one of its past masters. The body was forwarded to Stafford Springs where burial took place this afternoon.

The funeral of John Lynch, 24 Willetta avenue, a former resident of Norwich, was held this morning with services at 8 o'clock at St. Joseph's church. There was a large attendance of mourners. The high mass of requiem was celebrated by Rev. William C. Fitzsimons. The bearers were William D. Fox, John Ahearn, John Crowley, Samuel Brown, Leo Desault and Patrick J. O'Leary. Burial was in St. Mary's cemetery, Greeneville.

Paul Gager, of Quaker Hill; Mrs. Abraham Katz, 35 Harrison street; Mrs. Philip Bruno, 9 North Bank street; Mrs. Anthony Iriandi and infant daughter, 72 Ocean avenue; Mrs. Louis Kaplan and infant son, 55 Blydenburg avenue; Lewis Maynard, Old Lyme; Mrs. Daniel Donovan and infant son, Mitchell street, Groton; Miss Louise Cook, 24 Channing street; Donald Callahan, 53 Waller street, and Fred Schorn and John McDonald, United States Coast Guard destroyer Patterson, state pier, were patients at Lawrence-Memorial Associated hospital dismissed Sunday and today.

Several members of the Masonic fraternity went to Norwich this evening by automobile to attend the meeting of Scottish Rite Masons in the temple in that city.

Washington's birth anniversary meant a holiday for many of the stores in this city, a greater number than usual observing the holiday, for the stores were generally closed. There was little else to mark the anniversary. The schools are on vacation for the week and no set exercises were held.

Mr. and Mrs. Frank Harris, of Nathan Hale street are spending several days in Nashua, N. H.

The submarine V-1, the largest of the fleet of undersea craft in the United States navy, has arrived at the submarine base, where she is being made ready for a series of diving tests. The craft is scheduled to make her first test, which will include a dive to a depth of 200 feet off the mouth of the harbor, Wednesday next.

The police are without the semblance of a clue to the identity of the driver of the automobile that ran down and inflicted fatal injury to Miss Catherine E. Hogan, dressmaker, of 40 Colt street, early last Saturday evening. The authorities have worked hard to obtain some clue that might provide a lead upon which to work in their endeavors to locate the driver.

The weekly session of the city council was not held this evening because of the holiday. The meeting will take place tomorrow evening.

Attorney and Mrs. John C. Geary have returned to their apartment at the Hotel Mohican, after having spent several weeks in Florida.

Miss Alice Larkin, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. John L. Larkin, 329 Williams street, and a former student at Willimantic Normal school, is critically ill at the home of her parents.

Mr. and Mrs. James Lawton of Lee avenue, are entertaining their daughter, Dr. Josephine Lawton, a practicing dentist of Bridgeport.

Martin Greenblatt, proprietor of a bottling establishment at 10 Hamilton street, complained to the police this evening that a 100 pound bag of sugar had been stolen from the place.

Patrolman Braxton Hill reported this evening that the catch-basin at the corner of Bank and Tilley streets, was broken and created a condition of danger as automobiles might be driven into the opening. The officer placed a box and red lantern at the danger spot.

DESHON COUNCIL, 4TH DEGREE, HOLDS ANNUAL BANQUET

(Special to The Bulletin.)

NEW LONDON, Feb. 22.—Members of Rev. Father George Deshon council assembled at the Hotel Mohican this evening holding their annual banquet. The affair was attended by about 200 members of the K. of C. Fourth Degree, including prominent guests from nearby towns.

WEDDING OF NOVEMBER 25 IS JUST ANNOUNCED

(Special to The Bulletin.)

NEW LONDON, Feb. 22—Announcement is made by Mr. and Mrs. J. L. Trude, 21 Mather court, of the wedding of their niece, Miss Sally B. Coulson, and Otis C. Linkletter, son of Mr. and Mrs. Otis C. Linkletter, 32 Berkley avenue. The wedding took place November 25 at Middletown and was performed by Rev. Herbert D Hollinson. The groom is a student at Wesleyan university, Middletown.

INNKEEPER BARRETT UP ON A CHARGE OF BIGAMY

(Special to The Bulletin.)

NEW LONDON, Feb. 22.—Edward Barrett, manager of the Rotisserie inn located on the New Haven turnpike, near the Fog Plain road, was before Judge Frederick Dimmock in the Waterford town court this evening charged with bigamy. The case was continued until the latter part of the week and Barrett furnished a surety on a bond of $2,000 for his appearance at the latter date.

Barrett was taken into custody on Saturday night by Constable Fred Peabody of Waterford, on a warrant, and upon information supplied by the alleged first wife of Barrett, who is said to be a resident of Providence. The second wife, it is claimed, is proprietress of the inn and was formerly Mrs. Harriet Scheeley.

The Rotisserie inn is familiar to many New Londoners, especially on Saturday nights when many automobile parties from this city, Norwich and vicinity are driven to the place and their occupants remain until a late hour. The place has been raided twice by state and town officers and once the proprietress and the other time a waiter were convicted of violation of the liquor law.

MEMBERSHIP DRIVE PLANS OF CHAMBER OF COMMERCE

(Special to The Bulletin.)

WILLIMANTIC, Feb. 22—Preliminary plans for a membership drive for the chamber of commerce were discussed, at a meeting of a delegation of enthusiastic members held Monday night. The coming drive was given a send-off when nine sustaining membership applications and two individual memberships were signed by those present. Girard E. Loiselle, chairman of the membership committee, was in charge of the meeting, which was opened by Vice President Roland B. Jordanfi Channing H. Morrill was chosen secretary pro-tem. Remarks were made by Albert B. Smith, James B. Fullerton, Harry N. Bullard, Louis H. Arnold, John F. Carr and others. Financial Secretary Michael E. Sullivan explained the present status of membership. The drive has two outstanding purposes, namely to increase interest in the chamber and to provide a fund for advertising Willimantic, with a view of increasing its growth. The chairman was authorized to appoint a committee of five to be headed by himself to formulate definite plans for the drive and subject to ratification by the board of directors, to arrange for the opening of the campaign probably at the March meeting of the chamber, Tuesday of next week. The committee appointed by Chairman Loiselle consists of Harry N. Bullard, Edwin J. Donnelley, James B. Fullerton and Valentine L. Marohl.

NORWICH TOWN

Preceding the Sunday morning worship at the First Congregational church the pastor, Rev. Gurdon F. Bailey conducted a religious service at Norwich State hospital, at Brewster's Neck. "Temptation of Jesus," was the theme of the address.

At the Congregational church, Rev. Mr. Bailey preached from the text, Luke 9:23. And He said to them all, if any man will come after Me let him deny himself, and take up his cross daily, and follow Me. "Self Denial," was the sermon theme.

Beginning a series of Lenten services arranged by Rev. Dwight C. Stone, pastor of Hanover Congregational church, the address Sunday evening was by Rev. Gurdon F. Bailey, pastor of the Norwich Town Congregational church, who spoke from John 21:21. Peter seeing him saith to Jesus, Lord, and what shall this man do?

Charles Marsh Jr., was leader of the Congregational Young People's Christian Endeavor service, Sunday evening, when the topic was, "Lives Transformed by Christ." Acts 9:21—20. When the mid-week service for conference and prayer is held at the parsonage on Elm avenue, Thursday evening the theme will be, "The Readiness of Men for Christ." John 4:35, with special reference to 35-42.

The First Congregational Home Missionary society, Mrs. Herbert L. Yerrington president, has deferred its meeting scheduled for Friday afternoon, at the home of Mrs. Dwight L. Underwood, of Pecks corner, until the week later. This is to afford members the privilege of attending the meeting Friday afternoon at three o'clock at the Community House on Church street, to hear the address by Mrs. Frank Gaylord Cook, of Boston, recently returned from a tour around the world. The meeting is under the auspices of the missions department of the United Congregational church. Mrs. Cook represents the Woman's Board of Foreign Missions.

Rev. James B. Aldrich, pastor of the First Methodist Episcopal church conducted the Sunday afternoon service at the Sheltering Arms. He was accompanied by the following, who provided the singing: Mr. and Mrs. A. D. Zabriskie, Miss Florence M. Bennett, Arthur Bennett, Lewis and Mark Aldrich, and Miss Florence M. Brown, the last mentioned playing the piano for the hymns.

Rev. Mr. Aldrich spoke on "God's Care For His People." At the Sunday morning worship at the First M. E. church, Rev. Mr. Aldrich preached from John 13:34. A new commandment I give unto you, that ye love one another; as I have loved you, that ye also love one another.

The evening preaching service by Rev. Mr. Aldrich was from Psalms 39-7. And now, Lord, what wait I for? My hope is in Thee.

At the Young People's Christian Endeavor service which preceded the evening sermon, the leader was Mrs. William H. Whitman, who treated the topic, "Lives Transformed By Christ." Acts 9:1-20.

At the Sacred Heart church, Sunday afternoon, Lenten devotions consisting of Stations of the Cross and Benediction of the Most Blessed Sacrament, took place at 2:30 o'clock. Wednesday evening at this church at seven-thirty, there is to be a sermon followed by Benediction of the Blessed Sacrament.

At the home of Mr. and Mrs. Wellington Miner, Vergason avenue, a company of friends assembled Sunday in recognition of the birthday of Mrs. Miner, the actual date falling on Monday, February 22nd, Washington's Birthday. The guests included, Mr. and Mrs. John Sherman of Thamesville; Mrs. William A. White, Leffingwell; Mr. and Mrs. Frank Wheeler and daughter, Miss Grace Wheeler, of Scotland road, and Mrs. William Weaver of Huntington avenue. Among others invited who were unable to be present were, William Weaver, Mrs. Henry Guy, mother of Mrs. Wheeler. At one o'clock the hostess served a delicious dinner of Rhode Island corn consomme, roast lamb, mashed potato, mashed turnip, creamed carrots, corn custard, white and graham bread, pickles, coffee, cake and ice-cream. The dining room was attractively decorated with red, white and blue crepe paper. Festoons were suspended from the chandelier to the corners of the room, while the center piece on the table was a large Jack Horner pie to represent a red rose, intermingled with tints of blue and white. The pie held favors, which contained jokes about the occupations of the various guests. To each favor a streamer was attached and extended to the place of the guest intended to receive the particular favor. Mrs. Miner received a number of birthday gifts.

The Black Prince

Stories of the Crimean war and sunken treasure have been revived by the reported location of the Black Prince, a British ship which foundered in Balaklava bay. For 70 years the British and Russian governments at intervals have been searching for the ship, for when it went down it had aboard $3,000,000,000 in gold. Recently Russian divers brought to the surface a mast made of teakwood which is believed to have belonged to the Black Prince. During the height of the Crimean war the ship entered Balaklava bay with its cargo of gold, foodstuffs, medical supplies and ammunition for the attacking armies. A storm arose and the Black Prince foundered, the entire crew perishing. The depth of the bay, which in places is 700 feet, makes the work of divers difficult, but the Russian government is hopeful the treasure of gold eventually will be retrieved.

A federal order has been issued instructing prohibition agents in New York to confine their purchase of liquor evidence to the less expensive drinks, such as gin or whiskey, selling from 50 cents to a dollar a drink, and to refrain from buying champagne and other of the more expensive drinks.

ANNOUNCEMENTS

Percy Grainger in Westerly

The concert by the eminent composer-pianist, Percy Grainger, which is to occur Wednesday in Westerly under the auspices of the Westerly Music club, is attracting much interest in this locality where there are many admirers of this inspiring artist. A Grainger concert is always a treat, but the program announced for his Westerly concert is particularly interesting. Numbers include the Fantasia and fugue in G minor, Bach, the Chopin B minor sonata, two numbers by Cyril Scott, two compositions by Grainger himself, the Liszt Liebestraum and an Oriental Phantasy by Balakirew. Tickets for the event are on sale at Cranstons.

Broadway Theater

Citizens of Norwich have never before been granted the opportunity of seeing a more vivid, gripping drama of contrasts than Lorraine of the Lions, Universal-Jewel production starring Norman Kerry, now showing at the Broadway theater.

Tearing down the rapid current of the narrative the spectator is time and again caught in heart-stopping whirlpools of suspense, sitting taut in his seat as the drama unfolds.

The story concerns the daughter of a circus owner. The ship is wrecked and all hands perish save little Lorraine and many of the circus animals. Twelve years are passed in the jungle of a South Sea island, where Bimi, a giant gorilla, acts as bodyguard to the girl, saving her from savages once and from an alligator in her favorite swimming pool on another occasion.

Back in civilization, the girl's grandfather still believes the girl is alive. A young Englishman, who has studied Yogi philosophy, sees her in his crystal and they set out despite the objection of a cousin, who had hoped to inherit the old man's fortune. It need not be said that the picture is crowded with thrills.

The cast supporting Norman Kerry, with Patsy Ruth Miller, includes Fred Humes, Joseph J. Dowling, Philo McCullough, Harry Todd, Doreen Turner and Jack Goodrich. The story was written by Isadore Bernstein and was directed by Edward Sedgwick.

Other features include a very funny comedy and up to date Kinograms, giving the news of the world at a glance.

At the Breed

A star's work is never done.

Norma Shearer no more than starts work in one picture than she begins the search for a story suitable for her next production.

As soon as Miss Shearer started His Secretary, the Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer picture playing at the Breed theater, she started a search for another story to follow.

Miss Shearer is trying to find stories that will allow her a definite opportunity for character drawing. Her Lady of the Night, The Tower of Lies, He Who Gets Slapped, A Slave of Fashion have all been widely divergent, and in His Secretary, Norma hides all her natural beauty under the makeup of an old-maid stenographer in the first two reels.

Lew Cody is appearing with Miss Shearer in His Secretary, and the supporting cast includes Willard Louis, Mabel Van Buren, Karl Dane, Gwen Lee, Estelle Clark and Ernest Gillen. The picture was directed by Hobart Henley and was written by Carey Wilson.

Stock Offering by Underwriters' Co

The new issue of preferred A stock of the Underwriters Finance Company of Hartford recently authorized by vote of stockholders, is now being offered for public subscription by Paine, Webber & Co.

The stock is entitled to receive dividends of 7 per cent per annum cumulative from February 1, 1926 and stock purchase warrants are attached, which entitle the holder of each share to subscribe for two shares of the $25 par value common stock at $50 per share, on or before December 31, 1927; at $55 per share on or before December 31, 1928; and at $60 per share on or before December 31, 1929.

The Underwriters Finance Co. which was organized June 1, 1921 and started business with a paid in capital of $2,500, has had a rapid growth, the outstanding capital, including present financing, having now grown to $750,000, and the business having grown from small proportions at the start, to a total gross of $3,761,534 for the year 1925. Gross business for 1925 showed an increase of more than 106 per cent over 1924, and 1924 an increase of more than 171 per cent over 1923. Net profits of $71,190.70 were reported for the year 1925, that amount being more than 3 1-4 times the dividend requirements on the entire issue of new preferred A stock, but earned without the use of the increased capital, which is now provided.

The company has been under the known and responsible automobile dealers in the state of Connecticut, and also does an insurance agency business, and operates under a plan of finance which has been carefully worked out and which safeguards its own investment to such an extent, that a total business amounting to $6,997,483.59 is reported to have been transacted thus far without a single unrecoverable loss.

The company ha sbeen under the same management as at present since the business was started, present officers being: Franklin A. Morley, president; Walter L. Wakefield, vice-president; George I. Watson, vice president-secretary; Paul F. Schutt, treasurer-assistant secretary; Myron L. Baldwin, assistant treasurer; Ernest G. Fritz, assistant treasurer.

ANNOUNCEMENTS

Broadway Hits at Capitol, Willimantic

Responding to the popularity of stock company productions Manager George A. Bartlett of the new Capitol theatre, Willimantic, has booked the well known Chicago Stock Company for the entire week beginning March 1. The Chicago company is now on its thirtieth annual tour and this week is playing to capacity houses in Middletown, repeating a most successful run in Danbury.

The best and most recent Broadway hits have been selected for the week. A new play will be presented every night, each production being delightfully different in plot from the other. Twenty accomplished actors and actresses appear with the company, the scenic arrangements for the plays has been a matter of notable comment. The stage scenes will arrive here in two full carloads and make up one of the most complete equipment of settings ever displayed in this city. The representative of the company was highly pleased on his visit here to find that the extensive stage space in the Capitol theatre would allow for the display of this scenery at an advantage. Popular prices of admission will prevail during the week.

Conn. College Concert

Jacques Thibaud, the noted French violinist, will be heard in a particularly pleasing program when he plays at Bulkeley auditorium, New London, this (Tuesday) evening under auspices of Connecticut college. The program, selected with care and taste, will serve to display the remarkable ability of the artist to the utmost.

Thibaud comes here as a special and added attraction in the course and patrons are requested to make sure that they do not confuse the tickets for this concert with those of the regular course and present the right ones at the door. The program for the concert follows:

1. Sonato No. 1 — Gabriel Faure
   Allegro Molto
   Andante
   Allegro Vivace
2. La Folia (variations) — Corelli (17th Century)
3. Concerto, D Major, No. 2 — Max Bruch
4. (a) Prelude, C Minor — J. S. Bach
   (b) Tambourin — Rambeau-Kreisler
   (c) Valse — Brahms-Hochstein
   (d) Dondo — Mozart-Kreisler

Jules Godard at the piano.

Palace Theater

Contrast in settings make for vivid motion picture productions, in the opinion of Priscilla Bonner, who plays the heroine, or rather one of the heroines, in the Associated Arts drama, "Drusilla with a Million," the motion picture version of Elizabeth Cooper's famous novel which is now playing the Palace theater.

"I like a picture in which the contrast of poverty and wealth is marked," says the little actress. "Particularly one which makes its poor characters rich in the end. That is Romance with a Capital "R," and it adds a lot to the vividness of the production. It is a peculiarly interesting and delightful situation to take an old lady who has been a charity charge and imagine what she would do if suddenly left a million dollars. That is what Miss Cooper has done so brilliantly with "Drusilla." The unexpected acquisition of a cool million by anybody is great Drama, and it is unusually effective when it provides the sympathetic character study that this play does."

The life of Sally May, played by Miss Bonner, parallels in a way that of Drusilla, interpreted by Mary Carr. While she does not end up with so much money she finds comparative wealth, happiness and a reunion with her young husband; while the charitable little old old lady who was once an object of charity herself continues to do good with her new found riches.

"Hogan's Alley," the Gregory Rogers story which Warner Bros., have picturized and which is opening at the Palace theater on Thursday with Monte Blue in the stellar role, was directed by Roy Del Ruth, and has a remarkable supporting cast that includes Patsy Ruth Miller, Willard Louis, Louise Fazenda, Nigel Barrie, Mary Carr, Max Davidson, Ben Turpin and others.

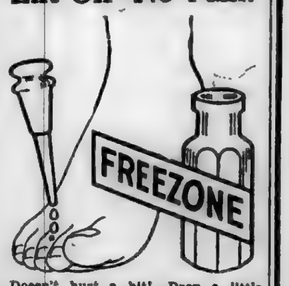
The story, laid in the old Bowery atmosphere of New York of twenty years ago, concerns the romance of a little Irish girl and a young prize-fighter, which a rich doctor and the girl's father attempt to end. The young man's famous left hand is injured in his rescue of his sweetheart, and makes fighting an impossibility. He wins the girl, however, and turns to plumbing for a livelihood; and they go back to the simple folks of the alley to find happiness.

This screen production adapted by Darryl Francis Zanuck, has been acclaimed by critics in other cities, as one of the most humanly fascinating comedy-melodramas ever filmed.

Without enthusiasm nothing very great can be accomplished.

CORNS

Lift Off—No Pain!



Doesn't hurt a bit! Drop a little "Freezone" on any aching corn, callus or "hardskin" on bottom of feet. Instantly it stops hurting, then shortly you lift it right off with fingers.

Your druggist sells a tiny bottle of "Freezone" for a few cents, sufficient to remove every hard corn, soft corn, or corn between the toes, and the foot calluses, without soreness or irritation.

DRUSILLA WITH A MILLION

The One Picture in a "Million"

—FEATURING—

MARY CARR and KENNETH HARLAN

All the clutching heart appeal of "Humoresque"—the whimsical humor of "Lightnin'"—the speed of a Juggernaut—the pound—pound—pound—of big drama that fails with the smash of a giant trip-hammer! A little old lady seared to the soul by the harshness of her charity home—inherits a million and adopts a houseful of babies! Imagine the heart appeal of such a character! Imagine the stark drama of her wasted life brought to glorious fulfilment! Imagine the quaint humor of such a story that came from the soul of one of the really great woman writers of the day—Elizabeth Cooper.

Tailless Sheep

The South Dakota Agricultural college at Brookings has developed a tailless sheep. It has taken 10 years to produce this ovine specimen, a modifications of Russian type of poor conformation and low-grade wool to one that has both wool and mutton carcass recommendations. J. H. Wilson, head of the animal husbandry department tells of his experiment in the South Dakota Farmer, and it is one of the most interesting experiments ever conducted. The principal object was to produce a good wool and mutton type lamb that would not have to be docked. The principal points are:

N. E. Hansen, horticulturalist of the college, scouting for plants in Siberia in 1913, purchased four ewes and two lambs, known as the fat rump tailless sheep. He sent them to Dakota. These animals, because of a prominent lump of fat on the hip, would not make a desirable mutton carcass, and the wool was thin and hairy.

The first year ewes of the Shropshire, Rambouillet and Hampshire breeds were crossed with the Russian rams. Fairly good cross-breeds were born, some with short tails, some with long and all showing a fat rump.

Two additional rams were imported, and the system of crossing with successive offspring, tails becoming shorter each year, until last year the desired mutton and wool tailless type lambs came. Of this year's lambing there were 18 lambs whose tails did not require docking.

The ram lambs this fall will be crossed with western ewes to determine how the tailless type will hold on a first cross. It is claimed that the tailless lambs are more vigorous and develop more rapidly than native United States breeds of sheep.

A lamb's tail is an uncommercial appendage, and undocked lambs offered on the market receive a liberal price discrimination. The Dakota experiment is a search along the line of a probability.

Columbia University Student Becomes High Priest

COPYRIGHT, UNDERWOOD & UNDERWOOD, N. Y.

Jal Dastur C. Pavry, Ph. D., who recently sailed from New York en route for Bombay, India, to become High Priest of the Parsees the spiritual head of a million of India's most cultured natives. For the past four years he has been studying at Columbia University, New York City, and although only 26 years old, received his Ph. D., for a thesis on his religion. "Jal," as his fellow students call him, will become the head of the Parsees because his father is dying in Bombay, and may be dead before his son arrives, his body being placed atop the "Tower of Silence," where vultures will eat the flesh, leaving the bones to be spirited over "Chinvad," the bridge to heaven.

POETRY

Don Quixote

Gaunt, rueful knight, on raw-boned shambling hack,
Thy battered morion, shield and rusty spear,
Jog ever down the road in strange career,
Both tears and laughter following on thy track,
Stout Sancho hard behind, whose leathern back
Is curved in clownish sufferance, mutual cheer
The quest beguiling as devoid of fear,
Thou spurnest to rid the world of regnes, Alack!
Despite fantastic creed and addled pate,
Of awkward arms and weight of creaking steel,
Nobility is thine—the high estate
That arms knights errant for all human weal;
How rare, La Mancha, grow such souls of late,—
Dear, folied enthusiast, teach our hearts to feel!
—Craven Longstreth Betts.

Dawn in New Zealand

Where burned the fierce volcanic fires in ages gone
Mystic and hushed beneath the brooding sky,
The steep slope stands outlined against the dawn,
While through the somber trees the chill winds sigh.

The southern cross below the horizon's rim
Sinks and is gone, and in the pallid light,
The stars of these far latitudes grow dim,
While yet in sheltered places still 'tis night.

And as from out the mists the new day wakes,
And to the world, once more, life's conflict rings,
Far overhead a song exultant breaks,
Where an ecstatic skylark soars and sings.

'Tis the first voice to greet the distant sun,
Whose rays o'er voice leagues of ocean westward sweep,
Here, where their waiting tasks not yet begun,
The weary, lonely and the sad still sleep.

Like some pure note of quenchless faith divine,
It thrills the soul it stirs from fitful rest,
And lo! dull sorrows with Hope's radiance shine,
And those who knew despair with peace are blest.
—Mary H. Krout.

HUMOR OF THE DAY

It seems strange that those who profess so much knowledge of the next world know so little about this one. —Columbia Jester.

Barber—Ah—you shave yourself, I see.

Customer—No, sir! I was thrown through the windshield of an auto yesterday.—Answers.

Is your hearing good? asked the woman of the fish dealer.

Mam?

Your herring—is it good?

No, ma'am, he replied. I'm very deaf.—Punch.

Did you open the windows wide?

You bet I did! Pulled the top half all the way down and pushed the bottom half all the way up.—Wesleyan Wasp.

A fellow just told me I looked like you.

Where is he? I'd like to knock his block off.

I killed him.—Notre Dame Juggler.

Drop in and spend the evening some time, old man. We've got a wonderful radio.

That's fine. We do not have a set at our house.

Then what do you say my wife and I come to see you?—Life.

The track supervisor of a western road received the following note from one of his track foremen:

"I am sending in the accident report on Casey's foot when he struck it with the spike maul. Now, under 'Remarks,' do you want mine or do you want Casey's?"—Everybody's.

"Johnny," said the landlady to her son, "I wish you'd eat in the kitchen, instead of with the boarders.

"Don't they care for my company?" asked the boy.

"Oh, yes, but your appetite sets them a terrible example."—The Progressive Grocer.

In America, one dodges automobiles, but in Copenhagen it is the bicycles. During working hours, the streets are alive with cyclists and in one day as many as 514,826 were counted in various points in the city. While motor cars are increasing in number, the bicycles are increasing at a greater rate.

Americans having occasion to write to Russia are reminded by the soviet government that communications addressed simply "Russia" are in danger of being returned. The proper designation of Russia and the other states comprising the soviet federation is "N. S. S. R.," which means "Union of Socialistic Soviet Republics." The government apparently wishes to eliminate the word "Russia" from the present-day vocabulary as being too limited in scope and as suggestive of an area formerly under the domination of the czar.

Efforts to preserve the picturesque rickshaw from extinction, due to the increased popularity of automobiles in Japan, prompted the Tokio prefectural government to announce that hereafter rickshaw men would be exempted

BUILDING OPERATIONS IN NORWICH

Building as far as the issuing of new permits goes is flat in Norwich. During the past three weeks not a single permit has been granted at the office of Fire Marshal Howard L. Stanton. This is the first time in nearly fifteen years when there has been no permits granted during the first three weeks in February. There is only one application on hand at the present time and that being for permission to alter the front of a present dwelling house into a store front.

Contractors report that building is beginning to slacken and that little new work is being undertaken outside of a few alteration jobs. The painters are practically without work except the interior workers. Brick and stone masons report a slack period which is due largely to the weather conditions as well as the lack of new building.

Contractor P. F. Sweeney has started work on the building at the corner of Willow and Franklin streets formerly occupied by C. Y. Pendleton. The work on this building will be largely alteration work and the contractor is engaged in tearing out the interior.

The Sheltering Arms is well along and work has reached a stage where the weather does not effect it. Other buildings nearing the completion stage are advancing as the weather permits.

REAL ESTATE SALES AND MORTGAGE LOANS

In Norwich during the past week there were seven sales of real estate as compared to four sales for the corresponding week in 1925. The mortgage loans for the respective weeks were $54,725 and $35,512.

There were eight sales of real estate in New London during the past week two more than for the same week a year ago. The mortgage loans for the respective weeks were $37,080 and $44,400.

Building Conditions in Connecticut

Connecticut has not fared so well as some other sections of the country this year so far as building activity is concerned. During January some of the leading building centers suffered losses as compared with last year although, in the aggregate the state's construction costs were in excess of January, 1925. During recent weeks the extremely stormy conditions were responsible for a decided slowing up of building operations in this state. In the cities and towns covered by the Commercial Record, the total number of permits issued during the past week was 83 as compared with 139 for the like week a year ago. But a more conclusive illustration of the slump in new construction work is shown by the estimated cost of building started, the week's total being $321,256 as against $1,155,954 for the same period last year. The feeling prevails among the leading architects and builders, however, that the building situation in Connecticut shows signs of real strength, the present lack of activity being due almost entirely to the recent snowstorms. There is a considerable amount of contemplated building indicated in plans now being prepared, most of which is held in abeyance on account of the weather uncertainties. Business buildings officers and theaters seem to rank first among the new work planned but there is also a satisfactory amount of residential construction in prospect.

Building Material Prices

January witnessed an unexpected check in the upward movement of building material prices due, in part, to the prevention of progress in construction by unfavorable weather conditions. Some local regions, namely Kansas City and Dallas, showed definite downward reactions.

Structural steel shapes remained firm in all centers but steel plates declined slightly at Pittsburgh and Birmingham. Portland cement was also firm, excepting at Dallas where the price was slightly lower than last month. Lumber prices generally continued to rise, especially southern pine items. Price movements in the sanitary materials markets were varied. Gravel and crushed stone declined at Kansas City, but the price of the latter increased at Atlanta and Los Angeles. Sand prices rose in New York. Linseed oil declined at New York and Chicago. Due to the coal strike there has been a slump in the manufacture of brick in the New York area. This has resulted in an increase in price from $18.50 to $20.40 per thousand delivered or from $12.25 to $17.25 at the dock.

On the whole the January materials market was characterized by many conflicting local tendencies and an absence of the marked strength noted in December.

Tabulating of Building Permits

The following tabulation of new building and alteration permits of the cities in the state shows the comparison for January 1926 with January 1925:

	1926	1925
Bristol	$24,900	$69,900
Bridgeport	136,066	312,349
Danbury	* 35,800	3,210
Hartford	459,393	1,196,533
Meriden (15%)	48,625	42,750
Middletown	65,700	9,850
New Britain	452,430	485,355
New Haven	606,486	505,319
New London	27,500	32,800
Norwalk	279,939	61,647
Norwich (15%)	7,850	31,085
Stamford	94,200	89,245
Torrington	9,300	2,000
Waterbury	246,200	273,800
W. Hartford	204,285	237,510
State Totals	2,698,924	3,278,873

Note—(%) after names of cities indicates estimated percentage of undervaluation which should be added to arrive at real value or cost.

New London

The permit has been issued to Jenson & Olson for a dwelling on Gardner avenue to cost $5,000. The house will be two stories high, of frame construction, arranged for one family. The carpentry work will be done by the owners.

Plans have been completed for the remodeling of the first story of the building at the corner of Truman and Bank streets for Joseph Gentilleio, of that address. The owner will receive bids for the work. The first floor will be entirely rebuilt and the building raised about 4 feet. The walls will be of tapestry brick and imitation granite trim. There will be new plumbing and electric wiring, tile floors and entrances and plate glass and copper store fronts. The changes will provide three stores on the ground floor.

Plans have been secured by Alfred M. Heaton for a house and garage on Gardner avenue. The house will be 22-29 feet, of frame construction. It will be arranged for one family with all conveniences. The combined cost of the house and garage will be about $5,400.

The contract has been awarded to the H. Wales Lines Co., Mercer building, State street, for an addition to that building for Frederick W. Mercer, Mercer building. From private plans the addition will be of brick and steel construction, with a frontage of 35 feet and 34 feet on Meridian street. It will be arranged for stores on the first floor and offices on the upper floors. The depth from State street will be 118 feet and the section fronting on Meridian street will be 76 feet deep. The exterior walls will be of face brick with marble base and terra cotta trim. There will be an addition to the present steam heating system, tile corridors and entrances, linoleum covered floors, plate glass and copper store fronts and all other improvements.

Plans have been completed and are now being figured for a business building on Bank street, extending through to Blinman street, for the New London Banana Supply Co., 48 Golden street. Bids for the proposed construction are now being received by the architect. The building will be two stories high with a basement of brick and steel construction. The first floor will be arranged for the owner's banana supply business and the second floor will be designed for use as a garage or loft. A steel and concrete ramp will lead from Blinman street to the second floor. There will be a tar and gravel roof, tapestry brick fronts with granite trim, modern plumbing and a steam heating plant.

The permit for an addition and for alterations to a building recently moved from 88 Parkway to Lower Boulevard, has been issued to Meyer Hollandersky, 154 State street. The cost of the work will be about $1,000. The construction will be done by day labor.

Building Permits

M. H. Hollandersky, addition and alterations, Lower Boulevard, $1,000.

Alfred M. Heaton, cottage and garage, Gardiner avenue, $5,400.

Bartolucci Bros., sun porch, 42 Central avenue, $300.

Jensen & Olson, frame cottage, Gardner avenue, $5,000.

Number of permits for the week, 6; estimated cost of buildings, $11,850.

SEVEN BUILDING PERMITS GRANTED IN WESTERLY

(Special to The Bulletin.)

WESTERLY, Feb. 22—With continued adverse weather for building purposes, so far as out door construction is concerned, Westerly Zoning inspector Louis J. Reisel has had business transacted through his office.

Permits have been granted as follows:

Feb. 3—W. A Morse, Holyoke, Mass., erect cottage house, 26x28 feet two and a half stories on Atlantic avenue, Pleasant View Beach. Lewis S. McNeil, contractor.

Feb. 5—Mrs. Frances Griscom, Watch Hill, garage on Griscom property at Watch Hill, 14x20 feet, by taking one on grounds, turning around, and adding a new one. Lewis McNeil, contractor.

Feb. 10—C. A. Griscom, Philadelphia and Watch Hill. Addition to present garage near lighthouse point, 10x16 feet to make a two-car garage. Lewis McNeil, contractor.

Feb. 12—Elvira M. Perry, East avenue. Reshingle house on all exterior surfaces and build small platform in rear, no change being made in exterior dimensions of building. George W. Spear, contractor.

Feb. 12—Bradford Dying association, Bradford, R. I., erect direction sign, 25x31 B. D. A., 5 miles, at northeast corner of Oak and High streets, and, back of building line. Frank G. Ahern, sign works.

Feb. 15—Catherine J. Thomson of Bradford, R. I., at Bradford, R. I., on land of Catherine J. Thomson 28x26 feet, into garage for three cars, one for commercial and accessory use. Alexander H. Thomson, contractor.

Feb. 20—Mrs. James H. Denham, 73 Bowling Lane, Bradford, R. I., erect one-car garage 10x14 feet on Lot No. 73, Bowling Lane, Bradford, R. I.

From plans prepared by architects and engineers, bids are being received by Max Novorrosky of Westerly, for a store and office building in Westerly, R. I. The building, which will be known as the State Line building, will be 60x50 feet, two stories high, of semi-fireproof construction, with a brick veneer finish, wood studs and asbestos sheathing. There will be six stores on the ground floor and 12 offices on the second floor. Plate glass fronts and other improvements will be provided.

Danielson

The plans for the addition to the Danielson High school, are ready for figures, bids to be in at the superintendent's office at the high school March 10. The addition will be two stories high, of brick construction, containing a gymnasium, an auditorium and from 10 to 12 classrooms. The following will figure the general contract: Clark Construction Co., Waterbury; O. L. Weidmann, 280 Madison avenue, New York City; La Riviere & Hyland, Waterbury; J. F. Fenton Co., New Haven; F. T. Lalibert & Son, Southbridge, Mass.; Peck McWilliams Co., Norwich; the Immick Co., Meriden; the Lawrence & Coe Construction Co., Hartford and W. S. Spencer, Norwich.

Niantic

The state board of control has approved the awarding of the contract to Insterstate Construction Co., New Haven for the erection of the dormitory building at the State Farm for Women, here. The successful bid was for about $40,000. The building will be of brick, semi-fireproof construction, two stories and basement.

LOCAL PEOPLE RECEIVING INCOME TAX FORMS

The 1926 income tax forms are being received by people in Norwich and must be filed not later than March 15th. This year the personal exemption for single men has been increased from $1,000 to $1,500, the exemption for married men has been increased to $3,500 with $400 for dependents. Under Section 216, credits allowed individuals, the new tax law says:

Sec. 216. For the purpose of the normal tax only there shall be allowed the following credits:

(a) The amount received as dividends (1) from a domestic corporation other than a corporation entitled to the benefits of section 262, and other than a corporation organized under the China Trade Act, 1922, or (2) from a foreign corporation when it is shown to the satisfaction of the commissioner that more than 50 per centum of the gross income of such foreign corporation for the three-year period ending with the close of its taxable year preceding the declaration of such dividends (or for such part of such period as the corporation has been in existence) was derived from sources within the United States as determined under the provisions of section 217;

(b) The amount received as interest upon obligations of the United States which is included in gross income under section 213;

(c) In the case of a single person, a personal exemption of $1,500; or in the case of the head of a family or a married person living with husband or wife, a personal exemption of $3,500. A husband and wife living together shall receive but one personal exemption. The amount of such personal exemption shall be $3,500. If such husband and wife make separate returns, the personal exemption may be taken by either or divided between them.

(d) $400 for each person (other than husband or wife) dependent upon and receiving his chief support from the taxpayer if such dependent person is under 18 years of age or is incapable of self-support because mentally or physically defective.

(e) In the case of a nonresident alien individual or of a citizen entitled to the benefits of section 262, the personal exemption shall be only $1,500. The credit provided in subdivision (d) shall not be allowed in the case of a nonresident alien individual unless he is a resident of a contiguous country, nor in the case of a citizen entitled to the benefits of section 262.

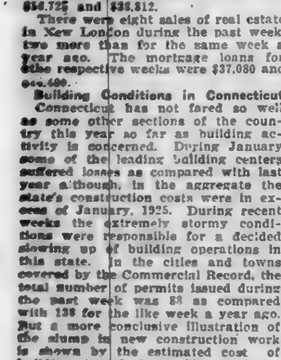
(f) (1) The credits allowed by subdivisions (d) and (e) of this section shall be determined by the status of the taxpayer on the last of his taxable year.

(2) The credit allowed by subdivision (c) of this section shall, in case the status of the taxpayer changes during his taxable year, be the sum of (A) an amount which bears the same ratio to $1,500 as the number of months during which the taxpayer was single bears to 12 months, plus (B) an amount which bears the same ratio to $3,500 as the number of months during which the taxpayer was a married person living with husband or wife or was the head of a family bears to 12 months. For the purposes of this paragraph a fractional part of a month shall be disregarded unless it amounts to more than half a month, in which case it shall be considered as a month.

(3) In the case of an individual who dies during the taxable year, the credits allowed by subdivisions (c) (d), and (e) shall be determined by his status at the time of his death, and in such case full credits shall be allowed to the surviving spouse, if any, according to his or her status at the close of the taxabee year.

Many Dogs in Berlin

Recent returns from the dog taxes show that 218,000 dogs are kept in Berlin. The annual tax is 70 marks yearly for one dog and 140 marks for the second. The taxes are soon to be increased. There are nearly twice as many dogs in Berlin now as there were before the World war, despite the increased cost of living.



Suffered for years with acute rheumatism

HAD RHEUMATISM FOR YEARS— FOUND HELP AT LAST

Tells how simple home treatment brought relief

Thousands of rheumatic sufferers who have tried remedy after remedy in vain, report that they have got quick, complete relief from a very simple home treatment.

"I have suffered with acute rheumatism for years," writes a man from Winchester, N. H. "After having tried various remedies, Sloan's Liniment was recommended to me, and it stopped the pain. I am quite old—past sixty years."

A little Sloan's patted on lightly—and a healing tide of fresh, germ-destroying blood is sent tingling through pain-ridden tissues. No rubbing! The medicine itself does the work.

Soon the swelling and inflammation go down. The aching stops. Almost suddenly you find yourself really free from pain, really comfortable at last. Get a bottle today and have it on hand. All druggists—35 cents.

NORWICH DOINGS 75 YEARS AGO

Norwich people, with all other Americans, were relieved to learn of the safe arrival at Cork Harbor of the steamship Atlantic, lost since Dec. 28th, 1850.

News of the week as taken in part from the Norwich Courier of 1851 is as follows:

Tuesday, February 18, 1851—Yesterday, the 17th, was the birthday of our oldest resident, Capt. Erastus Perkins, for on that day he completed his ninety ninth year. Many friends called on him during the day to wish him a happy "new year." Capt. Perkins is still able to get about nicely and bids fair to remain among us for years to come.

Railroad fares throughout most of the New England lines are about 2 1-2 cents per mile, some running below this and some as high as three cents. The passenger fare between Albany and Buffalo, a distance of 327 miles, has now been reduced to $6.60, a trifle over two cents a mile. Other roads are expected to follow suit and drop the rate to a corresponding level.

The Royal Mail steamer Africa has come in bringing the good news of the safe arrival in port of the steamship Atlantic, now safe in Cork harbor.

The Atlantic left Liverpool on the 29th of December in fine steaming condition. She passed Cape Clear on the 29th plunging at once into a heavy sea and on January 6th the accident occurred to her engines causing them to be stopped. The ship was at once hove to under storm canvas, the wheels lashed, and all hands employed day and night in sending up her square yards and stripping her wheels of floats, a dangerous task. By the 9th the wind became moderate and the ship made sail for Halifax which was 897 miles distant and New York 1,400. On the 10th the ship was 180 miles south and 70 miles west of her position at the time of the accident.

Unable to reach home Captain West decided to bear up for the coast of Europe. From this time until the 22nd gales and high seas were encountered but the ship averaged 150 miles a day for the run of 1,500 miles and the ship finally reached Cork Harbor.

The Africa brought her mail and passengers to this country but the Atlantic will be laid up for repairs for fully three months.

Thursday, February 29, 1851— Mob violence broke out in Boston this week when a fugitive slave was arrested and taken to the jail. Several hundred negroes quietly surrounded the jail and cut off escape from every street, then mobbed the jail and beat down the officers. The prisoner was released and is reported now as nearing Canada. This mob violence on the part of the negroes has stirred up a storm of protest and punishment will be meted out speedily to the fing leaders.

A Swede living in Cleveland claims to be a cousin of Jenny Lind, the Swedish nightingale, and says that her name was Lindenberg. Her father, he said, had to drop off the last two sections for political reasons. Norwich people are glad to hear this for Jenny Lind sounds much nicer to the ear than Lindenberg.

The Panama railroad has now been graded and is ready for the rails, from Navy Bay to Gatoon. Gold dust is still found in the isthmus and the roads are reported to be in good condition.

Saturday, February 22, 1851— The ship Houqua, McKenzie, arrived in New York Thursday evening from Shanghai, China, November 23rd, 88 days, being the shortest passage yet made from that port to this. The Houqua, says the Journal of Commerce, left New York for San Francisco on the 14th of March, was six weeks there, and has made the voyage around the world in 11 months and 5 days.

We learn from New York that subscriptions to the Bank of Metropolis were $500,000 in the first hour of the opening of the books.

A former New Jersey man who purchased 150 acres of land in California grossed $211,800 in sales last year, all from potatoes, onions, cabbages and pumpkins. He has recently purchased ten miles of wire fence at a cost of $10,600 and has ordered 21 plows. This year he is to cultivate 400 acres with barley and 400 acres with potatoes.

We learn from Providence that the bill to authorize the City of Providence to guarantee the bonds of the Plainfield railroad to the amount of $500,000, passed the house on Tuesday. The amendment to require two thirds of three fifths was rejected 27 to 37.

HOW LOCAL MEN DEVELOPED WASTE LAND

With reference to the development of waste land on a Norwich farm, E. W. Knipe, agricultural engineer at Connecticut Agricultural college, writes as follows:

Connecticut farmers are giving more attention this year to meandering streams which often make useless much good land because of the time consumed in preparing it for planting. Such was the case on the farm of the Blackner Brothers, near Norwich. A small stream entered their boundary line exactly in a fence corner which separated their land from a neighbor's. Near its entry the brook was diverted by slightly rising ground so that it flowed away from the boundary fence line and took a meandering course out over a meadow, finally returning to the fence line at a point about 600 feet downstream. Approximately an acre and a half of very good land between the stream and the fence was useless.

The Blacker boys puzzled about straightening the stream but any way known to them entailed too much expense. One day they spoke of the problem to their friend and advisor, of U. S. department of agriculture and the Connecticut Agricultural college in New London County. It was later decided to straighten the stream by blasting as the cost seemed ridiculously low. A public demonstration was scheduled and a goodly number of interested spectators appeared. Many remarks were heard such as "Well! I'd rather shovel it all out than have to shovel what the dynamite leaves," and, "I'd hate to pay for all that dynamite for some one else to experiment with."

A casual inspection of this land resulted in the thought that this ditch could be shot by propagation, but the idea was soon given up. In drilling holes for the dynamite considerable trouble was encountered about a foot under the surface which would have interrupted the shock. Consequently the entire length of the ditch was primed with No. 6 electric exploders, placed one in every hole. The holes were made in a single line, two feet apart, and drilled approximately three and one-half feet deep, allowance being made for undulations in the contour of the land. Three stocks of 60 per cent straight dynamite were loaded into each hole, the stick carrying the electric exploders being placed in the middle of the three.

Four shots in all were used to complete the ditch. The first of about 75 feet was exploded at the upstream end of the ditch. This length took the ditch through the little rise of ground which had been diverting the water out onto the meadow and was really the trial shot to see that the method being used was correct. Another reason for making this shot at the upper end of the ditch was for collecting the water from the stream for flushing the completed ditch. The remaining shots were then loaded and touched off in approximately 175 foot lengths, and beginning at the downstream end of the ditch.

After the final shot was fired all the spectators made a rush for the ditch. Most of them were not equipped with rubber shoes nor boots, but they waded in regardless of clothes or shoes There were the six hundred feet of the ditch completely opened and being rapidly cleaned of whatever loose material had fallen back after the shot. The water stored after the first shot took every loose piece of dirt with it. The Blacker boys said they could not have used a shovel on it if they had wanted to because there was nothing to shovel.

The entire cost for the job, including dynamite, electric exploders and labor of four men for the day was slightly under 23 cents per running foot of ditch for a ditch 600 feet long, varying from three to five feet deep, approximately two feet wide on the bottom and six feet wide on top.

The agricultural engineer at the Connecticut Agricultural college is always available for giving advice free of charge to anyone in the state who might have a similar or, any other kind of drainage problems.

ALL·ROADS· LEAD·FROM·ROME

"ALL roads lead to Rome" was the proud boast of that ancient empire. Today, FROM every city and town, telephone highways lead TO every other city and town in this country. Preceding advertisements in this series have described the various telephone roads your voice may travel.

The A-B TOLL call, which is handled by your local operator, is available to places shown on page 9 of your Telephone Directory.

The STATION-TO-STATION TOLL call is another NUMBER. It is recommended for use to places not reached by the A-B TOLL method.

The PERSON-TO-PERSON TOLL call gives you—at somewhat higher rates—communication with the INDIVIDUAL (or department or extension) you name to the Toll Operator.

More detailed explanation of these classes of toll telephone service will be found on pages 4 to 7 of the Telephone Directory.

A folder has also been printed describing toll telephone usage, and you may obtain a copy at our local business office. You will find it helpful in making out-of-town calls.

Succeeding advertisements in this paper will give actual instances in which toll telephone service has proved its value to many businesses right here in Connecticut. From them you may get an idea which will be useful in YOUR business.

OLD UNKNOWN ITALIAN INDUSTRIES ARE SOUGHT

To discover unknown Italian industries, some of which have been in operation for centuries, in part of the work of the National Confederation for Little Industries organized this year. Some of the discoveries have been impressive. Charming pottery decorated with traditional peasant designs, furniture of antique type pieced together, carpets, shawls and lace made by peasants in their homes—these are a few of the things of high artistic value that to some extent have been put on the market by the confederation or by its local committees.

The confederation is extending to all Italy the work done by the association for Venetian work, which, through years of patient labor, discovered the little industries of the Venetian region, established credit to the workers and organized selling agencies. It limits itself to individual handicraft or small shop work where the employer works with his apprentices. When it finds a fine handicraft tradition about to die it revives it by instruction and encouragement. When it finds able craftsman working with tasteless design it seeks to persuade them to adopt beautiful traditional designs. The individual, the local and the traditional are preserved—wherever it is beautiful.

TWO PATRIOTIC PLAYS AT CONN. COLLEGE

Two Yale chronicle plays were given in the Connecticut College gymnasium on Monday evening, at seven o'clock. The first was a Revolutionary play entitled Yorktown and the second was the Frontier Woman.

The action for Yorktown was photographed on a portion of the orginal battlefield of Yorktown, where trained soldiers duplicated the action of the original British battle led by Cornwallis against the Americans under General Washington.

The Frontier Woman reveals the courage and fortitude of the American pioneer woman, and the part played by them in the making of the nation. It relates the story of the settlement of Watauga in the mountains of Tennessee in 1780. All friends of the college were invited to attend.

Following the game on Saturday afternoon there was a tea held for the returning alumnae in the faculty room of the library by the New London chapter of the Connecticut college alumnae. Guests were received by Mrs. Courtland A. Palmer, Miss Mildred A. White and Miss Emily Warner, officers of the chapter, President and Mrs. Benjamin T. Marshall and Miss Agnes Leahy, president of the Alumnae association. Miss Katherine Troland, chairman of the entertainment committee of the local chapter was assisted by Miss Dorothy Henkle and Miss Margaret Heyer in preparations for the tea.

Monday morning at eleven o'clock there was an alumnae meeting, and at 1 p. m. a luncheon at Colonial house.

THAMES STREET WOMAN HELD ON LIQUOR CHARGE

On evidence of actual sale of liquor Rosa DeStefano, Italian, 30, was arrested Monday night at her home, No. 86 Thames street by the local police, on a charge of violation of the liquor law. In default of bonds she was held at police headquarters over night. Her case will come up this (Tuesday) morning in the police court. The arrest was made by Sergeant Matthew Delaney, and Officers Quinn and P. Murphy.

NORWICH HAD 415 AUTO ACCIDENTS AND 132 CONVICTIONS LAST YEAR

According to a statement issued by Robbins B. Stoeckel, commissioner of motor vehicles for this state, there were 415 motor vehicle accidents in Norwich during the year 1925. Motor vehicle arrests in Norwich during the year resulted in 132 convictions for various infractions of the motor vehicle laws. Norwich drivers to the number of 113 had their licenses suspended for various reasons and five complaints were received by the motor vehicle department.

The following table shows the motor vehicle record of towns in eastern Connecticut during the year 1925:

Under the heading Another Year's Damage Done By Autos, Commissioner Stoeckel says:

A state can work for the prevention of motor vehicle accidents along two general lines of effort. One is to cause its highways and streets to be laid out and built in accordance with the principles of safety so that there will be upon them no unusually difficult places where motorists might be caught. The ultimate object of highway safety engineering is to make so good a situs for traffic participants that those who are of fair average ability will be able to go through successfully without danger. The other is to forward as much as possible and by all means at its disposal the education of traffic participants, to teach them the general nature of the traffic problems which they will meet and to prepare them in advance for the emergencies which are sure to arise, so that when confronted by unexpected complications they will be fitted to meet them.

Motor vehicle accidents can only be decreased and possibly eventually eliminated by the application of the same principles which have been successfully used many times to combat disease and epidemic. There must be a sufficient research to arrive at a diagnosis. That, in connection with motor vehicle accidents, can be done only through statistics. The statistical information hereafter contained warrants the drawing of some conclusions, but it nevertheless remains a fact that all statistics, so far gathered, are manifestly imperfect because, as yet, there is no means of ascertaining "accident frequency" The total mileage traveled in a given territory by the motor vehicles therein and the number of accident hazards encountered in the course of their movement if still not determinable. Some time a means will be discovered to work out these fundamentals and then it may become apparent that the average motor vehicle operator is not so bad after all.

An examination of causes brings out the same old besetting faults in those operations which can be readily learned by experience, there is a slight improvement. For example, the 1925 figures are better in "failure to grant right of way" and "driving on wrong side of road." In those causes where the element of actual recklessness appears there is no improvement; as for instance, "inattention" and especially driving "too fast for conditions."

Carelessness of Child Pedestrian—

	1924	1925
Carelessness of child pedestrian	1,109	1,548
Crossing street	545	878
Stepping from behind other objects without looking	335	464
Playing in street	146	82
Coasting	54	66
Confusion	20	16
Boarding or leaving trolley car	9	7
Stealing ride	25	43

More children have been hurt than in 1924. In the one or two specific causes towards which education and parental supervision can be directed there is a betterment, particularly in the item "playing in street." In general, however, the whole group of statistics as to children indicates need of concentrated teaching and continued watchfulness on the part of parents and guardians.

	1924	1925
Carelessness of adult pedestrian	1,260	1,090
Crossing street	774	746
Stepping from behind other objects without looking	276	178
Intoxication	92	87
Confusion	61	55
Boarding or leaving trolley car	37	24

The adult pedestrian is better than he was. His shows the effect of the additional year's experience with difficult traffic, the results of better traffic direction, better obedience and realization of his own part in it.

	1924	1925
Carelessness of contributor	1,998	1,937
Unknown character	477	527
Motorman	626	546
Animal	317	373
Bicyclist	318	319
Teamster	162	151
Runaway horse	60	39
Gateman	28	29
Man working on road	4	10
Man with push-cart	4	3

One or two of these items seem, by comparison, to be apparently very closely constant. Horses seem to show the effect of education. As against 60 runaways in 1924 there are only 29 in 1925. If a horse can be educated to this degree of proficiency by experience surely there is hope for man.

	1924	1925
Defective equipment	1,113	844
Brakes	161	109
Steering apparatus	249	169
Glaring headlights	207	88
Obscure vision	167	101
Insufficient light	88	74
Blowout	66	89
Miscellaneous	135	214

This is a most gratifying item. It shows better construction, better equipment and better upkeep throughout. The outstanding features of this group are found in the two items which deal with lights. When it is realized that these statistics are taken from the claims of operators involved, as to what caused each accident, it is astonishing to find lights mentioned so seldom. The fact seems to be that the glaring headlights is a terrible nuisance but not an exceptional danger. The item of accidents caused by insufficient light shows a slight improvement.

	1924	1925
Carelessness of occupant	218	90
Jumping on or off moving vehicle	147	30
Interference with operation	24	17
Passenger	23	35
Miscellaneous	296	317
Defective highway	96	49
Road obstruction	100	73
Weather conditions	66	154
Ignition of gas	24	29
Overloading	5	7
Railroad crossing without gate or signal	5	5

In general, the two subjects in these groups can be treated less definitely than in any other, but the particular item of ignition of gas seems to be one which could be entirely eliminated. The law already provides that no car shall be filled while its engine is running, but there ought to be some method whereby a gas tank or a car while being filled can be protected against static electricity, as that is apparently the main cause of ignition.

One accident cause not mentioned, because the department at present has no data, is poisoning by carbon monoxide gas.

ROOSEVELT IN PICTURES SHOWN AT Y. M. C. A.

Again, the local Y. M. C. A. gymnasium was filled Sunday at the patriotic service at 4 o'clock. The meeting opened with the singing of Columbia, the Gem of the Ocean, and this was followed with the scripture reading and prayer after which Hugh Kinder the pianist rendered a vocal solo. The first reel of moving pictures was one of Burton Holmes Travelogues showing many beautiful scenes in Rome, etc.

Following this the first of a two reel picture of The Real Roosevelt was shown, and this showed the young manhood life of the great American; his experience on a western ranch where he went in search of health. It also pictured him as a police commissioner and as governor of New York, and in several other relationships. At this point James L. Case gave a brief and very interesting talk on Roosevelt, and he spoke in part as follows:

"It is very fitting that we should at this season of the year turn our thoughts to some of the great men of the past who have made their last impression o nour country for all time. Of course we naturally think of Abraham Lincoln, whose birthday anniversary we celebrated a few days ago, and also of George Washington. These two we all class as the two greatest Americans of our history, and most agree that the third great man in our history is Theodore Roosevelt. We do well to study biography, for in such study we gain great inspiration.

Theodore Roosevelt had many characteristics that we do well to emulate. What ever he set his mind to do, he did it with his might. In his early young manhood, he found himself a physical weakling, and he realized that if he was to take his place as a citizen, he must secure if possible a strong body, and with his unusual determination he set himself to this task, and went far out to a western ranch, and lived the strenuous life, finally accomplishing the end desired, and became a man of unusual physical strength and endurance.

As the police commissioner of New York he practically re-organized the whole department, and made it unusually efficient. It was his wisdom and indomitable will that brought to a speedy and wise settlement our trouble with the Philippines. For a long time other countries had in mind the building of the Panama canal, but it remained for Theodore Roosevelt to bring this stupendous undertaking to a reality. As president he accomplished many things that give him a place among our greatest leaders. His character and his life and service for America, and the world will never be forgotten. Most of all Theodore Roosevelt was a Christian man, and he relied on Almighty God for his wisdom and strength to carry on. Let us think of this great American often and gain inspiration for true and noble citizenship."

NORWICH MAY LOSE FALLS COTTON MILL

Norwich faces the prospect of losing another large industry, provided the Falls company accepts an attractive offer from a city in Alabama to locate the mill in that city. Agent Arthur C. Brown of the Falls company mill is to leave Wednesday on a southern trip of four weeks, the purpose of which is to study the cotton mill situation in the south. He stated Monday that President Z. L. White of the company has received an offer from the Alabama city and that a great feature was a big reduction in taxes.

Mr. Brown plans to go to Galveston, Texas, and then to New Orleans, also to visit mills in other southern states and finally look over the proposition of the Alabama city's Chamber of Commerce, through which the offer was received.

At present the Falls mill is working on a large awning contract and when that is completed it is said that the cotton market does not look any too encouraging for some time into the future.

Agent Brown states that the Falls company would consider the move to the south if the cotton goods manufacturing conditions warranted it. Southern cotton mills, he stated, are making money and that is something many northern mills are not doing at the present time.

People who are intoxicated with music must be air-tight.

ABNER SCHWARTZ HEADS JEWISH RELIEF COMMITTEE

On Sunday afternoon, at the Buckingham Memorial hall, the leading Jewish people of Norwich gathered to organize a Jewish relief committee to participate in the United Jewish Relief appeal to raise $15,000,000 going on throughout the United States. This united appeal is launched under the auspices of the joint distribution committee with Felix M. Warburg, chairman; central relief committee, Leon Kamaiky, chairman; American Jewish relief committee, Louis Marshall, chairman; Peoples' relief committee, Alexander Kahn, chairman; David M. Brown, national chairman. The men who are foremost in the councils of the Jewish people of America have made an exhausted investigation into the conditions of the Jews in Poland, Roumania and Eastern Russia, and they found a condition bordering upon desperation and death due to the disarrangement of the economic conditions of Europe, which is suffering from the destructive after-effects of the World War.

Max Hanover opened the meeting with an outline of the scope of the committee introducing Abner Schwartz as a man under whose leadership all the Jewish people in Norwich can unite in this worthy cause. Mr. Hanover asked those present for unanimous sanction to have Abner Schwartz act as general chairman of the Norwich Jewish Relief committee. The suggestion was received with enthusiastic applause. In taking the chair Mr. Schwartz thanked the audience for their kindness and confidence, pleading that with so many activities in which he is obliged to participate he was hardly justified in taking on such an arduous task and do it justice. However, those present insisted that he should accept the lead promising that they will support him with might and main and that the Jewish people of Norwich will do their whole-hearted humanitarian duty by their unfortunate brothers in Europe.

Rabbi Max Stamm and Rabbi J. N. Rosenberg, the leaders of Jewish religious thought and activities in the city, spoke in favor of this relief organization, expressing their sentiments that Norwich Jews shall do their best to raise funds for purely relief work. Max Hanover, thereupon remarked that with the sanction of the rabbis of Norwich, this relief appeal is surely going to prove a successful undertaking. Rabbi J. D. Jurman, of Waterbury, came to Norwich, expressly for the occasion. The rabbi is a man of large stature and with his snow-white hair and large snow-white beard, he represented a patriarchal appearance which was very impressing. He spoke in Jewish, in a fluent oratorical style, which carried great conviction. He painted a vivid picture of the terrible plight of Jews in Europe stressing that it is no more a question of policy and idealism but it is a question of the necessity of plain black bread for starving children, mothers, old men and women and young people whose possibility of earning a livelihood had entirely disappeared.

A list of officers to take part in this drive was proposed and unanimously voted elected.

Abner Schwartz, general chairman; Harry M. Land, treasurer; Mrs. Dinah Polsky, secretary; Rabbi J. N. Rosenberg and Rabbi Max Stamm honorary chairmen; Michael Levin, Aaron Gordon and George Greenberger, vice-chairmen; Max Hanover and M. L. Silverman, publicity chairman; Alexander H. Manes and Joseph Polsky, chairmen of finance.

Executive committee, Max Hanover, chairman, Elkin Smith; Mrs. Nathan Gilman, Abraham Bruckner, Mrs. Alexander M. Pasnik, Daniel Poisky, Mrs. Elkin Smith, Josiah Greenstein, Dr. Meyer S. Goldberg, Samuel Slosberg, Aaron Goldblatt, Morris Sussman Charles Jacobson and Abraham W. Silverman.

Advisory committee, Samuel Taylor, Mrs. A. W. Silverberg, Jacob Wechsler, Samuel Goldberg, Mrs. Samuel Taylor, Alexander M. Pasnik, Herman Bruckner, Mrs. J. N. Rosenberg, Nathan Gilman, Mrs. I. Beckenstein, Dr. Boris Sohn, Abraham Strom, Mrs. Abraham Curland, Herman Sears, Mrs. Charles Jacobson, Simon Rosano, Abraham Levine, Rudolph Henschel, Miss Ruth Clark, William Trachtenberg, Mrs. Simon Mandell, George Blum, Mrs. Rudolph Henschel, Saul Alofsin, Mrs. Michael Levin, Dr. David Sussler, Benjamin Schleifer, Mrs David Trachtenberg, Dr. Charles Solomon, William Hankin, Mrs. Alexander H. Manes, Dr. Kopeland K. Markoff Isaac Fishkin, Simon Solomon, Mrs Rubin Alexander, George Schiller, Mrs Mathew Thune, Louis Pollock, Joseph M. Lahn, Miss Elizabeth Diamond, Max Rabinowitz, Jacob Weisinger, Samuel Diamond, Jacob Bokloff, Abraham Abelman and Mrs. Barney Rubenstein.

Mr. Davidson, the field secretary for Connecticut, who came to Norwich to help in the organization of the relief committee, expressed himself as greatly pleased with the personnel of the committee. The executive committee promises a short and vigorous campaign.

GIVEN FINES AND SUSPENDED JAIL SENTENCES

Stating that Clifford Adams and Fred Spencer, both of Waterbury, had already been penalized in regard to being confined and that the 48 bottles of beer found in their machine was not for sale but was to be given as a present to a prominent local man whose name was not divulged, City Attorney Lee Roy Robbins recommended that a demurrer be accepted in their case in the city court Monday morning and that a suspended jail sentence be meted out.

As a result Adams and Spencer both demurred to the complaint, charging violation of the liquor law, which Judge Libby overruled. The court fined Spencer $100 and costs and gave him a suspended sentence of one year, while Adams was fined $200 and costs and a suspended sentence of 10 days. Adams pleaded guilty to failure to have a registration certificate with him and improper headlights on his car and this was nolled on payment of $10. Both paid fines and costs money being furnished by a friend who came from Waterbury.

The men were arrested Thursday night on Laurel Hill while officers of the state were stopping cars for faulty headlights. Officer Henry Albright saw the beer in the car and took the men into custody.

Both men were warned of the danger of violating the law by transporting and told to keep away from automobiles carrying liquor.

As Officer Joseph Bobnick was unable to be in court the case against Attorney Leslie Brewer was continued until Tuesday morning after several witnesses had been put on for the defense. Attorney Brewer claimed his dimmers were sufficient under the statutes while the state disputes his claim.

N. G. Pierce, 54 Oak street, electrical engineer of the City of Norwich Gas & Electrical department testified to the lights on the street and said that the street was brightly lighted and a person or vehicle would be visible for 500 feet. On cross examination City Attorney Robbins said that it was foggy on the night of the eighteenth. Attorney Brewer and the state prosecutor argued over the interpretation of the statutes.

Frank Ceccolini of 21 Thames street stated that objects were visible on that street that night for 500 feet and Frank A. Bill of 100 West Thames street said he could see for 300 or 400 feet in any direction and that it was misty and a light rain was falling but that this did not effect the vision. On Sunday evening he had tested out the lighting of the street by telling time by his watch at various places in the street while his back was to the light.

Witnesses for the defense are not to be summoned to court Tuesday morning, when additional cases of Lawrence C. Hoffman of Norwich and Lincoln D. Rogers of Montville are to come before the court on light charges concerning arrests made the same night.

Charged with having a defective tail light on his car Dr. John W. Callahan was fined $5 flat as was Joseph P. Connor, for the same charge.

GO BACK TO THE CROSS SAYS REV. H. HUNZINGER

Preaching in English at the German Lutheran church, Franklin street, on Sunday evening, Rev. H. Hunzinger said in part:

God is love and love is life. Love and life in Him is one. His spirit sweeps the universe. He does not deliver life unto death but He makes death work himself to death for the sake of life. And all that in order to make his business grow. What is his business? It's the cheering up business. Where His life and love is at work there can be only this one business. He makes us work not to run us down, but to cheer us up.

But, man of God, who told you all that? Christ Jesus did! The Son knows all about His Father's business and He told us. Through Him we shall receive a new vision—the vision of the cross. What is the vision of the cross? Behold Christ, the crucified; His eyes turned up to heaven, His arms spread out to embrace a world. Father I deliver my spirit into Thine Hands. In the hour of deepest distress in the agony of death, He never lost the vision of God. God seemed to be far from Him, yet He was near to God. Amidst the terrors of damnation His soul drank of the fountain of divine life. And so cheered up His Father He went into the cheering business for us giving His blood and life to make atonement for our sins.

Like our Saviour we, too, must first receive the vision of God. Our soul must lift up her eyes toward Him, and if we cannot see Him in the hour of affliction, we must look for Him in the darkness and if we look for Him in vain, there will be the sound of His footsteps far off in the silent night, coming nearer and nearer. Where there is a crying child there is always helping father. He will come and cheer us up, and then we must go and cheer up others.

Spread out your arms toward all the suffering images of God. They need you—O they need you. But you say: The task is too great for me! How can I cheer up those, who drag themselves along under the heavy burden of their sins and sorrows. Their faces bend down to the dusty road, while I myself am tired, helpless and discouraged? I believe in God sometimes, but not all the time—I am cheered up by God's love sometimes, but not all the time.

O my friends, go back to the cross. Your vision is incomplete. Do you know why you are discouraged sometimes? You are too proud, too self-reliant. There is too much of your own proud self in you and too little of Christ.

In this world, millions are working out the terrible scheme of sin and selfishness. They want to live their own life regardless of others. But nobody can live his own life without being punished for it by the bitterness of death. Only self-denying love will win the battles of life and overcome the power of death. Only that love will stir up and cheer up those who are poor in spirit to the new life of God that will last forever.

Let us all go into the "cheering up" business, it is such a great and wonderful task that we shall forget all the cares of our life and even defy death.

Harry Ferguson, of Fishers Island selected a new speed boat while at the recent motor boat show in New York.

PRESTON VOTES TO IMPROVE TOWN HIGHWAYS

By a vote of four to one the voters of the Town of Preston, at the town meeting held Saturday afternoon, voted to authorize the selectmen, William A. Bennett, Lynwood B. Crary and Walter S. Tarbox, to borrow the sum of $20,000 to apply on the state highway commissioner for state aid and enter into an agreement to anticipate future state aid for construction of state aid highways in the town.

The plan is that Preston has $10,000 ready to put into highways and that the state furnish $10,000, which with the $20,000 voted will furnish money to construct a new highway connecting with Norwich state highway leading toward Poquetanuck and Hallville. Whether the new highway is to connect with the Norwich-Westerly or Norwich-Groton highway is not known at present and the state highway commissioner is expected to make choice. It is hoped, however, that the highway will be run to connect with the Norwich-Groton highway.

SWIMMING INSTRUCTRESS FOR WOMEN'S CLASSES AT "Y"

Announcement was made Monday that the applicants for the girls and women's classes at the Y. M. C. A. swimming pool are to report Wednesday evening at the Y. M. C. A. to pay membership fees and to be assigned to classes. The committee has been very fortunate in securing the following ladies as instructors: Mrs. Geo. Streeter, Miss Barbara Allen, Mrs. Arthur Wirth, Mrs. Bennedict C. Pullen, Mrs. G. H. Gildersleeve.

Among those who are to be assistants and chaperones are Mrs. Frank Crowell, Mrs. Harry Rushworth, Miss Ruth Loring, Miss Evon Broadhurst, Miss Katherine Hempstead, Mrs. Stanley Kingsbury, Mrs. G. H. Hawks, Mrs. Emil Fox, Miss Margaret Sayles, Miss Alif Stevens, Mrs. Allyn L. Brown, Mrs. Webster D. Copp, Miss Helen Browning, Mrs. Archibald Mitchell 4th, Mrs. Earl Mathewson, Mrs. Hugh B. Campbell, Mrs. D. H. Starr, Miss Ruth Hamilton, Miss Bailey, Mrs. William Leonard, Mrs Charles Saxton.

So great has been the demand for membership that a waiting list has become necessary and an extra class for business girls is being arranged.

NORWICH Y. M. H. A. HOLDS ITS ANNUAL BANQUET

The annual banquet of the Norwich Young Men's Hebrew association was held Sunday night at their rooms, Olympic hall building, members and guests attending numbering about 120. Dr. Meyer S. Goldberg, president of the organization began the ceremonies of the evening with the singing of America and after a speech of welcome introduced Josiah Greenstein as toastmaster of the evening.

The first speaker was Rabbi Max Stamm who spoke of the relation of the young people to the older generation and of the necessity of finding a happy medium where both can realize the noble ideals taught by religion. Rabbi J. N. Rosenberg spoke of the need of co-operation of the older generation in getting the viewpoint of the younger generation and how true religion is a factor for all good in life.

Max Hanover responded by stating that the Y. M. H. A. was a character building association and that all effort should be bent to make the association a credit to the community. The principal speaker of the evening was Rabbi Gershon Haddas of New Britain who spoke on American Democracy and of the influence it exercises on the very modern Jewish man in the United States. He urged his audience to mould their religious life so as to embrace the noble American ideals and of the volume the Y. M. H. A. should have in promoting good citizenship.

Words of praise were spoken for President Goldberg and Vice President Joseph Freedman, concerning their efforts in building the Y. M. H. A. into the powerful organization it has now become. Toastmaster Greenstein said that the organization was becoming one of which every Jewish resident of the city may well be proud. The singing for the evening was ably led by Harry Schwartz and the tasteful decorations were by Hawkins the Florist.

The committee in charge of the banquet arrangements comprised Dr. Meyer S. Goldberg, Saul Alofsin, Aaron Siegel, Harry Mandell, Samuel Ableman and George Blum.

PROMINENT WILLIMANTIC WOMAN DEAD IN FLORIDA

(Special to The Bulletin.)

WILLIMANTIC, Feb. 22—A telegram received about 4 o'clock Monday afternoon here brought news that Mrs. E. Frank Bugbee of Bellevue street, this city, had died at 9:15 o'clock Sunday evening at a hotel in Deslandes, Fla. Mrs. Bugbee, who, before her marriage was Miss Alice Johnson, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. M. M. Johnson, a silk manufacturer of Mansfield Hollow for a number of years, was the wife of Attorney E. Frank Bugbee, wealthy resident of Willimantic. Mrs. Bugbee had been spending the winter in Florida.

KU KLUX KLAN CELEBRATES WITH FIERY CROSS

Washington's birthday was made the occasion for the appearance of one of the K. K. K. fiery crosses, the second in Norwich this month. The blazing emblem of the organization flamed forth at 9 o'clock a lot in the Preston side of Greeneville, across the Shetucket river from the bleachery, where it could readily be seen from North Main street.

There is to be a United States civil service examination for assistant wood technologist, for a vacancy at the Forest Products Laboratories, Madison, Wis. The salary is $2400 up to $3,000 a year. The duties will be to assist the wood technologists and associate wood technologist along one or more lines.

Many Cases of Grippe Reported in Norwich

Local People Urged to Use Vigorous Measures to Combat Further Spread of Deep Grippy Colds.

PNEUMONIA CHIEF DANGER

Grippe Attacks Weaken Body's Resistance to Germs of Pneumonia—All Colds Should be Treated Promptly.

Deep grippy colds have been unusually prevalent here this winter. The situation is fairly general throughout the States. In some sections these colds are called "influenza," but the majority of health officers report that they are much milder than the original epidemic and resemble more closely the old-fashioned la grippe. They are usually accompanied by a headache or achy feeling over the body, "running of the nose," sneezing and frequently by gastric and intestinal complications such as hiccoughs, nausea, diarrhea, etc.

Colds are too often neglected, until they have lowered the vitality sufficiently to permit the lurking germs, which cause pneumonia, bronchitis and influenza to attack the body.

Don't Take Chances

The only safe plan is to attack a cold right at the beginning. A hot foot bath, a laxative, a sweat and a vigorous application of Vicks Vapo-Rub at bedtime over throat and chest will often break up a cold over night.

For hours after Vicks is applied the vapors of camphor, menthol, eucalyptus, thyme and turpentine, released as vapors by the body heat, are inhaled directly into the infected air passages. At the same time it warms and stimulates the skin like a poultice, "drawing out" the soreness and pain.

It is an obstinate cold indeed that can resist this direct, double action.

Vicks Vapor Steam

If the air passages are badly stopped up, try the "teakettle and tent" treatment. This method—fully explained in the directions—consists, briefly, of vaporizing Vicks in a teakettle and arranging a newspaper "tent" over the patient's head so that the combined warm steam and medicated vapors can be inhaled.

Mothers especially appreciate Vicks for the frequent colds of children, as it can be used freely and often, without disturbing the digestion—you "just rub it on." Over 21 millions jars are used yearly.

Deep-Seated Rheumatic Pains

Quickly Yield to Powerful, Penetrating Oil

Probably no affliction is more common or responsible for more intense suffering than rheumatism. Thousands of otherwise robust persons drag through a life of misery and agony.

Here is a new treatment that is causing a genuine stir among the doctors. Simply get a bottle of Moone's Emerald Oil and apply to the affected parts. It's easy and pleasant to use and there is no doubt but what the most stubborn and severe cases yield quickly to its powerful, penetrating influence. The first application brings blessed relief. All good druggists have it, but you can be sure to get it at Lee & Osgood Co.

CHURCHES NOT WEAKENING IN SUPPORT OF PROHIBITION

Joint Statement Issued by High Dignitaries of Four Church Organizations—Assertion is Made That the Beneficent Results of the Prohibition Law are Manifest and Innumerable—Appeal Made to the People Not to Be Deceived by the Plea For So-Called Modification of the Volstead Act.

WASHINGTON, Feb. 23—(AP)—A militant denial that the churches have weakened in their support of prohibition was issued here tonight over the signatures of high officials of the Methodist Episcopal church, the Methodist Episcopal church South, the Methodist Protestant church, and the United Brethren church.

The joint statement characterized the recent prohibition survey of the research department of the Federal Council of Churches as "an inexcusable betrayal of many church bodies;" declared there had been no apparent change in the sentiment of the people as a whole; and appealed to church members to unite in support of the law.

It was the first time high dignitaries of the four church organizations had joined in a common outline of their views of prohibition. The statement was signed by Bishop James Cannon, Jr., chairman of the commission on temperance and social service of the Methodist Episcopal church South; Bishop William F. McDowell, president and Dr. Clarence True Wilson, secretary of the board of temperance, prohibition and public morals of the Methodist Episcopal church; Bishop W. M. Bell, of the United Brethren church, and Dr. Thomas E. Lewis, president of the general conference of the Methodist Protestant church.

"The present confusion," it said, "seems to be due in large part to the publication in September, 1925, of a report generally represented as proceeding from the federal council of churches. This report, prepared by Dr. F. Ernest Johnson, was put into print without submission to the administrative committee of the federal council for review or suggestion and without general consultation with church temperance boards or agencies. It does not represent the churches nor the federal council. On the contrary it was an unpardonable misrepresentation, an inexcusable betrayal of many church bodies which co-operate with the federal council of churches. We repudiate it as unscientific in its methods, unwarranted and misleading in its conclusions, a product of provincialism, a striking example of the domination of local surroundings and special conditions. The exceedingly meager original research employed in preparing it was confined almost solely to the "New York sector" of the country and revealed nothing as to general conditions in this country of 115,000,000 people.

"The report more recently issued as of and from the Church Temperance society of the Protestant Episcopal church by Dr. Empringham has served only to reveal that the Church temperance society is a voluntary organization, stated by a bishop of that church to be 'semi-moribund', that it does not represent the Episcopal church and that, on the contrary, the clergy and laity of that church are in favor of the maintenance of the prohibition law and the supremacy of the United States authority over all anti-social interests in every part of the country.

"There has been no change in the fidelity to the prohibition law of the churches which we represent. That law is, in the words of the president of the United States, 'a salutray law'. The liquor traffic is prohibited solely upon the grounds of its evil effect upon society. The allegt ' attitude of Christ or of Paul toward the use of wine in the social conditions of that day does not justify the claim that they would approve or even tolerate the covetous, body and soul destroying liquor traffic of modern times any more than the paying by Christ of tribute money to the Roman oppressors of the Jewish people can be cited as justifying the oppression of small by large nations today or than the sending back by Paul of the Christian slave Onesimus to renewed service of his Christian master, Philemon, can be cited as justifying the selling of men as chattels in 1926.

"The beneficent results of the prohibition law are manifest and innumerable Upon it we have built a new prosperity which has raised the entire standard of living of the common people, improved the diet of the poor, housed the houseless, clothed the naked, filled our schools to overflowing, increased the savings which must serve as the instrument of enterprise and development, lowered the death rate and advanced the moral and religious interest of the generation.

"There is no apparent change in the sentiment of the people as a whole toward this law. Wherever the issue has been squarely drawn since national prohibition has been adopted, outside of the territory surrounding New York city, the people have registered their approval of the law.

"We appeal to the people not to be deceived by the plea for so-called 'modification'. Modification means nothing less than destruction of the prohibition law. It means the return of the liquor traffic, which was 92 per cent a beer traffic, it means the return of the saloons, 85 per cent of which were under brewery control, or the establishment of a worse distributing agency. Wine and beer are and have been intoxicating since the dawn of history."

FRENCH SENATE IS TO DEBATE FINANCIAL ISSUE

PARIS, Feb. 23—(AP)—The senate will be in discussion of the financial restoration measures tomorrow morning, with the intention of concluding Friday, so that the chamber of deputies may have the bills in hand Saturday.

The senators though not inclined to put in overtime, have agreed to sit morning and evening until the bills are passed. The impression is growing that the chamber will accept the senate's amendments, so that the plan for financial restoration may go into effect by the end of the month or soon after.

The radical members of the senate finance committee met with the radical deputies today to exchange views on the situation, and reached the general conclusion that uncompromising opposition to the government measures was impossible under present circumstances.

The deputies argued for a reduction of the proposed stamp tax on business transactions, which is fixed at 1.2 per cent. and is applicable to wholesalers and jobbers. The finance minister, M. Doumer, was firm on this point, however, declaring that the stamp tax must produce whatever revenue was needed along with the other taxes voted. The senators, after a conference, appeared inclined to support the government programme as a whole.

TESTIFIED POLICE HELPED UNLOAD LIQUOR SCHOONER

BOSTON, Feb. 23—(AP)—Testimony that a three masted schooner was unloaded of its liquor cargo in Chelsea while Chelsea police officials assisted was attacked by the defense today in the so-called Chelsea rum trial. Mayor Lawrence F. Quigley of that city and seventeen others, including police officers have been on trial for five weeks for conspiring to violate the prohibition law.

Harry Murphy, a defendant, swore that he had not, as previously testified, been near the schooner with the mayor during the unloading he said he had known that mayor during his life time and had frequently taken automobile rides with him. The court granted a request of John Feeney of defense counsel that the jury be taken tomorrow to the scene of the alleged unloading. Feeney declared that this would aid in discrediting the testimony given by Percy Friedman, a government witness and state prison convict. Previously in the trial, the defense had assailed as "perjury" Friedman's testimony that the schooner docked at Front street and was unloaded with the help of policemen while Mayor Quigley sat in an automobile nearby.

100 YEAR OLD WOMAN STILL TEACHES SUNDAY SCHOOL

BELFAST, Me., Feb. 23—(AP)—Mrs. Sarah Ellen Stewart today observed her 100th birthday in the house she has occupied since 1854. It was built 21 years ago.

The house was filled with flowers from friends including roses from the city government, the Methodist church and the Sunday-school class in which she has taught up to the present time.

Mrs. Stewart reads, sews and hears perfectly.

Senator Cummins, republican, Iowa, attacked democratic proposal to employ special counsel to prosecute the Aluminum Company of America.

LADY FISHER IS THROUGH WITH LONG COURSE DINNERS

TRING, Hertfordshire, England, Feb. 23—(AP)—Lady Fisher, wife of Sir Warren Fisher of the British treasury, who is taking the fruit juice cure here has given Mayfair, the fashionable quarter of London, a shock by the announcement that she is through forever with "those appalling long course dinners."

Lady Fisher celebrated her twenty-eighth day without solid food by a three mile walk. She says she will fast another month, if necessary. She came to try a cure for auto-toxiaemia (commonly called auto-intoxication), due to general debility.

There are 40 other guests at the old world mansion in the Herts Hills; all of them are living on orange and grape juices, apple and lemon waters and water in which vegetables have been boiled.

"A banquet could be spread before me without whetting my appetite," said Lady Fisher today. "As soon as the craving for food returns then we know the cure is complete."

GIRL AWARDED $1,000 FOR DEFACEMENT OF HER LEGS

JERSEY CITY, N. J., Feb. 23—(AP)—Lye-laden lingeries that scarred her legs permanently got a jury verdict of $1,000 for Helen Daly, 19 year old Hoboken girl, in circuit Judge Ackerson's court today.

The verdict was returned against the Liberty Wet Wash Laundry of Hoboken. Miss Daly altered that when her undergarments were returned to her May 5, 1922, by the laundry, lye clung to them and burned her severely.

Decision Against City of Bridgeport

State Supreme Court Finds in Favor of the "Ripper" Board of Apportionment—Involves Salaries.

BRIDGEPORT, Feb. 23—(AP)—The supreme court decided today in favor of the "ripper" board of apportionment, against the city of Bridgeport in a suit involving salaries. The common council greatly reduced salaries for "ripper" officials, set by the board, and the officials concerned sued to recover the amount of their salaries as fixed by the board of apportionment.

The board of apportionment was created by the 1925 general assembly, and was termed the "ripper" board in legislative discussion, because it superseded the existing tax administration and because the board was appointed by the governor, instead of by the mayor, placed control of the tax situation in the hands of the state.

CHALLENGE TRUTH OF SOME GILPATRIC REPLIES

HARTFORD, Feb. 23—(AP)—The truth of certain replies made by former State Treasurer G. Harold Gilpatric to questions propounded to him in the public examination to account for large sums missing from the First National bank, of Putnam, which he wrecked, was challenged by John F. Carpenter of Putnam, counsel for the bank's directors and others, in a letter received from him today by United States Referee in Bankruptcy Saul Bercian.

It was only in such matters as Gilpatric found that his investigators "had the goods on him" that he admitted the truth, Mr. Carpenter charged. To this, he added, when interviewed tonight, that he was surprised that Gilpatric was allowed on Washington's birthday, during the absence from Putnam of Receiver George M. Coffin, to be in the bank which he had looted, accompanied only by Miss Helen E. Sharpe who was one of his assistants before the bank crash, and the guard who brought him back from the Atlanta penitentiary to assist the creditors of his bankrupt estate to salvage some of his unexplained losses.

LOCARNO PACT TO COME BEFORE FRENCH DEPUTIES

PARIS, Feb. 23—(AP)—The Locarno security treaty will come up for ratification in the chamber of deputies on Thursday, and according to present indications will encounter considerable opposition. The communists will fight it to the finish while certain elements of the moderate and conservative groups have declared that they see a great many shortcomings in the agreement and will either abstain from voting or vote against ratification.

Four nationalist members of the chamber's foreign relations committee today voted against a favorable report on the security treaty, which was adopted by the committee, and they will be joined in opposition to the pact by the newly re-elected deputy, Andre Tardieu. M. Clemenceau's old lieutenant. It is understood that M. Tardieu will lead the assault.

It is also understood that the opposition will base its criticisms partly on the fact that under the Locarno agreement France would be unable to do anything to oblige Germany to pay reparations without first asking the consent of the British government. The communists will attack the pact as tending to unite the rest of Europe against Russia.

MYSTIFIED BY RELEASE OF THE COUNTESS OF CATHCART

WASHINGTON, Feb. 23—(AP)—Mystery continued tonight to envelop the reasons whi h prompted, Solicitor Theodore G. Risley, as acting secretary of the labor department, to order the release of Vera, Countess of Cathcart, from detention by immigration officials at Ellis Island for a ten day stay in New York under bond.

In the absence of Secretary Davis and Mr. Risley, the department today had no official copy of the order itself nor any record of the reasons it was issued. It was indicated, however, that there had ban an exchange of messages between the solicitor and the secretary, who is in Florida, before the release order was telegraphed to Ellis Island.

THREE ELK DIED ON TRIP TO MASSACHUSETTS

MIDDLEBORO, Mass., Feb. 23—(AP)—Their numbers depleted by a number of deaths but otherwise safe and sound, 379 wild elk arrived here today after their long journey from the Dixon National range, Moiese, Montana. A crowd of 200 citizens and school children who had gathered to see the animals were disappointed as the ten baggage cars were left unopened for the night. The elk will make the last lap of their travels by truck to the Nemasket range.

COURT DECISION ADVERSE TO FURNITURE MANUFACTURERS

Working to Defeat "Dry" Congressmen

Association Against 18th Amendment Seeking to Raise $300,000 to Replace 200 Members of Congress.

WASHINGTON, Feb. 23—(AP)—Investigation of the association against the prohibition amendment was proposed today in a resolution by Representative Tillman, democrat, Arkansas.

The house alcoholic liquor traffic committee would be directed to undertake the inquiry, which would include he said, about thirty organizations asking for modification of the Volstead act.

Mr. Tillman said the association against the prohibition amendment had admitted spending large sums of money to influence elections, "but has not filed proper reports under the corrupt practices act."

He added that the association announced it was trying to raise a special fund of $300,000 to defeat 200 dry congressmen, and had made claims of "controlling the choice of enforcement officials."

CONVINCED PRISONER IS NOT ROBERT ALLEN NOTMAN

NEW YORK, Feb. 23—(AP)—After a telephone conversation with the young man held by police of Great Barrington, Mass., Bruce Notman of Springfield, Mass., was convinced tonight that the prisoner is not his brother, Robert Allen Notman, former football player at Union college, Schenectedy, N. Y., missing from the Alpha Delta Phi club here since last February 12.

Intimate friends of the missing man failed to recognize his voice and descriptions furnished by Chief of Police Oschner of Great Barington, did not tally with those of Notman. Notman had light hair and blue eyes while the other is reported to have dark hair and dark eyes.

John C. Van Vorst, officer of Union college chapter of the Alpha Delta Phi fraternity and a life-long friend of the missing man said his family believed that he had wandered away after breaking down under the strain of adjusting himself to a new position. The young man recently came here from Chicago. All of his affairs were in order, Mr. Van Voast asserted.

MRS. COOLIDGE SUFFERS FROM A MILD COLD

WASHINGTON, Feb. 23—(AP)—Mrs. Coolidge, wife of the president is suffering from a cold which caused her to cancel plans to attend a dinner to be given tonight by Attorney General and Mrs. Sargent.

Assurance was given at the white house that Mrs. Coolidge's indisposition was not serious. The president, practically recovered from the cold which laid him up for several days last week, went ahead with arrangements to attend the dinner planned in honor of himself and Mrs. Coolidge.

Last week at another "cabinet dinner," given by Secretary Davis of the war department and Mrs. Davis, the president at the last moment felt unable to attend.

STATE SPORTSMEN TO HAVE OUTING SEPT. 4

HARTFORD, Feb. 23—(AP)—The first state outing of sportsmen, under the auspices of the state board of fisheries and game to which all sportsmen, state forest fire wardens, state grangers and the lessors of streams on which the state has acquired fishing rights, will be held at Lake Compounce, on Saturday, September 4. This tentative date was agreed upon today at a meeting of the outing committee appointed at the sportsmen's conference last week.

13 CONN. STUDENTS ELECTED TO YALE PHI BETA KAPPA

NEW HAVEN, Feb. 23—(AP)—Thirteen Connecticut students at Yale university, including Alfred M. Bingham, '27, son of U. S. Senator Hiram Bingham, were among the 26 seniors and 17 juniors elected to the Yale chapter of Phi Beta Kappa, according to an announcement tonight. John H. G. Pierson, '27, of New York, was the ranking scholar with an average of 96.4 for three years which is said to be one of the highest marks ever made at the institution.

HEARING ON THE PONZI APPEAL SET FOR APRIL 1

JACKSONVILLE, Fla., Feb. 23—(AP)—Hearing of a motion to quash the indictment against Charles Ponzi "financial wizard," held under $5,000 bond for alleged violation of the Florida law relating to the conduct of business under a declaration of trust was set for April 1 when Ponzi with his attorneys appeared today before Judge James M. Peeler.

OBREGON TO BE CANDIDATE FOR PRESIDENCY OF MEXICO

NOGALES, Ariz., Feb. 23—(AP)—Definite assurance that he would again be a candidate for the presidency of Mexico, was given by General Alvaro Obregon, when friends from all over the republic, gathered at his ranch home at Cajeme, Sondra, on Feb. 18 to celebrate the anniversary of his birth, it was learned here tonight.

MANY WOUNDED AT DEMONSTRATION BY CATHOLIC WOMEN IN MEXICO CITY

MEXICO CITY, Feb. 23—(AP)—Many persons were wounded this evening when police and firemen dispersed a demonstration of Catholic women in protest against the closure of the Church of the Sacred Family in Mexico City. Early reports gave the number of wounded as eighteen. Several leading society matrons headed the demonstration.

(LATER)—Four civilians were wounded and the chief of police of the tenth district was seriously, perhaps fatally, wounded in a riot in the Catholic Church of the Sacred Family this afternoon. The trouble started at 4.30, when gendarmes attempted to disperse the worshippers, principally women. They clawed the officials and fought violently.

The people in a belligerent mood gathered around the church, thinking the government had ordered the closing of the church. This was not true. A Mexican priest, Father Carrasco, himself had ordered the closing.

The people, especially the women, became violent and attacked the police.

The latter began to claw at the face of the police chief, whereupon the firemen, who had been called out, turned on water from their hose and attempted to disperse the crowd. The women, however, refused to budge.

Later the police fired a volley in the air and the crowd dispersed. Afterwards the women reorganized and marched to the department of the interior. Here they were dispersed by the firemen playing water upon them.

HOUSE PASSED $389,000,000 TAX REDUCTION BILL 353-29

Sixteen Republicans, Eight Democrats and Four Others Voted Against Adoption of the Conference Bill—Two Hour Debate Was Centered Almost Entirely on the Inheritance Tax—May Not Be Called by in the Senate Before Thursday.

WASHINGTON, Feb. 23—(AP)—The $387,000,000 tax reduction bill agreed upon by senate and house conferees was approved today by the house, 353 to 29, and its final passage was put up to the senate.

The compromise measure has privileged status in the senate but leaders were uncertain tonight whether they would call it up for approval before Thursday in view of the absence of several members.

Confident, however, of an early and favorable vote on the bill by the senate, leaders predicted tonight that it would be in the hands of President Coolidge before the end of the week.

Although the amount of reduction is above that prescribed by the treasury, there were definite indications today at the white house that President Coolidge would sign the bill, making it effective immediately. It was stated there that the president feels congress has assumed the responsibility for any deficit in the treasury which the bill might occasion.

Two hours of fiery debate in the house over adoption of the conference report almost entirely on the inheritance tax, which the senate voted to repeal and the conferees restored to the bill.

A motion by Representative Drane, democrat, of Florida, to send the measure back to conference with instructions that this tax be repealed was rejected by a thunder of "noe" without a roll call.

The membership arose and cheered Garner, of Texas, ranking democrat on the board of house conferees, as he assailed the action of the senate in repealing the inheritance levy and attributed it to the "wicked, vicious and indefensible campaign of the American Bankers' league."

Mr. Garner charged that the league had paid the expenses of members of several state legislatures to come to Washington "and seek to influence our views." Pointing out that all senate democrats had voted for the inheritance tax in 1916, he inquired "what has come about to make them change their views."

"You members from the southern states," Mr. Garner continued "must take issue at home with your senators on this question, or change your views."

Senator Simmons, of North Carolina, ranking democrat on the board of senate conferees, had led the fight for repeal of the levy in the senate.

Asked to name some of the state legislators whom he said had been "bought" by the American Bankers' league, to advocate repeal of the federal inheritance tax, Mr. Garner named Speaker Brown, of the South Carolina house.

Representative Tillman, democrat, of Arkansas, said members of the Arkansas legislature by the names of "Hill and McCall came up here to lobby" for repeal of the inheritance tax.

Cheers also were given Representative Green, republican, Iowa, head of the house conferees. He reported the restoration to the bill of the inheritance tax and claimed a victory in the conference "for the principles of the house bill."

The senate provision for a retroactive reduction in the inheritance tax was the subject of a sharp fight but a motion by Representative Newton, Republican, to recommit the bill to conference with instructions to eliminate it failed because the motion of Representative Drane had right of way and only one motion to recommit was in order under the rules.

Representative Newton declared that the provision would mean a loss of $85,000,000 in revenue through the lowering of taxes already assessed on estates.

Representative Ramseyer, republican, Iowa, also assailed the provision which substitutes the lower 1921 inheritance tax rates with a maximum of 25 per cent. for the increased rates put in effect by the 1924 act, which carried a maximum of 40 per cent. The bill provided for a cut in the maximum inheritance rate applying in future to 20 per cent.

Representative Garrett, of Tennessee, the democratic leader congratulated the house conferees and urged approval of the compromise bill.

THREE YEAR SENTENCE WAS GIVEN GUY L. BAKER, FORMER PUTNAM BANKER

NEW HAVEN, Feb. 23—(AP)—Guy L. Baker, former assistant cashier, whose uneasy conscience brought him home from Florida and its sunshine to confess theft of $16,300 from the First National bank, of Putnam, which G. Harold Gilpatric wrecked in August, 1924, was sentenced to Atlanta penitentiary for three years by Federal Judge E. S. Thomas this afternoon.

It was not known that Baker had stolen money until he walked into the office of Assistant U. S. District Attorney George E. Cohen, on January 3, and told his story. So far as known he was never told how he covered his acts. He assisted Receiver George M. Coffin for months in effort to find out about Gilpatric's manipulations as cashier but his own misdoings did not show up then or since.

Assistant U. S. Attorney George E. Cohen told Judge Thomas that Baker had been under "bad influence" in the bank and he asked that this be taken into consideration. Judge Thomas made the sentence begin on January 3. The short sentence was given in consideration of Baker's voluntary return and confession.

Baker signed a statement to stealing $16,300. Mr. Cohen explained that Baker took $5,600 in Liberty bonds belonging to J. L. McDuff, $1,700 in bonds belonging to H. Pardis, $4,000 in bonds which bore the name of Harkins and Sons, and some bonds belonging to the bank itself.

Baker took the sentence calmly. He had no counsel and left his disposition with the court.

WILL TODAY SEEK REPRIEVE FOR GERALD CHAPMAN

HARTFORD, Feb. 23—(AP)—Reprieve for Gerald Chapman, die to hang next Wednesday, will be sought tomorrow by Frederick J. Groehl, chief of defense counsel, who will confer with Hugh M. Alcorn, state's attorney, in the afternoon. Every effort will be made to get Mr. Alcorn to intercede with Governor Trumbull to agree to a reprieve of between six weeks and two months, Joseph M. Freedman, of Chapman's counsel, said tonight.

The case may, should the reprieve be denied, revert to injunction proceedings against the state in which the defense will try to establish a point of prejudice in the refusal of Judge Newell Jennings to allow a change of venue, an unsatisfactory finding, or findings, by state and federal courts on the point of correctness by which the commutation of Chapman's Atlanta sentence was allowed, and an objection to the enforced acceptance of Chapman of the president's commutation.

DENIAL OF ENGAGEMENT BY MARY LOUISE SPAS

DENVER, Col., Feb. 23—(AP)—Mary Louise Spas, whose adoption by Edward W. Browning, wealthy New York real estate man, was annulled, today denied amid tears that she was "informally" engaged to Herbert W. Singleton, magazine solicitor of Rochester, N. Y., Mary was found working in the mailing room of a department store. Singleton announced the "informal engagement yesterday and then denied their friendship had yet reached that stage.

N. S. POWER COMPANY TO HAVE $1,250,000,000 CAPITAL

DOVER, Del., Feb. 23—(AP)—The Northern States Powzer Company of Chicago today filed notice of an increase in its authorized capital from $1,100,000,000 to $1,250,000,00. It plans to issue 15,000,000 shares of stock, 1,500,000 of preferred with a par value of $100 each, 500,000 shares of class A common at $100 par value and ten million shares of class B common stock without nominal or par value.

"MANIAC SNIPER" WARNS THAT HE WILL ATTEMPT TO ESCAPE FROM JAIL

OMAHA, Neb., Feb. 23—(AP)—Frank Carter, 46 year old "maniac sniper" under arrest here following two slayings and wounding of a third man today made a determined declaration that he would attempt to escape. "I'll kill any number of men that get in my way when I start," he said. A heavy guard of patrolmen was placed around his cell from which he will be taken tomorrow morning to face a police judge, in the first of court proceedings which prosecutors hope will eventually send him to electric chair eventually send him to the electric chair.

Carter, charged with first degree murder and attempting to rob, shot and killed William McDevitt a week ago Sunday, and two nights later killed Dr. W. D. Seales. He wounded Ross Johnston, a railroad detective, and fired hundreds of shots from a .22 calibre automatic pistol which was wounted with a silencer. He says he killed his victims because they failed to "respect me and that made me mad."

"Its not the killings that makes me feel bad," Carter said in talking of his victims. "Its the shame of the thing."

"I should be ashamed of myself. When you get right down to the point of it, I had very little reason to shoot any of the men.

"I know what I've been doing. All I wanted was about three dollars a day or so to live on. I was getting old and wasn't in condition to work much. As long as I could get a few dollars, I was satisfied.

"I'll follow my lawyer's advice. If he tells me to plead guilty and throw myself upon the mercy of the court I'll do so. I know it will make no difference what I do. I'll get my just dues just the same."

Carter is expected to go on trial for his life within three weeks, County Attorney Beal declares. Beal says Carter is sane, and Carter in his formal statement to authorities says he is not "queer."

COUPLE WERE KILLED WHEN CAR SKIDDED

ORLANDO, Fla., Feb. 23—(AP)—William F. Mays, 25, of Orlando and Viola Libby, 22, of West Pownal, Me., were instantly killed here late last night when the front axle of the roadster driven by Mays broke causing the car to turn over a number of times, finally crashing into a post. Miss Libby's chest was crushed, her neck broken and spine twisted. Mays' back was broken between the shoulders and his chest crushed.

Skid marks on the road showed that Mays had applied the brakes and skidded over thirty feet. The bodies were found in the seat of the car about half an hour after the accident.

WILL OF HENRY HOLT FILED FOR PROBATE

NEW YORK, Feb. 23—(AP)—The will of Henry Holt, publisher, who died February 13, was filed for probate today, disposing of an estate of "over $10,000." He left his physical library to the Authors' club of this city.

PLAN TO SELL FIREHOUSES DEFEATED AT SPECIAL MEETING

(Special to The Bulletin.)

WILLIMANTIC, Feb. 23—By a vote of 69 to 26 the proposition as recommended by the common council, through the fire committee, to dispose of the Hilltop Hose House on Summit street was turned down at the special city meeting held in the town building at 2 o'clock Tuesday afternoon. In an oral vote it was decided to take no action on the second proposition to sell the Montgomery Hose company building on Jackson street. In the recommendation for the sale of these two buildings which are now in disuse, the Hilltop company house being entirely vacant, it was proposed to use the proceeds in enlarging and further equipping a central fire station on Bank street.

About one hundred and twenty-five attending the meeting. Thirty-two of the number were women. Mayor John C. Tracy presided, City Clerk James S. Donohue, Jr., reading the warning. Corporation Counsel William A. King presented the resolution calling for the sale of the properties. He added that he felt that there would be objection to the sale of the Jackson street house, thereby explaining his action in bringing the matter before the meeting.

Upon being informed that it had been unoccupied for several years, John F. Regan expressed himself in favor of the sale of the Hilltop Hose company, but was for retaining the Montgomery building. He advocated that the latter structure be used for a voting place for the third ward. In this respect there is a difficulty to overcome, inasmuch as the building lies just over the boundary line and is in the second ward. A motion was made for the sale of the Hilltop hose house. Judge George E. Hinman offered an amendment that if sold it be specified for use for residential purposes. The verbal vote on the original motion and amendment was doubtful and the chair appointed Robert H. Fenton and Elmer M. Young as tellers for a vote taken by the raising of hands. The motion was lost, 69 to 27.

When the Montgomery proposition was taken up Eugene Randall and James Reynolds were heard on the question and on the inadvisibility of holding city meetings in the afternoon. John J. Sullivan's motion that no action be taken was adopted. Adjournment was taken after a twenty-two minute session.

CASE OF FRANK LECLERC ...GOES OVER TO MONDAY NEXT

(Special to The Bulletin.)

WILLIMANTIC, Feb. 23—Frank LeClerc of Lowell, Mass., at times a resident of this city, was in the police court here Tuesday morning charged with breach of the peace and perjury. He pleaded not guilty to both charges and at the suggestion of Prosecuting Attorney Gaucher, who asked for a further investigation of the perjury charge, the cases were continued to Monday, March 1st. LeClerc furnished a bond of $100 for release on the breach of the peace charge and $500 for perjury.

After an investigation by Officer Edward Burnes of the Stafford Springs barracks, the local court received a report that LeClerc had perjured himself when applying for a motor vehicles operator's license at the temporary state police barracks, located in this city, last summer. In filling out the application LeClerc said that he had never been convicted of violation of the automobile laws in this city, state, or elsewhere. This was August 28, 1925. It was found later that May 1, 1923 LeClerc was convicted in the Lowell, Mass., district court for operating a motor vehicle while under the influence of liquor. He was fined $100 and costs, which he paid. Again August 12, 1925, he was fined $5 and costs and sentenced to 30 days in the house of correction in Lowell on a similar charge. He appealed the latter sentence and the case was set for January 5, of this year. The decision of the lower court was upheld. LeClerc paid his fine and served his time. It was two days after his second conviction that he came here and swore that he had never been convicted. LeClerc, who had been in and out of this city, got into an argument with Rosaire Pleau, of 32 Ives street last Sunday. A warrant was made out and his arrest followed.

The death of Mrs. Alice Monroe Bugbee, 56, wife of Attorney E. Frank Bugbee of 76 Bellevue street, this city, in Deland, Fla., was a great shock to the many friends of the family in this city. Mrs. Bugbee was spending the winter with her husband and sister, Miss Mabel H. Johnson. Mr. and Mrs. Bugbee were married October 14, 1895. She was born in Mansfield Hollow March 26, 1869, a daughter of Marcus Monroe and Emma Hall Johnson. Surviving her besides her husband are three sisters, Mrs. Estella Mills of Brookline, Mass., Miss Mabel H. Johnson of this city and Mrs. Bertha Hubachek o Springfield, Mass., and a niece, Miss Grace E. Mills, also of Brookline.

Principal Egbert A. Case of Windham High school made public Tuesday the list of typewriting awards made for January. The awards are based on speed per minute for fifteen consecutive minutes. The winners are Miss Evelyn Hedman and Steve Jojsim, gold and silver pins respectively. Miss Hedman averaged 56 words and Jojsim 42. Silver pins were given Misses Marcella Curran, Margery Gray and Beatrice Monast with averages respectively of 52, 55 and 54 words. Those receiving bronze pins: The Misses Myrtle Chadwick and Amy Hawkins and Steve Jojsim and Royal gold pins to the Misses Myrtle Chadwick, Beatrice Hamilton and Grace Nye; in the evening school typewriting class. Miss Mary Norton and Miss Arlene Bachand were give ngold pins for averaging sixty words. Miss Bachand also received a gold pin for 55 words on the Remington.

Mrs. Jessie L. French of Carey street gave her daughter, Mary Avis, a party in celebration of her seventh birthday Monday afternoon. Six little girls were present. The party was entertained at the Capitol theater and then had a luncheon at the Tea Shop. The luncheon tapies were decorated in pink. Sandwiches, ice cream and individual birthday cakes, each surmounted by a candle, were provided. The little girl received many gifts. The guests were Jean Congdon, Phyllis and Evelyn Rood, Phyllis Angel, Frances McLean and Rhoda Atwood.

Mrs. Eileen Racicot of this city was in attendance at the February meeting of the Dancing Teachers' club of Connecticut at Hartford recently. The club voted to have all dancing instructors in the state licensed. Cliff Jerome of New York city, formerly connected with the famous Ned Wayburn studios, taught the latest types of dances.

Members of the family of the late William Henry Hall, of South Willington were in attendance at the laying of the cornerstone of the new Hall Memorial Laboratory of Chemistry at Wesleyan university, Middletown, Monday, the exercises being held in connection with the thirty-fifth annual Washington's Birthday alumni reunion. The laboratory is given by the Hall family as a memorial to William Henry Hall.

Town Clerk Frank P. Fenton who is in Florida with headquarters at Stuart, showered the town building in this city with post cards Tuesday. Mr. Fenton has met many local people in his travels through Florida. The weather is fine there, he writes, and living expenses are no greater than they are in Willimantic.

Mrs. Loretta Costello and Mrs. Mary Lombardo were hostesses for the Windham Girls' club whist party held Monday evening. Fourteen tables were in play. Mrs. Joseph P. Gagnon made the highest score. Miss Annie Kelley won second prize and the consolation award went to Mrs. Henry Blanchette.

At a meeting of the official board of the Methodist Episcopal church, at which the pastor, Rev. A. Stanley Muirhead, presided, a budget for the year was adopted and plans were made for church improvement work during the coming year. Theb oard, in a resolution introduced by William E. Webber, expressed appreciation for the services rendered by the pastor during the past three years and extended him a hearty invitation to continue as pastor for the ensuing year with a request to the district superintendent, Rev. Myron E. Center of Norwich, to use his best efforts to bring this about, at the coming S. N. E. conference.

COLUMBIA

Local people were much interested in the contest of old fashioned dancing held at the Capitol theater in Willimantic Wednesday evening and a number from here were present. Mr. and Mrs. Charles LaBonte of Columbia took part and were in the winning team. J. A. Isham of Columbia was one of the judges.

Alonzo Little is suffering from an attack of muscular rheumatism.

Mrs. Bessie Trythall was called to Putnam last week by the death of her uncle. Her daughter, Mrs. Lucine Hennequin is keeping house for her during her absence.

Mrs. Herbert Gillette of Spring Hill spent Thursday with her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Henry Isham.

Owing to the bad traveling, it was thought best to omit the meeting of Columbia grange, which was to have been held Wednesday evening.

Mr. Larcomb, school supervisor, is spending this week in Washington, D. C., attending the National Educational association meetings.

Friends in town have received word from Mrs. Lulu McCorkell, that she is about to go to Michigan, where she will visit her sister.

Miss Marion Clough spent the week end with friends in Stafford Springs.

Mrs. Bessie Trythall had as guests Monday her sister, Mrs. Taylor, also little Russell and Walter Taylor, of Willimantic.

John and Charles Mitchell of Hartford spent the week end at the home of Mr. and Mrs. C. A. Holmes.

The schools were closed Washington's birthday. The High school pupils also had a vacation. There was no mail delivery.

The attendance at Columbia church Sunday morning was much larger than the past two Sundays, owing to the improvement in traveling conditions. The pastor, Rev. Victor Wain, preached on "Hymns—their authors and influence."

WESTMINSTER

The last two weeks have made very heavy demands on the time and strength of all R. F. D. men. The eastern side of the town has, from its position, as one of its advantages received daily mail. The western portion, because of distance and poorer roads, during the stormy season received mail but once in two days and sometimes the blizzardous weather forced greater interruption.

But no one envies the postman, or his beast, at this season of the year and the men on each route deserve great credit for their faithfulness in face of much that is disagreeable and difficult.

Jake Jones returned from a week as patient in Jackus hospital the first of last week. His infected finger proved a bone-felon which has been healing well since it was operated upon.

Several of the Willimantic-Westminister contingent are temporarily at home on account of road conditions One member quit work at noon on the day of the first bad storm, came by jitney to the end of the state road and walked the balance of the way, in the drifts and blinding snow, a distance of several miles. Mrs. Axel Helstrom returned to Willimantic the first of this week to her work in the thread mill and is boarding rather than attempt the trip. Another is eported to be going daily to and from Willimantic by sleigh, and one or two others remained there since the first storm because of precarious going.

The school attendance through town has been affected more or less by storms and roadings. The Westminister Hill school was in session both days of the severe storms, but Miss Gold, the teacher, was unable to reach her school the day after the first blizzard.

Archie Green has recovered from the effects of a sereve cut received in his foot while chopping wood early this month.

Axel Helstrom is cutting trees for Arthur Bennett.

Miss Kimball was able to resume her good work in the Gayhead school the first of the month, after her absence, prolonged from the usual Christmas vacation on account of scarlet fever. While the substitute had done good work, the regular teacher received a warm welcome on her return.

The general subject for the prayer services of Lent is The Appearance of Christ, and is based on the Gospel of St. John, taking 1st 4 chapters through Saturday the 27th. Wednesday evening, John 3:14-21.

In accord with a vote passed at the October town meeting the town farm and its buildings have been sold, the purchaser being Oscar Usitala.

Supervisor Edwin B. Floyd visited schools in this region Thursday, bringing long needed and greatly appreciated school books for the use of Westminister Hill.

An upset occurred on Bakery Hill some days ago when Thomas Colburn's horse, in stopping with the sleigh, turned toward the center of the street just as th Hartford auto bus driven by Milo Appley, which carries pupils to and from Plainfield High school was passing and a slight collision resulted, with no serious sequence.

A. T. MacLeod left Wednesday, the 10th, before the terrible storm was at its worst, to attend the funeral of Andrew M. Crowell, a brother-in-law, in Boston, returning Friday.

On account of the storm the W. C. T. U. February gathering was omitted. They plan to meet in March on the regular date.

The postponed meeting of the newly organized League of Women Voters is appointed for March 6 (Saturay) at 2 p. m. with the president, Mrs. Clinton Frink.

Common robins, song sparrows and other birds are reported by several, and pussy-willows are commencing to bloom.

Thomas Colburn and son opened up the road from his home to Westminister Hill, a long mile, after each of the recent severe storms. Others did similar, if less conspicuous work. A town snow plow is needed.

Mr. and Mrs. Lewis Greenman have the deep sympathy of the community in the sudden death of their eleven weeks' old daughter, at about 6 o'clock Sunday morning, February 21.

Friday Miss Gold received word of the illness of her mother and closed school early to go to her home in Hartford. For this reason Washington's birthday became a holiday for the pupils of Westminister Hill.

LEDYARD

Arthur Avery, past master of Norwich grange with the assistance of Miss Clara Hyde of Patchaug grange, installed the officers of Ledyard grange in Grange hall Friday evening. The bad weather did not prevent about 50 being present. The following officers were installed: Rev. G. F. Goodenough, master; Claire Lester, (proxy for William Burton who was ill with the measles) overseer; Mrs. Irene Hanks, lecturer; Frederick Doolittle, steward; Leslie Holdridge, assistant steward; Frederick Allyn, gate keeper; Billings T. Avery, chaplain; Samuel E. Holdridge, treasurer; Mrs. Carrie Doolittle, secretary; Miss Ida Errickson, Ceres; Miss Phylis Hanks, Pomona; Mrs. Huld Lamb, Flora; Mrs. Grace Main, lady assistant steward. Both Mr. Avery and Miss Hyde were given a standing vote of thanks for the able manner in which they performed the installation. Preceding the installation the retiring secretary, Mrs. B. T. Avery gave an account of the finances of the grange which shows that the grange for the past two years has prospered under its officers and if the finances are the same for the next two years, the grange debt can be wiped out and the new Grange hall will be all paid for. An impressive incident was the draping of the Grange charter by the chaplain, assisted by Ceres, in tribute to Mrs. Maria Kouch, a member of the grange who died Thursday. Refreshments of hot dogs, cake, cookies and coffee were served.

The funeral of Mrs. Maria Roach, 82, widow of Calvin Roach was held in Ledyard Congregational church Saturday afternoon, Rev. G. F. Goodenough officiating. Samuel Lamb, Roy Lamb, Edmund Lamb and Mr. Miner of Mystic were the bearers. Mrs. Roach was one of the oldest residents of Ledyard. She was a charter member of Ledyard Grange and a valued member of the Congregational church. She eaves a brother, Samuel Lamb of Waterford who was unable to attend on account of his advanced age, he being over 90. She leaves several nephews and nieces. Burial was in Ledyard Center cemetery.

Mrs. Barbara Holdridge has been substituting as teacher in District No. 4 for Miss Bertha Adleman, who has been ill.

David Geer of New Haven spent the week end and Sunday at the home of his mother, Mrs. C. D. Geer.

EAST WOODSTOCK

Miss Eunice Moore, of Deep River, is spending her vacation with Miss Ruth Murray, teacher in this district.

Emil Anderson, employed in Springfield, Mass., spent the week-end and holiday at his home.

Carl Danielson, of West Hartford, a former resident, has been unable to work the past month as carpenter, owing to trouble with his back.

Miss Edith Harris, assistant to the nurses at Day Kimball hospital, is ill. She underwent an operation for appendicitis last Wednesday.

Oscar Speck, a student at Woodstock academy, was a week-end guest of Franklyn Wetherell.

John Killam has been visiting relatives in Hartford and Warehouse Point.

Thurston Eddy, two and one-half year old son of Mr. and Mrs. Ralph Eddy, sustained serious injuries last week Wednesday, when he released the lever to the wringer attached to the electric washing machine, his hand and arm being drawn in to the elbow. An X-ray showed two bones broken at the elbow and two in his hand. The flesh is lacerated badly. The little fellow is strapped to the bed to keep him quiet. Mrs. Eddy had just stepped into another room to telephone when the child climbed into a chair and turned on the power.

Miss Eleanor Linderman, of Willimantic, accompanied by a friend, Miss Dorothy Burton, spent the week-end and Monday with Mr. and Mrs. I. Linderman. Both are teachers at The Oakes school.

BALTIC

Dominique Lemoine, of Hanover road, is having a two-tenement house built opposite his residence on the northerly side of the highway leading to Hanover. It is what is known as the Marcia Wilcox lot.

The selectmen held their meeting Thursday evening in the town clerk's office and issued orders on the town treasury for snow-shovellers' bills contracted during and after the last two storms.

The board of relief held its last session Saturday. The members comprising the board are: Peter Robitaille, Napoleon Belanger and Severin P. Pratte.

At the Lenten exercises last week, held in the Roman Catholic church, both sermons, English and French, were preached by Rev. A. A. Jalbert. This week the sermon will be in French, preached by Rev. W. A. Routier, of Putnam.

The mari gras parish fair held in St. Jean's hall, Mardi Gras night, netted the parish the substantial sum of $1,128.75, going "over the top" $128.75. Many beautiful and useful articles were given away. Among the novel plans was a tag with number, given each attendant, a red one for the women guests and blue for the men; and three tags were duplicated bringing the holders each a bank deposit book with a deposit of $2.50, $5.00 and $10.00 in each, giver by a Norwich bank.

H. P. Malhotte has purchased the business recently run by the People's Store Co.

A Great Year ~ A Great Car ~ and Lower Prices

1925 was the greatest year in Dodge Brothers history.

More than a quarter of a million Dodge Brothers Motor Cars were built and sold, yet demand was far in excess of production—and continues to mount.

To meet this world-wide need for a smart and dependable motor car, Dodge Brothers, Inc. have recently completed a $10,000,000 program of expansion, vastly increasing production and lowering the cost of manufacture.

Remarkable new machine equipment has also been installed—further reducing costs and perfecting quality.

As a result Dodge Brothers, Inc. were enabled on January 7th, to announce a schedule of prices that has revolutionized all previous standards of motor car value.

Prices all the more impressive because they apply to a dependable and trusted product made still better in many vital respects—

Engine operation incredibly smooth and quiet.

Instant engine response and elasticity.

Stylish new bodies finished in rich and distinctive colors.

Exceptional driving vision.

And the most important advance in steel body construction since Dodge Brothers pioneered in building the first all-steel body.

DODGE BROTHERS MOTOR CARS

MANSFIELD CENTER

The second number in the Mansfield Library entertainment series was given last week by The Floyds of Boston, and was considered one of the finest programs of magic and mind-reading ever given. The company numbers three persons, Prof. Floyd, who has traveled nearly around the world twice, the magician; Mohala, his wife mental telepathist, and their musical director. The next number is to be given by Neil Paterson the Scotch comedian.

Because of the impossibility of building a fire in the church, the meeting of Echo Grange this week is to be cancelled.

The Ladies' Aid Society of Mansfield Hollow met Friday afternoon with Mrs. J. N. Jacobson. Three members were added; Mrs. G. S. Little, Mrs. Paul Jansen and Mrs. John Johnson. Mrs. Jacobson served doughnuts and cheese and coffee. The next meeting comes on Thursday afternoon, with Mrs. G. S. Little.

Late in the week the condition of the chimney of the Congregational Church was found to be such as to demand immediate repairs. Consequently all services were cancelled Sunday and the church will not be used during this week.

With no service at the church Sunday the Christian Endeavor Society visited the Eastford Society. Sunday evening, more than twenty Mansfield people attending the service at Eastford chapel. H. C. Hawkins furnished transportation for the greater part of the company, arranging his new international truck for their use.

DANIELSON

BODY OF FRED D. PEARL IS BROUGHT FROM MAINE

(Special to The Bulletin.)

DANIELSON, Feb. 23.—Funeral services for Fred D. Pearl, 66, of Augusta, Maine, were held Tuesday afternoon at the home of his brother, Leroy Pearl, in Brooklyn, Rev. John R. Pratt, officiating. During the services Mrs. S. Irving Frink and Mrs. Charles S. Hyde sang We Are Going Down the Valley, and Abide With Me. The body was placed in the vault at the South cemetery in Brooklyn. Relatives acted as bearers. A. F. Wood was in charge of the funeral arrangements. Mr. Pearl was a native of the town of Hampton and lived there until about twenty years ago, when he went to Augusta to make his home. His death occurred in that city on Thursday of last week. Mr. Pearl leaves his wife, a daughter, Miss Arline Perl, two sons, John P., of Waterville, Me., and Walter T., of Boston, and two brothers, Leroy of Brooklyn and Austin of Hampton.

TOWN'S MANY ACCIDENTS HIGHEST COUNTY TOTAL

(Special to The Bulletin)

DANIELSON, Feb. 23.—Killingly, with 1,474 motor vehicles registered in 1925, had the second largest number of such machines in accidents of any town in Windham county, Windham, with its much larger population, heading the list with 2,080. Few here realize that 95 accidents in which motor vehicles figured were reported as having occurred in this town during the year 1925, and that there were 58 convictions for violations of the motor vehicle laws, as well as 24 suspensions of operators' licenses. Such are the facts as presented by the state motor vehicle department. However, not all the machines that figured in the accidents are owned in this town. Many of them were passing through Killingly when they became involved in some accident just as certain Killingly machines figured in accidents in other towns and states.

There may be a suggestion for members of the painters' craft in the fact that Officer John Gebert, on night duty, found a citizen engaged in painting a house on Water street at 11.30 Monday night. The man had a gasoline lantern that threw a brilliant light and was working away as industriously as though it were mid-afternoon when the officer saw him and investigated. It is not likely that any painter would desire further exercise after putting in eight hours at his trade in any given day, but night painting might be adopted for rush jobs by adding a crew, or painting at night might not be so bad when the stifling hot weather of July and August is at hand. There may be something in it, unusual as it sounds.

Tuesday morning the funeral of Alphonse Pelltier was held from his home on the West Side with services at St. James' church at 9 o'clock. Rev. F. X. Richards, M. S., was celebrant of the solemn mass of requiem with Rev. James McCarthy, M. S., and Rev. John Roux, M. S., as deacon and sub-deacon. There were many relatives and friends at the service. The body was entombed at Holy Cross cemetery. The bearers were Zadi Thomas, George Cloutier, Paul Bernier, Oneseme Pelletier, Joseph Fournier and P. Godreau. L. E. Kennedy was in charge of the funeral arrangements.

Danielson sportsmen, who, at Hartford the past week, sponsored a plan to have the state stock its game preserves with small black bear of the harmless type were amused Tuesday at some pictured suggestions, in a New York paper and presented in a humorous way, as to what may be expected in this state if bears are released and allowed to propagate One picture shows, a weeping bear calling "Mamma" to a fur-coated man walking a street in New Haven, another bear stealing the morning milk from a bottle left on a doorstep. All the pictures were funny, especially the one showing a giraffe in use as a railroad crossing tender, stretching out his long neck as a gate when trains were moving over.

President Coolidge's voice is becoming familiar to hundreds of radio set owners in this territory. Monday night set owners heard his address on George Washington with distinctness and satisfaction. It was a noticeable thing that listeners were very little disturbed by the intolerable squealing of tuners-in. It would appear from this that the president was holding his audience and that there was very little hunting up and down the dials during the course of his talk. There was plenty of it immediately after he had finished.

A heritage of automobile owners from the rough going of the past three weeks is damaged cars. The strain the machines have been under is now being shown by almost daily reports of springs breaking, wheels going bad drive shafts out of line and other troubles. Hundreds of cars have been kept in service all through the severe weather of February and no one of them has been improved in value by the hard service they have been called upon to perform.

The benevolent society of the Congregational church has a meeting scheduled for this (Wednesday) afternoon.

Hebrew residents of the town of Killingly will co-operate in the nationwide effort to raise $15,000,000, in the United Jewish Relief appeal to aid their people in sections of Europe that have suffered greatly since the World war.

Forms for making of income tax returns have been received here. As in other recent years, those who desire assistance in making out their returns will find it available. As has been its custom, the Windham County National bank has made an announcement as to the service it will be pleased to render in making the returns.

There is no longer much danger of a flood in this territory. The bulk of the heavy snows has disappeared under the influence of rain and sunshine. There is plenty of snow remaining, but much of it is so water-soaked and solidly frozen that it will not yet go quickly in case of high temperature or heavy rains.

A comparatively few people have appeared before the board of relief during the course of February to seek changes in their assessments as made by the board of assessors. The board concludes its sessions this week. The grand list then will be completed and attention may be given to the making of the town budget and estimating the tax rate that will be fixed in March a the adjourned annual town meeting.

The spring vacation for the pupils in Killingly's schoos will be from March 26 to April 4. Sessions will be resumed Easter Monday.

A number of followers of the Danielson Town team were at Taftville Tuesday evening to watch the basketball game with the Crescents.

There has been some consideration by borough officials of a suggestion that an overhead red light be placed at the intersection of Broad and Reynolds street as a warning sign to heavy traffic. A ground signal in use last year did not prove satisfactory and was removed.

The opportunity to ride from Norwich to Providence via Central Village and Sterling for 50 cents does not exist at present. The operating line withdrew its coaches after the big storms of the early part of the month.

A losing team in a membership drive served a dinner to the winning team at the rooms of the Danielson Girls' club Tuesday evening. Miss Mary Peters was captain of the winning team, Miss Katherine Brennan of the defeated team.

Attorney Charles L. Torrey of Putnam was a visitor in Danielson on Tuesday.

Structural steel is being put in place in that part of the Danielson Trust Company building that is to be included in the enlarged banking quarters of the institution.

State officers from the Danielson barracks have been engaged in checking up head lights on motor cars in accordance with a campaign of the department throughout the state.

Members of the Danielson Farmers' exchange, who are group buyers, are getting their orders ready for spring purchases.

Henry L. Friedman of Springfield was a visitor with friends in Danielson on Tuesday.

Frozen catch basins have been sufficiently thawed out to take care of such water as has been produced by melting snow.

There has been reappearance of an animal supposed to be a wild cat reported as seen a few days ago near Westfield cemetery.

Rev. F. C. Williams of St. Paul's church, Willimantic, is to be the preacher at the Lenten service at St. Alban's church Tuesday evening.

Members of the Ladies' Aid society of the Methodist church have a meeting planned for this (Wednesday) afternoon at the parsonage.

PUTNAM

GILPATRIC STILL ENGAGED CHECKING UP BANK RECORDS

(Special to The Bulletin.)

PUTNAM, Feb. 23—George M. Coffin, receiver of the First National Bank, returned Monday evening from New York where he had spent Sunday and the grater part of Washington's birthday.

He stated that Mr. Gilpatric was still engaged in checking up the bank records, with a view of trying to trace the disappearance of $91,000. Satisfactory progress, he said, had been made as far as the amount of records that had been gone over, but the result of this checking up would be reported first to Referee in Bankruptcy Saul Berman of Hartford and whether any promising lead has been uncovered he declined tosay.

"Mr. Gilpatric could have had a day of rest Monday if he had so desired but at his own request he had continued the work of examinating with the assistance of Miss Sahrpe and under the supervision of his Atlanta prison guard, George F. Hughes. They had worked until nearly 5 o'clock Monday afternoon."

"You can see from this," he continued, "that no time is being lost and the results obtained may prove very substantial."

How much longer Gilpatric may be needed he could not estimate.

Funeral service for John T. Ryan, city patrolman were held Tuesday morning at St Mary's church. The bearers were Captain of Police Jarvis, Sergeant Laird and Patrolmen Sponcey, Durand, Martin and Page. Burial was in St. Mary's cemetery.

A large and delightful audience witnessed the presentation at the Bradley theater Monday night of "She Got What She Wanted" by Charles K. Champlin and an equally large and enthusiastic audience saw "Lightin" Tuesday night. The company included a number of exceptionally capable people, Mr. Champlin, himself, being a versatile and accomplished actor.

The following were among those registered at the Ben Grosvernor Inn at Pomfret over the holidays—Mrs. W. R. Herrick, H. T. Pulsifer, Mr. and Mrs. Harry Nash, Alfred Wagstaff, all of New York; Mr. and Mrs. Anson McCook Beard and Miss Beard, Tuxedo Park; Dr. and Mrs. Charles Scudder Pool, Brooklyn, N. Y.; Mr. and Mrs. Carl M. Reed, Erie, Pa.; Prof. and Mrs. Julian Coolidge and guests, Cambridge, Mass.; Mr. and Mrs. G. W. Makepeace, Providence; Mr. and Mrs C. W. Austin of New York city.

Miss Mary F. Potter of Woodstock has been attending the National Educational conference in Washington, D. C.

Miss Florence Wiley of Thompson is spending a few weeks in New York.

Francis Curan, a student at Holy Cross college, Worcester, has been the guest of his aunt and uncle, Mr. and Mrs. William Killian of Woodstock avenue.

Robert Diamond has been in Boston for several days.

Miss Elizabeth Bigelow, a student at Smith college, has been spending a short vacation with her parents at the rectory at Pomfret.

Henry J. Potter recently visited Misses Winifred Potter and Lillian Johnson at Waterbury.

Miss Edith Harris of Woodstock, employed at the Day Kimball hospital was recently operated upon there for appendicitis. She is making a good recovery.

Rev. and Mrs. Stephen Livingston of the Thompson Congregational church have returned from Boston where they have been for several weeks.

Donald Williams and Henry Safford, students at Storrs' college have returned to their studies after a few days spent at their homes.

John Holt, son of Mr. and Mrs. Hamilton Holt and Mr. and Mrs. Henry Holt of New York city are the guests of Judge Holt and the Misses Holt at Pomfret.

Rev. Fr. Leocald of the Assumptionist fathers at Greendale is to preach at St. Joseph's church, North Grosvernordale every Wednesday night during lent.

Miss Berenice Leavitt of West Hartford spent the week end and the holiday with her relatives at Woodstock.

Massachusetts state engineers are at work on the specifications for the proposed road which leads from the Woodstocks to Southbridge. It is understood that the state and county are ready to pay half of the costs expecting the town of Southbridge to pay the other half. The cost is estimated at about $40,000. Connecticut will then probably meet the Massachusetts road. At present that road is not in very good condition for the greater part of the year.

Ernest Morin of this city who was recently operated upon for appendicitis at the Day Kimball hospital is making a good recovery.

Mrs. John Addison Porter, who has been in Charleston, S. C., and Washington, D. C., for the past three months is now at the Nathan Hale Inn, New Haven. She will return south this week.

The new rectory of St. Philip's Episcopal church has been completed and the rector, Rev. H. Goring Allder, and his family are nicely settled. The rectory is located on Pleasant street, next to the church.

The Sunday school class of Mrs. Walter Rich, of the Second Congregational church, consisting of twelve girls of High scho loage held a Washington's birthday social for the purpose of organizing. The following officers were elected: President, Rachel Hurlburt; vice president, Phyllis Tatem; secretary, Helen Morse; treasurer, Alice Parry; chairman of the social committee, Helen Woodis; chairman of the press committee, Alice Perry. Refreshments were served.

The Canadian Athletic club won the championship checker match from the Putnam Checker club. The score was 12 to 11 with five draws. In the final match the C. A. A. had only their own members taking part in the contest and some of the players have been at the game for only a year. Mr. Ladoucer starred for the C. A. C. with four games to his credit.

The meeting of Putnam grange which was to have been held Monday, February 22, has been postponed to March 1. This meeting will be known as Educational Night.

Edward E. Keefe of Putnam, a student at the Stone School of Accounting in New Haven spent the week end and holiday at Amhurst, Mass., with his former Putnam High school friends, Chandler Morse and Franklin Perry who are students at Amhurst college.

SAN JOSE COUNCIL, K. OF C. CAPITALLY ENTERTAINED

(Special to The Bulletin.)

WILLIMANTIC, Feb. 23.—The Sugrue-Tighe variety troupe, in a talented minstrel production, gave the feature entertainment at a meeting of San Jose council, No. 14, Knights of Columbus, held in St. Mary's hall Tuesday night, with about 200 present. The minstrel troupe, which was under the direction of the entertainment committee, J. Francis Moriarty, chairman, was coached by John Sugrue and received hearty applause. The cast: James Healy, interlocutor, John Sugrue, John Ryan, Rolland Kitridge, George Bedford, Clarence Moriarty, Cornelius Shea, Francis Savage, J. Murray Tighe, James Hoey and Ralph H. Gibson, Emanuel Monez and Dennis Hagerty were the ballardists. Music was by the Melody Boys' orchestra. Specialty acts included a saxophone quartet by Joseph Hinds, Louis Ronan, Lester Carter and R. White, of the orchestra, a skit by Hoey and Healy, "Mellie and Ma Dunham," an act cleverly put over by Ralph Gibson and Cornelius Shea. A solo by John Ryan won special favor. At intermission, Grand Knight Patrick J. Connor gave an address in which he stirred up enthusiasm for the coming K. of C. carnival. Refreshments were served in charge of Chairman Carey of the committee. Director Sugrue was given a vote of thanks for the excellent manner in which he coached the cast for the production.

To all men who own cars other than Chrysler in the $1000 class—

IF you have bought any car but Chrysler "58" within the past half year, we believe you did so for one of two reasons—

Either you could not get Chrysler delivery at once; or—you were not fully informed on Chrysler performance, quality and value.

In either case, the result is the same. You have been deprived of Chrysler's superior value and performance, and of the other superiorities which are distinctively Chrysler.

Let these Chrysler "58" facts confirm what we say:—

58 miles per hour • • 25 miles to the gallon • • 5 to 25 miles in 8 seconds • • Finest of alloy steels • • Chrysler advanced engineering • • Finest of precision manufacture • • Closed bodies by Fisher • • Insulated power plant • • Finest equipment • • Exclusive Chrysler beauty of design • • Hydraulic four-wheel brakes at slight extra cost • • Balloon tires • • Beautiful new color combinations.

Any Chrysler dealer is eager for the opportunity to demonstrate all the Chrysler "58" superiorities—to you.

Select the body style you like best. Ride in it and drive it yourself in a demonstration of your own making.

POLITICS IN THE LEAGUE

One of the principal American objections to the League is discernible in the admission of Germany to the League council where major issues are decided, as it is the executive arm of the league. If the council is to perform its mission it must be guarded against the brand of politics which brings about divisions into blocs and parties, but an attempt of considerable magnitude and force is now afoot to accomplish just this. Germany will weigh heavily in the council, a condition which is not a pleasing prospect to France nor to Italy. The proposition therefore is to neutralize German influence by putting another nation into a permanent council seat to balance the German entry.

The league council is so constituted as to recognize the fact that all nations are not equal; that the world is divided into major and minor powers, of which there are just seven in the first named class; the United States, Great Britain, France, Germany, Russia, Japan and Italy. Their status gives them a permanent seat in the council, while the half-hundred minor powers take turns in holding the non-permanent places. If another nation were to be admitted to a permanent seat in the council, it would have to be a minor power, as neither the United States nor Russia are possible candidates. Poland, proposed by France for this honor, or Spain and Brazil, which are also mentioned are naturally willing to take the proffered seat.

It is not difficult to see the goal of this political maneuvering. The objective is to have in the league council two parties or blocs which could be expected to oppose one another upon most major matters—Great Britain, Germany and Japan against France, Italy and Poland.

But this sort of political balance is just what is least to be desired. Admission of minor powers to a place in the league's executive arm could scarcely stop with one or two and would cut the very foundation from under the league council idea. Politics carried to the point of domination would ultimately wreck its organization for peace, when it was allowed to decide as basis a matter as the organization of the council.

AN OVERSTRETCHED LAW

In a statement issued by Henry H. Curran, commissioner of immigration at New York, bearing upon the exclusion of the Countess of Cathcart, the commissioner disclaims all responsibility for the decision in that case and points out that he was powerless to direct or arrest it at any stage. The decision, he declares, was made by inspectors in his department, who are subordinates to him, but he is precluded by law from giving any advice or recommendation either to them or to the Secretary of Labor to whom the appeal is taken. There is also in Mr. Curran's statement an implication that he does not approve of the deportation decision, but, as a subordinate, he does not attempt to criticise Secretary Davis for upholding the ruling of the immigration inspectors. Mr. Curran declares that it is his intention to ask the chairmen of the senate and house committees on immigration to introduce a bill in congress to give the commissioner of immigration at Ellis Island the right to decide not only on all Cathcart cases, but all other appeals of immigrants and visitors arriving at New York. He is willing to take full responsibility in all such cases.

It seems no more than reasonable that the commissioner should have such authority over the inspectors who are his subordinates, that he should have the controlling decision and responsibility and then be held to full accountability for his decisions.

It moreover seems apparent that congress should so amend the law that it shall be specific in regard to crimes for which visitors or immigrants are to be excluded. The obvious purpose of the present law would seem to be to shut out people guilty of such crimes as homicide, theft, forgery and the like. It was not intended that the law should be made the excuse for a censorship of private morals. The stretching of the law in the particular case that has come to notice cannot fail to draw attention to the inconsistency of such an application by a country that has more divorces than any other in the world and which yearly exports as tourists innumerable persons who might adopt the same moral turpitude as the countess did.

WOMEN ON FARMS

In these days of the radio, telephone, electric power, interurban bus and the ubiquitous motor car, one is likely to think that the problem of the farmer's isolated wife and daughter is solving itself. Indeed, it said frequently that rural isolation is a thing of the past and that the apparently solitary farmhouse is constantly in contact with the world by the means of rural delivery of letters, newspapers and books and the broadcasting of lectures, speeches and musical programmes of high quality.

As a matter of fact, the women of the farm still have grievances that should challenge the attention of practical students of agricultural problems. This is a point that is brought out in a farm conference in Chicago. The resources of industry, mechanics and applied sciences and art are capable of lightening the physical burdens and ameliorating the moral and spiritual conditions of farm life, but so far only a comparatively small number of farm women have been fortunate enough to acquire the advantages which might be extended to them.

It was brought out in the conference that many women on farms still work sixteen hours a day and are too weary in the evening to enjoy books or magazines or the musical compositions transmitted by radio. Electric power is used by many farmers, to be sure, but there are sections where rural electric development is retarded by antiquated public utility laws, by franchise quarrels, by over-regulation or by lack of cooperation by small communities. The kitchen and cellar of the farmhouse might hold sundry labor-saving and time-saving appliances now wanting if electric power were brought within the physical and financial reach of rural communities.

Decidedly the problems of the women on the farm and the rural community demand thoughtful consideration.

AN AMERICAN INVASION

King George has been shocked by the discovery that all the departments of his own British government use American typewriters. He describes the situation as "scandalous." Other governments, he says, use British typewriters, yet, while a million and a half British workmen are idle and receiving doles or insurance advances from the state, supposedly patriotic Englishmen, including cabinet ministers, discriminate against British typewriters. The matter is to receive the attention of the King's most trustworthy investigators.

But what is there to investigate? American machines are preferred because they are more efficient and more durable. Great Britain cannot afford to waste taxpayers' money in buying inferior typewriters merely for patriotic reasons.

As to unemployment and doles, King George must have forgotten his course in political economy at Oxford. If Great Britain imports American typewriters, it exports some other commodity to the United States in exchange. On the whole, international trade is an exchange of goods and services. Gold is shipped only to pay small balances. A free trade country cannot consistently complain of the policy of buying the best articles wherever they are found, and selling goods in foreign countries on their merits.

Great Britain's serious unemployment problem cannot be solved by arbitrary and uneconomic discriminations against superior foreign articles. Land reform, immigration, development of water power, and increased efficiency in production are the remedies for Great Britain's unemployment and low standards of living.

A DEMOCRATIC MOSES

Since 1920 the democrats have been looking for a political Moses. They have, it seems, found him in the Idaho bullrushes, going over onto the republican side of the senate to get him. At least, they called William E. Borah into their conference the other day when they were trying to devise ways and means to defeat the Italian-American debt settlement. Just how many of the thirty-nine democratic senators were present was not made known, but if Senators Glass, Underwood, Bayard, Bruce and certain other brethren of the faith were there, they doubtless were both edified and instructed. It had been the general impression that Senator Robinson of Arkansas was the democratic floor leader, but Senator Borah of Idaho, head of the Borah bloc of one appears to have succeeded the gentleman from Arkansas. However, the gentlemen from Idaho is just as good a democrat as he is a republican, if that is any satisfaction to his new democratic followers.

However, also, prospects for the early ratification of the debt agreement have taken a turn for the better. Its defeat had seemed a possibility at the hands of republican radicals in the senate who were to be joined by the democrats, but on Friday the White House came to the defense of the debt compact and the president let it be known that should it fail Italy might feel herself relieved from further responsibility for payment. Edward N. Hurley, a democrat and member of the debt commission, hurried to Washington and explained to his party members how foolish their attitude was. Several democratic senators refused to be bound by the caucus, and the attack is rapidly breaking up. The democrats are no longer sure they want to make it a partisan issue. In short they are about to have another possible issue shot from under them.

HELPFUL HUSBAND

"Andy!" called the lady in the kitchen. "What are you doing? Are you busy?"

"Yes!" answered the wary husband instantly, looking around in great haste to find something at which to be terribly occupied. "Whadoyouwant?"

"A plenty!" declared the lady who had come in from the kitchen just in time to trap him in his frantic effort to achieve immunity by occupation. "Along last January I began dropping hints to you that the kitchen table drawer stuck when I tried to get it open or shut and you were very sympathetic. You said that woman's work was hard and dreary enough when all things worked well and that if I had only spoken sooner you would have attended to it that instant, but I could see for myself that you had exactly three minutes to catch your train!

"I can't begin to enumerate the various things which interfered each time after that when I put in a plea for help. You had to finish writing those checks, the dog was howling outside and you feared he had been run over. Hemlock across the street was yoo-hooing to you about something your head ached, you couldn't find the screwdriver, it was too dark, the sun made such a glare in your eyes that early in the morning, or you had just opened the drawer and it worked all right. And the drawer kept on sticking harder and harder!

"The times when I was in the greatest hurry it would stick hardest. It is very trying to one's nerves.

"I have fished for the lemon squeezer nestling cosily in the back of that drawer until I turned black in the face, and I have hammered that drawer with stove lifters, flatirons, and kitchen spoons. And I have pried it with canopeners, hairpins and forks and it moved just as much as the rock of Gibraltar would have moved.

"Occasionally it has varied proceedings by coming open with a rush when I pulled particularly hard, and then I would be buried backward into the kitchen cabinet, pursued by a shower of things big and little, all hard and with sharp edges and aimed with deadly accuracy. What didn't hit me always went under the radiator—and getting things out from beneath radiators is the test of a full-grown man's character, to say nothing of a poor weak woman like myself!

"There is no way to work under a radiator except by standing on one's head, tying a bowknot in one's spine and fricasseeing the brain! If you wear eyeglasses they always drop off onto the ironwork and splinter. If you have on a hairnet it invariably catches in some of the do-daddles screwed into the ends of radiators. And then when you are hopefully pawing around beneath the thing for the thimble that rolled away all that you get is two safety pins, a thumbtack, half a cracker and a wad of rolled-up dust.

"There is no use in anybody's stating that radiators were invented by a man because it is selfevident. They are so thoroughly and comprehensively just what they shouldn't be to please a housekeeper.

"There is a flour bin beneath that drawer I am speaking about and the bottom of the drawer is cracked from the pulling and banging and hauling, so that things drop down into the bin. That is why, when we have company and want things to be extra nice, the guests bite on tacks in the biscuits and the can-opener gets mixed with the custard-pie crust.

"Every time I get a particularly nice manicure I break two nails trying to open that drawer and when I am especially in a hurry and jerk it something delicate like the only bottle of cream in the house on the table top above quivers and tips over. I have about come to the end of my patience. Unless some new ones have been invented I should think you should have come to the finish of your excuses! I wish you would come right away this minute, instantly, and do something to it!"

"Now that certainly is too bad, Elmira!" the wary husband said soothingly. "Only I am quite sure you never have spoken to me about it before! I'd be glad to fix it for you only Joe Mantell borrowed my plane and saw and things a week ago and hasn't returned 'em—"

But with a strangled moan the busy housewife had fled and from the sounds it seemed to be the ax she was using on that kitchen table drawer.—Exchange.

From Small Beginnings

William Crooks, the Poorhouse Boy, an English Statesman.

In 1921 there died in England, at the age of 89, a man who had risen from the humblest circumstances to a high position in the affairs of state—William Crooks.

In the novels of Charles Dickens we read stories of boys who were brought up in the poor surroundings of the workhouse. As we read those novels we wonder at the fiction that shows how these boys rose to prosperity. Even Dickens did not dare to write that they rose to the commanding figures in England. Truth is often stranger than fiction. William Crooks rose from life in the workhouse to be a member of parliament, and an active and influential worker for the empire during the course of the World war.

As a boy he passed uneventful days and months and years in the wretchedness and obscurity of English workhouse life. No one who saw him at that time would have predicted anything great from the workhouse boy. As soon as he was old enough to begin to work for a living he was sent out to learn a trade. Then he worked making tubs and barrels. As he grew older he saw the hard conditions of working people, and he resolved to do what he could to help them. He became very active in upholding the right of workers and in defending their cause. He developed wisdom with increasing years and impressed every one, workers and others, as a man of sound understanding and righteous ideals. As a result he was elevated to local office. As he did all his work conscientiously he was promoted to office after office, until at last at the age of 49, he became mayor of the town in whose workhouse he had spent his childhood. As mayor he gave such general satisfaction, and showed such manhood, that he was sent, two years later to parliament. For about 18 years, he represented his constituents faithfully.

In the course of the World war, when he was over 60, he worked hard to aid in creating the British army. In all his life he was loyal, patriotic, honest and intensely in earnest. Such a story outrivals Dickens' Oliver Twist or Nickolas Nickleby.

Stories That Recall Others

Her Last Word

They had not been married very long and so it is not very strange that until this day they had never had a quarrel.

However, now they had had their first little tiff and she turned to him with tears in her eyes.

"Well, John," she said, "even though I have been extravagant I got a bargain today."

"Yes?" he replied. "I'll bet it was a bargain! You have no idea of the value of money. I suppose you think you got something for nothing?"

Her eyes gleamed for a moment.

"Yes, dear," she said sweetly. "I got a Christmas present for you."

LETTERS TO THE EDITOR

The Golden Rule

Mr. Editor: The Golden Rule has been treated with so much loose interpretation that we are apt to find ourselves lost in the practical appliance of its provisions.

Now, the rule that we must do to others, as we would that they shall do unto us, also implies that the others shall do unto us as they would that we should do unto them. The golden rule is not a one-sided affair for all good rules must work both ways—all ways. It does not mean that one man—or one class of men shall observe its dictates, and that all the others may do as they please, although this seems to be the general interpretation it receives. Nothing can be further from the intent of its promulgation. The Master, who uttered it gave in another discourse a qualifying statement that applies to a case in point (Matt. 24-43.) "But know this, if the goodman of the house had known in what watch the thief would come, he would have watched, and would not have suffered his house to be broken up."

Assuming that our country, acting as the head of a good house, has established a government conceived in liberty, and dedicated to the proposition that all men are created equal, that is, with equal privileges under laws, for the pursuit of happiness. Does the golden rule—or any rule justify an immigrant in violating with impunity the gracious provisions made for his home, and on behalf of the nation's own security?

Our nation places her goddess of liberty with uplifted torch enlightening the world, at the gates of our home. It stamps on our coinage this motto: "In God We Trust."

Under the enlightenment of that torch, but in his mistake of the liberty it proclaims, does the golden rule mean that a blatant Lithuanian or an ignorant Hottentot has a right to tell us to our face that: "There is no God?"

Or—But we are told, "this man is to be tried by a blue law," 200 years old.

Does truth or righteousness become obsolete and defunct because of age? If so, then the golden rule itself is more than 200 years old. The ten commandments are more than 3,000 years old—and the laws of New England were founded upon the principles of the decalogue.

Does not the golden rule rather require that the new-comer shall respect the constitutional privisions enacted for ourselves;—at least long enough for him to get acquainted with us, and learn the meaning of the laws enacted for our mutual advantage?

Or, is it ours to meekly swallow his disrepect?

Are we not, today feeling the evil results of misplaced and unappreciated lenience on the part of our courts?

We do invite the foreigner, and with the most sincere courtesy we say, "Come thou with us and we will do thee good," but we do not say to him, "Come here and make yourself conspicuous by outraging our manners and violating our laws." We owe it to ourselves and to him that we do not tolerate this. We owe it, also, to the many good people who have come and are coming to us, that they shall know that we discriminate, and show a preference. This is the golden rule they and we are looking for—the rule that recognises right-living and rewards it, and at the same time restrains and punishes the criminal. It is a legalization, and logical—"no culprit feels the halter drawn, with good opinion of the law." And we must trim him, and not trim the law.

JOHN TROLAND.

Norwich, Conn. Feb. 23, 1926.

Writes For Fair Play

Mr. Editor: One belonging to the genus biting animal coming from the back woods of Norwich, for some unknown reason, I found that he had to let his acrimenious spleen chase someone, began chasing a lion and finally endeavored to devour a Catholic priest for the great offence of preaching Americanism in America. I don't happen to belong to the Catholic faith and I know that the Catholic gentleman can well hold his own. However, I belong to the faith American—which stands for fair play. The citizen of Norwich so grossly and anonymously abused, against whom our wild so-called "hundred percenter" spits out so much investives and vituperations, happens to be a born American who rendered very valuable service to the government of the United States during the World war and who is the possessor of documentary thanks expressed to him by our government authorities for his patriotic service to the United States of America. Put on the scale with our bombastic self-styled patriot of the woods, he would outweigh our woodsman one hundred to one in true Americanism.

As for the shameful slur this so-called American casts upon our American citizens of foreign birth, his very language is un-American and not in spirit of the democracy of the fathers of America. An American is very poor indeed if he makes use of the singing of America and the Star Spangled Banner in a flighty, slangy, blatant, jocular and disrespectful tirade against a fine civic body of American citizens who command the respect of all good citizens of Norwich. Such abuse of privilege and indecency against the intelligence of the citizens of any American city ought to be punished by being ostracized from American society. It is certainly not the American claim of Washington, Lincoln and Roosevelt which our erratic scoffer so irreverently tries to appropriate and arrogate to himself. His is purely reactionary un-American bitterness and hatred to his fellowman. The wild ranting of a man of such erratic principles is a menace to the community and ought to be silenced.

IN THE PUBLIC EYE

Andre Tardieu, whose election to the French Chamber of Deputies marks his return to the political arena after a retirement of several years, is well known in America, having lectured at its universities, studied its political life, interviewed its statesmen and publicists, and put himself on record in a book giving his impressions of what he saw, heard and felt during his visits on this side. During the World war he spent some months in Washington as the French High Commissioner to the United States. As a journalist and the former editor of the Revue des Deux Mondes, he is widely known. For some years he has also been looked upon as an authority on international affairs, having had practical diplomatic experience in Berlin and in London as well as in Washington.

Anthony Corsi, who swore to a false statement implicating two other men in the dynamiting of the prosecuting attorney's residence in Torrington was fined $75 with costs, a total of $86.40 and sentenced to four months in jail.

Seaweed in Japan is a dinner delicacy—for the Japanese. In fact, the harvesting of seaweed is one of Japan's large industries. Of the many species of the weed, gathered from the bottom of the sea, the Japanese Tangle (Laminaria Japonica) is most popular because of its flavor and refreshing taste. This weed grows abundantly in the cold seas off Hokkaido and is harvested during the summer months. The yearly harvest off Hokkaido alone is estimated at 200,000,000 pounds. While this seaweed is relatively cheap, food chemists assert it is very nutritious and contains much "Vitamine A," the food element lacking in polished rice.

BURGESS BEDTIME STORIES

Chatterer Jumps for His Life

I'd rather often jump for naught,
Then fail to jump once when I ought.
—Chatterer the Red Squirrel.

Chatterer the Red Squirrel had left the Green Forest for a visit up in the Old Orchard. Chatterer is quite a roamer. He likes to travel about and find out all that is going on. There isn't one of the four-footed folk who knows as much about other people's business as Chatterer the Red Squirrel. There are others who would like to know as much about their neighbors, but they cannot. You see, Chatterer is so small and so spry and such a good climber that he can get into places where other people can't. So this particular morning Chatterer had gone up to the Old Orchard to see what he could discover.

It had popped into Chatterer's head that certain of the feathered folk like Tommy Tit and Chickadee and Yank the Nuthatch might be using some of those little houses in the Old Orchard to sleep in nights. It was no business of his if they did. No, sir. It was no business of his. But Chatterer intended to make it his business if he found that they were sleeping there. It was some time since he had had any fresh meat and he wasn't above catching one of his feathered neighbors if he had a chance. He might have the chance if he found that one of them was sleeping in one of those houses.

So Chatterer planned to visit every tree in that Old Orchard. There were some which had holes in them and these holes might be occupied. Anyway, it was worth while finding out what was going on in the Old Orchard. Of course, when he could do so, he jumped across from one tree to another. When the distance was too great, he ran across the snow to the next tree. All the time he kept his bright eyes open and on watch for Black Pussy or any other enemies that might be about. There were not many to watch for this time of year. So Chatterer felt quite safe.

Mocker the Mocking Bird saw Chatterer when he first entered the Old Orchard. He watched the little red-coated scamp. At the same time, he himself kept out of sight. He didn't want Chatterer to see him. "Now what is Chatterer about?" said Mocker to himself, as he saw Chatterer go into one bird house after another. "I wonder if he is thinking of moving over here to the Old Orchard. I wonder if it can be that he is looking for a new home. That won't do at all. We don't want him in the Old Orchard. It wouldn't be safe to have him about. If that is what he is up to, I shall have to see what I can do to discourage him. He ought to be given such a fright that he will scamper back to the Green Forest, where he belongs. I'll have to see what I can do about it. Let me think; let me think how I can give Chatterer a real scare. Ha! I have it!"

Mocker the Mocking Bird saw Chatterer when he first entered the Old Orchard

Mocker waited until Chatterer had disappeared in a certain little house which Winsome Bluebird had used the year before and in which it happened that Yank Yank the Nuthatch had spent his nights all winter. At once Mocker flew over and alighted just above and back of that little house. Then he waited. Presently Chatterer came out. He jumped over to a nearby branch and sat up. Before he had a chance to look around there was a scream. Chatterer didn't stop to look or think. He made a flying leap to the next tree and dodged around the trunk. As he did so that scream rang in his ears again. It was the scream of Redtail the Hawk. Chatterer knew it. It didn't pop into his head it was not yet time for Redtail to have returned from the South. "My," exclaimed Chatterer to himself, "that was a narrow escape!" Meanwhile, chuckling, Mocker the Mocking Bird flew away unseen.

A Sweet Stomach!

What a pity when youth and vitality are set at naught by a disordered stomach, and bad breath! Don't have them at any age! Hearty eaters—hard smokers—high livers—find Stuart's a boon and blessing!

Eat what you wish. Drink what you like. Then chew a Stuart tablet. That gives the stomach sufficient fluid—the result is a sweet stomach, serene digestion, no pains, no gas.

Full Box FREE!

Every druggist has Stuart's tablets 25c and 60c. Or, a full box free if you write the F. A. Stuart Company, Dept. A, Marshall, Mich. Get a small box of Stuart's, the package—and keep in mind that a few cents is the difference between indigestion and a sweet stomach.

STUART'S DYSPEPSIA TABLETS

Backache making you miserable?

YOU can't be happy when every day brings morning lameness, torturing backache and sharp, stabbing pains. Why not find the cause and correct it? Often it's weak kidneys. If you suffer annoying kidney irregularities, too—feel tired, nervous and worn out, use Doan's Pills. Doan's have helped thousands. Are endorsed here at home. Ask your neighbor!

Here's a Norwich Case:

HIRAM U. NEFF, 465 E. Main St., says: "I have used Doan's Pills for attacks of kidney trouble and rheumatic pains. The pains seem to settle mostly in my back and I can hardly stoop or straighten. Doan's Pills always remove the pains and my kidneys become regular."

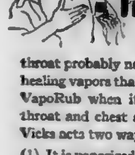
Sore throats need this Double-Treatment



YOUR sore, aching throat probably needs the soothing, healing vapors that arise from Vicks VapoRub when it is rubbed over throat and chest at bedtime. And Vicks acts two ways at once:

(1) It is vaporized by the body heat and inhaled right to the inflamed air passages, loosening the phlegm and easing the difficult breathing;

(2) At the same time it warms and stimulates the skin like an old-fashioned poultice, "drawing out" the pain and soreness and thus helps the vapors inhaled to relieve the congestion.

Good for the colds of all the family.

Treat for Bulletin Men

George Washington may or may not have been a prohibitionist; he may or may not have been a gambler, or many other things which are claimed both for and against him, but there is one thing he possessed and no one can dispute.

George Washington, Father of the Country, had a birthday. For having this at least, the Bulletin night force is willing to concede him all other good points, for the birthday resulted in a Washington party held Tuesday night by Division 13 A. O. H. The Bulletin night force was royally treated by the fair members of the division, the men working the "owls job" being treated to salad, baked beans, rolls, cake, and coffee during their lunch time Tuesday night.

This treat coming unexpectedly was most enjoyable, and, therefore, from a full heart (and stomach) the boys say to the division, "We thank you one and all."

The prizes at cards were won by Miss Nan Colberg, Mrs. Lyle Fillmore, Charles Wood, of Hartford, and Frank L. Crowell, of Norwich.

NORWICH MAN SAYS MIAMI IS COMING CITY OF THE SOUTHLAND

Miami is the coming city of the southland in the opinion of Hon. Nelson J. Ayling, judge of the local probate court, who with George H. Bradford of Montville, has just returned from a two weeks visit to Florida. It is expanding and growing very rapidly, said Judge Ayling, and it has modern, efficient, and ample police protection, hospitals, schools, theatres and stores. Miami is purely a northern city, being developed by northern men, northern money and brains. Judge Ayling and Mr. Bradford left for Florida Feb. 6, and arrived back home Feb. 21st., delighted with their visit to the southland's wonder city. Speaking of Miami Judge Ayling said Tuesday evening:

The most fantastic tales one hears about Florida are true, said Judge Ayling. The people in the north don't realize the size of Florida. There is as much difference in the climate between Miami and Jacksonville as between Norwich and Montreal. Florida is pretty nearly 450 miles north and south and Miami is 750 miles south of Los Angeles. The temperature in Miami seldom goes above 90 in summer. It is a delightful place in winter, of course.

It is like our June and the people wear summer clothes. It is very attractive to the northern visitor. There has been a large amount of propaganda put out in the north to stop the rush of money to Florida and particularly to stop the rush of tourists. Prices are not out of proportion to the conditions.

Rooming houses and high grade apartment houses and hotels are increasing every day and are able to take care of the normal growth of the city. Mr. Bradford and I occupied a room with twin beds, bath and all the conveniences of new and modern hotels for $5 a day each. The cost of food is about the same as in Hartford. Springfield or New York. A man can live as far as food is concerned for $2.50 a day up. Taxes are very low, based on a cost of one dollar per $1,000.

Miami is purely a northern city, being developed by northern men, money and brains. Miami is probably the most congested city in point of traffic of any city in the United States. It is expanding and growing very rapidly, has modern efficient and ample police protection, hospitals, schools, theatres and stores. During the embargo the highest cost of cement was $1.15 a bag. When I left there it was quoted at 78 cents a bag.

From 80 to 125 ships are discharging and waiting to discharge cargoes continuously. The cargoes are mostly for the development and construction work in the city. Enormous sums of money are being spent for the development of Miami.

The principal business places on the main street are mostly real estate offices. Miami's principal asset is the climate. The country in that particular section of the state is not very well adapted to agriculture.

With regard to Miami's harbor Judge Ayling said that the government has appropriated $1,600,000 for the dredging of the harbor and that when Miami secures the South American trade and shipping it will without doubt be one of the largest shipping centers in the country.

The spectacular boom in real estate is probably over Judge Ayling said, which will be a benefit for the steady growth of the city. Speaking of the industrial situation Judge Ayling said that there are over 7,000 union carpenters in Miami alone and that new buildings are constantly being erected. There are now 20 buildings over 12 stories high in Miami. There is now being erected a county courthouse 23 stories high. Miami has some of the largest, most conservative and most prosperous banks in the country.

All in all after one has been there a couple of weeks one gets eager for a glimpse of the hills of New England. Southern Florida is totally flat. The everglades are being drained and recovered and most of the recovered land resembles prairie land.

ACADEMY STUDENTS ENTER ORATION CONTEST

The students at the Norwich Free academy have received notification of the oration contest on the Constitution of The United States to be held in preliminary school competitions of the third national oratorical contest. It is probable that a number of the academy students will participate in the contests. The names of local contestants have not yet been filed by the students at the school office.

All orations given in connection with the national oratorical contest must deal with the Constitution or the influence of Washington, Hamilton, Jefferson Franklin, Marshall, Madison, Webster and Lincoln, on the framing or interpretation of the document.

In preparing their orations, high school pupils are urged to consult their teachers in selecting books from which to gather material on the particular phase of the Constitution of which they have chosen to speak. A practical method in preparing orations is to use the encyclopedias and the regular school work in history classes for the general background, and thereafter read one or more reasonably brief books for specific material.

The increasing participation of parochial and private schools in the national oratorical contest is one of the outstanding developments of the 1926 nation-wide competition according to reports being received from all parts of the country by Randolph Leigh, national contest director.

In this regard Director Leigh says: "In 1924 the contest was almost entirely confined to public high schools, the participation of the parochial schools being somewhat limited and that of the private schools almost negligible. In 1925 there was a marked increase in interest on the part of parochial and private schools. The parochial and private schools last year won first place in five newspaper territories and a parochial school spokesman, representing Loyola High school, of Los Angeles, won second place in the national finals.

"This year contest managers report that the parochial and private schools are entering in even greater numbers than in 1925, and in addition there seems to be a keen participation within those institutions for the right of speaking for them in the inter-scholastic phases of the contest.

"It is probable that this year the proportional participation of the parochial and private schools will equal if it does not exceed that of the public schools."

Among the tributes to the value of the research into American governmental beginnings and the practice in public speaking, to the high school pupils of the nation in the national oratorical contest, received from leading statesmen and public officials, is the following from Curtis D. Wilbur, secretary of the navy:

"I believe that the oratorical contest, requiring as it does familiarity with the principles of our government and the terms of our constitution and of our constitutional history, has been productive of the greatest good in familiarizing our young people, not only with the history of our country and with its present status, but also in pointing the way to further development along the lines indicated by the historical development of our institutions. That this historical contest has been extended to other nations is a most happy step forward in performing a similar service for other nations, and in stimulating international fellowship by the joint effort to understand the form of government under which we live, and this co-operative study will tend to better international understanding in the future."

MOOSE INITIATE ANOTHER CLASS OF CANDIDATES

Norwich lodge, No. 950, L. O. O. M., took in another large class of candidates at the meeting on Saturday evening, the degree work being done by the team in charge of Captain Swartzburg. Secretary Goepfert spoke on the good of the order, mentioning many good works accomplished by the lodge.

During the evening the Moose orchestra, under the leadership of Edward J. Brennan, furnished a delightful programme. There was a fine entertainment by Messrs. Kane, Lamart and Malcom, after which dancing and singing was enjoyed. The serving of refreshments brought the meeting to a close.

It was announced during the meeting that the final class of candidates will soon be initiated and this would bring the present drive to a close. This class will be known as the James J. Davis class and will be cared for during March, when it is expected that fully 300 candidates will be ready. A special entertainment is being planned for this meeting to be given by professional talent from a Boston bureau.

NORWICH MAN SPEAKER AT ROTARY ANNIVERSARY

(Special to The Bulletin.)

WILLIMANTIC, Feb. 23.—The Willimantic Rotary club celebrated its fifth anniversary with a turkey supper and fitting ceremonies at the Y. M. C. A. Tuesday night. Rev. Alexander H. Abbott of the Norwich club was the speaker of the evening, delivering a stirring address on Nationalism and Internationalism. About 80 were present, including the following visitors: From the parent club of Norwich, President Edwin A. Harris, John O'Rourke, Charles Welles and Rev. Mr. Abbott; from the child club of Putnam, Vice President Carl Phillips, Secretary Rev. James F. English, William Wheaton, Attorney Howard C. Bradford, John Riordan and Alexander Gilman; from the grand-child club of Danielson, were President Sabin S. Russell and Sydney Marland. A telegram of congratulation was received from J. William Clarke, secretary of the New London club. Rev. James F. English invoked grace. A delightful supper was prepared and served by the Ladies' Auxiliary of the Y. Table and room decorations were arranged by Rotarian William A. Dawson.

The meeting was of much significance as in addition to the birthday of the local club the occasion also marked the birthday of Rotary International which was established in 1905 and the welcoming of two new members. Supreme Court Judge George E. Hinman and Kenneth H. Hillhouse. These two new members will be initiated with others recently elected at a big initiation meeting to be held on March 9th.

President John F. Ahern called the meeting to order at 6.30 o'clock. The call was read by Secretary Girard E. Loiselle, showing the haymakers leading the coal heavers in the attendance contest. Luncheon music was rendered by Ralph H. Gibson, violinist and Clifford Donnelley, pianist. Harry W. Standish was song leader with Dr. R. Bullock Jones at the piano. The first ceremonial was the cutting of birthday cakes by the officers of the respective visiting clubs and Vice President James P. Bath for the local club.

At an unexpected moment the surprise stunt of the evening was staged under the arrangement of Past President Valentine L. Murphy. The scenario was read by Secretary Loiselle. After an introductory review of the birth and growth of the Rotary movement by Rev. Arthur F. Wheelock, readings from behind a screen, the various scenes were described. They showed the growth of the local club in animated manner. Those participating were Frank H. Foss, first president of the club, as Father Norwich; C. Harry Branch, as the child; P. J. Laramee as the boy; G. Everett Harrington as the young man; Raymond A. Parker as a little more and A. L. Weatherhead as the big fellow. The next number was the singing of a Rotary song written by Valentine L. Murphy, the club musical composer and rendered by President Ahern and Past Presidents Standish, Mustard, Murphy and Foss. Rev. Mr. Abbott was then heard in an excellent address.

The committee in charge consisted of President Ahern, Past Presidents Harry W. Standish, James P. Mustard, and Valentine L. Murphy.

WROTE INDIAN SKETCH FOR BOY SCOUT MAGAZINE

An account of Chief Joseph (or Thunder-Traveling-Over the Mountains) of the Vez Perces Indians of Oregon appears in the March number of Boys Life, the official magazine of the Boy Scouts. The article was written by Frederick A. Benton, former scout executive in this city, and is accompanied by pictures of the war bow of this celebrated chief as well as a photograph of the warrior himself.

The bow and arrows, captured in 1877, were placed with the Boy Scouts exhibit last spring in one of the windows of the Plaut-Cadden store. The bow was presented by Dr. Charles Bingham of General Howard's staff, to his brother-in-law, E. V. Wingard, and by him to his granddaughter, Mrs. F. A. Benton.

EMPLOYED BOYS MEET AT LOCAL Y. M. C. A.

The Employed Boys held their meeting at the Norwich Y. M. C. A. Tuesday evening. The meeting opened with the singing of the first verse of America after which the members enjoyed a splendid supper. President Lambert moved that a rising vote of thanks be given to Mrs. Sandburg and Mrs. Jackson for their kindness in making cake and best salad for the supper.

After supper popular songs were sung and a discussion of current topics was lead by Emory Davis, boys' secretary of the Y. At the next meeting of the club Edwin A. Harris, president of the Norwich Rotary club will speak to the members.

LADIES' AUXILIARY HOLDS WASHINGTON PARTY

Members of Division 13, Ancient Order of Hibernians, made merry Tuesday evening at Buckingham Memorial when a Washington birthday party was held in observance of the natal day of the father of our country. The affair was entirely social and there was entertainment in singing, dancing and card playing. At whist the first prize was awarded to Mrs. William McClafferty, who received a pair of silk hose. First prize for high score in pinochle, a pair of candle sticks, was awarded Mrs. Theodore Levitsky.

The musical part of the programme included delightful solo numbers by Mrs. Bernard Keenan and Mrs. Timothy Donovan, after which dancing was enjoyed and musical selections were rendered by the Division orchestra, with Mrs. Anna Niles at the piano and Mrs. Theodore Levitsky, violinist.

The rooms were prettily decorated in red and white streamers, which ran from the center of the room to every corner. Tables were also decorated in red and white and at each plate covers being laid for eighty, were placed favors of fancy paper hats and patriotic hearts. A delightful luncheon was served by the committee in charge, assisted by other members of the division.

The social proved one of the most pleasant affairs of the year and its success was due to the untiring efforts of the committee in charge, comprising Mrs. Edward Sullivan, Mrs. James Fox, Mrs. James Ward, Mrs. Mary McNally and the Misses Mary E. Hartis, Mollie Carroll, Margaret Monahan and May Nolan.

PLANNING CELEBRATION FOR ITALIAN INDEPENDENCE DAY

Plans for the local celebration of the Italian Independence Day, September 4th next, were discussed Tuesday evening at a meeting of the Dante Culture club in the parish house of the Central Baptist church. The meeting which had a good sized attendance was presided over by President Basil Romano. It is the intention of the club to make the local celebration even a greater success of the one last fall.

As a means of raising money for the celebration fund the club is making plans for a dance to be held next week. Letters are to be sent to the prominent Italian residents of the city asking them to cooperate with the club in the celebration plans. It is probable that a celebration headquarters will be opened for the purpose of holding meetings incident to planning the programme for the day.

CONNECTICUT LEADING IN COTTON SPINDLES

The Connecticut cotton spinning industry reported the highest average number of active spindle hours per spindle in place in January of any of the New England states, and was ninth among the 15 states leading in this industry, according to figures issued by the department of commerce, bureau of census. Connecticut's average was considerably below that for the entire country.

Connecticut had 1,196,5428 spinning spindles in place on January 31, while the number active during the month was 1,070,390. The total active spindle hours for January was 219,532,029, while the average per spindle in place was 183. This latter figure compares with the average for the country, 221, the average for New England 149, and the highest in the country, 317, for South Carolina.

STORRS HENS SHOW INCREASED PRODUCTION

After a decline in egg production that lasted over a period of four weeks, the 1,400 pullets in the Storrs egg laying contest came out of their slump in the sixteenth week, laying a total of 3,956 eggs, or slightly over forty per cent. This is 137 eggs more than were laid in the fifteenth week, but 524 eggs less than were laid in the corresponding week a year ago. The contest flock should continue to increase its production in the approaching weeks, provided the weather remains moderate. To date, a grand total of 59,509 eggs have been laid by the contest flock. This is an average of forty-two eggs per bird since the contest got under way last November.

For the second consecutive week, the Rhode Island Red entry of George B. Treadwell, from Spencer, Mass., headed the honor roll, this time with a lay of fifty-four eggs. This is three eggs better than the high score of a week ago. And for the second consecutive week John Z. LaBelle's Reds, from Ballouville, Conn., took second place, the Nutmeg pen laying fifty-three eggs. LaBelle's entry incidentally, is at present the high pen in the contest, and at the rate they are laying now give every promise of retaining their position for some time to come. Another pen of Reds, entered by Fred H. Sampson, from Springfield, Mass., was third for the week with a lay of forty-six eggs. The White Leghorn entry of Toivonen farm, from Girard, Pa., was fourth for the week with a lay of forty-five eggs. Three of the four honor roll positions for the sixteenth week were taken by Rhode Island Red pens.

LaBelle's Reds, at present high pen in the contest with a score of 789 eggs, gained twenty-one eggs in the sixteenth week on their nearest competitor, the Dudley Poultry farm Leghorns, from Webster, Mass. This gives the Connecticut Reds a margin of sixty-three eggs over their Leghorn rivals from Massachusetts, a margin that will in all probability be increased in the next few weeks. The only change that took place among the leading pens occurred in the White Leghorn class, when the entry of Amakassin farm, from Yonkers, N. Y., went up into third position, displacing the entry of Mount Hope, from Williamstown, Mass.

The leading pens in each of the principal varieties are as follows:

White Wyandottes
The Locusts West Cornwall, Conn.	551
Obed G. Knight Bridgeton, R. I.	537
Rhode Island Reds
John Z. LaBelle Ballouville, Conn.	789
R. D. Sargent East Ryegate, Vt.	654
George B. Treadwell Spencer, Mass.	636
Shell Crest Farm Holliston, Mass.	532
Barred Rocks
Edgar Stoughton Wapping, Conn.	535
Harriet Smith Newburyport, Mass.	517

Poultney Bigelow's Reply

The following appeared in a New York paper Tuesday:

The other evening a telephone call from your office informed me—as I understood it—that H. G. Wells was bringing suit against me in London for $50,000. My reply was in the nature of a cheery laugh and the comment that on the contrary it was myself who was the injured party and who therefore, was bringing suit against Mr. Wells. Nor must this be taken too literary, Mr. Wells is a pacifist and earnest preacher of "international" socialism. He is idolized in Berlin for his more than Christian forgiveness, especially toward those who instigated the most cruel and widespread war of modern times. Personally I detest those doctrines; but I have only admiration for the genius and sincerity of Mr. Wells. He does not need $50,000—far from it. And were I to win the suit against him I would not know how to spend so much money.

CONSTANT CURLING AND WAVING RUINS HAIR

Girls just must curl and wave bobbed hair to appear their prettiest. But constant curling and waving burn and dry the luster, vitality and very life from the hair.

To offset these bad effects, just get a 35-cent bottle of delightful, refreshing "Danderine" at any drug store or toilet counter and just see for yourself how quickly it revives dry, brittle, lifeless, and fading hair.

"Danderine" is a dependable tonic and will do wonders for any girl's hair. It nourishes, stimulates and strengthens each single hair, bringing back that youthful gleam, glint and vigorous luxuriance. Falling hair stops and dandruff disappears. "Danderine" is pleasant and easy to use.

GIRL GAINED 7 POUNDS NINE YEARS AN INVALID

That's just what McCoy's Cod Liver Oil Compound Tablets did for the Babcock Girl—and is doing as much for tens of thousands of thin, underweight, weak and discouraged people all over America.

These sugar coated, pleasant to take tablets should be given to children instead of the vile stomach upsetting oil itself—they surely do help the frail, delicate little ones and 60 tablets cost but 50 cents at Lee & Osgood Co. or any druggists.

Read this letter if you have a child that needs to gain health and strength.

"My little girl was stricken with infantile paralysis when she was 8 months old and was an invalid for 9 years—when I saw an ad in the paper that McCoy's Cod Liver Oil Compound Tablets would build up wasted tissues. I bought a box and she gained very slowly at first and after taking eight boxes, she gained seven pounds. Thanks to McCoy's Cod Liver Oil Compound Tablets, after trying almost everything else on the market. She is on the road to recovery and goes to school every day." Mrs. L. Babcock, Appleton, Wis.

Imitations of McCoy's may be offered but be sure and ask for McCoy's, the original and genuine and if after thirty days' treatment you are not delighted with results—why, get your money back.

MISS WILLS WINS TWO MATCHES BUT HER PLAY WAS NOT UP TO STANDARD

MONTE CARLO, Feb. 23—Helen Wills' appearances on the Monte Carlo tennis courts today were remarkable for the record crowd she drew rather than for the brilliance of her play. Although she won two matches, one, in the singles of the Monte Carlo tournament, in straight love sets, she failed to show the spirit and dash which characterized her playing in the Beaulieu tournament which ended yesterday.

She advanced to the third round in the singles by defeating Mrs. Marriott of England, 6-0, 6-0, while in the doubles play for the Beaumont cup she and her partner, Mrs. C. F. Aeschilmann, formerly Leslie Bancroft of Boston, were hard pressed to take two of three sets. With Mrs. Aeschilmann in poor form the American team encountered stiff opposition in Mrs. Lambert Chambers and Miss E. H. Harvey of England, and won only after dropping the first set, 2-6, 6-4, 6-3.

Miss Wills carried her team to victory practically unaided, as her partner was in poor health and appeared on the courts only to oblige Helen and enable her to play through for the Beaumont trophy, which the California girl is very anxious to win. Members of the English team were soon aware of Mrs. Aeschilmann's weakness and centered their attack on her to win the first set. In the next two sets, however, Miss Wills was all over the courts, and played the match as if it were singles instead of doubles.

The American champion received an ovation from the largest crowd that ever attended a tennis tournament at Monte Carlo, although this tourney is still in its early rounds. Miss Wills appearances on the Riviera are now regarded as great attractions as those of Suzanne Lenglen. There was a time when the French champion alone was able to draw large attendances, and any tournament which she scorned was unusually doomed to financial failure, but the little California girl has now challenged the pre-eminence of Suzanne in the hearts of the Riviera fans.

Miss Wills' play in the singles was not brilliant today, although her opponents failed to win a game. Mrs. Marriott brought five games to deuce and did not lose a single love game. The first game of the second set went to deuce eleven times before Miss Wills finally won it. The point scores follow:

	First set
Miss Wills	4	8	4	5	7	6—33—6
Mrs. Marriott	1	6	1	3	5	3—19—0
	Second set
Miss Wills	15	4	4	4	4	4—35—6
Mrs. Marriott	13	3	1	1	2	1—20—0

Senatorita de Alvares, of Spain, who shared with Miss Wills the honor of being the only other player seeded in the present tournament, also won her match, defeating Mrs. Pitman, of England, 6-2, 6-0.

Frau Neppach, the German champion, weathered the first round, defeating Miss Mary Cambridge, 6-2, 6-2.

That a return match between Mlle. Lenglen and Miss Wills may yet take place in the Nice tournament was the opinion expressed by those close to the French champion after Susanne had telephoned to Referee Georges Simond that she was in much improved condition after a day's rest and was ready to play for the Beaumont cup Friday, instead of Saturday, as she first intended. She will return to Nice tomorrow.

Nice club officials this evening expressed the opinion that "our Suzanne" would not let them down, but would give them the opportunity of attracting great crowds by another meeting with the California girl.

Today for the first time since coming to the Riviera Miss Wills used the English make of ball, which is reputed to be slower than the American make, and was surprised when informed that her play was not up to her usual standard in the singles. She showed wonderful form, however, in the doubles, in which she and Mrs. Aeschilmann defeated Mrs. Lambert Chambers and Miss E. H. Harvey of England, 3-6, 6-4, 6-3.

Mrs. Aeschilmann made 44 errors and was not in physical condition; she excused herself to Miss Wills after the match.

Miss Wills, Frau Neppach and Miss Eileen Bennett have qualified in the upper half of the draw, while Senorita de Alvarez, Miss Harvey, Mlle. Contostavos and Mrs. Satterthwaite are in the lower.

Miss Wills will have a relative rest tomorrow, playing only one doubles match in the open championships, in which she is paired with Mlle. Contostavos. She will not play in the singles, having rung ahead of the field through her victory today and the default of her opponent in the first round.

JEWETT CITY TOWN TEAM CLASHES WITH TAFTVILLE

This (Wednesday) evening at Bijou hall, Jewett City, the Taftville Crescents will endeavor to blast the cherished hope of the newly organized Town Team of winning their initial encounter of the present season. To defeat Jewett City Taftville will have to display a remarkable brand of basketball for the Towners in recent workouts have shown that they have no mean ability as hoopsters and are now fully prepared to set forth against the best in this section.

Taftville will bank their hopes on the following: J. Murphy and Gauthier at forwards, E. Murphy at center, Eccleston, T. Coleman and Coady in the guard positions.

The Jewett City Town Team will have Blake and LeClaire in the scoring positions, Faber will do the jumping and C. Benjamin and Barry will protect the back-court. When rivals of long standing like Jewett City and Taftville crash the fur is sure to fly for neither team will admit defeat without the bitterest sort of a struggle. The Crescents would like nothing better than to avenge the two defeats administered to the Taftville team earlier in the season by the champion Jewett City Pros but the Towners are just as strong in their determination that the victory will be chalked in the Jewett City win column.

The preliminary will bring together the two most logical contenders for the Eastern Conn. junior title, the whirlwind Plainfield Buddies and the crack, undefeated Fisk Red Tops of Jewett City. This game promises to be a repitition of the big game as far as speed and rivalry is concerned and it would cause no surprise if the final toss decided the issue so closely are the teams matched. Everything considerd pure unadulterated action should feature the classy program offered to all basketball fans and from a sporting angle it should prove a worthwhile evening.

LITTLE HOPE HELD FOR EDDIE PLANK'S RECOVERY

GETTYSBURG, Pa., Feb. 26—Eddie Plank, former Philadelphia Athletic baseball star was slowly sinking tonight and hope for his recovery was all but abandoned by relatives and the attending physician. The once powerful pitcher, who stemmed the tide of many a big league contest, apparently was helpless against the encroachments of paralysis with which he was stricken yesterday and which has affected his left side and his organs of speech so that he is unable to talk with those at his bedside.

Only at rare intervals was he conscious and at such times tears welled from his eyes and coursed down his tanned and lined cheeks, reports from the sick room said.

Today Eddie's aged parents, Mr. and Mrs. David Plank, were told of his illness, and both were overcome with grief. The former pitching star's wife and their ten year old son, Eddie, Jr., are constant attendants at the bedside.

Plank was in the major leagues for 17 years, but won his greatest fame with the Athletics. He later went to the St. Louis Federals and then was sent to the St. Louis Americans but did not report, retiring instead from baseball to devote his time to garage business here. Three years ago he retired from business.

BROADWAY ATHLETES CAPTURE CUP IN GRAMMER SCHOOL MEET AT Y. M. C. A.

It was Broadway's day in the "Y" gym yesterday afternoon, when the Broadwayites, for the second season, succeeded in capturing the grammar school indoor athletic championship from Greeneville and Elizabeth Street schools, the scores being 32, 16, 16. The meet proved to be one of the most exciting contests held thus far, and was one round of strenuous competition from beginning to end.

Among the exciting events were the obstacle relay in which the lads vaulted over a wall nearly five feet in height, and which was captured by the Broadwayites. Equally popular was the basketball relay and potato races, the latter calling for some strenuous work on the part of both the spectators and athletes, for the former were most liberal with their cheering, and they made the big gym ring to the roof with their school cheers as they tried to encourage their teams to "step on it."

Following the meet, Secretary Hill of the YMCA complimented the teams on their spirited sportsmanship and presented the Broadway team with the fine trophy cup which was contributed by the Norwich Evening Record.

The scores and events were as follows:

Events	Broadway	Elizabeth St.	Greeneville
Obstacle race	6	3	1
Broad jump	6	0	0
Girls rope skip	5	3	2
Target throw	1	3	6
Potato race	6	1	3
Girls relay race	3	2	5
Basketball relay	5	1	3
Totals	32	15	16

Officials: J. E. Stanton, Mr. Frank Clapp, O. W. Hargraves, J. Evans, W Wyman, O. Mossession, H. Ludlow, F. Barber, E. Stevens, Miss Shaffer, E. H. Davis, E. J. Fritz.

Individual winners—

Broadjump—

Potato race—Trials, Broadway, Deatri, Serra, Lynch; Greeneville, Bartnicki, Monty, Fountain; Elizabeth St., Sadinsky, Worthy, Serrafin; finals, Deatri 1st; Lynch 2nd, Worthy 3rd.

Girls rope skip, Miss Laltochelle 1st; 7 seconds; (E) Miss Oatk (G) D. Vulcares (B) tied for 2nd. Miss Constandi (B) Miss Lafreniere (G) tied for third.

BERLENBACH GIVEN PERMISSION TO FIGHT AS HEAVYWEIGHT

NEW YORK, Feb. 23.—(AP)—Paul Berlenbach, world's light-heavyweight champion, today was granted permission to engage in matches with heavyweights by the State Athletic Commission on condition that he fight within the 175-pound weight limit of his own division.

Sanction was given after two previous refusals by the board upon Berlenbach's promise to meet the winner of the Mike McTigue-Jack Delaney match in defense of his world's title. At the same time, the commission approved a bout between Berlenbach and Jack Renault, Canadian heavyweight, which matchmaker Jess McMahon plans to stage March 19 at Madison Square Garden.

Commenting on its concession to Berlenbach, the commission pointed out that Paul will virtually exhaust the present supply of "logical challengers" when he meets the winner of the McTigue-Delaney fight, which is scheduled for Madison Square Garden, March 15.

The Berlenbach-Renault match, is yet unsigned, but matchmaker Mc Mahon expressed confidence that he will have no trouble coming to terms with the principals. Dan Hickey manager of Berlenbach has already agreed to the match.

Sid Terris, New York lightweight, was suspended for failure to fulfill an engagement to meet Harry Cook at Buffalo N. Y., last night. Terris pleaded illness and the commission placed him on the sick list until March 21, when he was ordered to fight Cook.

Bushey Graham of Utica, N. Y., suspended recently for fouling Tommy Ryan at Buffalo, N. Y. was ordered to meet Ryan in a return match at Buffalo, March 17, when his suspension will terminate.

Lou Bogash, Bridgeport, Conn middleweight, was reinstated after being suspended since October 1925. Jimmy Hutchinson, a boxer, suspended upon the request of the Connecticut commission, was reinstated when similar action was taken in Connecticut. John O'Brein, a manager, also suspended by the same boards, was denied reinstatement until he makes his ppeace with the Connecticut officials.

EDDIE PLANK WELL KNOWN TO LOCAL BASEBALL FANS.

It is indeed with regret that the local baseball fans learned of the serious illness of Eddie Plank veteran pitcher of the Philadelphia Athletics at his home in Gettysburg, Pa., where he and his brother Ira conducted a garage. Eddie Plank is no stranger to many of the old dyed-in-the-wool baseball fans as he has been a frequent visitor to Norwich in the old days of the Connecticu tleague.

Ira Plank, brother of Eddie, pitched for the Norwich team in the old Connecticut league for a number of years and the veteran Philadelphia hurler used to visit his brother here. When Danny Murphy was praying with the Athletics Eddie would pay Norwich a visit at the close of the big league season before going to the Maine woods on the annual hunting trip. During these visits to Norwich Eddie made many friends here who are hoping for his speedy recovery. Eddie's last visit to Norwich was several years ago when the Philadelphia Athletics played against the Norwich K. of C. team at the fairgrounds.

SCHAEFER TAKES LEAD IN 18.1 BILLIARDS

CHICAGO, Feb. 23—(AP)—Young Jake Schaefer today swept past Willie Hoppe in the third block of their 1500 point 18.1 billiard exhibition match to lead the 18.1 champion at the half way point of the play, 750 to 670. Schaefer establishe dthe 80 point margin during ten innings, overcoming a two point advantage, which Hoppe gained in yesterday's two blocks.

As in the previous play, Young Jake outran the veteran titleholder. He did not approach his record breaking run of 313 made last night, but his best one inning total of 91 was 16 points above Hoppe's best which was 75.

S. U. Marksmen Win

BOSTON, Feb. 23—(AP)—Boston university was the victor in three rifle shoots last week, according to telegraphic results announced today. The Boston riflemen defeated Ohio State university, 1924 to 1906; Amherst 1871 to 1652; and University of Delaware 1871 to 1827.

BANNER CARD AT HARTFORD NEXT MONDAY

HARTFORD, Feb. 23.—Kid Kaplan, featherweight champion of the world, who has been enjoying the leisure of a non-combatant for some time, steps out into the arena again Monday night March 1, when he does battle with Billy Petrolle, of Fargo, North Dakota, at the big state armory in Hartford.

Many important ring encounters of recent years, some of them for titles, have found a Jewish boxer arrayed against one of Italian descent—fighters of these two nationalities having been in the ascendant of late—and the star bout arranged by George Mulligan for the enormous drillshed at Hartford on March 1 is another such skirmish.

Kaplan, rugged titleholder of Jewish parentage, is pitted against Billy Petrolle, a dark-eyed earnest Italian boy who has battled his way from the local farm of Fargo, N. D., to a point where leading sports writers sing his praises and profess to see in him a potential champion.

Petrolle has been campaigning in the east about one year and has written a fine record which reached its highest point some two weeks ago when he knocked out Eddie (Kid) Wagner of Philadelphia.

Wagner has fought practically every boy of repute in his class, but none had been able to put him on the canvas for the long count until the pilgrim from North Dakota turned the trick.

Wagner holds a decision over Kaplan, though the present featherweight champion later reversed it to square the slate.

The bout between Petrolle and Kaplan promises to be replete with action. Both are aggressive fighters of the tearing-in variety and there will be few steps backward as they mill around the ring in the big Hartford armory on March 1.

The sponsor for the show, which takes rank as the leading ring event of the year in Connecticut, is the Connecticut A. C., of which George Mulligan is matchmaker.

The semi-final is yet to be arranged though a meeting between Eddie Andersen and Bobby Garcia is in process of arrangement.

The two opening bouts are far above the class of the usual preliminaries. In one Georgie Day of New Haven, battles Eddie Lord, who is now in the Kaplan stable, while Harry Goldstein, fleet Boston boxer, meets Ruby Bradley (Dark Cloud) of Holyoke, for the flyweight title of New England. Both these bouts will be for eight rounds.

The Connecticut A. C. has arranged for seating accommodations for 12,000 and a capacity house is expected.

TAFTVILLE CRESCENTS WIN FROM DANIELSON TOWN TEAM

Before a very small crowd the Taftville Crescents turned back the Danielson Town team, 36 to 27, last night at Taftville, in the second game of the season between these two clubs. The game was fast from the start to finish and was marked by brilliant basketball by both teams. Taftville and Danielson raced through the first half of the game neck and neck but in th esecond half the Danielson team lost its ability to get baskets when needed and the Taftville aggregation gradually forged to the front.

The scoring honors for Taftville went to Rabbit Gauthier and Eddie Murphy, Gauthier getting five field goals and two fouls while Murphy had three baskets and 5 fouls. For Danielson, Blakeley was the shining light garnering 12 points for his team.

In the preliminary game the Celtics smothered the Ponemah Wheel club five under a 50 to 10 score.

The game, from a financial point, was a flivver, the Taftville boys getting a bad set-back. The crowd failed to support the team and the boys will have to dig down in their jeans to make the grade. This has been the trouble with basketball in Taftville this season. There seems to be a decided lack of interest in the game and one team has already been forced out because of the lack of patronage. Taftville, once a red-hot basketball town, is losing its interest.

The summary:

KLINE HAS LOW CARD IN LAKELAND OPEN

LAKELAND, Fla., Feb. 23—(AP)—Willie Kline, West Palm Beach, turned in a card of 148 for 36 holes today in the first day's rounds in the Lakeland open championship medal play tournament here. Tommy Armour, Sarasota, was runner up with 144.

Bobby Cruickshank, unattached, while making four birdies in the afternoon rounds, failed to take advantage of his opportunities in the morning round and came in third with 145, he was tied with Al Espinosa, of Chicago, and Andy Kay of Toronto.

Mike Brady, of Winnfoot, N. Y., whose morning 67, five below par for the 18 holes was the low score, went into the rough several times in the afternoon rounds taking an 81. This gave him 148, which was still among the low ones, he was tied by Johnny Farrell, Tampa.

Other low players were John Dawson, amateur of Chicago, 146; Biff Mehlhorn, Chicago, 147; John Golden, Paterson, N. J., 146, and Larry Nabholtz, Cleveland, 148.

The final 36 holes will be played tomorrow.

STATE HOSPITAL TO HAVE STRONG TEAM THIS SEASON

At a recent meeting of the Riverview baseball team Paul Zemke was appointed manager for the season of 1926 to succeed Bill Donovan who resigned at the close of last season to take up a position in Boston. Donovan had been manager of the Riverview club for a number of years.

In Paul Zemke in charge of the club the team has acted wisely as Paul has had a world of experience in baseball for the past twenty years and today can take his turn in the box and turn in as good a game as many of the youngsters. During the time with the old Eastern Connecticut Trolley league operated Paul Zemke was known as one of the brainiest pitchers in the circuit and today he is even more crafty. Under Paul's direction backed up by years of experience a banner season is looked forward to at the State Hospital. Paul is popular with the players and fans alike.

Already plans are being formulated for the 1926 season and games are being scheduled for the season. It is reported that several new players will be given try-outs at the early part of the season.

NINE CANADIAN DOG TEAMS OF N. E. TITLE

NORTH CONWAY, N. H., Feb. 23.—(AP)—Nine Canadian sled dog teams including leaders in the Eastern International Derby at Quebec have arrived here for the New England point to point race which will be run Thursday Friday and Saturday over a course of 140 miles starting and ending here. In addition four American drivers including one woman, are schedule to race.

Francois Dupuis, who led the fast field at Quebec to win in record time was one of the last to enter. Shorty Russick, George Chevrette and Emile St. Godard, who finished second, third and fourth in the Quebec Derby are counting on a new deal here, they announced today. The American drivers will be Arthur T. Walden of Wonolancet, Walter Channing of Boston, Edward P. Clark of West Milan, and Mrs. Clark.

The prizes, offered by the New England Sled Dog Club, are the same as at Quebec, the highest being of $1 000.

HOFF CLEARS BAR AT 13 FT. 41-2 IN. FOR ANOTHER RECORD FOR POLE VAULT

NEW YORK, Feb. 23—(AP)—Charley Hoff, Norway's sensational pole vaulter, soared to a new world's record in his specialty tonight when he cleared the bar at 13 feet, 4 1-2 inches, at the New York A. C. meet in Madison Square Garden.

Hoff's performance added a half inch to his own record, set six days ago at the Norwegian turneverein games in Brooklyn. It was the sixth time since he started his American invasion that the "vaulting Viking" has surpassed the listed work's mark of 13 feet.

Hoff cleared his new record height after knocking off the cross bar on his first attempt and also after a narrow escape from injury in an earlier trial when he stumbled in a crack in the runway and tumbled headforemost into the sandpit. The mishap upset him temporarily and resumed his record attempt after carpenters had repaired the defect.

Hoff had little competition, his two closest rivals, Bradley of Princeton, and Durfee of Yale being unable to do better than 13 feet and tying at that distance for second place.

Willie Ritola spread-eagled his field in a two mile run, although conceding generous handicaps but the Finnish-American star fell far short of the world's record of 8.58 1-5, set by Paavo Nurmi at the New York A. C. games a year ago.

Ritol lapped all his opponents and was clocked in 9.13 4-5 as he broke the tape 200 yards ahead of his nearest rival, Fred Yater, of the New York A. C., who had an allowance of 125 yards.

"Pinkie" Sober, sensational middle distance runner of the College of the City of New York, uncorked a brilliant closing sprint to beat George Leness of M. I. T., in a half mile special.

Sober's time of 1:56 1-5 was the fastest race of his career and the best time for the distance so far during the indoor season. The world's record of 1:54 3-5 was set in 1904 by E. B. Parson at Buffalo.

Alan Helffrich crack middle distance runner of the New York A. C. and winner of the event last year, was beaten by Ray Robertson of the Boston A. A. in a thrilling finish in the 500-yard special for the Buermeyer trophy.

Cecil Torrance of Penn. State college set the early pace.

The result was a distinct upset. Helffrich was figured a strong favorite to repeat his 1925 triumph and had shown himself in record-breaking from only yesterday. When he set a new 600 metre mark.

The "Baxter mile" was won by Willie Goodwin of the New York A. C., after a stirring brush over the last lap with Jimmy Connolly, a club mate. Goodwin set the pace for a field of seven all the way, holding a substantial lead until the last lap when Connolly spurted and made a sensational bid for victory which failed by barely a yard.

Trailing 15 yards behind Connolly was Red Haggerty of Harvard, intercollegiate mile champion, followed by Willard Tibbets of Harvard, Eddie Kirby, of the Newark A. C., John Theobald of Columbia and Schuyler Enck of Philadelphia, former Penn State runner.

Pennsylvania's one mile relay quartet races to victory over Maryland and Yale in a sensational three-cornered contest in which J. Endslow, crack anchor runner for Maryland, starting the last lap 15-yards in the ruck, overcame all but a yard of this handicap in a gallant bid for victory.

Scull, Penn's anchor man, barely staved off Endslow's rush, which carried him to second place, a foot ahead of Bayes Norton, of Yale.

J. C. McDonald gave Penn a lead on the first quarter mile leg which his teammates maintained all the way.

Al Miller, 200 pound Harvard sprinter, sped to victory in the sixty yard dash special beating Chester Bowman of the Newark A. C., by a foot in the fast time of 6 2-5 seconds.

The final of the 60 yard high hurdles resulted in a close victory for Ray Wolfe of Pennsylvania over Carl Christiansen of the Newark A. C., with Charley Moore of Penn State, the only other starter, in third place.

CHANDLER —for Power

Five world's records belong to Chandler—proof conclusive of Chandler's power!

(1) Record for climbing the slopes of Pikes Peak, highest of all automobile climbs, in 17 minutes, 48⅖ seconds. (2) Record of 1000 miles in 689 minutes, average of 86.9 miles an hour. (3) The high gear climbing record on Mt. Diablo. (4) The climbing record up the Continental Divide. (5) The climbing record on Mt. Washington.

Only last month, a Chandler broke the course record at Muroc Lake, California, by doing a mile in 31.1 seconds, an average of 115.3 miles an hour!

—for Progress

The records just mentioned speak volumes for the progress of Chandler's famous Pikes Peak Motor. Progress is likewise evident in new Chandler body developments, and also in the chassis.

All new Chandlers, for instance, now have the great "One Shot" Lubrication System. Plunge a plunger with your heel—just once—and "One Shot" instantly and thoroughly lubricates the entire chassis!

—for Price

All new Chandler prices represent large reductions. Look at the new Twentieth Century Sedan, now $1590; the new Metropolitan Sedan De Luxe, now $1895; the new Seven-Passenger Sedan, now $1995; the new Brougham, now $1695; all prices f. o. b. Cleveland. Quality now talks price—and Chandler sales reflect tremendous gains in Chandler popularity. See these record-winning new models.

"HAIR-GROOM"

Keeps Hair Combed, Glossy

Well-Groomed all Day

"Hair-Groom" is a dignified combing cream which costs only a few cents a jar at any drug-store. Millions use it because it gives that natural gloss and well-groomed effect to the hair—that final touch to good dress both in business and on social occasions. Even stubborn, unruly or shampooed hair stays combed all day in any style you like. "Hair-Groom" is greaseless; also helps grow thick, heavy, lustrous hair.

JEWETT CITY

PROWLER FLEES TO SWAMP—ESCAPES OFFICERS' SHOTS

(Special to The Bulletin.)

JEWETT CITY, Feb. 23—Monday night, about midnight, William Shaw, who lives on the Pachaug road, called up Deputy Sheriff Dolan and said someone was prowling about his house and had been since nine o'clock. With Officer Vegiard and Benjamin Schlaifer, the deputy started for the place. The person was still there, but started for the swamp nearby, with the men after him. Both Dolan and Vegiard fired their revolvers repeatedly after the fleeing man. They could hear him breaking through the ice but were unable to get up to him. A revolver was left with Mr. Shaw, that a warm reception might await any other such visitor.

NEW BEDFORD AIREDALE CHEWS WAY TO FREEDOM

(Special to The Bulletin.)

JEWETT CITY, Feb. 23—W. A. Ramsden brought an airedale from New Bedford to his home Monday. During the night, the dog chewed the woodwork around a window and went through the glass panes. The family did not know he had gone until morning. Blood was on the curtains, so he must have cut himself in his attempt to go back home. He had not been located Monday night.

Basketball tonight, after church. Bijou, Taft. vs. Jewett City.—adv.

The entertainment given in the Congregational vestry, under the direction of Mrs. Norman B. Parkhurst, Monday evening, was an unqualified success. The Ladies' Modern Sewing society was as funny a performance as ever was given here. Not only were the local hits and speeches mirth-provoking, but the costumes were a sight! Mrs. E. A. Faust was Mrs. President; Mrs. Knowall, Mrs. Grace Webster; Mrs. Wise, Gladys Jeffers; Mrs. Green, Mrs. W. H. Payne; Miss Short, Ethel Fisk; Mrs. Brown, who was very deaf, was Miss M. A. Burdick; Mrs. Gossip was Mrs. Herbert Gibson; Mrs. Truthful, Mrs. A. P. Anderson; Mrs. Chatter, Mrs. C. D. Wolf; Miss Flutter, Bernice Wolf; Miss Simper, Ethel Thompson; Miss Pert, Sadie Thompson; Mrs. Dr. Jones, Mabel Wilcox, and Miss Small, the school teacher, Loretta Alley. After pulling several persons' reputations to pieces, they all got mad at each other, and one by one, in a manner characteristic of their names, made their exits in the midst of laughter and applause. The Baby show, given by young girls, was equally as good. It was a real little play with Josephine Gibson as Miss Trim, the milliner, who was to decide whose baby was the prize winner. The dollies were wheeled in in decorated carriages, and the conservation was sung by the different children. Mrs. Thompson, the mother of twins, was Elizabeth Hurst; Mrs. Brown was Lucille Tomlinson; Mrs. Smith, Charlotte Albertine; Mrs. Davis, Janet Wilcox; Mrs. Wright was Olga Zegeer; Mrs. Jones was Margery Webster; Mrs. Williams, Eunice Webster. Marian Wilber was to have been Mrs. Perkins, but was taken ill and Monday afternoon, Ruth Cathcart learned the part, and without any rehearsal with the other children, went through the play without a mistake. Miss Ethelle Parkhurst was the accompanist, also player for the graceful little minuet danced by Olga Zegeer and Eunice Webster, both in costume. Violin and vocal solos added much to the excellent program. Mrs. F. D. Ballou, accompanied by Mrs. G. H. Prior, sang Tosti's 'Goodbye Summer," her encore being "I Passed by Your Window." Arthur Burdick, accompanied by Eva Brisson, played the violin solo "King of the World," with a sketch from Rigoletto as an encore. He also played 'Shadows on the Water," and "American Grand March". Under the direction of Mrs. Abraham Zegeer candy was sold, during the intermission, by Isabel and Christine Marshall. The decorations were roses, poinsettas and barberries. The program was announced by Charles Parkhurst. The receipts were $7.25. Josephine Gibson sold fifty-four tickets and received a flash light as a reward. Margery Webster sold thirty-three, and received a bottle of perfume.

At the entertainment in the Congregational church Monday evening, a lady could not find her gloves, when she started to go home. She said she put them in her husband's pocket as she supposed. Anyway, she put them in some man's pocket. As said husband's pocket held no gloves, some other husband is probably trying to explain to his wife that he is perfectly innocent as to how a pair of another woman's gloves came to be in his pocket.

The Methodist prayer meeting this (Wednesday) evening at 7.30 is to be followed by the fourth quarterly conference. Rev. Myron E. Genter, the district superintendent from Norwich will preside. Friday night the choir is to meet at the parsonage at 7 and the men's class meets in the vestry at 8.

Mrs. H. T. Jeffers was surprised Saturday night, when she left her home to go for an automobile ride, as she supposed, but found that friends had come to celebrate her birthday. Whist was played in which she received first prize and Mrs. Greece Webster the consolation award. Tyler Gilbert was awarded the men's first prize and F. H. Gilbert the consolation. Sandwiches, pickles, olives, potato chips, cake, ice cream and coffee were served. Besides Mr. and Mrs. Jeffers and their three daughters, there were present including Mr. and Mrs. F. H. Gilbrt, Mr. and Mrs. E. B. Cheney, Mrs. Grace Webster, Mary Lawson, Frances Buxbee, Ethel Thompson, Gustave Greenwood, Martin Kraus and Tyler Gilbert. Mrs. Jeffers received a raincoat as a birthday gift.

The funeral of Mrs. Edward Barrett was held at her home in Lisbon Tuesday afternoon, Rev. J. W. Carter, pastor of the Methodist church of which Mrs. Barrett was a member officiated. Burial was in the Read-Herskell cemetery, Lisbon. The bearers were Merton Bugbee, E. B. Cheney, Aime Wood and Charles Sweetzer. There were beautiful floral pieces.

Miss Grace Gardiner has returned to East Greenwich academy, after spending the week end and Washington's birthday at her home in Griswold.

Miss Lydia Johnson of Franklin, Frederick Johnson, Miss Lucy Hyde and Hazel Swift of Norwich were callers at Mrs. Ella Gager's and Mrs. E. H. Hiscox's Tuesday.

Mr. and Mrs. James McCusker and son Richard of Jewett City, spent Sunday at the home of Mrs. Ella Whipple in Voluntown.

Mr. and Mrs. John McElligott, Jr., spent Sunday in Voluntown, at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Frank Ecclestone.

Rev. James J. Tyler preached a powerful Lenten sermon at St. Thomas' church in Voluntown, Sunday evening.

SOUTH WINDHAM

The flowers at the church Sunday Feb. 6, were contributed by Mrs. Smith, in memory of Guilford Smith, and those of Feb. 20th were presented by Mrs. Johnson, in memory of Carl Johnson.

The Ecclesiastical society is to have a meeting in the church parlor Monday evening next.

The South Windham Fire department held its February meeting Monday evening.

The Windham Farmers' association had as its guests Tuesday the Dairymen's Institute, for an all-day session in Guilford Smith Hall, South Windham.

Mrs. Ella A. Card has gone to Boston for several weeks' visit with relatives and friends.

J. Harold Cobb, public accountant of New Haven was a visitor Sunday at the home of his parents, Rev. and Mrs. Joseph F. Cobb.

The Good Will Circle had a food sale in the church parlors Friday. The circle is to have its February meeting this (Wednesday) afternoon at the home of Mrs. Fred Richmond.

Rev. Mr. Graham is giving a series of sermons on the great poem by Dante.

Miss Catherine Holden and Miss Birdie Stanton student nurses at W. W. Backus hospital, Norwich visited at their homes at the week end.

The friendly visitation of members of the Congregational church is to take place Sunday next. Those who are to make the calls are to meet this (Wednesday) evening at the home of Mrs. Walter Abbe.

FRANCO-AMERICAN CLUB HOLDS ANNUAL ELECTION

(Special to The Bulletin.)

BALTIC, Feb. 23—The Franco-American club held its meeting Monday evening in the club rooms on High street to the election of officers for the ensuing year resulted in the following choice: President, Joseph Boucher; treasurer, Leodore Lacroix; secretary, Rev. A. A. Jalbert; janitor, Harry Fortier.

The club has been in existence three years and counts a membership of 74 in good standing and is well fixed financially. Remarks were made by the newly elected president as to the good work done by the club in the past. He asked the co-operation of the members to keep up the good work and do better if possible. Rev. A. A. Jalbert also spoke briefly, praising the great work the club has done on every occasion that the parish has required. He thanked the members sincerely, especially for the aid given at the last parish whist in giving up its rooms for the children who attended the whist, also to check the wraps of the assemblage. Hubert Goillot, Joseph Lacroix and Eddie Lambert were appointed by the newly elected president a committee to look after the coming pinochle tournament to be held in the club's rooms.

As usual after each meeting a pool match of 50 balls was played. The contestants were Henry Douville and George Lacroix, the match was so close that it was decided only at the very last minute of play when Lacroix won, 50 to 47.

Joseph Viau and Wilfred Cote have returned to Assumption college, Worcester after spending Washington's birthday at the home of their parents.

Henry St. Onge has resigned as janitor of the public school and is employed as painter and decorator with a New London firm.

Phantom Dancing Fad

London has a new craze—phantom dancing. Clubs have appeared with wireless installations so that members may don headpieces, and listen to what music they chose. It is an economical way to run a night club.

The United States has approximately three thousand active golf clubs.

World Leadership brings Lower Prices

On January 7th, Graham Brothers announced a substantial reduction in the prices of their complete line of trucks and motor coaches.

This was their third reduction in eight months.

It reflected again Graham Brothers pledge and determination to pass on to the buyer the full economies of rapidly increasing production.

The year 1925 was the greatest in Graham Brothers history.

It saw them advance to World Leadership in the 1½-ton truck field, and brought them the added distinction of being the largest exclusive truck manufacturers in the world.

Such positions are achieved only by enormous demand for a worthy product.

WESTERLY

TRESPASS CASE ON TRIAL IN SUPERIOR COURT TUESDAY

(Special to The Bulletin.)

WESTERLY, R. I. Feb. 23—The superior court for Washington county, Associate Justice Arthur P. Sumner on the bench, when court opened Tuesday morning about 11 o'clock for the Westerly adjournment, following the session at the county courthouse at West Kingston.

Following the call of the docket when it appeared that no jury cases were ready, Judge Sumner excused the petit jurymen, to report at the court house again at 2 o'clock in the afternoon.

The first case heard was without jury, the action at law, The Sullivan Granite Co., a Massachusetts corporation doing business in Rhode Island and at Bradford vs. Annunziato Vuono, alias, of that place. The action was one of trespass in which the closing of a driveway led to a fence being broken down by the defendant. At 12.30 p. m. Judge Sumner took the papers in the case and withheld his decision pending the submission of authorities by the attorneys. Frank A. Sullivan was the first witness and is president and treasurer of the Sullivan Granite company, which bought the Crumb Co., granite properties at Bradford. March 10, 1913 a strip of land was also purchased from Wayland A. Saunders, 100 feet wide and 8.636 feet long leading from the quarries to the main tracks of the N. Y., N. H. and H. R. R. company just west of Bradford station which the defendant Vuono had torn down for the first time about Sept. 25, 1925 and the last time Jan. 2, 1926 and which Mr. Sullivan testified had put the Granite Co., to $20 expense. Attorney Flynn moved for a non suit but withdrew his motion when it developed that Vuono's deed had not been placed in as evidence.

Annunziata Vuono the defendant testified that he had been accustomed to drive his cattle across the location of the railroad right of way to the spring on his farm. In the deed which was placed in as evidence a right of way was mentioned across the land deeded by Saunders, but this right of way had never been decided upon.

Wayland A. Saunders told of the deed and the right of way which had never been selected by him at any particular point. Two points were taken under consideration by the judge when the evidence was in, the failure to use words, heirs and assigns in the deed and the fact that the right of way was not selected, at least if it was definite enough to make it binding.

At 2 o'clock the will case of Anna Evelyn Faulk vs. Lydia M. Davis, executrix was heard by the court when Attorney Ferguson for the defendant placed Elmer E. Kenyon, Probate court clerk of Hopkinton on the stand to testify to the probate of the will Calvin Davis, April 2, 1920 and to the letters testimentary issued at the time. Witnesses to testify to the will were John Dinwoodie, Jr., and John Ferguson, Jr., on the stand was examined by Attorney M. Walter Flynn to establish the will.

Trial in the claim for damages brought by Abbie J. Morrow of South Kingstown, R. I., through her Attorney Charles A. Kiernan against C. T. Clarke of New York, represented by Walter V. Moriarity, as the result of the death of George M. Morrow, husband of plaintiff by an automobile accident, Oct. 7, 1925 near Saunderstown, R. I., on the Boston post road.

Judge Sumner made the following disposition of the docket:

Helen Berkeley vs. Domenico Biandi, et al. Reassigned to April session of superior court at Westerly; Flynn Bros. vs. Armando Rossi. Attorney Walter Flynn, Jr., in this case of replevin, filed a proof of claim with court; Westerly Lumber Co., vs. Arcangelo Silvestri, passed; The Sullivan Granite Co., vs. Annunziato Vuono, alias, Marked ready as the first case to be heard to the court; State(Oliver P. Crandall vs. Angelo Turano, alias. Attorney John J. Dunn for defendant, said the Westerly chief of police had told him the defendant did not need to be present. Placed at the foot of the calendar; Caroline Gervasino vs. Venerable of Loggio C. Madre vs. Concetta S. Grillo. As this was an equity case. Attorney Ferguson, Jr., and Dunn agreed to Judge Sumner's appointment of Judge Edward M. Burke, a master in chancery, to take the facts in the case; Peter Gaunyeda vs. A. C. Ladue, et al. Attorney Ledwidge asked that due to Attorney Brennan's illness from bronchitis, in a special assignment for trial, it be marked first jury case in order April term at West Kingston; John R. Wilcox, et al. vs. Henry P. Champlin, passed; Anna Evelyn Faulk vs. Lydia M. Davis, executrix, ready, to be tried to the court; State, Oliver P. Crandall, O. of P. vs. William J. Carney, passed; Lloyd L. Cheseborough vs. Sullivan Granite Co., foot of Docket; Leroy V. Bell vs. Edwin L. Northrup, ready; Abbie J. Morrow vs. Charles T. Clarke, ready; Elizabeth N. Smith vs. Arthur A. McGuire, ready.

A Frances E. Willard Memorial service was held in the vestry of the Broad street Christian church, Tuesday afternoon at 2:30 o'clock, Mrs. Louise Babcock of Avondale, president of the Westerly Union, W. C. T. U. presided. With her on the platform were the presidents of the Ocean View, Ashaway and Potter Hill, Bradford and Pawcatuck societies, and Mrs. Jennie Parker, president of the Southern District. Mrs. J. C. Barber of Providence recording secretary, of the State Union spoke on the "Frances E. Willard Memorial Fund." Mrs. Collings sang "Somewhere, Sometime" with Mrs. Ethel Whitaker at the piano. Refreshment and a social hour followed the meeting.

The first civil marriage to be held in the office of the Westerly town since it has been located in the present Westerly town hall has that at 7 o'clock Monday evening when Miss Ellen Marie Dalton of Westerly and Alfred Maxim Kendall of New York city were united by Judge Oliver H. Williams, justice of the district court of the Third Judicial District. Town Clerk Everett E. Whipple and Herbert P. Clark, clerk of the Third District court, were witnesses.

Having had brought to his attention an alleged act of cruelty to animals, it is expected that James N. Smith, agent of the Society for the Prevention of Cruelty to Animals, will come to Westerly to investigate a case involving the alleged torture of two cows owned by A. E. Ralston of Beach street. The matter was reported to Chief of Police Thomas E. Brown and it was found that the animals had been attacked with a pitchfork. Dr. Thomas E. Robinson, veterinarian, examined the animals and found that they had lost considerable blood.

Dr. John Champlin of Westerly, chairman of the Public Welfare commission of the state, and Louis H. Putnam, director of the State institutions have returned from a meeting of the American Academy of Political and Social Science in Philadelphia. The conference was on "Modern Crime, Its Prevention and Attention."

Mrs. Julia Murray O'Toole, wife of Martin O'Toole, who died Monday in Somerville, Mass., was a resident of Potter Hill before her marriage. Her husband is also well known by Westerly sport followers of thirty years ago, when he was one of the leading pitchers on the local baseball club. A high mass of requiem will be celebrated at Somerville. The body will be brought to Westerly for burial in St. Michael's New cemetery.

Filed for record in the office of the Westerly town clerk appears the following transfer: Fer. 23, David Novogred to Lillian Novogrod, a tract or parcel of land on the south side of High street, deeded by Thorp and Trainer to the grantor, on Feb. 27, 1925.

Farquhar Smith is the manager of an aggregation of professional bridge players of Westerly Masonic club, No. 176, which played the bridge team of the Harbor club, of New London, at the latter club house Tuesday evening in a series of three games for a turkey dinner. Leaving Westerly at 7 p. m. were the following players who began play in New London at 8 o'clock: Farquhar Smith, Loren G. McLaren; Hobart C. Saunders, Ralph G. Spargo; D. Everett Hoxie, Edwin K. Parker; G. Maurice Nye, William C. Chapman; Theodore Samuels, James H. Hodgson; and Frances G. Haswell and Henry A. Stahle.

Scottish Rite Masons of Westerly were in Providence Tuesday evening when at Freemason's hall, they attended a meeting of Rhode Island Council, Princes of Jerusalem, E. Louis Morris, sovereign prince. Following the close of degree work ballots were taken upon applications for the 18th degree, by Special dispensation of Ill. Deputy William L. Sweet of Providence.

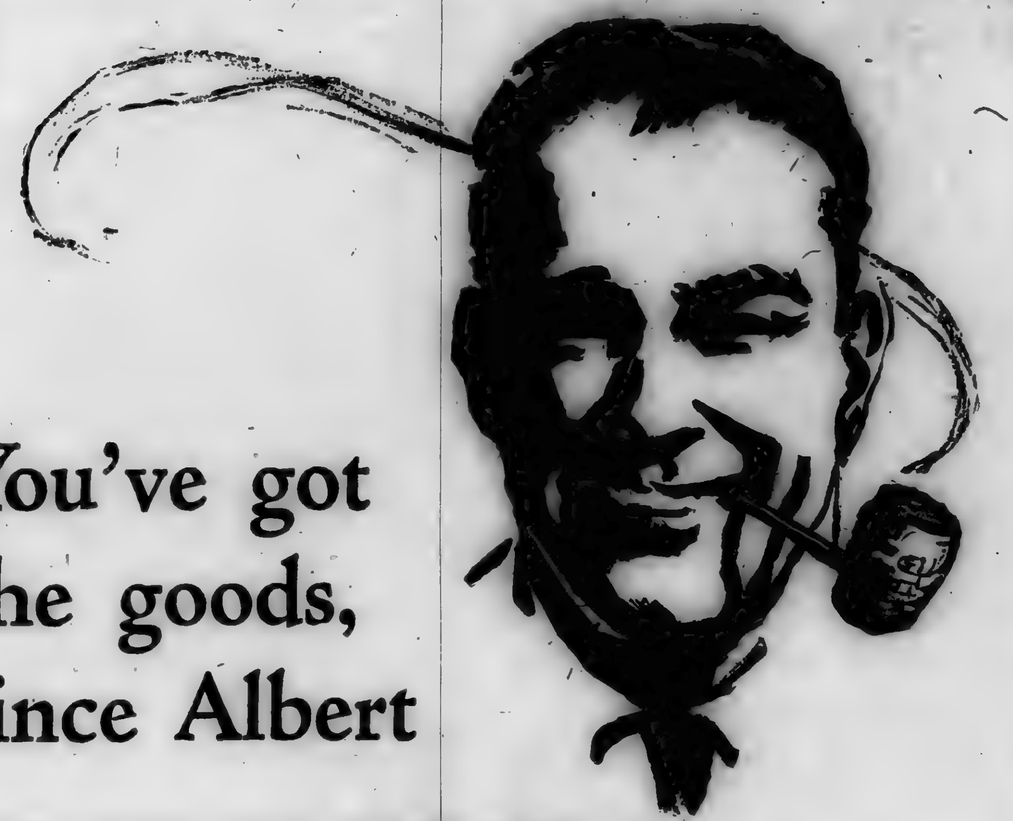
WHEN YOU WANT to put your business before the public, there is no medium better than through the advertising columns of The Bulletin.



You've got the goods, Prince Albert

DON'T I know? Didn't I cross the burning sands in search of pipe-contentment? And then you loomed up, like an oasis in the Desert of Doubt. Cool and refreshing, you were, Prince Albert. I'll never forget that first meeting.

Why, you just had everything I wanted in a pipe tobacco. You came zooming up the stem like a breeze through the date palms. You were fragrant as frankincense. You were friendly to my tongue and throat, refusing to mistreat them.

You're still sheik of the smoke-tribe, Prince Albert. I'm FOR you a hundred per cent. You and my trusty jimmy-pipe go with me everywhere, smoothing out the wrinkles in the roadway of life. The tongue you've been so kind to will always speak a good word in return.

Maybe there are some other chaps roaming the hot-pipe desert, at the mercy of the bedouins of bite and the pirates of parch. I hope they are listening in. I'm putting on all the power I've got to tell them what a lot of comfort is waiting for them in the tidy red tins marked "Prince Albert."

P. A. is sold everywhere in 5¢ tins, pound and half-pound tin humidors, and pound crystal-glass humidors with sponge-moistener top. And always with every bite and pouch removed by the Prince Albert process.

NEW LONDON GETS SOME HARD COAL, WHICH IS COSTING CONSUMERS $18

(Special to The Bulletin.)

NEW LONDON, Feb. 23—A little hard coal is arriving in New London. It comes by train and costs the consumer $18 a ton, which is about $3.50 more than coal will cost when there is a supply of it and it comes by barge instead of by railroad. New London is a tidewater port and the price of coal delivered here contemplates the loading of barges in quantity that can not be put upon trains. That cost is higher than is the expense of loading cars. But New London is getting back to hard coal nevertheless and by the middle of March this city will not realize that there has been a strike in the mines and that anthracite was not to be obtained at any price. It's a pretty safe deduction that another winter will not find as many empty coal bins as did the winter of 1925-26. Consumers have learned the lesson and they will prepare next summer to get coal for the coming winter.

FOUR PATROLMEN CLEARED OF IMMORALITY CHARGES

(Special to The Bulletin.)

NEW LONDON, Feb. 23—The members of New London's police department, four in number, are breathing a sigh of relief tonight for City Manager William A. Holt this afternoon exonerated the officers of any charge of misconduct, as was alleged by Mrs. Helen Flick, 11 Brewer street, wife of Eugene M. Flick, sailor, stationed at the submarine base, and her companion, Myrtle Hunt. The girls in statements made to Sergeants John Cavanaugh and Nelson Smith and Policewoman Jane Cassidy cited in writing numerous instances when they had been on terms of intimacy with the accused officers. In their statements they gave the places the girls were alleged to have visited in company with the officers and a minute recitation of what occurred. With this information in their possession the girls were then arrested charged with lascivious carriage and the statements made by them were delivered to City Manager Holt later in the day. After considering the allegations, City Manager Holt called a hearing and caused the accused officers to appear before him. He questioned each officer at length and this afternoon declared that after giving the matter due consideration, he had decided to refrain from preferring any charges in view of the fact that he considered the evidence placed before him insufficient to bring about the levying of charges.

The accused officers from the start have stoutly denied their guilt, alleging that the charges have been the result of spite and enmity. The accused officers had known the girls for a number of months through the latter being about the streets and at their place of employment and admitted having conversed with them on several occasions, but denied the assertion of the girls that the officers had been guilty of being in the company of the females or to any degree of intimacy.

MISS KATHERINE BARRY BRIDE OF LIEUT. COM. DENCH

(Special to The Bulletin.)

NEW LONDON, Feb. 23—Lieut. Com. Clarence Henry Dench, of Detroit, Mich., and Miss Katherine Barry, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Carlos Barry, of Stone Acre, Waterford, were married at the home of the bride's parents this noon, the ceremony being performed by Rev. Phillip M. Kerridge, rector of St. James' Episcopal church, in the presence of relatives. Erick Wieneke, of Saginaw, Mich., brother-in-law of the groom, was best man and the bride was unattended. Following the ceremony a reception took place. Upon the conclusion of a wedding trip Lieut. Com. and Mrs. Dench will make their home in New London. Lieut. Dench is commanding officer of the United States Coast Guard destroyer Downes, stationed at the state pier.

STOLE FROM MOTHER-IN-LAW DANIEL DONOVAN FINED $100

(Special to the Bulletin)

NEW LONDON, Feb. 23—The session of the police court today made it cost Daniel Donovan of Groton $150 to get $22.50. Any sensible man will readily perceive that Donovan made a bad bargain and that he should be convinced that honesty pays a big dividend to any man who practices it. Donovan also established a reputation that will qualify him for membership in the Ananias club. He and his wife were lodgers at the home of Mrs. Donovan's mother in Groton and thus he had the opportunity of laying hands upon a check that was sent by the city of New London to Mrs. Donovan's mother to compensate her for the care of a child. Donovan used the check for himself and cashed it at the Union bank when he forged the name of the payee. Then he represented, to his attorney, when he was arrested and accused that "some other Donovan" forged the name in the endorsement of the check, but that was discovered to be a falsehood and the facts were brought out. Mrs. Donovan has recently given birth to a child. Donovan saw an opportunity to hide behind his wife, so he represented that he was without work and had no money to pay the bills contracted to care for his wife and the new-born baby. This statement, his mother-in-law says, is a down-right lie. Donovan is out of work, it is true, but that did not inspire him to counterfeit the endorsement on the check and he did not of necessity have to raise the money the check called for. The mother-in-law says he deceived her and lied about the forgery of the name. Still the fact remains that Mrs. Donovan is in the hospital with a new-born baby and that Donovan must provide for both. The police court on that score did not send him to prison. He was fined $100 and the costs of his trial, when he agreed to make restitution of the money he obtained by fraud. Donovan was also given a 60-days jail sentence, but that was suspended, that he might go to work and pay the money he had virtually stolen and the fine his acts had brought upon him.

It is the pretty general belief that the man who is guilty of having caused the death of Miss Catherine Hogan, for she died of a fractured skull that was the result of her being run down, was intoxicated and that he was driving his machine in a manner that was reckless in the extreme. He drove down Washington street and whirled into Colt street on the left side of the highway. There he met the woman he is guilty of having killed. He might have been in a condition that prevented him from seeing her but he ran her down, and kept on going so that he got away. Miss Hogan had been a seamstress for many years. She was the daughter of the late Daniel and Margaret Hogan, her brother was a well known builder in this city many years.

George Hill, colored, was found drunk on Bank stret and was arrested by Policeman Labour. George had not been in the court in two years so today he drew only a fine of $5. That was to encourage him to stay away two years more. That may be a task for George, but he is to have a chance to prove his willpower.

Miss Annie Hamilton, of 36 Sixth street; Farmer Miller, United States Coast Guard destroyer McDonogh; Miss Beatrice Tobin, 21 Summer street; Miss Agnes Edwards, Waterford; George Hobron, 31 Blackhall street; Mrs. Thomas Beebe and infant son, 53 Lewis street, and Miss Annie Beebe, 53 Lewis street, patients at Lawrence-Memorial Associated hospital were dismissed today.

Chrisy Gardner has sold a house and lot on Gorten street to John Walter.

Morris Greenblat, proprietor of a soft drink manufacturing establishment, 10 Hamilton street, who last night complained to the police that a 100-pound bag of sugar had been stolen from the place, this afternoon withdrew the charge following Sergeant John Cavanaugh, who had been assigned to the case fixing the identity of the thief.

Another New London organization has filed a certificate of incorporation at the office of the secretary of state, Hartford. The organization to do so is the Uncas Social club, with quarters in the Bacon block, 130 State street. The incorporators are Charles Darrow, Jesse I. Baldwin and David E. Doyle. The purposes of the club is that of good fellowship and social intercourse.

A delegation of members of Roosevelt council, Junior Order of United American Mechanics, was at Noank this evening, guests of Noank council and witnessed the initiation of a class of candidates. The conferring of the degree was by the degree team of Norwich council.

The condition of John Pfeiffer, 4 Broad street, Groton, who suffered a severely sprained ankle several days ago by slipping on an icy pavement, is reported to be slowly improving, although Mr. Pfeiffer, who is superintendend of the borough highway department, will be confined to his home indefinitely.

Mrs. Ann Rogers Minor, of Waterford, honorary president-general of the National society, Daughters of the American Revolution, attended the preliminary celebration of the sesquicentennial at Philadelphia yesterday. Mrs. Minor is one of two women delegates appointed by Governor Trumbull to represent the state on the woman's committee of the celebration.

Joseph Clark, son of Mr. and Mrs. William L. Clark, 27 Bellevue Place, and William D. Connor, son of Attorney and Mrs. William T. Connor, 290 Montauk avenue, are spending a few days as guests of Mr. Connor's uncle and aunt, Mr. and Mrs. B. F. Carroll, in Brookline, Mass.

John Shea, 17 Viets street, apprentice pressman, who suffered the loss of all the fingers of his right hand several days ago when that member became caught in a press, is reported as doing well at Lawience hospital. It is now believed that no further operation on the injured hand will be necessary.

George F. Mosher, Station 7, Waterford, left this morning for Phoenix, Ariz., where he will visit his daughter, Mrs. Herbert Snellenberger, who will return when Mr. Mosher comes back to Waterford, about May 1.

Irving Sandler, 6 North Bank street, complained to the police this evening that his bicycle, which he had left on the sidewalk in front of 16 North Bank street, earlier in the evening, had been stolen.

Sergeant Edward McGrath, of the force of special agents of the New York, New Haven & Hartford railroad, reported to the local police this evening that the driver of an automobile had operated the machine against the gates at the railroad crossing at the foot of John street and had smashed the protection. Sergeant McGrath stated that the automobile carried registration, Connecticut issue and that the driver operated the car away immediately following the destruction of the gates.

BANK STREET CHANGES TO GO TO PLANNING BOARD

(Special to The Bulletin.)

NEW LONDON, Feb. 23—The much discussed establishment of a building line on the west side of Bank street was before the city council this evening and by that body abandoned in its present form. The compensation board reported that hearings had taken place at various times and that property owners had been heard, with their attorneys. It was estimated that the cost of the proposed improvements would be $9,003 and the board calculated that the benefits to property owners would equal the damages to a dollar. But law suits were threatened and as the situation existed the rescinding of the resolution proposing the establishment of the building line was advised and recommended. So the matter was referred to the planning board, inasmuch as that body must act upon proposed changes in the scheme. The compensation board recommended another resolution under which the highway could be widened and the benefits assessed against property owners on both the east and west sides of the street. The resolution for the establishment of the proposed building line will be rescinded, without any doubt.

The City ational bank presented a communication to the council that objected to the taking of land, including steps into business places and the preventing of doors swinging outward, and proposing the removal of poles for the carrying of wires for public service corporations through the street and then the widening of the highway. That communication also was referred to the planning board, with the recommendation of the compensation board. The matter will be reported back to the council by the planning board and then will begin a contest between the owners of property on both sides of Bank street.

MRS. HELEN RYAN RUN DOWN BY AUTO ON BROAD STREET

(Special to The Bulletin.)

NEW LONDON, Feb. 23—Mrs. Helen Ryan, of Maple avenue, was run down by an automobile, the owner of which is unknown to the police, this evening, on Broad street, corner of Georgianna street, and painfully injured. The automobile bore registration, N16507, Connecticut issue and was in charge of a colored driver and with a colored man as passenger.

Mrs. Ryan had been to the home of her brother, County Detective William Lewis, Georgianna street, and was on her way home when the accident occurred. She attempted to cross Broad street, when the machine, traveling at a fair rate of speed, appeared going in a northerly direction. Mrs. Ryan was struck and knocked down. The car was finally brought to a stop and the colored passenger, and not the driver, assisted the woman to the home of Mr. Lewis. The driver did not put in an appearance at the Lewis home and disappeared after his companion had returned from the Lewis residence. Dr. J. Charles Satti was called and found that Mrs. Ryan had sustained a severely bruised right arm and her head and face were cut. After receiving medical aid, Mrs. Ryan returned to her home. County Detective Lewis reported the accident to the police and requested that the owner of the car be located and the machine inspected for the purpose of determining whether it was equipped with proper brakes.

ANNOUNCEMENTS

Breed Theater

A young newspaper woman appeared at the William Fox West Coast studios while The Everlasting Whisper, which comes to the Breed theater Thursday, was being filmed, and asked to see Tom Mix, popular western star, who is starred in the picture. She was seeking an interview, she said, setting forth the Mix views on legislative censorship.

Although Mr. Mix was busily engaged in picture-making, he granted the request, asking only that his interviewer be as brief and to the point as possible.

"Mr. Mix," began the young woman "I have long been an admirer of your pictures and my owner would like to have your views on the subject of legislative censorship."

The Western star acknowledged the compliment with a gracious smile and replied, "I don't know anything about it, ma'am—I'm not even interested. I don't make pictures of that kind.

"But," persisted the interviewer, nibbling the end of a gold pencil, "surely Mr. Mix, you know whether or not you are in favor of clean pictures, and as I am asking of you is to say which it is."

The visitor admitted she had not.

"Well," Mix went on "I believe my views are clearly shown by the kind of pictures I make. I have never made a picture which I should be ashamed for my wife or daughter to see and I do not intend to make any."

Broadway Theater

The last half of this week brings a new program to the Broadway theater.

Five acts of Keith Albee vaudeville heads the bill of hits; you'll like every bit of it.

Wandering Footsteps means more than a feature picture. It is the latest Banner Production featuring Estelle Taylor, the wife of Jack Dempsey; Bryant Washburn, Alice Francis and a sterling cast comprising Eugenie Besserer, Frankie Darro, Ethel Wales, Phillips Smalley and Sidney Bracey.

It is the story of an adopted father and the author, Charles Sherman, who wrote the story under the title of A Wise Son, has created a masterpiece for the screen.

Wandering Footsteps will bring a tear and a smile in this wonderful screen narrative, which comes to the Broadway theater tomorrow for a run of three days.

A new Kinograms with news of the latest events will also be screened.

Palace Theater

Monte Blue heads the brilliant cast of Hogan's Alley, the Warner Bros.' classic of the screen which is coming to the Palace theater on Thursday for a three day run.

Monte plays Left Jab O'Brien, a young prize-fighter, who is the idol of the alley on the east side of New York. Opposite is Patsy Ruth Miller, last seen with Monte Blue in Red Hot Tires. Willard Louis plays Patsy's old father and Nigel Barrie is seen as the wealthy suitor her father favors. Louise Fazenda appears as Dolly, a gay Broadwayite who is a friend of Nigel Barrie's. The remainder of the cast includes Max Davidson, Ben Turpin, Frank Hagney, Mary Carr, Frank Bond and the Texas Kid.

Hogan's Alley, written by Gregory Rogers and adapted to the screen by Darryl Francis Zanuck, was directed by Roy Del Ruth. It is the story of simple folks of the Bowery of New York as it was some twenty years ago, a comedy-melodrama of young love and fistic glories.

Lyceum Theater, New London

On Friday and Saturday evenings and Saturday matinee at the Lyceum theater, New London, Charles K. Gordon will present a new melodrama of today entitled Hush Money. From the pen of Alfred Jackson, a new author unknown to Broadway, it reveals to the audience an intriguing romance of the underworld, filled with laughs and thrills. Miss Justine Johnstone plays the leading feminine role, that of Kathleen, which suits her perfectly. Others in the cast equally as important are Richard Gordon, Calvin Thomas, Cora Witherspoon, Ruth Lee Walker, Walter Gilbert, Gladys Wilson and others.

Miss Johnstone's departure from the musical comedy field for the legitimate stage is of interest to the theater-goers. She has, in the past, been prominently billed with the Ziegfeld Follies and only recently decided to play a serious role. She has the best wishes from those prominent in the theatrical world, with high hopes for Miss Johnstone reaching stardom.

Charles K. Gordon, the producer, has sponsored a play that appeared here recently called The Witch Doctor and Hush Money marks his fourth production for the theater. William B. Friedlander, who is responsible for the success of Little Jessie James, Moonlight and others, has staged Hush Money with an expert hand. Roy Requa, a famous European designer, has painted and designed the stage settings.

Hush Money will be seen on Broadway following its engagement here.

Why isn't the golden rule an excellent excuse for the girl who wants to promise.

Connecticut College

Connecticut college alumnae returned to the Alma Mater in great force to spend the week end of Washington's birthday at the college. The whole of Branford hose was given over to the visitors, and many events were planned for their entertainment.

Friday evening those graduates who had already arrived witnessed the first basketball game of the season between the senior and junior first teams. The seniors were the victors with a score of 33-32 in their favor. The second sophomore team conquered the freshman second team with the score of 28-16.

Saturday afternoon there was another game in the gymnasium at 2:30 between the senior and alumnae teams, resulting in a victory of 23-13 in favor of '25. Those of the alumnae who participated were: Amy Hilker, '24; Emily Warner, '25; Grace Ward, '24; Janet Goodrich, '24; Helen Hemingway, '23; Katherine Renwick, '24; the seniors included: Elizabeth Damerel; Annette Ebsen, Emma Sternberg, Marion Cogswell, Lorraine Ferie, Theodosia Hewlett, and A. Elizabeth Alexander.

One of the features of the afternoon was the slow-motion basket ball "take off" by the department of physical education and the physical education majors. Their marching and "take offs" of aesthetic dancing was enthusiastically received by the spectators. Those who participated were: Miss Ruth Strahwood, associated professor of physical education; Miss Ruth Wood; Miss Francis Brett, and Miss Ruth Lincks, all instructors in physical education, and the Misses Ruth Battey, Sarah Carslake, Helen McKee, Edith Cloyes, Sarah Pitthouse, and Florence Hopper.

In the evening a musicale by Professors Bauer and Weld was held in the college gymnasium, followed by dancing.

The program of the recital follows:

1. Sonata, Op. 31 Beethoven
Les Adieux: Adagio allegro.
L'absence: andante expresivo.
Le retour: vivacissimamente.
2. Tannhauser, Act III, Scene 2.

LEGAL NOTICES

Legal Notice

ADJOURNED ANNUAL TOWN MEETING.

SPECIAL TOWN MEETING OF THE TOWN OF LEBANON.

Town of Lebanon to lay the rate of tax on the grand list of October, 1925, will be held Monday, March 1, A. D. 1926, at 3 o'clock sharp.

The legal voters of the Town of Lebanon are hereby warned to meet in the town hall in said Town of Lebanon on Monday, March 1, A. D. 1926, at 2:15 o'clock in the afternoon for the following purposes:—

To determine whether the town will vote to install a limited number of street lights, and authorize the selectmen to enter into a contract with the Rockville and Willimantic Lighting company for the same. Also to make the necessary appropriation therefor.

To determine whether the town will vote to purchase electric current of the Rockville and Willimantic Lighting company for the town hall, and make the necessary appropriation therefor. Also to authorize the selectmen to dispose of the Delco lighting plant at present in use in the town hall.

To determine whether the town will vote to authorize the selectmen to sell a certain piece of land owned by the town of Lebanon, located on the so-called Rochelle Hill road, that was formerly a part of the highway at that point.

To determine whether the town will vote to close for public travel certain sections of road in said town of Lebanon, located and described as follows:—

The road commencing at a point on the so-called Village Hill road at or near the residence of Oscar Bergeson, and extending in an easterly direction to a corner where is located the Gates barn, said section being about one mile in length.

The road commencing at a point on the so-called Kick Hill road near the old Harvey Chappell place and extending in a general northwesterly direction to the intersection of the Village Hill road near the so-called Howland place, being about one mile in length.

The road commencing at a point below the so-called William Geer place, now occupied by Joseph Feldman, on the road leading from Goshen Hill to the Norwich and Colchester turnpike, and extending in a southwesterly direction to the intersection of the road leading from the so-called Harbor road to the Colchester and Norwich turnpike at the former residence of Roger Poole, said section being about one mile in length.

Upon petition of twenty legal voters of the town of Lebanon, praying for the improvement of the Lebanon-Norwich road, the following clause is included in this warning:—

To determine whether the town will vote to improve as per statute of the State of Connecticut in such cases provided, the certain pieces of the highway not previously improved on the state road leading from the Lebanon post office to the Franklin town line at Masol Hill, said unimproved sections being located—one at or near the residence of James P. Duffy, and the other at the top of Masol Hill, said section being about 1,500 feet in length. Also to determine whether the town will vote to make the necessary appropriation to defray the expense of the said improvements.

Also to take up, and act upon, any other matter proper to come before said special town meeting.

Lebanon, Connecticut, February 20, 1926.

MARKET WAS REACTIONARY

NEW YORK, Feb. 23—(AP)—Stock prices displayed a pronounced reactionary trend towards the close of the day's market after an early period of irregularity. Judgin from the relative inactivity of the commission houses, trading was largely of a professional character with "floor breakers" playing an important part in the dya's proceedings.

With the possible exception of the stiffer call money rates, there was nothing in the day's news to account for the reaction. Wall street, however, was kept on edge by widely circulated reports that a breach in the diplomatic relations between the United States and Mexico was imminent, and by rumors which later proved to be unfounded, that the illness of William C. Durant, motor manufacturer, who is known to have been actively engaged in the market on the long side, had taken a turn for the worse.

Selling pressure was particularly effective against the industrials and specialties, a long list of which showed net declines ranging from one to six points. Rails offered better resistance to pressure although New York Central, Chesopeake and Ohio, Atlantic Coast Line, Lackawanna and several other dividend payers yielded two points or more. Total sales were just under 1,500,000 shares.

The unfavorable Mexican rumors brought about heavy selling of shares of a few of the companies that have large property interests in that country, American Smelting and the Fan-American issues dropping 5 to nearly 6 points.

The announcement that President Coolidge would approve the new tax bill apparently had no influence as a stock market factor. Neither was any attention paid to a series of favorable dividend developments which included the raising of the Tidewater Oil dividend from 25 to 37 1-2 cents quarterly; the placing of the new Fleischmann stock on a 2 annually basis, which is equivalent to $6 on the old stock, which had paid $4 with extras.

The declaration of extra dividends of $3 on Borne-Schrymser stock, the resumption of dividends on Timken Detroit Axle; extra payment on Gabriel Snubber and Eastern Rolling Mills, and the inauguration of dividends at the rate of $3 annually on International Business machines, equivalent to $9 on the old stock, which had paid $8.

Equipments were hard hit by further selling inspired by poor 1925 earnings of some of the larger companies. Baldwin was hammered down over five points to 14 1-3, the lowest price in two years; American Car and Foundry closed 3 5-8 lower at 101 7-8 and American Locomotive sagged to 101 1-2, off about 1 1-2 points.

Acute weakness again developed in American Woolen common and preferred which broke 3 1-8 and 5 1-2 points respectively, to their lowest quotations in over 10 years. Other outstanding weak spots in the industrial list were American Can, California Packing, General Electric, National Lead, Peoples Gas, Postum Cereal, United States Industrial Alcohol, United Fruit and Woolworth, all of which sold four or more points below last week's final quotations.

Motors were whirled upward in the early trading on further reports of increased production and sales but they failed to maintain their top prices although Studebaker showed a net gain of 2 1-4 at 60, after having touched 61 5-8, and General Motors closed fractionally higher at 125 1-4 after having crossed 127. Jordan opened at 65 1-8, slipped back to 63 and then rallied to 67 3-4, off 1 1-3 net. United States Steel common touched 127 7-8 and then rallied to 128 1-4 off 1 3-8. Famous Players and Union Bag and Paper showed independent strength.

All of the commodity markets closed lower. May wheat showed a small fractional gain, but the more distant options dropped 1 3-4 and 2 1-4 cents a bushel. Cotton closed 5 to 18 points net lower. Sugar and coffee futures also developed reactionary price tendencies.

Confused price movements characterized the foreign exchange market, which was featured by a rally of nearly 10 points in French francs to 3.64 1-2 cents. Demand sterling was slightly easier around $4.85 7-8. Norwegian krone rallied 28 points to 21.70 cents and then sagged to around 21.62. A further break of 15 points took place in Polish zlotys. Japanese yen lost ground on reports that the government had temporarily stopped the shipment of gold to this country.

THE WEATHER

Conditions

An area of high pressure from Manitoba and the Hudson Bay region has moved southeastward and it has overspread the eastern half of the United States. The highest barometer reading is 30.38 inches at Cincinnati, Ohio. Another area of high pressure is moving eastward over the Pacific states.

The weather will be generally fair Wednesday east of the Mississippi river, but the eastern advance of the western disturbance will be attended by much cloudiness on Thursday, and showers are probable by Thursday night as far east as the Appalachian region. The temperature will rise gradually in the middle Atlantic and north Atlantic states.

Winds

North of Sandy Hook: Diminishing northwest and fair weather Wednesday.

Sandy Hook to Hatteras: Moderate fresh northwest to west.

Forecast

For northern and southern New England—Fair, with slowly rising temperature Wednesday; Thursday fair and warmer.

TAFTVILLE

At the recent installation of the 1926 officers of Council Gagnon, No. 108, Union St. Jean Baptiste, there was presented under the direction of J. O. Tellier, a pleasing French play entitled "La Jeune Boer". The following talented amateur actors and actresses took part, Armand Lippi, Miss Anna Malo, Miss Bernadette Beauregard, Miss Itita Beauregard, Miss Rosanna Arpin, Miss Rosalva Legare, Miss Helene Legare, Miss Rosanna Raymond, Aime Pepin and Miss Simone Phaneuf. The efforts of those taking part were heartily applauded by the large crowd that attended the installation. A fine vocal solo was given by Mrs. Louis Pratte, accompanied on the piano by Miss Alice Frechette. Following the installation ceremonies, there were remarks by Rev. U. O. Bellerose, Joseph C. Marsan, president of the council, and Henri T. Ledoux of Nashua, N. H., grand president of the order. Six new members were voted into the council. Assisting the installing officer was J. Rochette of Norwich, Mrs. Halle of Danielson and the Grand St. Jean d'arc of Council Gagnon. Members from the councils in Norwich, Baltic and other surrounding towns swelled the number attending the affair, although the weather was inclement. The presentation of a very fine comedy concluded the event.

Mr. and Mrs. Raymond Girard of Pratte avenue and Mr. and Mrs. Orville Bissonette of Jewett City spent Monday in Boston.

The regular weekly meeting of the Ah-wa-ki-ya Camp Fire group was held at the home of Miss Freida Sarosky of South B street.

Edwin Pollard of Boston, spent the week end at the home of his father, William Pollard of South Second avenue.

Miss Dorothy Wood of Coventry spent the weekend at the home of her parents, Mr. and Mrs. John Wood of South Second avenue.

Miss Roberta Crowe of South Manchester is spending this week at the home of her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Thomas Crowe of South A street.

William H. Whitehead of Boswell avenue and Earle M. Wood of North Third avenue have returned from Lynn, Mass., where they attended the Massachusetts Provincial Conclave of the K. O. K. A., as delegates from Castle Perilous. Among those at the conclave was George Kay, formerly of Taftville, now of Northbridge, Mass. where he is merlin of Castle Plymouth It was also announced at the conclave that Rev. Elton Bassett of Malden, former Archbishop of the province of Massachusetts will probably make an official visitation to Castle Perilous sometime this year.

Mrs. Harry McNamara of Hartford has been a recent guest of Mr. and Mrs. E. W. Yerrington of South Second avenue.

FORECLOSURE ACTION AGAINST FORMER COLCHESTER MAN

Nathan Manchik of New York city, formerly of Colchester has been made the defendant in a foreclosure action brought by L. A. W. Acceptance Corporation of Worcester. The plaintiff corporation complains that Dec. 6, 1921, Sam Rosenfeld owed Leiser Rattner and Max Rechland $3,000 on a note payable one year after date. The note was secured by a mortgage on property in Colchester. December 1, 1923 Mr. Rosenfeld sold the property to the Meech Brown Grain Co., and Clark W. Burnham who assumed and agreed to pay the note and mortgage. They in turn sold the property to Nathan Manchik.

It is alleged that on August 23, 1923, Mr. Rattner transfered mortgage and note to Fred O.Brown of Colchester. Mr. Brown on Feb. 1, 1925, sold and transfered mortgage and note to the L. A. W. Acceptance Corp. The latter now seek recovery on the note.

DEFENSE INTRODUCES TESTIMONY AT TRIAL OF $15,000 DAMAGE SUIT

Trial of the case of Gladys E. Palmer, 20, of Hopkinton, R. I., against Owens C. Wolfe of New London, in which Miss Palmer is seeking damages of $15,000 occupied the entire session of the superior court at New London Tuesday. This was the second day of the trial before Judge Allyn L. Brown and a jury. Miss Palmer is suing to collect damages for injuries alleged to have been received May 23, 1924 at Hopkinton when she was hit by an automobile driven by the defendant. The suit is brought through her father, Albert C. Palmer. The plaintiff side completed its testimony during the afternoon after which defense testimony was heard.

At the conclusion of the testimony on the plaintiff's side, the jury was excused while Attorney Thomas E. Troland, associate defense counsel with Attorney S. Victor Prince, made a motion for non-suit on the grounds that it had not been proven that Miss Palmer was acting "in the exercise of due care," when she started across the intersection of Main and High streets at Hopkinton where she was struck down by the Wolfe car. Attorney Troland stated that on the evidence of the plaintiff and all of her witnesses, there was proof she did not exercise due care wherein she did not look to see if there was a car approaching at the time she started across. He read testimony which showed that she saw a coupe and then a truck pass and that she watched the truck until it had gotten beyond the corner of High street, where it pulled in to the right behind the coupe because of the approach of the Wolfe car. Attorney Troland maintained that if then the girl had looked when she started to cross she could have seen the Wolfe car approaching. Judge Brown stated that there were some points regarding distances at the intersection which had not been proven and that although the testimony mentioned by Attorney Troland would be considered, he should have to deny the motion.

Among the witnesses for the plaintiff today was a Dr. Knerr of Hope Valley, R. I., who testified as to the girl's injuries.

As the first defense witness, Attorneys Troland and Prince placed on the stand, Percy L. Allen, of Groton, a surveyor employed for the past six or seven years for Payne & Keefe, who had made a drawing of the intersections. He was explaining the chart when the afternoon recess was ordered.

NEW LONDON COUNCIL CONSIDERS SEWAGE QUESTION

(Special to The Bulletin.)

NEW LONDON, Feb. 23—The sewering of the whole section in the northern part of the city came before the city council this evening in an argument of the situation by the council, the city manager and property owners. The matter came up on a report by the city's health officers to the effect that no complaint had even been made to him of the lack of sewer facilities or to the effect that cesspools were overflowing.

Councilor May again attacked the condition because of lack of sewer facilities and condemned the city authorities because such conditions existed. He said that cesspools were overflowing, that substance as well as liquids overflowed into the streets and that there was an odor there that was perceptible to every one unless it was the health officer.

This brought a reply from the city manager, who said the health officer's report was a reliable one and that he placed absolute confidence in what the report said. He declared that the situation was blameable upon the property owners. Councilor May insisted that the conditions were blameable upon the city and said that he and several others had visited the section daily of late and detected the odor and the conditions complained of.

Councilor May asked for the privilege of the floor for Dr. Dargoltz, a resident in that vicinity and property owner. The privilege of the floor was given to Dr. Dargoltz and he condemned the existing conditions, saying that for seventeen years property owners had experienced trouble with cesspools.

Councilor Streeter believed the city should provide the sewers asked for. He said that three times to his knowledge the residents on and about Mohegan avenue had petitioned for the sewers and as many times the matter had been tabled without further action.

Manager Holt asked Councilor May to suggest a remedy for the conditions and Mr. May replied, "Provide sewers."

Mrs. Emily Speirs, a resident on Mohegan avenue and a property owner there, condemned the statements of Councilor May at the meeting a week ago as to conditions on Mohegan avenue. She said his statements were unwarranted and declared that he should have brought the matter to the council in executive session before he represented the xisting conditions as he did.

MAJOR FITCH'S SWORD GIVEN SLATER LIBRARY

The state library has received through the favor of Mrs. G. F. Lewis of Stratford the sword with dress and service scabbards presented to Major Walter Fitch in October, 1865. Major Fitch was a descendant of Thomas Wells, governor of Connecticut in 1655 and 1658. He was adjutant of the Sixth Regiment Connecticut Volunteers and was wounded at Fort Wagner July 18, 1863. He died in Bridgeport May 10, 1879, and was buried in Greenlawn cemetery. The sword is presented by Mrs. G. F. Lewis as executrix of the estate of Mary and Elizabeth Fitch, sisters of Major Fitch and was brought to the library by her son-in-law, Merritt D. Vanderbilt.

Major Fitch's service as found in the record of Connecticut men in the war of the Rebellion, 1861-1865, is as follows:

"Enlisted August 25, 1861; date of muster, September 5, 1861; promoted from private Co. I to sergeant major March 23, 1862; second lieutenant Co. G, October 3, 1862; adjutant, October 24, 1863; discharged July 23, 1864."

The state library has received through Charles Mason Remey of Washington, D. C., a typewritten, autographed copy containing reminiscences of his father, Rear Admiral George C. Remey, U. S. navy—now ranking rear admiral of the navy, and reminiscences concerning his mother, Mary J. Remey. This quarto volume filled with interesting data is illustrated by appropriate photographs.

There was a luncheon at Hotel Garde at 12:30. The afternoon program included an address of welcome by Mr. Ives. J. H. Putnam, manager of the Greenfield Fair association, Greenfield, Mass., spoke on "The Function of a Town Fair."

There were four round table discussions. Stanciff Hale of the Union Agricultural society of Glastonbury, led the discussion on "Night Show;" Marshall Frink, the discussion on "Concessions" Robert Bristol, the discussion on "How to Make a Live Fair," and Mrs. Caroline M. Bidwell of the Good Will Grange Fair association of Glastonbury, the discussion on "The Home Economics department."

COURT DROPS CASE AGAINST ATTY BREWER

In the city court Tuesday morning Judge Arthur F. Libby entered a discharge in the case against Attorney Leslie Brewer, charged with having a faulty headlight, this case having been heard at sessions of the court since Saturday morning, many witnesses being heard. In court Tuesday morning State Officer Joseph Bobnick of Groton baracks testified that on the night Attorney Brewer was handed the summons he could not see objects 200 feet distant and that he believed it necessary for headlights to have been lighted on the automobiles. At 10 o'clock that night he and Officer Whitmarsh tried the dimmers on the car operated by the latter and they could not see 200 feet ahead. Attorney Brewer objected to this testimony stating that he had been informed Monday morning by the court that no additional evidence would be required for the defense.

State Officer Whitmarsh corroborated the testimony given by Officer Bobnick and then Judge Libby summed up the case, stating that there was a conflict in testimony and that the state had not proven its case beyond a reasonable doubt. He then entered a discharge.

Rose De Stefano of 36 Thames street, charged with actual sale of liquor, had her case continued until Thursday. She was arested Monday evening by Sergeant Mathew Delaney and Officers John Quinn and Patrick Murphy after evidence had been secured. In default of bonds of $1000 she spent the night in the lock-up. A pint of alleged hooch was the evidence.

A blurred date in his summons saved Lincoln D. Rogers of Montville, at least $5 for after he appeared in court Judge Libby nolled his case, inasmuch as Mr. Rogers had made two trips to the court from his home in Montville.

The date on the summons appeared as Feb. 21 according to Mr. Rogers and he came to Norwich Sunday in answer to the summons. Seeing no one around he returned home after some waiting. Monday morning he failed to appear in court and he was called by phone and asked whether he was coming to court or if he wanted the court to send for him.

Mr. Rogers informed Officer Charles Smith that the summons he received read for Sunday and that he had been in Norwich that day. The court was informed of this claim and Judge Libby told Officer Smith to have Mr. Rogers in court Tuesday morning, with the summons.

In court Tuesday morning the summons was examined by City Attorney Robbins and the figure was found to be obliterated, making it hard to tell whether it read Feb. 20th or 21st The court and state officer also saw the summons and it was believed that the carbon copy had moved from position and the figure failed to register clearly, although the original, held by the officer, read Feb. 20th.

Samuel Pogolwits of the West Side, engaged in junk peddling, was fined $15 and costs for not having a license to peddle. He pleaded guilty and paid $25.65.

Lawrence Hoffman paid $5 for driving an automobile with a faulty tail light.

Charles Zeidler of Taftville, unable to pay $15.75, the result of a $5 fine with costs, for intoxication, went to jail to work out his bill with the court.

GAVE SHOP TALK ON GEORGE WASHINGTON

At the shop meeting Monday noon at the plant of the Richmond Radiator company Rev. Charles H. Ricketts gave a timely talk on Washington. The meeting was held under the auspices of the Y. M. C. A. In part Rev. Mr. Ricketts said:

"I could not let this period pass without bringing to you some thoughts on the life of the great man, George Washington, whose birthday we celebrate today. Unlike Abraham Lincoln, George Washington was born in the environment of wealth, while Lincoln was born in comparative poverty. Washington, whose birthday we celebrate could be had in those days, while Lincoln had to work hard for what he got. It was early seen that Washington had in him natural leadership, whether it was in his work as a surveyor, or in his conduct of his large farm. He manifested great wisdom in his participation in the warfare with the Indians, and when he finally became commander-in-chief of the American army, he soon demonstrated to those who thus appointed him the wisdom of their choice as he led his men through many trials finally to victory. There were those who found fault with Washington, some calling him a coward because he quite often retreated, but he knew the limited ability of his army, and to retreat was oftimes the part of real wisdom. Indeed it is not wise always to go forward; it is wise to know when and how to retreat.

"The power of Washington's personality and leadership was clearly indicated when, food and clothing became scarce in the terrible winter weather, and yet he held his men together. Washington was a real commander, and he succeeded in practically everything he undertook. He was a Christian, and believed much in prayer, and did not hesitate to ask divine assistance in his great problems. As a churchman, he was very faithful, and accepted whatever duties the church placed upon him, and performed them with that same faithfulness and ability that characterized him in all of his activities. It is true of Washington and ever will be that "he is first in war, first in peace, and first in the hearts of his countrymen."

AUTO DRIVERS LICENSES RETURNED AT HEARING

In the room of the court of common pleas in this city, Tuesday afternoon, at 1 o'clock, Commissioner Melvin E. Snow opened hearings on nine motor vehicle law violations. A hearing was held in the case of Chester A. Chapman, No. 52 Pearl street, on the complaint that he had been operating a machine while under the influence of liquor. In view of the fact that Mr. Chapman earns his livelihood by driving, Commissioner Snow allowed him to retain what is known as a limited license.

The commissioner stated this license would only allow Mr. Chapman to operate a truck.

Charged with evading responsibility, John Doerr, Danielson, had his license returned. An unusual situation developed in Mr. Doerr's case. Officer Henry Albright, of the state police, testified that another autoist complained of his car being shoved off the road by the Doerr car and damaged it to some extent. Doerr was arrested and presented before Justice of the Peace Baker in Colchester court.

As Doerr agreed to settle for the damages, which he did, the court nolled the case upon costs. At that time, Doerr was allowed to retain his license. On November 24, 1925, he received an urgent letter from the motor vehicle department requesting his operator's license to be turned in. He claims that he was very much surprised to receive this demand, inasmuch as the court told him everything would be all right. Doerr told of taking his license to the grand juror in Danielson and later a state police officer came to him for the license. He told the officer where the license was and the officer went to the grand juror and got the license.

William H. Mallon, Plainfield, had his licence returned to him. He was charged with operating under the influence of liquor. Mallon ran into a steam roller on the road between Jewett City and Plainfield last summer and was found to be under the influence for which he was fined $100 and costs.

The case against Andrew G. McKay, of 182 Willetts avenue, New London, evading responsibility after striking a little girl in Greeneville, more than a month ago, was left open. He was represented by Attorney Albert J. Bailey, who informed the commissioner that his client was unable to be present. Testimony of several witnesses were taken in the matter, with Mr. McKay's testimony to be given later.

Other cases were disposed of as follows:

Eli J. Dangenais, Danielson, evading responsibility, license returned.

The testimony of Officer Clarence Wells, of the New London police department, was taken in the case of John A. Heikle, 611 Broad street, New London, charged with evading responsibility.

Edward J. Lavoie, Waterford, overloading, allowed to retain license.

Elzear Gaumond, North Grosvernordale, fatal accident, license returned.

N. E. Rowley, 248 Coleman street, New London, operating under influence, failed to appear.

E. J. Mullins, 51 Spring street, Norwich, conference, warned. Mr. Mullins was involved in three successive accidents in a short time, in which personal injuries of a minor nature, resulted to two.

OCEAN GOING BARGE ARRIVES WITH SOFT COAL

An ocean going barge consigned to the Edward Chappell Co., of this city, which had been held up for two weeks in New London owing to the heavy ice in the Thames river, was brought to Norwich Tuesday afternoon. A tug was sent up the river ahead of the barge and broke through the ice floes, making it easier for the second tug to tow the barge to Central Wharf. The barge is loaded with steam soft coal.

Numerous cars of anthracite coal were seen going through Norwich Tuesday afternoon via the Norwich and Worcester road, evidently bound for Massachusetts cities. Coal dealers here state that it will be about three weeks before shipments begin to arrive in Norwich and that there is still an anthracite supply in the city, although in such an amount as necessitates careful selling in order to provide all consumers until new deliveries arrive.

Fitchville Surprise Party

Mrs. C. H. Phillipps was very pleasantly surprized at her home in Fitchville Center Monday evening by her Sunday school class of eight girls. On returning from the city, the young ladies having everything previously arranged, met her at the entrance to her home with a warm welcome and presented her with a cut glass bon bon dish.

The evening was greatly enjoyed by the class and teacher. Refreshments of cake, cookies and soda water were served by the girls.

TAX REDUCTION BILL UP TO PRESIDENT COOLIDGE

Senate Accepted Compromise Measure by Vote of 61 to 10—Under the Terms of the Bill More Than 2,300,000 Who Paid Income Taxes Last Year Will Be Relieved of Income Tax Payments—Signature by the President is Expected at an Early Date.

WASHINGTON, Feb. 24—(AP)—Congress today ordered the $387,000,000 tax reduction bill sent to President Coolidge, completing work on its first and probably most important piece of legislation of the session.

The president is expected to make the bill effective with his signature at as early date, although allowed ten days in which to study it.

Final congressional approval of the measure came late today with the acceptance by the senate, 61 to 10, of the compromises reached in conference with the house. By a similarly overwhelming vote, the house ratified the compromise yesterday.

Carrying provisions for relief of virtually every federal tax payer, its effects will begin to be felt when first income tax installments fall due on March 15. More than 2,000,000 who paid income taxes last year will be relieved of all taxes under the vote, the house ratified the compromise yesterday.

Carrying provisions for relief of virtually every federal tax payer, its effects will begin to be felt when the first income tax installments fall due March 15. More than 2,300,000 who paid income taxes under the measure.

Both republican and democratic leaders defended the measure in the four hours of senate debate today on the conference agreement, and a proposal to recommit it to conference for further tax reduction was defeated on a point of order.

Senator Neely, democrat, West Virginia, made this motion, which would have instructed the senate conferees to insist upon repeal of the taxes on admissions, dues and automobiles.

Leaders on both sides argued this would cause undesired delai, and Senator Robinson of Arkansas, the democratic leader, made the point that the motion was out of order since it would not provide a means of getting the bill back before the senate.

Vice President Dawes upheld the point of order and an appeal from his ruling of Senator Neely was voted down, 62 to 8. The roll call on adoption of the conference agreement immediately followed.

Those voting against the bill were: Republicans: Frazier and Nye of North Dakota; Howell of Nebraska, La Follette of Wisconsin, and Norbeck of South Dakota.

Democrats—Blease, South Carolina; Trammell, Florida, and Walsh and Wheeler, Montana—4.

Farmer-Labor—Shipstead, Minnesota—1.

TO SURVEY CONDITIONS UNDER PROHIBITION LAW

WASHINGTON, Feb. 24—(AP)—The wet and dry fight continued to agitate congress from several angles today, and the house alcoholic liquor traffic committee by a unanimous vote adopted a motion to initiate an inquiry into conditions under prohibition.

The committee set aside next Monday for the drafting of a plan of procedure. The action was prompted by failure of the house rules committee to report on its resolution requesting authority to conduct such an investigation, and it took the position that under house rules it could conduct a comprehensive survey despite that, lacking the authorization sought it would be unable to subpoena witnesses and documentary evidence.

Meanwhile Representative Hill, republican, Maryland, in a letter to prohibition commission Roy A. Haynes, requested that specific authority be granted to the Schlitz Brewing company of Milwaukee to determine whether the beverage is intoxicating in fact. He said he believed such transportation was legal under the circumstances without such authority but desired to take no chances.

Representative Britten, republican, Illinois, announced that within several days he would ask the rules committee for a hearing on his resolution providing for investigation of the anti-saloon league, indicating if no action were taken on the proposal he would endeavor to have the alcohol liquor traffic committee undertake the work. He remarked that if there is nothing wrong with the league, it should welcome an investigation.

Representative Upshaw, of Georgia, a member of the alcoholic traffic committee asserted that considerable sentiment existed among house drys in favor of a resolution by Representative Tillman, democrat, Arkansas, for investigation of the association against the Prohibition amendment.

POSTAL RATES SATISFACTORY TO ALL AN IMPOSSIBILITY

FITCHBURG, Mass., Feb. 24.—(AP)—A set of postal rates wholly satisfactory to the users of all classes of mail is an impossibility, Postmaster General New told members of the Fitchburg Chamber of Commerce tonight. But he added that the present rates, effected ten months ago, must be revised eventually in the light of experience in their operation.

"Everyone wants a service, of whatever character, at the least figure at which he can get it, and objects to what he regards as an excessive charge, no matter by whom made," Mr. New said, "but he kicks just a little harder over what he considers an excess paid to his government than at what he gets from anyone else with whom he has dealings.

"Occasionally some good friend, with ideas of management, asks: 'Why not apply business methods to the post office?' If an answer were required from me it would be that, except in the very broadest sense, it is wholly impossible to do so."

In explanation, he compared the management of great corporations by their small boards of directly interested directors with that of the post office, and said that, while he might have ideas of his own, he must submit them to a board of 531 directors, composed of members of the senate and house of representatives, all with varied interests. The next national administration, he predicted, will face a budget of more than $1,000,000,000 for postal account alone.

URGED OHIO FUND SYSTEM OF WORKMEN'S COMPENSATION

BOSTON, Feb. 24.—(AP)—President William Green of the American Federation of Labor, appeared today before the joint committee on judiciary of the Massachusetts legislature, to urge adoption of the so-called Ohio fund system of workmen's compensation. With him were John P. Frey, president of the Ohio State Federation of Labor, and other leaders who explained the working of a proposal to establish an exclusive state fund, to which employers would contribute for the protection of workmen.

Representatives of 140 Massachusetts labor unions were present in addition to agents and officers of insurance companies and industrial enterprises.

After tracing the history of workmen's compensation legislation, President Green declared, "It is the deliberate judgment of workers and the public as I sense it that workmen's compensation should be administered by a state fund. It is the workman who sustains the injury, who suffers death in industry. It is he who is to be considered.

HEAVY FINE FOR FORMER BOXER IN NEW HAVEN

NEW HAVEN, Feb. 24.—(AP)—Declaring that he believed Thomas Shea, of Olive street, a former boxer, extensively engaged in liquor traffic, Judge Sheridan T. Whitaker imposed fines of $400 and jail sentences or sixty days on liquor violation charges in the city court today. Appeal bond was set at $1,000.

Max Stoff, owner of a hay and feed store at 283 Oak street, was fined $200 and given three months in jail after claiming that liquor found in his place had been purchased from a farmer for a wedding celebration. He also appealed, bond being set at $1,000. It was Stoff's second conviction for violating the liquor laws.

Shea was charged with manufacturing liquor and keeping it with intent to sell.

RAMBEAU-MATON DIVORCE SUIT TRIAL BEGINS TODAY

NEW YORK, Feb. 24—(AP)—A copy of a telegram alleged to have been sent by Marjorie Rambeau, to William K. Manton, actor and stage manager, saying in part, "Darling, I love you and nothing can keep us apart," was produced in supreme court today at the hearing of Mrs. Mabel Manton's petition for alimony and counsel fees, the reported telegram was signed, "your partner in crime—Marjorie Rambeau."

The trial of the divorce suit will begin tomorrow. Justice Proskauer today gave Mrs. Manton until next Monday to show that the telegram actually had been sent by Miss Rambeau, who is named as correspondent. Miss Rambeau has announced she would contest the action.

Mrs. Manton, who asked $500 counsel fees and weekly alimony of $75, alleged that Manton, whom she married in December 1917, became intimate with Miss Rambeau in 1925. She asserted in her petition that she found the telegram in August of last year, and learned that her husband had a duplicate key to Miss Rambeau's apartment.

The petition stated that August 28 she went to the apartment with two friends and a private detective and found Manton alone, sitting on the floor, intoxicated. The next night she asserted the apartment was raided by the same party and Miss Rambeau and Manton were found together.

Justice Proskauer reserved decision on the application for alimony.

MEETING OF DEM. STATE CENTRAL COMMITTEE TODAY

HARTFORD, Feb. 24—(AP)—The Democratic State Central committee is to meet at the Hotel Bond in this city tomorrow afternoon to complete its organization by the election of a woman as state vice chairman and another as national committeewoman.

It is likely that the name of Mrs. Alice Mooney, of Waterbury, will be presented by state vice chairman.

David E. Fitzgerald, of New Haven, has put forward the name of Mrs. George Troup Glynn as a candidate for national committeewoman and unless the organization changes its mind before tomorrow her name will go before the committee.

The former New Haven mayor is ill and may not be able to attend the meeting.

The name of Mrs. Charles G. Morris, of New Haven, wife of the democratic candidate for governor in 1924, has been suggested as a possible candidate for national committeewoman but today she said that she had never heard of the proposal.

Chairman Walsh, who is also a member of the committee from the 13th district, has given a proxy to Francis Maloney, democratic town chairman in Meriden, who will vote in his stead.

FEDERAL WARRANT ISSUED FOR THE ARREST OF PONZI

JACKSONVILLE, Fla., Feb. 24—(AP)—A federal warrant for the arrest of Charles Ponzi "financial wizard" on charges alleging use of the mails to defraud, was issued here today at the request of postoffice inspectors.

The federal warrant was issued in connection with Ponzi's real estate dealings by which he sought to sell lots for ten dollars each with the purpose, he declared, of paying back creditors who lost in his international reply coupon activities in Boston.

Ponzi is under $5,000 bond on state charges alleging violation of state laws in connection with his real estate dealings, which he conducted under declaration of trust.

CABLED PARAGRAPHS

Queen Mary at Baby Clinic

LONDON, Feb. 24—(AP)—Queen Mary heard more cockney today probably than on any other day of her career during her visit to Poplar, in the East End, the occasion being the queen's inspection of the baby clinic at St. Katherine's college, the oldest philanthropic foundation in the kingdom.

Entertainment of Rare Splendor

JAMMU, Kashmir, Feb. 24—(AP)—Rarely has India, with all the riches of its princes, witnessed such splendor as was displayed last night, when the new Maharajah of Jammu and Kashmir, Sir Hari Singh, entertained 150 guests at a state banquet in honor of the ruling princes and chiefs of the native India states who are here from all parts of the country for his coronation. The princes were served on gold plate and the members of their staffs on solid silver.

CHARGED WITH MURDER IN A STABBING AFFRAY

WATERBURY, Feb. 24—(AP)—Luigi Macolino, 64 Scovill street, was charged with murder in a warrant issued today by Prosecuting Attorney James A. Peasley. The warrant followed the finding of Coroner John T. Monzani, in which Macolino is declared criminally responsible for the death by stabbing of John E. McDonald, World war veteran, on February 4.

Macolino has been held by police since his arrest a short time after the stabbing. He will appear in city court tomorrow morning. Attorney Peasley said tonight that the case did not have the aspects of a first degree murder case.

McDonald was found lying in the middle of Scovill street between 12 and 1 o'clock on the morning of February 4, bleeding profusely from a deep stab wound in the hip. He was taken to St. Mary's hospital and died four hours later from loss of blood. Macolino was traced from the scene of the attack to his lodgings by bloody footprints. He is alleged to have stabbed McDonald in a fight.

Macolino admits stabbing McDonald but denies that the two had a fight. He claims that he was one of a group engaged in the row.

STRIKE IN ALL THE WOMEN'S CLOTHING SHOPS IN BOSTON

BOSTON, Feb. 24—(AP)—All union operatives in women's clothing shops in this city were called out on strike at a mass meeting of the members of the International Ladies Garment Workers union tonight. The union claimed 74,000 members and declared the strike would close 200 shops.

William Green, president of the American Federation of Labor, speaking at the meeting extended the support "of the 5,000,000 members of the American Federation of Labor in the United States if you give your union the support it is entitled to, then success is yours. But it is better to fight and lose than not to fight at all."

The strike was ordered to enforce demands rejected by Boston clothing manufacturers. The principal demand was for the adoption of the "prosanis label" which is the union guarantee of sanitary shops.

Wage demands included continuation of the 5-day, 42 hour week, with minimum wage scales of $1.45 an hour for pressers, 65 cents for finishers, $1 for piece workers, time and a half for overtime for week workers and $1 an hour over time for piece workers. The union also insisted on creation of an unemployment insurance fund by all the employers of the city.

GOVERNOR TRUMBULL HAS RETURNED FROM FLORIDA

HARTFORD, Feb. 24—(AP)—Governor Trumbull returned to the state today from Florida where he has been spending a vacation with Mrs. Trumbull and their youngest daughter, Jean. He went immediately to his home in Plainville and from there announced that he would be at his office at the capitol tomorrow.

The governor said tonight that he enjoyed his trip and had many splendid days of golfing, fishing and entertainment. He feels much rested and ready for any hard work ahead.

He has become a land owner in Florida, having made a small purchase, he said. While predicting a great future for Florida, he added a word of caution to prospective buyers, saying that everyone should investigate beforehand as there are bad land investments as well as excellent ones in that state. The governor's party met many Connecticut citizens while visiting the cities along the west coast and other sections of the state.

MATTER OF REPRIEVE FOR GERALD CHAPMAN

HARTFORD, Feb. 24—(AP)—The reprieve which Gerald Chapman seeks to allow him time to appeal his case to the United States supreme court will depend on a conference of State's Attorney Hugh M. Alcorn with Governor Trumbull either tomorrow or Friday.

Attorney Frederick J. Groehl, of New York, senior counsel for Chapman, conferred with Mr. Alcorn in the latter's office today and later visited Chapman at the state prison to make known the result of the conference and inform him what the prospects at a reprieve are.

After his visit with his client, Mr. Groehl reported that Chapman was visibly relieved as a result of the news he had brought him but declined to reveal what the substance of his conference with Chapman was.

ELECTED SUPT. NATIONAL EDUCATION ASSOCIATION

WASHINGTON, Feb. 24—(AP)—Randall J. Condon, superintendent of schools at Cincinnati, Ohio, tonight was elected president of the department of superintence of the National Education association, in annual convention here.

Dr. Frank W. Ballou, superintendent of District of Columbia schools, the retiring president, automatically became first vice president, and David A. Ward, superintendent of schools at Wilmington, Del., was elected second vice president without opposition. E. E. Lewis, superintendent at Flint, Mich., defeated Willis A. Sutton, the Atlanta superintendent, for membership on the executive committee.

GOING BLLIND, OUT OF WORK, DESPONDENT MAN SUICIDES

NEW YORK, Feb. 24.—(AP)—Despondent because he was going blind and was out of work, a man registered as John Bradley, of New Haven, Conn., hanged himself in his room at the Hotel Martinique.

Bradley left a note saying he had taken an overdose of an opiate found in the room. He asked that Joseph Fousek, of Long Island City, N. Y., be told of his death.

"M[illegible] Sniper" Was A Convict on Parole

Identfication May Lead to Clearing of a Double Murder in Sioux City and Other Crimes.

OMAHA, Neb., Feb. 24—(AP)—Frank Carter, confessed "sniper" who killed two and wounded two persons here and at Council Bluffs last week, today was identified as Louis Clark, parole breaker from the Fort Madison, Iowa, penitentiary. With this identification, Nebraska and Iowa authorities hope to clear up a long list of crimes, including a double murder in a Sioux City hardware store last August.

Today's identification was made after Hi Yackey, Iowa state agent, conferred with Inspector Danbaum, of Omaha, and conversed with Carter. Yackey said he was convinced that Carter is Clark, who was given a ten-year sentence at Fort Madison, following his conviction of maliciously shooting a horse and cow belonging to Otto Schoenaman, wealthy farmer, near Orange City, Iowa.

According to Yackey, Clark was employed by Schoenaman and after a trivial quarrel, killed the animals. He was arrested and convicted at Orange City. After serving part of his ten-year sentence, he was paroled to J. J. Weber, of the Pittsburgh Steel company, Des Moines, but soon went to Sioux City, where he failed to make his parole report and was declared a parole breaker.

The fact that Yackey believes Clark was in Sioux City at the time of the murder and that the bodies were found there with .22 calibre bullets in them, the same as used in the Omaha killings, causes authorities to believe that he may be guilty of the Sioux City murders. The bullets found in the bodies at Sioux City are expected here by mail tomorrow for comparison.

Clark is to be arraigned in district court here tomorrow on first degree murder charges in connection with the fatal shooting of Dr. A. D. Searles and William McDevitt. County Attorney Beal said he would demand the death penalty.

CLAIMANTS OF PRIZE TO LARGEST FAMILY IN TURKEY

CONSTANTINOPLE, Feb. 24—(AP)—A large number of claimants have come forward for the prize of 1,000 lira offered by Ali Mahir Bey to the largest family in Turkey, and the competition has opened a controversy as to the basis on which the award shall be made. The "prize of virtue," as the donor calls it, will be awarded March 1.

The largest family thus far disclosed contains 24 children, but the father, Mehmed Indat, a sea-going man, has had four wives, two of whom he married at the same time when polygamy was permissable.

However, there is strong public sentiment that the "prize of virtue" should go not to the father of the greatest number of children but to the mother. The leader in his category is Hava Hanoum, widow of Abdul Raman Zia, who has brought into the world 20 children, 14 of whom are now alive. She was married at 16, is now 48, and her youngest child is six years old. The family is considered particularly worthy because in spite of limited means the children have been well educated. The parents even sent some of them to Europe to study various trades.

FRENCH SENATE CLOSES FINANCIAL DISCUSSION

PARIS, Feb. 24—(AP)—General discussion of the financial restoration measures was closed in the senate this afternoon before half the speakers inscribed had a chance to say their word.

M. Doumer himself, who intended to present the government viewpoint, was thus forestalled, but the finance minister consoled himself in the thought that the debate was shortened that much and that the final vote was brought at least one day nearer.

The members of the upper house appear less interested in their own debate than that of the deputies, who apprehend the adoption of government measures which will threaten their prestige unless they reject the senate amendments. Side negotiations are going on continually between the radical senators and deputies to reach a compromise, whereby the measures as passed by the upper house will be so camouflaged that the chamber can approve the amendments without appearing to stultify itself.

Y., Feb. 24—(AP)—The fate of Michael Enright, accused of the murder last December of Timothy Shay was placed in the hands of the jury at 5:45 o'clock this evening, following a day devoted to summations by prosecution and defense and the charge to the jury by Judge Edwin S. Brown. The jury retired for the night at 10:30 p. m. not having reached a verdict.

Investigating Report of Scandalous Party

Countess of Cathcart Declares Nothing Occurred to Which Anyone Could Object.

NEW YORK, Feb. 24—(AP)—While Broadway gossiped today of a bacchanalian party reported to have been given Monday night by Earl Carroll, theatrical producer, on the great white way, two official investigations to ascertain the facts were started. Police Commissioner McLaughlin took steps to determine whether there was a display of nudity and prohibition agents made preparations to learn whether a bathtub full of wine was served, as had been reported.

Published accounts of the supposed party said that wine was served from a bathtub in which a nude chorus girl reposed, dispensing the beverage to the guests. It was reported that approximately 200 guests attended the party, in the Earl Carroll theatre.

Mr. Carroll issued a flat denial of the bathtub-wine report. He said the party was entirely orderly, and one which any man, even a minister, might have, with propriety, attended with his wife.

Chief Prohibition Enforcement Agent Tuttle started an investigation to determine the contents of the bath tub. His department, he said was not interested in the bathing girl's attire, or lack of attire.

The Countess of Cathcart, who attended, said that if there was any bathing done it took place after she left the theatre.

"While I was at the party nothing occurred to which anyone could take the least exception," she said. "It was a wonderful party; I have never seen anything like it. We do not have such affairs in England."

"There was a bath tub," Mr. Carroll said, "but there was nothing but ginger ale in it and nobody took a bath in the ginger ale. The only thing the guests had to drink besides this ginger ale was near beer and no one was intoxicated during the party."

CATHCART CONTROVERSY NOW CASE FOR COURTS

WASHINGTON, Feb. 24—(AP)—In denying the raquest of counsel that the case of Vera, Countess of Cathcart, be reopened for consideration of the new evidence while a writ of habeas corpus was pending, the labor department made plain today that it merely was following a practice which never before had been departed from under like circumstances.

The department took the position that the question whether the countess should be barred from admission to the United States, as ordered by the Ellis Island immigration board, is now before the courts. When appeals for new hearings are made after an immigration case has taken on a legal status, the practice always has been to reject them until the court in question has made known its decision.

The particular section of the immigration law under which the countess was detained upon arrival at Ellis Island, it was pointed out, has been in force for 19 years. As many as four aliens a day in that time have been denied entry for causes similar to those stated by the board which recommended the exclusion of the Countess of Cathcart.

TWO DEGREES CONFERRED BY BROWN UNIVERSITY

PROVIDENCE, R. I., Feb. 24—(AP)—Appearing for the first time in this country as a soloist rather than a conductor, Serge Koussevitzky, conductor of the Boston Symphony orchestra, responded in the medium of his art when Brown university this afternoon conferred on him the honorary degree of doctor of music. He played with thrilling beauty upon a bass violin, Handel's Largo and the Andante from his own concert, composed some 20 years ago.

The university also honored Roy Chapman Andrews, eminent explorer, who has traced the origin of pre-historic man to central Asia, conferring on him the honorary degree of doctor of science.

Impressive exercises, paying gracious tribute to two men distinguished in widely diverse field of endeavor, were held in Sayles Hall, the university chapel.

In conferring the degree upon M. Koussevitzky, President William H. P. Faunce spoke of him as "a distinguished virtuoso and interpreter of the music of all peoples; leader of concerts in London, Madrid, Barcelona and Warsaw, who has crossed the seas to convey to prosaic America some of his own insights into the arts in the universal language of music.

A ripple of applause greeted Dr. Faunce's announcement that "since M. Koussevitzky does not desire to use our English tongue in public, he will respond in the language of music which all can understand."

A tremendous ovation was accorded the conductor's recital.

In his citation of Mr. Andrews, Mr. Faunce said, "Roy Chapman Andrews, indefatigable student and intrepid explorer who had made the dead past speak to the living present and is making civilization realize its youth and the vast achievements yet to come."

QUOTAS OF P. E. CHURCH 1926 BUDGET OF $4,212,370

NEW YORK, Feb. 23.—(AP) — Eight dioceses of the Protestant Episcopal church have contributed their full quota toward the 1926 budget of $4,212,370. The National Council of the Episcopal church announced today that the response had set unusual records in church giving.

For the first time since the budget system was adopted, the diocese of New York has met its full quota. Bishop William T. Manning said the full quota of $370,800 will be contributed and an additional $250,000 has been pledged toward extinguishing the deficit of $1,400,000 reported to the general convention last October.

OPENING OF TRIAL OF BIMBA ON CHARGES OF BLASPHEMY

Witness Testified That the Lithuanian Editor and Lecturer Avowed His Belief in Communism, That the Only Flag He Believed in Was the Red Flag and That It Would Float in Washington—Did Not Believe in the Socialist Party Because It Believed in Effecting Changes by the Ballot Instead of by Revolution.

BROCKTON, Mass., Feb. 24—(AP)—The trial of Anthony Bimba, Lithuanian editor and lecturer, on charges of blasphemy under a statute 229 years old, and of sedition, moved slowly through its first day in district court today. After the defense lost its motion to dismiss both cases, three witnesses were put on the stand by the prosecution.

All were Lithuanians and their testimony dealt with addresses delivered by Bimba in Lithuanian national all in Brockton on January 29, for which he was arrested. Judge C. Carroll King, who is presiding, wished to receive as much of the testimony in English as was possible, despite the frequent protests of City Attorney I. Manuel Rubin who said that the witnesses could express themselves more clearly by speaking in Lithuanian. Finally with the last witness of the day, John Bolones, an interpreter, was called in.

This was not, however, until bolones had raised a laugh by his prompt "no" to the question "do you understand English?" And another when he said Bimba "kicked like hell" at conditions in Lithuania. After the interpreter had been at work for a while Attorney Harry Hoffman of the defense objected because, he said, Mrs. Bimba told him that the interpreter was making a characterization rather than a strict interpretation of the testimony. The court permitted him to continue, however.

George A. Sampson, former president of the Lithuanian Citizens' club and now president of the Lithuanian-American club, the second witness of the day, declared Bimba in his address had said "priests and pope and bishops, who are nothing but monarchs, tell us to pray and we workers have been praying for 2,000 years and what have we got? Through prayers we will get nothing. Still some people believe in God. The priests tell them there is a God somewhere above the clouds."

All witnesses agreed that Bimba in the first part of his speech discussed conditions in Lithuania, where he charged much suffering to the dominance of the clerical party.

The second part of his speech they said concerned conditions of labor here in this country, where Bimba urged adherence to the communist party as the only help for the workers. In reply to questions put to him at the meeting they agreed that Bimba answered that he did not go to Russia to enjoy comforts there, because the Russians had won their own battle, and that he was in the fight for similar benefits in this country; that he did not believe in the socialist party because it believed in effecting changes by ballot instead of by revolution; that the only flag he believed in was the red flag and that it would float in Kovno, Washington and over Lithuanian hall in Brockton.

Every question was repeated and some were gone over several times in an efforf to clear up all possible misunderstanding because of the difference in languages. At least two hours of the court day was consumed in trying to thrash out a pun which Bimba was alleged to have made in his address.

In the prosecution's bill of particulars it was set forth that a translation of remarks made by Bimba was "priests say that man has a soul; well, I have a sole in my shoe."

The defense first elicited by many questions in both languages that the Lithuanian word for "soul" is "dushy" and for "sole" is "padas."

The last two witnesses admitted under close questioning that Bimba in literal translation had said that his "soul" was in his shoe rather than in his "sole."

While the testimony for the most part was repeated again and again and in most part was interesting, the court scene was most entertaining. At times the court had a witness repeat his Lithuanian words very slow and carefully that he might write down their phonetic spelling. Again a witness said something in Lithuanian which sent the spectators of that race in spasms of laughter. During the morning session, Bimba had been seated in the dock while his wife sat at a table between the defense counsel. Frequently she turned her head to smile at her husband who sat leaning forward to catch every word uttered in the court. She is young and attractive and wore an old rose colored straw hat and blouse.

In the afternoon, Bimba sat beside his wife and watched her taking a stenographic report of the trial. Quite often they exchanged a few words or a smile. At least three times during the dya, Mrs. Bimba advised her husband's attorneys concerning testimony given in Lithuanian. Court adjourned at 4:30 o'clock until 9 tomorrow morning.

Postal inspectors tonight started an inquiry into a so-called "red hand" letter received by City Attorney Joseph Veracka, threatening him with shooting if his prosecution of Bimba resulted in a verdict against Bimba. The letter was mailed in Worcester and Inspectors Dakin of Washington and Sullivan of the New England district began their inquiry inthat city.

DEATH SENTENCE IMPOSED ON BANDIT IN HACKENSACK

HACKENSACK, N. J., Feb. 24—(AP)—James Lynch, of New York, late today was found guilty of murder in the first degree in the hold-up January 21, of the American Express company here and the killing of Frank Brennan. He was sentenced by Judge C. W. Parker to die in the electric chair the week of April 4. The jury was out one hour and 47 minutes.

Judge Parker accepted pleas from the five men indicted for first degree murder with Lynch and sentenced them tonight.

Theodore Palmer, of Bogota, cashier of the express office, Charles Strand, of New York, companion of Lynch in the hold-up, and Frank Cuneo, of Woodbridge, pleaded non vult to the indictment. Palmer and Cuneo were sentenced to from 15 to 30 years in state's prison and Strand received 13 to 30 years.

The charges against Arnold Costy, of Teaneck, and Stephen Kalman, of Bogota, were nolle prossed. Pleas of guilty to charges of robbery were accepted by the judge who sentenced them to the reformatory at Rahway. Their sentences were indeterminate.

Lynch's wife and child, who sat by him during the trial today were not in court when he was sentenced to die. They came in later and when told of the sentence, Mrs. Lynch broke down and fell as she reached the door. She was removed by a matron and later left the court house.

NEW HAVEN PRIZEFIGHTER AWARDED $1,800 VERDICT

NEW HAVEN, Feb. 24—(AP)—George Connolly, prizefighter, was given a verdict of $1,800 against Frank Santagata, of Hill street, by a jury today before Judge Newell Jennings in superior court. During an argument on November 24, 1924, Santagata is alleged to have slashed Connolly's face.

The $25,000 libel suit of Attorney E. Corsello, of Ansonia, against Emerson Brothers, publishers of the Ansonia Sentinel, was begun before Judge Jennings and jury today and continued to tomorrow.

The suit grew out of alleged reflections upon the character of Corsello in published reports of charges made against a policeman, later exonerated by the girl, after he took her and a girl friend home following his arrest of their male companion for driving a car without a license. Corsello was this man's counsel.

Judge F. M. McCarthy, of Ansonia, at present corporation counsel, was called out of order as a defense witness today. He took the girl's affidavit exonerating the policeman.

NAVAL OIL RESERVE CASE NOW IN THE SUPREME COURT

WASHINGTON, Feb. 24—(AP)—The naval oil reserve controversy precipitated by the senate Teapot Dome inquiry, today reached the supreme court. This first step in what promises to be protracted litigation before the court involved only civil questions affecting the legality of certain contracts and leases made while Albert B. Fall was secretary of the interior, but criminal proceedings now pending in the federal courts here also are expected to be put up to the supreme bench for final decision.

MAY DELAY PROBE OF BOOTLEG CONSPIRACY

CLEVELAND, Ohio, Feb. 24.—(AP)—Steps to prevent the government from forcing the Western Union Telegraph company to produce unspecified telegrams in federal grand jury investigation of the alleged nation-wide bootleg alcohol conspiracy were taken here late today.

The company, through its attorneys, filed a motion in federal court contesting the right of the government to "subpoena" all telegrams handled in certain cities within the period of a yera. All telegrams specifically requested have been furnished, company officials stated. They maintain that compliance with the order would involve hundreds of thousands of unnecessary telegrams.

Witnesses called in the alcohol investigation were thinking out tonight but the district attorney's office does not expect indictments earlier than Saturday. No night session of the grand jury was held tonight.

It is likely that the inquiry may go over into a fourth week, it was indicated. Consideration of evidence presented by nearly 250 witnesses interviewed in more than two weeks will take several days, though no more witnesses testify. It is probable that more witnesses may appear, however, since there are still a score of unserved supoenaes in both the east and the west.

The cities and one hundred persons will be named in the indictments resulting from the inquiry, it was learned at the district attorney's office. The cities, it was definitely indicated, are St. Paul, Minneapolis, Duluth, Detroit, Chicago, Cleveland, Pittsburgh, Baltimore, Philadelphia, San Jose and probably an eleventh, Providence, R. I.

LUTHER AND STRESEMANN TO REPRESENT GERMANY

BERLIN, Feb. 24.—(AP)—The German cabinet indicated today that it considers the meetings of the League of Nations to be held next month at Geneva the logical sequel to the Locarno conference by designating Chancellor Luther and Foreign Minister Stresemann to represent Germany at the Geneva sessions, which will be largely concerned with Germany's admission to the league.

While some uneasiness is felt in official circles over the vagueness of the speech made at Birmingham on Monday by Sir Austen Chamberlin, in which the British foreign secretary referred to the possibilities of controversy over the question of enlarging the league council, nevertheless the German representatives will go to Geneva with the assumption that the same spirit which characterized Locarno will be in evidence there.

TWO MEN INJURED WHEN TAXICAB HIT PHONE POLE

NEW HAVEN, Feb. 24—(AP)—Little change in the condition of the two men who were taken to the New Haven hospital early today suffering injuries sustained when the taxicab in which they were riding collided with a telephone pole in East Haven had been noted up until a late hour tonight. Both are in a serious condition. They are William Constantino who sustained a fractured spine and Tony Targaanini, who received injuries to his back and a possible fracture of the skull.

MICHAEL CHALIFOUX MAY CHALLENGE FIDDLER MAYNARD

(Special to The Bulletin.)

WILLIMANTIC, Feb. 24—The crown of the state fiddling championship now proudly worn by Eugene Maynard of Putnam has been put in danger by the issuance of a challenge by Michael Chalifoux, 65-year old fiddler of Lafayette street, this city. Mr. Maynard won the championship over a large body of contestants in Hartford several weeks ago. To date he has had but little difficulty in holding the title for the lack of challengers. Friends of Mr. Chalifoux believe that he is fully qualified for the match, although none have discounted the merits of the present champion.

Champion Maynard's reaction to the challenge is being awaited with keen anticipation Followers of the local fiddler are out to see him win, in which event they will send him to the big contest which is to be arranged early this spring by Henry Ford.

It is planned to hold the contest at the new Capitol theater in this city and Manager George A. Bartlett said Wednesday that he would make all the arrangements for feature entertainment in connection with the fiddle battle. Heretofore Mr. Chalifoux has refrained from taking part in any of the contests, but he has attended practically all held in this state and in his own words, he has a line on what the judges and the audiences expect for a winner. The challenger has been fiddling since he was eleven years old. He does his playing on a violin that was made in 1754. 172 years ago. The fiddle had been owned by an Italian who made his living by playing on the streets. One night the Italian died suddenly and the violin was offered for sale to defray the funeral expenses. Mr. Chalifoux made the purchase. This was forty-five years ago. As a fiddler of old tunes the challenger differs in at least one respect from his contemporaries, in that he holds no favorites, or better still, all the good old time airs are favorites with him. He guarantees to play anything that is not modern, and he knows every tune by name. If the champion and challenger come to terms, the contest is expected to attract state-wide attention.

DERAILED TROLLEY CAR CAUSES INCONVENIENCE

(Special to The Bulletin)

WILLIMANTIC, Feb. 24—The first morning trolley of the Connecticut company due here from Norwich at 6 o'clock was derailed on Windham Road, opposite Belden street on the incoming trip Wednesday morning, blocking traffic over the line for about three hours. The location of the accident is about a mile from the Main street terminal and passengers, many of them school children who arrived on later trolleys up to nine o'clock had to walk the remainder of the distance into the city. No given reason could be advanced for the derailment. The front truck of the trolley left the rails and the car traveled some thirty feet before the motorman could bring it to a stop. No damage was done except slightly to the truck. Norwich Bulletins on the trolley being brought to this city for transfer to steam cars were rushed on in an automobile but too late to make the transfer, at the scheduled hour. The derailed car was put back on the iron by the wrecking trolley from the Greeneville car house.

Willimantic looked passively on, Wednesday and a few preceding days while carload after carload of anthracite coal passed through the city over the New Haven railroad line to Boston. Something in the speed of the freights seemed to convey the idea that they must rush through to avoid being raided by mobs. Willimantic is destitute, as far as hard coal is concerned. Local dealers continue to deal out substitutes and the cord wood business is good. It is expected that the first shipments of anthracite to arive here will be in small lots, in fact, much too small to anywhere meet the long list of orders on file with the dealers, not to mention the rush of new orders.

Joseph Miner, who said he lived in Woonsocket, R. I., pleaded guilty to a charge of intoxication in the city court Wednesday morning. He said that he had resided in this city several years ago and that he had never been arrested before. In answer to his plea for a chance he was given twenty-four hours to leave the town, judgment in the case being suspended.

Funeral services for Mose Bombria were held from the family home, 100 Quercus avenue, Wednesday morning, with requiem high mass at St. Joseph's church at nine o'clock. Rev. Paul Bartlewski sang the mass. Mrs. E. R. Portelance was at the organ. The solos were by Mrs. Henry Mathieu. Many friends and relatives were present and there were beautiful floral tributes. The body was placed in the receiving vault in St. Joseph's cemetery with a committal service read by Rev. Father Bartlewski. The bearers were Michael Chalifoux, Clement Hurteau, Sr., George Drake, David Harvey, John Boutain and N. Duchesne.

Miss Ellen O'Brien, 65, died at her home 30 Milk street Tuesday afternoon. She was born in New York, a daughter of Peter and Mary Griffin O'Brien. She came to this city a number of year sago. Surviving are two sisters, Misses Margaret and Jane O'Brien of this city.

At his home in South Coventry, funeral services for Henry Kirk Washburn were held at two o'clock Wednesday afternoon. Rev. Charles G. Johnson officiated. Burial was in Nathan Hale cemetery. The bearers were, William Armstrong, L. M Phillips, A. E. Harmon, A. J. Broderick, George Robertson and F. S. White. Arrangements were by Avery and VanZandt.

Fifty employes of the Southern New England Telephone company and guests had a chicken dinner and social at Chelsea Inn, Hampton, Tuesday evening. The supper was under the auspices of Willimantic Council of the Telephone Employes' association. Talks were given by W. T. Knott of New Haven, A. L. Osborn of New London, Manager John C. Frazier and Len Evans of the local office. Dancing and music followed in a program which had been arranged by Miss Helen Jones, president of the council.

Some twenty-five complaints, the majority of slight moment, taken up at the joint meeting of the assessors and the board of relief of the town of Windham, held in the selectmen's room of the town building from 3 to 4 o'clock Wednesday afternoon.

Prize winners at a whist party given by A. C. Tyler Auxiliary, U. S. W. V. at G. A. R. hall Tuesday evening were: First, Mrs. Jeremiah Murphy; second, Mrs. Thomas H. Killourey, consolation, Mrs. Maud Sugrue. Men's first, William B. Sweeney; second, Louis H. Ashton; consolation, Albert Fox. Twenty-three tables were in play. Mrs. Nora McCarthy headed the committee in charge.

Some thirty members of Natchaug Lodge No. 72, Knights of Pythias boarded a motor bus at six o'clock Wednesday evening to travel to Rockville where they attended the celebration of Past Chancellors' Night of Damon Lodge, No. 17.

According to local postal authorities there has been a rush for money orders all this week by those who have delayed renewing their motor vehicle drivers' license. It is estimated that in this city there are between 3,000 and 3,500 persons holding such licenses.

Funeral services for Joel Warren were held at his home in Mansfield at two o'clock Wednesday afternoon, Rev. T Hawthorne Jones of Mansfield, officiating. Burial was in Storrs cemetery The beare.s were Robert Gardiner, Clifford and Raymond Peck, Arthur Johnsen and Carl and Raymond Warren. Avery and VanZandt were the funeral directors.

Judge Dwight A. Lyman of Columbia was in this city Wednesday for the first time since he slipped on ice and fractured three ribs in his left side, Monday, February 8. He has practically recovered from his injury.

YEAR OF REAL PROSPERITY FOR BROOKLYN SAVINGS BANK

(Special to The Bulletin.)

DANIELSON, Feb. 24—Wednesday afternoon the semi-annual meeting of Brooklyn Savings bank was held at the banking rooms here. The report of Treasurer Sidney W. Bard showed a very successful six months of business and the trustees voted to declare the usual semi-annual dividend, payable March 1, at the rate of 4 1-3 per cent. per annum. For the first time in the history of the bank, which was established in Brooklyn, in 1872, the semi-annual dividend to be paid out to depositors will be in excess of $100,000, to be exact, $100,450.17. Here is evidence of the constant growth of this bank. Evidence of its ever accumulating strength and security is to be found in the official action of Wednesday transferring $50,000 to the surplus account, which now amounts to $250,000, and also carrying a very substantial sum to the profit and loss account. The assets of the bank are in excess of $5,000,000, and at the highest point since the establishment of the institution.

A. A. DAGENIAS GETS $1,000 FLORIDA LOT BY RADIO

(Special to The Bulletin.)

DANIELSON, Feb. 24—A. A. Dagenias, telegraph operator at the railroad station in Central Village, may well regard his radio set as a bountiful Santa Claus. It has brought him a $1,000 houselot at Pensecola, Florida, land of dreams and everlasting youth, flowers, sunshine and truitloads of wealth.

Mr. Dagenais happened to be listening in last Thursday evening, at his home, when he heard a broadcast relative to the Mardi Gras carnival being held in the Florida city in connection with a realtors' ball. The announcer made known that listeners-in who sent telegrams preferring greetings would have a chance at a number of houselots to be given away. Hurrying to the telegraph office, Mr. Dagenias was ticking off his own message to the address given, within a very few minutes after hearing about the stunt over the air.

Now he has a letter informing him that his telegram, No. 2902, was one of the lucky ones and that it brought Mr. Dagenias a houselot valued at $1,000. The letter sets forth that this lot is in what is known as the Maxent tract, and in the heart of the city. A map of Pensecola was also enclosed with an arrow indicating the tract that includes the lot. Mr. Dagenias is invited to send such necessary information as will be required in transferring title to him or any member of his family that he may designate, with assurance that the deed will come through to him as soon as the legalities are complied with.

The letter frankly sets forth that the giving away of houselots was a publicity stunt to call the attention of the country to Pensecola and that the lots so disposed of—lots to the value of $10,000—were donated by various realty concerns. The letter also listed four other easterners who drew lots—Dr. Morris T. Apel, of New York city, who won a lot valued at $3,000; T. Haines Emery, of Brooklyn, N. Y.; Charles F. Westwood, of Freehold, N. J., and Mrs. J. E. Daniels.

There was only reservation made in the program of giving away the lots, and that was that the giving would be restricted to Caucasians.

There was only one reservation made in the program of giving away the lots, and that was that the giving would be restricted to Caucasians.

With the date for opening of bids for the contract of constructing additions to Killingly High school only a short time ahead—March 10—contractors are frequent visitors to the high school site at the corner of Broad and Cottage streets, inspecting the property and getting data that will aid them in fixing their figures for the job. While there is no definite means of knowing how many bids will be submitted to the building committee, the indications are that there will be lively competition for the work, a fact that will tend to make at least a few of the bids as low as could reasonably be expected.

This section of New England was no more snow-bound during the present month than any other sections of the east. Carl Gallup, of Sterling, and his sister, Mrs. L. S. Ingalls, just returned from a February motor trip to Miami and other points in Florida tell of the great snowbanks encountered in sections of Pennsylvania. Other reports tell of heavier accumulations of snow along the shore in the western part of Connecticut near the New York state line and in sections of eastern New York. While February has been a rough month, it has been reasonably fair with this part of southern New England, the treatment of other parts of the east considered.

Wednesday afternoon the body of Miss Ellen Ouillette, 48, was brought here from Norwich, where she had been a patient for some time and where she died, in charge of Undertaker L. E. Kennedy. Miss Ouillette was a native of Canada and was living in Moosup at the time she became ill. The body is at Mrs Kennedy's undertaking rooms.

Principal E. R. Warren and other members of the faculty of Killingly High school are arranging for the trials in the public speaking contest that members of the school will participate in on an early date in March. The trials will eliminate all but those who are to participate in the finals. The student body is showing live interest in the arrangements and numbers of contestants are expected. In the finals prizes will be awarded those declared the winners by the judges. The prizes will be purchased with the interest from a fund of $100, given the school by the class of 1925 for the purpose of furthering interest in public speaking at Killingly High school.

Mrs. Frank T. Preston had the members of the Ladies' Aid society of the Baptist church at her home for a meeting Wednesday afternoon.

At the Methodist church Wednesday evening the church and Community club held a sugaring-off party, with real maple syrup.

Mr. and Mrs. Charles S. Francis were at Hartford, Wednesday afternoon to visit their daughter, Miss Ruth Francis, who is seriously ill at the Hartford hospital, where for the past year she had been a student nurse.

Joseph Funaro has purchased from Attorney Arthur G. Bill, a cottage occupied in the Riverview section by Sidney P. Marland and family.

Miss Margaret V. Fitzsimmons, at one time an operator at the central telephone office, is here from New York to visit Elmville relatives.

Indicative of how many people are afflicted by illness just now is the recent daily average of 20 students absent from Killingly High school on that account. Conditions appear to be improving, for there were only 20 absentees Wednesday.

In the minds of some there appears to be a bit of confusion over the plan of the Canadian-Goodyear company to take over the Canadian-Manhassett company's interests in the Dominion. The Canadian-Connecticut Mills company is in no way concerned in the deal, as many have erroneously supposed.

Starting of its own accord, a light truck rolled down a section of Carter street, Wednesday forenoon, plunged off a four foot wall into a garden and rolled over on its side. The machine, owned by F. X. Bernier, was taken out by a wrecking crew. It was found to be only slightly damaged.

State highway trucks were engaged Wednesday in carrying away remains of snow banks accumulated at points along state highways, which are now in very good conditon for travel.

After an illness of nine months, during which he underwent a serious surgical operation, George Foster has progressed so far toward recovery that he will be well again in about a month.

The warmer weather promised by the weather bureau had not materialized in Danielson Wednesday morning when numbers of thermometers registered from 2 to 6 above zero.

Mrs. Mary Taylor, of Webster, is spending a few days at her home on Academy street.

Sunday at midnight all motor vehicle operators' licenses in force for the past twelve months will expire and it will be illegal to drive without a new license.

An adjustment of the fire loss sustained by J. J. Boucher last Sunday morning at his place of business at Main and Furnace streets, has been adjusted for $650.

Edward Stephens, formerly a member of the state police stationed at the Danielson barracks, after a visit here, is to go to New York to engage in his trade of electrician.

Frank J. G. Bailey again is on duty as assistant cashier at the Windham County National bank after a very pleasant sea voyage to New Orleans, where he witnessed the Mardi Gras festivities, and return.

Frank Bennett, of Ballouville, is arranging the program to be presented next Monday evening at the meeting of Killingly grange. The event is to be known as Entertainers' Night.

Mrs. Oatley leaves a son, Herbert, of East Killingly, a grandson, Henry Oatley, superintendent of a mill at East Killingly, also grandchildren, great-grandchildren and great-great grandchildren.

PUTNAM

GILPATRIC EXPRESSES HOPE OF BAKER'S FUTURE HAPPINESS

(Special to The Bulletin.)

PUTNAM, Feb. 24—"Poor Guy!" said G. Harold Gilpatric when informed of the sentence that had been imposed on his former assistant in the First National bank Guy Baker by the Federal court after he had pleaded guilty to embezzling $16,500 of the bank's funds.

"I'm sorry, sorry from every angle of the case," he continued, "but he has youth and eyesight. His voluntary confession and his willingness to accept the law's penalty would indicate that he hereafter intends to travel straight and I hope that he will have a great deal of happiness and content in the years that are to come."

The former cashier is showing the mental strain under which he has been for the past ten days, but his voice has the same cheery ring always, one of its marked characteristics. "If I did not keep up my spirits," he said, "if I do not keep looking to the future trying to make all that is possible of a broken life, and aiming at the goal of making restitution to the full extent of my ability to those whom I have wronged, I would be overwhelmed. I connot let blindness conquer me, I must conquer it."

He reiterated again his desire to shed all the light that he can to help straighten the crooked transactions that caused the bank's collapse and his own tragical plight. "If I am to have any peace of mind in the future, I must play fair now."

Also, he expressed anew his regret at the construction that had been placed on his expression "that he had kept $100,000 on hand to play with," and gave the same explanation that Mr. Coffin had given for him—that it was for use as a clearing fund.

He is taken for a short walk each evening accompanied by his guard, Mr. Hughes, for exercise, he has been driven to the bank each morning shortly after 9 o'clock and remains there until 5 or 6 in the evening. The walks that he takes are confined to the grounds of his father's home.

Mr. Hughes is courteous and considerate, but his conception of his mission is that he is in charge of a witness brought here to give testimony in a very serious case, and he does not encourage anything that conflicts with this viewpoint.

THE CITIZENS' COMMITTEEE FOR TRADE SCHOOL ADDITION

(Special to The Bulletin.)

PUTNAM, Feb. 24—The Citizens' committee appointed to investigate the need of an addition to the State Trade School has filed a report recommending that a building be erected at a cost not to exceed $30,000, provided the town can and will issue bonds to that amount, and that provision be made for the payment of it. The report is as follows:

To the School Committee of the Town of Putnam:

The committee appointed by your board to consider the ned of an addition to the State Trade school building in Putnam submits the following report:

The committee organized by the election of Byron D. Bugbee as chairman and Henry J. Thayer as clerk.

After careful consideration of the matter and plans presented by H. H. Ellis, of the Trade school, the committee decided to hold a public meeting Jan. 22nd to obtain the views of the citizens of the town as to the necessity and advisability of the proposed addition. A large number of citizens attended this meeting and after the requirements of the school had been fully explained, a rising vote was taken, resulting in a unanimous vote that there was necessity for the addition.

At a meeting of the committee held Feb. 9th it was unanimously voted to report to the school board that there is need of the town building the proposed addition to the State Trade school building, and recommends that such addition be made substantially in accord with the plans submitted by Mr. Ellis, superintendent of the school, at a cost not to exceed $30,000, providing the town can and will issue bonds to the required amount, with a provision for the payment of the same. We understand that the town now owes between $50,000 and $60,000 for which no provision has been made for the payment, and we cannot recommend the appropriation of any large sum as has ben done in the past, without some provision for its payment.

Mr. and Mrs. Fred McDevitt of Pawtucket are in the city having been called here by the death of John T. Ryan, Mrs. McDevitt's father.

RECEIVER COFFIN WILL NOT DISCUSS CARPENTER LETTER

(Special to The Bulletin.)

PUTNAM, Feb. 24—George M. Coffin receiver of the First National bank, declined to comment on the letter of Attorney John F. Carpenter, of this city, to Saul Berman, referee in bankruptcy, in which he declares that Gilpatric is telling the truth only about such matters as he knows "they have the goods on him, that his examination so far has proved valueless," and protesting against his not being permitted to question Gilpatric.

Mr. Coffin suspended the examination of Gilpatric this morning long enough to talk to The Bulletin reporter about Mr. Carpenter's letter. He said that he had read it but that he had no comment to make on it. Mr. Carpenter was present at the second day's session of the open hearing conducted here for fifteen or twenty minutes. He asked no question at that time, Mr. Soule, one of the expert accountants who is making an examination of the records of the state treasury and of the First National bank, attended the open hearing on the first day. He put a number of questions to Gilpatric, to which answers were returned. At the close of the second day, Mr. Coffin said that he would be glad to have any information from any source in regard to the $91,000 that cannot be traced, and that any of the newspaper men, who were present by invitation, could question him. (Gilpatric) if they so desired. Three of them availed themselves of the opportunity and asked several questions which Gilpatric answered, as he said, to the best of his ability.

In view of this, Mr. Coffin was pressed for an answer as to whether Mr. Carpenter had requested permission to interrogate Mr. Gilpatric and had been refused. He made the same answer as before: "I have nothing to say."

Then it was put another way:

"If Mr. Carpenter had asked permission to question Gilpatric would it have been granted?" And again came the same reply:

"I have nothing to say." He was perfectly good-natured about it, but he was very decided in his decision not to discuss the matter.

Over the telephone Mr. Berman made the statement, referring to Mr. Carpenter's letter, that he, Mr. Carpenter, would be afforded ample opportunity to examine Mr. Gilpatric, and that the same opportunity would be extended every creditor of the bank or of Gilpatric's estate.

Mr. Coffin repeated the statement that he has made before that he thought the results obtained so far from examining Gilpatric here about the records of the bank had justified the wisdom of the action. He said that the examination was being made in a methodical and thorough manner. "There may be enough learned about a single transaction," he continued, "that would mean a substantial recovery for the creditors of the bank, and to recover every cent possible that is due the bank is my mission, as well as my duty."

A statement made by G. Harold Gilpatric during his examination of the records of the First National bank by Receiver Coffin would indicate that his mind is still very acute and that he reasons well. It was in relation to his first nomination as treasurer of the state and recalls a little political history that is of unusual interest.

Mr. Coffin had called his attention to the fact that early in 1919 he had bought for the state, $200,000 of Liberty Loan bonds that were not turned over to the treasury for eighteen months, although he had paid the interest.

A transcript of the testimony reads as follows:

Mr. Coffin:—"Now I am going back to the $200,000 of bonds for the state. They came into your possession in 1919 but it appears that the bonds were not turned into the treasury department for eighteen months, yet you paid the interest on them. Their records show receipt of November 19, of $4,250, which is six months' interest on that amount of 4 1-4s. In October, 1920, they received your check for the same amount and again in December, 1920.

"You made restitution in 1921. Now, I am curious to know, Mr. Gilpatric, what was the emergency that impelled you to make use of these bonds."

"I do not remember any imperative necessity except to balance our Liberty loan transactions here at the bank. None of the five issues ever balanced, ever came out right. The bank was "out" after every bond sale. In the closing days of every drive, we were overwhelmed with the transactions in bonds. We were always overscribed, but many who agreed to take bonds didn't do so, in many instances two amounts of bonds were delivered where one was purchased. The bank ordered what our total subscription showed and we had to make settlement for that amount with a federal reserve bank."

"But, what I can't understand is from September, 1919, you really didn't make any use of them until June of 1920, unless you can recall that they were disposed of?"

"I know of nothing that they could have been used for except to balance our bond transactions."

"As soon as you were elected treasurer the first time—"

"But, Mr. Coffin, I was not after the nomination. If I had needed a large amount of money at that time would not I have been more willing to take the place? At the convention when I was nominated I argued with the party leaders for several hours before accepting it. I told them I had gone to the convention pledged to the support of a Putnam man for another office."

The above statement is in accordance with the facts. Archie Macdonald was a candidate for state comptroller and Gilpatric was urging his nomination. Fayette Wright, of Pomfret, was also a candidate and the party leaders said that because of that neither could be nominated—that if Mr. Gilpatric wished he could have the nomination for treasurer, otherwise Windham would get nothing. This was in the summer of 1918; Gilpatric was elected that fall and took possession of the office January 1, 1919.

LOST RIGHTS OF STATES

Two years ago in his budget message, President Coolidge urged a check upon any further extension of federal aid to the states and he has preached the doctrine of less of the government in business, more power to the states and more self-reliance for the individual. Attention to the same idea of the centralization of power in the federal government was invited by Secretary Kellogg in his Washington's birthday address at the University of Pennsylvania, when he said that he sees in this "concentration and extension of the federal power a danger to the individual citizen's rights and liberties. The government should not assume to carry on the activities necessary for the prosperity and happiness of the people; nor, beyond what is necessary for good government, to restrict those rights and activities. The individual cannot be dependent permanently and directly upon the government for his progress and prosperity."

The concentration of power in Washington has become amazing. One by one the states have surrendered their rights and duties in return for federal subsidies for roads, for schools, for public health service and for other things that might be mentioned. Many of these are desirable activities and most of them should be maintained, but too many of them are an invasion of local self-government and should be created and maintained by communities, neighborhoods and states. As a result of all this delegation of power to the federal government, there is now in Washington a great group of bureaus, many of which are carrying on work that should be done by states, counties, townships and municipalities.

The habit of relying upon the federal government and shifting local burdens to Washington has been growing for at least two generations. Millions of good American citizens are obsessed by the belief that their prosperity and happiness depend not upon their own effort and brains but upon the government. Help from Washington is the cure-all for whatever happens.

This growing uneasiness over the centralization of power in Washington is in no way partisan for it is found among leaders of both political parties, and the words of Secretary Kellogg should aid the president in helping this country to rediscover the rights of the states and some of the lost rights and liberties of the American citizen.

THE WET RALLY

One of the phases of Washington's big wet rally that may be taken as significant and disquieting is the fact that it was held more than six years after the eighteenth amendment became effective. John Barleycorn became an outlaw in the summer of 1919. At that time only the fanatical wet might have dared the prediction that such a gathering as this in Washington would be possible six years in the future. The enactment of the amendment left nothing respectable about J. Barleycorn or his memory.

Since then the mills of propoganda anti and pro, have been grinding steadily. The result has been the development of this determined campaign to force the modification of the Volstead act. From being on the defensive most of the time since 1919, the wets have now assumed the offensive and are trying to make John Barleycorn and his friends politically respectable.

Five years ago certain prophets were proclaiming that prohibition was no longer a political issue. The march of events has demonstrated that they were self-deluded prophets, for at no time has this ceased to be an issue in at least a dozen states. It has shown its hand in making and unmaking senators, governors and congressmen ever since and in influencing government in many ways. The big wet rally at Washington and the fire against the Volstead act indicate that prohibition may be an issue even more disquieting than usual in 1926.

SPORTS AND RELIGION

There cannot fail to be something of a shock to those of the older generation who remember the Sundays of their childhood in the attitude of Bishop William T. Manning of the Episcopal diocese of New York Dr. Manning outlined his views on sports and religion at a meeting of sportsmen and sports writers to review the money raising campaign which will establish a sport bay for the Cathedral of St. John the Divine.

Dr. Manning regards athletics as a spiritual force in creating fine men and women. The Bishop's assertion, which doubtless came as a shock to some worthy churchmen, was that he could not understand the attitude of those who view with horror the playing of games on Sunday. So long as such games are played in the afternoon and not during the hours of service in the morning, the churchman said that he looks upon them as an agency for the development of the same ideas which religion seeks to inculcate.

Referring to the criticism of his attitude, Bishop Manning said that those who failed to see any relation between sports and religion evidently would have one set of men doing all the praying and another set all the playing. He added:

"Good clean sport is as much a spiritual developer as religion. It develops the same qualities emphasized by religion. Human contact and fellowship are the soul of religion, and the spirit of sacrifice for the team and the devotion of loyalty that are given, in short, develop needed spiritual qualities. Play is an important part of a man's life. God does not want you to pray all day long, and religion is not a hothouse product."

TEN YEARS AFTER VERDUN

Ten years ago France was in an exaltation of patriotic fervor over the heroic defense of Verdun and the glorious slogan of "They shall not pass" sustained the courage of the nation and won admiration from their allies. Today, as many Frenchmen look back towards those dark days, the prevailing trend in speeches and articles in commemoration of the anniversary shows that many are of the opinion that the outpouring of blood brough no fair return.

The nationalists, who feel that their policies were responsible for winning the war, find that they are out of power and feel that their ideals are being flouted today by pacifism and internationalism. They contrast the rapid rehabilitation of Germany with the doldrums that shadow France, financially and politically.

Yet the financial and political Verdun that faces Frenchmen in 1926 is bright and hopeful in some respects in contrast with the Verdun of that other day. There was dying then to be done for France; but now, no matter how drab and gloomy the prospect, Frenchmen at least face life. Peace is different from war, but both require courage, which is of an essentially different character in the two situations. Briand, who as premier in the war days, heard the Verdun slogan, which was so nobly fulfilled, hears it again today from the mouths of opposition politicians as applied to his financial measures. It is small wonder that he feels justified in viewing this opposition in a sardonic spirit.

The worst may possibly come to the worst in French politics and finance, but Frenchmen who remember the dark days of Verdun can scarcely believe but that the nation will come through this trial of peace as gloriously as it did the test of war.

CONQUERING MT. EVEREST

The here of the difficult, the seemingly unattainable, has always been a challenge to the ingenuity of man. The white Peak of Mt. Everest, rising 29,000 feet, the highest mountain in the world, still presents that challenge, which was all but met in the last desperate attempt to scale the peak, when two of the mountain climbers were seen desperately struggling in the snow only 600 feet from the top, but they never returned to tell the tale.

Winds that reach a velocity of 100 to 150 miles an hour, air so thin it contains barely enough oxygen to support life, storms of such blinding power that they sweep all before them, and the temperatures of 50 to 70 degrees below zero indicate difficulties that seem to be too great for mere humans to overcome. But man has never yet admitted defeat in exploring the unknown parts of the world, and Everest will surely be scaled.

In an address to the National Geographic Society, Capt. John B. L. Noel of the latest British Mt. Everest expedition told the members that he believes success will be attained along the same lines as were tried—building one camp above another on the slopes of the mountain until only a short dash remains to the summit. The highest camp in the last attempt was at 27,000 feet, but Capt. Noel believes that the ultimate camp should be 1,000 feet nearer the summit, which would make it possible for the hardy mountain climbers to reach the summit and get back to camp before exhaustion overcame them.

Although no new Everest expedition has been announced, it is practically certain that expert British and Swiss mountaineers will make the attempt in the near future.

Before then it may be possible that the air route will enable man to get his first glimpse of the summit, for the French aviator, Lieut. Callixo, who has the world's altitude record for 39,000 feet is in training for a flight over this majestic mountain. He plans to fly close enough to the peak to drop a cylinder that would tell after arrival of the success of his attempt. Should he succeed, he will take no whit of glory from those who reach the world's greatest altitude on foot. Everest holds too much allure and the problem of scaling it is too fascinating for man to ignore it for long.

Over in Michigan

(The young woman in the black satin dress with the belt embroidered in all the colors of the rainbow is speaking over the telephone.)

"Lo, Pull-o' pep. How's the o' kid?

"Swell, if you know what I mean. Or, anyways, I would be if it wasn't for a bum back and a cracked elbow joint and a couple mourning bands on my arms and a piece off my ankle.

"Swell time is right! You see I was—you know—over to ma's folks in Michigan, see?

"You bet! But, say, dearie, listen. I had a swell time, really. Picnics and everything. And, say, kiddo, listen. You'd be awful surprised if you knew how different farmers and country folks is to what city folks thinks they are—some of 'em anyways. Honest, you would.

"Quit your kiddin'. Can't a person pass a perfectly innocent remark without you thinkin' dumpin', huh?

"Oh, that's all right. I ain't takin' no offense. But, say, baby doll, you got the right dope anyways, see. There is a—you know—boy friend in it. Posolootly.

"Right at the very beginning I didn't have such a swell time and all, see—it seemed awful kind of stale and everything, without no movies or nothin'. And, honest, kid, the country kinda scared me nights.

"Well, say, lady, listen! After I been there about four days, when I gets up in the mornin' I says to my Aunt Em that I was visiting, I says, 'How about me getting out the Ford and takin' a little drive?' I says. 'Sure,' she says. 'I ain't got no time to go with you this mornin',' she says, 'but help yourself to anything you see,' she says.

"Well, say, hon, listen. I gets the car out the garage and heads her down the road, and I was just kinda sayin' to myself what a swell time I was havin' and all, when sumpin' happened.

"A plenty, I'll say! Say, kid, listen a minute! Did ja ever get bit by a bumblebee, huh?

"Well, all I got to say is don't you do it! Posolootly. Talk about your redhot babies! Oh, boy! One of 'em bit me once when I was a kid, and I ain't never forgot it. Not me.

"Well, say, sweetie listen. Me and the car was slippin' down the road when one o' these here black and yellow boys come sailin' into the car. The minute I seen him seems like I could feel just how it felt that time when one o' this big boy's grandpas conked me on the leg. I pretty near fell out the car. I forgot I was drivin' and I give a kick with both legs at once and the first I knew the old automobile slides off the road and commences to climb a tree.

"I went along with it a little ways but me and the Ford got kinda separated after we'd went a couple feet or two, and I come down by myself with the car beatin' it after me.

"Well, when I come to an' everything somebody was pickin' me up out the middle o' the road, and the car was in the ditch and I don't know where the bumblebee'd went to. I'd kinda quit thinkin' about him by that time.

"Sure, it was him. And, say, kid, listen, you wouldn't never believe such a swell fellow could of lived in the country all his life and be a farmer and everything. Such wonderful lookin' clothes and all. And full o' cute cracks—like sayin' I fall for him the first time he seen me—means' how I got boosted out the Ford and everything, see? And how the trees in the country is wild and a person can't climb 'em in a automobile like they do' the city trees, and all like that.

"Sure, I didn't hurt me much of anything—only them bruises and bumps I was tellin' you about. And, say, dearie, listen. He's comin' to Chicago in a coupla weeks, and I'm just crazy for you to see him, or otherwise you'll never believe how swell he is and everything, see?

"You bet. Well, bye-bye, hon. I gotta sign off now. I'll give you a ring soon's I know when he's headed this way."—Chicago News.

LETTERS TO THE EDITOR

Attacks Willimantic Mail Service.

Mr. Editor: I read in your paper that Postmaster Bailey had done so much for better mail service on trains to Norwich. I wish he could do something for the mail from Norwich to Willimantic and to Baltic. My daughter writes me one letter, dated Norwich Town, P. O., Feb. 10, 1 p. m. I received it Feb. 15th, 3 p. m.; another letter, Feb. 17th, Norwich Town P. O., 1 p. m., I received it Feb. 20th, 3 p. m., and it looks as if the mail service from Willimantic was very slow and not every day. It is not on account of bad snow storms, for this same thing happened right in the hot summer weather. The carrier can not deliver mail until it comes into the office so where is the long stop over of mail? I know some will say I am a kicker, so would they be and a bigger one than I am, if all they had left was one child, and her five little boys and then the letters from them are four and five days coming such a short journey. I know I cannot be the only one that has mail delayed so, but they are not all alone in the world, as I am with only my daughter and five boys. They have families in home, or telephone so they can hear from their folks not at home over the 'phone. Parcel post packages marked perishable take three days to go to Norwich Town, thereby are spoiled when reaching there. Usually letters reach there the next day after I send them. So now, Lions and Rotarians, please get on your glasses and chamber of commerce get busy and see if you cannot get a better mail service, not for me alone, but for all the patrons of R. D. 1. I am not selfish, if I do come out plain spoken instead of stepping behind the door to say it.

Boswell Avenue Improvement.

Mr. Editor: Once I put a letter in our paper concerning the condition of the roads but this especially applies to the condition of Boswell avenue road. Considerable damage is done to cars going up and down that street. Boswell avenue was once a short route through the town to the other side (Taftville cemetery) but now it is in no shape for travel. If it were put in fine condition, traffic would be heavy on that road as it is shorter than travel over North Main street. It can be routed as a short cut to the other side. When they started on the Boswell avenue sewer they left it in terrible shape, while the steam roller was idle on the Lake street grounds. It is hoped that some of the city fathers who own cars take a trip up Boswell avenue and see for themselves about that road, as it can be made a short cut to the other side. It also leads to the Mohegan park road. Norwich is called the Rose of New England. Well, why not make her feel proud of Boswell avenue? If it were put in condition for travel it sure would be appreciated by people who do not like to take the long driving ground North Main street. It is hoped by the people who go over that road that a strong effort will be made to put that road in shape.

I am deaf and also a car owner and have been driving for four years over that road. This time I will put my name in full for I do not want to hide it.

THEODORE GOLKOWSKE.

From Small Beginnings

Frederick Wellington Ruckstuhl, the Machinist's Boy, the Great Sculptor

A store clerk happened to see a model made in clay. It caught his attention. In a moment he thought, "If some one else can make those things so can I." He tried it, and succeeded from that beginning Frederick Wellington Ruckstuhl went on to make more and better models, until at last he became one of the most widely recognized sculptors in America. Some time later, when he was offered a mercantile position at $5,000 a year he deliberately turned it aside in order to risk all that he had, and all his future, in the field of art. He burned his bridges behind him and went to Europe for study. He did this not because of self-confidence, but because he was so interested in the thought of doing the work of a sculptor that he could not do anything else, even if he starved. A supreme interest always leads to success.

The great sculptor's father was a mechanic who had come to the United States in 1859. His son, the future sculptor, had been born six years before at Breitenbach in Alsace. The little immigrant boy went, of course, during the years that the law required, to the public schools in St. Louis where his father worked. At 14 he was set to work to help earn a living. He worked in many stores; went into the desert region of the west and turned from one kind of work to another in a vain effort to find his life work. Meanwhile, whatever he did he found time to read good books, and to try to put his thoughts into writing. Finally, he secured a really good position in a large store, and it was this that he gave up in order to enter wholly into art.

As a result of his daring sacrifice he won high fame in the Metropolitan Museum of Art in New York city, in his celebrated statue of "Evening," which won a medal at the Chicago World's fair. In the beautiful Congressional library at Washington in various state capitals, and in many public buildings are other works of sculpture that he created. The celebrated Confederate monument at Baltimore, likewise, is his work.

Only a man whose interest was sufficient to guarantee success would have dared to make the sacrifice that Mr. Ruckstuhl made.

IN THE PUBLIC EYE

Charles E. Schaff, who is about to retire from the presidency of the Missouri, Kansas & Texas railroad, has had more than half a century of practical experience in the field of transportation and is generally recognized as one of the ablest operating men among American railroad executives. Mr. Schaff, like so many men of his calling and high status in the contemporary railway world, began at the bottom of the ladder and climbed step by step to the top. He was born in Licking county, Ohio, seventy years ago and after a common school education began his career as a railway clerk. He held various positions until 1893, when he became assistant to the president of the New York Central. In 1895 he became general manager of that system and in 1906 was made a vice president. After six years in this position he transferred to the M. K. & T. railway, which he has served ever since as president or receiver.

CHILD TRAINING

THE SPOILED CHILD
Mary E. Underwood

My boy would have been hopelessly spoiled had I allowed either grandmother to do as she wished. Both objected if I permitted my baby to cry. Later on, they complimented me because he was unspoiled, healthy and lovable.

A naturally attractive child may become unlikable through the neglect of his parents to direct the small acts of childhood. The child is not to blame. The moulding of every baby boy and girl is very much in the hands of the parents at the start. If we realize this, it is not difficult to understand how important a factor training in the right direction can become.

One often hears some mother relating to a friend a cute remark made by her child or telling of some act while the child listens intently even smiling with self-satisfaction at this repetition. He is impressed and he soon thinks his "smart" sayings and acts are cute and begins to realize that they are the means by which he gets notice. Then he loses the sweet innocent ways that belong to a child and becomes self-conscious.

One little boy I know is giving the teachers in school a troublesome time, and the mother declares she is unable to prevent it. When he was a baby he was bright and attractive, imitating naturally little things his people did. If he heard a slang expression he repeated it much to the amusement of his audience. They led him on and entertained friends by showing him off. Now they are suffering; the child is not wanted anywhere.

Children should be encouraged to think and act for themselves and, to a certain extent, by themselves; it is surprising how quickly they pick up manners and customs by observation. After a child has begun to toddle about there ought to be very little need to amuse him. It is often a revelation to grown people to find how good a child can be if left alone, and indeed he should be accustomed early to being alone at intervals.

We often forget that a child has his own fancies. The one thing it is necessary to provide is something to do.

A little child loves to feel busy, to be occupied as he sees older people occupied and he cannot always get this feeling with factory-made toys. He should be encouraged to make some of his playthings out of cardboard, wood or paper. He can quite easily make his own picture books. Very often a child will need to be started in an occupation or game and then should be left to manage the rest for himself.

We should try to think as the child thinks. This will help greatly in solving [illegible] problems. To laugh at or ridicule a child when he asks some question, innocently, even though the question is amusing, may do serious harm. The laugh seems to cast his grave thoughts aside as worthless. Very often he has a motive which can be discovered if one will watch carefully.

This careful watchfulness is a continuous demand upon parents, but there is no greater happiness for us than the knowledge that we have done our best. If we have, the best results will in all probability follow, and our children will be as we want them—lovable and happy. The spoiled child will no longer be among us.

LIKIN.

American representatives have laid before the great powers and China a proposal to free China from foreign restrictions on tariff levies in return for abolition of the "likin."

"The real dragon of modern China, is the 'likin,' in the opinion of foreign traders and many Chinese," says a bulletin of the National Geographic Society from its headquarters in Washington, D. C. "The abolition of a similar tax by the Constitution of the United States helped save the Union. The Americans at Peking may be doing for China what George Washington, Jefferson, Madison, Franklin and others did for the colonies at Philadelphia in 1787. It was not until 1870 that the 'likin' was abolished within the German Union.

"The nearest equivalent which English has for the Chinese word 'likin,' is 'per cent.' The Chinese term means 'per mille,' that is, a tax apportioned according to thousands. It has taken on a different meaning in the course of years until now a 'likin' station is known as a 'squeeze' station. Likin stations are toll posts where taxes are levied on goods in transit. While some of the collections made at the 'squeeze' stations go to the central governm ent, most of the revenues falls into the hands of the provincial governors or the district mandarins.

"From Shanghai to Soochow it is 84 miles and goods going from one city to the other have to pass eight likin stations. At the first and last stations all goods are dutiable; at the rest all goods must be examined, and there is scarcely a single article that does not in that transit pay at least three taxes.

"If a parallel system were set up on the New York-Philadelphia highway, all the motor trucks would be compelled to stop at customs stations in New York, Hoboken, Newark, Elizabeth, New Brunswick, Princeton, Trenton and Philadelphia. At each station the entire contents of the truck would be ransacked and the drivers would be compelled to pay a certain sum. Obviously the road run of a few hours would lengthen into a day or two. The expense of tax and time would put a burden on business which would be shifted to the consumer. In the end commerce by truck would be smothered. This cycle is complete in China where foreign goods commonly penetrate only a brief distance from the free treaty ports, and even domestic trade dribbles along in anaemic fashion.

"Unlike most Chinese creations, the likin is not old. It was invented about 1850 to raise money for the support of the army suppressing the Taiping rebellion. Its success as a source of cash soon recommended it to governors of various towns and provinces. These officials are always pushed to acquire personal and civic finances. They knew as well as anyone that in the past money which went to Peking stayed in Peking. Likin offered a satisfactory answer.

"Continued existence of likin recognizes that China is a collection of semi-independent states such as the United States and Germany were when in embryo.

"The problem of the likin has been up before international councils before. Agreements have been made that foreign traders could purchase through transit tickets for their goods at the point of departure which would free shipments from likin toll. But even in the recent meetings of the conference there have been reports that provincial war lords have ignored these facts. They were charged with levying double and triple likin to support their armies."

Reddy Fox Finds Nothing

To fool the clever is a joy,
For wit 'gainst wit you must employ.
—Mocker the Mocking Bird.

Reddy Fox was hungry. This wasn't at all uncommon. In winter Reddy is hungry most of the time. It is only once in a very great while that he has a chance to eat all he can eat. When this does happen, of course, for a day or two he isn't hungry. But Reddy isn't one to complain, even when an empty stomach keeps him trotting day and night looking for something to put in it. He just makes the most of that wonderful nose of his and those sharp eyes of his and those keen ears of his. He doesn't mean to miss a chance through heedlessness or carelessness on his part.

On this particular morning Reddy was working along the edge of the Green Forest near where it joins Farmer Brown's Old Orchard. Reddy had a particular reason for hunting three Pheasants. Now, if there is anyway he had seen the tracks of two or three Pheasants. Now, if there is anything that particularly delights Reddy, it is a Pheasant for dinner. He would go a long way and he would run almost any risk to catch a Pheasant. It isn't often that he can do it. But once in a while he can, so he feels that it is always worth while taking a chance.

This morning as he worked along up the edge of the Green Forest he heard far ahead of him a sound that caused him to stop short and prick up his ears. My, such an eager look as there was in Reddy's eyes as he cocked those two black ears and listened. There it was again! There was no mistake about it. No, sir, there was no mistake about it. A cock Pheasant had crowed somewhere up ahead of him.

You should have seen Reddy Fox steal up along the edge of the Green Forest. Always his black ears were cocked forward. He crouched as low as he could and he took advantage of every little bush and every little mound of snow, creeping behind them and peeping around before he would move ahead. Of course, he made no noise. On the snow those little black feet of his could move rapidly without a sound. The nearer he got to the place where he thought that Pheasant was the more careful he was in all his movements. At last he paused by a little pile of brush. Not very far beyond this was that Pheasant; he was sure. He would wait for that Pheasant to crow again.

Reddy didn't have to wait long. In fact, he had to wait only a moment or two. Then he heard that Pheasant crow, and by the sound he was sure it was just around the other side of that little pile of brush. You should have seen Reddy creep around that brush! He crouched so close to the snow that his coat actually dragged on the snow. He would take a step and then pause to listen. Then he would take another step and pause. Pretty soon he was where he could poke his nose around. You should have seen with what care he did it. Slowly, slowly, slowly, that little black nose was poked around until at last he could see with one eye the ground beyond that little pile of brush. There were some bushes there, but—look as he would—he could see nothing of that Pheasant.

He heard far ahead of him a sound that caused him to stop short and prick up his ears

"He must have run," though Reddy. "Yes, sir, that is what he must have done. But he can't have run but a very little ways. There hasn't been time since he crowed last."

So Reddy began to move a little faster, but he was just as cautious and just as careful as ever. He was all prepared to make a swift jump to catch that Pheasant. And then he heard that crowing once more. This time it was up above his head. He looked up. There sat Mocker the Mocking Bird. "Good morning," said Mocker. "How do you like my imitation of Mr. Pheasant's voice?"

Get back that lost weight

When you start to waste away to a shadow, when the color leaves your cheeks and your poor, tired legs will hardly hold up your weakened body it's high time you started taking a fine tonic and builder like Tanlac.

Tanlac will build you up and make you feel that life's worth living. Made from roots, herbs and bark gathered from the four corners of the earth and compounded under the exclusive Tanlac formula, Tanlac is just what the poor, starved body needs.

First of all it cleanses the blood stream and puts the digestive organs in order. You find, after a few days' treatment, that you want to eat. Pretty soon the welcome color steals back into your cheeks and the scales tell you that you're gaining weight. From then on it's only a short time until you're feeling fit as a fiddle.

Millions of men and women have taken Tanlac with great benefit. More than one hundred thousand people have written us glowing tributes to this wonderful tonic.

When you know it has worked wonders for so many folks it's folly not to take advantage of Tanlac's help yourself. Don't put it off another day. Get a bottle at your druggist's now and start the good work right away. Take Tanlac Vegetable Pills for constipation.

Gained 11 Pounds on Tanlac

"Tanlac helped me overcome a two-year case of indigestion which sapped my strength and energy. I had no relish for food, was tired morning and night. Now I enjoy food, sleep peacefully and have gained 11 pounds."

OBITUARY

Patrick Daly

After being in failing health for about two years the death of Patrick Daly occurred Tuesday night at the home of his daughter, Mrs. John J. Shugrue of River avenue Laurel Hill. Mr. Daly was born in Ireland but had made his home in Norwich for many years. He was a member of St. Patrick's parish.

Surviving besides his daughter, Mrs. John J. Shugrue, is another daughter, Mrs. James Conway of Yonkers, N. Y.; a son, P. J. Daly of London, England, and several nephews and nieces.

Mrs. Alfred W. Davis

After an illness of about two months Ida J. Sherman, widow of Alfred W. Davis, died Wednesday night about 9:40 o'clock at her home, East Great Plain. She was born in Rhode Island, September 5, 1853, the daughter of the late Mr. and Mrs. Daniel J. Sherman. October 25, 1876, she was united in marriage with the late Alfred W. Davis, the wedding taking place in Norwich. Mr. Davis died about 2 years ago.

For over 35 years Mrs. Davis was a member of the First Baptist church. She was also a member of the King's Daughters and had just completed her 21st year as recording secretary. Surviving are two sons, Frank D. Davis of East Great Plain and A. S. Davis of Providence and one daughter, Mrs. H. D. Pendleton of Waterford.

Arthur G. Hill

(Special to The Bulletin.)

NORTHAMPTON, Mass., Feb. 24—Arthur G. Hill, aged 84 years, the second mayor of this city in 1887 and 1888, died in his home in Maple street, in Florence, at 1:30 o'clock on Sunday. He was born in Willimantic, Conn., in 1841, being the son of Samuel and Louise Chace Hill. He came to Florence when he was a year of age.

Former Mayor Hill was treasurer of the Corticelli Silk company, Northampton's largest industry, which was founded by his father, Samuel L. Hill.

He took a prominent part in the political and industrial development and community enterprise of this city. Besides being twice mayor, he served as representative in the state legislature in 1884 and 1885, as a republican. He was graduated from Harvard in 1864.

He was formerly assistant treasurer of the Nonotuck Silk company and assisted in the development of the Kelsey Switch company, Florence Furniture company, Whitney Gun company and Martin & Hill Cash Carrier company. His name was prominent in connection with the old Florence Dramatic club, Eagle Baseball team, Knights of Honor, of which he served as grand secretary, and the Unitarian church.

Mr. Hill leaves two daughters, Mrs. James McCullough of Springfield and Miss Florence Hill at home.

Mrs. Bernard Jakubowski

Following an illness of some duration the death of Maria Andruskiewicz, widow of Bernard Jakubowski, occurred Wednesday morning at her home No. 3 Sylvester street.

She was born in Poland, but came to this country over 30 years ago, being united in marriage, in Webster, Mass., with Bernard Jakubowski. Mr. Jakubowski died in this city in May 1924. Immediately following their marriage, Mr. and Mrs. Jakubowski came to this city being one of the first Polish residents in the city.

She was a member of St. Joseph's parish and of the Rosary and St. Stanislaus societies of that church, in which she had always been an active member. Mrs. Jakubowski is survived by one daughter, Anna Jakubowski; her mother, Mrs. Veronica Andruskiewicz; one sister, Mrs. Anton Hozlowski, all of Norwich and two brothers William, of Norfolk, Va., and John Andruskiewicz of Wauregan, Conn.

DETECTIVE LEWIS, WITH BROKEN ARM, IMPROVING

County Investigator William Lewis of 29 Giorgianna street, New London, is reported as much improved at his home, where he has been confined for the past week as the result of a broken arm. The fracture was suffered a week ago when driving his machine on the Norwich road. The machine was forced to one side of the road by another car and, skidding on the snow and ice, collided with a bowlder, throwing Mr. Lewis forcibly against the steering wheel, causing the fracture.

HOME SERVICE EXPERT HAS OVERFLOW AUDIENCE

A crowd of housewives which filled the lecture room and overflowed the corridor at the Norwich Gas and Electric Co. offices, Wednesday afternoon, heard the home service expert, Miss Gladys L. Peckham in her interesting demonstrations.

It was impossible for Miss Peckham to find time in the hour allotted her to speak on cream puff making, as she had planned; but she gave practical demonstrations on making popovers and baking powder biscuits.

The hens are certainly doing their bit this Lent, so that in some stores native eggs are being priced at even half dollar a dozen.

SURRENDERS AT 'FRISCO TO FACE BALTIC POSTOFFICE THEFT CHARGE

BOSTON, Feb. 24.—(AP)—Clarence D. Higham arrived here today from San Francisco to face charges of stealing $350 from the United States government three years ago while he was postal clerk at Baltic, Conn. Higham, a hunchback weighing less than 100 pounds, was in the custody of two deputy United States marshals.

A week ago he surprised federal authorities at San Francisco by walking into the marshal's office and announcing that he wanted to surrender. There was no warrant out for his arrest and the officials thought he was joking until they communicated with Baltic and learned he was wanted there, although his offense had almost been forgotten. Higham is said to have admitted that he cashed fake money orders in Boston to obtain funds with which to go to a climate which might improve his health.

After his arrival here he wrote his father at Baltic that he might be facing a ten year sentence, but things might go better with him if he had $350 with which to make restitution.

Higham's surrender at San Francisco comes as a surprise to his acquaintances both in this city and Baltic. Inquiry late Wednesday night revealed the fact that no warrant had been issued for his arrest. Officer John L. McGuire of Baltic said no report of the theft had been made to him and local police headquarters had no information in regard to the theft.

Higham is well known in Baltic and is the son of Thomas Higham of that village. He attended the Norwich Free Academy and is about 30 years old. Being a cripple and unable to do any laborious work he was given a position as clerk in the Baltic postoffice and it was while he was so employed that the theft for which he surrendered took place. It is understood that he took money orders from the postoffice at that time and cashed them under fake signatures.

At the time of the theft Mrs. Henrietta Burr was postmaster at Baltic.

TAFTVILLE MAN SUED FOR $21,000 DAMAGES

A number of new damage suits and divorce actions have been filed with the clerk of the superior court in this city, all being returnable to the court the first Tuesday in March. Joseph Paradis of Taftville has been made the defendant in three damage suits totaling $21,000. The actions are brought as the result of injuries received by Blanche, Lucy and Richard Shalkowski when they were struck by an automobile driven by Mr. Paradis. The accident happened May 24, 1925 on the highway leading from Taftville through Newent. Richard, a baby was being carried by Mrs. Lucy Shalkowski.

Mrs. Shalkowski was pinned against a telegraph pole, and Richard was thrown from her arms and landed in a lot nearby. Mrs. Shalkowski sues for the damages of $10,000 and damages of $1,000 are claimed for Richard. Blanche Shalkowski who was also hit and afterwards picked up Richard and ran to a nearby house where she fainted from fright and exertion, sues for damages of $10,000.

Charles P. Fuller of New London has filed a $10,000 damage suit against The Ideal Coat and Apron Supply Co., of New London. The plaintiff alleges that while crossing Howard street, New London, he was knocked down by a Ford delivery truck owned by the defendant company and operated by Bernard L. Burnham. He was injured externally and internally and was confined to the hospital for a considerable period of time.

Damages of $1,000 are asked by Marie L. P. Fournier from John S. Henry of Stonington. The claim is made for damages done to the plaintiffs automobile when it was struck by the defendant's automobile in Stonington Feb. 27, 1925.

On grounds of desertion, Leroy Frankford of Groton seeks a divorce from Nettie May (Connyers) Frankford of New London. The couple were married Feb. 14, 1920, with desertion alleged since Nov. 11, 1922. A statutory offense is also charged.

The Fidelity and Deposit Co., of Maryland has filed a $6,000 damage action against Thomas Soltz of New London. It is alleged that on April 15, 1924 the defendant promised to pay the plaintiff $5,000. Of this amount $4,108 is still due and payable.

According to a cross complaint filed by The Westinghouse Traction Brake Co., in the case of Anson T. McCook vs. the Groto nand Stonington Street Railway Co., and others, the petitioning concern asks the court to grant the following:

A declaratory judgment as to the nature, extent, amount and priority of its claim against the assets of the Groton and Stonington company covered by and described in the trust mortgages dated July 1, 1904 and July 1 1911.

A decree ordering the receivership estate of the Shore Line Electric Railway Co., to pay and satisfy the claim of the cross complaint from the net receipts of operations by said receiver insofar as said net receipts of operation by said receiver are sufficient to pay and satisfy said claim.

Foreclosure of the lien of this cross complaint to the extent of its claim with interest by decree of sale of assets of the G. & S. T. Co. subject thereto.

Such other and further relief at law or in equity to which this cross complaint may be entitled in the premises. The brake company claims that six months before Robert W. Perkins was appointed receiver, they sold, delivered and furnished to the Shore Line certain current supplies which were necessary for the operation of said street railway system and the continuance of its business in the sum of $4,329.

An appeal from the ruling of Compensation Commissioner J. J. Donohue on 14 medical bills of Dr. Frank N. Dunn of New London, claimant against The J. N. Lapointe Co., New London, and Zurich General Accident and Liability Insurance Co., respondents, has been filed with the court clerk. The commissioner approved the bills in question, awarding Dr. Dunn $275. This was for medical care and attention given fourteen injured workmen.

LOCAL C. A. R. HONORS MEMORY OF WASHINGTON

General Ebenezer Huntington society, Children of the American Revolution, met Monday afternoon at the home of Miss Emily H. Bidwell in commemoration of the birthday of George Washington. Routine business was transacted and several communications relative to society purchases and work were read before the meeting. The following were elected delegates and alternates to the C. A. R. convention to be held in Washington, D. C., in April: Agnes Greenman, Howland S. Brewer, Emily H. Bidwell and Marion T. Mitchell. Besides honoring the birthday of George Washington the exercises were held particularly for Thomas Jefferson, who died one hundred years ago.

The society voted to give $5 toward the purchase price of Monticello, the home of Jefferson, as a shrine for the children of America. Attention of the newer members was called to the big flag with standard, which was given originally to Ebenezer Huntington society, C. A. R., by William Fitch, in 1896, and which came to the General Ebenezer Huntington society when it succeeded the older society.

Games were enjoyed under the direction of Mrs. Judd and Miss Bidwell directed in the solving of historical puzzles. Refreshments were served, one of the surprises being a birthday cake for Dolly Edmond.

The hostesses for the day were Mrs. E. Allen Bidwell, Mrs. Elijah S. Burdsall, Mrs. Leslie L. Brewer, Mrs. Percy W. Chapman and Mrs. Walter Gilbert.

MEN'S BIBLE STUDY CLASS AT Y. M. C. A.

There was a good attendance and a real interest at the session of the Men's Bible class Wednesday evening at the local Y. M. C. A. The topic of the study and discussion was "The Breaking Up of a Home," and the scripture used was Luke 15:11-32, the story of the Prodigal son. Among the points developed in the discussion were the following: One of the reasons why Jesus made the youngeste son the prodigal was perhaps because of the fact that the young man as a rule is most easily tempted and therefore a natural lesson can be deducted. It would have made a vast difference if the mother had been living; the young man probably would never have left home. The probability is that the older brother was one of the complaining kind. The father did not act wisely in giving his boy so much money. It is never wise to do this, as it is likely to work havoc in a boy's life.

The temptations were too strong for the young fellow, for he was away from home without restraints and probably no one took the right interest in him, as is often the case.

The boy not only lost his money, but what is vastly worse he lost his manhood. The father is not blameless entirely, for he was altogether too easy with the boy. He evidently had little parental control. This is all too common in this day and time. The boy found plenty of so called friends while his money lasted, but they left him when his money was gone.

The average young man seems to take little time to think of consequences. They live for the present only. Jesus' conception of a dead life was a useless or a sinful life. Of the two brothers the eldest is the least attractive. Too many are continually looking out for number one, and this is absolutely contrary to the teachings and example of the great Christ.

HENRY A. TIRRELL SPEAKS ON INTERNATIONAL PEACE

Rotary's part in International Peace was the subject of a very interesting talk by Henry A. Tirrell, speaker of the day, at the weekly luncheon of the Norwich Rotary club Wednesday noon. Mr. Tirrell's talk was part of the educational program put on by the Educational committee in observance of anniversary week of Rotary. Mr. Tirrell, who was introduced by Charles A. Saxton, chairman of the committee, said in part:

The sixth object of Rotary is the promotion of international peace and good will. What is Rotary's part in this promotion of international peace? One of the men who has done much for the world's peace was a Rotarian and what quality had he that stood out. Every good Rotarian must have a certain quality that is essential to Rotary. In this club we have the doctor, lawyer, merchant and others of various vocations and professions but they all have one quality in common. That quality is expressed, I think, in the Latin wood "virtus", meaning manly. This is a manly quality. The greatest figure that ever was on this earth had that quality and Rotary has seized upon that which every race and religion recognizes—that goodness, the life of service.

The second advantage of Rotary in promotion of international peace is that personal contact which features the clubs in their meetings. We come to know each other and knowing each we see the good qualities in our fellow man and we cease to hate him. Rotary has spread all over the world and at the international conventions the men from the various countries of the world meet and slap each other on the back and call him by his first name. This personal touch is something that will go a long way toward peace. We get to see the other fellow's side through meeting him day by day and we forget our hatred of him because we find he has something to offer us.

America has done a great service to the world in that it has shown that men of different races and creeds can live together as one nation and can be trusted to work together in peace and happiness. If it can be done in America it can be done in the world at large. There may be differences of opinion on the league of nations but there is one thing certain the world needs a League of Hearts.

Mr. Tirrell's talk was attentively heard and he was given a hearty vote of appreciation.

In connection with the educational programme Chairman Saxton conducted a school of Rotary at which a number responded giving the first five objects of Rotary. Those speaking briefly were Alfred G. Bliven, Dr. A. C. Freeman, Lewis M. Carpenter, Henry H. Vignot, and John J. O'Rourke.

The five-minute speaker of the meeting was Charles R. Butts who gave a very interesting talk on the Norwich Mutual Insurance Co. Mr. Butts spoke as follows:

That you may have some ides of the general character, progressiveness, vision, etc., of the people who founded our city I am about to give you a digest of the history of the Mutual assurance company of the city of Norwich.

For the first ten decades of its life, during which period occasional fires occurred, Norwich was powerless to defend its property against this devouring element except by primitive methods. Neighborly kindness in such times of need developed bucket brigades along which water was passed in pails from hand to hand, the line often extending a long distance from the source of supply.

November 26, 1793 occurred the greatest fire which Norwich has ever experienced. It developed in the building on Water street owned by Hubbard and Green of Boston, spread rapidly and destroyed six shops, four dwellings, four barns and the meeting house of the Second Congregational society, the total loss amounting to about $40,000 on which there was no insurance.

This disaster, so painfully illustrated the total losses to which all property owners were liable, was the direct cause of the founding of the Mutual Assurance company of the city of Norwich. At a meeting held in the court house in Norwich Town, Monday, December 29, 1794, Dr. Joshua Lathrop was chosen chairman and Zachariah Huntington, secretary.

May 18, 1795 the members petitioned "the Honourable General Assembly now sitting in Hartford," for an act of incorporation "for the Purpose of rendering any future loss which may happen to them by fire, as light as possible to individuals sustaining such loss, and for the purpose of mutually insuring each other." This request was granted being the first of the kind in the state.

The company never had a president its only executive officer being a secretary and treasurer.

The first policy issued February 10, 1795, was as follows:

"No. 1.
Norwich Mutual Affurance Company.
For Infuring Buildings from Lofs by Fire
This Policy Witnefseth, That Christopher Leffingwell having become, and by thefe Prefents becoming a member of the Mutual Affurance Company of the City of Norwich, purfuant to a Deed of Settlement, bearing date the fifteenth Day of December One Thoufand Seven Hundred and Ninety-Four. And for and in Confedration fo the Fum of Five Dollars & Twenty-five Cents in hand paid by the faid Christopher Leffingwell to the Treafurer of the faid Affurance Company, being the amount of premium of infuring the Sum of One Thoufand and fifty Dollars" being three-fourths of the estimated fourteen hundred dollars valuation of the house. This insurance which has never lapsed still protects the old dwelling which is now owned by the family of the late Capt. Benjamin Huntington, near Harlands Corner, Norwich Town.

The company issued policies on property not only in Norwich Town and Landing, but in Bozrah, Windham and other nearby places, and had accredited agents in New London.

The company early "Voted: That on every principal building in each policy insured, there shall be a badge, in a conspicuous place, in the front of the building with the words (Mutual Affurance) ingraved, painted or plated thereon, together with the number with the building agreeably to the number of the policy, by which the same is insured."

For many years the amount set aside for the payment of losses and dividends has been $6,666.67, being 2,000 Connecticut Pounds of $3.33 each.

Annual meetings are held in January, and the company being purely mutual, the dividends then declared are devoted to the payment of premiums. These dividends or returned premiums have for more than one hundred years been at the rate of 100 per cent.

The present officers elected at the last annual meeting held the second Monday of January, 1926, are: Secretary and treasurer, Harold P. Hull; directors, Zebulon R. Robbins, Frank D. Sevin, Herbert L. Yerrington, Shepard B. Palmer, and Charles E. Butts; auditors, Zebulon R. Robbins and Frank D. Sevin.

At the business session President Edwin A. Harris presided and reports of the various committees were heard. Chairman Alex McNicol of the program committee gave out the following programme for the next six weeks:

March 3—Business Methods meeting, Charles E. Taylor, chairman, five minute speaker Dr. Hugh B. Campbell on Rotary; song leader Rev. A. H. Abbott.

March 10—Talk on Americanization by Philip A. Johnson; Herbert B. Cary five minute speaker; Lewis M. Young song leader.

March 17—Address by Rev. William A. Keefe, five minute speaker Sheppard B. Palmer; song leader Herbert M. Lerou.

March 24—Talk on Boys' Work; five-minute speaker Arthur M. Thompson; song leader, William H. Ott.

March 31—Business meeting; Nathan A. Gibbs five minute speaker; Herbert C. Adams song leader.

April 7—Annual election; five-minute speaker Arthur M. Brown; song leader, Dr. Alfred Richards.

April 14—Ladies' Night; William G. Park, song leader.

It was announced that Charles A. Saxton had been appointed chairman of the "On to Denver" committee for the annual international meeting of Rotary in June. James Roantree is local chairman for the spring conclave to be held at Bridgeport in April.

President Harris urged support of the Boy Scout work in Norwich and unanimous support was voted John J. O'Rourke who is chairman of the financial committee of the scouts.

The meeting closed with the singing of the Star Spangled Banner.

FUNERALS

Mrs. J. Henry Gifford

Funeral services for Mrs. Delia Newman Gifford, widow of J. Henry Gifford were held Wednesday afternoon at 2:30 o'clock at the First Congregational church, Norwich Town, of which church she was a member. Rev. Gurdon F. Bailey, pastor of the church conducted the service which included scripture reading and prayer. Miss Bernice Underwood, the church soprano, sang One Sweetly Solemn Thought and Lead Kindly Light accompanied by Organist Herbert I. Yerrington. In the attendance were relatives and friends from Brooklyn, N. Y., New London and other cities. There were beautiful floral tributes. The bearers were Judge Nelson J. Ayling and Postmaster Casper K. Bailey, of Norwich, a cousin, William Curtiss, of New London and a nephew, Wheeler N. Voorhees, of Brooklyn, N. Y. Burial was in the Gifford cemetery at East Great Plain, where the committal service was read by Rev. Mr. Bailey. Charles A. Gager was in charge of the funeral arrangements.

Mrs. Josephine Duffy

Funeral services for Mrs. Josephine Duffy were held Wednesday afternoon at 3 o'clock following the arrival of the 2:30 o'clock train from Boston. The service was held at Mt. Calvary Baptist church, when many relatives and friends gathered to pay final tribute to the memory of a loved one. The floral tributes were most beautiful.

The service was conducted by Rev. Dixon A. Brown, pastor of the A. M. E. Zion church of Norwich, Rev. David Overton of Willimantic and Rev. Sinclair Grinstead of New London. During the service a solo was sung by Mrs. Arthur Watrous and there was special music by the choir of Mt. Calvary Baptist church.

Burial was in Maplewood cemetery where the committal service was conducted. The bearers were Nelson Lansing, Alonzo Geer, John Harris, Sevarine Gonsalve, Herman Webster and Arners Aubrey. Arrangements were by Charles A. Gager.

Stanton W. Maine

With a large attendance of relatives and friends funeral services for Stanton W. Maine of Griswold were held Tuesday afternoon at 1 o'clock at the undertaking parlors of George Grant of Taftville. The services were conducted by Rev. William J. Reynolds, pastor of the Lisbon Congregational church, and the choir of that church rendered several selections during the service. The floral forms were many and beautiful. The body was placed in the vault at Maplewood cemetery and the burial is to take place at the convenience of the family at the Aver cemetery, North Stonington. Relatives acted as bearers and Rev. Mr. Reynolds read a committal service at the cemetery.

JOLLY EIGHT PITCH CLUB MEETS AT OCCUM

The Jolly Eight Pitch club met on Wednesday evening for the third session at the home of William Hassler Occum, where the third ten games of a series of 40 games were played. The first team, Louis Barton, William G. Frohmander, William Hassler and Vivian Perkins, gave the second team, Irvan Gregory, John Krumbholz, Alex Walmsley and George Babbitt, a bad beating, taking the first four games and three more, making a total of 7 games, leaving them only three. The final game is to be played at the home of Alex Walmsley a week from next Tuesday. After play a light lunch was served by Mrs. Hassler.

EDDIE PLANK, VETERAN PITCHER OF ATHLETICS SUCCUMBS TO PARALYSIS

GETTYSBURG, Pa., Feb. 24—(AP)—Eddie Plank, one of baseball's greatest left-hand pitchers, died today, only four months behind his greatest right-handed rival in world's series battles, Christy Mathewson.

Stricken Monday morning with paralysis that left his once powerful pitching arm and his whole left side helpless, the port-side star of Connie Mack's famous Philadelphia Athletics, [illegible] after the first two hours, [illegible] very brief intervals he [illegible] us all the time and passed [illegible] sinking sun was cast shadows on Gettysburg's field. He was 51.

[illegible] will be buried in this quiet town of Gettysburg on the same day of the week—Saturday afternoon—as Christy Mathewson was laid to rest in the quiet town of Lewisburg Pa., not far away.

Plank's widow, Eddie Jr., 19 years old, and Ira and Luther, two of the three brothers of the once great pitcher, were at the bedside when the end came, but his parents, unable to make the trip to town because of illness, remained on their farm where the sad news was gently conveyed to them.

The brief illness and death of Gettysburg's famous ball player came as a shock to the town folk among whom Plank was held in high regard not only as a once star player but as a neighbor and citizen.

Quitting baseball in 1917, while playing with the St. Louis Americans after losing a 1-0 game to Walter Johnson, Plank opened a garage business in Gettysburg but retired three years ago having accumulated sufficient wealth in the business and in baseball to take life easy. During the last year he had not been so well but took part in trap shooting contests of the Gettysburg Gun club and participated in other local activities. He devoted much time to his father and mother.

Sunday night he retired without a sign of feeling ill and was stricken when he arose Monday. It was a losing battle from the start, for his physicians informed the family yesterday that his recovery was very unlikely. In conscious moments tears trickled down his cheeks as he apparently realized his helpless condition.

The body will lie in state in the Presbyterian church here Saturday from 1 to 3 p. m. Services will be conducted by the Rev. W. C. Robinson, pastor of the church, and interment will be private in Evergreen cemetery. Tonight messages were sent to various American and National league officials and to ball players who were Eddie's friends in his Major league days. Among communications received since Plank fell ill was one from Eddie Collins, manager of the Chicago White Sox, who was one of his "buddies" when both were with the Philadelphia athletics.

Speaking of his star aggregation of pitchers in the Athletic's championship days, Mack said that "Bender was the 'money' pitcher, Coombs the brilliant strike-out hurler, and Plank the old reliable in almost every game." "He was not as spectacular as Waddell, but as a pitcher who combined a rare knowledge of his opponent's weakness and had marvelous control," Mack said.

Edward S. Plank was born on a farm near Gettysburg on August 31, 1875. He played baseball as a boy on the fields in and about the historic town and attended Gettysburg academy. He entered Gettysburg college when 25 years old. He was big and strong and could throw a fast ball, but he knew little of the art of pitching. He improved, however, and after spending two years in college, Connie Mack signed him in 1901.

It was the year the reorganized American league invaded the east. From the start Plank was a success, winning 17 of the 28 games he pitched the first year.

In 1902 with the incomparable "Rube" Waddell and "Pete" Husting, Eddie Plank helped pitch the Athletics to their first pennant. In 1905 together with Waddell, "Chief" Bender and "Andy" Coakley, he again did his share in winning the second pennant for Philadelphia.

The great left-hander was also an important factor in the third pennant in 1910. The season was not as good as others and some critics started to sing his "swan song." Plank, however, with his famous cross-fire ball, had one of his best years in 1911, when the Athletics again won the pennant and then the world's championship for the second time. In that year he won 22 out of 30 games.

Although he had his best year in 1912, winning 26 out of 32 games, the Athletics failed to land the flag, but Plank was again instrumental in capturing the pennants in 1913 and 1914.

Following the four straight defeats at the hands of the Boston Braves in 1914 for the world's title, Connie Mack decided to break up his great aggregation of stars and Plank was slated to go to Baltimore. He refused and signed with the St. Louis Federal league club for the 1915 season. He won 21 out of 31 games pitched. When the baseball war clouds disappeared and with them the Federal league, Plank was awarded to the St. Louis Americans. In 1917 he retired at the age of 42 years after losing a 1-0 game to Walter Johnson.

Plank was in the Majors seventeen years and left a record of the greatest number of games pitched by a left-hander, a record said to have been excelled by only three right-handers in the same time. In his career he won 320 games, lost 190, acted as relief pitcher or was relieved in 30 games and pitched five tie contests. In his Major league work he faced 15,907 batsmen, and his seventeen year average as a winning pitcher was .627.

WORLD'S TENNIS STARS IDLE AT MONTE CARLO

MONTE CARLO, Feb. 24.—(AP)—The Monte Carlo tennis tournament went on today with its stars absent. Suzanne Lenglen remained in the mountains; Helen Wills, deciding to take a day's holiday, motored to the Italian Riviera while neither Senorita De Alvarez of Spain nor Frau Neppach of Germany, other favorites, were engaged in the singles play.

When the American champion failed to appear on the courts today reports were circulated that she, like Suzanne, had broken down under the strain of their rivalry, but she merely feared she was going stale after five weeks of continuous play under the Riviera sun. She asked for a day's rest. Lunched at San Remo and returned this evening, looking much refreshed.

Tomorrow she will have to do extra duty, for three matches are on her schedule. At 11 o'clock she will play singles against Miss Lily Cadle of England who defeated Mrs. Molla Mallory at Mentone in 1923, but whom the California girl already has beaten this season. In the doubles championships Miss Wills and Mlle. Contoslavos will face Mrs. Young and Miss Green of England; and in their second match in the Beaumont cup play she and Mrs. C. F. Aeschlimann, as an American pair, will oppose Mrs. Phyllis Satterthwaite and Miss Eileen Bennett, an English team.

Miss Wills has not yet sent in her official entry for the Mentone tournament, but officials of that club said tonight that she had promised to play there in the singles and women's doubles. Entries will not close until Saturday evening.

Only one American pair remains in the play for the Butler trophy, Allister McCormick of Chicago and J. H. Van Alen of Brooklyn, the other Americans, F. R. Sovel and J. R. Tunis, having been eliminated today by R. Gallipe and E. Micard of France in the first round, 7-5, 6-1, 6-0. McCormick and Van Alen advanced to the second round through the default of Danish opponents.

The same pair staged a sensational duel in the second round of the men's singles championships, Van Alden winning at 1-6, 8-6, 6-3. The match was so bitterly disputed that it was hard for the spectators to realize that they will be paired together tomorrow against Gordon Lowe and Wallis Myers of England in an attempt to enter the semi-finals of the Butler trophy play.

COMPSTON WINS LAKEWOOD TOURNEY FROM MELHORN

LAKELAND, Fla., Feb. 24—(AP)—Archie Compston, British professional golf champion, with a score of 285 for the 72 holes, today won the Lakeland and Open Ridge championship medal play tournament.

William Melhorn, Chicago, was runner-up with a score of 290 considered a favorite throughout the tournament. Melhorn lost only through Compston's spectacular driving.

Gene Sarazen, metropolitan golf champion, and Bobby Cruickshank unattached, were tied for third place, with 291.

Compston started today with a seven stroke handicap behind Willie Klein but managed to get three holes below par coming in the morning round and four below par coming in on the afternoon round. He played a consistent game, punctuated with sensational drives and putts.

Andy Kay, Toronto, pressed Melhorn and Sarazen, turning in a card of 292.

Two drives into the rough proved costly to Eddie Loos, Lakeland, who scored a 296.

Failure to keep up his consistent play was the principal reason for the failure of Klein. While he had a one stroke lead on Tommy Armour, Sarasota, when they teed off this morning, the latter beat him by one stroke for the 72 holes. Klein had 295 and Armour 296.

Johnny Farrell, Tampa, was below his usual play but succeeded in taking the play in 295.

Arnaud Massy, French open champion, fell way behind and came in with 298.

FIFTY-EIGHT CANDIDATES OUT FOR PRINCETON NINE

PRINCETON, N. J., Feb. 24.—(AP)—Fifty-eight aspirants to berths on the Princeton nine reported to Coach Clarke today at the opening session of the five years training period.

This is Clarke's twenty-first year as Princeton's baseball coach. Jack Coomsh, formerly of the Philadelphia Athletics, will have charge of the pitchers.

The graduation of Charles Caldwell, star burler of last season, and the switching of two relief pitchers to infield duty makes the pitching problem the hardest Clarke and Coombs must face.

Lewis, varsity catcher two years ago but ineligible last year because of scholarship difficulties, is ineligible again and will handle a part of the catching. Jake Slagle, star half back on the eleven last fall, is slated for left field.

TILDEN INVOLVED IN ANOTHER ROW WITH U. S. LAWN TENNIS ASSOCIATION

NEW YORK, Feb. 24—(AP)—Another tennis tempest, with William T. Tilden, the national champion, in conflict once more with the United States Lawn Tennis association's ruling forces, loomed tonight on the heels of the association's refusal to sanction a program of Franco-American exhibition matches for charity at Madison Square Garden next Sunday.

Less than an hour after the association's decision was made public, based upon its general policy of opposition to charity contests, Tilden announced he was ready to fulfill his part in the proposed contests. The national title-holder also declared he had assurances from Vincent Richards and Francis T. Hunter, the other American stars, that they would compete if sponsors of the event desired to go through with it in defiance of the ruling of U. S. L. T. A.

Any hope among "insurgent" forces of keeping the original program vanished, however, when Jean Borotra, leader of the French team in this country, announced its members would not compete in any contests lacking the sanction of the U. S. L. T. A. following Practice matches with his team-mates, Rene LaCoste and Jacques Brugnon, at the Seventh Regiment armory, where the Frenchmen tomorrow will open an international series with the American team of Tilden, Richards and Hunter, Borotra made the following statement:

"We are here at the invitation and as the guests of the United States Lawn Tennis association. It would be discourteous on our part to play against their wishes or in any event not given their approval. Therefore, we will not compete in the proposed matches on Sunday."

This rapid succession of developments apparently left sponsors of the exhibition contests in doubt as to their future course and it was indicated definite decision would not be made until tomorrow.

Tilden indicated his readiness to muster a sufficient force of American players, including himself, Richards and Hunter, to put on an exhibition program. Colonel J. S. Hammond, vice president of the Madison Square Garden corporation, who filed the application for sanction, also said he was prepared to go ahead if the players were available, but declined to make any definite announcement.

The charity matches already have been widely advertised as a benefit for the "Les Amis de Blerancourt and the Franco-American branch of the Good-Will association, the successors to the American Committee for Devastated France." They were to be run however, under the auspices of the Madison Square Garden cooperation. Officials of the U. S. L. T. A. today indicated that lack of sufficient information on the purposes of the benefit, as well as policy, guided the decision not to grant sanction.

In a letter of Colonel Hammond notifying him of this refusal, Louis B. Dailey, chairman of the sanction committee of the U. S. L. T. A. declared that while "our decision is not to be construed in any way reflecting on the merist of the proposed charity, it is in accordance with the policy of the association for many years not to sanction exhibitions for charity except and when all other sport governing bodies shall join in the movement for such purpose, as in the case of the sports day of the cathedral (of St. John), or in the case of a great national emergency such as the Japanese earthquake."

NEW YORK, Feb. 24—(AP)—William T. Tilden, national tennis champion, declared today he would compete in the charity matches at Madison Square Garden next Sunday in spite of refusal of the United States Lawn Tennis association to sanction the contests.

At the same time Tilden declared he had assurances that the other two American stars, Vincent Richards and Francis T. Hunter, also would compete.

Doubt existed as to the attitude of the French players, Rene La Coste and Jean Borotra, but Colonel J. S. Hammond, vice president of the Madison Square corporation, announced he would proceed with arrangements for the exhibition.

The association refused to sanction the contests because of lack of information on the purposes of the exhibition and also as a result of the association's policy of opposition to charity affairs except under certain conditions, according to announcement by Louis B. Dailey, chairman of the sanction committee of the United States Lawn Tennis association.

In making the request for sanction, Colonel J. S. Hammond, vice president of the Madison Square Garden corporation, said the matches would be for the benefit of the Franco-American branch of the Good Will association.

Characterizing the action of the advisory committee as "misguided zeal," Tilden tonight issued a statement asserting that the applications for sanction had been refused over the protest of sectional associations representing three-fourths of the U. S. L. T. A. membership.

"Madison Square Garden was not only donated free for the afternoon and evening were cancelled," he said.

"The matter was brought to the attention of sectional associations and wires of protest and a request for reconsideration were sent to the national association by J. C. Stewart, president of the western association; Paul W. Gibbons, representing the Middle States association; Joseph W. Thurston, Southern Atlantic association and Walter L. Pate, president of the Metropolitan association. Mr. Pate expressed his approval of the project by a personal interview with Jones W. Mersereau, president of the U. S. L. T. A.

"These facts were laid before the advisory committee but were unavailing. The French team had received a letter of thanks from their consul general expressing the appreciation of the French government in their willingness to play for French charities.

"It seems to me that it is not only unfortunate but absolutely ridiculous that such a worthy enterprise in which so many influential and important individuals and organizations have united to aid the cause of humanity can be endangered if not actually balked, by the red tape and misguided zeal of the advisory committee of the U. S. L. T. A."

GEORGETOWN STARS TO COMPETE AGAINST HOFF

NEW YORK, Feb. 24.—(AP)—Georgetown University's two all-around stars, Anthony Plansky and Emerson Norton, will compete for all-around athletic honors with Harold Osborn of the Illinois A. C. and Charley Hoff of Norway at the Knights of Columbus meet in Madison Square Garden on March 16.

Originally the event, comprising seven track and field tests, was planned as a duel between Osborn, the Olympic champion, and Hoff, generally regarded as the America's foremost all-round rival. So insistent have been the requests for the participation of Norton and Plansky, however, that K. of C. authorities decided to admit them to the contest.

Hoff and Osborn both agreed to the addition of these new rivals. The Norwegian, in fact, asserted he regarded Norton as possibly a more dangerous opponent than Osborn in the events planned, which constitute an abbreviation of the usual outdoor decathlon programme.

Norton was a close second to Osborn in the Olympic decathlon championships in 1924. Plansky is the present inter-collegiate decathlon title holder. He defeated Norton in this contest at the Pennsylvania relays last April.

COLUMBUS DRIVING CLUB SELLS ITS RACE TRACK

CLEVELAND, O., Feb. 24.—(AP)—The Columbus driving park, scene of Grand Circuit racing here for more than a quarter of a century, formally passed out og existence today. A real estate company, it was announced, was high bidder for the land, which was put at public auction several weeks ago.

The land will be made into a subdivision, but one spot will be sacred to the memory of harness racing. A portion of the property will be reserved as a park to be known as Geers Park, in memory of "Pop" Geers, famous driver. A tablet already has been erected. Harness racing has been abandoned in favor of the runners.

TELEPHONIC ATHLETIC MEET AT "Y" TODAY AND FRIDAY

A telephone athletic meet, in which a series of athletic events will be conducted between the boy gym members of the Norwich and Willimantic YMCA's is scheduled for this afternoon and Friday, each association conducting the events on its own gym floors. The events are to be as follows:

Potato race, bar snap, standing broad jump, basketball shooting, basketball free throw and chinning bar.

The boys of both associations have been looking forward to this event for sometime, and since the athletic supremacy of the "Y's are at stake, it can be imagined that the young Y'ers will put up a strenuous tussle to land the victory for their group.

YALE TO LEASE NEW ARENA FOR HOCKEY TEAM

NEW HAVEN, Feb. 24—(AP)—One of the finest schedules in the history of hockey at Yale university with most of the games at home is being arranged for the season of 1926-27, the first of the sixteen seasons the university has under lease the $450,000 arena now being constructed at State and Grove streets, H. F. Woodcock, general manager of the Yale Athletic association said tonight. With the acquisition of a home rink, hockey at Yale will automatically become a major sport.

Bretonnel Wins.

PARIS, Feb. 24.—(AP)—Fred Bretonnel, former French lightweight champion of Europe who is now in the welter class, defeated Paul Fritsch tonight in a ten round rough and tumble fight. He won back the honors which Fritsch took from him at their last meeting in January, 1925.

Johnson Made a Sheriff

SEATTLE, Wash., Feb. 24—(AP)—Floyd Johnson, Auburn, Washington, one time contender for the world's heavyweight boxing championship, was appointed today a deputy sheriff here. He is 25 years old.

FIFTEEN CANDIDATES ANSWER FIRST CALL FOR ACADEMY BASEBALL TEAM

The initial call for candidates for the 1926 Academy baseball squad was sounded Wednesday at the local school with about 15 batterymen responding. The first day's workout at the armory consisted mainly of jogging around and passing the ball.

Among the candidates to report Wednesday were several of last year's championship team, prominent among whom was Lloyd Jarvis, star portsider, who achieved fame during the 1925 season in many ways and who was chiefly responsible for brinking the Eastern Conn. League championship to this city. However, his greatest achievement perhaps came when, almost singlehandedly, he administered the only defeat of the season to the state championship Bulkeley outfit. Another player, who was a great aid during last season also reported yesterday namely, Johnny Greene. Other pitchers appearing yesterday were Mullins, of last year's squad, and Aldrich, a newcomer who has done good work on local grammar school teams. Ray Woods, star relief pitcher, was injured Wednesday when his knee-cap was thrown out and consequently he will be lost to the squad for at least two weeks.

Among the catchers to report the most prominent were Mish and Goldblatt. Mish, after starting off strong last season, received an injury which slowed him up considerably. However, this season it is to be hoped that he has fully recovered and that he will be back to original form. Goldblatt, second string receiver of last year, should have a good season. He has put on much needed weight during the winter months which should aid him greatly during the coming campaign. There should be a hot race between these two men for the first string berth. Others who are out for the position behind the bat are Villano, a fast man on the bases and a good hitter; Koptano, a promising recruit who made good on a local grammar school team last year. There were four or five other aspirants for the catcher's berth who put in an appearance but owing to limited space and time were not able to show their wares. However, these other boys will be given a chance during the next day or two.

Practices will be held every afternoon as far as possible so that by the time the snow leaves the ground and outdoor workouts can be begun. Coach Earl E. Brigham should have his batterymen nif airly good shape and ready to go for a successful season.

SCHAEFER BEATS HOPPE IN 18.1 BILLIARDS MATCH

CHICAGO, Feb. 24—(AP)—Young Jake Schaefer defeated Willie Hoppe, champion, in their 1,500 point 18.1-balkline billiard exhibition tournament here tonight 1,500 to 1,115. Schaefer shot the final 250 points in six innings. Hoppe made 93 points in five innings in the final block. The title was not at stake.

The 1,500 point match played in blocks of 250 points, two blocks a day, saw two world's records smashed unofficially. Schaefer made a run of 212 and his average of 61 1-2 for one of the 250-point blocks broke the record made by his father years ago.

Schaefer's grand average for the match was thirty and Hoppe's 22 15-50. The 1,500 points were played in fifty innings.

Hoppe, who for two decades had held the 18.1 championship was favored to win at bte beginning of the tournament over Young Jake, holder of the 18.2 title, which he had previously wrested from Hoppe.

The match was in the nature of an exhibition to prepare Hoppe for his championship tournament to be played with Edouard Horemans, Belgian, who a few months ago won the 18.2 title from Schaefer, only to lose it again 30 days later. Schaefer, however, has announced he will probably challenge the winner.

It was announced after tonight's match that Schaefer and Hoppe will play a 300-point exhibition match at 18.1 billiards in Boston, March 16-19.

TAFTVILLE CRESCENTS HAVE NO TROUBLE WITH JEWETT

The Taftville Crescents experienced little difficulty in taking the measure of the Jewett City Town team Wednesday evening at Jewett City beating the Towners 39 to 25, although the Jewett City team showed flashes of speed at times. Taftville took the lead early in the game and held it throughout but was hard pressed in the early stages.

Coady, Gauthier and E. Murphy amassed all but five points of the game, while Eccleston and Jimmy Murphy played a nice defensive game that held Jewett City in check. Benjamin and Barry were the high scorers for Taftville. The summary:

MUNDEN RIDES THREE WINNERS AT TIJUANA

NEW YORK, Feb. 24—(AP)—A triple triumph by Jockey Munden featured today's racing at Tijuana the Canadian boy riding Broncho Girl, Our Boy and Reap to first place in the third, fourth, and sixth races, respectively. He also brought Krekzunas into second place in the first race and Baggage King into third place in the fifth.

Longpoint, an outsider in the fourth race at New Orleans, furnished the surprise of the day's racink, jumping to the front at the start and opening up a lead of three lengths on some of the best sprinters in the meet. He tired in hte stretch, however, and by a great spurt Georgia Rose won the six furlong event in 1:12 4-5, with Longpoint a length behind.

Admiral Cary T. Grayson's Florence Nightingale scored an easy victory in the Punta Gorda, feature at the Miami track. The daughter of Man O'War finished three lengths in front of Mr. Pepp, with Marconi third.

SPORT WORLD BRIEFS

Francis Ouimet was the first amateur to win the U. S. open gold championship.

San Diego, Calif., has a Junior Tennis League with a membership of more than 300 boys and girls.

The distance of the Bermuda yacht race, which is to start from New London, Conn., June 20, is 660 nautical miles.

When he won the heavyweight championship from Corbett in 1897 Bob Fitzsimons was only a few pounds over the heavyweight limit.

Seventeen countries, among them the United States and Canada, are included in the membership of the International Skating Union.

The twenty-fourth annual North and South championship golf tournament for women is to be held at Pinehurst, N. C., March 26-30.

The largest pair of boxing gloves that ever figured in a heavyweight battle were those worn by Jess Willard and Luis Firpo when they met in 1923.

This year's relay carnival at the University of Illinois is expected to bring together approximately 600 athletes from eastern and mid-western colleges.

Harry Wills, who for several years has been regarded as the logical opponent for Jack Dempsey in a championship match, once was knocked out by Sam Langford.

Davey Brown, who is a club professional at one of the well-known summer resorts in the White Mountains, was the holder of the British professional golf championship 40 years ago.

The 1926 championship tournament of the American Bowling Congress soon to be held at Toledo is expected to set a new high record in the tournament last year had a record of 2,200 teams, and in the 1924 tournament at Chicago a total of 2,132 teams competed.

CONSIDERED THE WAGE REQUESTS OF TRAINMEN

NEW YORK, Feb. 24—(AP)—Officials of about 50 eastern railroads held a special meeting in the Grand Central terminal today to consider the requests of conductors and trainment for increased wages. After the meeting adjourned, it was announced on behalf of the officials that no definite action was taken except the adoption of a decision that the individual railroads would reply to their respective employes in writing not later than March 2.

The trainmen and conductors had requested individual answers from the railroads not later than March 2. They asked increases ranging from $1 to $1.64 day for brakemen, flagmen, baggage men, switchmen, and assistant conductors and ticket collectors. The territory represented by the employes is east of Chicago and north of the Potomac river and includes virtually all of the eastern railroads.

Among the lines represented at today's meeting were the Pennsylvania, New York Central, Erie, Baltimore and Ohio, Boston and Maine, Dealware, Lackawanna and Western, Lehigh Valley, New York, New Haven and Hartford, and the Nickel Plate lines. Approximately $5,000 employes are represented in the requests for increases.

Blood Volunteers.

One thousand volunteers, who can be called upon to give their blood in transfusion cases, are being enrolled by the London Transfusion Service, a little known branch of Red Cross work. This service to London hospitals was organized because doctors found it so difficult to obtain blood of the right type when a transfusion was necessary to save a patient's life. The blood of each human being belongs to one of four chemical types and an individual who is willing to transfer some of his blood can be used only if he has blood like that of the patient.

To date the London transfusion corps has saved 257 cases, but calls from hospitals have become so numerous that a few hundred volunteer reserves are no longer enough. The organization states that calls come in at all hours of the day and night. Within an hour of the request the service has a volunteer of the proper type at the hospital.

"GERRY" SMITH MAY DEFEND POLO CUP AGAINST ENGLAND

The Brooklyn, N. Y., Eagle says [illegible]erry") Smith is likely for No. 1 on the American Pony Polo team, one of the five sons [illegible] Edward J. Smith [illegible]agh) of Park Slope, Brooklyn, who has relatives in Norwich. He is a brother of Edward J. Smith, who starred on the football team at Georgetown university, also of Herbert J. Smith, a Brown university junior, who has made some good records as a swimmer.

The Eagle says: "With the American polo world agog over the prospects of a match with England for the coveted International cup, the eyes of Metropolitan indoor polo enthusiasts are turning in the direction of Brooklyn, toward Gerard S. Smith, the nationally known star of the Brooklyn Riding and Driving club. "Gerry" has been favorably mentioned for the No. 1 position on the team which will strive to keep the trophy in this country.

"Enthusiasm for the international match was aroused when it was announced recently that an English team, now playing in Florida, had challenged for the cup. The match will most likely be played during the final week of the national championship tournament, which will get under way in another month. The English team challenging now is composed of Earl Hopping, Col. T. P. Melville, Capt. R. Smart and Maj. H. Lyons.

"Gerry" Smith, the local candidate, will probably have to outplay W. Averill Harrison, of Manhattan, during the weeks of try-outs, in order to be certain of No. 1 berth on the representative American team. Harrison, a crack player and owner of one of the finest stables of polo ponies in the country, is regarded by many as the logical man for the position. Smith's ability is of such an outstanding character and his seven years of polo playing so replete with remarkable feats, that it will be impossible to drop him from consideration.

"'Gerry', a seven goal man, bears the highest rating a Brooklyn man ever carried—and this at the age of 22. Seven years ago, at the age of 15, the youthful boy polo star learned the rudiments of the game at the Thousand Islands Country club. During those days, Smith was tutored in the art of polo by John Devine, of New York, a close family friend."

Summing up Smith's record, the Eagle calls him one of the most brilliant polo players this country has ever seen. He does not win his laurels through luck. He knows the game from start to finish and is an ace on the offensive.

"Smith and Harriman will be the outstanding candidates for No. 1 position on the American international cup team. Wilfred Guest, of the Yale championship team, will be the aspirant for No. 2 position. A. W. Kinney has been mentioned as back. H. B. Blackwell and Robert A. Grannis will also be in the tryout competition."

PLENTY OF ACTION IN KAPLAN-PETROLLE BOUT

HARTFORD, Feb. 24 — Wilbur Wood, boxing expert of the New York Sun, sees the Billy Petrolle-Kaplan bout to be held at the Hartford state armory next Monday night as a bout promising to brim over with real action.

Hartford and Connecticut fans in general are going to see a thrilling fight, says Wood in discussing Petrolle who made a distinct impression last Friday night when, in his New York debut at the New Madison Square Garden, he twice floored Sammy Vogel.

The Kaplan-Petrolle clash headlines a card which promises to be the best offered Nutmeg State lovers of the manly art in many a month.

The semi-final finds "Chick" Suggs, great New Bedford bantam, against Jackie Snyder of Brooklyn.

Suggs is a native of New London though he now hails from New Bedford whence have come such great ringsters as Al Shubert and Frankie Britt.

He has amassed one of the greatest ring records ever credited to any boxer having won more than fifty consecutive victories before finally losing to Babe Herman who had a weight advantage of seven pounds.

Snyder is an aggressive, hustling fighter with a spund punch which he proved this Monday night by decisively defeating Lew Hurley in the semi-finals at the Broadway A. C. in New York City.

There are two preliminaries on the card.

In the first Harry Goldstein of Boston, a flyweight who is on his way to national honors, will clash with Ruby Bradley, dusky Holyoke battler, in a bout in which the New England flyweight title will be at stake.

The other preliminary finds the rugged and aggressive Georgie Day of New Haven facing Eddie Lord, formerly of Waterbury and now of Meriden, who is in the Kaplan stable.

Lord lacks the experience of the New Havense, but he is an able boxer and owns a punch that carries a message.

This show will be staged by the newly-formed Connecticut A. C., of which George Mulligan, often called the Tex Rickard of New England, is the matchmaker.

It promises to draw a great throng to the big Hartford armory and seats will be provided for 12,000.

The bouts will be in a colorful setting as arrangements have been made to have the decorations now up for the automobile show left in position for the boxing show.

WORLD'S RECORD FOR CONSECUTIVE BULLSEYES

NEWTON, Mass., Feb. 24—(AP)—A new world's record of 3,000 consecutive bulls eyes was made here today by W. Samuel Moore, 17, captain of the Newton high school rifle team, firing from prone position on a 50-foot range in the cellar of his home, with a 23 calibre rifle. Moore kept up his perfect shots from 8 o'clock this morning until five this afternoon with brief rests between each 500 shots and time out for lunch.

It was the second world's record made by the youth, who shot 1500 bulls eyes last April. In the summer, Clifford Poole of Crestline, Ohio, hung up a 1785 score. Moore bettered that a month ago, but he questioned one of the shots and disagreed with an official finding of 3,000 consecutive bulls eyes. Today he made it a sure thing.

DANIELSON TO PLAY SO. MANCHESTER TONIGHT

At Danielson tonight the Danielson town team will try its prowess against the South Manchester team. In view of the fact that Danielson lost to the Crescents at Taftville Tuesday night, Danielson will be scratching gravel to bring South Manchester into camp. South Manchester is a very fast team and is credited with two victories over the Jewett City Pros on Jewett City's own court this season. That will indicate to every basketball fan that South Manchester is mighty good.

WESTERLY

DELAYED ALARM OF FIRE RESULTS IN DAMAGE AND LOSS

(Special to The Bulletin.)

WESTERLY, Feb. 24.—Due to the delayed sounding of the fire alarm on Wednesday by the occupants of the house, 33 Summer street, when an oil stove is reported to have been overturned resulting in an explosion about 10 o'clock, so the Westerly fire department was not notified until too late, several thousand dollars damage was done the three-story wooden dwelling house by fire, smoke and water. The two-family house is owned by Mrs. Mary Sawyer, with goods on the top floor. In the first floor apartment resides the family of Will F. Bromley and on the second floor Mr. and Mrs. George Stenbert. The fire had its origin in the bedroom on the north side of the fourth floor, occupied by Mrs. Kitta Greene, who boards with the Bromley family. An unsuccessful attempt was made by Mrs. Bromley to stop the blaze with the use of blankets. Failing in this, she telephoned Westerly central and the fire alarm was sounded for Box 23, Granite street and Chester avenue.

When the firemen arrived, with the three pieces of apparatus the booster chemical hose was insufficient to cope with the blaze which had gotten into the side wall partitions and between the floors. Hose was attached to the street hydrants and quantities of water were poured into the house. At one time the blaze burst out of the bay window on the north side of the house and licked up the outside of the building. Although the flames entered the side walls, the cutting of holes in both the walls and floors where hydrant streams were turned in, and prevented it from breaking out on the roof, put out the blaze. The rooms on the north side of the house together with their contents suffered the greatest damage. Some of the furnishings were removed to neighboring houses.

The first warning Mrs. Stenbert had that the house was afire was when a burst of flame came up from one corner of the floor in the bedroom almost under where she stood. A front room on her floor with valuable furniture was almost undamaged when the fire had been extinguished, when other rooms on the north side of the house suffered sad havoc.

Hydrant streams across Granite street prevented traffic in the street while the firemen were at work. The recall on the fire bell on Union street was not sounded until five minutes before noon.

The trial of the $10,000 damage case in the Washington county superior court, Westerly session, continued on Wednesday before Judge Arthu P. Sumner and a jury, of which Grafton I. Kenyon, of Wakefield, R. I., is foreman. The suit was brought by Abbie J. Morrow of South Kingston, R. I., against Charles T. Clarke of New York city and resulted from an automobile accident near Saundertown, R. I., on the Boston Post road on the evening of October 7, 1925, when her husband, George Morrow, age 21, a resident of Gould, R. I., died from injuries sustained as he was repairing a flat tire to an automobile in which he was a passenger with three others. Testimony was given Wednesday morning with Louis Dimond, driver of the auto which was struck; Miss Mary J. Brayman of Wickford, R. I., and Miss Florence May Lovejoy, both occupants of the car, George Morrow, sr., of Providence, father of George, who was killed and Mrs. Abby June Morrow, his widow, testified before adjournment at 1 o'clock.

Recorded in the office of the Westerly town clerk appear the following conveyances:

Feb. 23: Gustave F. Seller and wife, Lottie E. Seller, to Gilbert Hicks nad wife, Agatha H. Hicks, land with buildings and improvements on the south side of Greenman avenue.

To South County Public Service company, by its general manager, William L. Clarke, by Walter L. Frazier and wife, Abbie D. Frazier, right to construct and maintain electric power transmission lines across property north of Hopkinton road and east of Smith Granite company lands in Westerly.

Funeral services for Julia Murray, wife of Martin O'Toole, who died in Somerville, Mass., Monday, were held there with a high mass of requiem at 9 o'clock Wednesday morning. The body was brought to Westerly on the afternoon express arriving at 1.28 o'clock. An automobile cortege met the train and proceeded to St. Michael's (new) cemetery, Pawcatuck, where the committal prayers were read by Rev. J. F. Vincent, pastor the Immaculate Conception church.

James E. Smith of Providence, agent for the Rhode Island Society for the Prevention of Cruelty to Animals was in Westerly Tuesday, to investigate the cruel treatment by unknown parties of two cows, owned by A. E. Ralston of Beach street. After the cows had been milked Monday morning, Mr. Ralston, returning to the barn found that someone had attacked the cows with a pitchfork, the result being a considerable loss of blood. Chief of Police Thomas E. Brown was notified and in turn called in Veterinarian Thomas E. Robinson, Westerly Milk Inspector, and Cruelty to Animal Officer Smith of Providence. Tuesday night one of the cows died, but the other it is thought will live.

Westerly Scottish Rite Masons attended Wednesday evening at Freemason's hall, Providence, a meeting of Rhode Island Chapter Rose Croix, William L. Sharpe, Most Wise Master. After the meeting ballots were taken on applicantns for the thirty-second degree, Scottish Rites.

Mr. Prentiss was the son of the late William R. and Frances M. Avery Prentiss. He was born in Preston City, Conn., and was a member of Pawcatuck lodge, No. 90, F. and A. M., Palmer Chapter, No. 28, R. A. M., Narragansett Commandery, No 27, Knights Templar, all of Westerly, and Palestine Temple, A. A. O. N. M. S., of Providence.

Granite City camp, No. 9159, Modern Woodmen of America, held a meeting in their rooms, Stillman hall, Tuesday evening when one member was initiated and two new applications for membership were received. Plans were made for a class adoption of candidates on March 9. Following the business session an exciting carpet bowling match was played between the old men and young men, the former proving that experience is superior to pep and winning 22 to 19. A return match will be played after the next regular meeting.

The first in the series of Lenten sermons at St. Michael's church was delivered Wednesday night by Very Reverend William N. Noon, O. P., president of Providence college. The services began at 7.30 with recitation of the Rosary followed by sermon and benediction of the Most Blessed Sacrament. Friday afternoon there will be Stations of the Cross for the children and Friday evening Stations of the Cross and benediction for adults. Sunday evening exercises include question box answers, Rosary and benediction.

Freshen Up! Nicest Laxative, "Cascarets" 10c

Don't stay headachy, bilious, constipated, sick! Take one or two "Cascarets" any time to mildly stimulate your liver and start your bowels. Then you will feel fine, your head becomes clear, stomach sweet, tongue pink and skin rosy.

Nothing else cleans, sweetens, and regulates the entire system like pleasant, harmless candy-like "Cascarets." They never gripe, overact, or sicken. Directions for men, women, children on each box—drugstores.

Women Tell

Others how this new hygienic pad discards easily as tissue — no laundry

BECAUSE one woman so advises others, and because doctors so urge, most women are deserting the old-time "sanitary pad" for a new and better way.

Eight in 10 better-class women now use "KOTEX."

Discards as easily as a piece of tissue. No laundry. No embarrassment.

Five times as absorbent as ordinary cotton pads.

Deodorizes, thus ending ALL danger of offending.

Obtainable at all drug and department stores simply by saying "KOTEX." You ask for it without hesitancy.

Package of 12 costs only a few cents. Proves old ways a needless risk. In fairness to yourself, try it

OVER 70 YEARS OF SUCCESS FOR COLDS AND COUGHS

DEDUCTIONS ALLOWED IN COMPUTING INCOME TAX

Norwich people in filling out their income tax blanks this year will find a number of changes in computing the tax. Under deductions allowed individuals Section 214 of the income tax law says:

Sec. 214 (a) In computing net income there shall be allowed as deductions:

(1) All the ordinary and necessary expenses paid or incurred during the taxable year in carrying on any trade or business, including a reasonable allowance for salaries or other compensation for personal services actually rendered; traveling expenses (including the entire amount expended for meals and lodging) while away from home in the pursuit of a trade or business, and rentals or other payments required to be made as a condition to the continued use or possession, for purposes of the trade or business, of property to which the taxpayer has not taken or is not taking title or in which he has no equity;

(2) All interest paid or accrued within the taxable year on indebtedness, except on indebtedness incurred or continued to purchase or carry obligations or securities (other than obligations of the United States issued after September 24, 1917, and originally subscribed for by the taxpayer) the interest upon which is wholly exempt from taxation under this title;

(3) Taxes paid or accrued within the taxable year except (A) income, war-profits, and excess-profits taxes imposed by the authority of the United States, (B) so much of the income, war-profits and excess-profits taxes imposed by the authority of any foreign country or possession of the United States, as is allowed as a credit under Section 222, (C) taxes assessed against local benefits of a kind tending to increase the value of the property assessed, and (D) taxes imposed upon the taxpayer upon his interest as shareholder of a corporation, which are paid by the corporation without reimbursement from the taxpayer. For the purpose of this paragraph estate, inheritance, legacy and succession taxes accrue on the due date thereof except as otherwise provided by the law of the jurisdiction imposing such taxes;

(4) Losses sustained during the taxable year and not compensated for by insurance or otherwise, if incurred in any transaction entered into for profit, though not connected with the trade or business; but in the case of a non-resident alien individual only if the profit, if such transaction had resulted in a profit, would be taxable under this title. No deduction shall be allowed under this paragraph for any loss claimed to have been sustained in any sale or other disposition of shares of stock or securities where it appears that within thirty days before or after the date of such sale or other disposition the taxpayer has acquired (otherwise than by bequest or inheritance) or has entered into a contract or option to acquire substantially identical property, and the property so acquired is held by the taxpayer for any period after such sale or other disposition. If such acquisition or the contract or option to acquire is to the extent of part only of substantially identical property, then only a proportionate part of the loss shall be disallowed;

(5) Losses sustained during the taxable year of property not connected with the trade or business (but in the case of a non-serident alien individual only property within the United States) if arising from fires, storms, shipwreck, or other casualty, or from theft, and if not compensated for by insurance or otherwise. The basis for determining the amount of the deduction under this paragraph, or paragraph (4) or (5), shall be the same as is provided in section 204 for determining the gain or loss from the sale or other disposition of property;

7) Debts ascertained to be worthless and charged off within the taxable year (or, in the discretion of the commissioner, a reasonable addition to a reserve for bad debts); and when satisfied that a debt is recoverable only in part, the commissioner may allow such debt to be charged off in part;

(8) A reasonable allowance for the exhaustion, wear and tear of property used in the trade or business, including a reasonable allowance for absolescence. In the case of improved real estate held by one person for life with remainder to another person, the deduction provided for in this paragraph shall be equitably apportioned between the life tenant and the remainderman under rules and regulations prescribed by the commissioner, with the approval of the secretary;

(9) In the case of mines, oil and gas wells, other natural deposits, and timber, a reasonable allowance for depletion and for depreciation of improvements, according to the peculiar conditions in each case; such reasonable allowance in all cases to be made under rules and regulations to be prescribed by the commissioner, with the approval of the secretary. In the case of leases the deduction allowed by this paragraph shall be equitably apportioned between the lessor and lessee;

(10) Contributions or gifts made within the taxable year to or for the state, territory, or any political subdivision thereof, or the District of Columbia, for exclusively public purposes; (B) any corporation, or trust, or community chest, fund, or foundation, organized and operated exclusively for religious, charitable, scientific, literary, or educational purposes, or for the prevention of cruelty to children or animals, no part of the net earnings of which inures to the benefit of any private shareholder or individual; (C) the special fund for vocational rehabilitation authorized by section 7 of the Vocational Rehagilitation Act; (D) posts or organizations of war veterans, or auxiliary units or societies of any such posts or organizations, if such posts, organizations, units, or societies are organized in the United States or any of its possessions, and if no part of their net earnings inures to the benefit of any private shareholder or individual; or (E) a fraternal society, order, or association, operating under the lodge system, but only if such contributions or gifts are to be used exclusively for religious, charitable, scientific, literary, or educational purposes, or for the prevention of cruelty to children or animals; to an amount which in all the ceed 15 per centum of the taxpayer's ceel 15 per centum of the taxpayer's net income as computed without the benefit of this paragraph, except that if in the taxable year and in each of the ten preceding taxable years the amount in all the above cases combined exceeds 90 per centum of the taxpayer's net income for each such year, as computed without the benefit of this paragraph, then to the full amount of such contributions, and gifts made within the taxable year. In case of a non-resident alien individual this deduction shall be allowed only as to contributions or gifts made to domestic corporations, or to community chests, funds or foundations, created in the United States, or to such vocational rehabilitation fund. Such contributions or gifts shall be allowable as deductions only if verified under rules and regulations prescribed by the commissioner, with the approval of the secretary.

(24) (11) In the case of casual sale or other casual disposition of real property, a reasonable (addition to a reserve) allowance for future expense liabilities, incurred under the provisions of the contract under which such sale or other disposition was made, under such regulations as the commissioner, with the approval of the secretary, may prescribe, including the giving of a bond, with such sureties and in such sum not less than the estimated tax liability computed without the benefit of this paragraph as the commissioner may require, conditioned upon the payment (notwithstanding any statute of limitations) of the tax computed without the benefit of this paragraph, in respect of any amounts, allowed as a deduction under this paragraph and not actually expended in carrying out the provisions of such contract.

(b) In this case of a non-resident alien individual, the deductions allowed in subdivision (a), except those allowed in paragraph (5), (6), and (10), shall be allowed only if and to the extent that they are connected with income from sources within the United States; and for the proper apportionment and allocation of the deductions with respect to sources of income within and without the United States shall be determined as provided in section 217 under rules and regulations prescribed by the commissioner with the approval of the secretary. In the case of a citizen entitled to the benefits of section 262 the deductions shall be the same and shall be determined in the same manner as in the case of a non-resident alien individual.

SOUTH KILLINGLY

Warren Youngblood of Danielson spent Monday at P. H. Coffey's.

Mr. and Mrs. Arthur Terwilliger's little son, Maurice, has the measles.

William and Francis Ducat, of Providence visited at Arthur Tetreault's Saturday.

Ruth Coffey was unable to attend school last week on account of an attack of grip.

A. A. Jacques captured another fox one day last week.

Raymond Tilton and family were in Danielson Monday.

Harry Young and family, of Danielson, spent Sunday afternoon with Mr. and Mrs. P. H. Coffey.

Gertrude Hall of Lynn, Mass., is spending a week at The Oaks.

S. A. Douglas entertained Herbert Lyman, of Danielson, Sunday.

The lighting plant at the church has been recharged and services will be resumed soon.

Nearly every house has been visited by grip; in most cases every member of the household has had it. All are recovering now and it is hoped a better state of health will soon prevail.

Speech Energy.

The energy of a million persons all talking at once would not boil a cup of tea in an hour. It would not generate enough energy to carry home a pound of butter or peel an orange. These statements can be made as a result of investigations carried on by R. L. Jones of the Smithsonian Institution.

Speech energy of the voice is only 126 ergs a second—an almost infinitesimally small amount of power.

Mr. Jones has found that the consonant letters take the least amount of energy to produce. The pitch of frequency of the consonants is much higher than that of the vowels, however.

He has also found that the sounds of the voice which are most difficult to hear are "th," "f," "s," and "v."

The sounds "z" and "I" also are difficult.

The most sensitive instruments were used in the experiments, which have covered a period of many years. The four most difficult letters to hear are responsible for more than one-half of the mistakes in understanding resulting from conversation, Mr. Jones believes.

The human ear elicits unbounded praise from Mr. Jones, who says: "The ordinary ear is an exquisitely developed organ. It can perceive sound waves ranging in pressure from .001 dyne to more than 1,000 dyne, and in frequency of about 20 cycles to more than 20,000 cycles, a range of about 10 octaves."

Human speech, however, occupies less than six octaves of this range, he said.

The Amazon river, South America, is about 3,300 miles long.

NORWICH R. F. D. CARRIER BUMPED R. R. SAFETY GATES AT NEW LONDON

(Special to The Bulletin.)

NEW LONDON, Feb. 24.—The automobile that crashed against the safety gates at the crossing of the New York, New Haven & Hartford railroad, foot of John street, last night and then is alleged to have been driven away, was identified today as that owned by Robert Larsen, R. F. D. Norwich. Patrolman William Graham observed the machine passing through Main street this forenoon and caused Larsen to go to the railroad office and make a report of the accident. The officials of the railroad did not desire Larsen prosecuted on a charge of evasion of responsibility.

MERE SKELETON CAR LEFT TO A PROVIDENCE DRIVER

(Special to The Bulletin.)

NEW LONDON, Feb. 24.—Owning an automobile yesterday, and being possessed of only a part of the machine today, is the predicament in which The Crane company, a Providence concern found itself, for last night the machine was almost entirely stripped of its equipment by thieves.

The car, a Ford coupe, was in charge of Earl Brown, who is temporarily staying at the Y. M. C. A., corner of Church and Meridian streets. Last night about 9 o'clock Brown operated the machine to a point on Colt street, where it was parked until after midnight. When Brown returned to where he left the automobile he discovered that it had been stolen. The police were notified and so were the state police authorities at Groton and Centerbrook as well as the police of Norwich, Hartford and Westerly. No trace of the car was obtained until this morning when Frank Shea, caretaker at St. Mary's cemetery, notified the police that a Ford machine had been abandoned in the cemetery. Sergeants John Cavanaugh and Nelson Smith went to the burial place and found the machine in one of the most remote corners of the place, with the four tires, both headlights, lens, bulbs, coil and battery removed from the car. Brown was notified of the recovery of the automobile and had it taken to a service station where the parts stolen will be replaced.

One of the most annoying and general complaints children suffer from is worms. You know the signs—constipation, deranged stomach, offensive breath, eyes heavy and dull, coated tongue, grinding of the teeth. Don't let the child suffer. Promptly give him

Tony Labinsky, a New Yorker, is held at the county jail here for deserting his wife and six small children in New York. He was given a hearing as a fugitive from justice today in the city court and a bond of $500 was fixed, so that he would be here when officers come to take him back to the metropolis. He gave no reason for leaving the wife and half a dozen little children to look out for themselves.

Frank Spencer was charged with intoxication and said he was guilty. Spencer is paralyzed, but he managed to get his hand to his mouth and the hand held booze that put him out of business. Spencer drew a fine of $5, which took him to jail where he can be treated for his weakened condition. He has been a charge at the Learned mission, but leaves there and is not heard from for periods of a long time. Recently he has been away from town, he says in Providence.

The city has of late had presented to it a claim for damages for injuries sustained by persons falling on icy sidewalks, the first of such cases in a long time. Today the police received another report of a person injured by falling on State street. In view of the fact that the walks were necessarily in an icy condition last week the city escaped damage suits pretty well. That may have been the result of a liberal distribution of sand on the walks throughout the city.

John Griffin, 46 Gorton street, reported to the police this morning that his wife sustained bruises about the body last night as a result of stumbling and falling over a defective hatchway in front of the entrance to the store of Peter Vong, 48 State street. The hatchway has been in a dangerous condition many weeks and on numerous occasions the police have notified the highway department of the danger spot.

The police were informed late last night that the upper floor of the Saltonstal school house, corner of Hempstead and Truman streets, was illuminated. Officers were sent to the school house, but they were unable to gain entrance to the place, all the doors being locked. The lights were burning and were left by the last person to leave the building.

It was ascertained today that the driver of the automobile that ran down and injured Mrs. Helen Ryan, Maple avenue, last evening on Broad street, corner of Georgianna street, was Clyde Malone, colored, of 97 Truman street. Malone made a report of the accident at the police station. The condition of Mrs. Ryan was reported this afternoon as being comfortable and she will probably suffer no serious effects from the accident.

The funeral of Miss Mary E. Hogan, who was run down and fatally injured last Saturday night in front of her residence by an unidentified automobile, was held this morning at 9 o'clock at St. Mary's Star of the Sea church and was attended by a large assemblage of mourners. A mass of requiem was celebrated by Rev. Raymond O'Callahan. The bearers were James R. May, Jerome J. Collins, David Roesan and John M. Callahan. Burial was in St. Mary's cemetery.

All the ice dealers in New London and vicinity have sufficient ice harvested to carry them through the summer, they believe. The Perry company was the last to fill its houses and concluded the work last week. The New London Ice company, the storage houses of which are smaller than those of the Perry company, was the first to cut and the first to finish harvesting. The price of ice should be reasonable in New London during the coming summer.

Brainard Masonic lodge worked the short form last evening. Next week the full form will be worked.

The city council is about to tackle the Bank street matter in a way that should bring agitation to a climax, and in the way that it was supposed at the start of the proposal to establish a building line on the west side of the street would eventually crystallize.

There is a proposition that the Poles carrying the wires of the trolley company and the light and telegraph and telephone poles be removed from the street, another expense of no small proportions.

The walks are all of cement and the removal of which will necessitate the breaking up of the outer section of the walks. This will leave an irregular width in sections and leave a condition which was sought to be removed by the establishment of the building line. The planning board of the city must first pass upon the proposal and then refer the matter to the council for decision. The director of law has the matter under advisement and he will meet with both the planning board and the members of the council before any action is taken or any report is prepared by the board for the council.

A new phase was given to the discussion as to the sewer agitation that has been going on in the city council today when it was announced that the health authorities of Connecticut college had never had any complaint as to conditions and that these authorities had never had intimation that there was any possible condition that was menacing to health, or was so regarded, until the matter was brought out in the city council. The health board is composed of the doctors at the college, the members of the faculty and heads of departments and from them complaint would have come had conditions been anything but satisfactory in the matter of taking care of sewers. The topography of the college grounds is such, the incorporation owning land to the river front which slopes rapidly from the college buildings that a basin or monster cesspool of any desired size could be established there which would hold any sewage that might be deposited.

It is understood that the city is even more anxious than are the property owners to have a system of sewers put in about the college, but that action has been deferred because of the expense that such a course would involve as the state insists upon a filtration system that will avoid any possible contamination of the waters of the Thames river into which the sewage would be carried.

Mrs. Robert Anderson, and infant son, of Golden street; Mrs. Viola Caldwell, 15 Carter street; Mrs. Rose Forader, 159 North Bank street, and Herbert Talbott, 294 Main street, patients at Lawrence hospital, were dismissed today.

Mrs. Helen F. Lena has sold her property at Oswegatchie, Waterford, to Mrs. Louis K. Reilly.

Miss Helen Henderson, New York, has concluded a brief visit with Mrs. Oscar Long.

The condition of Mrs. George D. Carver, 28 Rogers street, who was recently operated upon at Lawrence hospital is reported today as gradually improving.

Miss Jane Ackerman, has returned having spent several days in New York.

Mrs. Conway Randall and daughter have concluded a visit with Mrs. Randall's parents, Mr. and Mrs. Charles W. Elliott, and have returned to Staten Island, N. Y.

Announcement is made by Mrs. Walter E. Middleton, Highland apartments, Granite street, of the engagement of her daughter, Miss Ruth Evelyn Middleton, to Ensign Clarence H. Peterson, of Frankfort, Mich. Ensign Peterson is attached to local section base No. 4, United States coast guard academy, state pier.

The business rights, stock, fixtures and good will of the Groton house, Groton, has been sold by Mrs. Louise Reilly to Harry Deckter, New London. Mrs. Reilly will move to Oswegatchie.

Carl Orr, 51, an inmate at the state hospital, Howard, R. I., escaped from the institution, and today the Howard authorities requested the New London police to be on the lookout for Orr, for it was understood that he was at the Y. M. C. A. in this city. Orr's sister received a letter from him this forenoon and it stated that he was at the local place. An officer visited the Y. M. C. A., but there was no one registered there by the name of the man sought. Orr is about five feet seven inches in height, weighs 140 pounds and has black hair and moustache.

STOPPING TO GET GAS SUPPLY TWO BOOTLEGGERS NABBED

(Special to The Bulletin.)

NEW LONDON, Feb. 24—Stopping to make a purchase was exceedingly costly for two bootleggers today for while they spent the money, they were arrested on two charges of violation of the Prohibition law and tonight they received severe discipline in the Waterford town court when presented on charges of possession and transportins. The accused, Harry Cantor, Jersey City, N. J., and Joseph Howard, New York, pleaded guilty and were fined $200 and costs on each count, making the total amount that Cantor and Howard paid close to $940 besides losing their cargo of 180 gallons of alcohol, which was valued at $1500.

Cantor and Howard were driving to a point east of New London about 2.30 o'clock, the former having 100 gallons of alcohol in his car and Howard's car conveying 80 gallons. When the automobiles reached Waterford Cantor and Howard decided to stop at the Red Top gasoline station, Station 7, to make a purchase. As the two cars were parked in front of the filling station and Howard and Cantor inside the place, Sergeant Bushey, of the Hartford state police, en route from Hartford to New London, came along. Suspecting that the machines contained liquor, Bushey stopped and inspected the cars. Bushey quickly recognized the load as being alcohol. Cantor and Howard were placed under arrest and the Groton Barracks notified. Sergeant Clifford Gorras had two officers dispatched to Waterford to take charge of the prisoners. When Cantor and Howard were convicted they were supplied with ample funds with which to pay their fines and costs. Judge Dimmock, after imposing the penalty, ordered the alcohol destroyed.

Former Crown Prince Carol of Rumania left Milan, Italy for Paris. He was accompanied by members of the Rumanian court who recently arrived in Milan.

ANNOUNCEMENTS

Broadway Theatre

The long-awaited Keith vaudeville and picture program opens at the Broadway theatre today.

There are five acts on the program each of which is certain to score a big individual. They will appear in the following order:

Musical Rowellys in a musical comedy treat.

Edna Northlane and Jack Ward in "Scrambled Legs," in an eccentric comedy, singing and dancing offering.

Charles and Lilly Gerard, in Songs and Pianologue, featuring the world's greatest and only one arm concert pianist on the stage today. Solos include Prelude in C Sharp minor and La Confesion.

Frazer and McCabe are very exceptional comedians.

Groh and Adonis, "The Piano Hounds" offer class and laughs which has to do with something extraordinary.

Sharp contrasts between wealth and poverty, a pleasing romance and the half humorous, half sentimental adventures of a young millionaire hero are set forth in "Wandering Footsteps", a heart drama of absorbing interest which will be shown on the screen of the Broadway theatre starting today. During a drunken spree, the rich young rounder foregathers with old Timothy Payne, a former gentleman, and adopts him as his father. Numerous complications ensue including the temporary separation of hero and sweetheart, but all comes right in the end.

Bryant Washburn, Estelle Taylor and Alice B. Francis appear in the leading roles.

The Old District School

The two-act comedy "The Old District School" to be given by the employes of Norwich, Conn., telephone exchange, Tuesday evening, March 2nd., at 8 p. m., in the Strand theatre, is made up of entirely local talent and telephone employes, it will be sure to please and entertain everybody. Palace Theater

Five acts of Paramount vaudeville, and on the screen a comedy melodrama on the sidewalks of old New York, "Hogan's Alley," with Monte Blue, Patsy Ruth Miller and four former world champions of the prize ring, James J. Jeffries, Tommy Ryan, Ad Wolgast and Ted (Kid) Lewis. A special feature is offered in the vaudeville show with the 5 Latin Quarter Entertainers with eight people in a De-Luxe Revue of Music song and dance revue with special costumes and scenery. Mr. Frank and his famous $15,000 Baby Grand Cello, Greta Hunt, the miniature nightingale and Bobby Butterworth one of the cleverest dancers on the stage are featured in this act. Frank's Latin Quarter Entertainers are kings of harmonious rhythm and is on the same par with the other leading jazz bands that have played at the Palace. There is plenty of comedy on the bill today with two immigrants who offer a day in Italy. Then comes Carr and Brary who offer a dance selection. The old fiddlers will hold the stage tonight, many new entries having been received. Hogan's Alley outside of its prize ring feature has also a special fine cast of leading picture actors. Ben Turpin returns to the screen, and is supported by Willard Louis who plays the part of Michael Ryan, Louise Fazenda as Dolly, a fast stepping Broadway star and Heinie Conklin, who keeps the fun pot boiling as Ben Turpin's friend. With Monte Blue and Patsy Ruth Miller in the leading roles, Hogan's Alley is a picture that is going to appeal to the children and grown-ups. Many thrilling scenes are shown in this picture such as the prize fight, police raid, and airplane chase, the train wreck and many other thrilling features. Saturday afternoon there will be another kiddies Charleston.

Coming to the Palace

On Sunday Richard Dix, popular young Paramount star will be seen in Womanhandled. Gloria Swanson said in "Manhandled" "Men won't let us alone!" and Richard Dix says in "Womanhandled" "Women won't let us let them alone!" The same slap-sticky comedy that made "Manhandled" is all present in even more generous quantities in this sequel to Manhandled. With its rapid fire comedy, romance and rousing action, it makes it a clean wholesome story and will appeal to the whole family. Vaudeville comes back to the Palace next week for a full week.

ANNOUNCEMENTS

Car of Coal Arrived in Norwich

The Shetucket Coal & Lumber Co., received Wednesday the first car of anthracite coal to reach Norwich since the settlement of the strike.

As soon as news of settlement was received, Mr. Jacob R. Slosberg the proprietor, who is ever on the alert in the interest of his patrons, took train for the coal fields and was successful in securing shipment on the first day of operation.

He also secured guarantee of steady supply which will rapidly increase as production becomes normal.

The public may be assured that Mr. Slosberg and the entire organization of the Shetucket Coal and Lumber Co. will do their utmost to relieve the shortage and supply the needs of those who place their orders for coal. ANNO

At the Breed

The Everlasting Whisper, the screen adaptation of Jackson Gregory's novel, in which Tom Mix is starred, and which opens a three day run at the Breed theater today is one of the finest stories in which the noted William Fox western star has ever appeared. Directed by J. G. Blystone, the picture is based upon the lure of the rugged northwest, involving action as thrilling as the romance of the story is beautiful.

Gregory's story takes its name from the "everlasting whisper" of the breeze through the pine tree of the northwest and it is the lure of this incessant whispering that brings mark King to this rugged land. He encounters Gloria Gaynor, a society girl, played by Alice Calhoun. The girl tired of city sham, seeks contentment in the open and Mark King fits in with her mood.

Circumstances throw them together and she marries him to avoid marrying Gratton, played by Robert Cain, who has tricked her into an elopement. But, with marriage, comes a realization that they are of different worlds. His mode of life and his manners are repulsive to her. However, since she has made her bargain, and, since he loves her with he virile love of a man of the out-doors, King makes her live up to it.

Mix, in his usual dashing red-blooded self, while Alice Calhoun and Robert Cain also do fine work. Others in the cast, all of whom will please, are George Berrell, Noble Johnson, Virginia Madison and Karl Dane.

Wyndham Gittens prepared the scenario and made a perfect adaptation of this fine Gregory story. The scenic background is a treat. All combined, The Everlasting Whisper is a splendid picture.

Lyceum Theater, New London

Of several interest to the theatergoers of New London and Norwich is the engagement of Hush Money, a new melodrama of today, written by Alfred Jackson and presented by Charles K. Gordon at the Lyceum theater, New London for an engagement of two nights and a matinee beginning Friday evening.

Miss Justine Johnstone, a former Ziegfeld Follies beauty, whose talents were confined purely to the musical comedy field, has abandoned it for a straight leading role, and her appearance in Hush Money will be eagerly watched by those prominent in the theatrical firmament. Charles K. Gordon, the producer, has selected an able company of players to support Miss Johnstone. They are Richard Gordon, who was last seen in New York in Crooked Friday; Walter Gilbert, who played the lead in Cobra; Joseph Lertora, who has been seen in musical comedy, this marking his first appearance in the legitimate field; Gladys Wilson, Walter Walker, Cora Witherspoon, Calvin Thomas and others. William B. Friedlander, who was responsible for the success of Little Jessie James, Moonlight, The Seam Woman and other productions, has staged Hush Money, and has given the piece an artistic production. Following its engagement here Hush Money will be seen on Broadway.

STATE FARMERS CAUTIONED AGAINST CROP INCREASE

Farmers in Connecticut and the rest of New England are cautioned against a general expansion of their business in 1926, in a statement made public by the New England Research Council on Marketing and Food Supply. This statement has been prepared with the aid of the New England agricultural colleges, departments of agriculture, and the United States department of agriculture. It is of vital importance to farmers in Connecticut as it contains information concerning the 1926 agricultural markets and is designed to give farmers facts upon which to base their plans for the coming season.

The report forecasts a drop in the present level of business activity when crops will be marketed in 1926. Certain basic industries are now adjusting their future production schedules for a lower domestic demand during 1926-27 and agriculture as a whole, should plan its 1926 production so as to supply a market at best no stronger and probably somewhat less favorable than the present.

"Connecticut farmers are engaged primarily in producing for a market requiring high grade perishable products, such as milk, high quality eggs, fruits and fresh vegetables. A few regions of specialized production such as tobacco are found in this state. The dependence of New England farmers on a strong purchasing power of industrial employes to consume their high quality products makes it necessary to watch closely any changes in business conditions that will effect the purchasing power of New England consumers."

Less Activity Seen in 1926

"The present level of business activity should continue well into 1926 until the 1925 crops are marketed. However, the indications are that the present high level of business activity will not be maintained during the season when the 1926 crops are being marketed.

"The outlook for fluid milk producers in Connecticut during 1926 appears to be more satisfactory than the outlook for dairymen who produce for the butter market. Consumption of fluid milk in 1926 promises to continue at about the same level as 1925. The increase in per capita consumption which has taken place in recent years will probably not continue. Prices for other dairy products will in all probability be lower during the second half of the year. Feed prices should continue to be favorable to dairymen through the first half of 1926.

"The outlook for poultry prices is better for the first half of this year than for 1925. However the prospect for lower egg prices and more hens makes it seem likely that increased offerings of poultry will depress poultry prices for the last half of 1926. Reports for Connectcut and New Hampshire indicate an increase of about 50 per cent. in the number of hens since 1920 and a proportional increase in the number of eggs produced. This increase in the poultry industry while characteristic of the United States as a whole has been most marked in New England. The Connecticut poultryman must speed up his efforts to produce a standardized high quality product and maintain its identity until it reaches the consumer.

Growers of potatoes in Connecticut should closely watch the acreage planted in competitive sections because unusual profits derived from the 1925 crops tend to make growers in this section unduly optimistic regarding returns to be expected this season. In the late producing potato sections, careful study of the acreage situation should be made with stress upon the continued use of improved seed and the stabilization of normal acreage to avoid overproduction. The high price received for the 1925 crop resulted from a reduction in acreage of 7 per cent. and a reduction in the yield per acre of 13 per cent. On March 19 the United States department of agriculture will issue a report on the acreage of potatoes and other crops which farmers then intend to plant. This report should be awaited by every farmer in the state.

"Fertilizer requirements are as yet undetermined but present indications point out that most of it will be bought for cash. The high cost of seed potatoes this year is another factor which may make for a more conservative attitude toward increased plantings in some sections."

Soap as a Germicide

Soap has a value as an aid to health even greater and more direct than has hitherto been expected. The ordinary routine of dishwashing and laundering or cleaning the face and hands is fatal to germs of such diseases as pneumonia, diphtheria, blood poisoning and other serious infections. Dr. John E. Walker of the service laboratory of the Army and Navy General hospital at Hot Springs, Ark., has concluded extensive experiments that have showed that common soaps were effective germicides in at least three types of infections, while soap made with cocoanut oil was markedly destructive to the organisms of typhoid fever.

The soap in greatest use in hospitals is the "official soft soap". The substitution of cocoanut oil for the linseed oil used in making this soap renders it germicidal against the typhoid bacilli as well as against the other three organisms. Although this change would make the soap more irritating to the skin, it would be desirable, and it would be especially useful in cases of typhoid epidemics.

All the soaps tested were more antiseptic at higher temperature. The organism causing boils, known technically as Staphylococcus aureus, that completely resisted all soaps, even at a higher temperature, is affected by sodium resin soap.

Dr. Walker found that when the hands were washed with ordinary care the lather formed contained about 8 per cent. of soap. This amount he said was more than enough to kill the pneumonia, diphtheria and streptococcus bacilli. The most careful washing of hands, however, did not kill the staphylococcus or boil-forming organisms, which showed that soaps alone could not be relied upon for complete surgical sterility.

In spite of claims put forth by manufacturers of special soaps, they were found to be no more effective than the average household kind. Foreign substances mixed with the soap often interfered markedly with the germicidal action.

ACHES AND PAINS ARE SOON FIXED UP

Simple, easy treatment brings quick relief

Quick, sure relief from pain is what men want when they get lamed up from over-exercise or exposure, or when they get a sprain or bruise.

A soldier in the Sixth Pennsylvania Infantry writes from camp:—"Sloan's is a great thing for us boys in the army. After a stiff hike or drill your muscles are bound to ache, but they are soon fixed up with Sloan's. It's great stuff for muscle-bound legs, lame backs, stiff necks, sprains or bruises."

The reason that Sloan's Liniment gives such remarkable relief is that it gets right at the cause of the pain. It stimulates the circulation throughout the place where the pain is, and clears out congestion.

Right away you feel relief. Stiff muscles limber up, the aching stops, and soon you are fit as ever. No need to rub. Sloan's does the whole job. Just pat it on! Get a bottle today. All druggists—35 cents.

POETRY

Frosty Morning

The air is stinging cold;
From out the chimney curls the smoke,
Gray-white and soft, uprising straight
Into the lakes of misty blue.

After a whistle sounds;
A rumbling of the morning train
That rounds the curve with gleams of light
And passes swiftly with a roar.

The frost is white and thick;
It covers roofs and walks and grass;
It glitters on the cottonwoods
And sparkles spangling in the air.

A horse escapes his stall;
With head erect he circles far
Around the yard and down the road,
His nostrils shooting streams of white.

He stops; surveys the world;
His neigh triumphant ringing loud;
A vision of the fields and skies
Within the mirrors of his eyes.
R. W. Van Liew in Christian Science Monitor.

Armistice

The water sings along our keel,
The wind falls to a whispering breath;
I look into your eyes and feel
No fear of life or death
So near is love, so far away
The losing strife of yesterday.

We watch the swallow skim and dip;
Some magic bids the world be still;
Life stands with finger upon lip
Love hath his gentle will
Though hearts have bled and tears have burned,
The rives floweth unconcerned.

We pray the fickle flag of truce
Still float deceitfully and fair;
Our eyes must love its sweet abuse
This hour we will not care,
Though just beyond tomorrow's gate,
Arrayed and strong the battle wait.
—Sophie Jewett.

HUMOR OF THE DAY

Father—Daughter, don't give that young man any encouragement.
Daughter—I don't need to. He takes it.—Answers.

Captain (harshly)—Button up that coat.
Married Recruit (absently)—Yes, my dear.—Virginia Military Institute Sniper.

"He's got an arrogant air about him."
"I hate men who use perfume, don't you?" — Virginia Military Institute Sniper.

Friend (admiringly)—Where did you get your amazing knowledge of social and economic subjects.
Host (proudly)—From my daughter's graduation essay. — Boston Transcript.

Two-year old Leonard Roof, held up to hear his father's voice on the telephone burst into tears.
"Whatever are you crying for?" asked Mrs. Roof.—Los Angeles Times.

Clara: Did her father give the bride away?
Clarence: He thought he did; but I notice she's back with her husband living at the old man's expense.—The Progressive Grocer.

"You must take more exercise."
"Doctor, I get plenty of exercise. I walk six blocks to my office every day."
"How can you get exercise walking six blocks."
"Dodging automobiles."—Louisville Courier-Journal.

Betty came running into the house in a state of great excitement.
"Bobby Smith kissed me!" she announced at the top of her shrill voice.
"Why, Betty," cried her mother, "what did he do that for?"
"Well—I'm not sure—but I think I have the stronger will." — Legion Weekly.

KALEIDOSCOPE

More than one-half the human race lives in Asia.

Turkey is one of the largest producers of raw opium.

The Lamas of Sikkim wear aprons made of human bones.

A "radio knife," a bloodless instrument for use in surgical work, has been invented.

Thorium was discovered more than 100 years ago by the famous Berzilius in a Swedish mineral and its unusual qualities caused the scientists to name his discovery for Thor, greatest of the Norse gods.

The strangest excuse received by the Minnesota registrar of motor vehicles by an applicant who wanted one particular number was because that combination would help him remember his wedding anniversary.

The silk-weaving industry in France is largely concentrated in the region around Lyons and the departments of the Isere and the Loire. Weaving looms total 58,000, of which slightly more than half are mechanically operated. This industry has shown a rapid increase in the department of Isere during the last fifteen years, thirty four new silk-weaving establishments having been set up and the number of looms increased by 40 per cent.

DROP IN STOCK PRICES

NEW YORK, Feb. 24—(AP)—The main trend of prices in today's stock market was distinctly downward. Closing quotations however disclosed a number of independent strong spots, due to active short covering and the appearance of strong buying support for some of the recently weak issues. Trading which continued to be largely of professional origin, showed a marked expansion in volume, the day's sales running over 1,900,000 shares.

Bullish news developments such as the increase in the Montana Power annual dividend from $4 to $5 and the overwhelming majority given the new tax bill in the house, were disregarded. The weekly steel trade reviews reported little change in the general situation although the Iron Age composite pig iron prices showed the first reduction since December 1.

Rumors regarding the railroad stocks played an important part in the day's trading. Widespread circulation of reports that the "nickel plate" decision would be handed down this afternoon started a bullish demonstration in the stocks of the roads involved in that combination. "Nickel Plate" common soared 6 3-4 points to 174 3-4 and then slipped back to 173. Chesapeake and Ohio showed a net decline of 1 1-8 at 115 after having touched 126. Early gains of 1 3-8 to 2 5-8 points in the Erie issues were reduced to fractions.

Atlanta, Birmingham and Atlantic, dropped from 1 3-8 to 2 1-2 on reports that the Atlantic Coast Line, planned to take over the property, now in receivership, by the payment of 60 per cent. of the face value of the bonds, no provisions being made for the A. B. and A. stockholders. Chicago and Alton common broke from 10 1-8 to 6 and the preferred from 15 3-4 to 11 1-8 on reports that the re-organization plan, now under way, provides for an assessment of $16 per share on each class of stock.

Other rails were mixed, net gains of 1 to nearly 3 points in Baltimore and Ohio, New York Central, Louisville and Nashville, Pittsburgh and West Virginia, and St. Louis Southwestern were counteracted by declines of a point or more in Canadian Pacific, Chicago and Great Western preferred, Delaware and Hudson, Gulf, Mobile, and Northern, and Wheeling and Lake Erie. Lackawanna was run up to 146 7-8 soon after the opening and then dropped back to 146 1-4.

The decline in the equipment stocks most of which agreed to new low levels for the year in the early trading, was checked by the announcement that the Southern Railway was in the market for 113 locomotives and 2,250 freight cars, the largest inquiry in months.

The recovery in the Pan-American Petroleum issues and American Smelting common, which were weak yesterday on unconfirmed rumors that a breach in diplomatic relations between Mexico and the United States was imminent, was influenced by reports that the Mexican government had just sent nearly half a million dollars to New York bankers under the terms of the modified debt agreement. Many brokers felt that such payments would be unlikely if serious trouble was anticipated.

American Can, American Woolen common, and preferred, Baldwin Bethlehem Steel, Dupont, Hudson Motors, Third Avenue and United Cigar Stores all showed substantial gains on the day, selling of the industrials was most effect in American Water Works, General Electric, S. S. Kresge, Mack Trucks, Public Service of New Jersey, Postum Cereal, New York Canners, Liggett and Meyers B, McGroary Stores B, and F. G. Sattuck, off 2 to 6 points.

Call money held steady at 5 per cent. all day. Time money and commercial paper rates also were unchanged, but a reduction in the volume of loanable funds was reported in some quarters.

Acute weakness of Norwegian krone and Polish zloty, which broke 31 and 75 points to 21.39 and 12.00 cents, respectively, featured the irregular foreign exchange market. Demand sterling reacted 3-16 of a cent to around $4.85 11-16, presumably in reflection of a further loss of gold by the Bank of England, but French francs opened firmer around 3.65 cents and then reacted to 3.62. Japanese yen recorded a further recession to 43 7-8 cents on reports that the Japanese government had expressed its disapproval of recent international speculation in that currency.

CLOUDY, WARMER TODAY, FOLLOWED BY RAIN

Norwich Bulletin

NORWICH, CONN., THURSDAY, FEB. 25, 1926

FULL ASSOCIATED PRESS DESPATCHES

The Bulletin.

Norwich, Thursday, Feb. 25, 1926

THE WEATHER

Conditions

The disturbance that was central over New Mexico Thursday is now centered over Arkansas with greatly increased intensity.

The eastern area of high pressure now extends from the lower St. Lawrence Valley southward beyond Bermuda.

The southwestern disturbance will move rapidly northeastward with increasing intensity and it will be attended by rains over the state east of the Mississippi river in the next 24 hours. It will be preceded by rising temperature and will cause shifting winds and probably gales along the Atlantic coast from Jacksonville, Florida, northward. Precipitation probably will continue Friday in the north Atlantic states. The temperature will be lower Friday and Friday night in the Atlantic states.

Winds

North of Sandy Hook: Increasing southeast and south winds, probably reaching gale force Friday night; increasing cloudiness followed by rain Thursday night.

Sandy Hook to Hatteras: Increasing southeast and south winds, probably reaching gale force Thursday afternoon or night, overcast weather, followed by rain Thursday.

Forecast

For Southern New England: Increasing cloudiness and warmer Thursday, followed by rain Thursday afternoon or night and probably Friday morning; colder Friday.

Observations

The Bulletin's observations show the following changes in temperature and barometric changes Wednesday:

OVER 100 YOUNG WOMEN JOIN SWIMMING CLASSES AT Y. M. C. A.

Over 100 young women joined the women's swimming and gym classes Wednesday afternoon and evening at the local Young Men's Christian Association. As fast as the young women signed up, paid their entrance fees and were given membership cards they were assigned to classes. At 3 p. m. the intermediate class, girls of high school age, began to register as members of the class. At 5:15 o'clock there was another class, a special seniors class and during the early evening a third class, seniors, was signed up. Others are expected to join the classes later.

During the afternoon and evening Mrs. Philip Streeter, in charge of the physical activities and Miss Barbara Allen, swimming leader, escorted the young women to the gymnasium and swimming pool. Miss Marion Bishop and her committee were present throughout the afternoon and evening receiving fees and issuing membership tickets.

The boys' lobby was given over to the women and will be at their disposal each Wednesday. Outside of their class hours the girls will have the use of the pool tables and other games in the boys' department each Wednesday and as a result the department will be closed to the boys every Wednesday afternoon and evening. The girls will also have the use of the showers and gymnasium in addition to the swimming pool each Wednesday. It is noticeable that girls under 20 years are in the minority at the present time. Girls under 11 years of age not eligible for membership in the classes.

CLARA BARTON TENT JOINS NATION-WIDE FLAG CAMPAIGN

Clara Barton Tent, Daughters of Veterans, of this city, has joined with tents of the Daughters of Veterans throughout the country in a nation wide movement to secure a bigger and better display of the American flag. The movement has been endorsed by Mayor Milo R. Waters of this city and the following have been appointed by Clara Barton Tent as a committee in charge of the local movement:

Lillian E. Brewster, chairman, Annie B. Turner, Lucy C. MacDougall, Jennie S. Newbury, D. Louisa Atterbury, Genie Evans, Alice C. Brinkman, M. Florence Dean.

The flags proposed for lawn displays can be seen displayed at the homes of the president of Clara Barton Tent, Gladys Newbury, No. 55 Greene avenue and D. Louisa Atterbury, Page street. Within a short time a similar flag will be placed on the lawn at Buckingham Memorial. In connection with the nation wide flag display movement the following statement has been issued:

Realizing the dire need of a bigger and better display of American flags, due to growing influences and forces which are detrimental to the ideals, traditions and principles on which our republic is founded, and which are symbolized by the flag of the United States, the Daughters of Veterans have inaugurated a nation-wide campaign to make it possible for every home in the United States to display Old Glory properly.

Their plan, briefly, is this: To place a uniform flag outfit in front of every home which will last for years, and to do so at a cost within the reach of all, thus making it possible for everyone who loves our flag to display it properly on all patriotic occasions.

It isn't lack of patriotism that causes us to neglect flying the flag, but the difficulties to be overcome in making a display heretofore have been so great that many of us have not done so. Most of us have had the experience of spending a great deal of time trying to find a suitable place to display the flag, and after hanging it from the porch or upper window, have had someone come along and tell us that we have violated the United States flag code by hanging the field in the wrong position. Too often, we also see our beautiful flag draped on a building—another breach of flag etiquette. With this method which the Daughters of Veterans have adopted, these difficulties are all solved. The outfit consists of a socket which is sunk in the lawn, out of sight; a 12 foot flag pole which is made in two six foot sections joined by a brass ferrule, thus making it easier to store; a 4 foot by 6 foot American flag, fast colors, sewed stars and stripes. The flag is fastened to the pole by nickel snaps instead of a halyard.

The Daughters of Veterans feel that a nation-wide display of Old Glory by this method which can be made by people of small means as well as large, because of its nominal cost, will create a greater love for the flag, and the principles for which it stands, and will show to the whole world that we, as Americans, do reverence this symbol of our country. Someone has likened this display to sentinels, standing in front of every home, representing the millions who are ready to protect them.

As a practical proposition, what is the best way to build up peacetime patriotism? What is the best way to awaken and stimulate the latent patriotism of the people of America? How can they best be roused to vigorous, united, organized, patriotic action to safeguard and preserve their national ideals and traditions? It is not a fact that in order to bind people together in organizing effort, they must have something in common—they must have a common rallying point, a common ground on which to meet?

The people of this country cannot come together either on a common political or religious ground, for there are, as there should be, such diversities of opinions and beliefs; nor can our people be united in anything of a business or commercial nature, for the material interests of individuals, of necessity, conflict.

Our only common rallying point—the flag of the United States—is the one thing around which all loyal Americans, rich or poor, irrespective of race, creed or color, politics, social or other conditions of life, can rally and join hands as fellow Americans. Our flag is a beautiful, inspiring emblem; a sacred symbol of our political faith, appealing so strongly to every good citizen of the republic. Indeed, our flag is the one and only bond we have which unites every American to all other Americans.

And now comes the Daughters of Veterans shouldering the uniting machinery, and as each additional home displays the American flag properly, they illustrate and perpetuate Americanism as no other peace-time work could do.

MORE DRIVERS LOSE LICENSES FOR INTOXICATION

The weekly list of operators whose licenses to drive automobiles in Connecticut have been suspended for one year for driving while under the influence of liquor was given out Wednesday at the state motor vehicle department as a part of the effort to reduce the highway menace. There are fourteen names on the list. Three were Connecticut operators convicted in other states. The department statement advised people to notify the department or police in case they should see any of the following persons operating motor vehicles. The following is the list.

Wilfred E. Bell, Hartford; Daniel Fennessy, New Britain; Victor Harvey, Stamford; Byron F. Lewis, New Haven; Edward B. McCue, Lakeville; Harold J. Merritt, Stamford; John M. Michelson, Barrington, Mass.; Ralph Olmstead, Thomaston; George W. Patnode, North Granby; Harry Seaman, Hartford; George R. Skinner, Plainville; James J. Spall, Fairfield; Timothy Sullivan, Bellitown; John Vanail, Springfield, Mass.

DESCRIBES PALATIAL FLORIDA REAL ESTATE OFFICES

A real estate office in St. Petersburg, Florida, the "sunshine city" that looks like the lobby of the Hotel Astor is described in a letter to a Norwich friend by Charles B. Lee of this city, who is spending some time in the Florida city, which is as much crowded as Fifth avenue, New York, at certain times of the day. Because of the mild climate no windows or doors are needed at the front and the fittings are all of elegant Turkish draperies and rugs of the finest quality, with divans and smoking sets. One of the unusual attractions is a beautiful bird of cardinal plumage which hangs in a gilded cage in front of the elegantly fitted office and sings in a way to rival the finest canary, when visitors chirp or talk to it. This is the "Woofus bird," as the visitors learn from a little folder that is handed them by the alert salesmen, all college men; well groomed and well bred, who proceed to interest the visitor in beautiful paintings or plots of bay and shore property with paved street and miles of cement sidewalks.

To those who observe the Woofus bird closely, according to Mr. Lee, it is apparent that there is a certain timing about the flutter of its wings, the rolling of its head, and its song and that it never changes position on the perch. All of which reveals that it is an especially ingenious advertising dodge. The illusion is carried out by the little printed folder with a picture of the bird in red and an elaborate description of its capture as it fell exhausted on the tract of St. Petersburg land after a long flight from South America.

Mr. Lee encloses in his letter clippings from the Florida papers showing how they flash up the snow storms and cold weather of the north in contrast to their own vivid and continual sunshine.

He mentions that he has called upon W. G. Henderson, formerly of this city, who has been for ten weeks in a hospital with both legs broken in an automobile accident. It is hoped that he soon may be able to leave the hospital for his home.

HELPING HANDS ENTERTAIN AT WASHINGTON SOCIAL

The social hall of the Spiritual Academy, Park street was thronged Tuesday evening with the members of the First Spiritual Union, the Helping Hands, their families, and guests, to enjoy an old-fashioned Washington social. The hall had been completely transformed by the generous use of large flags, pennants and streamers, and red, white and blue lights. A splendid portrait of Washington adorned the platform, and served as an inspiration for the patriotic exercises of the evening.

Community singing of patriotic airs was followed by humorous selections by Mrs. Jennie B. Martin, who generously responded with encores suitable to the occasion. Crossing the Delaware; throwing dollar across Potomac; pinning star on flag; and finding the cherries, were the patriotic games enjoyed by old and young.

Delicious refreshments were served under the following committee, with Mrs. Leon Hayden, as chairman: Mrs. Joseph Mackey, Mrs. Francis Slater, and Mrs. Buddington. The party lasted until a late hour, and all were eager for a repetition of the affair at an early date.

Guests were present from Stonington, New London, Preston, Westerly, Brooklyn, as well as from suburbs of Norwich.

President Dowsett announced the appearance Sunday at the Spiritual academy of Amelia Adams, the famous lecturer and flower medium.

FINE SKATING NOW AT MOHEGAN PARK

Ideal skating conditions now exist at Mohegan Park skating pond for the first time in several weeks. Similar conditions prevail at Marx's pond on the East Side, which has been kept in condition by members of the Duwell club.

The warmer weather of Wednesday had no effect on the ice at the ponds and the surface is smooth, with the exception of a few rough spots. Skaters anticipate several days of fine skating now that the snow has been removed from the several skating places in the city.

Health Education For All

The well child conferences which have now been carried on throughout Connecticut for three years have proved to be a great power for good. In the large cities, such conferences form a daily part of the health centers which have been established by various organizations. In the smaller towns, however, they have become the monthly event for thousands of mothers.

All classes of mothers meet in Wauregan as they are held, now in the town hall, church, or central school or some social center. The message for each one is "Health for all the Children." Some mothers have followed successfully rules of hygiene and they bring healthy children to the conference month after month. Other mothers are just learning the value of establishing health habits and the need for frequent examination, and as the result of this are readjusting their home conditions so that their children's health may improve.

In one rural section where the field worker had found difficulty in locating a somewhat wandering family, it was found that, due to the influence of the conference, the family had moved into a better house with more sunlight, and the little one who had been directed into special treatment for paralysis, was showing great improvement. There was still much to be accomplished, but a beginning had been made, as the mother was now interested in the right food for all the children, and habits of hygiene had gained in importance.

The next conference in Wauregan will be held on Tuesday afternoon, March 2nd, in company hall, from 2 to 4 o'clock.

She Could Never Have Done It With Piles!

Bless the American girl who has glorified all the sports! She makes a pretty picture in the water, and is a plucky swimmer, too. Piles are unthinkable for active women. If you have them, you ought to know this simple thing to do!

At any hour or moment that you have the least distress or discomfort from piles, use a simple Pyramid pile suppository—and go happily on your way! The worst hemorrhoids, even bleeding and badly protruding piles respond at once to the soothing suppository applied in perfect privacy. But bear the name in mind: Pyramid is the one every druggist has, usually the only one he will sell his patrons. Pyramid is marvelous. Why suffer another single half-hour with painful piles?

Sixty cents the box, the world around. But for proof, a free box plainly wrapped will be sent those who write Pyramid Drug Co., 200 Pyramid Bldg., Marshall, Mich.

Y. M. C. A. MEN AT NOON SHOP MEETING

Wednesday at the noon hour under Y. M. C. A. auspices the weekly noon meeting was held at the West Side silk mill. Orchestra music was furnished by John Swahn, Frederick Geer and Ralph Marsh, and several songs were sung by the large audience of employes. Secretary Edwin Hill of the local "Y" gave the address of the occasion, and selected for the basis of his remarks, the words of Jesus, "Him that will be greatest among you let him be servant." Mr. Hill spoke in part as follows:

The surest road to happiness is found in service to others. If you want to be really happy, do something for someone else, and there are certainly plenty of opportunities. I had the pleasure of giving a man a dollar the other day to purchase wood for his family who were very cold without fuel. It was a genuine blessing to me to see the effect this simple gift had on the man who received it: that was one of the best investments I ever made.

The speaker then told of two men, one a Protestant and one a Catholic, both of whom gave themselves in great sacrifice for others and both of whom were happy in their sacrifices. He told the touching story of Livingstone, who left home and comforts to spent his life in darkest Africa among those unattractive creatures; how he ministered to them in love, and how he won them to himself and to his God, finally dying while on his knees in prayer. Livingstone found his happiness in this service to the unattractive. A young Catholic man, who early consecrated himself to his God for service, in due time became a priest, and quickly won his way into the hearts of his people, because of his love for them which manifested itself in all kinds of service. Finally this priest heard the call of God to go and minister to the leper colony. His parishioners desired that he should remain with them, but his duty to him was clear and to the leper colony he went, and sweetly ministered both physically and spiritually to those unfortunate creatures dying by inches, finally contracting the dread disease, and died of the same. From these two servants of God we learn the lesson of real service and without doubt both of these found great joy in thus ministering to others. After the address the audience joined heartily in singing "The Battle Hymn of the Republic."

INCREASE IN MEASLES THROUGHOUT THE STATE

The increase in the number of cases of measles in the state for the past week indicates that the epidemic of the disease, which, it was thought, was abating, is spreading. There were 787 cases reported for the week, or an increase of 242 over the previous week. Hartford with 122 cases led the state in the number reported. Fairfield with fifty-seven cases was second and Bridgeport was third with fifty-six. Cases were reported from fifty-five towns.

Cases of diphtheria increased from forty-one to fifty-six, the greater number being in Hamden, which reported eighteen cases.

New Haven had twenty-one new cases of scarlet fever in a total of ninety-one for the state, and cases of whooping cough numbered seventy-one as against sixty-eight for the previous week. With seventeen cases New Haven led all other towns with Bridgeport and Bristol tied for second place, each having eleven. Hartford reported two new cases of typhoid fever and Waterbury one, the total being the same as that for the state in the previous week.

The state department of health directs attention in its weekly bulletin to the action of a man who had fraudulently represented himself to be a milk inspector of the Hartford board of health, and who collected $20. The statement in the bulletin is as follows: "During the past week a man has been visiting farms in Connecticut representing himself to be a milk inspector of the board of health of Hartford. At one place he collected $20. No inspector is authorized by the state department of health or the Hartford board of health to collect any funds whatsoever. Persons should report at once to the police when any inspector makes any such demand."

HELD SHOWER FOR MRS. WILFRED COTE

The members of the Girls' Friendly society of St. Andrew's church gave a shower Tuesday evening at the home of Mrs. Edward Risley on Prospect street, for one of the members, Mrs. Wilfred Cote, formerly Miss Louise Erwin, who was married February 9th. When Mrs. Cote entered she was taken by complete surprise, not realizing that about twenty-five girls sat in a room of darkness waiting for her. She received many useful and valuable gifts.

Mrs. Edward Risley was also very much surprised when Miss Martha Campbell presented her two valuable gifts from the society for her new home. Many games were enjoyed by all after which refreshments were served by Mrs. Risley assisted by some of the members. The following girls were present: Misses Stella Peterson, Doris Peterson, Iols Shaw, Florence Seed, Ruth Fitch, Mary Prodell, Edna Prodell, Amelia Erwin, Eunice Taft, Emily Haden, Grace Shutt, Elizabeth Ibbison, Anna Duncan, Elsie Risley, Mrs. Arthur Schofield, Miss Haden, Mrs. Edward Riding, Mrs. Alex Finlayson, Miss Majorie Finlayson, Mrs. Frank Hargreves, Mrs. Arthur Oddie, Mrs. Charles Erwin and Mrs. Samuel Armitage.

JURY GIVES GIRL PLAINTIFF VERDICT FOR DAMAGES OF $1800

Late Wednesday afternoon a verdict of $1,800 for the plaintiff was returned by a jury in the superior court at New London in the case of Gladys E. Palmer of Hopkinton, R. I., against Owens C. Wolfe of New London. The plaintiff who is 20 years of age sued for $15,000 as the result of injuries received when she was struck by a machine driven by Mr. Wolfe. The accident happened at the intersection of Main and High streets, Hopkinton. The action was brought through her father, Albert E. Palmer.

The arguments were completed at the court session Wednesday and at 1:30 o'clock Judge Allyn L. Brown started his charge to the jury. The jury retired at 2:30 o'clock and brought in their verdict about 4:15 o'clock. Following the verdict counsel for the defendant immediately filed a motion to set aside the verdict. Trial of the case of Dominique vs. Barber, a Jewett City case, was then started and was in progress when court adjourned.

WILL NEED MILLIONS TO RECONSTRUCT HIGHWAYS

The entire trunk line highway system of Connecticut will undoubtedly have to be reconstructed within eight or ten years if the state is to keep pace with the wear and tear of motor transportation, according to a statement issued by the state highway department. This would call for an expenditure of approximately $70,000,000 it is estimated, which would require every cent of funds already in sight and would not include bridge improvements.

There are about 1,400 miles of roadway in the present so-called trunk line system, of which 350 are yet unbuilt and for which the state has no appropriation of funds to construct.

With the state reasonably well covered by trunk line roads, the main problem facing the highway department concerns the reconstruction of existing routes, it is pointed out. The department feels that whereas its chief mission previously might have been to reach out and make all points of the state accessible to modern motor traffic, now it has become necessary to make adequate for some years hence the roads already laid out.

A tentative program for reconstructing the 1,400 miles now in use has been prepared by the department, in which it is estimated that within the next two years an aggregate of 206 miles should be rebuilt; in the following two-year period, 436.4 miles, it is believed, should be reconstructed. In the two years after that, or six years hence, the rebuilding of 641 miles would be called for and in the next two years, or eight years from now, 223 miles are allotted for reconstruction.

This covers the entire 1,400 miles, which on the basis of present day increases in traffic and population, will be in need of reconstruction, and without taking into consideration the new highways which undoubtedly will have to be built to take care of the increase in the number of motor vehicles and in population.

"We have a wonderful investment in Connecticut in our highways," Commissioner John A. Macdonald said, "and to avoid waste of funds, it will be a wise policy for the state to protect that investment and keep the state in the same prosperous condition it now enjoys.

"The saturation points in automobile traffic and progress in the building of highways have not yet reached the limit," he said.

WILL HEAR MOTION TO SET ASIDE VERDICT

In the superior court at New London Friday morning Judge Allyn L. Brown will hear the arguments on the motion to set aside the verdict of $2,068, rendered for the plaintiff John A. Moran, local real estate agent, against the Central Building company of this city. The motion is one of several on the short calendar list to be disposed of Friday in the superior court which is sitting at New London this week. Other motions on the list are as follows:

Textile Engineering Co. vs. Still, et al., motion to expunge; motion for more specific statement with respect to answer to Braided Thread Corporation.

H. G. Craig & Co., Ltd., et al., vs. Uncas Paper Board company, confirmation and approval of sale by receiver to John G. G. Kerry, Toronto, Canada, pursuant to order of Dec. 31, 1925; approval of receiver's conveyances of real and personal property to John G. G. Kerry.

H. G. Craig & Co., Ltd., et al., vs. The Uncas Paper Board Company, adjudication on mechanic's lien of H. F. & A. J. Dawley.

Edward Erskine vs. Lincoln, motion to impound letter.

Minnie Erskine vs. Lincoln motion to impound letter.

Anson T. McCook, treasurer State of Connecticut vs. Groton & Stonington Street Railway Co., et al., motion to cite in receiver of the Shore Line Electric Railway company as a co-defendant.

Charles V. Alquist vs. Effie M. Alquist, hearing on application for contempt.

Frances M. Spicer vs. Joseph E. Spicer, disclosure of defense, or case be put on uncontested list.

Walter H. Davidson vs. Rose Davidson, alias ——, allowance to defend.

Moran vs. Central Building Company, motion to set aside verdict.

J. R. Whipple Corporation vs. Rice, motion for default.

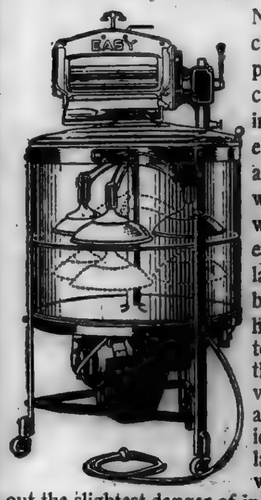
The Easy VACUUM ELECTRIC WASHING MACHINES



Nearly 50 years ago the principle of washing clothes by air pressure and suction was discovered; the device used being a cone-shaped cup on the end of a stick. Later this was applied to a lever, one end of which was attached to the wash tub. This method, while efficient, required considerable labor as it had to be operated by hand. Step by step this has been improved upon until today by the use of electricity the Easy washer with its three vacuum cups has eliminated all this hard work. The heaviest blankets or the flimsiest lace curtains may be washed with equal satisfaction without the slightest danger of injury to the fabric.

PRESIDENT WILL SIGN TAX REDUCTION BILL AT 10 A. M.

Secretary Mellon Went to the White House to Recommend That the Chief Executive Give the Measure His Approval—The Bill Exceeds by $387,000 the Maximum the Secretary of the Treasury and His Assistants Had Declared Was Safe—Will Necessitate Congress Exercising Caution in Making New Appropriations.

WASHINGTON, Feb. 25—(AP)—Barring a slip up in plans, the tax reduction bill will become law tomorrow.

Announcement that President Coolidge would sign the measure at 10 a. m. was made late today at the white house after the engrossed copy had been received from congress and sent to the treasury for a last minute check for possible flaws.

Reference to the treasury was largely a formality, as Secretary Mellon had expressed approval of the bill's provisions, although its estimated $257,000,000 reduction in taxes exceeds the maximum he and his assistants had declared was safe.

While department experts were examining the final draft of the proposal, Mr. Mellon went to the white house to recommend personally to the president that he give his approval.

The executive's signature will be affixed in his office in the presence of treasury and congressional officials and others. Secretary Mellon, Chairman Green, of the house ways and means committee, author of the measure, and Chairman Smoot, of the senate finance committee, who was in charge of it in the senate, are among those invited to be present.

In his comment on the bill, Mr. Mellon said the government should have little difficulty in meeting its financial needs after the revised schedules become effective if congress exercised caution in authorizing new appropriations.

Secretary Hoover, discussing the probable effect of the legislation on business, predicted it would result in added savings for investment and consequently benefit business generally.

The commerce department head said he foresaw no slump in business and industry that would serve further to reduce revenues with a possible treasury deficit resulting.

ENRIGHT GUILTY FIRST DEGREE MANSLAUGHTER

BATH, N. Y., Feb. 25—(AP)—Michael Enright today was found guilty of first degree manslaughter after trial for the murder, second degree, of his friend, Timothy Shay, a farm hand. Under the law Enright, who is a brother of Richard Enright, former police commissioner of New York city, may be sentenced to serve 20 years in prison. Sentence will be pronounced by Judge Brown Tuesday.

The jury returned its verdict this morning after about seven hours' deliberation. They received the case at 3:45 p. m., last night but retired at 10:35 and resumed their consideration of the case at 8 this morning.

The defendant was charged with killing Shay with an axe at the Enright farm here near Campbell last December, after a drinking bout.

Shay's body was found by the road near the house and Enright was placed under arrest after state troopers found a bloodstained axe in the rear of the farmhouse and discovered bloody stains on Enright's clothing and about the premises.

The defense maintained that Shay died with an accident and that Enright had no knowledge of how he came to his death. Strenuous efforts were made to break down the chain of circumstantial evidence in which the prosecution enmeshed Enright and to discredit the testimony of physicians who examined Shay's body and reported that he had been killed by being struck with an instrument such as the axe introduced in evidence.

RESEARCH TO BE MADE BY PAPER AND PULP ASS'N.

NEW YORK, Feb. 25—(AP)—The American Paper and Pulp association, in annual convention, today adopted a resolution authorizing plans for carrying out technical research on engineering and forestry questions of interest to the entire industry. Another resolution authorized the establishment of a technical committee to study plans for the elimination of waste, stream pollution and co-operate with federal and state organizations for the elimination of paper mills waste.

In his report, Norman W. Wilson, president of the association, urged the retention of the import duty on foreign-made paper, maintaining that the American tariff was necessary to the equilibrium of the American paper industry.

A third resolution protested against the inclusion of resin in the Hagen marketing bill now before congress, in which resin is considered a farm product. The paper men assert that it is used in the finishing process of finer grades of paper, and therefore should not be considered in the same class as milk, vegetables and other farm products.

President Wilson was re-elected to office for the coming year.

PONZI NOT DISTURBED BY LEGAL ENTANGLEMENTS

JACKSONVILLE, Fla., Feb. 25—(AP)—Charles Ponzi, "financial wizard" at liberty under three different bonds tonight, apparently was unperturbed over the latest charges filed against him. Surrendering at the office of the federal commissioner today, the former Bostonian was released on his own recognizance for violating state laws regulating business conducted under trust. The charges grew out of his Charpon land syndicate promotion, by which Ponzi promised big dividends to those who bought ten dollar lots from him.

A preliminary hearing on the federal charge will be given March 6. State courts will hear his motion to dismiss the state charges on April 1. Meanwhile the land promoter also continues under bond from Massachusetts on charges growing out of his international reply coupon dealings there.

MAN EATING TIGER KILLS HIS 17TH. HUMAN VICTIM

BOMBAY, India, Feb. 25—(AP)—"Old Clubfoot," an enormous man eating tiger which has been terrifying the natives in Mysore state for several months, has killed his 17th human victim. The animal derives his nickname from a deformed paw.

Most of his victims have been women and children who have strayed from the villages. In certain districts cultivators have refused to work in the fields and travel only in gangs for mutual protection.

STORM WARNING ISSUED BY WEATHER BUREAU

WASHINGTON, Feb. 25—(AP)—The weather bureau late today issued the following storm warning:

"Warnings changed to southwest, 8 p. m. Delaware breakwater to Block Island, R. I., storm moving rapidly northeastward with center at 2 p. m. over Lake Huron."

MAN TAKEN TO JAIL AHORT TIME AFTER MARRIAGE

BRIDGEPORT, Feb. 25—(AP)—It was a hectic day for Louis Lonzo, Bridgeport, today for within several hours he was divorced from one young woman, mother of three of his children, and married to another woman, mother of three other of his children and then he was lodged in a cell at county jail.

In the morning, he sat in the prisoners' pen in criminal superior court a few yards away from Judge L. P. Waldo Marvin as a decree was awarded divorcing him from his first wife Anna Lonzo, 173 Nichols street.

A short time later he was hurried to the bureau of vital statistics at the Welfare building, where a marriage license was sought that he might legally marry his second wife, Mary Hoffman.

Miss Hoffman is a resident of Fairfield, and a delay of five days would be experienced if a Bridgeport license was issued to the couple.

That was no long to wait. They went to Fairfield, obtained a license and were married by Judge Bacon Wakeman.

Judge Marvin has yet to make disposition of the charge of bigamy to which he has pleaded guilty.

Lonzo was separated from his bride and taken to jail almost immediately after the ceremony.

Lonzo's divorced wife, who was awarded the custody of her two sons and a daughter, and who is said to be planning a second marriage within a week, and Lonzo's second wife are quite affectionate chums.

FOUR MORE ARRESTS IN RUM CONSPIRACY CASE

CLEVELAND, Ohio, Feb. 25—(AP)—Arrests in the alleged nation-wide bootleg alcohol conspiracy under federal grand jury investigation here reached 46 today with the taking into custody of four St. Paul men.

Arraigned before United States Commissioner M. J. Monahan, the four pleaded not guilty to charges of conspiracy and were committed to jail overnight pending arraignment on bond. Those arraigned were Grant D. Karon, George R. Stacey and Arnie Gilbreth, all St. Paul railroad men, and Earl S. Hanson, St. Paul, foreman of the Pool Car and Service company. Their bonds ranged from $500 for Gilbreth to $10,000 for Hanson. Hearing was set for March 16.

Hanson was technically arrested on Monday but he was not booked until today. The others were apprehended by secret service men who mingled among witnesses. They are alleged to have had a part in the movement of carloads of bootleg alcohol.

Arrest of these witnesses and interviewing of others by either the grand jury or intelligent unit operatives had thinned out the crowd in the corridor until apparently all witnesses had been disposed of. For this reason a night session was again foregone.

PRINCE CAROL LIKELY TO MEET HIS MORGANATIC WIFE

BUCHAREST, Feb. 25—(AP)—Former Crown Prince Carol of Rumania, who is sojourning in Paris, with Mme. Lepescu somewhere in the vicinity may soon have the opportunity of again meeting his Morganatic wife Zizi Lambrino and their son. The Rumanian foreign office today finally granted Mme. Lambrino permission, which she has vainly sought for weeks, to leave the country. She will depart tomorrow, and Paris is reported ot be her destination.

The departure of Mme. Lamorino is regarded here as significant in view of the fact that the press, while not informed of Carol's intentions, are openly discussing, without hindrance, the likelihood of his returning to Rumania after the resignation of the present Bratino government whcth is expected next month.

SEVEN PERSONS KILLED BY TORNADO IN ARKANSAS

MEMPHIS, Tenn., Feb. 25—(AP)—Seven persons killed and approximately a score injured stood tonight as the known toll taken by a tornado which whipped through the southern part of Chicot county, Arkansas, last night as it crossed the Mississippi river south of Greenville, Miss., wrecking farm property in sections of two counties.

Four white persons and one negro lost their lives when their homes were demolished.

WESTERLY MAN FILES BANKRUPTCY PETITION

NEW HAVEN, Feb. 25—(AP)—John A. Lenihan, proprietor of a bakery and grocery store in Westerly, R. I., today filed a voluntary petition in bankruptcy with the clerk of the United States district court listing liabilities of $5,444.37 and assets of $3,873.36.

Funeral of Lady Zaharoff

MONTE CARLO, Feb. 25—(AP)—Funral services for Lady Zaharoff, wife of Sir Basil Zaharoff, reputed to be the richest man on the continent, will be held tomorrow at St. Charles church. Lady Zaharoff, who was the Duchess de Villafranca de los Caballeros when she married Sir Basil, near Paris in September, 1924, died unexpectedly of heart disease last night after an illness lasting only five days.

COFFIN REFUTES CARPENTER STATEMENTS ABOUT GILPATRIC

HARTFORD, Feb. 25.—(AP)—Reply to John F. Carpenter, counsel for directors of the bank and petitioning creditors, who charged the receiver with discriminatition, and G. Harold Gilpatric, embezzler under examination by the receiver, with falsifications, was made today by Receiver George M. Coffin, of the First National bank, of Putnam.

In a letter to Referee in Bankruptcy Saul Berman, Receiver Coffin sets forth his position in the matter as follows:

"Have seen a report of a letter to you in which certain references to me are made.

"I wish you to know that the writer of the letter was in Putnam on Tuesday morning last week and could have attended the creditors' meeting at Hartford that day had he greatly desired to do this. Presumably he was in Putnam on Wednesday when the first examination of Mr. Gilpatric occurred, but he did not attend it though it lasted all day. On Thursday, he was present at Gilpatric's examination but asked no questions and soon left. He never at any time asked me if he could question Gilpatric so I could not have refused him this; although he came in to se me twice after the hearings and yesterday morning met Gilpatric at my office and talked to him.

"If Mr. Gilpatric has failed to tell me the truth during his hearings, I have failed to discover it and I am sure I am more familiar with the facts and figures of the receivership than anyone else.

"As to the value of results so far obtained from the hearings, my reports to you when they are concluded must determine this.

"To the press I refused t ocomment on this matter and I leave the disposition of this letter to your discretion."

MISSING BANK MESSENGER HAD CRIMINAL RECORD

NEW YORK, Feb. 25.—(AP)—The disappearance of John J. Corbett, a messenger, with $85,500 in Liberty bonds on February 19 has revealed that although a trusted employe of J. S. Rippel and Co., Newark banking house, for two years, Corbett had been arrested more than ten times and had at least four aliases.

Police records also was received by local police today from Chief Inspector John McGarr of Boston. At the time Corbett vanished, after exchanging other bonds for the Liberty bonds at the offices of Charles F. Childs & Co., New York brokers, the police searched the hospitals in the belief that he had met foud play.

His criminal record, beginning in 1907, included sentences in the Massachusetts reformatory for larceny, and for picking pockets; prison sentences in Santa Clara, Cal., Louisville, Ky., and Lawrence, Mass., for burglary and larceny; and arrests in Albny, Philadelphia, and Baltimore. His aliases were John J. Curtis, John J. Harris, John J. Carney and John Kimball.

PARISIANS ARE ENJOYING FINE SPRING WEATHER

PARIS, Feb. 25.—(AP)—May weather with cloudless skies, following nearly a week of warm sunny days, brought thousands out into the Champs Elysees, the Luxembourg and Tuileries Gardens and the Bois De Boulogne today to enjoy the first real respite Paris has had from cold, rain and floods since winter set in.

Today green shoots were appearing on all the shrubbery and trese, the grass had a spring tint, while the fruit trees all about Paris were in bloom. The terrace chairs of the boulevard cafes could once more be occupied with comfort.

Tonight the weather bureau forecast a continuation of the abnormal good weather, but fears are expressed that the snows and winds of March would put an untimely end to the verdure and damage the flowering fruit tres.

Meanwhile the punch and judy shows, sure harbingers of spring, have made their first appearance of the season along the Champs Elysee.

BELDEN IS TEMPORARY SUCCESSOR TO CHANDLER

HARTFORD, Feb. 25.—(AP)—Clark Belden, assistant secretary of the Connecticut Chamber of Commerce, was appointed acting secretary of the chamber by the board of directors, meeting at the Hartford club this afternoon, following the acceptance of George B. Chandler's resignation as executive vice president to become secretary of the Ohio Chamber of Commerce.

The board voted "that the selection of a secretary at the present time is unwise, but that Clark Belden be retained until July 1, with the title of acting secretary and that he be vested with constitutional powers of secretary."

President Ernest E. Rogers of the chamber, was authorized to select a committe of seven, representing the various groups of industry, to arrange the matter of selecting a permanent secretary. The board also elected Fred Orr, of New Haven, as full time field representative.

MAYOR QUIGLEY DENIES RUM RING COMPLICITY

BOSTON, Feb. 25—(AP)—Mayor Lawrence F. Quigley of Chelsea took the stand in his own defense today during his trial in federal court. He and 17 others, including Chelsea police officials, are charged with conspiring to violate the prohibition law.

The witness denied in toto the charges and testimony against him. He had never, he said, taken part in loading or unloading liquor in Chelsea or elsewhere; he had never directed any Chelsea patrolman or city official to "let up" on liquor prosecutions, nor had he ever protected anyone engaged in liquor traffic or engaged in its himself.

Mayor Quigley further denied that he gave Percy Friedman, a convict and government witness the sum of $300 to help unload a liquor cargo, as testified by Friedman.

Police Inspector Thomas J. Quigley, brother of the mayor and co-defendant, also testified in general denial of the charges.

State Closes in the Blasphemy Case

Defense Will Endeavor to Prove That Bimba Did Not Urge Overthrow of the U. S. Government.

BROCKTON, Mass., Feb. 25—(AP)—The state has presented all its evidence in its effort to convict Anthony Bimba of sedition under a recent law and of blasphemy under a statute 229 years old.

Tomorrow Marry Hoffman, attorney for the young communist editor of Brooklyn, will start calling his witnesses in an attempt to prove that Bimba did not urge the overthrow of the United States government, but only the clerical regime of Lithuania. Also, contending that Bimba had a perfect right to express his belief about the non-existence of the deity Hoffman hopes to prove that Bimba was criticizing the church and religion because the church was in power in Lithuania, and according to his statements was tryannizing the people there.

Whether Bimba will appear on the stand in his own defense was an open question. An early Massachusetts decision, which has since been affirmed, makes an atheist proven so by the testimony of others incompetent as a witness. As a defence counsel said, it was doubtful whether they would attempt to have Bimba testify for himself in view of this.

Eight witnesses for the prosecution testified in detail as to Bimba's utterances in Lithuanian National hall here on January 26, concerning God, religion and Christ. These statements, in substance, have been the same—"Popes, cardinals, bishops and priests, though they pose as spiritualists and democrats are in reality monarchists. They said there is a God somewhere above the clouds. There is no such thing. Who can prove it? They also tell men to pray. Men have prayed and built churches for the past 2,000 years and what have they got? They say man has a soul; why, I have a sole, but it is in my shoe."

Mike Usadvinus, the last witness, brought out detail on Bimba's report on industrial conditions in New England which had been only casually referred to by the others. Bimba, he said, in his address said that his hair stood on end at the conditions he found when he visited Haverhill factories, and that in Lawrence workers today made 1,000 yards of cloth for the same pay they used to get for making 300 yards. Women in Wilmington, Mass., had complained of being beaten in the factories there, Bimba told the audience, and in one plant he visited, a man was afraid to stop his work for a minute because he had to keep on top speed to make a living.

The sedition charge, the prosecution had drawn from the witnesses testimony that Bimba had declared that American workers must organise and overthrow the capitalistic government if they were to better their condition. Bimba, they said, had declared the capitalists believed that with machines they could produce enough with only half the workmen of the countries. "Lithuanians among Lithuanians, Poles among Poles, Russians among Russians, Jews among Jews, Irish among Irish and Yankees among Yankees, they are all organizing. Bimba was quoted in the testimony.

In response to a question the witnesses said Bimba had declared that the only flag he recognized was the Red flag and that it would float over Washington and over the Lithuanian Kovno, the capital of Lithuania, over hall in Brockton.

All agreed that Bimba had not said in what way the "overthrow" was to be accomplished, except by organization of the workers, but that he had said it would come "very soon." At the meeting he had been asked why he did not return to Russia and replied "The Russians fought their battle and obtained a good government. I will stay here and fight to secure for America a government like the soviet in Russia."

They testified that Bimba replied to another question that the reason he had foresworn the socialist party was because it believed in effecting the changes by ballot while the communists believe in revolution. He had urged the audience, they said, to join the communist party in America.

Through cross examination Attorney Hoffman tried to show that Bimba had been referring to the Lithuanian government when he advocated overthrow, and that at no time had he preached murder or violence in his speech.

From the questions asked in cross examination, Attorney Hoffman indicated that his defense against the blasphemy charge would be that Bimba had a right to deny the existence of a God, so long as he had no evil motive.

Since a part of the ancient statute refers to "contumeliously reproaching" God. Mr. Hoffman by close questioning on the exact Lithuanian words used by Bimba and their literal English equivalent showed that Bimba had used the Lithuanian word for "soul" when he spoke of his shoe and not the word which stands for "sole."

Few of the government's witnesses, all Lithuanians by birth, had any command of the English language and with all but three an interpreter was freely used. The court and defence favored having every bit possible of the testimony given in English while City Attorney I. Manuel Rubin several times attempted to get permission to use an interpreter.

Today, as yesterday, every seat in the court room was occupied.

A RADIO DEBATE ON PROHIBITION BY SENATORS EDWARDS AND BROOKHART

WASHINGTON, Feb. 25—(AP)—Sharply contrasting word pictures of prohibition were painted in a radio debate her tonight between Senators Edwards, democrat, New Jersey, speaking for the wets, and Brookhart, republican, Iowa, speaking for the drys.

Senator Brookhart described the eighteenth amendment as "our greatest victory in the world war" while Senator Edwards declared it and the Volstead act "were foisted upon a war-erazed people."

The New Jersey senator devoted much of his address to an attack upon the Anti-Saloon League and its general counsel, Wayne B. Wheeler, whom he called the "arch traitor of American liberty, freedom of thought and action." The speaker declared that "not even the sacred courts of our land are free from the poisonous taint of the league's filthy hands and breath."

Characterising as an "inexcusable lie" an assertion last Sunday by Mr. Wheeler that "prohibition has been a success," Senator Edwards said the league counsel's "pee-wee mind, and mental incapacity for grasping facts make him immune to convincing proof," that prohibition is a failure.

Asserting that liquor is obtainable "on every street and corner in Washington not fifteen minutes walk from the white house and capitol," Senator Edwards said it was a common sight to see young girls, some not yet out of their teens, staggering in and out of taxicabs, public dance halls, hotels and clubs, and on the streets."

Senator Brookhart told his audience that the complete answer to the claim that the eighteenth amendment did not represent the majority voice of the American people was found in its universal ratification by the states.

"The great victory" of prohibition has been a largely reduced consumption of alcohol in this country, Senator Brookhart said, adding that while there still are many violations of the law, its enforcement is becoming stronger and more successful all the time.

"In a few states, a majority are probably still wet in sentiment," he said, "but that sentiment can not long survive if the officers of the government do their duty.

"I therefore conclude that the American people may modify the Volstead act, but when they do it will be to make it stronger and not weaker. Let my friend from New Jersey bring his propositions to vote in the senate and in the house he will be snowed in many times over. These congressmen and senators know better the sentiment of their people than anybody else, and their votes upon the proposition are the most reliable index to the success of prohibition."

Just as the radio debate between the two senators, broadcast by Station WRC, was coming to an end, Representative Mary T. Norton, democrat, New Jersey, went on the air and reiterated her recently expressed contention that "those who say this country has improved, as a result of these sumptuary laws, (the 18th amendment and the Volstead act), know they are not speaking the truth."

Her address was broadcast by Station WMAL, from which Mr. Wheeler recently was heard in defense of prohibition. Mrs. Norton declared that the most serious question arising under existing conditions was the harm being done to boys and girls, mentally and physically.

Mr. Wheeler issued tonight in reply to the, New Jersey senator's statements, saying that 'like a lawyer whose case is bad, Senator Edwards abuses his opponents with names like 'arch traitor' while at the recent wet meeting he referred to himself and his associates as 'chaste Percivals' who seek to fill the holy grail with 2.75 per cent beer."

"Prohibition has been a failure from the standpoint of Senator Edwards and other advocates of the brewers," the Anti-Saloon League counsel continued. "That unredeemed pledge to make New Jersey wet as the Atlantic ocean rankles in his mind."

Third and Last Stay For Gerald Chapman

Under Protest Governor Trumbull Yesterday Granted a Reprieve Until April 6th.

HARTFORD, Feb. 25.—(AP)—Gerald Chapman's third and last reprieve from the death sentence imposed by the superior court was granted today by Governor Trumbull a few minutes before 5 o'clock, the stay of the penalty being until April 6. Chapman was to be hanged at the state's prison in Wethersfield on March 3, under a previous reprieve.

This will be the final stay of sentence for the convicted murdered of Policeman Skelly of New Britain. Gov. Trumbull declared after signing the reprieve under protest. Executive clemency was extended only upon the urgent plea of State's Attorney Hugh M. Alcorn at the request of Chapman's counsel.

CHAPMAN TO APPLY FOR A WRIT OF CERTIORARI

NEW YORK, Feb. 25.—(AP)—The reprieve granted Gerald Chapman today by Governor Trumbull of Connecticut clears the way for the appeal of the case to the United States supreme court, Frederick J. Groehl, Chapman's attorney, said tonight.

Mr. Groehl said that he will at once apply to the supreme court for a writ of certiorari. State's Attorney Alcorn of Connecticut will then be given two weeks in which to file a brief in opposition to the application.

If the writ is granted, the case will be put on the calendar and come up before the court for review. If it is refused, Mr. Groehl said, "that's the end as far as the supreme court is concerned."

CARD SHARP ARRESTED AS ABOUT-TO COLLECT WINNINGS

NEW YORK, Feb. 25.—(AP)—When James Collins, said to be a nationally known swindler, went to the Hotel Commodore tonight to collect $400 won in a card game from Arthur W. Wesseau, who said he was a member of the Swedish royal family, he was met by a detective and arrested for grand larceny.

Wesseau met Collins and a companion on a train from Chicago to New York last night. They started a card game, in which Wesseau lost $300 cash and an additional $400, which he promised to pay Collins tonight.

Friends convinced him he had been swindled and he called in police. Collins, police said, served a year in Mays Landing prison, New Jersey, for swindling John Gibson, a stock broker out of $58,000.

MOVE TO BAR THE COUNTESS OF CATHCART FROM FILMS

Action Taken by Officials Representing 80 Per Cent. of Theatre Owners in the United States and Canada—Exclusion of the Countess Based on an Endeavor to "Keep the Countess or Any Other Publicity-Made Person Out of Motion Pictures For the General Welfare of the Industry."

NEW YORK, Feb. 25—(AP)—Officials of the Motion Picture Theatre Owners of America, representing 80 per cent of the theatre owners in the United States and Canada, today took steps to bar the Countess of Cathcart from appearing in any motion picture production in America on the strength of publicity alone.

R. F. Woodhull, president of the motion picture owners' organization, appeared before a meeting of the American Motion Picture Advertisers and asked that organization to take similar action. He was assured by Glendon Alvine, president of the advisers, that he would have the full support of the advertising men.

The party given Monday night by Earl Carroll, theatrical producer, caused the action. It was reported that a nude chorus girl, reposing in a bathtub of wine, dispensed the beverage to guests, but this was emphatically denied by Carroll. Countess Cathcart was a guest at the party, but she denied that any such incident had occurred while she was there.

"The reason for this affair seems to center around the Countess Cathcart," said Mr. Woodhull, at the Advertisers' meeting. "If this is just another piece of advance publicity so her name would be a great attraction in the box office, I speak now for the 15,000 members of the Motion Picture Owners of America that we shall make every effort to prevent her from appearing on any of our screens.

"I appear before you this afternoon as the president of the Motion Picture Theatre Owners of America to request you in the name of my organization to discourage your employers, the producers, from even contemplating the extension of a contract to the Countess Cathcart unless what she has to offer evidences that she possesses real talent.

"Keep the countess or any other publicity-made person out of motion pictures for the general welfare of the industry. The Carroll party is especially to be regretted from the angle of the entertainment world."

IDENTIFIED THROUGH X-RAY PHOTOGRAPHS OF THE SKULL

NEW YORK, Feb. 25—(AP)—A new use for the X-ray was found today when the body of Woodbury E. Langdon, former Leland Stanford and Oxford student was drowned in the Indus at Kushmir, India, last year, was positively identified through X-ray photographs of his skull.

Mr. Langdon was drowned on June 2, 1925. The body was recovered a fortnight later far downstream. Identification of the body through the photographs was made by William Cruickshank, executor of the estate of Mr. Langdon's father, Woodbury G. Langdon.

Funeral services for Mr. Langdon will be held tomorrow at the church of the incarnation. Mr. Langdon is survived by his mother, Mrs. Sophia E. Langdon, of Boston, and two sisters.

WILL PROTEST DIVERSION OF WATERS FROM CONN. RIVER

HARTFORD, Feb. 25.—(AP)—The effect on the water supply in the Connecticut river because of the proposed diversion of the waters of its tributaries, the Ware and Swift rivers in Massachusetts, to other channels should be determined by an expert engineer in the employ of this state, Attorney General Healy has advised Governor Trumbull. Should the result of such investigation determine that the commercial interests or the people of Connecticut would be seriously affected, he advises that the courts be requested to intervene for the protection of the interests in this state.

DIVORCES ARE EASY AND NUMEROUS IN RUSSIA

LENINGRAD, Russia, Feb. 25—(AP)—The government has just published statistics which show that the average duration of marriages in Leningrad is only four years, there being 237 divorces each year for every 1,000 marriages. This condition is explained by the ease and small expense with which divorces can be obtained under the new soviet civil code. The only requriement being the expressed desire of either party that the marriage contract be annulled. A divorce costs only $2.

In 1925 there were 13.3 marriages for every 1,000 of Leningrad's population. In 1914 the figure was 6.4.

INTERVENTION IN BOSTON GARMENT WORKERS' STRIKE

BOSTON, Feb. 25—(AP)—The department of labor intervened today in the strike that started in 200 womens garment shops here this morning. Miss Anna Weinstock, commissioner of conciliation, assigned to the strike by Secretary Davis, talked with a number of contractors and arranged for a mass meeting of contractors for tomorrow, where she hoped terms of settlement would be discussed.

VICE PRESIDENT DAWES PROVOKED SENATOR REED

WASHINGTON, Feb. 25—(AP)—Blunt notice was served on Vice-President Dawes today by Senator Reed, democrat, Missouri, that the gavel would "not be used in this senate to cut off the rights of senators."

Standing in the front row on the republican side of the chamber, Senator Reed shook his finger at the vice-president as he delivered his ultimatum. Mr. Dawes, who was presiding, made no reply, but he moved forward in his chair as the senator began to speak.

Adverting to a situation which arose yesterday, Senator Reed contended that the vice-president had "gavelled" through a motion while Senator Blease, democrat, South Carolina, was seeking to appeal from a decision of the chair ruling out of order a motion he had made that the senate not concur in the conference report on the tax bill.

Giving his version of this event, Senator Robinson of Arkansas, the democratic leader, said the vice-president was right in his ruling that there was not "the slightest reason for denouncing the chair for the use of the gavel yesterday."

Senator Blease explained that after his motion was ruled out of order he announced that he would appeal; that the vice-president evidently thought he had appealed and then put the motion, after which he declared the chair sustained.

"As a matter of fact the chair did not give me time to appeal," Senator Blease said.

The flare up today came at the tail end of the session and reminded senators of the stirring day nearly a year ago when Senator Reed set out to "spank" Mr. Dawes for his lecture to the senate about its rules in his inaugural address and his abrupt thrusting aside of time-honored customs governing the swearing in of senators. At that time Senator Reed apparently was ready to deliver a stinging rebuke, but there was a recess of the senate and conferences held during the interval resulted in the adoption by the senate of a resolution of mild rebuke.

As he addressed the chair today, the Missouri senator showed evidence of deep feeling. After he had delivered his brief, but emphatic warning, he announced that this was all h eeared to say on the subject "at this time."

CONNECTED WITH RHODE ISLAND DIVORCE MILL

PROVIDENCE, R. I., Feb. 25—(AP)—The first skein has been spun in the inevitable legal tangle resulting from the exposure a year ago of the Rhode Island divorce mill with the filing of a petition in superior court here by Mrs. Mary Heath McGraw, of Battle Creek, Mich., former Ziegfeld Follies beauty to have her divorce decree vacated so that she may inherit the estate of her late husband, Howard A. McGraw, Detroit millionaire. Hearing has been ordered for March 16.

Attorney General Charles P. Sisson said today that the case was one he had investigated, and he was satisfied that fraud had been committed. As all the records in cases involving Leonard W. Horton, former master in chancery, and Francis P. Dougherty, attorney, operators of the divorce mill, are impounded under court order, pending disposition in supreme court, newspapermen were unable to obtain information regarding the case until today.

LARGE ANTWERP BANK HAS SUSPENDED PAYMENT

BRUSSELS, Feb. 25—(AP)—The suspension of payments by the Credit Foncier of Antwerp, one of the largest banks in Belgium, assumed the proportions of a scandal today when it was announced that the Antwerp authorities had arrested six persons, it being charged that the bank issued doctored statements for the last six years. Those arrested are a director, another official and former employes, and additional arrests are said to be imminent. The authorities have taken over all the bank's property.

While the exact figures as to losses are not known, it is believed they will be large.

TACNA-ARICA RULINGS AFFIRMED BY COOLIDGE

WASHINGTON Feb. 25—(AP)—President Coolidge today affirmed rulings of the Tacna-Arica plebiscite commission on all points involved in pending appeals by Chile and Peru involving registration and voting regulations.

Chief interest was attached to the denial of Peru's appeal against a ruling that would permit employes of the railway in the Provinces to vote. A considerable number of votes in the plebiscite, which is to determine whether Chile or Peru, has sovereignty over the provinces, may be made possible under this ruling.

Attorney Arthur T. Kelley is representing the complainant.

MASTER BARBERS ADVANCE HAIR CUT PRICE TO 50 CENTS

(Special to the Bulletin)

WILLIMANTIC, Feb. 25—The Willimantic Master Barbers' association has voted to increase the price of hair-cuts to 50 cents it was announced Thursday. The jump in price is five cents. This includes all "bobs" where shears are used. There was some discussion as to increasing the price of shaves, but this was finally voted as inadvisable. There are over a dozen master barbers represented in the association as follows: Arthur J. Squires, John Potvin Jr., Wilfred Chartier, A. J. Lariviere, representing Lariviere Brothers, Aime Clouthier, Joseph P. Gagnon, Thomas Handfield, Louis Delorme, William P. Elliott, Patrick J. Minnihan, Existe Mondor, Benoit Archambeault and Alex Menditto.

It is felt that if the barbers think fifty cents for a hair-cut a fair price and that they are entitled to it, they should have it. On the other hand, in these opinions, unless some radical change takes place in national economics, fifty cents is about the limit. It was not so very long ago that one could get a hair cut for 25 cents. As each extra nickel was tacked on to the price there was one thought given to still another five cents to come later. Now the round figure of the half dollar has been reached.

A new schedule of hours was also adopted by the barbers in answer to a petition from the members of Local No. 643, International Journeymen Barbers. Shops have been closing at 7 o'clock every week day but Saturday, when they closed at 9:30 o'clock and Thursday when they closed at noon. The new schedule calls for a 55-hour week and provides for closing at 6:15 o'clock Monday, Tuesday, Wednesday and Friday, at noon Thursday and at 9 p. m. Saturday, opening at 8 o'clock in the morning.

On the day preceding a holiday the shops will remain open until 9 o'clock and up to 11 a. m. on the holiday, except Labor Day and Christmas Day. The organization of the local Master Barbers' association was brought about ultimately for social purposes. Nominal dues will be paid to carry on this work.

Automobiles rollicked freely about and the dignity of many ladies and gentlemen was sadly impaired about the noon hour Thursday when falling rain instantly froze leaving all surfaces under a coating of glare ice. Brakes and chains on automobiles became useless. Cars waltzed helplessly especially on the ice-covered main street pavement. Many unusual automobile and pedestrian antics were witnessed on the Main street grade opposite the Hibbard block. At about o'clock a large five ton truck of the Economy Grocery company operated by Harmon C. Brower of 473 Park street, Hartford, came out of North street into Main street, heading east. The truck slid around to the south side of the main thoroughfare, coming to a stop against the curbing. Brower kept the front of the truck away from other cars but the rear end struck a Dodge truck owned by the Rockville-Willimantic Lighting company which was parked. Part of the top and the left running board and fender of the truck were damaged. Officer Roderick Lariviere who witnessed the accident considered it unavoidable. Chains were adjusted on the truck and it was driven off. Although hundreds of people made a rapid change from the perpendicular to the horizontal no injuries, outside of shake-ups were reported.

Ellen Linnette Wilcox, 82, widow of Wallace W. Wilcox, died at her home, 1113 Main street at two o'clock Thursday afternoon. She was born in South Coventry, January 8, 1844, a daughter of Jessie and Elmira Robertson Tefft. Surviving are three sons, Dr. George E. Wilcox of this city, Edward L. Wilcox of East Hampton and Wells S. Wilcox of Willimantic and also three daughters, Mrs. Mary Bothan of Mansfield Depot, Mrs. J. J. Dennison of East Boston, Mass., and Miss Ruth Wilcox of Mansfield Depot.

Mrs. Alice Johnson Bugbee, wife of Attorney E. Frank Bugbee, who died at the College Arms Hotel, Deland, Florida, was a graduate of Natchaug high school and Wesleyan Academy, also in dramatic art from the New England Conservatory, Boston. She was recognized for having rare abilities which made her life distinctive and she won the love of many through her charitable and altruistic disposition. Her club activities were many. She was twice regent of Anne Wood Elderkin Chapter No. 23, D. A. R. in the organization of which she became a member January 6, 1898 she was also in the offices of treasurer, corresponding secretary and recording secretary. She was a member of the First Congregational church. Her ancestors were among the founders of both Massachusetts and Connecticut.

The funeral of Eugene Young, whose tragic death occurred Thursday Feb. 18, and was announced in The Bulletin, was held at the church at Union Center Sunday afternoon, Feb. 21. Rev. Henry A. Coolidge was the officiating clergyman. The bearers were William Ferry, P. E. Tyler, H. R. Howard and Alva Sands. Two ladies from Southbridge sang the hymns "Abide With Me" and "Sometime We'll Understand." These were the same selections which were used at the funeral of Mr. Young's only son, Harry E. Young, a short time ago. It is felt that sorrow and despondency over the loss of this son led to the father's fatal act to end his own life. The church was well filled with relatives and friends of Mr. Young and his family. The flowers were very beautiful. Burial was in the family lot in Union Center cemetery. Mr. Young was the son of Richmond Young and Mary Stone Young. He was born in Holland, Mass., and had resided in Union about fifteen years. He left four daughters, Mrs. Raymond Hathaway, Mrs. Harold Gilbronson and Miss Bernice Young of this town and Mrs. Russell J. Harmon of Stafford Springs. Besides his widow, Mrs. Oss Belcher Young, there are five brothers and three sisters.

PLAINFIELD

TARBOX-SQUIRES WEDDING AT HOME OF BRIDE'S PARENTS

(Special to The Bulletin.)

PAINFIELD, Feb. 24 — Yesterday afternoon Miss Maud Squires, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Clifford Squires of South Plainfield and Sylvester Tarbox, son of Herbert Tarbox were married by the Rev. William C. Prentiss, at the home of the bride's parents. Many friends attended. The house was beautifully decorated with American flags and bunting and the bride's mother served a delicious repast to the guests. Shortly after the ceremony Mr. and Mrs. Tarbox left for Boston on a wedding trip, and upon their return will reside in Plainfield.

At the wedding, the maid of honor was Miss Gladys E. Squires and the best man was Clifford W. Burdick.

According to the reports of the selectmen of the town, the cost of removing the snow from the highways of the town of Plainfield this year, will exceed by a large margin, the figures of any season for the last ten years. The exact amount, will not be available for some time, as a number of farmers in the outlying districts, where the maintenance crews were unable to reach during the severe snowstorms, had to shovel themselves out, and in some cases, shoveled for good distances, on the roads, have not yet submitted their bills for their work. There are about 95 miles of roads in the town, including country roads and streets, and 35 miles of these are included in the Plainfield district. Of this section only about one half mile is in streets, the largest being Babcock avenue. In the present condition of this street, at the lower end, there is little or no drainage, and a grade line set at the time of acceptance by the town makes it impossible to improve, except by laying a modern type of road surface. The attitude of the selectmen, with recard to this stretch of road, which they admit, is in a bad condition, is to have the state accept it.

Miss Celia Israel has returned from Hartford where she was visiting relatives for a few days.

DOMINION GOV'T IS TO DISCUSS LOCARNO TREATY

OTTAWA, Feb. 25—(AP)—Premier Baldwin's announcement today that an imperial conference would be held next October revived discussion here of Canada's attitude toward the treaty of Locarno, which, it is understood, will be one of the principal subjects for discussion by the Dominion representatives. Although a recent report that the Canadian government would lay before the house of commons a resolution dissociating itself from the security pact was officially denied, there is considerable doubt in well-informed circles whether Canada will be willing to assume additional obligations in Europe by reason of the Locarno agreement.

It was pointed out today that the security pact was concluded by Great Britain without consulting the dominions and that Sir Austen Chamberlain explained that the treaty itself specifically provided that no British dominion would assume any obligations under it unless the dominion signified its acceptance.

DEFENSE TESTIMONY IN MANTON DIVORCE SUIT

NEW YORK, Feb. 25—(AP)—William Kevitt Manton today described as a "huge joke" a telegram, containing affectionate phrases, alleged to have been sent to him by Marjorie Rambeau, theatrical star, named as corespondent in Mrs. Manton's divorce suit.

Miss Rambeau's finance, Albert Edward Anson, an actor, testified that he sent the message.

Miss Rambeau, who took the stand late in the day, burst into tears as she vehemently denied allegations of improprieties with Manton.

Manton testified that he had been employed by Miss Rambeau as a cuest, his duties being to read the portions of speeches immediately preceding her lines while she was learning a part for a new play.

He said that in this work he was available at any time, having sometimes been called at 1:30 a. m. He testified that they were rehearsing a new play on the night of August 29, when Mrs. Manton visited Miss Rambeau's apartment at that hour and found Miss Rambeau in negligee.

He asserted that, contrary to allegations, he was fully clothed, except for his coat and collar, which he had removed because of the heat.

In answer to a question by his attorney he pronounced his wife as "undoubtedly the most attractive woman in the world." When asked directly if he had any improper relations with Miss Rambeau he answered, "I certainly did not, never in my life."

The telegram, which Mrs. Manton stated in her petition caused her first to be suspicious of her husband, was quoted as follows:

"Darling, I love you and nothing can keep us apart but the Harlem. As the old conniver said 'Don't be carniverous!' Your old pal in crime—Marjorie Rambeau."

Anson, who said he expected to marry Miss Rambeau before June, testified that he sent the telegram to Manton as a "humorous message" on the occasions of the opening of Miss Rambeau's show, in which Manton had a small part. Anson asserted that the phrase, "your pal in crime," was only a stock quotation of the theatrical profession.

Miss Rambeau said the play which she was rehearsing required technical study day and night.

"Did you make yourself 'comfortable that night?" she was asked, referring to the night of the raid.

"I had a perfect right to," she answered.

She testified she reclined on her bed in night dress.

"Was it the old fashioned kind—around the neck?"

"No, it was not flannel," she answered.

Marion Phelps and Harry Lund, of West Palm Beach, Fla., were landed at Cristobal, Canal Zone, by the British motorship Silverelm, which had picked them up about 70 miles off Miami after they had been tossed in an open boat in rough seas for four days.

HELP YOURSELF TO HEALTH

H. K. Kellogg

This thing will dull the brightest "star"

YOU probably know this story, or one amazingly like it. It deals with a young man who started out "with everything"—who made brilliant progress for a time—became a "star"—had his little hour . . . and then faded. . . . What vicious thing can so transform a man? Can make a strong heart weak? An energetic body spineless? . . .

Constipation ruins so many promising persons—a dread disease which saps life and strength. The fortunate fact about constipation is that it can be conquered—surely, safely, permanently. Kellogg's ALL-BRAN is the answer!

As Kellogg's ALL-BRAN journeys through the system, its fiber remains unchanged. Doctors call ALL-BRAN a bulk food. You know the importance of "bulk" in diet. Its delightful nutty flavor makes it good as a cereal. Serve with milk or cream, or with fresh or preserved fruit; sprinkle over other cereals or cook with hot cereals; use in soups or make into the many recipes given on the package. If eaten regularly, ALL-BRAN is guaranteed to bring permanent relief or money refunded. Eat two tablespoonfuls daily—in chronic cases, with every meal.

Be sure to get Kellogg's ALL-BRAN. Only ALL-BRAN brings sure results. A part-bran product can, at best, be but partially effective. Kellogg's is the original, genuine 100% ALL-BRAN. Doctors recommend it. All grocers sell it. Leading hotels and restaurants serve it.

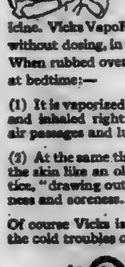
Don't dose a Child's Cold



CHILDREN hate to be dosed with medicine. Vicks VapoRub relieves colds, without dosing, in two ways at once. When rubbed over throat and chest at bedtime:—

(1) It is vaporized by the body heat and inhaled right to the inflamed air passages and lungs;

(2) At the same time it acts through the skin like an old-fashioned poultice, "drawing out" the pain, tightness and soreness.

Of course Vicks is just as good for the cold troubles of adults.

DANIELSON

VOLUNTEER FIREMEN SPEND STRENUOUS HOUR AT DAYS' END

(Special to The Bulletin.)

DANIELSON, Feb. 25—In the midst of a wild southeast storm, at exactly 8 o'clock Thursday night, volunteer firemen who had been at work all day, responded to an alarm that called them to Cottage street, to extinguish a blaze in a burning automobile of Albert Rickey, a coach driver for the Connecticut Co. The firemen were barely back to quarters when another alarm from Box 56, called them to the corner of Broad and Franklin streets for a chimney fire at an old tavern now occupied as a residence by Mrs. Benoit Tetreault, the owner, and other tenants as apartments. There was no real damage at either fire. The firemen took a wonderful wetting and were an hour late for supper—all of which is a part of the duty of serving the public, which is very frequently disinterested in the fine things that the firemen do for the community.

SOUTHERN NEW ENGLAND MIGHT TAKE TIP FROM FLORIDA

(Special to The Bulletin.)

DANIELSON, Feb. 25—That item about A. A. Dagenais, of Central Village winning a $1,000 lot at Pensacola, Fla., after responding to a radio suggestion that persons hearing the broadcast send telegrams of greeting, would appear to carry a message for eastern Connecticut.

There are twelve months in each year and every one of them is vacation months for someone. At least six months of weather in southern New England are delightful for outings—spring, summer and fall, or parts of spring and fall. Southern New England does not seem to be doing very much about it. It has not, from any outward appearance sensed the fact that much of the alluring sentiment about Florida has been created by ballyhoo—advertising, if one will. Take away the publicity that Florida has had, good and bad, in the past five years, and one takes away all the stories about fabulous fortunes made over night, of 50-cent house lots selling for $10,000, and other such unusual phenomena.

But if that is what the nation wants, and is willing to pay for it, why not sell the nation southern New England? It has much to sell. There are a million people in this country who would pay $20 a day to live in a hotel close by the Wolf Den, with its historic traditions, not to mention the side trips one might take to Brooklyn and Thompson and Killingly, all with as much history as any Florida community can present.

It has been the job of men with vision to endeavor during the past three years to lift off the pessimism arising from the propaganda that New England is dying. The chances are that New England is doing nothing of the kind. It has more to "sell" the rest of the nation, in sentimental, as well as real values, than any other section thereof. But it isn't doing it.

If southern New Englanders could be induced to invest a small fraction of their incomes in ballyhooing this part of the nation it likely would pay tremendous returns. Possibly the reason why they are not doing it is because no central organization is encaged in trying to have them do it.

This appears to be a matter that should claim the attention of Norwich, Willimantic, Putnam, Danielson and all the other communities in this corner of the state, as beautiful as any in New England, be it said. Possibly it is a job for the chambers of commerce.

One can visualize scores of big camps, such as one encounters in northern New England, in the Adirondacks and in a score of other places in the east that have been alive to their opportunities in getting vacationists' and tourists' money, located in this part of Connecticut. One can conjure up the building of summer hotels, the boosting of the patronage of established inns and increased revenue for merchants, if the Florida idea of drum-beating is adopted here. This may not be regarded as according to best practices here, but some times best practices merely mean a system of politely starving to death while the wires are garnering the kopecks that buy entry anywhere and are in all compelling argument in about every corner of the globe. Southern New England has much to sell besides antiques, but it is doing nothing about it. Instead of being a bit envious of Florida, southern New England, especially this part of it, has a chance to make itself the summer Florida of the north. Maybe it will decide to do it. One never can tell about southern New England. It can accomplish miracles if it sets its mind to the task. Witness what it did during the World war, particularly in absorbing the Liberty loan issues!

Thursday afternoon, at the Union Baptist church in East Killingly, funeral services for Charles Henry were conducted by Rev. W. D. Hetherington, the pastor. Relatives and friends were in attendance. The body was entombed at the Bartlett cemetery, in East Killingly. Louis E. Kennedy was in charge of the funeral arrangements.

There was a funeral service Thursday morning at All Hallows' church, Moosup, for Miss Ellen Ouillette, who died at Norwich and whose body was brought here Wednesday. Rev. Oscar Normand was celebrant of the high mass of requiem. Burial was in All Hallows' cemetery. The bearers were Valmore Ouillette, Charles Hubert, James Chamberland and Eugene Belivance. Louis E. Kennedy was in charge of the funeral arrangements.

Members of Quinebaug Pomona grange are receiving copies of the Handbook of the organization for 1926, and find it informative and in a number of ways more complete than ever before. Mrs. Susie G. Williams, secretary of Quinebaug Pomona, was largely instrumental in preparing the material that enters into the publication and in soliciting the advertising that each year is such an important feature of its arrangement. The Handbook gives much information of value to grangers. It lists the meetings arranged for the current year, the subordinate granges in the jurisdiction and the members each has in Pomona, lists of officers, meeting nights of various granges, etc.

Financing the Killingly High school construction proposition will not be a difficult matter, it is said by those in touch with the problem. The town's credit is good and the bonds to be issued will almost certainly be taken at an advantageous figure for Killingly.

Photographs of the immense snowbanks in this corner of the state, taken early in the month have been sent out of this territory to Florida, that the people who are enjoying beautiful weather down there may know from good evidence that eastern Connecticut is having a real old-fashioned winter.

It has been noted by many tourists that the Connecticut highway department is ahead of the Rhode Island highway department in respect to sanding steep grades, curves and dangerous hills. Rhode Island does not give attention to this detail of safety, at least not on highways coming to the borders of this part of Connecticut.

State police have issued some tags to car drivers, indicating that the lighting equipment on the machines involved is not exactly what it should be and that the defects should be given attention.

Progress is being made on the repairs to the state armory and will be completed in the not distant future. The repairs, authorized by the state at the last session of the legislature, will cost several thousand dollars.

It was recalled Thursday that the New Haven road at one time had a project on for developing a freight switching yard in Danielson, along Railroad street, where considerable land was acquired—and a number of houses and one sidetrack built. It is unlikely that motor truck transportation has had something to do with the holding of this plan in abeyance.

Mid-week Lenten services were held at St. Alban's church, Thursday evening, as will be the custom during the Lenten period. The sermons will be by visiting preachers.

This (Friday) afternoon at a meeting of St. Alban's Sewing society at the parish house the contents of the dry socks will be counted.

Item in this column Thursday pertaining to the death of Mrs. Olive Oatley, East Killingly centenarian, the text should that she had been critically ill ten days—not the past ten.

There must be a rush on for motor operators' licenses at the state house in Hartford. Applications to be made last Sunday had increased as late as Thursday afternoon.

The heaviest storm developing Wednesday afternoon Thursday and lasting well into Thursday night, packed away at the foot of the mercury like concrete to those living in eastern Connecticut and northern Rhode Island about a difficult and hazardous task because it brought slippery conditions.

A picture feature that has given much patron a laugh was the Gold Rush featuring Charlie Chaplin, at the Bijou Opheum theatre at Wednesday and Thursday's shows.

Principal E. R. Warren of Killingly High school has plans for the setting out of 1,500 apple trees the coming spring on the Warren homestead, Green Hollow road, where he has made many improvements during the past year.

Measles are an affliction attacking numbers of Danielson young people in this late winter season, and the ailment is also reported from a number of nearby towns.

J. Carl Witter and N. A. Witter have been engaged all the week in selling at auction a hardware and mill supply stock in a store at Putnam, the sale attracting many people.

More Danielson stops for motor coaches of the Connecticut company are being sought by business interests and the matter is under consideration by the company.

Killingly's board of relief has finished its work for 1926. There were less than a dozen applications for modifications from the assessments fixed by the assessors and none of these involved any great amount of money.

Members of Killingly grange will attend a meeting of Quinebaug Pomona grange at which members of Plainfield grange will be the hosts in Grange hall. A program of special interest has been arranged.

PUTNAM

MAROT SCHOOL SECRETARY SLIPS ON ICE, BREAKS ARM

(Special to The Bulletin)

PUTNAM, Feb. 25—Mrs. Lillian Reynolds, secretary of the Howe-Marot school at Thompson was taken to the Day Kimball hospital, Putnam suffering from a broken arm. In stepping from an automobile she slipped on the ice and fell, breaking her arm.

CARGILL COUNCIL, K. of C., PLANS MEMBERSHIP DRIVE

(Special to The Bulletin)

PUTNAM, Feb. 25—The Knights of Columbus of this city are planning a membership drive and for this season have decided to reduce the initiation fee from $15 to $10 for six months. Cargill Council already numbers about 250 members. The charter of the Putnam lodge was one of the first issued and a majority of the charter members are still living and actively interested in the organization.

GILPATRIC EXAMINATION WILL BE ENDED SATURDAY

(Special to The Bulletin)

PUTNAM, Feb. 25—The examination of G. Harold Gilpatric regarding his transactions as cashier will be concluded Saturday. Mr. Gilpatric will be taken to Hartford Sunday night or early Monday morning. Before Saul Bermack, referee in bankruptcy, at 10 o'clock Monday morning creditors of Gilpatric's estate will be given an opportunity to question him about any and every phase that has a bearing on the case. The hearing will be in the federal court room.

At the short calendar session of superior court in this city Friday, with Judge Edwin C. Dickenson presiding, the suit of Arthur E. Howard, Jr., trustee in bankruptcy of the Gilpatric estate, against Mrs. Rose Lavine will come up for hearing.

The action is for the recovery of $2,500 in notes claimed to have been given by Mrs. Lavine for money advanced her by Gilpatric. The defendant denies owing any money to the former cashier of the First National bank. The first note is dated March 3, 1924, and is for $1,000; on March 10, April 26 and May 28, 1924 there are notes of $500 each. In a deposition made by Gilpatric while in Atlanta prison he says that the money was advanced to Mrs. Lavine to enable her to complete alterations on her house on Mechanics street, Putnam.

It is further declared in this deposition that the front of the Lavine house, which is on a desirable residential street, was in a "deplorable" condition, an eyesore to the neighbors, and that the addition she purposed building would depreciate the value of property in that section. He tried to dissuade her according to deponent, from keeping on with her plans, but without fail. When the work was completed Mrs. Lavine was to have executed a mortgage note for the amount for which suit is brought, and to have agreed to pay $50 a month until the loan was repaid.

Mrs. Lavine alleges that Gilpatric loaned her money which she repaid to him in four installments, that Gilpatric offered her to sign a receipt that these receipts are the notes on which she is now being sued. The notes of March 10 and 26 were made out in blank by Mrs. Lavine who asserts that they were drawn made payable to him, but that the money was not loaned by him.

The car driven by Michael White, R. F. D., mail carrier No. 2 collided with the Providence bus in Woodstock at the so called blind corner near the Chandler school house. The mail car was pushed back and overturned. Mr. White escaped with a few cuts and bruises and after the car was righted and found practically uninjured, finished his route. The bus received more damage and it was some little time before it was able to proceed.

ROBBER TODAY FACES QUICKER ARREST THAN OLD TIME BANDIT

LOS ANGELES, Feb. 25 (AP)—Mounted, sombrero-clad robbers of the early days, who attacked stage coaches as they rumbled over rough trails, had a slight advantage over the present day bandit in so far as escape was concerned, but once caught, justice descended more swiftly.

In making a comparison of the strokes of justice leveled at mail robbers in the frontier period with that of today, local police and postal inspectors reached this decision. The officers had just captured six members of a gang that had executed a bold half-million dollar hold up of a mail truck in October.

When captured, the old robber usually was hanged to the nearest tree, while the modern outlaw is indicted, arraigned, has legal counsel for protection at trial, and does not fear the gallows, unless a murder has been committed in connection with the hold up.

Pursuit of the old stage robber began several hours after the hold-up by a hastily recruited posse, with but a vague idea of the criminal's identity. Today, a finger print on a rifled mail bag may lead to the capture of an entire gang. Photography, telephone, radio, complete criminal record bureaus and many other attributes now hasten the capture of robbers.

URUGUAYANS PARTIAL TO THE ENGLISH LANGUAGE

English is a popular study in Uruguay, according to a report just received by the Secretary of State from C. Gaylord Marsh, American consul at Montevideo. For a long time Latin was an obligatory study for the students of the university of the country; then English was permitted as an elective instead of Latin; finally Latin was supressed as an obligatory study and English was required of all. All students in secondary schools must take either English or German, and comparatively few elect German.

The study of English has become more and more fashionable, says Consul Marsh. Private students of English, especially ladies, have largely increased in numbers, and this has caused a great increase in the number of teachers: but really competent teachers are few.—School Life.

William C. Bond Who Enjoyed Looking at the Stars

When William Bond, in 1846, looked at Hyperion, he was the first of all living creatures on earth to see the star—and not many have seen it since his time. Hyperion is one of those tiny worlds that are forever invisible to the unaided eye, and invisible to any except the very best of telescopes. It is, in fact, a moon that belongs to the planet, surrounded by strange rings, planet, surrounded by strange rings, many in number. William Bond not only was the first man to see Hyperion, but he was also the first man to see one of the most strange of all the rings of Saturn. When William Bond was a boy up in Maine he lived a simple, home-keeping life in which good, healthful work played a great part.

In the winter time, when deep snow covered all the fields and the pine trees stood out like green-clad sentinels, young William Bond looked up at the scintillating stars overhead and wondered what they are made of, and if people lived in distant worlds far off in space. He did his work as a Maine boy always does, but he kept on wondering about the stars. So the years passed by and in his studies William Bond gained an education that fitted him to become an astronomer. Finally he made an observatory and set out to see what he could observe in the sky. He was as patient in looking at the stars, and in recording all that he saw as he had been in studying. He began to see things that no one else had ever seen before. College-educated astronomers came to consult him. Learned societies honored the amateur astronomer.

Harvard, the proudest of universities, called upon him to take charge of its great observatory, and the United States government asked him to prepare plans for its scientific work in connection with astronomy. The more he looked at the stars, the more William Bond felt his eagerness to know increased. He began to plan new ways of observing the heavens, and new ways of measuring the worlds of the sky. He was among the first to conceive the daring plan to photograph the stars and make them tell their own stories. He died in 1859, at the age of 70, a man who became great because he sought knowledge.

FRESH MILK SHIPPED FROM WISCONSIN TO MIAMI, FLA.

NEW YORK, Feb. 25—(AP)—A shipment of tuberculin tested fresh milk has just been successfully carried by rail from the dairy district of Wisconsin to Miami, Florida, a distance of about 1,340 miles in a new type of glass-lined tank car built by the General American Tank Car corporation. The trip took four days. The tank car is equipped with a refrigerating system, a circulating device to keep the butter fat mixed and electric unloading pumps. The two glass-lined seamless steel tanks on each car hold 3,000 gallons.

The man who tries to drown his troubles always seems to have an idea that they are located in his stomach.

LABOR AND HOMES

There is much to be commended in the movement that has been begun under the direction of officials of the railroad brotherhood that seeks to increase home ownership among workers and to bring about economical financing of such purchases. Communities where the custom of families owning the homes they occupy is rooted strongly will generally be found desirable places in which to reside, for home ownership tends to preserve and cultivate the best features of the social order while acting as a deterrent to the intrusion of evil.

The movement that has been started, if directed wisely and kept away from the speculative influences of some real estate enterprises, ought to succeed. The idea, as set forth by W. G. Lee, president of the Brotherhood of Railroad Trainmen and chairman of the board of directors of the project is to bring about the cooperation of all workers and capitalists interested in giving the average man and woman an opportunity to finance home ownership on an economical basis. This subject has been receiving much thought in the last few years, special consideration being given the possibility of reducing the carrying charges when homes are purchased on the deferred payment plan.

Should success attend the plan in which the heads of the railroad workers have interested themselves, it can be counted on to spread. The wish to have a home of one's own is traceable to the land hunger instinct which is present in everybody. To make easier the response to it is to build a better stabilized scheme of society and stimulate the creative spirit. What is being proposed and supported by the heads of the railway workers reflects sound vision and economic statesmanship of a type that wins admiration.

COOLIDGE AND AIR DEFENSE

Seeing the development of an era of competitive building of military aircraft if there should be an inordinate expansion of the air forces of this country, President Coolidge has made known his opposition to such a programme. He believes that it goes far towards undoing the efforts made hitherto along the lines of reduction of armaments and the substitution of arbitration for force in settling international disputes.

It is well to remind air defense enthusiasts that militarism is not confined in its expression to soldiers and battleships. There is no gain for peace in shifting competition in armaments from the army and the navy to the air. Since the war it has been recognized that the new militarism will find its outlet in the building of submarines and aircraft. This country took the initiative in reducing naval armaments, and while our military and naval bureaucracies have neglected to develop an adequate air force, we do not now wish to be in the position of shifting our military preparation to a pronounced expansion of our air force.

Colonel Mitchell doubtless performed a great service in showing up the actual situation as to aviation, but to follow out his recommendations would, as the president says, stimulate competition in the air and give the lie to all our peaceful pretensions. The public, it seems likely, stands with Colonel Mitchell against the bureaucracy and it would gladly support the president in his effort to steer a middle course in the matter of armaments of all kinds. At the same time the president would have the backing of the public if he should elect to go the full length in a fight against militarism by cooperating with other nations in the building up of machinery that would serve as an alternative for military force in promoting peace and security.

BETTER WEATHER SERVICE

Benefits to aviators and business interests generally are urged as one of the results that would follow the adoption of a change of time for the observations upon which the weather bureau bases its predictions. It is proposed that the time these observations are made shall be at 6 a. m. and 6 p. m., Eastern Standard time, which is two hours earlier than the present practice.

To a large part of the public the ordinary forecasts displayed in prominent form by the newspapers represent about all they know of the services which the weather bureau renders. But this represents only a small part of its activities. There are the special forecasts which keep the mariner safe in port when storms sweep the coast, tell the farmer when to sow and when to reap, warn the orchardist of the impending frost, and give the shipper of perishable commodities information of the temperature to which his goods will be subjected in their journey to market.

It is proposed now to extend the service which the weather bureau gives by making forecasts at seven-been regular stations along the more frequently traveled air routes and near the principal flying fields. In its service to promote safety and preserve life, it would seem that the time has arrived for the inauguration of service that shall extend to the navigators of the air a protection equal to what is furnished the navigators of the sea.

It seems to go without saying that to have the information at hand two hours earlier than at present would be of benefit to men engaged in many lines of activity. The case for the earlier observation is strengthened by the adoption of daylight-saving time in the summer months. Here is a situation that may well be taken into account in listing the advantages to flow from the earlier distribution of the morning forecast.

Here is a government activity which reaches a vast number of people and should be liberally maintained and extended as occasion arises.

AN EDUCATIONAL EXPERIMENT

In higher educational circles the definite announcement of the Johns Hopkins plan to "abolish the college" is looked upon as of wide significance. On the fiftieth anniversary of the establishment of the university, Dr. Frank J. Goodenow, the president, asserts that the experiment will get under way as rapidly as the necessary funds are provided.

Johns Hopkins thus goes back to the principles upon which it was founded—those of the graduate and research school, unhampered by the burden and activities implied by a student body of college age and outlook. Freshmen and sophomore courses are to be dropped. The university is to grant degrees—aside from those in engineering and in medicine—only to masters of arts and doctors of philosophy.

This is an experiment that has for some years been crying to be made, and the Johns Hopkins, because of its traditions as a university, and, possibly because of its lack of traditions as a college, is the ideal place to make it. If the college, with all it implies, has recently been running away with our institutions of higher learnings, as is the view of some educators, it is about time that the university should have a fair chance to run away with at least one of the colleges. The Hopkins experiment is one of capital significance: it is destined, perhaps, to affect our entire educational outlook.

HARD VS. SOFT COAL

In Massachusetts, where, more than in any other New England state, the attempt was made to induce the use of semi-bituminous coal instead of anthracite during the coal strike, the chairman of the state fuel commission declares that the people will have "about $45,000,000 a year to spend for more useful purposes than burning it up in the fire." If they will continue to burn low-volatile bituminous coal. A financial review in a Boston newspaper assumes this development as likely, saying: "We fear the anthracite industry is in for a bad time. The people of New England and New York who are the principal users of anthracite, were educated during the recent strike to the use of substitutes."

The situation raises the interesting question of just how much of a lasting effect the campaign to replace anthracite by semi-bituminous has had and whether the enforced use of soft coal has so weaned the people from their first love that substitutes to anthracite will hold a firm place hereafter. Before any accurate answer to that question can be given it would seem that we must wait for another season when purchasers will be able to exercise a choice as there will then be, according to all indications, sufficient stocks of both hard and soft coal on hand.

Reports from some large cities, particularly New York, seem to indicate that the return to hard coal will be as prompt and as general as is possible. Since the use of soft coal in the metropolis, the smoke-laden fog and smoky haze on clear days have been subject of many jests that New Yorkers have not appreciated and it is not likely that New York will be willing to continue its emulation of Pittsburgh and lose its distinction of being a city of clear air and liberal sunshine.

Many cities of the middle west burn soft coal exclusively becoming inured to their smoky haze without visible impairment of health and happiness, but it is probable that the love of clear air and the desire to keep laundry charges to a minimum will be considerations against any large adoption of bituminous coal in the residential and mercantile sections of eastern cities.

BREAKFAST DRAMA

"Don't run the water so hot this time!" Ronald called a bit petulantly from where he still lay in bed. "I ah'd think you'd try it with your hand and see—and is there any more of that new soap?"

Rose straightened up from bending over the tub and bit her lip. "I'll look," she said and pulled a chair along in order to reach the top closet shelf where the soap was stored. In the next room the baby cried vigorously for attention. He wanted to be picked up, fed, carried about, anything to change the scenery. Dropping the soap into the holder she sped to the kitchen, a sixth sense warning her that the coffee percolator was about to boil over. The baby shrieked harder.

"I haven't got any bath towel!" Donald called from the bathroom. "I ah'd think you might see that there are towels and things! Don't you hear the baby?"

Rose was a little breathless as she handed towels in through the door and hurried to the screaming child. He ceased his cries instantly and made contented little noises as he cuddled against her neck and shoulder. Still carrying him she finished setting the breakfast table with the other hand.

"Did my suit come back from the tailor's?" Donald asked as he emerged from the bathroom.

"N-no," Rose confessed. "I telephoned twice and he promised—can't you wear the gray one?"

There was a grim silence for answer and the crease grew between her brows, for this was enough to upset Ronald for the day, wearing a suit that had begun to look shiny. She surveyed the broiler full of toast anxiously, snatching it out when it was exactly the right shade of brown and covering it with a napkin. Then with everything handy at Ronald's plate she started back with the baby and his bottle.

Ronald met them in the little hall. Looked at impersonally he was exceedingly good to gaze upon—tubbed, shaved, crisp and handsome. A sudden dislike for her own hastily waddled up hair and mussed up kingham all-over apron swept her. She did not even have her nose powdered.

"I don't see why you can't tend to a simple thing like getting a suit back on time!" Ronald protested. "I've to see an important man today and this rig looks like the poorhouse! I've got to get another suit right away, so as to be certain to have a decent one on hand! Say, I believe I'd like some scrambled eggs this morning, too! I've a hard day ahead!"

"All right," agreed Rose. "Just a minute!" Carrying the baby back to his crib she fixed him comfortably with his bottle but when she turned to leave he dropped it and screamed. Twice he did this. Evidently he intended she should stay with him.

"Oh," Rose begged him hopelessly, "Ronnie, please be good and eat your milk, and let mother go-by-by, sweetness!"

She flew back to the kitchen and began breaking the eggs into a bowl. Down the hall little Ronnie protested at his loneliness and in the dining room Ronald flapped his paper irritably at the sound. The pan was too hot and the eggs sputtered as she stirred them. She felt the all-gone feeling that pays one for too much exercise on an empty stomach, but she remembered to go to the refrigerator for a bit of parsley to adorn the mound of golden eggs and carried it in. Ronald was just pushing back his chair. "I haven't time," he said with what seemed resignation. "When I work my head off to keep up a home it does seem as though a little attention might be paid to my breakfast! G'bye!"

He kissed her with the air of exuding forgiveness. "I wish you'd do your hair properly mornings," he said. "Looks like the deuce!" He departed briskly.

Alone at the table, little Ronnie gurgling beside her happily, Rose sat sipping her coffee. It was not hot enough but somehow she lacked ambition to take it out to heat. And cold toast did not attract her. She ate her melon soberly and looked around the dainty breakfast room. Her home was certainly pretty. And the baby — she hugged him suddenly. There wasn't a particle of sense in remembering how the woman across the hall had gushed yesterday and said, "I do think you have the handsomest husband! He always looks so well-groomed and capable and pleasant! He's just my ideal for a young man!" Rose began carrying out the dishes. — Chicago News.

From Small Beginnings

Jerry McAuley, a Great Reformer

An 18-year-old boy stood before a judge and listened to words of condemnation. In his heart burned fierce fires of anger and of bitterness. He was a sullen, ugly-looking boy, with an evil look. He spoke in the language of the criminals, and he was known as the companion and associate of some of the worst people in New York city. Suddenly he heard the judge with the severe face sentence him to Sing Sing prison. Who that was in the court that day, looking upon the prisoner and upon the judge, would have dreamed for a moment that the prisoner would rise to fame and that the judge would remain unknown; that the prisoner would become one of the great forces for good and that the judge would continue on his round of dreary duties! What man, indeed, can worthily judge his fellow-man!

Jerry McAuley, the prisoner, had indeed been wayward and evil; he had committed more than one offense against the law, and now at 18 he was to receive his penalt. Like one of Fagin's boys in Charles Dickens' "Oliver Twist," Jerry had been brought up in crime. He had come from Ireland when he was 18 and for five years had known the slums of New York. He had learned wrong-doing as at a school for crime. Was there hope for such a man.

In those days there was little hope for a jailbird. Jerry McAuley plunged back into the seething maelstrom of the slums, and into companionship with the vicious and the criminal. He became once more a citizen of the "underworld."

Now came the miracle! When he was 33 years of age, he listened by chance to an earnest preacher who had had the courage to invade the haunts of vice. Like so many others who came to scoff, he remained to pray. He became a new man, an entirely different sort of a person—the sort of person whom Harold Begbie and Professor William James call "Twice Born." He abandoned all his evil ways, and from that day forward set out to live a good life, and to reform others. He stayed in the slums where he made the Water Street Mission in New York city famous for its uplifting work. He carried a message of reform to hundreds of abandoned men and women whom he understand and who, knowing him, would listen. At 48 he established the Jerry McAuley Mission at 32nd. street. Two years later, at 45, he died, one of the most famous men in the United States, a man who had done more than almost any other to uplift the fallen. Surely, he had made himself great!

IN THE PUBLIC EYE

Poultney Bigelow, who announces his intention of starting a $50,000 slander suit against H. G. Wells, the English novelist, because he resents being classified as a bore, is an American journalist, author and lecturer who has managed to crowd an extraordinary amount and variety of work and adventures into his 70 years. His travels, begun when he made his first journey around the world in a sailing ship 50 years ago, have carried him to every nook and corner of the globe. He has an intimate acquaintance with China, Borneo, Australia, Java and South America, has been wrecked on the coast of Japan, and was the first to take a canoe through the iron Gates of the Danube. He has lectured at many of the big universities, hobnobbed with presidents and princes, and found time to do an enormous amount of literary work. Mr. Bigelow is a son of John Bigelow, who was eminent as a diplomatist and author.

IN DAY'S NEWS

THE GEOGRAPHY OF THE DANCE

"Whether the current frenzy called the Charleston is destined to be a permanent addition to the art of dancing, or whether it shuffles out of the spotlight of popular fancy after the 'turkey trot,' the 'bunny hug,' the 'camel walk' the 'shimmy,' and other high-pressure steps of the past, discussion of it has revive interest in characteristic national and folk dances in many parts of the world," says a bulletin from the Washington, D. C., headquarters of the National Geographic society.

"America has no generally recognized national dance," the bulletin continues. "There is the moribund Virginia reel, at present the subject of earnest efforts at resuscitation by old-time dance revivalists. In many of the more remote rural sections of the country the Virginia reel flourishes, more or less, despite the growing scarcity of capable figure callers, but the younger generation of most of the country today knows little about it.

The Dances of the Nation

"In the cast of some steps it is necessary only to name the dance, and its birthplace flashed to mind, so thoroughly have the country and the name of its most characteristic dance become linked. The jig—Ireland; the hula-hula—Hawaii; the tango—Argentine; the polka—Bohemia (now Czechoslovakia); the nautch—India; the minuet—Old France. These are only a few samples of dances which automatically furnish their on places and date lines.

"The most ancient dances are believed to be astronomical dances of the early Egyptians. The object of these dances was to inspire a feeling of harmony among the planets, and to so influence them that their effect on life might not be harmful. The Greeks took the star dances from the Egyptians and found a place for them as the chorus, or background, of their tragedies. The Romans, as in other arts, produced few original dances, but they developed their heritage from the Egyptians and Greeks.

"In the more primitive civilizations dancing and religion were almost synonymous. As for the lower strata of humanity: 'A savage does not preach his religion, he dances it,' Livingstone wrote from Africa. For all solemn occasions in the lives of primitive peoples there are dances—for weddings for funerals, for seed-time and for harvest, for war and for peace. Where today we find people praying in church for rain, or for the restoration of friends to health, ancient man danced for these things.

"One of the liveliest of the world's dances is the tarantella, the diversion of Naples. It is executed with tambourines and was formerly supposed to cure the bite of the tarantula, a large venomous spider. Another version of the origin of the dance says that it is based on the theme of 'la morra,' a game consisting in guessing at the number of fingers suddenly held out by an opponent. Until recently visitors to Asia Minor were delighted and mystified with the gyrations of the famous Turkish whirling dervishes. Originally of religious significance, the art of the dervishes had degenerated so that not long ago the new Turkish republic prohibited the dance.

"Perhaps the only original contribution that England has made in the last four centuries is the sailor's hornpipe. The neighboring island of Ireland, however, boasts of the jig, the reel, and the hornpipe clog-and-shuffle dances Britain's colonies offer colorful and diverting steps, most of them symbolic or religious, such as the devil dance of Ceion.

"Environment and the imitative impulse doubtless have played large parts in molding many of the more picturesque and exotic steps of savage peoples. Of great interest to the student of animal life are such mimicking steps as the kangaroo hops of the Australian and the Tasmanian; the gorilla-like movements of a cotillion of natives in the heart of Africa, and the calf-herd tactics at a bushman's ball. In the mechanical frenzies of the American Indian harvest and war dances may be visioned the embryonic 'turkey trot' or 'bunny hug.'

"The close association of early dances with warfare is brought out in such survivals as the sword dances. The Scotch sword dance is the most graceful and least bloodthirsty of these. Chinese and Turkish sword dances however, are not so esthetic. While wildly beautiful, they are not wholly free from danger. Natives of the Fiji Islands have a war dance in which clubs are flourished in a frenzied manner. In East Africa, the native tribes honor distinguished guests with a ceremonial dance, in which spears and other weapons are rushed up within an inch of the visitor's nose. It is a test of the honor guest's nerve, for if he moves or shows the least sign of fear or annoyance he fails in the respect of his well meaning hosts."

Stories That Recall Others

George's Meaning

The young man George had been "hanging around" for some time, and among other trifling tokens had presented the daughter of the house with a little book giving the meaning of Christian names. She sat turning the pages after he had gone.

"Williams means 'good,' I see," she remarked. "James means 'beloved.'" She blushed slightly. "I wonder what George means?"

"I sincerely trust, my dear," said her father, tartly, "that George means business."

HOW CHRISTMAS COMES TO MATAGALPA

All over the civilized world the birth of the Christ child will soon be observed, but nowhere, perhaps, is there a more picturesque or beautiful celebration than which takes place in Central America.

In our cold north with its holly, its brilliancy decked trees, and lighted windows and carollers wandering through the streets, we hear such anthems as:

"Away in a manger, no crib for his bed,
The little Lord Jesus lay down his sweet head."

But it is a different story in Matagalpa; a tiny village in Central America, a village tucked away in the mountains and as isolated as the world-famed Oberammergau, yet, where the Christmas tradition and Christmas story once seen is never forgotten.

In that little village, in every home, the cradle is prepared for the coming of the Christ child. For weeks, all during the period of Advent, preparations are made for his reception, and no matter one's faith or creed, the simple ceremonies incident to that coming are sure to touch a responsive cord—to renew the faith of the observer.

We were guests of English friends for the holidays, going up the 120 mile trail to Matagalpa on mule back. With our Indian guide we traveled by moonlight and the mountain wilderness was so extravagantly beautiful that it seemed as though we were in an enchanted world. Suddenly a vista opened before us—Matagalpa—red-tilted roofs and delicately colored adobe houses clinted at the foot of a mountain whose sides were covered with palms and banana trees, protecting thousands of flowering, sweet smelling coffee trees.

It was the day before Christmas. That night we wended our way across the moonlit plaza to the old Spanish church. With us came stalwart Indians, Spaniards, with great somberoos and shirts flapping outside of their cotton trousers; dark, velvety-eyed women, with wide trailing skirts of lawn and bright bodices; children also a picturesque throng.

The adobe church was beautiful in its dignified simplicity. Illuminated only by hundreds of candles, the masses of exquisite flowers on the altar of the Virgin, the gay silken rebosas or scarfs on the heads of the women, made brilliant patches of color in the soft light.

Between 11 and 12 the priest on the altar brought the image of the Christ child from its resting place and sent it by messenger to a home in the little town. Although every home in Matagalpa had been prepared for its coming, no one but the priest and his messenger knew who would be honored that night.

Kneeling and praying, the people awaited the pealing of the midnight bells which told them that the Babe had found a resting place; then, with shouts of joy and expectation, they rushed first to their own homes, and then in groups from house to house, singing "the song of the Christ Child" and seeking the "new born babe."

The natives have much artistic ability and we found the decorations in the homes not only beautiful, but highly original as well.

The front room, which was usually very long, was divided in half by a low bank of palms and flowers, at the sides and across the back the walls were screened with tropical plants and vines. The carpet in this enclosure was more beautiful than words can describe. Matting had been wet, sprinkled with oats, which had sprouted and by this time was about three inches high, making the most exquisite floor covering imaginable. A path of flower petals led from the front of the room to the tall palms and flowers at the back and there, festooned with pink and white roses, was the cradle awaiting the coming of the Christ child.

In one house large stones had been placed here and there under the matting to raise it on these "mountains" small trees were growing, and to make them appear like mountains around Matagalpa, the woman had fashioned little brown monkeys of clay which were playing in the trees, and, prowling in a very life-like manner, were miniature tigers and lions. Village scenes were depicted, women making tortillas and grinding corn. In one corner of the enclosure were famous biblical characters.

Abraham was there, even to his long white beard, and was calmly offering up Isaac, but when I wanted to buy him the old Indian woman said, "He wouldn't last, for he wasn't baked." So Abraham and Isaac were left behind. Herod and his wife were gorgeously and magnificently attired, as befitted their station. They were holding hands and had powder all over their faces as they were "white with fear, for they had heard that Christ was born."

The cradle in this pretentious room was not the resting place of the Babe that night. We found him in one of the poorest homes in Matagalpa. A woman, in memory of her child who had died, had spent her all in preparing her home for this other Baby who might come, and so to a childless mother came the Christ-child as a comfort and guest.

PORK PRODUCTS OF THE UNITED STATES

World appreciation of American pork products is evidenced by the latest reports of our exports in that line of foodstuffs. The value of this important product of the American farms, pork in its various forms, exported in the year which ends with next month will total about $250,000,000, and the grand total of the past four years will approximate a billion dollars.

This big demand for the food supplied by the American hog, says the Trade Record of the National City Bank of New York, is not so surprising when we consider that we, of the United States, have one-third of the swine of the world and better facilities for turning them into food form than any other country. Corn is the chief factor in transforming the pig into the form in which he is utilized for food, and he in turn is a big consumer of the corn of which we are the world's largest producer. The United States grows about three-fourths of the corn crop of the world and sends much of it abroad in the form of pork. The latest census of the outturn of our slaughtering establishments puts the value of pork products in the various forms turned out by our slaughtering establishments at a little more than one billion dollars per year.

All the world demands our pork products, either in the form of hams, bacon or lard. Of the 24 million dollars worth of bacon exported in the fiscal year 1925, over one-half went to Great Britain and over 30 per cent to Europe as a whole, while most of the remainder went to the tropical world, especially Cuba. Of the 50 million dollars worth of hams and shoulders exported in 1925, over 40 million dollars worth went to Great Britain and considerable quantities to France, Germany and Belgium. Of the 128 million dollars worth of lard exported last year, over two-thirds went to Europe and the remainder chiefly to the tropical world, especially to Cuba.

The world has been appreciative of the food value of the "pig" as he is designated in most countries outside of the United States, since man made his acquaintance in forests of eastern Asia about 5,000 years ago, for an eminent Chinese scholar is authority for the statement that swine originally roaming the forests of eastern Asia were domesticated about 2900 B. C., though the European records indicate his appearance in that continent about 1500 B. C. The swine of the world, adds the Trade Record, totaled according to the figures of the department of agriculture, about 222 millions in 1923, of which the United States had 67 millions; China, 44 millions; Germany, 17 millions; Brasil, 16 millions; France, 15 millions and Russia, 8 millions.

Exit the Picturesque Ragmen

The picturesque old ragman has been killed by the health authorities in England and in so doing the authorities have deprived thousands of children—children of the alleys and the little unknown streets—one of their keenest delights.

Children were the friends of the ragman because he gave them toys and little bits of candy and colored balloons for their savings of discarded rags. His visit meant the tickling of their childish vanities, for the ragman made much of them and told them that they were really grownups and making money. But they were not making money; they were trading their week's collection of rags for a penny's worth of chocolate or a red balloon that looked like a beacon light to childish eyes in a dingy street.

This new health regulation forbids the giving of toys or of anything to eat in exchange for rags. Of course, the new law was framed to prevent the spread of disease, not to make the children unhappy. It is not known whether it will prevent the spread of disease or not, but it is known that the law has already made many little rag gatherers most unhappy and deprived them of their greatest delight—a sweet to munch on or a toy to show.

But even so seemingly small a piece of legislation as this has affected also big business, for a vast organization is behind the ragmen and the children. Tons of rags are collected, disinfected and sent to factories, where clothes are made for the poorest of the poor. Some authorities go so far as to declare that it will be impossible without the ragman to continue to supply the demand for remade clothing.

Telephone In Elevator

Noticing that apartment-house tenants seemed fond of airing their troubles to elevator operators, the owner of a de luxe apartment house in New York City installed an unseen telephone in the elevator, says Popular Science Monthly. As a tenant rides up or down in the elevator, she unknowingly talks to a young man at the other end of the line, who is sitting out of sight in the entrance hall below. If she tells him about the burned-out fuse, or the leak in the sink, the matter is attended to at once, and the apartment-house gears shift smoothly. It is a great success, according to reports, in keeping the tenants content with their landlord.

Now You Can End Constipation In 10 Days or Less

We Mean The Chronic Kind — The Habitual Kind That Calls For Daily Purging—Guaranteed, Too

Now what do you think, good folks? Remember we told you the other day in this paper about McCoy's Rinolin and how in ten days it would conquer the most stubborn kind of constipation and after that the bowels would function normally and regularly.

Remember how we invited all who wanted to get rid of constipation and that vicious habit of taking salts and violent cathartics to go to Lee & Osgood Co. or any drug store and get a bottle of Rinolin with the distinct understanding that it would do just what we said it would do or money back.

A whole lot of people must read this paper, because hardly before the ink is dry on our notice of invitation druggists in this city and towns nearby commenced to have a brisk demand for this effective Emulsion.

And best of all—according to the druggists—everyone who bought seems satisfied and of course they are, for McCoy's Rinolin was tried on thousands of slaves of habitual constipation before it was offered direct through druggists to the people. And how do you think it established regular bowel movements? The answer is simple: It overcame the chronic condition by thoroughly cleaning the walls of the intestines of all accumulated deposits and toxins which prevented active and normal peristalsis—no other preparations have been able to do this.

Besides that—it lubricated and put tone into the entire intestinal track so that it will be many a day before these now happy people will think of purgatives again.

Without active peristalsis, the bowels cannot function properly—McCoy's Rinolin increases the peristaltic action. Rinolin tonight—Pep tomorrow.

Solution of Yesterday's Puzzle

BEWARE THE COUGH OR COLD THAT HANGS ON

Persistent coughs and colds lead to serious trouble. You can stop them now with Creomulsion, an emulsified creosote that is pleasant to take. Creomulsion is a new medical discovery with two-fold action; it soothes and heals the inflamed membranes and inhibits germ growth.

Of all known drugs, creosote is recognized by high medical authorities as one of the greatest healing agencies for persistent coughs and colds and other forms of throat troubles. Creomulsion contains, in addition to creosote, other healing elements which soothe and heal the infected membranes and stop the irritation and inflammation, while the creosote goes on to the stomach, is absorbed into the blood, attacks the seat of the trouble and checks the growth of the germs.

Creomulsion is guaranteed satisfactory in the treatment of persistent coughs and colds, bronchial asthma, bronchitis and other forms of respiratory diseases, and is excellent for building up the system after colds or flu. Money refunded if any cough or cold is not relieved after taking according to directions. Ask your druggist. Creomulsion Company, Atlanta, Ga. (adv.)

STORM CUT ATTENDANCE AT SORORITY PLAY

The Whole Town's Talking, a farce in three acts was presented Thursday night at the Community house before a relatively small audience by the Bulkeley Dramatic club, which had put on the play in conjunction with the Delta Upsilon Phi sorority of the Norwich Free Academy. The farce was exceedingly well presented and was most enjoyable, being worthy of a better audience.

The entire action of the farce took place in the living room of the Simmons home at Sandusky, Ohio, and the three scenes represented a morning in the spring at the home, a morning a week later and the evening of the same day. There was action galore and the audience was thrown into laughter many times as the comedy parts were cleverly brought out.

The cast of characters was as follows:

Henry Simmons, a manufacturer, Laurence H. Wilson; Harriet Simmons, his wife, Jean Foster; Ethel Simmons, his daughter, Dorothy Winship; Chester Binney, Simmon's partner, Harry Einhorn; Letty Lythe, a motion picture star, Florence Fitch; Donald Swift, a motion picture director, Broughton Pendleton; Roger Shields, from Chicago and Paris, Maurice Hendie; Lila Wilson, Sally Otis, Annie, a maid, friends of Ethel, Dorothy M. Church, Helen Latimer, Elizabeth Glass; Sadie Bloom, Elizabeth Winship; taxi-driver, Joseph McGarry.

The committee from Delta Upsilon Phi, in charge of local arrangements comprised the Misses Charlotte Geer, Harriet Geer, Gwendolyn Jones and Agnes Dean.

FANNY CROSBY MEMORIAL PLANNED DURING MARCH

Pupils in practically all the Sunday and church schools of the Protestant denominations will hold memorial services Sunday, March 21, for Fanny Crosby, the blind hymn writer, according to an announcement made from the Fanny Crosby Memorial, 150 Fifth avenue, New York, by Dr. S. Parkes Cadman, chairman of the national committee and president of the Federal Churches of Christ.

Fanny Crosby, although blind, wrote more than 8,000 songs, and these songs were sung more than all other religious songs of any writer. Dr. Cadman urges the use of the memorial service written by Dr. Fred Winslow Adams, of Springfield, Mass., and the use of the pageant by Mrs. Edith Kinney Doten, of Boston.

Fanny Crosby was born March 24th, 1820, and died in 1915, at the age of 95. "The purpose of the memorial," said Dr. Cadman, "is to keep green the memory of Fanny Crosby and to build a home for the aged, as a memorial to the writer, at Bridgeport, Conn.

A letter sent out by the committee, signed by Dr. Cadman to the Sunday schools, asks the superintendents and officers of the Sunday schools to use the Fanny Crosby Memorial service Sunday morning, March 21, and the pageant in the evening.

Dr. Cadman enumerates some of the noted hyms as "Safe in the Arms of Jesus"; "Rescue the Perishing"; Saved by Grace"; "Jesus is Tenderly Calling"; "Close to Thee"; "Draw Nearer"; "He Hideth My Soul"; "Blessed Assurance"; "Praise Him, Praise Him"; "There's Music in the Air"; "Saviour, more than Life to me."

Dr. C. C. Marshall, of Bridgeport, who is pastor of the church of which Fanny Crosby was a member is assisting the committee in making the arrangements.

EAGLES PINOCHLE CONTEST COMES TO A CLOSE

The Eagles pinochle contest came to a close Thursday night at the Eagles home. The prize winners with scores of 7,000 or over were: Fred Molls, 7,610; Henry Herring, 7,125; E. J. Mullins, 7,120.

For the series the committee has been given prizes in the form of dues as an attraction to get the members to become better acquainted with each other. These prizes were won by Joseph Mocinisk, 55,660; E. J. Mullins, 54,520; J. Leirich, 54,185; Fred Molls, 53,880.

The scores for the series follow:

Joseph Mocinisk, 55,660; E. J. Mullins, 54,520; John Leirich, 54,185; Fred Molls, 53,880; Henry Herring, 52,335; Thos. Fields, 51,625; L. Michette, 51,085; Lem Fields, 50,925; W. R. Hastedt, 50,845; E. P. Mullins, 50,670; H. Marcus, 49,565; T. Coughlin, 49,310; J. Sautler, 49,200; M. Petrone, 48,930; J. Pezzoda, 47,140.

On March 4 the committee has planned to start another eight nights' series.

NIGHT ELECTRICAL STORM SWEEPS OVER NORWICH

Norwich was visited by a heavy downpour of rain Thursday afternoon and evening, concluding with an electrical storm, about 11 o'clock Thursday night. The rain started in during the early afternoon and came down steadily until early evening when there was a brief letup. The clouds, however, were soon dropping torrents of rain and this continued until about 8:30 when there was another letup. Fog started to sweep through the streets and about 11 o'clock there was an electrical storm with brilliant flashes of lightning and deep rolls of thunder.

Considerable water fell during the afternoon and evening and small ponds in this vicinity were beginning to overflow. The rivers were reported to be rising somewhat during the evening. Streets and gutters were flooded, the rain coming so fast that sewers could not carry it away. Short circuits put some of the city's white way lights out of business for the night.

OBITUARY

Louis Metivier

Louis Metivier, 50, died suddenly at 10 o'clock Wednesday evening at his home at No. 470 North Main street from a heart attack. He was born in Sutton, Canada, May 24, 1875, the son of Mr. and Mrs. Isadore Metivier and the early part of his life was spent in that town. He was united in marriage with Delia Burns, in Sutton, Canada about 40 years ago and about 25 years ago he went to New London, where he resided for a short time, before coming to Norwich in 1910. By trade he was a shoemaker conducting a shoeshop at No. 470 North Main street for some time. Fraternally he was a member of the St. John's and St. Louis societies and was a member of St. Mary's church.

Besides his wife he is survived by eight children, Mrs. William Vervile, Louis, Victor, Victoria, Augustus, Sarah, Arthur and Doris and one grandchild, all of this city, four sisters, Mrs. Helen Mortee, Mrs. Marie Brotos, Mrs. Louis Roberts and Mrs. Rose Delisle, of Canada, and four brothers, Oscar, Charles, William and Joseph, of Canada.

The coast guard patrol boat 136 which went aground two weeks ago in Gardiner's Island, was floated yesterday and towed into the harbor of New London by the Eagle just before a violent electrical storm, the second one in ten days, struck.

PLAINFIELD GARAGE MAN ARRESTED FOR RECEIVING STOLEN MACHINES

(Special to The Bulletin.)

PLAINFIELD, Feb. 25—Charles LaVallee, 40, used car dealer and proprietor of a garage here was arrested today by the state police on a charge of receiving stolen automobiles. He was released under bonds of $1,000 to guarantee his appearance in the Plainfield town court next Wednesday when he will answer to the charge. It is alleged that he has been a receiver of stolen automobiles and that he disposed of them by sales throughout eastern Connecticut.

LaVallee's arrest is regarded as coincident with the recent round-up in Providence of a gang, the members of which have either been fined or sent to jail in connection with the theft of 21 cars.

State Officer Ross Urquhart of the Danielson barracks has been at work on the LaVallee case in Plainfield. Of the seven alleged stolen cars that LaVallee is said to have bought and sold, one went to Selectman Joseph LaChappelle, of Canterbury, two to the Tavern Garage in Norwich Town, one to Jesse Hoppin, of Central Village, one to Ludger Brunnet, of 5 Lee St., Putnam, one to Mrs. Mary LaVallee, of Arctic, R. I., and one to a Norwich woman whose name up until Thursday night had not been ascertained by the state police.

LaVallee has been engaged in the garage business in Plainfield for the past five years. His arrest comes as a surprise to those who have become acquainted with him through business transactions or otherwise. He asserts his innocence and declares that he had no knowledge whatever that the cars he purchased in the course of his business dealings were stolen machines.

ADMINISTRATION CHANGES AT OTIS LIBRARY

Some of the patrons of the Otis Library have been wondering at the number of changes made in the administration of the library, says a statement issued by library officials Thursday. These changes are part of an effort to make the library the kind of public servant which appeals to the democratic spirit. And while these changes seem at first to break traditional customs, they will be seen to work eventually for popular confidence and interest.

For instance, take children's books. Our librarians have been studying the deficiencies of the library in that department, and advice has been sought from outside sources. As a result, steps have already been taken to make the library's supply of children's books appealing to our readers among the girls and boys.

Again, take the new fiction. All new fiction purchased by the library is placed on the shelves for public circulation. No new fiction is reserved. A new book goes to that reader who first takes it from the shelf; and that reader cannot renew the book longer than the stipulated renewable period, either for himself or anyone else. It is the opinion of the trustees that no borrower of a book has a right to dictate who shall be the next borrower of that same book. The public circulation of books should be as democratic and equitable as the library can possibly make it.

Again, take the non-fiction books. Sometimes a reader makes a request to read some particular book of this non-fiction class. Such requests go on the "reserve list" for that book, in the order of application; and patrons are served in the order of such applications. Each reader is allowed the permitted time for reading; the book then goes to the next applicant on the list. This method works for equity when there are more than two applicants for the same book. In other words, in this department, as well as in all others, the library is seeking to follow the equitable rule of "first come, first serve."

Changes are likewise being made in the patrons' cards. A great deal of injustice is possible when the borrowers' cards are not their own property. Through accident or malice, books may be lost, misplaced, stolen or uncancelled. To avoid such injustice, both to our patrons themselves and to the library, a new system of patrons' cards is being installed. While our patrons and our library staff are being inconvenienced a bit, during the change from the old system to the new, yet when the system has been thoroughly established, the service of the library to the town will be on a much fairer and juster basis than heretofore.

The trustees of the library consider it a sacred trust to make the Otis Library a more and more efficient servant to the public's pleasure and profit; and they are spending much time and thought concerning the problems involved. They are sure that the changes already in process are a guarantee of a deliberate intention to make the Otis Library a source of increasing community benefit.

NIECE OF MISS M. C. ADLES MAKES SUCCESS AS ACTRESS

During this week, while Miss Mary C. Adles, of New York, is in Norwich, it has interested her many friends to learn of the stage triumph of her young niece, Marie Adele. This mere girl, who is not yet 21, is supporting the great actor, Walter Hampden, in Rostand's masterpiece, "Cyrano de Bergerac," at the Hampden theatre, New York.

Marie Adele is the daughter of Louis Adles, of Butte, Montana, and Florida. She studied dramatic art in California, later in New York, and is considered a wonder for hard work, as well as for intelligent, successful acting. In stage presence, personality, voice and gesture she has won the acclaim of the Metropolitan critics.

A New York paper says of the young actress: "The well-beloved Roxane is played by Marie Adels, who was evident in the third act's love scene, tragic in the hour of Christian's passing, and gracious, kindly and fine in her discovery that she has loved and lost two men, with which the play concludes."

Each night Miss Adels received an ovation from the great audiences which are enthralled by Hampden's presentation of the play.

Miss Adels has had the benefit of her aunt's training and coaching and is an exceptionally graceful young woman.

CHURCH MEETING POSTPONED OWING TO RAIN STORM

Owing to the heavy rain storm the adjourned business meeting of the members of the United Congregational church scheduled to have been held at the church Thursday evening was adjourned until next Tuesday evening. The meeting is for the purpose of hearing the report of the special committee appointed at the annual meeting of the church to consider the matter of making needed repairs to the Community house.

HELD SURPRISE PARTY FOR MILDRED SOLOMON

A surprise party for Mildred Solomon was held at her home, No. 334 Broadway, Wednesday evening, in honor her fifteenth birthday. The party was held by the members of Epsilon Iota Sigma Phi and the Tri Kappa Sigma sorority. A buffet luncheon was served by Mrs. Solomon. Games were played and during the evening there was a mock marriage. The decorations were effectively carried out in yellow and white.

GIRL KNOCKED DOWN BY LOCAL DRIVER

Josephine Calcarole, No. 232 Franklin street, was knocked down Thursday night about six o'clock at the junction of Franklin and Bath streets, by a machine driven by Thomas H. Savard, No. 24 Williams street. The girl was grazed by one of the headlights and escaped injury. She was taken to her home by Mr. Savard.

TWO POLICE AIDS FACE PERJURY CHARGES

Charged with perjury Morris Handleman, 24, and Charles King, 19, both of this city, were arrested Thursday morning on warrants drawn up by City Attorney Lee Roy Robbins. Mrs. Rosa Stefano, 30, of No. 36 Thames street, whose arrest they caused Monday night on a liquor selling charge, was discharged in the city court on Thursday morning and as the result Handleman and King were arrested.

According to the story, Officer John Quinn made a visit to the West Side and in the presence of King negotiated with Handleman to buy some liquor for the police. Handleman and King then went to Thames street and made the alleged purchase.

In court Thursday morning there was much conflict of testimony as to when and where the purchase was made, causing the court to absolve Mrs. Rosa De Stefano of 36 Thames street, from all guilt of selling liquor to these two persons.

Both Handleman and King desired to secure counsel and the case against them was continued until Friday morning. Lacking bonds both young men were locked up.

In court Thursday morning City Attorney Robbins stated that on advice of her counsel Mrs. De Stefano had pleaded not guilty to the charge of sale of liquor. Officer Quinn told of his part in the deal with Handleman, in the presence of King, stating that he did not know where the liquor was purchased.

Handleman testified that he did not wish to testify as to where he got the liquor. He said he got $1.50 from Officer Quinn, spent 75 cents and kept the rest of the money. Asked if he knew Mrs. De Stefano he replied that he had never seen the woman. Charles King, co-partner with Handleman, corroborated part of the testimony but told a contradictory story in regard to the latter part of the testimony of Handleman.

King said he went with Handleman to a house on Thames street not far from Thames square, while Handleman had testified that the house visited was near the stove foundry, over a half mile further down the street. He purchased a bottle and Handleman went upstairs and returned with the liquor. They then went down Thames street, up High street and to Spring street, where they met Officer Quinn.

Sergt. Matthew Delaney testified to shadowing the men and seeing them go into the house at No. 36 Thames street which King had described. He admitted seeing King purchase the bottle at a nearby store and then return into the house. He did not know what took place inside the building, but he saw them give the liquor to Officer Quinn.

He was in plain clothes at the time and it was soon afterward that Mrs. De Stefano's place was visited and she was placed under arrest. The house smelled of liquor when the officers arrived. He heard a faucet running and believed stuff had been thrown down the sink.

SAW NO DISORDER AT KLAN MEETING

Writing to The Bulletin, Ray A. Schutt, of North Franklin, states that he attended the Ku Klux Klan "Klorero" held in Bridgeport last Sunday. He states that 2,500 knights were present and listened with intense interest, to the lecture given by Dr. Hiram Wesley Evans, of Galveston, Texas. There was also an inspiratio al address delivered by the Imperial representative, D. E. Rhoades.

The 38 automobiles which left Norwich conveyed klansmen from Norwich and surrounding towns and villages. "I witnessed no disorder at the meeting which was one of the largest ever held in this state," said Mr. Schutt.

INCIDENTS IN SOCIETY

The Thursday afternoon Auction Bridge club of three tables met this week with Miss Barbara F. Allen, of Huntington Place.

Miss Mildred E. Engler, of Broad street, is leaving today (Friday) for Boston, for a week's visit with her sister, Miss Viola G. Engler.

Mr. and Mrs. Charles D. White and their daughter Mrs. Ralph H. Howe, who are on a Mediterranean cruise, reached Gibraltar Wednesday.

NEWPORT PREACHER OPENS UNITED LENTEN SERVICES

The words of Christ, advising His disciples to take up their cross and follow Him, formed the basis for the Lenten sermon delivered Thursday evening at Trinity Episcopal church by Rev. John H. Deming, rector of St. George's church, Newport, R. I. This was the opening united service held annually by Trinity and Christ churches.

In the death of Jesus, he said, the cross was given to us as the most enduring symbol. We see it everywhere, in architecture, paintings, and many other forms, but tonight let us consider it as a doctrine. The cross as a doctrine has two main thoughts, preaching the cross illustrating the sacrificial death of Christ, and, secondly, to illustrate the sacrificial life of the follower of Christ.

Jesus, in bidding them to take up their cross, was not thinking of the physical fact but more of the moral and spiritual fact. Let us contrast two attitudes of life, First, the Pagan, this view of life being that life is a garden in which people lived simply to have a good time. In the second view is the artistic; that we live simply to express ourselves.

Jesus never pictured life as either of these. He pictured life as a battlefield where one must fight to win. This view may sound unpopular, but if this is so why did Christ treat life in the terms of self denial? He meant us to conquer, not yield, when temptations confront us.

Immortality does not answer all of the question Christ puts to us. Those who do not believe in a hereafter naturally satisfy all desires for they care not what comes after death. Those who believe in life eternal do not do this for they seek to conquer.

Self denial is written into every law of life. Evolution preaches the gospel of Christ in this respect for it teaches that all progress has come through victory, the highest winning out in the fight by conquering the lowest. Thus comes progress in nature as well as in all life. Jesus meant just that when he said we must struggle and that life becomes better by conquering the things which try to drag us down.

Just as life has advanced by crushing out the lower things, so must we spiritually advance by conquering those things which would drag us down and crush out those finer qualities which distinguish man from the animal.

Pagan empires have perished and Christ knew that Paganism led to death and destruction and that character could survive only through fighting continually against that which is within us and would destroy that character.

We must continually fight against doing everything we desire, enjoying life to the utmost, for many times we feel that we want to do the things which we know are not right. Doing them once soon leads to a breaking down of our finer qualities and when we have seen our folly, those finer qualities have gone and we can never regain them in their pure form. We should get hold of that power given by God through the death of Jesus Christ for this power to conquer is open to all of us, and, if we wish to continue advancing with nature, we must struggle against things which are gradually killing our finer qualities.

WE MODERNS THURSDAY CLUB HAS MEETING

In spite of the inclement weather Thursday afternoon the members of the We Moderns Thursday club ventured out to play their weekly pinochle with Mrs. E. P. Mullins of 51 Spring street as hostess. HARTFORD, Feb. 25—(AP)—One fatal accident, causing the death of Katherine Hogan, of New London, was among the 269 automobile collisions reported to the state motor vehicle department last week. In the total number of accidents, 164 were reported from fourteen cities. Hartford led with forty-one accidents, Bridgeport was second with twenty-one, and New Britain reported twenty.

Other reports were as follows: Waterbury, 19; New Haven, 18; New London, 8; Stamford, 14; Norwich, 2 Norwalk, 4; Greenwich, 9; Middletown, 3; Winsted, 3; Meriden, 7; Danbury, 1.

DELIGHTFUL SHOWER FOR MRS. WILFRED COTE

A very delightful shower was given at the recreation room of the J. B. Martin Co., for Mrs. Wilfred Cote, who was formerly Miss Louise Erwin. Mrs. Cote received many beautiful gifts of silver, linens, glassware and electrical appliances.

The tables were very prettily arranged and Miss Agnes Morton, Miss Elizabeth Fleming and Miss Anna Hansen acted as hostesses.

Miss Jennie Dugas rendered Pal of My Cradle Days. An exhibition Charleston was given by Miss Arlene Lacombe and Miss Jennie Dugas, Mrs. Mary Cox and Mrs. Ethel Dunn gave an exhibition waltz.

The rest of the evening was spent playing games and the party broke up at a late hour wishing Mrs. Cote many years of happily married life.

Sang Hymns at Funeral

The solos sung by Mrs. Arthur Watrous, at the funeral services for Mrs. Josephine Duffy, held Wednesday afternoon at Mt. Calvary Baptist church were the favorite hymns of the deceased. Relatives and friends present came from Worcester, Mystic, Danielson, Putnam, Brooklyn, Conn., and Brooklyn, N. Y.

PASSED WORTHLESS CHECKS WHILE POSING AS STUDENT

NEW HAVEN, Feb. 25—(AP)—The detective bureau has issued a warning to several stores that cater to students of Yale university, that a young man giving the name of E. B. Cameron, of Orange street, posing as a student of the Yale Law school is believed to be passing worthless checks. A Church street store complained that the man had given a $28 check on a $1 purchase and had received $27 in change. The check was worthless and investigation showed that no such person had been a student at Yale.

REWARDED FOR RESCUING CHILDREN FROM DROWNING

HARTFORD, Feb. 25—(AP)—Anthony Stolarczuk, of East Granby, who is employed in Hartford, will be awarded a silver medal for bravery and courage in the rescue from drowning of two children in Simsbury on January 3, the committee on the award of medals of the Connecticut Humane society, announced today. Three children had fallen through thin ice into the Farmington river, and Stolarczuk plunged in and managed to get two of them to shore.

COLORED CHAMPIONS OF NEW ENGLAND AT PLAINFIELD COURT THIS EVENING

Another stellar attraction is in store for the basketball fans of Eastern Connecticut when the Essex Big Five of Bridgeport clashes with the Plainfield quintet tonight at the Plainfield Community house.

The Essex quintet holds the colored championship of New England and are contenders for the colored championship of the world. The Renacausse colored five of Brooklyn, now playing a series with the world's champion Celtics, is the only team to stand between the Essex team and the world title. A series has already been arranged between these two teams to decide this title.

The Plainfield team will be up against one of the toughest teams of the season for the colored boys come to Plainfield with an impressive record behind them. Out of 27 games played the Essex team has been topped but once. Plainfield also has a remarkable record having trimmed such teams as South Kingston, the Brockton Y. M. H. A., Fall River and other teams contending for the championship of New England. The colored boys are giants in physique, each and every player being six feet tall or over. For speed and passwork they are renown and it takes a mighty fast combination to beat them.

Plainfield's work will be cut out for tonight and forty minutes of the fastest kind of play can be expected. Manager Salisbury was in Bridgeport on Thursday night to look over the Essex team and he said on his return that it was one of the fastest clubs he had seen in action. They play a fast passing game and the work of the two guards is almost perfect. This team is trained to the minute and is capable of traveling at top speed for the entire forty minutes without showing any effect of exertion.

The strongest possible lineup will represent Plainfield on the floor this evening. Normandin and Dessinger will be in the forward berths, with Norris at center, and Benson and Madden in the guard positions.

FORWARD PASS TO BE DISCUSSED AT RULES MEETING

NEW YORK, Feb. 25.—(AP) — The forward pass and the extra point after touchdown, problems of modern intercollegiate football, will be placed under the microscope for renewed consideration when the football rules committee meets here March 19 and 20. This was indicated today in connection with the announcement of the dates for the rules session.

Opponents of the present open style of football as exemplified by Dartmouth and Michigan, leading teams in the east and middle west last fall, urged legislation to curtail the use of the aerial game and place a greater premium on the fundamental basis of the game, kicking.

In spite of this opposition to the open game it is unlikely the rule-makers will place any pronounced restriction on the forward pass or its partner, the latteral pass. This was indicated by the annual report by Edward K. Hall, chairman of the rules committee to the National Collegiate Athletic association, the governing body of intercollegiate athletics.

The extra point after touchdown is expected to be the target of some discussions. Proponents of this measure point to the 46 intercollegiate games which were decided last year by the extra point as illustrations of the value of the single point in eliminating, to a large extent, the unsatisfactory tie games. Others, however, contend the point is not decisive enough to weigh the balance between victor and defeat. The rule makers, however, are unlikely to affect any change in this rule in view of the absence of any effective construction to replace it.

GREB TO DEFEND TITLE AGAINST FLOWERS TONIGHT

NEW YORK, Feb. 25—(AP)—Harry Greb of Pittsburgh, Pa., world's middleweight titleholder and the most active champion in the ring today, will answer the challenge of Tiger Flowers, Atlanta, Ga., in a 15-round championship contest at Madison Square Garden tomorrow night.

The "Pittsburgh Windmill" will enter the ring a favorite to retain the crown he won from Johnny Wilson of Boston at the Polo Grounds, August 31, 1923, in spite of the fact that Flowers was given a newspaper decision over him in a 10-round, no-decision contest at Fremont, O., in 1924, in the only other meeting between the two.

Flowers was selected by the New York State Athletic commission as the most logical contender in the middleweight division and directed Greb to accept a challenge from him.

The two principals were examined and weighed unofficially at the offices of the state athletic commission today, Greb weighing 161 while his challenger scaled 157 1-2. Greb was warned to be at the 160 weight limit at the officials calling at two o'clock tomorrow afternoon.

Greb appeared to be in wonderful condition today as the result of an active campaign of fighting himself into condition with four matches since January 11.

While the Garden officials tonight did not predict a complete sell out for the match, indications were that a crowd of 16,000 would see the fight. The capacity of the big arena is 18,000. The preliminaries are scheduled for 8.15 o'clock with the main event starting not later than 10 o'clock, eastern standard time.

In the ten-round semi-final, Phil Kaplan of New York will meet Mickey Rockson of California. In a six rounder Ruby Goldstein, New York lightweight will meet Dick Conlon of Altoona, Pa.

MISS MORGAN APPEALS TO NATIONAL TENNIS COMMITTEE

NEW YORK, Feb. 25.—(AP)—While plans went forward today to stage the exhibition tennis matches for charity at Madison Square next Sunday, with William T. Tilden ready to participate in spite of disapproval by national tennis powers, efforts were concentrated on restoring the members of France's international team to the program.

These efforts took the form of a request that the United States Lawn Tennis association notify Jean Borotra, captain of the French forces, there is no official objection to the foreigners taking part in the program. The request was addressed to Jones W. Mersereau, president of the U. S. L. T. A. by Miss Anne Morgan, chairman of the executive committee of the American branch of the Good-Will association, the beneficiary and sponsor of the charity program.

As a result of this development, Mr. Mersereau announced a meeting of the sanction and schedule committee of the tennis association would be held tomorrow to consider Miss Morgan's request.

Borotra, Rene La Coste and Jacques Brugnon, all were slated originally to take part in the exhibitions, opposing Tilden, Vincent Richards and Francis T. Hunter, but the leader of the French forces yesterday announced they would not compete in the face of the refusal of the U. S. L. T. A. to sanction the contests.

At the same time, Miss Morgan advised Mr. Mersereau "Borotra has said that the members of his team strongly desire to play these matches."

"We have planned the occasion as a public demonstration of friendship for France," she added, "it seems to me that the large part the French tennis players have played in furthering good—will and proper understanding between France and the United States has complete cooperation from the American players, from French and American public officials and from the public.

"We do not ask your committee to reverse its former ruling and sanction the matches: We are not speaking for the American players: We are merely asking that as the hosts of the French players you permit your guests to do the thing they themselves wish to do by advising them that, so far as the association is concerned, the French players are entirely free to act in this matter in accordance with their own desires."

Tilden, meanwhile, announced he was proceeding with plans for the matches and would muster an American team for competition, regardless of whether the French players took part. Doubt existed, however, as to whether he would obtain the support of his American teammates, Richards refused to say what course he would follow, pending developments, and Hunter adopted a similar course.

SWEDISH ROYALITY PAYS COMPLEMENT TO MISS WILLS

MONTE CARLO, Feb. 25.—(AP)—The King of Sweden, tapping Miss Helen Wills on the shoulder when rather downcast, the American champion walked off the courts today after her defeat in the doubles for the Beaumont cup, said: "You played noble."

Swedish royality only voiced the general opinion of tennis followers in the Riviera for in defeat as in victory, Miss Wills always plays "nobly". She scored two victories today and suffered one defeat in the Monte Carlo tennis tournament.

Returning to the courts for her first match after a day's rest, the American girl defeated Miss Lily Cadle, of England, who once conquered Mrs. Molla Mallory, 6-0, 6-1, and thus reached the semi-finals in the singles for the Duke of Connaught's gold cup.

Miss Wills and Mlle Contoslavos won in the women's open doubles from Mrs. Young and Miss Green of England, 6-1, 6-0.

Defeat came when teamed with Mrs. Aeschlimann against Mrs. Phyllis Satterthwaite and Miss Eileen Bennett of England, the pair passed out of the Beaumont cup competition 3-6, 1-6.

Helen's most dangerous opponent, Senorita De Alvarez, has also reached the semi-finals at the opposite end of the draw, and it looks more and more like a Spanish-American finals. The Spanish star defeated Mrs. Bramly Moore, 6-2, 6-0, and Hasyet to meet Miss E. H. Harvey.

Mlle Suzanne Lenglen will make her first appearance on the Monte Carlo courts at eleven o'clock Saturday morning, when she and her partner, Didi Vlasto, will meet Miss Radcliffe and Miss Platt, of England, for the Beaumont cup.

When informed over the telephone that the largest attendance in history of Monte Carlo tennis had marked the presence of Miss Wills as a competitor, despite Suzanne's absence, Mlle Lenglen replied tartly: "They bury me too soon. I am not finished yet. I will show them at Nice."

This was interpreted as a strong possibility that Suzanne will try conclusions with Miss Wills at Nice in a return match.

Allister McCormick, of Chicago, and J. H. Van Alen, of Brooklyn, kept the United States in the running for the Butler trophy today. They defeated the English pair F. Gordon Lowe and A. Wallis Myers, after being two sets down, the score was 0-6, 5-7, 7-5, 6-4, 7-5. The American pair have now reached the semi-finals.

Miss Wills has not decided yet whether she will play in the Mentone tournament. She dislikes the English grooved ball, which will be used at Mentone, described by the French as "a little English colony on the Mediterranean." It was announced however that she is paired with F. R. Scovel, for Mentone's international gold cup, which has been won twice by Mlle Lenglen, once paired with Rene Lacoste and once with Henri Cochet. Suzanne will play there next week paired with Cochet again.

HUNDREDS PAY FINAL RESPECTS TO EDDIE PLANK

GETTYSBURG, Pa., Feb. 25—(AP)—Hundreds of Gettysburg citizens today paid their last respects to Eddie Plank, former star pitcher of the Philadelphia Athletics, who died yesterday, the victim of a paralytic stroke. Those who will be unable to attend the funeral services on Saturday called at the Plank home to gaze for the last time on the rugged features of one whom they had honored and respected as a friend and neighbor.

A steady stream of telegrams of sympathy and condolence poured into the Plank home throughout the day. They came from nearly every state in the union and from persons in all stations of life. Many were from Plank's former teammates, including Eddie Collins, Jack Barry, Jack Coombs, Monte Cross, Duffy Lewis, J. Franklin "Home-Run" Baker, and Harry Davis.

Bill Sherdell, of the St. Louis Cardinals pitching staff, called in person to offer his sympathy to Mrs. Plank and her 10 year-old son.

Funeral services for the once famous pitcher will be held Saturday afternoon in the First Presbyterian church. Interment will be private. The body will lie in state for two hours preceding the funeral.

Amateurs to be Silverman's Opponents

NEW YORK, Feb. 25—(AP)—Lew Raymond, matchmaker of the Pioneer Athletic club, said tonight that his $5,000 offer to Marty Silverman calls for bouts with "three amateurs". Raymond did not offer any explanation of the manner in which amateurs might take part in contests in which their opponent was fighting for money.

80. MANCHESTER TAKES MEASURE OF DANIELSON

(Special to The Bulletin.)

DANIELSON, Feb. 25.—The Danielson quintet suffered another defeat tonight, when the strong South Manchester team, defeated them by the score of 43 to 36, in one of the best games witnessed this season. The South Manchester outfit took the lead from the start and held onto it tenaciously until the end of the first half, at that time the local outfit was leading by a 21 to 16 score. The latter team was unable to hold the lead for long and the Manchester team surged ahead.

In the last few games in which Manchester has taken part the men have been slow in getting started and almost invariably the opposing team has led them at the end of the first quarter. But at the onset of the second quarter the Manchester boys have pulled through for a win with their wonderful passwork and offensive and defensive game.

The game tonight was good from start to finish and furnished the fans with a number of thrills and spectacular shots, a number of them being furnished by the ceters, Celvinsky and Blakeley, who were the bright lights for the respective teams. Every man playing in tonight's game was able to score at least two points for his team. The summary:

STANWIX WINS FEATURE OF MIAMI TRACK

NEW YORK, Feb. 25.—(AP)—Earl Pool rode Stanwix an exceptional race to beat Superfrak by a head in the Terra Ceia handicap at Miami today on a fast track. Missionary was third. The winer's time for the mile and 70 yards was 1.42 4-5.

Tampa's feature, the Clearwater handicap, a claiming event, went to Monday morning which covered the six furlongs in 1:15 4-5 with George Groom gaining the place over Moon Star.

Lady Bountiful, Billiken and Outlawed preceded the Janitor, favorite in the best race at New Orleans, across the finish line. The time for the mile and 70 yards was 1.45 1-5.

Gilster and Princess Doreen, Audley Farm entry, annexed first and third money in the Belvidere handicap of six furlongs at New Orleans. Serenader captured the place. The time was 1.14 4-5.

RICKARD TO TAKE FRANCHISE IN CHICAGO

CHICAGO, Feb. 25—(AP)—Tex Rickard, New York boxing promoter, intends to invade Chicago with a hockey league franchise, and perhaps as a silent partner in a boxing club, provided the law legalizing boxing is ratified in the April primaries.

Private advices received today revealed that Rickard plans to come here within two weeks and may become interested with a group of wealthy Chicagoans in building a huge sports arena. A New York attorney representing Rickard attempted to confer with Eddy Harmon, wrestling and six day bicycle race promoter, who contemplates building an $8,000,000 arena for hockey and other sports on Chicago's West Side, but Harmon declined. He said today, however, that he possibly would meet Rickard when the latter arrives.

CELTICS TOOK EASY GAME FROM "Y" EMPS

MARTY SILVERMAN IS OFFERED PROFESSIONAL ENGAGEMENT

AMHERST, Mass., Feb. 25—(AP)—Marty Silverman of Brooklyn, N. Y., who defeated John Coolidge, son of the president in a three round bout in an Amherst College boxing tournament tonight received an offer of $5,000 by wire from the Pioneer Athletic club of New York, to box three bouts at that club. No date for the proposed bouts was set.

Silverman had not accepted the offer tonight. He spent much of the day posing with John Coolidge for newspaper photographers, and preparing for his final bout tomorrow for the college boxing championship.

COOMBS PAYS TRIBUTE TO EDDIE PLANK

PRINCETON, N. J., Feb. 25—(AP)—Jack Coombes, former team mate of the late Eddie Plank on the Philadelphia Athletics tonight gave credit to Plank for a suggestion that brought Coombs success in pitching. Combs, now coach of Pitchers at Princeton, said Plank advised him to take a longer time between deliveries and thereby make the batter over-anxious.

Chapman Beats Herman

BOSTON, Feb. 25—(AP)—Red Chapman of Chelsea won the judges' decision over Babe Herman of California in a 10 round boxing bout here tonight. Chapman weighed 136 1-2 and Herman 129.

BUZZING AROUND

TILDEN BEATEN BY LACOSTE IN CLOSE MATCH IN INTERNATIONAL TENNIS

NEW YORK, Feb. 25.—(AP)—William T. Tilden sustained one of the most stunning defeats of his career today at the hands of the 23 year old French ace, Rene La Coste. While a gallery of several thousand fans looked on in astonishment, this imperturbable invader crushed the American national champion in straight sets with an attack that was relentless in its machine like precision. The scores were 6-4, 2-6, 6-3.

Despite the downfall of Tilden, America squared the account for the day in the opening two contests of the Franco-American team series when Vincent Richards scored a brilliant triumph over Jean Borotra, at 6-4, 4-6, 6-4, 6-2. The young American's victory was more spectacular than that of La Coste's and assured a thrilling climax to the international battle, which will be resumed tomorrow with Richards and Tilden facing a new French combination, LaCoste and Jacques Brugnon, in the doubles.

Tilden's defeat was the second he has sustained at the hands of the French invaders within less than a week. Last Friday Borotra conquered him in two straight sets in the quarter finals of the national indoor tournament but he was beaten far more decisively today by La Coste. Not in the last six years of his supremacy has the tall Philadelphian tasted straight set defeat in a match for the best three out of five sets.

Today's encounter was the first time La Coste had opposed Tilden since the Davis Cup challenge round last September. On that occasion the young Frenchman lost a stirring five set duel after being several times within a point of victory. This afternoon he more than squared that account. Coming on top of his triumph in the national indoor tournament his defeat of Tilden lifts the young Frenchman to the pinnacle of the game, an outstanding contender for world honors.

It was La Coste's deadly precision, his steadiness under Tilden's hottest fire and his cool confidence that brought him his latest triumph, combined with his ability to apply the decisive punch to his strokes when it was needed. Tilden was alternately erratic and brilliant. He called on the full battery of his spectacular strokes in an effort to stem the remorseless pace of his opponent but seldom was he able to pierce La Coste's defense. The American chopped, lobbed and drove with all the power at his command but the best he could do was make it a close fight in the first two sets. He tired in the third set and went down quickly to defeat as the French speeded up his play.

Tilden's main weapon was his cannonball service. He aced La Coste fifteen times with this smoking delivery but nevertheless the Frenchman pierced it three times at the decisive turns of each set.

These "breaks" came in the final games of each of the first two sets and in the sixth game of the final set.

LaCoste's service, while not so spectacular, was even more effective than Tilden's. The French man lost only 13 points altogether on his delivery throughout the match.

It was never broken through and on several occasions he won it with love games.

An analysis of the match revealed that Tilden earned more than twice as many points as La Coste but also that his errors nearly doubled those of the Frenchman.

Richards displayed the most spectacular tennis he has shown so far in the indoor season in taking the measure of the colorful basque, Borotra, except for a slump in the second set, the American outvolleyed and outgeneralled his opponent in a duel that sparkled with astonishing "gets", smashing "kills" and remarkable court covering.

Where Tilden and La Coste had battled from the baseline, Richards and Borotra took their attacks to the net. There the Frenchman cut off shot after shot with uncanny accuracy but he offset this with his erratic driving. Richards service was a dominant factor throughout. Twice he aced Borotra four times in succession for love games as the crowd roared its applause.

THIRTY-FOOT PUTT WINS MATCH FOR MISS PAYSON

ORMOND BEACH, Fla., Feb. 25.—(AP)—Miss Helen Payson, Portland, Me., sank a 30-foot putt for a birdie three on the 17th green here today to defeat Mrs. Dorothy Campbell Hurd of Philadelphia, one up, in the women's golf championship tournament here. Mrs. Hurd, three down at the turn, squared the match at the 16th hole. The 18th was halved.

Miss Glenna Collett of Providence, R. I., won over Mrs. C. C. Ronalds, Canadian golfer, 4 and 3, and Miss Mary K. Browne, Los Angeles, downed Mrs. W. L. Brann of Pelham, N. Y.

Sun Loses Weight

According to estimates made by Sir Oliver Lodge, the sun loses 4,000,000 tons in weight every time the clock ticks, says Popular Mechanics. The scientist declares that this should occasion no alarm, however, for the sun can go on reducing at this rate for hundreds of years and still furnish the earth heat and light. The loss is represented in burning gases, the nature of which is to be studied further when an eclipse occurs.

"SHORTY" RUSSICK WINS FIRST LAP OF DOG SLED RACE BY FIFTEEN SECONDS

WOLFEBORO, N. H.—Feb. 25—(AP)—Fifteen seconds decided a forty-mile dog sled race today. It was the first lap of the point-to-point race of the New England Dog Sled club and was won by "Shorty" Russick, of Chicago, in the elapsed time of four hours and 23 minutes. An hour later Emile St. Goddard, of Poland Spring, Me., drove in through falling snow, having come from North Conway in 4 hours 23 minutes and 15 seconds.

The rest of the field of eleven drivers with their elapsed times, follows:

Earl Bridges, The Pas, Man., 4:36-:25, Jean Dupuis, Quibec, 4:47:30, William Greyson, Chicago, 4:50:55, Francois Dupuis, Quebec (winner of last week's international derby at Quebec) 4:52:50, Walter Channing, Dover, N. H., 4:58:10, Arthur T. Walden, Wonalancet, N. H., 4:59:45, Henri Skeane Quebec, 5:52:30; Philip Molloy, Berlin, N. H., 5:51:20, and Edward P. Clark, West Milan, N. H., 5:54:20.

Russick was the fourth to start from North Conway, where the racers took off at five-minute intervals, but worked into the lead in the first five miles. Before the teams struck the hills leading into Chocorua, he was well out in front and kept his lead to the end. St. Goddard started ninth, and before reaching half-way mark had pushed ahead of all except Russick. Bridges who finished third in the timing, fought well the first half of the race but fell behind St. Goddard near West Ossippe.

Conditions were excellent, the air clear and the sky so overcast as to take the glare from the hard-packed snow. The surface was gritty in some spots, and the sled brakes caught between deep ruts in others, but otherwise all went well, and the dogs and drivers were in good condition tonight. Only two dogs were taken into sleds, Francois Dupuis picking one of his up 20 miles from the finish with feet severely cut by the ice, and Skeene carrying one dog for the last 10 or 15 miles because it could not stand the pace.

Every hamlet along the route had crowds out, and farmers fought their way in over snow-clogged side roads to see the dogs go by. Several thousands were on hand at the finish line in front of the postoffice here and cheered the drivers as they came in. Snow began 10 minutes before Russick arrived and was still falling tonight, but local weather wizards predicted clear weather by morning.

A picturesque figure among the contenders was Arthur T. Walden, a great local favorite. His sturdy figure, the ear flaps of his leather helmet waving in the breeze, showed up against the sky line. It was a tough fight for him and the other men, they said, for they walked during the many stiff climbs and found little level country after leaving Chocorua.

Tomorrow's stretch will take the racers northwest to Ashland, whence they will trek for North Conway on Saturday.

Sammy Jay Loses His Temper

Fewer tempers would be lost,
If people did but count the cost.
—Sammy Jay.

Reddy Fox grinned up at Mocker the Mocking Bird, as he sat looking down from high up in a tree. "Mr. Mocker," said he, "I've come way over here just to tell you how wonderfully like Mr. Pheasant's voice your voice is. My, my, my, I never heard anything like it! Do you know, Mr. Mocker, you almost fooled me."

"Did I?" asked Mr. Mocker.

"Yes," replied Reddy, "you almost fooled me. If I hadn't known better I should have said that that was Mr. Pheasant crowing. Can you imitate any one else, Mr. Mocker?"

"Certainly," replied Mr. Mocker, and all the time he was chuckling down inside, for he knew that he had fooled Reddy Fox.

"Who can you imitate?" asked Reddy.

"Who would you like to hear me imitate?" Mr. Mocker asked.

Just then, way off in the distance,

"Who would you like to hear me imitate?" Mr. Mocker asked they heard the voice of Sammy Jay as he cried "Thief, thief, thief!"

"There you are," cried Reddy. "Let me hear you imitate Sammy Jay."

Hardly were the words out of Reddy's mouth when the cry of "Thief, thief, thief!" rang out above him, and it was so exactly like Sammy Jay's voice that before he thought Reddy looked to see if Sammy hadn't arrived without being noticed. Sammy hadn't, but he would arrive soon, for they heard him crying "Thief, thief, thief!" and that sound was drawing nearer. There was nothing pleasant about Sammy's voice. It had an angry sound. Mocker flew over to a hemlock tree and hid in the thickest part of it. Once more he screamed just like Sammy Jay. Reddy Fox got behind the little brush heap near by and grinned. It was evident that Sammy Jay was losing a little more of his temper with every beat of his wing.

Presently Sammy arrived, quite out of breath. He began to look about in every direction. The crest on his handsome head was standing up. It was plain to see that Sammy had come to pick a fight. "Thief, thief, thief!" he screamed. Almost instantly there was a reply from a little clump of hemlock trees. Over there flew Sammy, so angry that he could hardly scream. It was one thing for him to call another person a thief, and quite another thing to be called a thief. What Sammy thought was that a strange Jay from far away had come to the Green Forest, and Sammy didn't want him there. He intended to drive him away, and do it without any waste of time.

Now as Sammy flew toward that clump of hemlock trees Mocker the Mocking Bird slipped out on the other side and into another very thick hemlock tree. So of course Sammy found no one. He screamed again, for his temper was quite lost by this time. Right away some one screamed back at him. Over to the next hemlock tree flew Sammy, but already Mocker had slipped out of it and down to another hemlock some distance away. There he screamed again, just like Sammy Jay. Sammy was the most upset Blue Jay you ever saw. Yes, sir, he was so. He was so angry that he didn't even notice Reddy Fox grinning up at him. Straight for that other tree flew Sammy. When he got there of course he found no one but Mr. Mocker. Mocker was very innocent as he sat in the top of the tree.

"Where is that other Jay?" demanded Sammy, after he had looked all through the tree.

"Is there another Jay?" inquired Mocker innocently. "I haven't seen one anywhere. He certainly isn't here." And this is all the satisfaction that Sammy Jay got.

Avoid Poorly Balanced Breakfasts

That's Where the Great Dietary Mistake is made

IF YOU feel tired, hungry, "fidgety" hours before lunch, don't jump to the conclusion of poor health. Thousands have energetic mornings because they start the day with wrong breakfasts.

To feel right, you must have a well-balanced, complete breakfast ration. At most other meals—lunch and dinner—you get it. But breakfast is a hurried meal, often badly chosen.

Thus Quaker Oats; containing 16% protein, food's great tissue builder, 68% carbohydrate, its great energy element, plus all-important vitamines and the "bulk" that makes laxatives seldom needed, is the dietetic urge of the world today.

It is food that "stands by" you through the morning. Quick Quaker cooks in 3 to 5 minutes. That's faster than plain toast. Don't deny yourself the natural stimulation this rich food offers you.

BREAK IN PRICES ON N. Y. RUBBER EXCHANGE

NEW YORK, Feb. 25—(AP)—Signs favorable to automobile tire users developed today. Rubber prices broke 4 cents a pound on the rubber exchange of New York, as daily trading totalled 868,000 pounds, the highest figure since the exchange opened February 15.

The market reached new low prices with May futures selling at 48.9 cents and June contracts at 47.9 toward the close, prices strengthened slightly. May deliveries closing at 49.5 and June at 48.5.

Members of the exchange and manufacturers attributed the break in considerable measure to Secretary Hoover's campaign for economy, which has centered the attention of the ultimate consumer upon high prices, particularly of automobile tires.

Whether the market break will cause another reduction of tire rices, a mark down to 13 1-2 per cent having been made a month ago, by most of the manufacturers, was a matter of doubt.

A. L. Vile, secretary of the Rubber Association of America, said he did not see how manufacturers could reduce tire prices further, unless present low quotations continued. If they did, he said, he expected to see additional reductions.

Total resources of the 8,048 national banks on December 31 last was announced by the comptroller of the currency as $25,852,000. This represented an increase of $1,361,265,000 for the year.

HARVARD MAN SPEAKER AT COLLEGE CONVOCATION

Dr. Shapley of the Harvard observatory, as the convocation speaker at Connecticut college, Wednesday afternoon, gave a glimpse into the depths of the universe to the audience of Connecticut college students, faculty, and friends from the city. His method of presenting the subject was more like that of a producer and wholesaler dealing out food or fruit in large bulk and plenty—rather than that of a stingy boarding house mistress at whose table the minimum of food is passed on the strength of maximum table paraphernalia. Dr. Shapley is one of the leading producers of modern astronomical knowledge. Among the things he dealt out, moderated or flavored with many witty and entertaining remarks and illustrated with a large number of excellent lantern pictures, the more noteworthy are teh following:

In accordance with the more recent theories matter and energy are one and the same thing and matter can be changed into heat and light, so that the stars and suns are consuming their matter by their profuse radiation of light, and eventually all matter may vanish into radiated light pervading interstellar and intergalactic space.

The universe of which we form an infinitesimal part is the galaxy which is nothing but a group of about 3,000 million stars arranged in the shape of a pocket watch. Contrary to the feelings of anthropocentric people, our sun and earth are not located at the center of this huge aggregation of stars, but occupy a position half way between the center and the edge. If the disk of this galaxy is represented by a circle six feet in diameter then the entire starry heavens as seen by the naked eye would be represented by a circle of about one inch placed half way between the center and the edge of the large circle.

Stars have an evolution, one which is safe for controversy, since there is neither man at one end nor monkey at the other. Stars start as red giant stars of three to four thousand times the diameter of our sun, and go through stages getting hotter and smaller until they can get no hotter and begin to cool and diminish still further in size, forming the dwarf stars.

Many of the spiral nebulae are separate sidereal universes like our galaxy. There are indications that se several stars or groups of stars constitute a system bounded by gravitational attractions, so there are many of these galaxies forming super systems.

The insignificance of man is best seen by the study of astronomy, a science the pursuit of which brings not worldly good but pure knowledge and a placing of man in the entire scheme of things. In space astronomy teaches us that man is insignificant; at the same time, it discovers the greatness and the wonderfulness of the human mind in the fact that it can grasp and handle such huge topics as the space and matter represented by the sidereal universe.

A SPLENDID HAIR GROWER AND WONDERFUL BEAUTIFIER

Found at Last! Shows Results at Once, or Nothing to Pay

Woman Delighted—All Surprised by Quick Action of Parisian Sage.

Here is good news for all men and women whose hair is faded, dry, streaked and scraggly—is falling out, and whose scalps are covered with dandruff and itch like mad.

Any drug or toilet counter can now supply you with the genuine Parisian Sage (liquid form), which is guaranteed to quickly and safely banish every sign of dangerous dandruff, stop itching scalp and falling hair and stimulate new hair to grow.

Thousands can testify to its excellence; some who feared baldness now glory in their abundant hair, while others who were constantly annoyed with dandruff and itching head got a clean, healthy scalp after just a few days' use of this simple home treatment.

Parisian Sage is a scientific preparation that supplies hair needs. It's easy to use, perfectly harmless not sticky or greasy, and even the first application makes the hair and scalp look and feel 100 per cent. better.

If you want to save your hair, make it grow and look its best, don't delay—begin using Parisian Sage tonight. Ask for it at Lee & Osgood Co. It will cost you nothing if it does not give perfect satisfaction.

VERDICT FOR DEFENDANT IN $10,000 AUTOMOBILE CASE

(Special to The Bulletin.)

WESTERLY, Feb. 25—At 4:34 o'clock Thursday afternoon the jury returned with a verdict for the defendant in the $10,000 damage case of Abbie J. Morrow vs. Charles T. Clarke, of New York. The suit followed the death of George Morrow, husband of Abbie J. Morrow, on the Boston Post road near Saunderstown, R. I., Oct. 7, 1925, when the automobile of Clarke struck Morrow as the latter was changing a tire. The trial was begun before Judge Sumner on Monday and the jury retired for deliberation at 3:15 o'clock Thursday afternoon.

Net profits of the Miller Rubber Company of Akron, Ohio, for 1926 were announced by President Jacob Pfeiffer as $3,539,201.37.

AGRICULTURAL INTERESTS

THE OLD APPLE TREE

"Good fruit" or "good fuel" is the present-day verdict against the old apple tree. And just at this season the question "Shall we cut it down or prune it up?" should receive serious consideration.

The following points will determine the worth-while-ness of a tree: (1) Is it of a desirable variety? (2) Is it in a favorable location as regards drainage, possibility of spraying, etc.? (3) Is the trunk reasonably sound? If the tree can answer these questions in the affirmative, renovation is likely to yield a mighty good profit.

The conclusion to be drawn is merely this: If a tree for any reason cannot be made to bear good fruit, it should be cut down. If it seems to be worthy of attention, that is what it should receive. Renovation, or the development of new bearing wood, is the thing most needed in the average old tree. Many of the fruit spurs have outlived their usefulness and the tree is likely to be either too high or too thick, or both.

The first year, all dead limbs should be cut out and the top thinned out quite heavily, with the aim in view of using water sprouts in the development of new branches when needed. Excess scaffold branches must be removed and the sunlight permitted to reach those parts of the tree where growth is desired. Two or three years should be taken in renovating the tree because heavy "topping" will stimulate growth where the tree is already too thick. Limbs exposed by such pruning are also very subject to sun scald.

GARDEN FERTILITY

Garden soils should be filled with organic matter before any attempt is made to supply the lack of plant food by the use of the so-called fertilizers. These concentrated chemical fertilizers may be likened to the concentrated foods upon our tables. They supplement the coarser foods such as vegetables in our diet. Every doctor prescribes the more liberal use of green vegetables. The agriculturist likewise will commend organic matter for sale, recommending chemical fertilizers in small doses as a supplementary plant food.

In the first place, all organic material, not diseased, such as garden refuse, lawn clippings, leaves, etc., should be composted by allowing it to rot in piles in some corner in the back yard. When this material is rotted, it should be spaded into the garden and plant beds late in the fall. It is always advisable in spading or plowing any piece of land, to turn up a little of the subsoil to increase the depth to which plant roots can develop, to better the drainage conditions and to enlarge the feeding area for plant roots.

PREPARE FOR SEEDS

If you believe in "preparedness" you may have already ordered this year's seed; certainly you should be thinking about it now.

Seed may be sown indoors in "flats" to get a proper start early. From March 1 to 16, if you are figuring to raise your own plants, sow seed for tomatoes, egg plants, peppers, lettuce, cabbage, and celery. The seedlings will later need to be transplanted 2 inches by 2 inches into other larger "flats" or cold frames. Then when the garden can be worked these small plants can be set out and will give an early crop.

When buying seeds it is the best plan to buy only from reputable, well-established seedsmen or from dealers who handle the products of such firms.

An official report from New York state showed that of 300 packets of various seeds sold in various markets by many different dealers, 63 per cent were below a reasonable standard and nearly 20 per cent were absolutely worthless.

Make arrangements for manure for the garden at once. It is the best of all fertilizers and it is wise to order your supply ahead and it may be difficult to purchase in the spring.

VIGOROUS CHICKEN STOCK

At the beginning of another season of raising chickens it is of especial importance that poultrymen secure good healthy vigorous stock. Good breeders will exercise care to secure eggs only from sound superior bred flocks as uncubation is a costly operation and the hatchability of eggs is directly dependent upon the health and vitality of the birds that produced those eggs. All incubator men want a high percentage of hatchability. Those poultrymen who do no incubation, maintain no breeding flock, but rely upon the purchase of baby chicks should select the sources from which they will procure their stock with the utmost care and consideration.

Heavy mortality among baby chicks increases the cost per chick of the survivors, and many a poultryman has found that it would have been a better investment to buy chicks from good sources and pay, say, 30 cents a chick rather than to have bought the ordinary stock from an unknown source at 18 cents less a chick. Of course these arbitrary figures are merely used for the purpose of illustration, but the example is not one bit over-drawn.

Those poultrymen who are maintaining a small flock of birds in backyard coops and keeping poultry primarily for the use of their individual families are in most cases badly handicapped by their conditions for raising or brooding young chicks. Clean, new ground should be used each year to properly and economically raise chickens to maturity. Brooding operations call for considerable time and careful attention on the part of the operator to insure the raising of healthy, vigorous birds. Lack of time or inability to give necessary care at proper times will often result in stunted chickens. For the most part people maintaining back yard poultry flocks would secure more satisfaction and better results at a lower cost to buy well-grown, healthy pullets in the fall each year and avoid the difficulties and failures so often connected with their attempts to brood and raise chickens.

NEW METHOD FOR CONTROL OF CROWN GALL DEVELOPED

A new method for the control of crown gall in the apple nursery has been devised by the United States department of agriculture after a number of years of experimental work. Department Circular No. 375, A Method for the Control of Crown Gall in the Apple Nursery, by M. B. Waite and E. R. Siegler, has just been published, to make the information immediately available to nurserymen and others interested in the propagation and growing of root-grafted apple trees.

The problem of crown gall in nurseries where the stock is grown by the root-grafting method is a very serious one. It is not uncommon for the nurseryman to find 25 to 50 per cent of his trees infected at digging time. Experimental tests of the new method have shown that the percentage of infection can be materially reduced.

The disease or gall which usually forms about or near the graft is caused by a germ which is easily killed by germicides when it can be reached. For a number of years the department has recommended the use of a formaldehyde solution as a dip for the apple stocks and scions before grafting, as a means of controlling crown gall. It has proved of some value in the control of the disease. In the past three years one of the organic-mercury compounds has also been tested as a dip and has proved distinctly more efficacious than the formaldehyde-solution treatment. It also proved to be non-injurious to the apple grafts.

In the experiments of 1925 in which the organic-mercury treatment was given to 2,619 grafts representing a number of different varieties, only 8.1 per cent of the trees were found to have galls, both large and small, as compared to 32.6 per cent on the same number of untreated grafts which were used as checks. The grafts used in these experiments were wrapped either with raffia or a cheap grade of muslin.

The best practice to follow is to inspect critically the seedling stocks before using them for grafting and to discard and burn all the obviously infected ones. The supposedly clean seedlings and also the scions should be dipped, uncut, in the organic-mercury solution consisting of 1 part of hydroxymercurichlorophenol to 400 parts of water (approximately at the rate of 1 ounce to 3 gallons) and allowed to remain for 10 minutes. After the grafts are made and carefully wrapped they should be dipped in a fresh solution of the same kind for about 5 seconds. They should be stored in a cool place and just before planting dipped again in a fresh solution for 5 seconds.

CONTROL OF STRAWBERRY ROOTWORM ON ROSES

Two varieties of the strawberry rootworm have within the last seven years appeared in greenhouses in the commercial rose-growing districts east of the Rocky mountains and have caused serious injury to the rose plants, according to a new department bulletin (No. 1357) entitled The Strawberry Rootworm, A New Pest on Greenhouse Roses, which contains a full technical report of the investigation made by the Bureau of Entomology, United States Department of Agriculture, for the purpose of evolving methods of controlling this pest.

Early experiments demonstrated that the usual measures recommended for leafeating insects are practically useless in controlling the strawberry rootworm. The pest apparently has but few natural enemies, says the bulletin. Although spraying with arsenicals did not prove practical under ordinary conditions, it was however, found successful in protecting the swelling and breaking buds at the time the plants were cut back. Under similar conditions a Bordeaux-arsenate of lead mixture served as a repellent. Experiments showed that dusting with a 10 or 15 per cent dry mixture of arsenate of lead or calcium arsenate and superfine sulphur is a satisfactory method of keeping the foliage coated with an arsenical to repel the beetles.

In 21 commercial houses fumigation with hydrocyanic-acid gas during the resting period of the plants produced an average mortality of approximately 95 per cent of all beetles above ground. A modification of hand picking the beetles, a method employed by many florists, wherein kerosene nicotine oleate was used to cover with a film the surface of the pools and puddles in heavily watered beds, killed any beetles which came in contact with the insecticide while struggling in the water.

APPLE-TREE GROWING

"A satisfactory head with well-placed scaffold branches and strong crotches that will not break down under loads of fruit depend upon the early training of the young apple trees," states A. Freeman Mason, specialist in fruit growing in the New Jersey State College of Agriculture.

"The first thing to do in training the two-year-old apple tree is to select the scaffold branches. If an open center or vase-shaped apple tree is desired, three or four vigorous branches well distributed around the trunk and making wide-angled crotches with it, should be selected. These branches should be separated from each other by several inches, if possible.

"The centre branch, if one is present, and any additional side branches, should be cut off, and the three or four remaining scaffold branches should be tipped heavily to make them of equal height. It may be possible to select only one or two of the scaffold branches the first year. In this case, the centre branch should be allowed to remain to form a trunk from which additional scaffold branches may be selected later, after which this centre branch may be removed.

"If a leader-type tree, or one in which a central trunk is carried up for several feet, is started, the central or dominating branch is not removed, and wide-crotched scaffold branches, well distributed around the trunk and six to fifteen inches apart, are selected. The leader or trunk is tipped back a quarter to a third of its length to promote the formation of additional side branches. It is desirable to tip the scaffold branches slightly to promote branching.

"In pruning young trees, four 'don'ts' should be observed: Don't leave branches with narrow-angled or sharp crotches; don't allow the tips of scaffold branches to die back; don't cut off small twigs and spurs on the trunk and large branches, and don't prune or cut back heavily."

ONE MILLION HEALTHY CHICKS

This is the goal set for the "Grow Healthy Chicks" campaign in Connecticut. The work is already well under way, being carried on through general publicity; a survey of brooding results last season; a bulletin on definite recommendations for practices this year; pledge cards to be signed by those who will follow these recommended practices; and follow-up letters of instruction. If you are not already familiar with the details of this campaign you can find out from your county agent. The eight points of the campaign are outlined as follows:

1. Clean Chicks—Start with white diarrhoea-free chicks or eggs.

2. Clean incubators—Scrape; scrub; disinfect; use clean burlap on nursery trays.

3. Clean brooder houses—Scrape clean, scrub with water and lye or disinfectant. (Bichloride of Mercury, tablet form, 1 ounce to 8 gallons of water.) Spray with disinfectant; then with whitewash.

4. Clean ground—Use only ground that has been entirely free from chickens or chicken manure for at least one year.

5. Clean litter—Use shavings. Clean and renew after the first 10 days; then every five days thereafter.

6. Clean feed—Feed only in boxes or hoppers inside of the houses. Grain may be fed on the ground outside if a new spot is used each day.

7. Clean management—Avoid traveling from hen's quarters onto the chick range. Use disinfectants. Keep visitors out!

8. Clean laying houses—Scrape out. Scrub with water and lye or disinfectant. Spray with good disinfectant; then with whitewash.

These eight points are within the reach of the average poultryman, and the labor and expense involved are amply justified by the results that can be obtained.

EARLY APPLIED MANURE REALLY ADDS FERTILITY

All but four of the 33 men who grew 400 or more bushels of potatoes per acre in 1924 applied manure. Twenty-five of these put the manure on the land in the fall or early winter.

These successful farmers realize that manure applied early is much more efficient than that put on in the spring just before plowing, according to J. E. Dickey, farm crops extension specialist of the Pennsylvania State college.

There are several good reasons for this, he declares. If the manure lies in an open yard exposed to all the winter and spring rains as much as 50 per cent of the nitrogen and potash, the most valuable parts of the manure, may be washed out and lost. This is the most soluble portion, and consequently the most valuable plant food material in the manure is the first readily leached away.

"If the manure lies on the surface of the field for several months, this plant food is washed into and distributed through the soil, so that it is in ideal condition for the plant roots," Dickey states. A small quantity may be lost in the water running off the surface. Where the land is unusually sloping it may even be inadvisable to apply manure to the frozen ground but aside from the loss in much less than this, which occurs in the latter part. On the other hand, if the manure is applied in the spring and plowed down, the movement of the soluble plant food carried in it farther down into the subsoil and more or less out of reach of the plant roots. At the least, there is, then, none of the fertility of the manure in the surface soil.

Sleeplessness Banished
By New, Harmless Remedy

Produces Sleep in Natural Way, Soothes Nerves

You can fall into deep restful slumber almost as soon as your head touches the pillow. You can banish forever the fitful slumber that ruins the entire nervous system, causing irritability and "blues" and makes the eyes look tired and dull, with a new preparation, called Neura—easy to take and absolutely harmless. Neura contains no opiates, or any habit-forming drugs. It is a pleasant pink pellet that does banish sleeplessness.

So successful has been this new treatment that it is now dispensed by Lee & Osgood Co. and druggists everywhere with a guarantee to return your money if you are not amazed and delighted with the results from the very first package. For your health's sake and your nerves try Neura today.

The greatest simplicity ever attained in automobile power-plant design is inherently a part of the powerful sleeve-valve motor of the Willys-Knight Great Six. In each cylinder are two metal sleeves, gliding smoothly up and down, one within the other—working silently, wearlessly, in a constant film of oil—and that is all. 65 to 118 fewer parts—no carbon troubles . . .

Contrast this with the perpetual pounding of metal upon metal in the poppet-valve motor—the coil and recoil of 12 separate springs 1100 times a minute—burned valves, pitted valve seats—all the valve grinding—the endless adjustments—periodic carbon-cleaning. These causes that inevitably weaken and eventually destroy the finest of poppet-valve motors are entirely absent in the Willys-Knight engine—"an engine you'll never wear out."

POETRY

To Critics

When I was seventeen I heard
From each censorious tongue,
"I'd not do that, if I were you;
You see, you're rather young."

Now that I number forty years,
I'm quite as often told
Of this or that I shouldn't do
Because I'm quite too old.

O carping world! If there's an age
Where youth and manhood keep
An equal poise, alas! I must Have passed it in my sleep.

—Walter Learned.

Events

All day I did the little things,
The little things that do not show;
I brought the kindling for the fire,
I set the candles in a row,
I filled a bowl with marigolds
The shallow bowl you love the best—
And made the house a pleasant place
Where weariness might take its rest.

The hours sped on. My eager feet
Could not keep pace with my desire
So much to do, so little time!
I would not let my body tire.
Yet, when the coming of the night
Blotted the garden from my sight,
And on the narrow graveled walks
Between the guarding flower stalks
I heard your step, I was not through
With services I meant for you!

You came into the quiet room
That glowed enchanted with the bloom
Of yellow flame I saw your face
Illuminated by the fire-lit space
Slowly grow still and comforted.
"It's good to be at home," you said.
Blanche Raine Kuder, in Woman's Home Companion

HUMOR OF THE DAY

Judge—Why did you kick this man?

Accused—Because he called me a mule!—Vikingen, Oslo.

Our national forests cover approximately 167,000,000 acres.

Nova Scotia produces about 2,000,000 barrels of apples annually.

Africa has an estimated water power of 160,000,000-horse power.

Many seaweeds extract iodine from the water in their life processes.

With only three wheels instead of the usual four, a roller skate which weighs only 15 ounces has been invented in England.

The world's largest electric shovel, which has gone into action in the coal fields of Pennsylvania, takes 12 tons of earth at one bite.

The authorities of University College, London, have decided to establish a new Danish lectureship in memory of Queen Alexandra.

Scotland Yard has entered the realm of fashion to voice a protest. The cause is the new fad London women have of wearing pearl and diamond necklaces with strings down the back. As the "help yourself" idea of displaying precious stones, the detectives said it was sure to make more work for them.

Electric block signals such as these in use on railroads, have been placed in the principal tobogan slides at Garmisch-Partenkirchen, Germany. Red and green signal lights will notify the starters at the top of the slides when it is safe to allow a toboggan load of tobogganners to start. A private telephone line along the course of the slide adds to the safety of the sport.

The night-blooming cereus, one of the most beautiful flowers of the desert, is not wholly a flower of the night, as has commonly been thought. The annual exhibit of scientific work at the Carnegie Institution included two photographs of these rare plants being visited by bees that fly only in the daytime. Dr. D. T. MacDougal, of the Institution, explains that the flower does not close with the coming of the first signs of dawn, but remains open for a time, usually giving the bees an hour or two of early daylight to work by, and thus freeing itself of total dependence upon night-flying moths for the important process of polination.

For a good crop of red clover seed, plenty of bumblebees are necessary. The smaller, short-tongued common honey bees, can not get at the nectar in the clover flowers and hence do not visit them: so if pollen is to be carried and good seed formed, the big bumblebees must do the work. At present farmers depend on the population of bumblebees that may chance to be in the neighborhood, but Dr. Theodore H. Frison, of the Illinois state natural history survey, is at work on methods for inducing queen bumblebees to take up their residences in artificial nests which he provides for them, thus increasing the bumblebee population of any desired region. He reports that he was successful in obtaining queen bee tenants for about 50 per cent of the little "bee houses" which he scattered about after the fashion of bird houses.

CITY INCONVENIENCES, COUNTRY COMFORTS.

(Written Specially for The Bulletin)

When I write my novel of modern apartment - house life in the big city, I shall begin it in something like fashion:—

"Clad in a dainty apronette, the little wifette stood by the stovette in her three-and-a-half by four-and-a-quarter kitchenette. With a spoonette she carefully measured out the ingredients from a shelfette of packagettes into a bowlette preparatory to cooking them in a skillettette over the flamelet of the gas-burnerette. She was getting the dinner for her family-ette."

Very few of us farmers appreciate with any accuracy the condition of families of approximately corresponding circumstances in the apartments and tenements of the cities. Nor do we often comprehend the ultimate explanation for the tremendous difference between the prices at which we sell our products by the bushel or barrel, and the prices which the city consumers pay for those same products by the peck or the pint, —or less.

Most of us live in roomy old houses, with a big frost-proof cellar, under at least all of the house except the "ell," and a garret of equal area under the steep roof. The kitchen is a room of generous size, big enough for the range and the rows of broad shelves for pans and dishes and ample supplies of such materials as are of daily use, and, also, big enough to hold the family dining-table when emergency of weather or other stress makes such a thing convenient.

In case of an unexpected call the housewife doesn't care whether the stores are open or not; there are reserve supplies in her own cellar and attic and back store room for all reasonable needs.

Only the other day I studied with some care the floor-plans of an "apartment" in one of the suburbs of New York, which was set forth in the advertisement as the very latest triumph of convenience and efficiency and economy. It had a bathroom a little bigger than a laundry-tub; a kitchenette five feet by seven; a living and dining-room combined, nine feet by eleven; one bed-room of like dimensions and another six feet by eight; a pantry big enough for the housewife to stand erect in,—if she didn't carry anything bigger than a spoon in her hand; a "breakfast alcove" almost as roomy as the eating-niche in a railroad dining car; four closets, size not given on the plan but apparently about two feet by six inches, each; and a "hall" in which two people might possibly pass each other if they made themselves as thin as possible and kept their hats on.

The only available places for any sort of storage that I could discover were the spaces under the sink and the beds and in the bath tub.

The rent for this set of doll's rooms,—nine stories up,—was set at a so-called "bargain" price which was, nevertheless, considerably more than the entire year's income of the average New England farmer from all his labor, investment, and product.

If there was any truth at all in the advertisement, this micrometric cell was unusually "roomy" and a "model of convenience" as compared with other "flats" offered at higher rentals. If that was really so, what must the less roomy and convenient ones have been? My imagination fails at the job of picturing them. Try your own, please.

Anyway, just imagine yourself living in one of these tucked-up doll's houses. When you want to make waffles you can't go to the barrel of flour,—for there isn't room to keep such a whale of a thing as a whole barrel. You can't go to the bin and pick out a panful of potatoes for dinner, for there isn't room for more than a peck at a time on the premises. If the kid wants an apple you can't send him to the apple-barrel to get one. Such a container would be as impossible as a flour barrel. You can't have more than a pound of butter on hand at any one time, or more than five pounds of sugar, or much more than just the "makings" of a cup of tea or a pot of coffee. And every time you want a bit of meat you must chase out to the butcher's and buy enough for one meal, or, if the butcher's shop is closed, go without.

All any observer has to do is look over the shelves of any food-store, covered darn deep with rows of packages and cartons, to learn that the demand of housewives is not for supplies in bulk, but for rations in driblets. If these driblets are wholly or partially cooked, so much the better. This has been so, for some time. Now grocers report a steadily increasing demand for still smaller packages than those at present common. The call is for cans of corn, peas, tomatoes, etc., holding just "enough for two;" for dried fruit in half-pound cartons; for crackers in two-ounce boxes; for butter in ten cent bits and kraut in three cent sides. Calls for one lemon and for two eggs are not infrequent, or for an ounce of tea and a cent's worth of pickles. "I foresee the time," said one New York city delicatessen dealer, "when I shall have to put in an apothecary's scale to weigh out goods in." Even the vegetable dealers find it profitable to split the bunches of carrots and onions and asparagus and the like which the market-gardeners put up, and rebunch them into such small parcels that one wonders if there is enough in them for one healthy appetite.

Now, if you'll consider city housing as it is housed, you'll speedily see the reason for this city demand for constantly shrinking "packagettes" of food material. The poor critters have to buy only from day to day, because they haven't any place to keep supplies for longer periods. They can't buy our potatoes by the bushel; they must get them from somebody who will sell a half-peck at a time. They can't buy our apples by the barrel; they must get them from some one who will sell apples by the pound. They can't even buy oat meal in bulk; they must have it in tiny cartons holding just enough for one serving, so they can burn the package up and get it out of the way.

All this packaging and boxing and canning costs money; all this gribbling out small parcels takes time and labor. That time, that labor, and those packages are going to be paid for,—as they ought to be. Moreover, they are going to be paid for by the purchasers. There is mighty small difference between the time and labor and material involved in putting up pound packages or quarter-pound packages. The consumer who buys four quarter-pound boxes of raisins may possibly get as many and as good raisins as if he bought one full pound package. And he may not pay any more for the raisins themselves. But he pays practically four times as much for the packages and the printing on them and the time and labor required to put them up and seal them.

Does he think anybody is taking this extra trouble and going to this extra expense for charity? Or even for the sake of neighborly accommodation? If he does, he's got another think coming.

There is much talk and considerable rural envy of "city conveniences." As one who has lived many years in both city and country, I wonder that somebody doesn't write a book—a book? a whole five-foot shelf of books!—about city inconveniences.

To live in "rooms" which the ordinary country housewife would hardly consider adequate closets,—to live literally from hand to mouth,—to depend wholly in any emergency upon the service of some corner-grocery or delicatessen store,—to pay the rental of a palace for an "apartment" of shoe-boxes,—and to be at the mercy every day and all day of the peddling retailer,—why, a week of such existence would drive the thrifty but hospitable Connecticut rural house-mother into real conniption-fits.

Better is a dinner of herbs at a table where you can use something as big as a teaspoon than a steak from a stalled ox in a "breakfast nook" too small to swing a carving knife! Better an old-fashioned sitz-bath, to which one must carry water in a pail, than a "bath-tub" so short and scrimpy that only a shut-up jack-knife could get into it, all at one time!

And better, a thousand times better the feeling that, no matter what the weather and no matter what the emergency, here is plenty of flour in the barrel and of potatoes in the bin and of apples in the fruit-cellar and of home-canned stuff on the pantry shelves to meet any reasonable need, whether the delicatessen store is open or not, and whether the delivery boy comes around on time or not!

It is an old saying, bearing the approval of many generations, that when one is in Rome he must do as the Romans do.

It does not follow, however, that he must go to Rome,—or New York. He is not compelled to do so. He may stay elsewhere. If he elects, and make a home which shall not be limited by city restrictions, and in which the custom of the city shall not be ultimate law.

If, however, he or she prefers "city conveniences" to country comfort, there is nothing to forbid him or her from having them, with the "city inconveniences" inadvorceably attached.

Those who choose to live in a set of cubby-holes as their home, and to buy their supplies from meal to meal in ounce packages and five cent cartons have the indubitable right to do so.

But they haven't the right to kick when the dealers on whom they make themselves dependent charge them for their services as well as for their goods.

Such people make their own beds if the beds are not comfortable whose fault is it?

Narragansett, Hiram C. Matterson, fisherman.

MINT-VENDING MACHINE CASES AT STONINGTON

(Special to The Bulletin.)

WESTERLY, R. I., Feb. 25—Before Judge William A. Wilcox in a special session of Stonington town court in Borough hall, Stonington, Thursday morning, nearly a hundred spectators assembled. The general interest followed the seizure of mint vending machines in Mystic, Stonington and Pawcatuck last Friday afternoon by Sergt. Clifford Gergas and Connecticut State Troopers from the Groton, Centerbrook and Hartford barracks. The proprietors were summoned to appear at this session of the town court.

Previous to taking up the slot machine cases, violators of Connecticut automobile laws gathered up in the drag net set in Pawcatuck Monday and Tuesday evening of the past week, were prosecuted.

Albert Fischer of Wequetequock, given a summons by Trooper Khlowski on West Broad street, Pawcatuck on Monday night for the operation of a Reo speedwagon, on which but one headlight was burning and no tail light was presented by Prosecuting Officer McKenna. He pleaded guilty, but said that in trips over bad roads and for long hours in Rhode Island, to Providence, Newport, also to Willimantic and New London his batteries became overcharged and lamps burned out. He was fined $2 and costs of $12, amounting to $14, which was paid.

Theodore Markoff of White Rock, was summoned by the same officer on the same evening for the operating of an automobile with headlights without device to protect glare and having the approval of Connecticut authorities. The defendant pleaded guilty and said that he did not know his headlights were illegal and that he had them replaced immediately. He was fined $2 and costs of $12 amounting to $14, which he paid.

Prosecuting Officer George R. McKenna then called the following names and asked the respondents to remain in their seats: James Marie, L. P. Daneal, N. Ollie King, James F. Lahey, E. A. Bliven, Harry Trefet, Joseph Girard, Walter Mouale, Peter Haverlis and C. T. Ash. Each responded when Attorney McKenna said that they had been called in for having slot machines which had been questioned as a violation of the gaming laws, and as there existed some doubt, he had not issued any complaints against them, as they had been installed with the understanding that they were within the law. Attorney Thomas E. Troland of New London, spoke at length on the questionable legality of the arrests. Court adjourned without action.

John J. Kennedy, well known as a stone cutter and dahlia grower in Westerly, died at Wallum Lake Sanitarium, Burrillville, R. I., Wednesday evening at 6:30 o'clock, having been a patient there since last December. For many years Mr. Kennedy was employed by the Smith Granite company and afterward became gardener for J. F. Byers at Watch Hill. Harry R. Milner of this town and Eugene Atwood of Stonington. Besides his wife, Ines A. Carpenter Kennedy, he is survived by a brother, Thomas Kennedy, of Scotland. For a number of years Mr. Kennedy was an officer and an enthusiastic worker in the South County Poultry association and exhibitor. He was an expert grower of flowers and was especially successful in growing dahlias.

Lady Leslie lodge held its annual banquet Wednesday evening at the Colonial club when the following menu was served:

Grapefruit Cocktail
Cream of Chicken Soup
Roast Turkey and Dressing
Giblet Sauce
Mashed Potato Mashed Turnip
Green Peas Cranberry Sauce
Fudge Cake
Ice Cream Demi Tasse

There was an attendance of thirty-six members. Seated at the table were seven past chief daughters and two visitors were present from Seattle, Wash., Mr. and Mrs. Samuel MacManus, who resided in Westerly about 16 years ago.

Mr. and Mrs. MacManus recently returned from a trip to Scotland and Mr. MacManus gave an interesting talk on his experience there. Among the other speakers was Mrs. John Reardon, a charter member of the organization, which was instituted 23 years ago. During the evening songs were by Elisabeth Finley, Jeanie Thompson and Jeanie Hewitt, and Alexander Barr gave selections on the harmonica. The evening closed with the singing of "Auld Lang Syne".

Sometime after 10 o'clock Wednesday night the store of Samuel Girven and Company on Main street at the corner of Union street was entered and goods valued at $21.50 stolen. The entrance was gained through a hole smashed in a large pane of glass on the side next to the driveway between the Girven store and Minchen's Bakery. An investigation showed that the glass was broken by means of hurling a bag containing a part of an old lawn mower against it. A Stevens rifle valued at 15 and a set of boxing gloves valued at $6.50 were found missing by Samuel Girven, proprietor. The police notified him of the break. Samuel Girven & Co., are in the process of moving their stock to a store on Main street.

FAKE PRIEST TODAY WILL BE RETURNED TO BRIDGEPORT

BRIDGEPORT, Feb. 25—(AP)—It is expected that Dominick Roche, fake priest, who is alleged to have swindled the law firm of Marsh, Stoddard and Day of $3,700 will be returned late tomorrow from New York to this city. Extradition papers were signed today by Governor John H. Trumbull.

Detective Sergeant Matthew Kane left early this morning for Hartford where the governor signed the papers. The detective then left directly for Albany, from Hartford and is expected to be in New York some time tomorrow to bring Roche back here.

Roche, posing as a priest, obtained a check for $4,700 from the law firm here, for a bad one that he tendered them. He cashed the firm's check here and was caught in New York, Tuesday by private detectives. It is claimed that he has a criminal record of twenty years.

A fly-wheel, 20 feet in diameter, and weighing 12 tons burst at the plant of the American Woolen Company in Webster, wrecking the engine room and two adjoining building. As a result 60 per cent of the plant was forced to shut down.

ASSISTANT CITY CLERK 20 YEARS, WOMAN RESIGNS AT NEW LONDON

(Special to The Bulletin)

NEW LONDON, Feb. 25—Mrs. Beth Clemons, of Blackhall street, assistant city clerk, has tendered her resignation and it will become effective Saturday. Mrs. Clemons has been in the employ of the city about 20 years, having first been employed by the municipality when the late Frank L. Kenyon was town clerk. Upon the death of Mr. Kenyon, Mrs. Clemons retained her position, assisting the late John C. Turner, who succeeded Mr. Kenyon and about six years ago she was made assistant city clerk. With the change from the municipal form of government to the present city manager form of government, Mrs. Clemons retained her position, with the present city clerk, Julian D. Moran.

Michael Solecki has sold a house and lot on the westerly side of North Bank street, between Douglass and Federal streets, to Jennie Lovitz.

Meyer Peskoff, 54 John street, complained to the police this afternoon that he had been robbed, but in spite of that fact, Peskoff did not report the theft until four days after the robbery occurred. Peskoff stated that last Sunday afternoon he drove his automobile to a point on Federal street, near Union street, where he parked it. In the machine was a leather brief case and this was stolen; when Peskoff returned to the car he found the case missing. Peskoff passed the police station almost daily and resides but about 50 yards from the place where he made his report today.

John O'Brien, who says he is a veteran of the World war and who is going to the National hospital at Washington, was found drunk last night and was taken under cover by Policeman Ray. John had some forty bullets in his pocket, but no revolver in which they might be used. He explained how he became possessed of them to the satisfaction of the arresting officer. John said he recently became the part owner of an automobile, which cost $300, he also divulged that there were eleven other owners of the car. Owing to condition the court deemed the case one that deserved leniency and sentence was suspended. O'Brien has been a roomer at the home of Samuel Lorenum, in Potter street, but his affairs were such that he was ordered to stay away from there. Last night O'Brien took a few powders and when he went to his rooming place he found the door locked so he broke in the door. That led to his arrest. When he was taken into custody he was possessed of an overcoat that did not belong to him and which he had taken from the Bercum house.

City Manager Holt was absent from the city today, but he will be back tomorrow.

The work of remodelling the building at 458-462 Bank street, recently purchased by Arthur Messer, has commenced. Another store will be provided in the building by making use of space on the south side. The work will be rushed along so that the premises may be occupied as soon as possible.

This harbor is practically free from ice. In the slips at the wharves is some drift ice that came from up the river when the ice was broken by tugs to admit the passage of barges to Norwich, and that ice has drifted down and into the slips. On the Groton side there is still some evidence of ice.

Mrs. Joseph Eisenstein, of 42 Linden street; Mrs. Charles Brocksieper, 20 Main street; Mrs. Allen Spiers and young daughter, Lyme, and Mrs. John Hagy, Groton Park, Groton, patients at Lawrence hospital, were able to return home today.

The highway department of the city will be kept busy from now until the middle of the summer if not later, for the most important streets have become in such a bad state that an unlimited amount of work will be necessary before the highways are put in a condition it is intended they will be. Preliminary work has been started toward making the surface of the numerous highways free of ruts and depressions, some of which are causing danger, also damage to automobiles. The first of the highways to receive attention will be Montauk avenue and the work of filling the depressions with crushed stone and leveling the general surface has begun, after which dressing will be administered and the surface rolled to a condition of firmness. Other highways that will receive the earliest possible attention are Pequot and Ocean avenues, two of the most heavily traversed avenues of the city, particularly during the summer; because of this fact it is the plan to have these three avenues put in proper condition at the earliest possible date.

Lewis and Rose Anello have purchased of the Fidelity & Deposit company, Maryland, the dwelling house, 311 Huntington street.

Miss Marian Clark is visiting her grandparents, Mr. and Mrs. Alex L. Aborg, in Willimantic.

A. L. Cabern, 31 Mott avenue, employed by the local branch of the Southern New England Telephone company, represented the New London exchange at a chicken dinner and entertainment provided by the Willimantic council of the telephone company.

New London had a variety of weather this evening in a brief interval. Rain never fell harder than it did at 7:05. Thunder and lightning accompanied it. At 8:10 a full moon shed its radiance over the city from the eastern heavens. In ten minutes the sky was overcast again and the moon was shut from view. All the afternoon rain fell but after that the showers were intermittent.

All about the city the highways show the effect of the severe weather that prevailed during the early portion of the month and the streets generally are in a condition that will necessitate repairs as soon as the work can be done.

An occasional robin has been seen in this city during this week. The birds winter in the shrubbery and dense growth in the rear of Hillside farm, a section that is infrequently visited and which is almost impassable at this time of year because of the swamps and wet ground, and the birds venture out on warm days and get into the settled part of the city on the outskirts in search of food. Another fortnight will bring a very much larger number of the birds into the city. It has been noticed that the plumage of the birds is much darker now than it will be when the weather warms up.

Notwithstanding the settlement of the anthracite strike the volume of coal that is being hauled over the New Haven railroad is comparatively small. It was anticipated that the conclusion of the strike would bring tremendous quantities of hard coal into New England, but that has not been the case. The condition is due to the fact that every section is short of coal and the product of the mines is being distributed with a purpose of giving all sections a little that will supply the urgent needs. The price of the coal has been boosted $1.50 to $2.50 a ton.

The police were notified of a dangerous depression in the highway at Bellevue avenue and Ocean avenue in front of the residence of George W. Miller, and that department gave notice to the highway department.

A floating mass of timber and which greatly resembled a section of a wharf was discovered floating off Montauk Point yesterday by the crew of the revenue cutter Mojave, flagship of the destroyer forces stationed at this port. As the floating object was in the lane of steamship traffic and a menace to navigation, the mass was blown to atoms when two mines were exploded beneath it. The cutter returned to port today.

Several city officials were in New York and Trenton, N. J., yesterday and today witnessing the demonstration of models of fire apparatus. As the city will shortly purchase a new apparatus for the use of the Pequot Hose company, it is believed that a type of one of the models seen in action will be purchased for the New London company. Among the New Londoners to witness the demonstrations were Chief Charles H. Rose and Councilor Malcolm M. Scott, chairman of the committee on public safety.

EARLY MORNING FIRE CAUSES DAMAGE OF $1,500 AT O'LEARY'S

(Special to The Bulletin.)

NEW LONDON, Feb. 25—O'Learys' hotel and restaurant, corner of Green and Golden streets, was damaged by fire early this morning and for awhile it was believed that the flames would reach the rooms of lodgers on the second floor. The blaze developed into a stubborn one and gave the firemen the hardest kind of work for an hour and a quarter before the fire was extinguished.

The fire started in the kitchen shortly after 5 o'clock and was caused, it is believed, by the overheating of one of the large ranges. The blaze was discovered by a cook, who noticed flames in the blowers above the range, the fire having been caused when an accumulation of grease soot became ignited. At the same time the large receptacle containing grease that had been on top of the range became ignited, but this was thrown to the street. The flames above the stove, however, caused all the trouble, for the fire made its way to the partitions and to beneath the floor of the second story. A still alarm was sent to fire headquarters and Deputy Chief Thomas Shipman and the Nameaug Engine company responded. When the firemen entered the burning building the flames were intensely hot and because of their location, were hard to reach. The metal ceiling was partially ripped away as was the partition beneath a stairway leading to the second floor where many lodgers were asleep. These were quickly aroused, after the discovery of the fire. Lines of chemicals were stretched to the burning building, but not until the contents of one large tank and four small ones had been emptied upon the blaze was it extinguished. The damage, it is estimated, will be close to $1,500.

BURIAL OF MISS JULIA O'NEILL AT OLD SAYBROOK THURSDAY

(Special to The Bulletin.)

NEW LONDON, Feb. 25—Miss Julia O'Neill, formerly of Saybrook and New London, died Tuesday at her home in New York. She is survived by two brothers, Owen O'Neill, of West street, and Margo O'Neill, of Bellevue Place, in this city, and by a sister, Mrs. Robert Burns, of Saybrook. The funeral was held this morning at 10 o'clock at St. John's church, Saybrook and was attended by a large gathering of mourners. A mass of requiem was celebrated by Rev. James V. Hussion, pastor of the church. Burial was in the family plot in Saybrook.

A TOTAL OF $800 FINES IMPOSED IN LIQUOR CASES

(Special to The Bulletin.)

WATERFORD, Feb. 25—The town court in this burg is understood to have made more money for the town in fines imposed in recent months than it netted in double that time previous to the change from a justice court to a town court. The fines imposed yesterday in liquor transportation cases were $300, and to these were added the costs of prosecution. The state received one-half the fines of $100, and the state police claimed and were given the officers' fees for having made the arrests. The arrests came from an officer "tumbling" upon them, of course, but it will be admitted that the officer was awake to his duties or the arrests would never have been made and the automobilists would have gone on to the destination of the alcohol they were transporting.

It may be that the success attending the establishment of a town court at Waterford may incline residents of Montville to ask the legislature to establish a town court in that burg to succeed the justice court now operating in that town. Groton has a town court and it pays more than the cost of maintenance, so it is among the possibilities that Montville shall become ambitious and ask for the assertion of its dignity in law. The fact that there is no lawyer resident in Montville is said to have alone prevented the abolition of the justice court for the tribunal of greater dignity.

Complaint was made today that the buyer of coal from a local yard did not receive the weight he paid for. It is possible that the shortage will be made up and that prosecution will be avoided. There may have been an unintentional mistake made in the weighing of the coal, but when it was placed in twenty-pound bags for sale the error in weight was discovered.

The premises on State street where the Bellevue restaurant was located and which were damaged by fire are being put into condition for occupancy. The work will consume several weeks to complete. No tenant has been secured for the building, it is understood. The repairs will remove an unsightly spot from the street.

DRIVER OF BUS TO NORWICH GETS JOLT FROM A FREIGHT

(Special to The Bulletin.)

NEW LONDON, Feb. 25—New England bus No. 802, the property of the New Haven railroad, and which runs between New London and Norwich, had the closest sort of escape from wreck this evening about 5:15. The driver of the bus attempted to cross the railroad tracks at the station of the railroad, and got the forward wheels of the bus on the track when a freight train bore down upon it. The train hit the bus just behind the hood and engine and crushed in one of the sheet iron panels. The driver's purpose was to cross the tracks to the wharf and there turn around, but he did not observe the freight back down. No other damage was occasioned because the train was moving slowly. There were no passengers in the bus. The driver succeeded in starting the vehicle at 5:30 and it left for Norwich with a single woman passenger.

THAMES VIEW MAN MINUS A LICENSE SINCE BACK IN 1920

(Special to The Bulletin.)

NEW LONDON, Feb. 25—George W. Watrous of Thames View, the driver of an automobile, was taken into custody this evening by State Policeman Giles Watson. Watrous was drunk and was operating his car in that condition. He was in Waterford at the time and drove up an embankment and into a fence. Watrous did not appear to mind his predicament, declaring that he had no license to drive and had not possessed one since 1920. So he need not be worried about losing his license. He seems to be in for a fine of $100 though. When asked why he was so reckless as to operate a car when under the influence of liquor he replied, "That's the way I always drive."

BAD WEATHER HOLDS UP MANOEUVRES OF THE V-1

(Special to The Bulletin.)

NEW LONDON, Feb. 25—The submarine V-1, one of three of this type of undersea craft, the largest type in the United States navy, arrived at the New London submarine base several days ago for the purpose of participating in a series of tests off Block Island. The craft will not engage in the deep diving, one of which stunts is the submerging to a depth of 200 feet, until next Tuesday or Wednesday, according to information obtainable at the submarine base. The big craft had preliminary manoeuvres a few miles off Block Island yesterday and in order that the crew might obtain additional night training and at the same time reduce the period that would be occupied in making the run to this port at night and back to the vicinity of Block Island the next day, the submersible did not put into port last night, but anchored near the location of the manoeuvres. This morning the manoeuvres were resumed, but at noon they were abandoned because of a terrific sea and gale. The V-1 will remain off Block Island until Saturday when the craft will come to port and remain at the submarine base until such time as definite orders are received by Lieutenant Commander Sherwood Picking. The undersea boat carries a crew of 84 officers and men, or nearly twice as many as was carried by the ill-fated S-51, which went down on the night of Sept. 25, last, in the vicinity of where the dives are to take place when she was rammed by the Savannah liner, City of Rome.

FRENCH NATURALIZATION PROCESS TO BE SIMPLER

Steps toward the simplification of the long and costly process of naturalization of foreigners in France have been taken by Charles Lambert, a deputy for the Rhone. M. Lambert has drafted a bill providing that French citizenship be granted, within a period not exceeding six months, to every applicant who produces satisfactory certificates of character and freedom from disease. He proposes to reduce the fee of 1,276 francs to 100 francs for persons having more than two children and for those who volunteered for service in the French army during the World war. The bill provides also that foreigners may be naturalized after 3 years of residence in France, instead of 10 years as at present, and that the option which enables a person born in France of foreign parents to retain his father's nationality in the year following his majority be abolished.

Couldn't Point For Santa

He was going down street with his mother to see Santa Claus and had gotten all dressed up, including the putting on of his best Sunday gloves. When his mother discovered the gloves she tried to persuade him to wear his mittens which were furlined and warm. He was unwilling to change however. When pressed for the reason he explained: "I can't point at the things I want if I wear my mittens."

TODAY'S EVENTS

Centenary of the birth of Oswald Ottendorfer, publisher of the Staats-Zeitung and one-time candidate for mayor of New York.

One hundred years ago today died John Gaillard, of South Carolina, for more than 30 years a leading figure in the U. S. senate.

If Col. William F. Cody (Buffalo Bill) were still living he would celebrate his eightieth birthday anniversary today.

Ex-King Ferdinand of Bulgaria, an ally of the Kaiser in the war and who has since been living in exile, is 65 years old today.

The State of Maine will celebrate today as "Potato Day" pursuant to a proclamation of Governor Brewster, who calls attention to the fact that the prosperity of the state is dependent in large measure upon the potato industry.

Hearings on the radio bill approved by Secretary of Commerce Hoover, to give his department control over the air, the issuance of licenses for broadcasting, etc., are scheduled to begin today before the senate committee on interstate commerce.

ANNOUNCEMENTS

Dance In New London

A good time is promised at the dance in Lawrence hall room, New London tomorrow night. The Charter Oak orchestra of Hartford will furnish the music. See Adv.

Norwich Water Bonds

G. L. Austin & Company of Hartford and H. L. Allen & Company and Gibson & Laefe of New York, are offering $525,000 City of Norwich, Conn., 4 1-4 per cent water bonds, dated March 1, 1926, due March 1, 1931-65, priced to yield 4.05 per cent. The bonds are exempt from all federal income taxes, and are tax exempt in the state of Connecticut. They are legal investment for saving banks and trust funds in Massachusetts and Connecticut. The city has an assesed valuation of $16,596,130 and a net bonded debt of $1,290,871.

Conn. College Concert

Giovanni Martinelli, the celebrated tenor of the Metropolitan Opera company, will be fifth and final attraction of the season in the Connecticut college concert course. Martinelli will be heard at the state armory, New London, on Friday night, March 5.

The announcement will be greeted with enthusiasm and will be a source of great pleasure to the music loving public of the city. It is doubtful if the concert committee of Connecticut college could have secured a greater or more popular attraction than bringing this famous singer.

Born in Montagnana, northern Italy, Martinelli started his musical fortunes as a clarinettist. Last year he returned to his native town for the dedication of a new opera house there, called Teatro Martinelli by the great tenor's townsfolk after their distinguished citizen who has been twice decorated by the king.

Apart from operatic activities, Martinelli finds time each year to visit a limited number of cities in concert, and his popular programs of operatic arias, French, Italian and English songs have made him a well-established favorite in this work. To concert goers his stalwart manliness, his winning smile and his marvelous tenor voice form an irresistible combination.

Palace Theater

Five acts of Paramount vaudeville and a feature picture that is as good as any of the so-called big specials with the continuation of the Scarlet Streak is the program at the Palace today. The vaudeville features the Latin Quarter Entertainers which is composed of a jass band dancers and singers. Barton and Young furnished plenty of comedy and The Two Immigrants gave them a treat with some real singing and comedy by-play. The Four Wilton Girls offer acrobatic dancing and Alf Grant does a single that goes over as well as any single act has at the Palace in months. Monte Blue and Patsy Ruth Miller in Hogans Alley is one of those pictures that you hate to see the ending of. Plenty of comedy with some real punches and a love story that will tickle the feminine part of the audience this feature is going to help business at the Palace the next two days. The Scarlet Streak continues to be just as thrilling and the Secret of the Streak is now in the hands of the enemy but we know that the Hero is going to be almost on time to save it this week. Kiddies have their usual Charleston Saturday afternoon.

Coming to the Palace

Fifteen girls, selected from all Texas as the most beautiful in the South, play a troop of chorus girls in Richard Dix's new starring vehicle, "Womanhandled."

The girls, selected by Director Gregory La Cava from a list of more than five-hundred candidates, were chosen chiefly because of their beauty rather than because of their past stage or screen experience. Among them were the belles of Southland's society. Names familiar to every society editor in the Lone Star state.

According to La Cava, who made the picture for Paramount, the group proved itself real actors and trouopers. Dressed in heavy clothing the girls worked for three entire days under the scorching Texas sun with the thermometer hovering around one-hundred and twelve in the shade.

Supporting the star in the production, which will be the feature at the Palace theater on Sunday, are Esther Ralston, Margaret Morris, Edmund Breese and Ivan Simpson.

"Womanhandled" is billed as the answer picture to "Manhandled" and everyone knows what that Swanson comedy was like.

Broadway Theater

No heart that has ever known love can fail to hasten a bit at the plight of the young lovers in "Peacock Feathers," a Universal-Jewel, starring Jacqueline Logan and Cullen Landis which is coming to the Broadway theater Sunday.

The story is a screen adaptation of the novel by Temple Bailey from which none of the delicious comedy bits have been allowed to stray. James O. Spearing and Svend Gade, director, wrote the continuity.

The story concerns a boy and a girl, both of whom are poor. The girl, once rich, is a member of St. Louis society while the boy is a struggling college graduate. Fearing poverty the girl is about to marry a rich man when the boy's uncle dies, leaving him a ranch believed to be of great value, according to the uncle.

The boy convinces the girl that he can now take care of her, and they marry, leaving for the ranch. Arriving they find it an old shack on barren soil. The girl promptly accuses the boy of lying to her, and their troubles begin.

The girl, whose symbol of pride is the peacock feather, also an emblem on the family escutcheon, learns that pride is not compatible with real living and in the end has her love tested and proven when her husband is caught in an avalanche sweeping down the mountain side.

Ward Crane, George Fawcett, Edwin J. Brady, Carolyn Irwin, Emmett King, Prince Lopez, Troubadcroy, Aggie Herring and Dunbar Raymond are in the cast.

The second feature is "The Fighting Cheat" with Wally Wales. A comedy and News completes the program. If you are not yet acquainted with these 25c admission Sunday programs, we advise you to start in this Sunday.

6-CENT YEARLY RENTAL PAID FOR VIENNA HOME

Pity the poor Austrian house owner! His tenants pay no rent—that is, tenants are not required to pay more than an infinitesimal fraction of the prewar rent. Austrian crowns have depreciated to the vanishing point. Austrian shillings have been introduced as the new currency—one shilling for 10,000 old paper crowns. Rents are payable in paper crowns or in shillings based on the ratio. Recently Chancellor Ramek suggested in parliament that tenants might some day be called upon to pay real rent. This aroused the ire of the tenants, but did not satisfy the house owners. A few days ago the house owners met in Saint Poelten, where as little rent is paid as in Vienna, and once more voiced a frantic but useless protest. With a dramatic gesture one of the landlords threw a couple of two-groschen pieces before the crowd and shouted. "That is my year's rental from a one-family house!" There followed a storm of applause. Four groschen, the small units of the new Austrian currency, equal 400 paper crowns, or a little less than six cents.

Day's Length Varies

The earth is getting out of step with the music of the spheres, according to Dr. Innes, director of the Union Observatory of South Africa, who announces the result of a series of investigations which appear to prove that the rate of the earth's rotation and consequently the length of the day is alternately diminishing and increasing slightly. This irregularity puts all clocks wrong and incidentally explains the old enigma of irregularities of the moon's motion.

The moon is generally ahead of or behind its predicted place, even if allowance is made for all known sources of disturbances, a fact which has profoundly puzzled mathematicians the last two centuries. The late Prof. Newcomb suggested that the gain and loss were only apparent, and that there was no fluctuation in the length of the day and consequently of the clocks.

When, however, he examined 200-year series of transits of Mercury he found no definite parallelism in the discrepancies in the movement of the two bodies. Dr. Innes has investigated much longer series of transits of Mercury, also eclipses of Jupiter's first satellite and discrepancies between observed and calculated places of the sun, and he finds all these run parallel with the moon, strong evidence that during the last 40 years the earth's rotation, and hence the world's clocks, gained about 20 seconds.

If his findings are confirmed, they will go to explain the irregularity of the moon and will necessitate new precautions in time measurement and will create a new problem in case such large and rapid fluctuations occur.

SERVICE IN RED ARMY REDUCED BY ONE-HALF

Military service in the workmen's and peasants' red army is reduced one-half by a new decree applying to those with a certain grade of civilian education.

The exemption apolies specificially to graduates of high schools, workmen's faculties, technical schools and second-grade schools. These persons are considered eligible for command ranks and their compulsory service will be in officers' training or special military schools. They will not be detailed to territorial detachments, the "gpu" (political police,) the navy, escort service or any non-active, administrative or civilian branches.

The regular period of service is two years for infantry, four years for the navy and between two and four years for other branches.

CHRISTMAS CAROL ORIGIN IS EXPLAINED

The songs of joy and praise in honor of the nativity of Christ known as the Christmas carols that are now sung in all Christian assemblies have an interesting and significant history in the progress of modern Christian civilization.

Christmas carols meant originally songs accompanied with dancing. The carol appears to have been danced by many performers by taking hands, forming a ring and singing as they went around.

Carol singing is of great antiquity among Christian communities. The Middle Ages were especially familiar with these songs. The first authorization for a collection of such was issued to Thomas Tysdale in 1502. The custom of singing carols, it seems, disappeared under the Puritan regime, but with the Restoration a new book appeared called The New Carols for Merry Time of Christmas to Sundry Pleasant Tunes.

In England the custom of groups of boys and men who go about singing in the villages still prevails in some sections of the British Islands during the Yuletide season.

The singing of Christmas carols seems to have been at its height under the Tudors in English history, which covered the sixteenth century and overlapped a little the preceding and the following centuries, which covered the Reformation.

Castel Nuovo

After 30 years of intermittent efforts on the part of the successive mayors of Naples, supported by prominent art lovers, it has been decided to raze the cluster of unsightly buildings which so long has marred the superb beauty of the famous stronghold known as the Castel Nuovo. The Castel Nuovo was built in 1279-83 by Charles I of Anjou from a design supposedly supplied by Pierre d'Angicourt, and was enlarged successively by Alphonso I in 1442, by Don Pedro de Toledo in 1546 and by Charles III in 1735. The kings of the houses of Anjou and Aragon and the Spanish viceroys one after another used it as a dwelling. Besides its outward architectural beauty the castle contains a famous lofty Gothic armory.

Acids in Stomach Cause Indigestion

Create Gas, Sourness and Pain How To Treat.

Medical authorities state that nearly nine-tenths of the cases of stomach trouble, indigestion, sourness, burning, bloating, nausea, etc., are due to an excess of hydrochloric acid in the stomach and not as some believe to a lack of digestive juices. The delicate stomach lining is irritated, digestion is delayed and food sours, causing the disagreeable symptoms which every stomach sufferer knows so well.

Artificial digestents are not needed in such cases and may do real harm. Try laying aside all digestive aids and instead get from any druggist a few ounces of Bisurated Magnesia and take a teaspoonful in a quarter glass of water right after eating. This sweetens the stomach, prevents the formation of excess acid and there is no sourness, gas or pain. Bisurated Magnesia (in powder or tablet form—never liquid or milk) is harmless to the stomach, inexpensive to take and is the most efficient form of magnesia for stomach purposes. It is used by thousands of people who enjoy their meals with no more fear of indigestion.

WOMEN'S CLUBS ASSEMBLE LIBRARY OF NATIVE WORKS

WASHINGTON, Feb. 26 — (AP)—One of the most unique libraries in the country, a collection of books by and about native Americans, is being assembled at headquarters here of the General Federation of Women's clubs.

Sought primarily as an information source for club women, the completed collection will represent a cross section of American Literature in the non-fiction field. Each state federation has been asked to supply at least 12 books by and about persons of its own state and to date the library numbers more than 300 volumes.

It is the purpose of the Federation to make the library available to individual clubs and members either through mailing of requested volumes or copied extracts, or by advising where specified books may be found.

Virtually all of the noted American authors are represented in the collection, along with many whose works have received statewide recognition. A number of the volumes were the gifts of the authors, bearing autographs. Several are by members and officers of the Federation.

A complete picture of the growth of the states and the nations, with biographies of their builders, is presented in the collection, along with folk tales, poems, workson art, travel nature and kindred subjects.

The Alabama federation included in its first contribution to the library a "History of Alabama," by Albert ames Puckett, Helen Keleu Keller's "Story of My Life," "Up From Slavery," by Booker T. Washington, and other volumes dealing with the state and the Confederacy.

Among the books representing Connecticut are Mark Twains "Connecticut Yankee in King Arthur's Court" and Harriet Beecher Stowe's "Uncle Tom's Cabin."

The poems of Sidney Lanier, Georgia poet were sent from that state, while Tennessee gave a volume on his life. Two works on Woodrow Wilson have been received thus far, one by Josephus Daniels from North Carolina and the other by Henry Allen White, from Kansas.

From Massachusetts came the complete works of Ralph Waldo Emerson and the complete poems of Henry Wadsworth Longfellow. The same state sent Benjamin Franklin's autobiography, and "The American Revolution" by John Fiske.

"The American Language," by H. L. Mencken and "Old Manors in the Colony of Maryland," along with many works by Poe were received from Maryland. North Carolina's contribution included "Lyrics from Cotton Lands" by John Charles McNeill and "Negro Folk Lore Stories" by Sallie Southall Cotton.

The poetical works of Joaquin Miller, "The Man with the Hoe" by Markham, and volumes by Bret Harte were sent from California. Indiana sent Beveridge's "Life of John Marshall."

At least one present cabinet member will be represented in the collection. It includes Secretary Mellon's "Taxation: The People's Business," sent by Pennsylvania.

Miss Josephine Junkin, secretary of the headquarters research department and in charge of the library, feels that particular care should be taken of one of the books from West Virginia. It is "Settlement and Indian Wars of West Virginia and Pennsylvania," by Doddridge. The West Virginia Federation had great difficulty in obtaining a copy of the book, which first was printed in 1824. Only a few copies still remain in the state, one of them being treasured in a safe at the state library.

STAGE STAR BLAMES POOR ROAD SHOWS ON PRODUCERS

NEW YORK, Feb. 25. — (AP)—Madge Kennedy believes the New York stage is doing a great work, but she cannot say as much for the road shows which annually carry a taste of Broadway to the country at large.

The star of Owen Davis' latest farce, "Beware of Widows," who has seen many touring companies cast, believes that the producers themselves are responsible for the poor showing of the road shows in acting and financial returns.

"Some persons place the blame on the movies," she said, "because they have built large and luxurious theatres for their presentations, while the

REACTIONARY MARKET

NEW YORK, Feb. 25—(AP)—Despite a large quota of favorable trade news, stock prices developed a pronounced reactionary tendency in today's stock market. An extreme break of over 30 points to 353 1-2 in General Electric, based on reports that directors would take no special dividend action at their meeting in Boston tomorrow, started a wave of selling in the afternoon, which carried scores of other issues down 1 to 10 points from their earlier high levels. Previously, the market had shown a tendency to rally under the leadership of the high grade industrials.

The market apparently disregarded such constructive items as the senate's passage of the tax bill, expanding steel operations, increasing inquiries for railroad equipment, raising of the annual dividend on Underwood Typewriter from $3 to $4, and publication of unusually favorable 1925 earnings statements by the Texas company and Pan-American Petroleum and Transport company.

Continued lack of public interest in the market was reported by the leading commission houses. Relatively stiff money rates and a tendency to defer commitments until the tax payments are out of the way also had a restrictive influence on operations for the rise. Indications that the buying power of the pools had been substantially reduced by the stocks absorbed on the recent decline were seen in the way in which bids were withdrawn in several issues when large blocks of stocks were pressed for sale.

U. S. Steel common celebrated its silver anniversary by closing 3-8 lower at 127 1-2 although it had touched 128 3-4 earlier in the session on the announcement that mill operations were now 90 per cent of capacity, the highest rate this year. American Can opened at 338, advanced to 341 and then broke to 331 for a net loss of 4 1-2 points on the day.

At intervals, special buying appeared in some of the motor shares on expectations of large earnings for the first quarter. Hudson was bid up to 121 3-8 but dropped back later to 117 7-8, off 1-4 on the day. Equipments displayed a relatively firm tone, due to active short covering on reports that some of the big trunk lines were in the market for large quantities of rolling stock.

Among the few other issues to show independent strength were American Safety Razor, Jewell Tea, and McCrory Stores B., up 1 1-2 to 2 1-2 points.

Selling pressure was particularly effective in the industrial group against such stocks as Allied Chemical, Allis Chalmers, American Linseed American Water Works, Burns Bro tehrs A, and B., Coca Cola, Colorado Fuel, Consolidated Gas, Dupont, Fairbanks Morse, Mathieson Alkali, Pacific Coast, R. S. Schulte, Sloss Sheffield, Union Tank Car, and Weber and Heilbroner, all of which were hammered down 3 to 10 points.

Selling of the rails was accentuated by speculative disappointment over the failure of the Interstate Commerce commission to hand down the "Nickel Plate" merger decision yesterday, as had been widely predicted in brokerage circles. "Nickel Plate" common broke 8 points to 165. Atlantic Coast Line, Chicago and Eastern Illinois preferred, Pittsburgh and West Virginia, Texas and Pacific, and Wheeling and Lake Erie preferred closed 2 1-2 to nearly 4 points lower. Further selling of Atlanta, Birmingham and Atlantic, based on reports that the re-organization plan left no equity for the common stock, carried that issue down 1 3-4 as against a high of 8 3-4 yesterday.

Within the exception of coffee futures which advanced 13 to 14 points, all the principal commodity markets lost ground. Wheat dropped about 1 1-2 cents a bushel with considerable unbusiness developing among traders as a result of agitation to restrict trading to 1,000,000 bushels a day. Cotton showed net declines of 10 to 26 points on reports that southern cotton was being shipped here for delivery on March contracts. The sugar market displayed an easier undertone.

Call money again renewed at 5 per cent., holding steady at that figure all day. Brokers reported, however, that there was a marked increase in the supply of loanable funds. Time money and commercial paper rates were unchanged.

Further irregularity developed in the foreign exchange market. Demand sterling slipped off to $4.85 5-8, the lowest price in about six weeks, and French francs yielded a few points to around 3.63 cents. Norwegian krone showed another outburst of strength, soaring 28 points to 21.67 cents. Japanese yen continued their downward movement by dropping 7-16 of a cent to 45.62 cents.

TAFTVILLE

Miss Annie Hasler, a student at the Keene Normal School, Keene, N. H., is spending a few days with her sister, Miss Katharine Hasler of 34 Providence street.

The Basketry class met Thursday evening in the Red Cross rooms in the Ponemah building.

Miss Florence Paquette of South A street has resigned her position with the Ponemah mills.

Court Wequonnoc, No. 88, Foresters of America, held a meeting Thursday evening in the courtrooms on Dion street, with Chief Ranger Joseph E. Benac presiding.

Throughout the early part of the week, coasting by moonlight was the premier sport in the village, scores of people, young and old, assembling each night in the big lot north of North B street.

NORWICH TOWN

About 4:30 o'clock Thursday afternoon, a chimney fire at the home of Joseph Pieretti of Town street, Norwich Town, caused anxiety for a time, when a volume of dense smoke was pouring out of the chimney. The Yantic fire department was sent and the chemical and more than a dozen men responded to fight the fire. The blaze was extinguished after a number of cans of chemical had been used. Before the firemen arrived, a force of men from the garage of Julian L. Williams situated on the same street rendered timely assistance, by using two cans of chemicals, thus subduing the fire somewhat. In less than an hour the fire was under control.

NEW PLAN FOR STUDENT GOVERNMENT

(Special to The Bulletin.)

CONNECTICUT COLLEGE, Feb. 25—At a regular amalgamation meeting in the college gymnasium on Thursday evening the new plan for student government was discussed and revised. The purpose of the change of plan is the enlargement of the system so that it will be able to grow as the college has grown.

Two exciting games were held in the gymnasium of Connecticut college on Wednesday evening when the first and sophomore and freshmen teams clashed in a fast and furious basketball combat resulting in a final tie. During the first half the freshmen seemed to be conquering the sophomore team, for the half ended with the score in favor of twenty-nine, 24-13. However, the sophomores seemed to quickly even things up again and succeeded in tying the score 28-28.

The second teams of the juniors and seniors played their game well, resulting in the score of 25-13 favoring the juniors.

The cheering squads of the various classes were in best of form and added much to the excitement of the game as the loyal rooters shouted for their respective classes. The gymnasium echoed and re-echoed with cheers and yells.

Those on the freshman first team were: Catherine Ranney of Cleveland; Muriel Hewing of Maryland; Frances Reed, of Denver, Colorado; Anne Steinwedell, of Cleveland; Lillian Rixey, of Quantic, Va.; and Judith Jones of East Northfield, Mass.

The sophomore team comprised, Prudence Drake, Francis Huling, Bennington, Vermont; Henrietta Owpes, Chevy Chase, Maryland; Edna Kelley, Chevy Chase, Maryland; Catherine Booth, Orange, N. J.; Edith Cloyes, Lexington, Mass.; Gretchen Cornelius, Asbury Park, and Mary Peterson, Scarborough.

The second team of the seniors comprised Elizabeth Alexander, New York city; Dorothy Andrews, South Glastonbury; Dorothy Brooks, Westbrook, Me.; Edna Linsley, Webster, Mass.; Grace Parker, New Haven; Madelyn Smith, Montclair; and Letitia Burt, Oswego, N. Y.

The junior team was: Ethel Woodruff, Montpelier, Vt.; Francis Fletcher, Susan Chittenden, East River; Ruth Battey, Haverford, Pa.; and Lyda Chatfield, Waterbury.

The bone of contention usually has little meat on it.

ASK COURT ORDER DIVIDING LAND ON MASON'S ISLAND

The Mason's Island Co., of New London has filed in the superior court for this county a civil action against Thomas B. Enders and Elizabeth Colgrove of Stonington, Ellen A. Brownell, Hot Springs, Ark., John B. Colgrove, Cora E. Colgrove, Edward W. Colgrove, James C. Colgrove and Andrew C. Colgrove all of Taylorsville, Ill., and Mary E. Colgrove of Taylorsville, Ill., guardian of Cora E. Colgrove and Andrew C. Colgrove, minors, of Taylorsville.

The plaintiff and defendants are owners of a tract of land on Mason's Island, Stonington. The plaintiff has a half interest in the tract. The defendants, Cora E. Colgrove and Andrew C. Colgrove each has an estate in fee in one undivided 1-24 part of the tract, and the defendants Thomas B. Enders, John B. Colgrove, Elizabeth Colgrove, Edward M. Colgrove, James E. Colgrove and Ellen A. Brownell has each an estate in fee in one undivided 1-14 part of the tract.

Plaintiff asks a partition of the property according to the respective rights of the parties or a sale and division of the proceeds.

HARRY M. SHALLETT IS SUED FOR $8,000 DAMAGES

Damages of $8,000 are claimed by Jacob Solomon, New London, in an action which he has filed in the superior court against Harry M. Shallett, New London. Plaintiff alleges that in order to induce him to endorse a promissory note for $5,000 as an accomodation endorser, the defendant falsely stated that Marion R. Davis and Arthur T. Keefe had agreed to endorse the note as accommodation endorsers thereof with the plaintiff and had agreed that they and the plaintiff would be jointly liable and that Marion R. Davis and Arthur T. Keefe, lawyers representing the defendant had agreed to draft a mortgage on certain real estate owned by Shallett's Cleaning and Dyeing, Inc., for the purpose of securing the note. Plaintiff endorsed the note and later was induced to execute renewals of the note. The last renewal was a note for $5,000, dated April 13, 1921, payable to the Union Bank and Trust Co. New London, 4 months after date, endorsed by Marion R. Davis, Arthur T. Keefe and the plaintiff as accommodation endorsers. The note became due and was paid by Mr. Davis and Mr. Keefe and they in turn compelled the plaintiff, as a prior endorser to pay them $6,177.

Plaintiff claims the defendant make the statements and representations to him knowing them to be false with intent to induce the plaintiff to endorse the note and the renewals thereof and to defraud him.

FOUR NEW DIVORCE ACTIONS FILED IN COURT

Four new divorce actions were filed Thursday with the clerk of the superior court in this city.

Emil Watrous, of New London, has brought suit for divorce from Frances Carpenter Watrous, of New London, on grounds of a statutory offense between January 1st., 1925, and Feb. 18, 1926, with persons unknown. They were married in Oct. 1914, and have four children.

Mary Damico, of New London, is suing Morris Damico, now of 77 Market St., New York, for a divorce, on grounds of cruelty. They were married June 21, 1923.

Sebastian Insinga, of New London, is suing Vincenga M. Insinga, now of Fall River, for a divorce, on grounds of desertion in February, 1910. They were married in Jan. 1890.

Maxim Belandiuk, of Fall River, is being sued for divorce by Mary Smelin, of Montville. The action is brought on grounds of desertion since May 27, 1917. The couple were married Feb. 13, 1903. Plaintiff asks that she be allowed to resume her maiden name, Mary Smelin.

UNLOAD CARS PROMPTLY SAYS TRAFFIC BULLETIN

Unload cars promptly says a statement issued by the Manufacturers association of Connecticut, Inc. The traffic bulletin says:

Members can assist materially in facilitating deliveries by the New Haven road at the present time if they will unload cars promptly. At several points the placing of cars is now delayed because of congestion due to failure of consignees to unload at once.

Members are urged to cooperate with the railroad in relieving this condition.

We also direct attention to delays caused by failure to clean cars after unloading—a practice which results in some delay, as such cars are not accepted by the originating road until they are entirely emptied.

SUES FOR $10,000 DAMAGES FOR INQUIRIES

James Elliott, New London, has filed action in the superior court, against David Tourtellotte, New London, claiming damages of $10,000, December 19, 1925, the plaintiff, employed as a painter by the N. Y., N. H., and Hartford railroad company was working on a staging, engaged in painting at the New London freight shed. Defendant ran a truck against the staging and plaintiff fell to the ground. Plaintiff's right ear was torn off, his skull fractured, right hand lacerated, left leg lacerated and he received other injuries.

SMALL FIRE IN BALTIC STREET HOUSE

A telephone call was received at Central Fire station about 8:15 o'clock Thursday morning for a fire in the house at No. 26 Baltic street. Engine No. 1 and Squad A responded and the blaze, which had eaten into the lathing, was soon extinguished, with slight damage.

The clothes moth does all its eating while in the larvae stage.

ABNER SCHWARTZ SPEAKER AT LIONS MEETING

There was a large attendance at the meeting of the Norwich Lions club held Thursday noon at the Wauregan hotel, in charge of President William A. Anderson. Among the guests attending were James L. Case of the Norwich Rotary club, speaker of the day, Secretary John J. O'Rourke, of the Norwich Chamber of Commerce and Al Osborne of the New London Lions club.

During the business session President Anderson spoke concerning the needs of the Boy Scouts, who have always been strongly backed by the Lions, and also called on Secretary O'Rourke, who is in charge of the scouts finance committee.

It was announced that the Lions entertainment committee for March would be composed of Lions Herbert Corey, William R. Frisbie and Charles Frink.

The meeting was then turned over to Earl Taggart, chairman of the entertainment committee who announced Abner Schwartz as the current topic speaker.

Mr. Schwartz gave an interesting talk on "Why the South, Especially Miami, Is the Playground of the World," saying in part:

The first reason is if you get aboard a train or ship here in the east you are in less than forty-eight hours in the land of sunshine where you can run around in bathing suits and enjoy a swim any part of the day or night. Where the sun shines every day in the year you can't help thinking the same as I do, what a wonderful land Miami is. Thousands and thousands of people are flocking there from every state in the Union. The sidewalks are so crowded with people morning, noon and night it would make you think of Broadway, New York during the theatre hours. Your life is endangered if you want to cross a street due to the crowded traffic. In my mind in another year or two you will see the greatest Miami imaginable.

In the sport end of things at Miami you can see the horse races that are going on now, the dog races which were very new to me and the Hilalah games, a Cuban game which is the most active and strenuous game I have ever witnessed. They bet on this latter game the same as horses and dogs and have mutuals where large sums of money are both won and lost in the above named races and games.

Then going to Cuba that was a wonderful trip going through the Keys to Key West. It was very beautiful as well as wonderful. Imagine going from Miami to Key West by train where you are on a tremendous concrete bridge in the middle of the ocean for miles and miles. This bridge is called the Keys of the south and from Key West you take the boat for Havana, Cuba.

Upon reaching Havana the climate is practically the same as in the south. Here we attended the races and beaches, also a place called the Casino. This latter place I must say is the most elaborate gambling place I ever dreamed of. Monte Carlo hasn't a thing on it. All full-dressed mostly Americans are there in numbers each night where you can play any game you can think of making bets from twenty-five cents up to a thousand dollars. As a whole Cuba is one of the fastest and sportiest places that anyone can imagine.

President James L. Case of the Chamber of Commerce was then introduced as the speaker of the day and gave a most interesting talk in part as follows on the subject of Constructive Citizenship.

To be a loyal constructive citizen of a typical New England city is distinctive of which those who qualify as much may well be justly proud. To be a citizen of a city, honored and respected by his fellow citizens ought to be an outstanding ambition of every boy and girl in Norwich and of every man and woman, as well. This particular section of the country in which we live has continuously and for many years produced citizens of character and ability whose achievements have helped to mould the destinies of cities, states and the nation, and we of today should profit by their accomplishments.

The greatest apostle of all times was proud of the fact "that he was a citizen of no mean city," and if you and I and scores of others like us, apply it in our daily lives, this community, in which we live, would become a venerable Eutopia. Very briefly may I suggest two or three of the qualifications which I consider necessary to the attainment of such an ideal. May I mention first, faith in one's self.

Because the saying that "as a man thinketh so he is" is as true today as it was when it was first expressed, I submit that it is not only one's privilege but his duty and well to be his best and to do his best, at all times.

Each man knows, or at least should know himself a little better than does some one else, and for that particular reason, if for no other, you and I should frequently, and with the greatest care, formulate an accurate invention of those things we best can do, as well as of those which handicap and hinder us. Each man knows where in lies his strength and power and he is equally familiar with his weakness and his short comings. He knows that each day offers opportunities for him to do good or to do evil and his supreme desire should be so to live and act so that his best shall conquer and overcome his worst.

He must have ideals and ideas. He must have faith to believe that he can achieve and then he should plan to attain. It is "low aim that is crime" and therefore every one should constantly strive to Do Good—to Be Good—and to Make Good. If by some means we can persuade ourselves that "we can do, things if we will" the first step toward success has been attained.

If we have faith in ourselves we will have faith in others and such a qualification is as grossly needed, and is of as much importance in our quest for "Constructive Citizenship" as is the other. It is, however, not as easy to practice as it might seem for we are all more prone to see the weaknesses and failures in "the other fellow," than we are to praise and compliment him for his virtues. It is so easy to criticize that criticisms soon become habits and habits become characters and characters mould destinies. But the man who has faith in himself will find some way to find the good that is in his neighbor.

Since the beginning of time two men, together, and with a common purpose, have always been able to accomplish more than twice as much as each could accomplish alone, and the power of co-operation multiplies, out of all proportions, as twos become fours and fours become eights and eights become sixteens, and so on.

Everybody appreciates appreciation and a kind word or a smile has often turned the "tide of affairs" in the lives of many a man. In this age of hurry and worry, and of strife and toil, let us resolve that from this time on we will think more kindly of others and will trust them more than we have in the past, to the end that we shall stimulate in them a sincere desire to achieve in their lives those characteristics that we desire in ours.

The third and last qualification I shall mention is without question, the most important one. Every man, regardless of his creed, has a religious instinct in his make-up. In some of us it expresses itself to a greater degree than it does in others, but the history of the race proves that those men and women who have trusted most in the Supreme Being and who have committed their ways to His care and keeping, have been those citizens who have accomplished the most for themselves and for others.

The Fathers of our country, in the days gone by, reverently dedicated God Almighty, and prayed that His blessings might ever rest upon coming generations. A review of the years shows to us today the wisdom of their acts, for a guiding hand has always led the people of these United States in no uncertain manner.

Faith in God develops character, and character is the very basis of constructive citizenship. Character, in turn, develops knowledge and ability, and these two attributes help to develop a life that is both useful and helpful to all with whom it comes in contact.

Does it not then follow that you and I, as citizens of this fair city, have a very definite duty to perform. May we not, therefore determine that we will have faith in ourselves, faith in others, and faith in God, and applying these principles to our daily life, strive to both preach and practice these ideals of constructive citizenship.

Both speakers were heartily applauded by the club and just before the close of the gathering the attendance contest prize a handsome silver belt buckle donated by Dr. Charles Solomon was awarded to Frank Eggleston. The meeting closed with the singing of "The Star Spangled Banner."

NAMED TOWN HEALTH OFFICER FOR STERLING

(Special to The Bulletin.)

STERLING, Conn., Feb. 25—Hon. W. A. King, county health officer, came to town yesterday upon request of several citizens who demanded an appointment of a town health officer to succeed Frank W. Hazard, several months ago removed from the state.

The appointment has not been made as the selectmen have made no recommendations. Several different parties were considered. Mr. King finally decided upon recommendation of Grand Juror C. B. Montgomery, of Oneco, and Selectman Frink appointed Justice of the Peace George W. Davies, of this village. Judge Davies will make a good careful official as he has done in the office of justice. He studies the law in connection with any office he fills and shows no favors to persons, acting strickly as the law directs.

R. C. PLAUT TO MAKE TRIP WEST

Two and a half months in travel in the south and along the Pacific coast, about to be the enjoyable experience of Rutherford C. Plaut, president of the Plaut-Cadden Co., who is to leave here Sunday and expects to be home again about the middle of May. Mr. Plaut will go from New York to Jacksonville, Fla., and from there will turn west to pass through Montgomery, Ala., New Orleans and so onto Los Angeles on the Pacific coast. The trip will be a leisurely one and when he starts to come home it will be by way of Portland, Seattle, Tacoma and the Canadian Rockies. Mr. Plaut is traveling alone.

CHECK AND CONGRATULATIONS FOR FIRE DEPARTMENT

A check for $15 was received Thursday morning by Chief Howard L. Stanton, from Flint Brayton of 26 Lincoln avenue, to be added to the firemen's pension fund. With the check was a note of appreciation from Mr. Brayton for services rendered by the department at a recent fire at his home. He congratulated the city on having a department that knows how to fight fires and do it with a minimum of loss or damage to property. The check was turned over to City Treasurer Charles S. Avery to be added to the pension fund.

CONTROVERSY OVER NAME OF PLEASURE BEACH

Following a protest by the Poquyogh Improvement association over the use of the name "Pleasure Beach" for that section in Waterford served by the T. Bisconti bus lines, the following communications have passed between Dr. Frank E. Wilson, president of the Improvement association and the bus lines.

Dr. Wilson's letter follows:

"It has recently been called to my attention that your bus carries the designation of Pleasure Beach. This probably was due to your using a name by which that part of Waterford had been designated in recent years.

"In 1924, at a meeting of the Improvement association, attended by practically all the residents of that section, it was overwhelmingly voted that the name Pleasure Beach be discontinued and we returned to the old name Poquyogh. This has been generally accepted by the Telephone Co., Electric Light Co., The Day and other public utility companies, and I hope that you can see your way clear to change your signs to Poquyogh. If you do this I can assure you of the support of the Poquyogh Improvement association. This association comprises all the summer residents of the beach and many of the other residents. It has a membership of nearly 200."

"Dr. Frank E. Wilson, President Poquyogh Improvement association."

The reply from the bus line says:

"In reply to your letter asking for a change of signs now painted on Reb bus running between here and New London, Pleasure Beach and Ridgewood park, will say such change would require so much waste of time and expense that it makes improvement impossible to concur in the wishes of the members of the Poquyogh Improvement association at this time.

"The route for which a charter was granted by public utilities commission of Connecticut was designated in the New London county map, printed and issued in June, 1925. Fully aware that certain residents of Pleasure Beach did, in a community gathering, vote to drop the name of Pleasure Beach and substitute the word Poquyogh, the petitioners for a bus line charter were informed that the change of name had never been proposed at any town meeting and the members of the Poquyogh improvement association were not within their legal rights in making such change in name.

"It is the intention of Mr. Bisconti to provide adequate transportation service for the patrons of his bus line, plying between the progressive city of New London and the beautiful, restful, health-giving pleasure resorts located in the grand old town of Waterford and Mr. Bisconti hopes to meet the approval of all citizens, including the members of the Poquyogh Improvement association."

JEWETT CITY CASE SETTLED OUT OF COURT

After two witnesses had been put on the stand by the plaintiff in the $3,000 damage suit of Beatrice Dominique against Floyd Barber, both of Jewett City, which began late Wednesday afternoon before Judge Allyn L. Brown, and a jury in the superior court at New London, the case was settled Thursday morning out of court.

The plaintiff sought to recover damages claimed as the result of an automobile accident at the railroad crossing in Jewett City on Feb. 12, 1925. She alleged that a car owned by the defendant was being driven down the hill leading to the tracks when the gates were lowered and because of the speed at which it was traveling it could not stop. It is alleged that the driver turned the car sharply to the right into Railroad avenue and proceeded over the curb or a sewer pipe which extended out into the street, and then struck the plaintiff, causing physical and mental injuries. Attorney John B. Barry represented the plaintiff and Attorneys Arthur M. Brown and C. V. James appeared for the defendant.

CONNECTICUT PRIESTS AT ARCHBISHOP'S FUNERAL

Rev. John C. Mathieu, pastor of the Church of the Sacred Heart, Waureagan, who as a boy was a member of St. Ann's parish, Hartford, and who became a priest as a result of the guidance of the late Archbishop Roy, will attend in Quebec the funeral of the prelate, who was pastor of St. Ann's nine year's. With him will go Rev. J. V. E. Belanger, present pastor, and Rev. C. W. Bedard, pastor of St. Mary's church, Putnam, and for thirteen years pastor of St. Ann's.

DEPARTMENT OF JUSTICE IS SUSTAINED BY THE SENATE

Rejected, 36 to 33, a Minority Report of Judiciary Committee Criticizing Department's Conduct of Aluminum Company Inquiry—Two Democrats and Seven Republican Insurgents Joined With the Administration Forces in Defeating the Recommendation.

WASHINGTON, Feb. 25—(AP)—The senate refused today, 33 to 36, to adopt a report assailing the department of justice for the manner in which it conducted an investigation to determine whether the Aluminum Company of America has violated federal court decrees.

With this action, Senator Robinson of Arkansas, the democratic leader, abandoned a resolution which he had presented and which would have authorized the president to employ special counsel to prosecute contempt proceedings against the company.

Because of his stockholdings in the aluminum concern Secretary Mellon stood as the central figure in a controversy which started more than a month ago and traveled the round of a senate judiciary committee investigation before it reached the senate floor for final determination.

With two exceptions—Blease of South Carolina and Bruce, of Maryland—the democrats stood solidly for adoption of the report of the majority of the judiciary committee, and they were joined by seven of the republican insurgents.

The administration forces stood firm, and with the aid of the two democrats were able to block a repetition of the action taken by the senate in the famous naval oil lease cases, when special counsel was authorized to bring civil and criminal actions against Edward L. Doheny and Harry F. Sinclair.

Some fireworks preceded the vote, with Senator Walsh, democrat, Montana, author of the majority report, charging Senator Reed, republican, Pennsylvania, with representing in the senate the treasury secretary of the Aluminum company. Senator Reed hotly denied the imputation and said he would "take no insult from the senator from Montana."

SHOUTED "GOING TO GLORY" JUST BEFORE HIS EXECUTION

GEORGETOWN, Del., Feb. 26—(AP)—With cries that he was unafraid and was "going to glory," Harry Butler, 21 year old negro, went to his death by the hangman's noose today for feloniously assaulting 12 year old Eleanor Stennett.

Inside the whitewashed jail yard where the scaffold was erected about 200 persons, including county officials, members of the coroner's jury and others viewed the hanging. Outside a crowd of approximately 5,000 men, women and children, packed the narrow streets. Over the vast assemblage a silence fell, in striking contrast to the tumultous scenes that marked the trial of the negro when state militiamen had to resort to tear bombs to hold the threatening crowd in check.

When Butler was pronounced dead those outside were permitted to walk single file, through a narrow thoroughfare in the rear of the prison called "Tin Cup Alley." Half way along this alley a small green gate was open. Peering in they could see his body dangling from the scaffold. Allowing the public to view the body of an executed person is an old custom of Sussex county.

Just before the unseen hand of the executioner sprung the trap at 10.40 o'clock the negro shouted: "God bless me and save my soul! I'm going to glory, my spirit tells me so." Twelve minutes later he was pronounced dead, and the vast crowd awaiting outside the jail yard started its slow procession down Tin Cup Alley.

Peter Steinmetz, father of the victim of Butler's attack, was among those who witnessed the execution. Eleanor, still bedfast as a result of the assault, expressed the wish that she might have been present "to pull the rope." The girl, who suffered a fractured skull and internal injuries, is slowly recovering.

RUMANIAN ROYALTY SOJOURNING IN PARIS

PARIS, Feb. 26.—(AP)—Paris is to a fair way to become a miniature Rumanian capital, with Carol, who recently renounced his rights as Rumanian crown prince, established here, and his mother, Queen Marie, and his former morganatic wife, Mme. Zizi Lambrino, accompanied by his son, reported on the way, and royal couriers hurrying here from Bucharest and Milan.

Carol, who reached Paris from Milan two days ago was successful today in avoiding newspaper men and photographers who have become more importunate as rumors thickened and interest in his plans became more intense. He is taking all his meals in his apartment and refuses to appear in public unless this is absolutely unavoidable.

Rumors are growing stronger that Mme. Lupescu, who was Carol's constant companion in Milan, and who came to Paris with him, is losing the affection of the prince, it being pointed out that the couple have been seen together not more than once since their arrival.

Carol's heart, as well as the throne of Rumania, is said to be the prize in the secret diplomatic comings and goings Mme. Lambrino, according to the newspapers, is coming to press the claims of herself and her son; Mme. Lupescu is fighting to retain the place from which she ousted Mme. Lambrino, while Queen Marie, in the interests of the crown, will try to thrust both women from Carol's affections, in order, perhaps, to reconcile him and his former wife, Princess Helen, and thus assure an unbroken succession to the throne.

EFFORTS FOR RELEASE OF MARCUS GARVEY, NEGRO

WASHINGTON, Feb. 26.—(AP)—Senatorial influence to obtain release of Marcus Garvey, negro, sentenced to a federal prison as a result of his efforts to colonize American negroes in Africa, was sought in a petition to the senate from the New Haven (Conn.) branch of the Universal Negro Improvement association introduced today by Senator Bingham, of Connecticut.

Memorials from other organizations in Connecticut against the bill which would prohibit inter-marriage of whites and negroes in the District of Columbia, were also introduced by Senator Bingham.

GREEN SAYS HIGH WAGES ARE STIMULATING TO BUSINESS

PRINCETON, N. J., Feb. 26.—(AP)—High wages were advocated by William Green, president of the American Federation of Labor, in an address to economics students of Princeton university today.

"Profits earned," said Mr. Green, "do not go into the channels of business so quickly as wages. High purchasing power maintained among working people is a stimulating force to industry."

READY FOR ARGUMENTS IN BLASPHEMY CASE

BROCKTON, Mass., Feb. 26—(AP)—Anthony Bimba has rested his case in his trial on charges of blasphemy and seditious utterances.

Only five witnesses were called to his defense to contradict testimony that he had urged the overthrow of the United States government and to assert that his only denial of the existence of God was in connection with the priests of the Lithuanian Catholic church. Bimba, himself, was not heard. One of the reasons was an old court decision arring an atheist, so proven by testimony, from appearing as a witness in this state. Harry Hoffman, his attorney, decided not to press the point in an effort to have him testify. Arguments of counsel will be heard tomorrow morning.

Bimba's speech in Lithuanian National hall here on the night of January 26, today's witnesses said, was one in which he urged his audience to "educate themselves," to refrain from drinking, to save their money and not to give in to plans of the government of the church in Lithuania, and in which he moved his audience to tears of sorrow over the tribulations of the workmen in their home country.

This testimony was in sharp contrast to the assertion of prosecution witnesses, that the young communist editor had shouted to his hearers to "take up the sword," to "organize a revolution," and prophesied that the red flag of communism would wave from the capitols of Kovno and Washington and from the Lithuanian National hall in Brockton.

Should Bimba be found guilty of one or both charges his counsel will take an appeal, even as high as the United States supreme court. The defense counsel also said that in event the blasphemy charge alone is proven, they have the promise of support from several prominent liberal leaders of the country for the battle in the higher courts.

The double session of the Plymouth county superior court finished its sitting here today. The next session is scheduled for June, but such a mass of business awaits it that it will probably be called some time in May. The grand jury and the jail cases will be held in Plymouth, where the county jail is situated. The Bimba case would await the transferal of the court to Brockton again which probably would be about the middle of June.

MISS COLEMAN DENIED CLAIM IN BEACH ESTATE

HARTFORD, Feb. 26—(AP)—The late Captain Henry Dodge Beach of Civil war fame is the father of Mrs. Florence Beach Coleman of New York, 46 years old, but he did not contract to leave her $50,000 in his will if she never revealed in his life time that he and Mary E. Asher, were her parents.

This is the finding of Judge Edwin C. Dickenson, of the superior court today in denying her claim for $50,000 against the estate of Beach, which is inventoried at $182,000 and is administered by his widow, Mrs. Amelia S. Beach, of 250 Collins street.

The evidence introduced by Mrs. Coleman through her lawyers, William B. Burke and George J. Stoner, taken in connection with a comparison of Mrs. Coleman with an admitted photograph of Beach satisfied Judge Dickenson that she was his child, he said. "His paternity was a matter of public record," said Judge Dickenson, "and on the plaintiff's own statement everybody knew of the relation".

Judge Dickenson said he was not impressed with the truth of her story of the contract and that the probabilities did not bear her out in Beach's life time, the court observed, she had made no demands upon him for money and "yet she asks the court to believe that meeting her casually on the street he offered to give her $50,000 if she would get out of town."

HIS SISTER-IN-LAW IS FOND OF EUGENE O'NEILL

WATERBURY, Feb. 26—(AP)—Eugene O'Neill, celebrated American playwright, was mentioned in divorce proceedings of his sister-in-law in superior court here today before Judge Alfred C. Baldwin. Carlton R. Stevens was suing his wife, Margery Coulton Stevens, for divorce on the grounds of desertion and when his counsel, Attorney E. B. Reiley, asked him why she deserted him he replied that she told him she had tired of Waterbury and married life and that she prefered to go back to Provincetown, Mass., to her sister and her brother-in-law, Eugene O'Neill, the playwright because she much prefered the atmosphere of that place.

He is 27 years old and she is 24. Stevens is employed as foreman in one of the department of the American Brass company here and he lives on Chipman street where he provided a home for his bride. Stevens said his wife picked and nagged at him continually and that she wouldn't seem satisfied no matter what he did for her.

CABLED PARAGRAPHS

Released by Bank of England

LONDON, Feb. 26—(AP)—The bank of England today released £1,000,000 in sovereigns on account of a note issue of the Hong Kong and Shanghai Banking Corporation in Hong Kong and set aside 750,000 pounds for the account of the South African Reserve bank.

Prince Philip Unhorsed

ROME, Feb. 26—(AP)—Prince Philip, of Hesse, recently married to Princess Mafalda of Italy, was injured late today when he fell from his horse during a fox hunt at Magliana, in the suburbs of Rome. He was rushed to the Villa Savoia, where his condition was declared not to be causing anxiety. The prince's fall was caused by the breaking of his horse's saddle girth.

CARROLL'S PUBLICITY STUNT DETRIMENTAL

NEW YORK, Feb. 26—(AP)—The party given Monday night by Earl Carroll, at which a nude show girl was reported to have served guests wine from a bathtub, today proved to be a boomerang. He was called before a federal grand jury which began an investigation to determine if the Volstead act had been violated.

Appearing with a private guard he went into the jury room and remained half an hour, appearing nervous at the end of the session. He refused to discuss his appearance before the grand jury.

Police Commissioner McLaughlin earlier had ordered an investigation by the police into the report concerning the nude show girl. The commissioner was interested solely in the question of whether the statute against nudity had been violated.

Carroll, immediately after reports of the party had spread, denied the bathtub-wine incident, as did Vera, Countess of Cathcart, who was a guest of honor at the party while here on a ten day permit, pending a decision in her own case by the immigration authorities.

The reports, however, caused a flare up of condemnation, despite the denials, because of the announcement that Carroll planned to stage the countess in her own play which he had contracted to produce.

The Motion Picture Theatre Owners of America, representing 80 per cent of the exhibitors denounced such publicity efforts in general and specifically stated that every effort would be made to prevent the countess from being shown in any picture in their theatres. Immediately afterward the American Motion Picture Advertisers announced that they endorsed the stand of the theatre owners.

General denunciation of the party led some stage organizations to move for betterment of the theatre.

$150,000,000 BELGIAN LOAN WITHIN THREE WEEKS

NEW YORK, Feb. 26—(AP)—Flotation of an international loan of $150,000,000 for Belgium, authorized by the passage of the financial re-establishment bill is expected within the next three weeks, American participation in the financing will probably total between $75,000,000 and $100,000,000.

J. P. Morgan and company and the Guaranty Trust company, who were associated with British, Swiss and Dutch bankers in the extension of credits to Belgium last fall for the improvement of the kingdom's monetary position, will handle the American portion of the new loan. Details of the long term bond issue, which will replace the temporary credits, have not been formally discussed, the bankers said today, but the way for the loans has been cleared by the action of the Belgian parliament.

REPORT ON BUTTER BY THE TARIFF COMMISSION

WASHINGTON, Feb. 26—(AP)—After considering for two years whether the duty on butter should be increased, the tariff commission submitted a report today to President Coolidge. Its recommendation was not disclosed.

The present rate is eight cents a pound. Under the law, the president can increase or decrease this levy 50 per cent.

An increase has been requested by American dairymen, who, when the tariff commission began its investigation, protested particularly against importations from Denmark. Later, competition from Canada became more severe, and this faster caused the commission to reopen its inquiry after it had begun preparing a report some time ago.

FRANCE IS SOLVING ITS FINANCIAL PROBLEM

PARIS, Feb. 26—(AP)—A compromise bill which was substituted for the bill making all bearer bonds nominative was adopted by the senate today, and the upper house disposed of several other minor articles of the financial restoration measures.

Premier Briand's success in the Locarno debate in the chamber of deputies today, it is thought in parliamentary circles, is likely to help the government when the chamber votes on the financial bills as amended by the senate. The conviction that the bills will be passed by the chamber is growing in financial circles. This conviction has affected business on the bourse, where the franc made further gains and French bonds improved while foreign shares showed some depreciation.

ARREST WARRANT DENIED MRS. MIRIAM NOEL WRIGHT

CHICAGO, Feb. 26—(AP)—A warrant was denied Mrs. Miriam Noel Wright, who complained to the arrest of her husband, Frank Lloyd Wright, noted architect, and mentioning another woman.

She first went to the federal building with her complaint but federal officers referred her to the state's attorney. Assistant State's Attorney G. J. Tourek heard her story and refused a warrant, saying her statement was only hearsay and not sufficient ground for issuance of a warrant.

Mrs. Wright some time ago sued for divorce at Baraboo, Wisconsin.

CHARLSTON DANCE BARRED IN THE AUSTRIAN TYROL

VIENNA, Feb. 26.—(AP)—You may still waltz to the strains of "The Blu Danube" along that beautiful stream, and you are permitted to tango anywhere in Austria, but you cannot Charleston in the Austrian tyrol without incurring heavy penalties. The authorities of the tyrolean resorts of Kufstein and Woergel, much frequented by the Vienese, have forbidden such modern dances under pain of heavy fines.

Reconciliation Ends Mantón Divorce Suit

Jury, Which Had Been Deliberating Since Noon, Was Dismissed at 7 P. M.

NEW YORK, Feb. 26—(AP)—The divorce suit brought by Mrs. Mabel Manton against William Kevitt Manton, naming Marjorie Rambeau, the actress, as corespondent, was dropped tonight when Mrs. Manton and her husband became reconciled after a conference with Justice Isador Wasservogel. Justice Wasservogel dismissed the jury, which had been considering the case since this morning.

The jury stood seven to five in favor of the defendant at the time of the dismissal according to one of the jurymen.

Miss Rambeau was not in court when the reconciliation was effected. She had left in a highly nervous state soon after the summation of counsel and the sending of the case to the jury.

In dismissing the jurymen, Justice Wasservogel said Mr. and Mrs. Manton had agreed to settle their differences and to live together again. The couple was together in the court room during the closing scene.

Bernhard H. Sandler, counsel for Mrs. Rambeau, notified her by telephone of the unexpected outcome. He said she was "overwhelmed with joy," and wished the Mantons "a future of blessed happiness."

Manton, in denying the charge of infidelity, has declared on the witness stand that he loved only his wife, and considered her the most beautiful woman in the world."

Miss Rambeau entered the trial, with counsel, to defend her reputation. She said Manton was only a guelst employed to help her learn her part in a play.

His presence in her apartment when it was raided early on the morning of August 29, she was a professional necessity. She had been out of late with friends; and she had sent for Manton at that hour because she often found it necessary to work twelve, fifteen and even twenty-four hours a day on the part. Her own negligee and Manton's lack of a coat, collar and tie she said was because of the heat.

Lawyers for all three parties to the case united after the reconciliation in paying tribute to Justice Wasservogel, for bringing about an understanding between the estranged couple, and for the conspicuous expedition with which the case had been conducted. Mr. and Mrs. Manton and their two attorneys cemented the reunion with a dinner at the Hotel Biltmore after the jury had been dismissed.

SUMMARY OF YESTERDAY'S EVENTS IN WASHINGTON

President Coolidge signed the tax bill.

Fire in the house wing of the capitol was quickly quenched.

The tariff commission forwarded its report on butter to the White House.

President Coolidge signed the resolution authorizing federal funds for the Philadelphia Sesqui-Centennial Exposition.

The navy department announced the first two cruisers under limitation of armament treaty would soon be laid down.

The annual supply bill for the departments of state, justice, commerce and labor, carrying $118,47,000, was presented to the house.

The senate rejected the judiciary committee report criticising the justice department for its handling of the Aluminum case.

SMUGGLING OF ALIENS IS STEADILY INCREASING

WASHINGTON, Feb. 26—(AP)—The smuggling of aliens into this country steadily has been increasing despite greater vigilance of border patrols, until there are now 51,894 deportable aliens in jails or other institutions as public charges, it was disclosed today with the publication of testimony by Commissioner General Hull of the immigration bureau before a house committee.

The bureau faces a probable deficit of $350,000 at the end of the year, Mr. Hull said, despite the suspension of deportation for several months last year.

DESPICABLE THIEVES ROB DISABLED SERVICE MEN

BOSTON, Feb. 26—(AP)—Vandals ransacked the Disabled Service Men's exchange here last night, it was discovered today. Three rings and $25 in cash were taken from the money drawer. Goods made by wounded veterans in hospitals throughout New England were found scattered and broken, and the loss must be met by the service men themselves, since payment is made to them only after sale.

The store is conducted by the American Legion Auxiliary with Mrs. Yankee Division commander, as director. Clarence R. Edwards, wife of the while he (Briand) had been accused of making France subordinate to England and abandoning the guarantees France already held. On the other hand the German nationalists had attacked the Berlin government for its concessions.

"The fact remains," M. Briand cried, "that it is an earnest and sincere effort toward pacification of the minds of peoples, as well as a material plan to prevent aggression."

He asserted that the pact had changed the position of France in the diplomatic world. "The French representatives were met with cold reserve in 1924 when they met with other statesmen to consider international questions, "he went on. "I said to myself then that if a new war broke out the French flag would not rally around it the same help as in 1914. But since France has signed the security protocol I have seen the representatives of all countries turn toward France, of which they then perceived the rue visage, bereft of calumnies, the visage of France, liberator of peoples."

The conservative deputy Barthelemy expressed the sentiment of the opposition when he declared: "The future of the Locarno pact will be decided by the attitude of the German people. There are reasons for anxiety as to the manner in which the Berlin government is trying to trade upon it."

He quoted a speech made by Foreign Minister Stresemann in the Reichstag, in which he declared that Germany had not renounced any of her former territory.

"It is France," Deputy Bathelemy said, "that has made all the concessions. France an dher orphans and her widows and her mutilated still suffering from Germany's aggression."

He declared, however, that with all its short-comings it was necessary to ratify the pact because it was a beginning toward peace. But in doing so, he said, France cannot afford to neglect the means of self protection.

JANUARY UNPROFITABLE FOR NEW HAVEN ROAD

NEW YORK, Feb. 26—(AP)—The New York, New Haven and Hartford Railroad company experienced a less profitable January than the same month last year, net railway operating income of $1,27,201 being $114,877 less. Railway operating revenues decreased $113,963 to $10,019,492 and tax accruals increased $40,780. Operating expenses, however, were cut $60,550. Net income after all charges was substantially less than in January last year, the amount of $6,376 resulting from non-receipt of dividends from the New York, Ontario and Western and the Central New England railway, the income of both having been affected by the suspension of anthracite mining.

G. S. CHANDLER TO LEAVE FOR COLUMBUS SUNDAY

HARTFORD, Feb. 26.—(AP)—George S. Chandler, of Rocky Hill, formerly executive vice president of the Connecticut Chamber of Commerce, and now secretary of the Ohio Chamber of Commerce, will leave Springfield, Sunday, at 2.55 p. m. for Columbus, Ohio, where he expects to arrive on Monday morning. His first appointment is on next Friday in Cleveland when he will meet the business group of the state.

Mr. Chandler said today that Mrs. Chandler would move to her new home in Ohio as soon as the Chandler property in Rocky Hill has been sold. Mr. and Mrs. Chandler's daughter and two sons, all of whom are now attending school will make their home in Ohio at the close of the present semester.

Treaty of Locarno up in French Chamber

Vote Will Be Taken Today—Indications Are Deputies Will Ratify the Pact.

PARIS, Feb. 26—(AP)—The chamber of deputies adjourned tonight without voting ratification of the Treaty of Locarno, but the ovation accorded Premier Briand at the close of a lofty and eloquent appeal for peace and the security pact indicated that at least three-quarters of the deputies will support his plea. The vote will be taken tomorrow morning.

The treaty has met with much criticism among the deputies, although with little declared opposition. But when the premier finished his oration all his hearers except the conservatives were on their feet for several minutes, cheering, while enthusiastic members from the center and left rushed to the government bench to shake his hand and try to embrace him.

"The best thing in the Locarno pact," declared M. Briand at one of the high points of his speech, "is the fact that it has penetrated the hostile German reserve and made it possible for the former enemies to talk together for the good of Europe and the world."

He gave little consideration to details of the pact, but stressed the necessity of making a beginning in the organization for Europe for peace. The treaty, he declared, was susceptible of diverse and contradictory interpretations. Sir Austen Chamberlain had been accused of allowing Great Britain to fall into the wake of France,

PRESIDENT SIGNS TAX BILL; FEARS $100,000,000 DEFICIT

No Likelihood of Further Tax Reduction For Some Time to Come—Nothing But Continued Government Economy Will Result in Further Tax Relief—Persons and Domestic Corporations With Incomes of More Than $5,000 Will Be Allowed to Make Tentative Returns March 15, and Given Until May 15 to File Final Returns.

WASHINGTON, Feb. 26—(AP)—President Coolidge signed the tax reduction bill today, making it law, although he fears it may result in a treasury deficit of $100,000,000 a year hence.

This possibility was advanced in the executive by Director Lord of the budget, who based it on present indications of government receipts and expenditures during the coming fiscal year. The president hopes, however, that increased prosperity will result from the tax cut, swelling government income above present estimates, and that congress will do its utmost to curtail expenditures.

Likelihood that there will be little if any surplus for the next year or two, in the president's opinion, precludes the possibility of further tax reduction next year and perhaps for some time to come. Ultimately, however, he believes that gradual retirement of the debt with continued government economy will result in further federal tax relief.

Immediately after Mr. Coolidge had affixed his signature to the $387,000,000 tax reduction measure, the treasury called attention that the new law allows an extension in time for payment of the levies. It was announced that persons or domestic corporations with incomes of more than $5,000 would be allowed to file only tentative returns March 15, with payment of one-quarter of the estimated tax due, and then be given until May 15, to file final returns.

This action was taken in view of the short time within which the first returns must be filed. The new income blanks with instruction on the effect of the new law already have been mailed.

With a score of cameras recording the event, President Coolidge signed the bill at 10:22 a. m. Behind his chair were grouped Secretary Mellon, Director Lord, Chairman Green, of the house ways and means committee, Chairman Smoot of the senate finance committee, and Representative Garner, of Texas, and Senator Simmons, of North Carolina, ranking democrats, respectively, on the two committees.

At the time, the president made no written or verbal comment on the bill, but later in the day, he was represented at the White House as being highly gratified with the promptness with which congress worked out the problem and the co-operation of both parties in the world.

It was disclosed that the total amount of reduction proposed for this and next year, was above the figures which the president believed was possible, but that he realized it was the business of congress to determine finally how far this should go. Likewise, the resident felt it was now the business of congress to exercise care in making appropriations not recommended in the budget.

In this connection, some alarm was felt at the White House over the proposal to authorize increased appropriations for the army and navy. It was pointed out that these services would cost $660,000,000 this year, and if the proposed increases were allowed, the cost of each service would be increased from $8,500,000,000 in 1921 to $11,500,000,000 in 1925. In this period, it was explained, the federal government had reduced its expenses by $2,000,000,000, and therefore the costs of the other governmental agencies must have increased by $4,000,000,000. This annual tax amounts to almost four percent of the estimated total wealth of the country, $300,000,000,000, it was pointed out.

Various proposals for increased appropriations now pending, including those for the army and navy, it was estimate dat the White House, would demand in all $5,500,000,000, and would result in doubling the present actual cost of the government. Strict curtailment of these is necessary, it was emphasized.

The last two revenue bills have cut the cost of taxes by $700,000,000, it was estimated, resulting in a saving of $2,000,000 a day to federal taxpayers. The last previous bill was signed June 6, 1924.

TABACCONISTS WILL BE ENTITLED TO TAX REFUND

HARTFORD, Feb. 26—(AP)—Collector of Internal Revenue Robert O. Eaton announced today that inventory forms for cigar jobbers, dealers, importers and manufacturers, claiming refunds under the tobacco provision of the new tax law, passed Wednesday by the senate, are ready and will be distributed immediately on request.

According to the law, any jobber, dealer, importer or manufacturer who holds cigars in original and unbroken stamptory packages for sale on March 29, the date the law becomes effective, in quantities upon which refund equal to the difference between the old and new rates of tax would amount to $10 or more, will be entitled to a claim for refund.

Inventories must be made, the collector said, on the effective date of the law, and in the presence of two disinterested persons of good repute who must not be in the employ of the claimant, for refund of taxes. He urged that request for forms be made promptly.

In making a request for a form, Collector Eaton explained, statement should be of the exact location of each place where the claimant's cigars will be held in order to receive forms for each place and for the purpose of expediting the verification of each inventory by a deputy collector. These refund forms, he added, are also the forms on which the inventory of stock must be taken.

The tax law itself provides for a reduction in the rate of tax on cigars weighing more than three pounds per thousand, as follows:

Class A, five-cent cigars, from $4 to $2 per thousand; class B, five to eight-cent cigars, from $8 to $3 per thousand; class C, eight to fifteen-cent cigars, from $9 to $5 per thousand; class D, fifteen to twenty-cent cigars, from $12 to $10.50 per thousand; class E, over twenty cents, from $15 to $13.50 per thousand.

The reduction on little cigars (cigars weighing less than three pounds per thousand) is seventy-five cents per thousand, a fifty per cent. reduction.

REVOLVER OF "SNIPER" HAS SPECIAL SILENCER

HARTFORD, Feb. 26—(AP)—Frank Carter, Omaha's maniac killer, who from ambush shot down and killed two men, seriously wounded a third and for days terrified Omaha, Neb., and Council Bluffs, Ia., used a revolver specially fitted with a silencer attachment for him by Eugene G. Reising, East Hartford inventor, now serving a one to three year sentence in New York's welfare island prison for supplying similar silencers to the notorious "Cowboy" Tessler gang.

Carter sent his 22 calibre weapon, since described by him as being "easy to carry, silent and sure," to Reising from Ottumwa, Ia. The man did not give his right name, but sent his request for the silencer attachment and instructions for the shipment of the weapon in the name of Frank Johnson.

After the silencer had been attached by Reising, the weapon was mailed back to Carter at Ottumwa, where he had remained waiting for it. Carter had been carrying the weapon for about two years, having bought it in Chicago.

HARD TIMES FOR RUM RUNNERS ON HIGHWAYS

HARTFORD, Feb. 26—(AP)—Since the clearing of the snow from the state highways which snow seriously interfered with the business of inland rum runners a brisk business in liquor transportation has resulted from the efforts to supply the rapidly dwindling supplies of retail purveyors.

The transportation boom, however, has come at an inopportune time for the success of the movement. The state police, because of lighter traffic conditions, fewer examinations to be made of motor vehicle applicants and other reasons have been enabled to virtually double the road patrols.

In the past two days the state police, because of this new activity of the rum runners have seized 1,090 gallons of alcohol, some 150 cases of beer, besides quantities of whiskey and champagne which was on its way to various points in and beyond the state. The seizures have resulted in the arrest of sixteen men, some of whom have been fined amounts totalling $1,600 in addition to jail sentences, while the bonds imposed for those awaiting trials have reached several thousand dollars.

An elderly woman, jocularly called by the arresting officers as the "Queen Mother of New York Bootleggers," with three male companions, was locked up in New Haven, after seizure of an automobile and 255 one-gallon cans of alcohol in East Haven.

HELD FOR ATTEMPTING BRIBE STATE POLICEMAN

RIDGEFIELD, Conn., Feb. 26—(AP)—Arraigned before Justice of the Peace P. J. McManus here tonight on a charge of attempting to bribe a state policeman, Stanley Kokernack of Dudley, Mass., was bound over to the superior court. In default of $5,000 bail he was remanded to the jail at Danbury.

Kokernack who was arrested last Monday night is alleged to have gone to the home of State Policeman George Weber, here and to have attempted to get information concerning the methods of the police in spotting rum runners from New York to points in Massachusetts. Two other state police are said to have overheard the conversation. The man is alleged to have given Weber $25 for the "information" he received.

Kokernack and his brother, Raymond, were arrested in Ridgefield by state police in December, when liquor was found in their car. Each was fined $400 and sentenced to thirty days in jail.

INVOLUNTARY BANKRUPTS HAVE DISAPPEARED

NEW HAVEN, Feb. 26.—(AP)—The managers of three shops which handled women's apparel were being sought here today by Deputy United States marshals following the filing of an involutary petition in bankruptcy. The managers, 27, and Mrs. Louis Abramson and Louis Levine, are believed by the marshals to have left town in December leaving only a few dresses for attachment in an insolvency thought to amount to $10,000.

MAID WAS IN POSSESSION OF STOLEN JEWELRY

NEW YORK, Feb. 26.—(AP)—Several pieces of jewelry, valued at mementoes, were reported stolen today from the Fifth avenue apartments of Mrs. Benjamin Harrison, widow of President Harrison. After questioning servants, detectives found the articles in the possession of one of Mrs. Harrison's maids, who was arrested for larceny. Mrs. Harrison said the jewelry was of small value except for sentimental reasons.

STORM INCREASES VOLUME OF WATER IN THREE RIVERS

(Special to The Bulletin.)

WILLIMANTIC, Feb. 26—The thunder storm which started late Thursday evening concluded a spasmodic rainstorm which served to clear away the piles of snow on the principal streets and highways. With the weather mild and water in the gutters, gurgling merrily, anticipations of spring were aroused. After a thunder storm the skies cleared and Friday morning birds about the city added to the suggestions of spring by their chirping. The near-freshet caused the waters of the Willimantic and Natchaug rivers as well as the Shetucket to run high Friday. A torrent some fifteen feet deep poured over the first dam at the Quidnick-Windham Manufacturing company plant on the Willimantic river. The rush of water was breaking up the ice jam held by the dam and baby icebergs were sent tumbling and roaring over the dam. The water coming over the big dam at the Willimantic Pumping station in Mansfield was eleven feet deep.

Clinton T. Wood and Miss Hope Matthews, both of this city, were united in marriage by Rev. Arthur S Wheelock at the Congregational parsonage at 5 o'clock Thursday afternoon. Mr. and Mrs. Oliver L. Willard were the attendants. The former is a cousin of the bride. The bridal party motored to Hartford where a supper was served. Mr. and Mrs. Wood left for New York city and Atlantic City, N. J., for their wedding journey. Upon returning here they will reside at 17 Oak street. Mr. Wood is senior member of the firm of Wood & Ladd, plumbing contractors. Up to about a year ago Mrs. Wood was a resident of Mansfield, Mass. For several months past she has conducted the Hope Shoppe here.

A gratifying report of the financial condition and activities of the local Y. M. C. A., was given by General Secretary Albert B. Smith at a joint meeting of the trustees, directors and membership committee of the association, Thursday night. Supper was served by the Y. M. C. A. Auxiliary, Mrs. J. H. Bentley, chairman of the committee.

According to the report the local "Y" is at present in the healthiest condition it has enjoyed since its institution. The present membership is 842 and the average daily attendance is 200. The dormitories are filling and have been so for many months. All the various phases of the building and the activities of the association are well patronized. For the past ten months the income has exceeded the expenses and the finance committee is making an effort to conclude the fiscal year on the same basis.

From her home, 20 Milk street the funeral of Miss Ellen O'Brien were held Friday morning. In a solemn requiem mass at St. Joseph's church at nine o'clock, Rev. Charles M. Kelly was celebrant, Rev. MYSTIC

NEW POSTOFFICE BUILDING NEARLY READY, AFTER 10 YRS.

(Special to The Bulletin.)

MYSTIC, Feb. 26—The village has watched the building of the new postoffice with great interest and pride. It took several years to get a sufficient appropriation to erect the building. The lot was secured by the government more than ten years ago. The plasterers completed their work two weeks ago and carpenters have been engaged in completing the wainscoting and trimmings, which shows the work is nearing completion. A vault is located in the front of the building at the left of the entrance and access to this is from the postmaster's room. The heater has been in use, making conditions comfortable for work. It is expected that the building will be completed in April.

The Monday club is to meet with Mrs. Daniel Denison on Pearl street. Mrs. Edward E. Bucklin will read a paper on "Indian in Story and Song."

EASTERN CONN. TOWNS REPORT MEASLES CASES

The following communicable diseased were reported from eastern Connecticut towns for the week ending February 20th: Diphtheria, Groton (B), 2; Preston, 3; Plainfield, 1. Scarlet fever, Groton (B), 3; Groton (T), 2; New London) 6; Stonington, 1; Willimantic, 1. Whooping cough, Woodstock, 1. Measles, Colchester, 39; East Lyme, 3; Griswold, 8; Groton (B), 5; Groton (T), 5; Lyme, 1; Montville, 2; New London, 73; Old Lyme, 8; Preston, 13; Voluntown, 1; Columbia, 3; Ellington, 30; Hebron, 15; Stafford Springs, 3; Killingly, 6; Pomfret, 1; Thompson, 6.

Reports of communicable diseases for the past week compared with the week previous are as follows: Diphtheria, 56 to 41; scarlet fever, 61 to 79; whooping cough, 73 to 63; typhoid fever, 8 to 3; measles, 787 to 844, an increase in every disease except typhoid fever, which remained the same.

Sir Henry Lunn, British churchman and publicist, said in an address at Columbia university that one of the most important questions confronting Christendom is whether churches in the collective capacity can abolish war.

YOU ARE ENTITLED TO KNOW THE FACTS!

20,000,000 motor vehicles now travel the American highways.

50,000,000 Americans ride in these cars every day in the year.

Safety for this vast army of travelers is a national issue, and where safety is involved plain speaking is a public duty.

It is high time the public realized—as experts have long realized—that automobile bodies should be made of steel—not of wood or any other fragile material.

Indeed, it is one of the mysteries of this usually progressive industry that the all steel body is not already in universal use.

It will be before long. Public opinion will demand it—as it now demands that railway sleeping cars be all steel.

For even a child knows that steel is stronger than wood—that steel will not splinter or burn—and that all steel bodies will stand up under impacts that would crush ordinary bodies to bits.

That is why Dodge Brothers pioneered in introducing the the all steel body—pioneered again recently, in improving and perfecting it—pioneer, now, in urging its adoption by every automobile builder in the world.

The issue is plain—

Manufacturers must build safely if the automobile industry is to hold its present high place in public usefulness and esteem.

And the all steel body—as exemplified in Dodge Brothers Motor Car—is the greatest single advance in motoring safety made in the last fifteen years.

The car will continue to be a "four." No reasoning buyer will be distracted from the issue of QUALITY by mere CYLINDER propaganda.

DANIELSON

STATE OFFICER M. R. KEITH WHITINSVILLE POLICE HEAD

(Special to The Bulletin.)

DANIELSON, Feb. 26—State Officer Merrill R. Keith of the Danielson barracks has been appointed by the selectmen of Northbridge, Mass., to be chief of police of that town, it is announced from Whitinsville. Officer Keith will leave the Connecticut state police department to take up his new duties March 15.

Officer Keith during his several years of service as a state officer in Connecticut, has made an efficient record and gained a great amount of experience in police work. He is a veteran of the World war, having served in the coast artillery company that went out from here soon after the United States began to put troops in the field and saw active service in France. Officer Keith formerly lived in Eastford.

BUYERS OF STOLEN CARS TO LOOSE THROUGH LAVALLEE

(Special to The Bulletin.)

DANIELSON, Feb. 26—Establishment of the fact that the automobiles in question are stolen machines, regardless of the outcome of the state's case against Charles LaVallee, of Plainfield, will mean the forfeiture of them by the persons that purchased them in good faith from LaVallee. The machines will be returned to the rightful owners or, in case losses have been paid on them, to insurance companies that carried the theft insurance. The Plainfield case in some of its aspects is much like one that developed in Putnam a half dozen years ago, when numbers of stolen machines were located in and near that city by their rightful owners or by the insurance companies that had paid losses on them. It is already indicated that the taking over of the machines sold by the Plainfield man and mentioned in the case against him is going to mean a hardship on those who purchased them, but there seems to be no relief for them in the immediate situation.

Not all the snow and ice was taken away by the storm that raged out of the southeast until the early hours of Friday morning. There is a goodly supply remaining. While the rain cut the snow and ice in pleasing measure there was so much of it to be taken away that March will be here with reports of February's big snow storms on hand. Less ice on borough streets, less ice on sidewalks and things for which the storm can be lauded. Water was pouring into the Quinebaug and Assawaga rivers in a territory during Friday from all the lesser streams in a manner not witnessed since last fall. Ice on these streams was holding Friday afternoon, in doberservers regarded as unlikely that there would be any breakup.

Marcus Harris Place, 77, died during Thursday night at his home in East Killingly after an illness of about a week. He was a native of Gloucester, R. I., a son of Harley and Amanda Bowen Place, one of a family of thirteen children, and lived practically all his life in Gloucester until he came to East Killingly to make his home about a decade ago. During his active years he had been engaged as a farmer and in the lumber business. Mrs. Place died a number of years ago. Mr. Place leaves four children, Joseph, of Foster, Elmer and Mrs. Hannah Phippen, of Providence, and Louis of Pawtucket. His surviving brothers and sisters, he being the oldest of the family, are: Mrs. Prudia Lee, of Chepachet, Harley S. Place and Mrs. Emeline Shippee, of East Killingly, Mrs. Hannah M. Mann and Mrs. Ellen Wade, of Chepachet, Welcome Place, of Gloucester, Arthur Place, of Chepachet and Mrs. Amy Sanders, of Gloucester.

The Attawaugan hotel will continue to serve the best pie, cake, doughnuts, milk; a dollar dinner for 50 cents. W. S. Brown, Prop.—adv.

Friday was calendar day for March. The forecast, on that basis, was a typical March, windy, blustering, uncomfortable. A half gale out of the west and southwest was Danielson's lot on Friday, following an electrical storm during Thursday night, the second storm of the kind this month.

Soft coal has continued to arrive here during the current week and continues in use for heaters in homes and numbers of cases in kitchen ranges. One hears also of homes where wood is being turned exclusively, heaters and stoves being fed with this variety of fuel. There is an ample supply of substitutes in Danielson for heating during the remainder of the winter if no hard coal arrives in the meantime, though there will be a ready sale for the anthracite once it arrives.

The reaction of Danielson's firemen after getting such a drenching as was their lot in responding to two alarms during the worst of the downpour of Thursday night, was interesting to members of the force who talked of them on the morning during Friday. They laughingly commented on their unpleasant experience which they take as a part of their duties, "all for $20 a year," as one of them put it. There is another side of the subject though, and one that will eventually claim general attention. Recruits as regulars, as the active men in the fire department are known, are exceedingly hard to get. An effort to obtain more men for the department a few weeks ago met with no satisfactory response. Men did not come forward to join, a striking contrast to the situation a few years back, when there usually was a waiting list of those who would serve the borough in the department. One wonders how the department will be recruited, as it must be some time when men now in active service retire. There certainly is no enthusiasm for joining in this winter of 1926.

It is not improbable that March will witness the beginning of work for the construction of the authorized additions to Killingly High school. Bids for the contract are to be opened a week from next Wednesday afternoon. Awarding of the contract is expected to promptly follow. As there is a considerable amount of excavating to be done in connection with the work, this, it is thought, will begin very shortly after the contract is formally awarded. The plan is to have the enlarged high school ready for use at the opening of the new school year next September.

Danielson will have an ample supply of ice this year. At the Hygela reservoir near East Killingly this week a harvest of heavy ice has been underway and many hundreds of tons have been stored there. A great proportion of the ice taken at the reservoir each year is for distribution in Danielson.

Mention of ice recalls a relation by Judge James N. Tucker, of East Killingly that on a certain March 10, that he holds in memory, ice on East Killingly pond was 19 inches thick. There is no comfort in this for those who regard March as a spring month, though the period occasionally is mild.

It has been said of Mrs. Caroline Olive Catley, who, in her 101st year, died at East Killingly, Wednesday, that she was as consistently calm and imperturbable a person as one may ever expect to encounter. Always quiet and kindly, never upset by the vagaries of life, there are those among people who had known her for many years who believe that this may have been one of the qualities which contributed to her unusually long life.

The first mud to be contended with in weeks was being encountered by travelers on country highways in parts of Killingly Friday, following the heavy rain of the night before and the going out of frost from the surface of the ground.

William S. Brown, owner and landlord of the Attawaugan hotel, declared Friday morning that there is no truth in the stories that he has sold the property. He further stated that it is not going to be sold, and that he may have something to say later about developing it into a modern hostelry.

J. Carl Witter and N. A. Witter have concluded an auction sale of several days in disposing of the stock of the Putnam Hardware and Mill Supply company, at Putnam. The sale attracted buyers from many eastern Connecticut towns and from points in Rhode Island and Massachusetts, the sale being the most important of its kind held in this area in a number of years.

Vaudeville bills, afternoon and evening, were an added feature to the usual picture programs at the Orpheum theatre on Friday.

Alphonse Couture, of Fall River, is in Danielson to spend the week-end with friends.

With tomorrow, Sunday, the last day for driving under current licenses, many motor vehicle operators who as long ago as a week ago have sent after new licenses are wondering when they are going to get them.

The Connecticut company has developed a highway from the state road, two miles south of here on the Wauregan route, to the powerhouse at the Dyer dam, where the motor coaches in use on the local line are kept when not in service.

PUTNAM

MRS. ROSA LEVINE'S SUIT ASSIGNED FOR HEARING

(Special to The Bulletin.)

PUTNAM, Feb. 26—The hearing of the suit brought against Mrs. Rosa Levine by the trustee of Gilpatric's bankrupt estate to recover $2,500, alleged to be due for borrowed money, is set for next Tuesday. At today's session of the superior court Judge Dickenson called the docket for the short calendar. Attorney Ernest C. Morse, who is associated with Lawrence A. Howard, counsel for Gilpatric's trustee, asked that the hearing be on that date, March 2. He said that the examination of Gilpatric by Receiver Coffin would be conducted this week, that he would appear in the bankruptcy court at Hartford Monday, that he had been informed the hearing would not consume more than one day and that would permit Gilpatric to appear as a witness in the suit here the next day.

Judge Dickenson ordered it assigned for that date. The session will convene at 10:45 a. m. and this is the first case that will be called.

Leander Wright of Willimantic was given judgment for $200 against John Gahan of this city. On the witness stand Mr. Wright testified he had advanced that amount in cash to Gahan two months ago and the latter had given him in payment two checks for $100 each, drawn on the Cargill Trust company of this city. When the checks were presented to the bank they were returned with the stamped notation on the back, "no funds."

The defendant did not enter an appearance and judgment for the amount asked was ordered by the court.

Gahan is out on bail, awaiting a hearing on the charge of embezzling between $400 and $500 from an insurance company for which he had been the agent.

RECEIVER COFFIN DENIES J. F. CARPENTER'S STATEMENTS

(Special to The Bulletin.)

PUTNAM, Feb 26—In a letter to the federal referee in bankruptcy, at Hartford, Saul Berman, the receiver of the First National bank, George M. Coffin denies that he refused permission to John F. Carpenter to question Gilpatric when he was in Putnam last week. He says that he could not have refused him because Mr. Carpenter had never asked him.

In commenting on this letter Mr. Carpenter says that the kindliest of feelings exist between Mr. Coffin and himself but he insists that the statements made in his (Carpenter's) letter are correct.

Following is a copy of Mr. Coffin's letter to Referee Berman:

"Dear Sir: Have seen a copy of a letter to you in which certain references to me are made.

"I wish you to know that the writer of the letter was in Putnam Tuesday morning last week and could have attended the creditors' meeting at Hartford that day had he greatly desired to do this. Presumably he was in Putnam on Wednesday when the first examination of Mr. Gilpatric occurred, but it lasted all day. On Thursday, he was present at Gilpatric's examination but asked no questions and soon left. He never at any time asked me if he could question Gilpatric, so I could not have refused this; although he came in to see me twice after the hearings and yesterday morning met Gilpatric at my office and talked to him.

"If Gilpatric had failed to tell me the truth during his hearings, I have failed to discover it and I am sure I am more familiar with the facts and figures of the receivership than anyone else.

"As to the value of results so far obtained from the hearings, my reports to you when they are concluded must determine this.

"To the press I refused to comment on this matter and I leave the disposition of this letter to your discretion.

"Very truly yours,
"GEORGE M. COFFIN,
"Receiver."

Thursday Mr. Carpenter and Charles G. Morris, secretary of Governor Trumbull's committee investigating Gilpatric's state treasury transactions, conferred at Providence. It is understood that Mr. Morris will try to be present at the examination in Hartford Monday when Gilpatric will again appear before the referee in bankruptcy for further questioning by his creditors.

When Gilpatric goes to Hartford Monday morning for appearance before the referee and for examination by "all creditors who wish to question him," Mr. Carpenter will be accorded the same privilege as the other creditors, the referee has announced. It was predicted yesterday that one day would be ample to cover all questioning which these creditors might want to make. After that the governors committee will be asked if it desires Gilpatric held at the state prison for subsequent questioning in the light of disclosures made by its investigations in other directions.

The eighth annual church night of the Methodist church was observed Friday night with a large crowd in attendance. An attractive program had been arranged with Rev. Robert S. Moore of Providence as the principal speaker. The program was as follows: Rev. N. B. Burton, toastmaster. Selection, quartette; Home Memories, Mrs. Carrie B. Gascoigne; treasurer's statement, A. R. Saunders; selection, quartette; address, Rev. Robert S. Moore; report of treasurer; benediction.

The supper was served by the Ladies' Aid society and the menu was as follows: Fruit cocktail, escalloped ham, potatoes, string beans, relishes, rolls, coffee, coffee jelly, cake.

At the Second Congregational church Sunday evening the fourth in the series of the Nine Friendly Evenings will be held. There will be a stereopticon of the drama, "The Miracle." These services are proving very popular. Sunday at 5 p. m. Mr. English, the pastor will hold a training class for church membership. This class will be held on each Sunday at the same time from February 28th to March 28th inclusive.

The Amherst Glee club is to give a concert here under the auspices of Elizabeth Porter Chapter, D. A. R. The following are to be the patronesses of the affair: Mrs. E. J. JEWETT CITY

ERROR CUTS DOWN TOTAL OF NEWSBOYS' DAILY PAPERS

(Special to The Bulletin)

JEWETT CITY, Feb. 26—An item in today's news read that The Jewett City paper boy lost his whole bundle of 140 papers. It should have read one of the boys. As a matter of fact, only Ted and thirty-five Bulletins were sold to Jewett City and six boys and [illegible] Gardner handle the papers. Gardner has 206, Joseph Wolkoski 140, Walter Kozloski 116 and Stanley Slonski and two brothers 168. Also Ray Five come by mail. Leo Howson works for Mr. Gardner and the other two boys are in charge of the Bulletin correspondents, Mr. and Mrs. E. H. Hiscox.

SCHOOL TEACHER SURPRISED AT SOUVENIRS OF CALLERS

(Special to The Bulletin)

JEWETT CITY, Feb. 26—Miss Alice Mugovero teaches at the Woodward school. Several mornings she has found things disturbed, her fountain pen and other articles gone. She had thought it might be the work of children, but when she found a fire burning in the stove, and two glasses of cider on the table, it looked as if the place had been occupied at night by men.

A hard thunder shower accompanied by rain and hail, Thursday night, added to the tempestuous record of February. Friday evening Quinebaug was running two feet above normal winter stage, in the outlying districts, every depression in the lots and meadows has a lake of its own. Joe Roode's big swale at Bishop's, alongside the New Haven tracks, is transformed into a miniature sea. It has been very gratifying to Jewett City people to note each day the slow passing of the great volume of snow that covered these areas, without the high water menace of many preceding seasons. Not since the cold winter of twelve years ago has such thick ice covered all the local bodies of water. In the Aspinook and Ashland ponds sheltered coves, there is from 18 inches to two feet of ice. Back in the days preceding the building of the big Aspinook dam, the recent heavy rains, would have caused the ice to break up and move out of the Quinebaug.

In those times, all the townspeople went to Lisbon bridge to witness the remarkable sight of the great cakes, come-tumbling down against the piers and abutments. In these days the big dam has forever put an end to such scenes as used to be, when the ice passed out of the Quinebaug.

Mr. and Mrs. Daniel F. Finn, were in Hartford Thursday. Mr. Finn attended the automobile show at the armory, while his wife was present at a meeting of the democratic state central committee, with a banquet at the Hotel Bond.

Some of the busses started Friday to run over the Newent road to Norwich. Going north, the busses going through Newent leave Norwich at 6.30 a. m. every day but Sunday. 7.45 a. m. school bus and regularly at 10ff.45 a. m., 3.45 and 5.45 p. m. Going south, the Newent bus route leaving Jewett City is 7 and 9 a. m., 2 and 6 p. m., regularly, and 3.15 p. m. the school bus.

Pearl Whitford of Warren, R. I., returned to his home Friday. After a short tay at his parents, Mr. and Mrs. La V. Whitford's.

The first amateur night of the season was held at Finn's theatre Thursday evening before a large and enthusiastic audience. The first number was several well rendered harmonica selections by Stanley Machnicki. Next came various banjo and harmonica numbers by Sam Wallen. Then Sidney Purple entertained with old time songs and bajo selections. The last act was Bill Liberty in a juggling and dancing act. The winners were to be chosen by the applause of the audience, but this proved a very difficult test, as the applause was evenly divided between Mr. Purple and Mr. Machnicki. Therefore the first prize was divided between the two. Second prize was awarded Bill Liberty. The management is planning another amateur night at an early date.

INTELLIGENCE INCREASES UNTIL ONE REACHES 20

If intelligence were a visible part of human anatomy, like height, so that it could be seen and measured with a tapeline, we could easily observe that the average individual stops growing at around the age of 15, but that the brighter child continues to shoot up head and shoulders above the crowd until he is 20 years old, or perhaps older.

Evidence along this line, showing that all minds, like all bodies, do not stop growing at the same age, but that some continue to grow much longer was presented by Dr. L. L. Thurstone, of the University of Chicago, before the American Psychological association in session at Cornell.

"During the war it was possible to compare brightness of men of different age groups by means of the army psychological tests," said Dr. Thurstone. "The tests indicated that intelligence does not increase in adult age. Men 30 years old did not do much better in the tests than men 21 years old. Experiments to determine the point at which adult intelligence is reached placed the age level of so-called adult intelligence in the vicinity of 14 or 15 years.

"By a new method of measurement a study has been made of 3,000 London children, 3 to 14 years old, and a study of 10,000 American children from 8 to 19 years. Results show that brightness increases as far as the study has been carried, that is, up to 20 years."

It still remains a fact that the average brightness of the adult population, as measured by psychological tests, is no higher than that found among school children in the teens, Dr. Thurstone pointed out. "But bright children," he added, "undoubtedly continue to grow in intelligence beyond the conventional so-called adult level of 15."

"Roxy," Impressario Of Movies, Off To Europe

Samuel L. Rothafel, known to millions of movie and radio fans as "Roxy," sailed recently for a combined business and pleasure trip to Europe. The former Manager of the Capitol Theatre will study production and presentation methods in various countries with a view of embodying the good points in the new theatre, to be the largest in the world, which is being built for him at Seventh Avenue and Fiftieth street, New York.

"IF YOUTH BUT KNEW"

"If youth but knew what age doth crave—many a penny youth would save!" An old quotation and a good one.

Youth passes quickly—so does the productive period. "Age" would tell you, if you asked him; "I didn't Save when I was a real producer. I intended to start some time, but just kept putting it off."

"Don't YOU put it off." So says "Age."

Mocker Plays a Joke Once Too Often

Every joker, soon or late,
Once too often teases Fate.
—Blacky the Crow.

There is a lot of truth in that saying. There is so. If you don't believe it you ask Mr. Mocker the Mocking Bird. It almost always happens that people who are fond of playing jokes on other people sooner or later play a joke on the wrong one. That is what happened to Mr. Mocker.

Mr. Mocker had fooled Sammy Jay by making Sammy think that another Jay had come to the Green Forest. However, Mocker was wise enough not to let Sammy Jay know that he had been the victim of a joke. Sammy au-

Instantly all the crows led by Blacky were after him

tually thought that another Jay had been there and had gone away. Only Reddy Fox, who had seen the whole performance, knew just what had happened. He kept the joke to himself, because, you see, Mocker had fooled him only a short time before.

When Sammy Jay had flown away, still in a bad temper, Mr. Mocker tried to think who else he could play a joke on. For some time he couldn't think of any one. Then in the distance he heard Blacky the Crow cawing. Mocker's eyes twinkled. He opened his mouth and screamed "Caw, caw, caw! C-a-a-aw, caw, caw!" He kept this up for a few minutes. Then he hid in the thickest part of a hemlock tree and waited. Presently he heard not only Blacky but several of Blacky's family all caving excitedly and coming nearer. Again Mocker called "Caw, caw, caw! C-a-a-aw, caw, caw!"

It was only two minutes [illegible] later that Blacky and his companions arrived. Such an excited cawing as took place then! They all talked at the same time. You see, they had expected to find one of their neighbors, for Mocker had called them in just the way they call each other when they have found something of general interest. They had expected to find an Owl that they could tease. Not finding any one, they were much puzzled, and being puzzled, they had to talk about it.

But Blacky the Crow is not one to be easily fooled. He has a pair of the sharpest eyes in all the Green Forest, and he now proceeded to make use of them. While the others were talking Blacky went about, peering in between the branches of all the trees right around there. He suspected some one was hiding. So it was that he discovered Mocker, the Mocking Bird. Now Blacky didn't know that Mocker could talk crow talk, but he did know that Mocker could imitate many other birds, and he suspected right away that Mocker had been playing a joke.

"Caw, caw, caw!" screamed Blacky. "Here he is! Here he is! Here is the one who has called us over here for nothing. Let's teach him a lesson. He has no business to be up here in the winter, any way."

Instantly all the other crows came flocking over there. Poor Mocker! He wished he had kept his tongue still. Indeed, he did! Those crows were so few and there were so many of them that Mocker was frightened half to death. He took to his wings at once. Instantly all the crows, led by Blacky, were after him, all screaming at the top of their lungs. This was the kind of fun they liked. They really didn't care a particle about catching Mocker. They liked the fun of the chase. They liked to be getting even with him. They liked to think how scared he was.

And Mocker was scared. He never had been more scared in all his life. Where do you think he flew to? Why, he flew right straight over to the porch of Farmer Brown's house. He was sure that those crows wouldn't dare come there, and in this he was right. But you may be sure that that was the last joke that Mocker the Mocking Bird tried for a long time.

WHERE REASON PREVAILED

The ultimate enactment into law of the federal income tax bill marks the accomplishment of the second major policy of the Coolidge administration. As with the world court issue, the credit for the fairly scientific method employed in revision of the tax law is earned by both major parties whose representatives co-operated to make the law acceptable to their constituencies and the country. As finally adopted, the measure has a unique place in fiscal legislation in that it bears the imprint of the house rather than of the senate. Assuming a prerogative which it has often surrendered to senatorial influence, the house forced the upper branch to accept its version of the inheritance tax levy, although both branches declined to see their way clear to follow the suggestion of President Coolidge and remove the federal government wholly from the field of the estate tax.

Behind this creditable and generally approved revision stands the quiet figure of Secretary Mellon, whose suggestions, generally accepted, have resulted in removing or lightening the burden upon hundreds of thousands of tax payers, while maintaining reasonable rates in the higher brackets. The new law is so framed as to meet the approval of the business world, whose confidence in the capacity of government cannot be disturbed without unfortunate reactions upon the community.

In its final passage through the upper branch, the opposition to the bill came from a small regional school which likes to fatten on the taxation of citizens of other states but is hostile to the accumulated wealth from which the taxes are derived. If the professional radicals can extract any satisfaction from opposing a measure that reduces the taxes of persons of moderate means from one-third to one-half, or abolishes them altogether, they are welcome to it. It will be noticed, however, that many of those near-radicals who are accustomed to train with the Wisconsin group were too wise to follow them here. The law earns, if at all, on the side of generosity to the taxpayer rather than to the government. That is a fault the voters will easily condone. Politically speaking, the republican party is entitled to the credit for framing this excellent law and the democratic party for co-operating to make it the best possible.

SOME TRAFFIC SOLUTIONS

Baltimore has a traffic survey commission which has been studying the question of re-routing the street railway lines and a programme to this end has been prepared for submission to the Maryland public service commission. The plan contemplates the removal of the trolley cars altogether from certain streets and the limitation of other crowded thoroughfares to single car lines. The railway company is not opposing the proposals of the commission, but naturally insists that there must be a regulation of vehicular traffic as well and this problem is next to be taken up by the commission. Trolley lines in the big cities, it will be recognized, were built in the era of competing service on every parallel street, a condition that has been largely modified with the arrival and use of the automobile. That a more scientific routing of trolley lines in the big cities could be devised is altogether possible.

Another interesting proposed solution of traffic problems in crowded cities is seen in the petition presented in New York for an extensive bus service in Manhattan, which contemplates the exchange of surface car franchises for the right to operate buses. A bus system would be created that would cover fifty miles of streets, and would eliminate twenty-five miles of street car tracks and take two hundred cars from the streets.

Students of Manhattan traffic problems emphasize the advantage of getting rid of the slow-moving surface cars, which are so frequently the reason for traffic congestion, although they do not go so far as to say that the trolley is obsolete, but admit it will doubtless continue to serve the public for many years. But the value that is seen in the new proposal is that it will be a co-ordination of trolley and the motorbus, which is the latest improvement in public transportation. The value of the new plan would be seen in the possibility of devising a system that would coordinate trolleys and busses to aid in solving the general problems of transit and street traffic.

RESPECTING PUBLIC OPINION

In one of his recent speeches in Chicago on the alleged tragic blunder of the United States senate, the house of representatives and two presidents in favoring American entry into the world court, Senator Borah made the following admission: "There is one thing we respect in Washington. That is public opinion. We either obey it or hide from it until it passes."

But the senator from Idaho apparently has no idea of applying that observation to the world court issue. He must be aware that public opinion throughout the United States sanctions American participation in the court of international justice. He cannot have failed to read in the republican national platform of 1924 these words: "We indorse the permanent court of international justice and favor the adherence of the United States to this tribunal as recommended by President Coolidge."

Churches, civic and industrial societies, the American Legion, trade unions and 85 per cent. of the newspapers have been and are in favor of this nation's adherence to the world court. The brains and conscience of the country have expressed an emphatic judgment on the subject, and no vain imaginings or ingenious sophistries of a small but persistent minority can reverse or shake that judgment.

The irreconcilables in the senate ought to respect predominant public opinion. That is the part of becoming modesty as well as of practical statesmanship. Talk of betrayal of the country, of unpatriotic or reckless violation of cherished American traditions and principles, of dire and imminent perils, alarm no sensible person. This all merely provokes a smile.

THAT ITALIAN SETTLEMENT

It is to be suspected that Mussolini's bombastic utterances are not without their effect in the opposition to be seen in the United States senate to the Italian debt settlement. Some critics of the settlement affect to believe that another Italian government would offer the United States better terms, while others regard it as humiliating to submit to his dictation. Still the fact remains that the American debt-funding commission, as well as President Coolidge and the treasury department, are satisfied that Italy could not undertake to pay more than $2,000,000,000 as offered by its representatives. There are no financial experts in the senate who profess to have investigated Italy's capacity to pay and to have reached conclusions different from those of the debt-funding commission.

Secretary Mellon has pointed out to the recalcitrant senators that rejection or indefinite postponement of the proposed settlement would confer no benefit on American taxpayers and that the real choice is between the pending settlement plan and nothing. No rational group in the senate would seriously suggest throwing away $2,000,000,000 nor will the United States send its navy to French or Italian ports to collect debts. The alternative to amicable settlements is virtual cancellation.

As to Mussolini's anti-democratic ideas and explosive rhetoric, no American senator can do anything to modify them. Besides, Italy is old enough and intelligent enough to solve its own domestic problems. The Mussolini regime cannot last forever, indeed there are even some who profess to see signs of its end, and any responsible government in Italy will have to take into account the country's resources and capacity to pay its debts.

THE MAN WHO TALKS

It has been said many times that "the ways of Providence are past finding out." But "the ways of Providence" are not the only ways that baffle the human understanding. There are many things much nearer home than the seat of Providence that are very mysterious. The new postal regulation in regard to papers has it all over Providence for mystery. For instance two newspapers of the same edition and, of course, having the same weight, were mailed at the same post office, and each had the same amount of postage, and was directed to the same place. One of them went through all right while the other was held for postage. At the same office a paper was weighed by a clerk who announced the amount of postage required. The sender himself put on the required postage. Instead of sending the paper to the party, a note was sent to the party addressed announcing that the paper was held for postage. Can you beat it?

The committee on evangelism and devotional life, appointed by The National Council of Congregational churches, has carefully worked out a program suitable for the Lenten season, and good results will be achieved by following out this fine sequence of thought. This series of topics takes in practically the whole of John's gospel, except the last chapter. The object of this committee is not to suggest a critical examination of the text of the Fourth Gospel, for that is quite beyond the ability of the average church goer, or even of the average minister himself. That is the work usually done in the classroom of the theological seminary. The object is rather to follow in a logical way the spiritual trend of this gospel as it applies to human wants, and as it meets the different types of the human personality. In other words it gives to the Lenten period an orderly and careful study of what transpired in the life of our Lord from Ash Wednesday to Easter Sunday. This is far better than going at it in a random sort of way and getting nowhere. It also suggests what may be done when our churches as a whole enter upon such a systematic study.

The secular press is heralding Luther Burbank throughout the country as a self-confessed infidel. From some reports one would get the impression that an ultimatum had been spoken; that with a single sentence the historic creeds of Christendom in regard to immortality had been shattered. The Literary Digest gives a cut of the "plant wizard" (who by the way looks and dresses like a clergyman) who is holding in his arms a mammoth turnip. Underneath the cut are these words: "When it can be proved to me that there is immortality; that there is a resurrection beyond the gates of death, then will I believe. Until then, no." Did Burbank come to this conclusion by studying the turnip? He certainly is gazing at it very earnestly. It not it is proper to ask what are the sources from which he forms this opinion? There is nothing in plant life that teaches immortality.

It makes one's heart beat with pride when he is told of the splendid work done by the Boy Scouts in feeding the non-migratory birds. These boys emphasize the importance of preserving the birds. There birds are more than a godsend to the farmer; they are to be reckoned with sunshine, air and moisture in the preservation of crops and all kinds of plant life. Injurious insects that multiply with incredible rapidity would soon strip a field bare of its vegetation were they not attacked by birds that are very fond of this kind of food. The appetites of these birds are very voracious and when they exist in considerable quantity they save vegetation. The critical time for these birds is in winter when snow covers the ground. Then it is very hard for them to get sufficient food to keep them alive. Hence the noble work of the Boy Scouts.

Why are we making such a fuss and cry over the deportation of a foreign countess? The matter of her eligibility is more of a moral question than a political. The high place she occupies in society ought not to cut any ice in the disposition of her case. If according to our immigration resolutions she is banned from entrance there is but one thing to do, and that is deportation. Let it never be said by our democracy that we have a door wide open for the aristocracy to enter, and another, partly closed, for the common herd. And also let our laws frown just as much on the moral lapses of counts as on the shady lives of countesses. Of all nations we have the least claim (being a democracy) to make discriminations in the social status of those entering our ports. If any person, countess or non-countess is, according to our laws, an undesirable, keep him out, however much the rest of the world may howl!

In walking along one of our busy streets the other day a man saw a little boy slip down on the wet sidewalk. With a good deal of feeling in his voice (and probably elsewhere) he said, "hell!" As he sat in a puddle of ice cold water, the man wondered what there was in his present situation that reminded him of the naughty word he uttered. When this man was a boy he was taught that "hell" was a place of very high and very uniform temperature, at least 1,000 degrees Centrigrade. Evidently the little fellow sitting in that ice water did not have that particular brand of "hell" in mind, and this led the man to think that possibly his boyhood instruction was obsolete, and that the youth of today was being taught that "hell" was a place inconceivably cold. If so the idea had taken no greater somersault than some of our fashions. Once people wore clothes to keep them warm; now they wear next to none to keep them cool.

The strict literalists who insist that a right interpretation of the Bible demands a belief in bodily resurrection are troubled over the growing custom of cremation. But it is very hard to see where one theory presents more difficulties than the other. In either case a miracle is involved. If the body is cremated the residue is only a small bunch of bone ashes. As the result of burial, sooner or later, the body returns to dust, and hence the restoration of the body is as much of a miracle as the body that has been cremated. Back of this is the deeper and more important question; What use will there be for a physical body in a future existence that is supposed to be purely spiritual? Paul tells us that "flesh and blood cannot inherit the Kingdom of God."

Solution of Yesterday's Puzzle

CONNECTICUT PIONEERS IN GEORGIA AND OHIO.

Two letters written over a century ago show what a decided contrast there is today to conditions of that time. This is shown not only in transportation, but in prices and the mode of living. Sections of the country which were little known then are great and thriving states now, and it is interesting to note how people from this vicinity participated in those hardships and the country's upbuilding.

Nathan E. Whiting of this city has in his possession two letters which present vivid word pictures of what some of the conditions were. They were written to Mr. and Mrs. William Smith of Bozrah by their children, Charles Smith and Mrs. Theresa Maxson. Mrs. Smith was Mary Whiting before marriage, a sister of Mr. Whiting's grandfather.

Writing From Georgia in 1817

The son had gone to Georgia in 1817 to start practice as a doctor and the daughter to Ohio in 1824, and some of their experiences are told as follows:

Twigss County, Georgia, Dec. 1817.

My Dear Parents, you have probably heard of my safe arrival in Georgia through the communications of our friends, the gentlemen peddlers. The particulars of the voyage I shall just mention. Our Middleton schooner destined to waft us to Savannah, had engaged thrice her complement of passengers, whose various professions and conditions of life offered an interesting object of contemplation. They consisted of merchants, blacksmiths masons, carpenters, tailors, peddlers, tinkers, schoolmasters, preachers, gamblers, and runaways. Since the assorted cargo of Capt. Noah, so beastly a freight never floated on the tumbling wave. Brother Joseph suffered much and recognized in this motley collection a prototype of anticipated hell. We arrived at New York after eight days passage, and taking leave of our excellent companions, engaged steerage berth on board the ship Belfast, for which we paid ten dollars and boarded ourselves. After lying wind bound in the harbor eight or ten days, which drew hard on the purse, we put to sea in a gale and for five days like Paul, saw neither sun nor stars. The tenth day we made Tybee island and came to an anchor at six mile point. I felt during the whole voyage the extremity of sea sickness, my head was turned upside down, and lying half dead on a heap of sails, almost became indifferent to life. We landed at Savannah, where we continued near a week. The city is a Gothamite, a charmel house of enterprising and impudent Yankees. Every day of our residence consigned four or five to their parent earth. I found the price of horses much higher than our valuation, a decent one costing 140 dollars, and the expenses of our voyage being more than was expected, I had scarcely cash sufficient to equip myself for business. I, therefore, concluded not to purchase till I had seen the up country, making an arrangement with Mr. Frink. He carried me 200 miles country where I purchased a horse, and began to explore the counicellent opening in the town of Millidgecellen opening in the town of Millidgeville, the capital of Georgia where after spending some days at the moderate expense of 3 dollars per day I judged my pecuniary circumstances would not admit of an establishment. Boarding at the most inferior houses was fifteen dollars per month, and horse-keeping about the same or more. As prompt pay is always expected I dare not incur so large a debt and trust to the precarious results of my practice to discharge it. A friend recommended to a country situation, where expenses would be less to which place I proceeded and now live in the family of a planter in the county of Twiggs, about fifteen miles from the territory of the Lower Creeks. The situation at Millidgeville was probably the best in the state and I left it with much reluctance, never more keenly feeling the want of a little more cash. I submit to your decision whether I acted properly or not. "Who does the best his circumstance allows, does well."

My expenses are one hundred and twenty dollars, per year for board, and forage for my horse will probably amount to as much more. Our charges are somewhat more liberal than in Connecticut: Visit, one dollar; milage, half a dollar during the day and one dollar at night. Medicine per dose 50 cents, the same for bleeding or extracting tooth. It is now the healthy season and little medical business will be done until summer or fall which is the harvest.

I have scarcely seen a physician in this county older than myself, they either die young or relinquish business. Science is but little respected, an elegant horse with an ornamental saddle and bridle, a heavy purse and a big fist will introduce a physician to publication much more readily than extensive literary acquirements. The dirk and pistol terminate all disputes among the higher classes, biting off the nose and gouging among the lower. Cotton making engrosses all attention. High price of which occasions the enhanced price of living. No man can travel for less than 3 dollars per day.

Brother Joseph finding preaching and school keeping but indifferent and unprofitable callings, doffed, after much twisting of conscience the sacerdotal phiz, and paying his entrance bottle, was duly enrolled among the more honourable body of peddlers.

You may perhaps wish to know something of my health, but my remarks on that subject will exhibit only a detailed history of inveterate hypochondriachism! ! My liver complaint which admitted some intermission in Connecticut, now indulges me with none, and a derangement of the bowels consisting of a billious diarrhoea has infested me from the moment I left New York. I have but little hope of getting over it. This you will probably say is hypo. But when this aching head pressed by the sands of Georgia shall cease to throb with real or imaginary ill, and its busy speculations be hushed in the marble solitude of the grave, then perhaps you may exclaim, Alack, poor fellow! he was indeed ill!

I wish you to write me immediately and repeat it once in three months at least whether you hear from me or not. Remember me to our relations and friends, and when you write, recollect that it is principally domestic news which I most wish to hear.

Yours Respectfully,
CHARLES SMITH.

Mr. William Smith.

P. S. Inform me whether you received a line which I transmitted from New York.

Getting to Ohio Under Difficulties

Hiram, O., Oct. 27th 1824.

Dear Parents: I now sit down to inform you of our journey to an dismal abode. It was four weeks from the day we left Colchester, Ct., till we arrived at Hiram, Ohio. A long and tedious journey it was to me. We found the water so bad it made us sick; I was unwell all the time. I had no appetite to eat anything, the whiskey was as bad as the water. The children were all well and little Caroline I thought grew faster than she did at home. The old white mare did as well as the other horses. We came through Carsenova and see Miss Hackley and Mr. Jabez Crocker. He wished us to call at his sister's Miss Parsons; she lived at a village where they made salt. We found her and thought we'd stay there all night. We were received cold enough which made me feel very bad. We did not go to brother Marvin's when we came to Cinqg Lake. Could not hear of any way there without a great disadvantage to us. We found the roads pretty good till we came to Bufaloe, then we came by the lake shore, some of the time in the roads. Such a road no human being ever see! No pen can describe it. Could I see you I could not tell you one half the badness of the road. I carried my babe miles on foot, the mud was so deep I could scarce lift my feet up. O, mother, could you have seen me in that dreadful place. It rained every little while. I sat down on wet logs and rested when I was tired out. There was the lake on one side roaring and road all mud holes which made it very distressing. We had to go thirty miles this awful road. When we was on the shore we could not hardly move the sand was so deep. We expected to break our wagons and I thought we must all die there. The third day after we left Bufaloe about noon we came to Cataragus Creek, so tired out I felt as if I could go no further. We went in the tavern and got some wine and dinner, the first dinner that we bought since we came from home, which greatly refreshed us. We bought a good supply of bread and gingerbread. We staid at the tavern on the lake shore and had it all stole. We had to go away in the morning without breakfast. We found it very difficult to get bread after we came into the state of Ohio, it being a very dry time. Some had to go 40 miles to mill. I saw great many places in Ohio where it looked as if we could live. We came by Mr. Leffingwell's where Cynthia Whitman lives and helped fix for this place. He keeps a tavern this side Warren. We staid in Warren all night. We found iron very high. We had to give one dollar and one pence for a tea kettle. We arrived in Hiram after a great deal of trouble and fatigue. We landed at Mr. Tilden's. It was night, without one mouth full of anything to eat except a piece of old cheese. We bought a little maple sugar, 6 cents a pound, before we got there.

Butter is 6 cents a pound here, cheese 5 cents. If we had money enough we could live here but of all places in the world, I would not come here! I should prefer Bargatown to Hiram. It is a thing impossible to get money here. We have sold our wagons and two horses but could not get a cent in money for them. You thought I was quite childish in being afraid of suffering in this place. I hope I shall not, but I don't know what will become of us. Money is not to be had. No one knows my feelings but myself. I thought it would be difficult to get my things here but knew nothing about it. We sold our furniture for nothing, almost, and now I can't get anything. There is no religion here, no society, scarce anybody here that look like folk. The thought is dreadful of bringing up my children in such a place.

We live at Mr. Tilden's now. We cannot get boards to build a log house there is nothing done to the room we live in. I should prefer a log house to living here. I begin to think you are tired of hearing of nothing but bad, but I could write nothing good, the one half of the bad was not told me. Had I known all I would not have come here let the consequences have been what they would. I advise Charles never to come here nor any of my friends. Though I should be very glad to see them all I don't want them to be miserable if I am. The thought is dreadful that I never shall see you, my parents, no more but I hope I shall, but the distance is so great I fear I shan't.

My children are contented here. I wish you to write me. I told Betty Chapel I would leave her an old candle stand if I could. If she has not got it I wish you to tell her to send and get it. I was afraid you would think hard of me about the geese. We owed Miss Lamphere, since we could not pay her the money she took the geese. I had to let her have my iron basin. I am afraid I have not paid her enough now. I wish you to see her, if I have not there is book owned with Mr. Tenant which we forgot. She may have it if she will take it. If we don't owe her more, wish you to take it, the price of the book 7 shillings all. We owned half of it. I don't expect to get another iron basin short of a dollar. We have got to give 6 shillings for a wash tub.

If we could have father here to make us some meal barrels we should be glad. We are destitute of everything. Mr. amb deceived us. He told me we could get things here cheap. The wheat is but very little better than your rye.

So no more at present.

Your daughter.

Sunday Morning Talk

Promises

"If my people, which are called by my name, shall humble themselves, and pray, and seek my face, and turn from their wicked ways, then will I hear from heaven, and will forgive their sins, and will heal their land," II Chronicles 7:14.

Our King, The King of Kings, is ready at any moment—day or night, to give us an audience. We have read of the British soldier in India who was lying near death. He had long neglected the calls of God, but was now anxious to find mercy. He remembered a Christian friend living more than a hundred miles away, to him he sent this message, I am dying! "What shall I do to be saved?" Immediately flashing along the wires came back the answer, "Believe on the Lord Jesus Christ, and thou shalt be saved." The soldier believed, and soon after died with words of hope and triumph on his lips.

There is a better telegraphic communication than this. From every sinsick soul there is immediate communion with the heart of God, and from God there comes the reply: "Believe on the Lord Jesus Christ; look unto him and be saved."

The next element in this prayer is the forgiveness of sin. All of us need forgiveness of our sins. No angel could write out all the pardons which God bestows. Let us bring to Him our sins and unbelief that He may hear and forgive. The last promise is that healing will come to the land "and will heal their land." It was a land flowing with milk and honey, and the people were to recognize God's hand. Solomon is conscious of the immediate presence of God throughout this entire dedicatory service for himself and the nation. It is still true that God is the God of Nations as well as individuals. Our great republic is a monument of God's mercy to us in all the crises of our wonderful history, and this nation must not forget God.

The history of the Jewish church was long one of depression, of wickedness and evil; but they were delivered when they cried unto God. While the Hollanders in 1673 were awaiting an attack they offered most earnest prayers to God; the tide changed, foes could not land and soon their ships were driven from the coasts. The man who refuses to see the hand of God in the history of nations proves himself to be an inaccurate student of history as he is irreverent and unphilosophical.

LETTERS TO THE EDITOR

AMERICANISM VS. PURITANISM

Mr. Editor: Some recent writers, it seems to me, are inclined to get Puritanism and Americanism sadly mixed. One writer even so loosely interprets the Golden Rule, that instead of being a rule for personal guidance and measure of conduct, it becomes a heavy (gold so that it will be heavy, presumably) rule, or club, with which we beat others to our way of thought and action. We must disabuse the minds of foreigners who may think that the statue of liberty is anything but a fake.

Puritanism was dogmatic, intolerant church rule. Blackstone, the Church of England clergyman, who invited the early Puritans to Boston, where the water was good, was forced out by the intolerant application of the Golden Rule.

Roger Williams, because of differences of opinion, was driven out to form the first colony in this country with anything like democracy and religious freedom.

The founder of Hartford, Wethersfield and Windsor, left Massachusetts to get away from this "Aristocracy of Righteousness," which made impossible honest expression of opinion, and did not require a man to be a church member to vote.

Thus, by the time our present government was formed, due to the intelligence and tolerance of such men as Benjamin Franklin, Thomas Jefferson and Tom Paine, a government was instituted with entire separation of church and state. "No religious test shall ever be required for any office of public trust under the United States," Constitution, Art. III, George Washington says, "The government of the United States is in no sense founded upon the Christian religion. The United States is not a Christian nation any more than it is a Jewish or a Mohammedan nation."

How ridiculous then to prosecute a man for blasphemy under an old Puritan blue law antedating the Constitution, with its new spirit of toleration. Truth and righteousness may not change, but our understanding may improve.

The people of Massachusetts insisted that the bill of rights be added to the proposed Constitution before acceptance:—The first amendment reads "Congress shall make no law respecting an establishment of religion, or prohibit the free exercise thereof; or abridging the freedom of speech, or of the press; or the right of the people peaceably to assemble, and petition the government for redress of grievances." Thus, the influential, respectable inhabitants of Massachusetts were by this time, less interested in the Golden Rule, than in the rule of God as represented by molasses, rum and black ivory.

Thomas Jefferson says, "The legitimate powers of government extend to such acts only as are injurious to others. But it does me no injury for my neighbor to say 'there are 20 Gods or no God' When a religion is good, I conceive it will support itself; and when it does not support itself, and God does not take care to support it, so that its professors are oblized to call for help of the civil powers, 'tis a sign, I apprehend, of its being a bad one." Benjamin Franklin. Now his tendency to seek to mix church and state seems to come from two religious extremes of thought.—The Roman Catholic, with its claim of divine supremacy over all civil and religious thought and action; and the super righteous Puritan. Each of these can see the mustard seed in the other fellow's eye, but cannot see the bean in his own eye.

"I most earnestly recommend that a constitutional amendment be submitted prohibiting the granting of any school funds or school taxes for the benefit, or in aid, directly or indirectly, of any religious sect or denomination," U. S. Grant, message to congress, Dec. 7, 1875.

"No culprit feels the halter drawn with good opinion of the law," quotes your correspondent. James Russell Lowell saws, "Where church and state are habitually associated it is natural that minds, even of a high order, should unconsciously come to regard religion a subtler mode of police."

Protestantism is based upon the responsibility and duty of individual thought and action, but see how Puritanism swings back to the opposite extreme; thus Cotton Mather, "A democracy is no fit government for either church or commonwealth."

The framers of our Constitution were wise in giving the greatest possible political and religious freedom, and freedom of expression of thought, with the idea doubtless, that interests and differences could thus be settled intelligently and fairly. But when a few think they must force their will upon others for present or future good conditions are surely bad, and even worse, if these efforts are, as they usually are, done to prevent natural development and progress.

AMERICA FOR AMERICANS

Mr. Editor: I read with interest Mr. Hanover's letter in The Bulletin, Feb. 24th. I think that he is laboring under a misapprehension. We Americans are not fighting any particular nationality or religion. The sooner people get that idea out of their heads the better for all concerned.

We believe in America for Americans just exactly as all other nations believe in their country for their own people. If they think that is not true just ponder this for a while. Would the leaders of Jerusalem or Ireland or Italy or Spain or any other country let us Americans go to their country and take all the fat, juicy political plums, or lemons or sour grapes off their family trees? No, by chowder, they wouldn't. Then why should they kick if we do not want them to pick all our nice hard, green, puckery fruit off our cherry trees?

Any way, Mr. Hanover got rid of a lot of big words which must have given him an awful headache.

Why the fireworks, Mr. Hanover? It is most too early for thunder storms. Have a heart and have mercy on our poor eardrums. We don't like such loud noises. We believe in peace even if we do get a bloody nose trying to get it.

IN THE PUBLIC EYE

Prof. Allyn A. Young, who has been invited to sit on the League of Nations' Commission which is to prepare for the international economic conference, is a noted economist and financial expert at present attached to the Harvard faculty. His career illustrates that interesting progression from institution to institution, and from section of the country to section, which goes on in the professional career of men of his calling. A native of Ohio, and educated at Hiram College, he won his doctor's degree at the University of Wisconsin, joined its faculty as a teacher of economics, and then passed along to the teaching staffs of Western Reserve University, Dartmouth College, Stanford University and the University of Washington. In 1913 he went to Cornell as professor of economics and finance, and from that institution was called to Harvard. He has been president of the American Statistical association and secretary of the American Economic association.

A THREE DAYS' COUGH IS YOUR DANGER SIGNAL

Persistent coughs and colds lead to serious trouble. You can stop them now with Creomulsion, an emulsified creosote that is pleasant to take. Creomulsion is a new medical discovery with two-fold action; it soothes and heals the inflamed membranes and inhibits germ growth.

Of all known drugs, creosote is recognized by high medical authorities as one of the greatest healing agencies for persistent coughs and colds and other forms of throat troubles. Creomulsion contains, in addition to creosote, other healing elements which soothe and heal the infected membranes and stop the irritation and inflammation, while the creosote goes on to the stomach, is absorbed into the blood, attacks the seat of the trouble and checks the growth of the germs.

Creomulsion is guaranteed satisfactory in the treatment of persistent coughs and colds, bronchial asthma, bronchitis and other forms of respiratory diseases, and is excellent for building up the system after colds or flu. Money refunded if any cough or cold is not relieved after taking according to directions. Ask your druggist. Creomulsion Company, Atlanta, Ga.

ST. GODDARD TAKES LEAD IN DOG SLED RACES

ST. HILAND, N. H., Feb. 26—(AP)—Emil St. Goddard, 19 year old champion of The Pas, Manitoba, mushed into the lead at the end of the second half of the New England dog sled race today, pushing through the slush for 47 miles over the long hills from Whitefield to here, piled up a lead of nearly eight minutes over Shorty Russick, also of The Pas, who finished a bare 2 seconds ahead of him in yesterday's race.

The leader at the end of the 87 miles, St. Goddard, had all seven of his dogs ready to start the last leg of the 100 mile test tomorrow. Most of the other contenders have reduced their teams, by dropping the huskies that failed to stand the pace.

With two-thirds of the race over, it narrowed down to a tussle between the two drivers from The Pas, with Earl Bridges, also of The Pas, and the Dupuis brothers, Francois and Jean, of Quebec, pushing them hard. Francois Dupuis was third, Bridges fourth, with only a minute and a half between them and Jean Dupuis fifth.

TWO JOCKEYS INJURED IN RACES OF MIAMI

NEW YORK, Feb. 26—(AP)—Two jockeys, Steele and McCrossen, suffered fractured collar bones and Julie M. Otis fatally injured in a spill over Moonbrook in the sixth race at Miami today.

STOCKHOLM ALSO RUNS ITS OPERA AT LOSS

Stockholm, like Chicago, finds grand opera expensive, but enjoyable. The Royal opera is one of the feature of Stockholm life. It has produced some supreme artists.

It is open from the middle of September until the middle of June. Last year it gave 271 performances, having an average attendance of 721 persons. Its total expenditures were nearly 1,000,000. Two-thirds of this sum went in salaries to the artists. Nearly all the operas and ballets presented are old classics. The charges for admission are low, a front row shall for a main performance costing less than two dollars. The sale of seats covered only about one-fourth the total expenses. For the Royal Opera House has other sources of revenue. It receives royal and civic subsidies aggregating about $50,000 a year. It is expected to hold an annual lottery, which yields nearly five times as much. It has income from rents and interest, and from a share of the pleasure taxes.

Postal Clerks' Work

In the British house of commons the postmaster general stated the other day that 3,500,000 letters were redirected in the post office every month and 1,250,000 were returned to the senders.

This means about 40,000,000 letters annually to be readdressed by post office clerks and about 15,000,000 to be returned. It is said, however, that the public is improving in the matter of addressing letters and that in proportion to the increase of post office business the number of returned letters has decreased. Say the post office officials: "We handle 3,340,000,000 letters, 470,000,000 postcards, 1,165,000,000 circulars and printed papers and 126,000,000 parcels in a year, so the figures for redirected and returned letters are not abnormal."

OBITUARY.

Mrs. Patrick H. McCann.

Following a short illness the death of Catherine Riley, wife of Patrick H. McCann, died Friday afternoon at her home in Lisbon. Mrs. McCann was born in Ireland, the daughter of the late John and Catherine Riley. She came to this country when a young girl and had made her home in Lisbon for a number of years. She was a devoted member of St. Mary's church, Jewett City, and always took an active part in all parish affairs as long as health permitted her to do so.

She is survived by her husband and six children, John, of Fitchville, James, of Norwich, Madeline, Catherine, Mildred and Arthur McCann, who live at home. There are also two grandchildren and an only sister, Miss Hannah Riley of Norwich.

Mrs. William H. Johnson

Following an illness of about one week, Martha C. Johnson, 85, widow of William H. Johnson, formerly of Plainfield and Packerville, died Friday night at 10:50 o'clock at the home of her son, Frank H. Johnson, Lisbon. Mrs. Johnson was the daughter of the late Mr. and Mrs. Samuel Perry and was born in Lowell, Mass. She descended from the Perry family of Lake Erie fame.

For years Mr. and Mrs. Johnson resided in Packerville and Plainfield. Mr. Johnson died about 19 years ago. Mrs. Johnson was a member of the Baptist faith. For the past five years she had made her home in Lisbon. Surviving her are one son, Frank H. Johnson.

Miss Bridget Flannery

Following a lingering illness Miss Bridget Flannery died Friday afternoon at 12:20 o'clock. Miss Flannery was born in Ireland but had been a resident of Norwich for many years. At one time she was engaged in the dressmaking business but had not followed this occupation for some time. She was a member of St. Patrick's parish and was active in this, as well as in other circles as long as her health permitted her to do so. Miss Flannery was the last of her immediate family, but she leaves many friends in this city who will mourn her loss.

Rev. P. M. McKenna

A telegram received in Norwich Friday afternoon announced the death of Rev. P. M. McKenna, pastor of St. Monica's church, Barre, Vermont. Connecticut priests will attend the funeral which is to be held on Tuesday.

Over thirty years ago, Rev. Father McKenna served as a curate at St. Patrick's church, Norwich for about four years. Although born in Dublin, Ireland, he was a priest of the Diocese of Montpelier and a few years ago his twenty-fifth anniversary as pastor at Barre was signalized by his devoted parishioners, who surprised him with a purse of $2,500—a gift of one hundred dollars for each year of his passorate there.

It was because of a throat affection that with permission of his bishop, he came to Norwich, seeking milder climate. During the several years of his labors in this city he accomplished a vast amount of good, not alone by his eloquent and scholarly sermons but by his example of sanctity and priestly zeal. He was one of the best read and most widely informed priests in New England, the possessor of a valuable library, an accomplished linguist, added and added to his store of knowledge by travel, having several times visited the Holy Land, and knowing the principal countries of Europe well. Yet such was his humility and his devotion to duty that it was only by chance that the true depth of his erudition was ever discovered.

This same humility characterized all his life in his Master's service and by choice he continued to labor in the granite town of Barre when he might have accepted proffers of advancement to very high rank in his diocese. He did much to improve the parish over which he had been given charge, and of late years has been engaged in the erection of a fine new school building adjoining the church, rectory and convent. His people numbered many loyal Catholics of French and Italian birth or descent, together with the usual proportion of Irish-American members; and it was largely due to his fine qualities of leadership that parish affairs went on so harmoniously that his people worked so unitedly and that church and school flourished in a way most encouraging to the devoted shepherd of souls. He always had a curate's assistance and their parish work was most thoroughly done.

Father McKenna has a brother also in the priesthood, a curate at Holy Angels' church, Oakwood Boulevard, Chicago, who had visited him a short time ago. His nearest relatives are cousins in Holyoke, Mass.

Since leaving Connecticut he has continued his firm friendship with a number of the Connecticut priests who were associated with him during his successful term of service in Norwich notably with Rev. Felix J. O'Neil, pastor of St. Edward's parish, Stafford Springs. Father McKenna came of a well-to-do family and his private means enabled him to do much in the way of liberal, though always quiet and unostentatious charities, his own tastes being very simple and his method of living almost austere.

Especially in the Greeneville section of Norwich, where he did much in ministering to the people of the old St. Mary's parish, news of his death will cause sorrow, with many grateful prayers for one who was a model priest, a wise, helpful and kindly confessor, most devoted to his calling in his ministrations to the living and to the dying.

HADASSAH HAS MASQUERADE AT WAUREGAN HOTEL

A successful masquerade was given Thursday evening at the Wauregan hotel under the auspices of Norwich chapter of Hadassah. Prizes for costumes were awarded Dr. S. M. Goldberg, Chinese costume; Miss Madeline Thune, ballad dancer; Mrs. Maiman, freak gown, and Miss Solomon as a Charleston baby. The judges were H. Sobwartz, Miss Jennie Lowenberger, Max Hanover and I. Beckinstein.

In the Charleston contest there were a number of entrants and the intricate steps were done to perfection, honors for the evening going to Meyer Rutchik.

NORWICH MERCHANTS PLAN FOR SPRING WINDOW DISPLAY CONTEST

At a meeting of the Retail Merchants' bureau held Friday evening at the Wauregan hotel plans were drawn up for the annual spring opening and best window display contest which has become a feature of the spring openings in this city.

The meeting was in charge of President Abner Schwartz and it was announced that the dates for the spring opening had been selected for March 11, 12 and 13th. The opening will be participated in by all the leading stores of the city.

In connection with the opening days a window decorating contest has been arranged. A change is being made this year, inasmuch as all winners in the various classes or divisions, are to be selected by the public, instead of by judges as has been done in past years.

Stores and businesses have been classified into groups as follows: A, department stores; B, ladies wear; C, furniture; D, men's wear; E, Shoe stores; F, candy stores; G, jewelry stores; H, florists; I, hardware; J, Electric stores; K, automobile accessories; L, drug stores; M, restaurants; N, textiles; O, provisions; P, general stores.

The method of selecting the winners in the window decorating contest, is for advertised coupons listing the stores by classes and coupons to be issued by the stores. One vote is to allowed each person for the store in his or her opinion, which has the prettiest window in its classification. These votes must be sent to the chamber of commerce beginning on Thursday, March 11th. The contest will close at noon on Saturday, March 13th. Stores receiving the largest number of votes in their classification will win a prize and the persons selecting the most winners will also get prizes, there being nine public prizes, ranging from $10 for first prize to $1 for prizes from seven to nine.

General discussion of the best methods of conducting the spring opening were taken up after which the meeting was adjourned.

Announce Daughter's Engagement

Mr. and Mrs. John H. Bicknell of Moosup announce the engagement of their daughter, Ada May Bicknell to Melville De Moranville, son of Mr. and Mrs. Arthur W. De Moranville of Central Village. The wedding will take place in August.

INCIDENTS IN SOCIETY

The Mardi Huit club was entertained this week by Mrs. Charles C. McNamara.

Miss Mary G. Shannon is a guest this week at Hotel Stratford, while visiting friends in Bridgeport.

This week's Saturday bridge-tea is to be held at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Willis Austin, on Washington street.

Mrs. James Lewis Smith, who has been visiting relatives in Mystic, New York and Washington since the middle of December, returned Friday and has opened her home on Broad street.

This (Saturday) morning at 11 o'clock, Mrs. Russell A. Clapp, Jr., is sailing from New York with her parents on S S. Reliance for a trip to the West Indies, the first port of call being Trinidad.

The Wednesday Literary club met with Miss Mary A. Aiken, the hostess having the interesting paper, a review of the biography of Josephine Thurston Peabody. Later tea was served informally.

Mrs. Joseph H. Larrabee of Newburyport, Mass. formerly of Norwich, who, while residing here was a member of Mt. Holyoke Alumnae association, has been passing a week or two with friends in town.

At the home of Mrs. A. N. H. Vaughn on Rockwell Terrace, a meeting of the Eastern Conn. Mt. Holyoke Alumnae is to be held Tuesday afternoon, when Mrs. Gilbert S. Raymond will report on the meeting of the graduate council being held at college this week. Mrs. Vaughn will report on a recent Holyoke meeting which she attended in New York.

Those who have taken tables for the bridge to be given at Connecticut college are Mrs. C. Royce Boss, Mrs. Willis Austin, Mrs. Frank T. Clapp, Mrs. Harry E. Higgins, and Mrs. Archibald Mitchell. Others who will go down to play are Mrs. Henry A. Tirrell, Mrs. Charles R. Butts, Miss Minnie L. Palmer, Mrs. Wm. H. Oat, Mrs. Harry E. Prentice, Mrs. John F. Rogers, Mrs. William W. Leonard, Mrs. Hibberd R. Norman, also Mrs. Edwin W. Higgins, with Miss Louise C. Howe, who is a member of the committee.

LOCAL CHAMBER AFTER FACTORIES FOR NORWICH

If there is one thing that the chamber endeavors to do it is to secure as many additional factories for Norwich as possible, says the February membership letter of the Norwich chamber of commerce.

The letter, mailed out Friday by Secretary John J. O'Rourke, follows:

Uncas Paperboard Company—It is indeed a source of real satisfaction to learn that this factory is to continue operations for making paper board in Norwich. Normally, nearly two hundred wage of $4,000 to $5,000, wage of $4,000 to $5,000.

A representative of the Canadian interests who purchased this plant conferred with the officials of the chamber relative to some of the plans of the new owners. Investigations are being made regarding various improvements at the factory, the cost of which will total a considerable sum of money.

The new owners evidently intend to enter strong competition for the marketing of their local product, based on a thorough over-hauling of machinery and equipment, which will tend to reduce overhead operating expenses. The contemplated improvements will be made gradually so that operations will not be deferred for too long a period of time.

The Norwich Chamber of Commerce welcomes a new owner of an old industry.

Our Slogan—The Norwich Belt Manufacturing company recently filled an order for four large belts—first grade material and finish; three plys; the widths being respectively forty-four inches, forty-eight inches, fifty inches, fifty-four inches. The belts were shipped to Louisiana. This is an indication of the distribution of Norwich manufactured products. "The World Uses What Norwich Produces."

Loyalty to Norwich—In common with the average American community, Norwich has her share of crepe hangers and knockers. According to a reliable local authority, "Norwich Bulletin", the following figures are interesting to note the so-called "business decadence" of Norwich.

Year	Wages (Factories)	Savings Bank Deposits
1919	$5,285,240	$31,888,023
1920	8,922,679	33,290,735
1921	7,552,406	32,687,865
1922	8,409,062	34,763,200
1923	9,948,522	36,235,584
1924	9,116,929	37,254,761
1925	8,837,024	38,321,500

The figures prove that, in despite of the general business depression of the past two years, Norwich pursues her course straightway on the road to her destiny. The figures furthermore prove that the diversity of Norwich industries is unusually good and that the wages paid, the savings made, and the general banking business done, testify that Norwich is still very much on the map—and going ahead.

The Norwich figures alone, nearly equal all the combined similar figures covering eastern Connecticut.

A word as to securing additional factories for Norwich. If there is one thing that the chamber endeavors to do, it is to secure as many additional factories for Norwich as possible. That is always a part of the important planks of its annual program of work. It is likewise an important plank in every chamber of commerce, from New York city down to the community of 1,000 or less inhabitants.

The United States chamber of commerce is authority for the following:

"Not more than twenty-five substantial factories move their location in the entire United States within an average year.

"The most permanent, solid, and satisfactory industrial expansion in the cities of the United States as a whole, come from the inside out, instead of from the outside in."

"A business-like city should not want a factory that has to be bought to move to its confines."

"There is no sounder principle of securing factories than to make your city conditions attractive for industry."

We are informed by those who visit Florida or California, that when a person knocks the climate, the people, or the business in either of those states, and in some others as well, that the knocker is firmly told "You don't have to stay here." It would be a good policy to establish here. Norwich has no room for the knocker but welcomes the builder.

Community Publicity—New England is borrowing a page from our western and southern cities. Spokane, St. Louis, Memphis, Chicago, Cleveland, and many, if not most southern cities, are spending, and have been spending, thousands of dollars annually to advertise their cities, or their communities.

Maine is spending $100,000 annually, through legislative enactment, telling the world of the beauties of that state. The Vermont legislature has been making an annual appropriation for a dozen years for the same purpose. New Hampshire, at its last legislative session, appropriated $50,000 from state funds, and the cities of that state are raising another $50,000 for nationwide advertising purposes. Now comes Massachusetts, where bills are now before its legislature to permit towns and cities to have a fund for community advertising, set apart in their annual budgets, and provided, for from the general treasury of the town or city.

Heretofore the only method for advertising a community has been through the efforts of chambers of commerce. Every chamber that can afford the expense is continually devising ways and means to advertise its community.

In the larger cities of the west, it has been quite common, for a number of years past, for the chambers of commerce to spend annually sums up to $50,000 from their own funds for community advertising. That is an indication of the support given to chambers of commerce; of the faith in its field of effort; of the organized community purpose to promote the prosperity and the growth of their communities. The results of this community advertising are now being realized by our western brethren in their growing populations supported by additional factories and their expansions.

The estimate of the population of Norwich for 1925, based on the local school census, by the state board of education is 24,045.

PARISH HOUSE DEPT. MEETS AT OSGOOD MEMORIAL

The regular meeting of the parish house department of the Women's federation was held in the parlors of the Osgood Memorial at Park church on Friday afternoon with a full attendance of members and friends.

Mrs. Frederick W. Cary, president of the federation opened the exercises with scripture reading and the Lord's prayer. After the secretary's report by Mrs. John S. Blackmar, there was announcement of a rummage sale planned for the latter part of March.

Mrs. Henry D. Johnson, for the finance committee, gave the figures for the budget, explaining needs and resources.

Mrs. Annie E. Payson, chairman of the parish house department, took charge of the program, introducing Dr. Frederick Shenk of the Norwich state hospital, who spoke interestingly on the subject; "The Modern Hospital, Its Methods and Object." Dr. Shenk emphasized the need of early recognition of mental trouble and showed how complete rest was an important agent in cure.

The Norwich hospital receives about three quarters of the cases in the state. Of these about thirty per cent. recover and twenty per cent. are so much improved as to return home.

Of course, the object of the hospital is to cure or improve as many as possible and then to care properly for those who need to be treated in such an institution.

At the conclusion of Dr. Shenk's talk, Lester Crowell played two violin selections "Berceuse" by Godard and "Humoresque" by Dvorak, accompanied by Dwight Richardson, after which Master Richardson gave two piano selections, "To my beloved" by Schutt, "Just a smile" by Martin. These two young musicians gave much pleasure to the audience.

Mrs. Payson reminded members of the luncheon to occur on March 19, and to be followed by an address on the work of women's clubs by Mrs. George H. Stoughton of Hartford.

Mrs. E. A. Harris and Mrs. F. W. Cary had prepared refreshments. Mrs. A. E. Richards and Mrs. Howard Stanton poured and the following girls acted as waitresses, Dorothy Harris, Janice Richards, Louise Higgins, Mary Shaver, Louise Evans, and Marion Allen.

FORESTERS CLUB HAS ENJOYABLE CLUB NIGHT

Members of the Foresters club of Norwich, Inc., enjoyed a club night on Friday evening at their hall at No. 25 Huntington street, when members of Court City of Norwich, No. 63, Foresters of America, were guests of the club.

The members and guests were welcomed by President Henry A. Congdon, after which remarks were made by Junior Past Chief Ranger Joseph C. Callahan and Sub Chief Ranger Robert S. Chapman. Delightful solos were rendered by Edward Kane while a number of humorous stories were told by Louis Yokim of Court Bennington, Bennington, Vt. Song numbers by the glee club completed the programme for the evening.

Fred Blanchette of the Taftville court served one of his famous oyster suppers, the menu including besides the chowder, rolls, crackers, celery, pickles, coffee and cigars. Following the supper a social time was enjoyed and various members entertained with songs and dancing.

The committee in charge of the social night comprised President Henry A. Congdon, Joseph Callahan, Joseph Portelance, Jr., William Dunion, Michael Duggan, Augustus Tatro and Fred Blanchette.

HIGHAM INDICTED FOR BALTIC P. O. THEFT

BOSTON, Feb. 26.—(AP)—Clarence L. Higham, former clerk at the Baltic, Conn., post office, was indicted by a federal grand jury today for larceny and forging a money order for $250. He recently surrendered to federal authorities at San Francisco.

A Brookline woman, whose name was not made public, notified federal officials here today that she would make restitution to the post office department for Higham on condition that he be permitted to return to California and continue his fight to regain his health.

Higham, who is 27 and deformed was reported to have forged the money order three years ago to obtain funds with which to go to the Pacific coast after a physician had told him he would not live long unless he went to a more temperate climate.

FINED FOR DRIVING WHILE UNDER INFLUENCE

(Special to The Bulletin.)

NEW LONDON, Feb. 25—George W. Waterous, Thames View, Waterford, was arraigned before Judge Frederick Dimmock in the Waterford town court late this afternoon charged on two counts of violation of the automobile law, driving a machine while under the influence of liquor and operating a motor vehicle without having a license to do so. He was fined $100 and costs for driving while under the influence of liquor.

FUNERALS.

Mrs. Benjamin M. Ruley.

Funeral services for Mrs. Benjamin M. Ruley of No. 110 High street were held at 2.30 o'clock Friday afternoon at Mt. Calvary Baptist church with a large attendance of relatives and friends. The services were conducted by Rev. Mr. Pitman of Hartford and the floral remembrances were numerous and beautiful.

Burial took place in Maplewood cemetery, where the committal service was read by Rev. Mr. Pitman. The bearers were James Lacey, James Greene, Edward Thompson, Arba Simmons, Robert Scott and Abe Scott. The funeral arrangements were in charge of Undertaker C. A. Gager.

Patrick Daly

Funeral services for Patrick Daly were held Friday morning at 8:30 o'clock from the home of his daughter, Mrs. John J. Shugrue of 38 River avenue. Solemn requiem mass was celebrated at 9 o'clock at St. Patrick's church by Rev. John Reilly, who was assisted by Rev. Myles F. Galvin as deacon and Rt. Rev. Msgr. M. H. May as sub-deacon.

There was a large attendance of relatives and friends at the service and the floral forms were beautiful. During the service Prof. Henry J. LaFontaine presided at the organ. At the offertory Roderick Sullivan sang, "Pie Jesu" and as a waiting hymn he sang "Jesus Lover of My Soul. At the recessional Messrs. LaFontaine and Sullivan sang Lead Kindly Light."

Burial was in St. Joseph's cemetery where the committal service was conducted by Rt. Rev. Msgr. M. H. May. The bearers were Dennis J. O'Connell, George J. Roberts, John Fitzgerald, John Connell, Frederick LaFontaine and Harry Silvy. Arrangements were in charge of Hourigan Brothers.

BACKUS HOSPITAL

The neuro-psychiatric clinic of the Backus hospital is trying to extend their work, in order to facilitate the convalescents of those patients whom they have been helping back to health. And one who has been nervously ill knows that the road to normal living can be gained only by some occupation that is worth while. Many of these patients are perfectly able to do part time work, and have had previous experience in many types of work, from simple household tasks to specialized farm work, office work, or teaching. Among them are women who can do beautiful sewing, seamstresses of high accomplishment.

These patients, however, are not yet well enough to do a full day's work, and a committee, with Miss Elizabeth Huntington as chairman, has just been formed to find placement for them. This committee asks anyone in the community who can give work to these convalescents, to telephone Miss Huntington. More than money, is needed the chance for work that can be done under favorable surroundings. Many of these patients will return to be a help to the community, if for a while they can do the tasks they know how to do, for people who are sympathetic to their needs.

EAGLES TO INITIATE CANDIDATES THIS EVENING

Announcement was made Friday night that Norwich aerie, No. 376, F. O. E., will initiate a class of twenty-five candidates at the Eagles' home, Main street, this (Saturday) evening. There will be a chowder and entertainment programme after the initiation.

Monday evening an open meeting will be held at the home of the aerie. There will be a smoker and addresses by Judge O'Donnell, of Kansas City, past State President William F. Kelly, of Naugatuck, and State President Foley, of Waterbury.

CHILEAN BAR BLAMED FOR POLITICAL MALADY

Chile's political ills have been brought about by her lawyers, according to a writer in El Mercurio, discussing the flocking of the young men into the legal profession.

Considering Chile's small population, less than 4,000,000, and the fact that the property-owning class requiring the services of lawyers is very small, the writer in El Mercurio proves to his own satisfaction that there are far more than enough "abogados" to attend to legal affairs of the people. Old established practitioners have issued warnings that the profession is overcrowded. They suggest that Chile's young men enter other professions to develop the national resources—engineering, agriculture and others. The passion for the law is shown by the granting last year of 231 legal degrees by the university of Chile, as compared with only 11 degrees in civil engineering and one in mining engeering. The law schools of Santiago and Valparaiso have more than 1,000 students. The legal profession has always been considered one of honor. The sons of many wealthy families study law, not with the idea of practicing, but to be able to call themselves doctors of law. The law also opens the doorway to government service. In engineering professions the chances of connecting with government sinecures are not so good.

RUSSIA AGAIN MENACED BY BEARS AND WOLVES

While live stock decreased and the production of fields and farms diminished during the war and the revolution in Russia, wolves and bears waxed strong and became numerous. They roam not only the sparsely settled snow-covered forests and plains, but are in the Moscow and Leningrad districts, only a few miles from the cities.

Last season in the Moscow district the death of 17 horses, 162 colts, 47 cows, 43 calves, 1,071 sheep and several persons was charged to wolves. Every peasant family's involuntary tax to the "gray landlords," as the wolves and bears are called, is estimated at 23 cents to $2.60, according to his neighborhood. In the Bashkira republic the destruction of cattle caused a loss of $3,506,029. At Nizhninovgorod wild animals attacked a trainload of hogs.

Though the season is young, 150 bears have been killed near Leningard. The Russian wolf is a huge animal—larger than a mastiff. The government encourages hunting parties to reduce the scourge. The thrifty peasants are willing to point out a bear's lair to city hunters without asking their usual fee.

SOUND ISOLATION HOLDS HOPE FOR APARTMENTS

Before long, if Swedish experiments succeed, it will be possible for your neighbor's daughter to practice the piano and the son of a neighbor on the other side to play the trombone without your being disturbed. Prof. Kreuger of Stockholm has conducted elaborate researches in the isolation of sounds.

This, he declares, is much more complicated than the isolation of heat. His conclusions are: (1) Heavy materials insulate sound better than light; (2) loose, hanging curtains and loose materials used as wall filling absorb much sound; (3) walls with spaces filled with cotton insulate sound. Some rooms by their shape and by the hardness or the sound-reflecting qualities of the walls, magnify and cause sounds to repeat. This is noticeable in many vaults. Halls that are bad acoustically can be made good by the right use of hangings. "It is safe to say," Prof. Kreuger declares, "that in both new buildings and old we have the acoustics problem pretty well in our hands."

Accident Gave World Bread

The discovery of the present method of making bread was the result of an accident. Long ago some yeast cells by accident both into dough which was left unattended for some time and on her return the housewife was surprised to find it was much greater in quality than when she left it.

It was then found that by keeping some of the dough and putting it in the next mixing the same thing occurred. Later on some expert discovered that the organisms that had been added to the dough were yeast cells. It was then an easy matter, says the Progressive Grocer, to prepare cultures of the yeast in the laboratory, and from that stage it developed into the yeast that we know today.

PLAINFIELD TOWN TEAM SWAMPS FAST BRIDGEPORT COLORED BASKETBALL FIVE

For the second time within as many days the Plainfield Town team sent down to defeat the Big Essex Five of Bridgeport, colored champions of New England, in a one-sided encounter here tonight, the score being 66 to 23. In the game Thursday night at Bridgeport the Plainfield quintet emerged victors by a score of 41 to 35 in what was an exceptionally fast game.

The game tonight found Plainfield hitting on all cylinders and running at top speed. Jumping into the lead at the start of the game the local quintet romped merrily around the floor with little to impede their progress. Baskets were caged almost at will and the Plainfield boys piled up an impressive total. There was little to mark an individual star on the Plainfield team for every player contributed his share to the score. The Plainfield team worked with machine-like precision and completely baffled the opposing dusky knights of the chalked court.

The summary:

Plainfield	G.	F.	Pts.

TILDEN AND RICHARDS WIN FIVE-SET MATCH

NEW YORK, Feb. 26.—(AP)—The magic touch of victory returned to William T. Tilden's racquet today for the first time since America's tennis supremacy has been challenged by France's dashing young invaders. With Vincent Richards as his partner, the American National champion led the way to a spectacular uphill victory over Rene Lacoste and Jacques Brugnon in the third match of the international indoor series. The scores were 4-6, 6-2, 8-10, 6-1, 7-5.

This doubles triumph gave the United States a lead of two matches to one in the series, which will be concluded tomorrow with two singles matches on the courts of the seventh regiment armory. Tilden will face Borotra while Richards will encounter Lacoste in these contests and victory in either one will give America the decision.

Tilden, apparently stung by the successive singles setbacks he has sustained at the hands of Borotra and Lacoste within the past week, was the dominant factor in the American teams triumph this afternoon. He had brilliant support from Richards, these two joining forces in international play for the first time since 1922, but it was the dynamic force of the champion's game that pulled the match out of the fire after the Frenchmen, playing in sparkling form, had gained a commanding lead of two sets to one.

Tilden rose to his most spectacular heights as he set a dazzling pace in the fourth set, swamping the invaders in 13 minutes, it was Tilden again who bore the brunt of the deciding struggle in the final set, driving with irresistible power, accuracy and storming the net to flash as brilliant a volleying game as he has ever shown. When Richards weakened momentarily toward the close of the set, enabling the Frenchmen to bring it to deuce as he lost his service, it was Tilden who came to the rescue, pounding back Lacoste's delivery for "a break" in the 11th game and then making his own "cannonball" service good in the deciding game.

France had a new combination in the fray with Brugnon replacing the "bounding basque," Jean Borotra, as a partner for Lacoste but the invading attack suffered little, if any, on that account. Brugnon, in fact, more than held his own, especially in the first three sets, outvolleying Richards and outdriving Tilden at times, while the usually machinelike Lacoste found trouble striking his stride.

Lacoste's service, which Tilden had found impenetrable yesterday, was pierced frequently at critical times today, particularly in the second and fifth sets.

Where their team work was a bit ragged in the early part of the match, Tilden and Richards hit an irresistible pace in the concluding two sets. Seldom has either displayed a more spectacular overhead or ground game. The Frenchmen were simply overwhelmed in the fourth set and it seemed that they would be put to rout in the final set until a sudden stand temporarily checked the Americans' drive. The best this rally could do, however, was to force the set to deuce.

Analysis of the match shows how closely the battle was waged on the whole, only eleven points separating the rival teams.

MISS COLLETT IS BEATEN BY CHICAGO CHAMPION

ORMONDA BEACH, Fla., Feb. 26.—(AP)—The women's golf champion of America and France, was defeated here today by the women's champion of Chicago.

Miss Glenna Collett, of Providence, Rhode Island, fell before the magnificent driving and putting of Miss Dorothy Klotz in the semi-final round of play in the women's golf tournament here.

The game ended at the sixteenth hole with Miss Klotz leading 3 and 2.

Miss Mary K. Browne of Los Angeles, won over Miss Helen Payson, of Portland, Me., 4 and 2, in the other flight.

A year ago, Miss Payson was unable to break 100. Then she entered a tournament at Shennecassett, Conn., and carried Miss Collett to the 18th hole before losing.

Still later, she qualified in the national tournament. Yesterday, she defeated Mrs Dorothy Campbell Hurd, of Philadelphia, who has held numerous championships in the past 17 years. Miss Klotz and Miss Browne meet in the finals tomorrow.

LA COSTE AND BOROTRA WILL PLAY IN DAVIS CUP MATCHES

NEW YORK, Feb. 26.—(AP)—While her team is battling for international indoor honors, France "tossed her hat into the ring" today for the 1926 Davis cup competition. Formal notice of the challenge, to apply to the European zone, was received by the United States Lawn Tennis association in a letter from the general secretary of the French Tennis association.

France's twin stars, Jean Borotra and Rene Lacoste, reached the challenge round against the United States last year, losing all five matches after a stirring battle. On the basis of their improved showing so far this year, critics expect the wearers of the tri-color to be even stronger as well as the outstanding menace to this country's supremacy.

CAL MAKES NO COUNT ON SON'S DEFEAT

WASHINGTON, Feb. 26.—(AP)—Just what President Coolidge thinks of the performance of his son, John, as an amateur boxer at Amherst College, probably will remain a secret, he has confided his views to no one, and efforts today to obtain comment were futile.

The president, who perhaps reads the newspapers more carefully than any of his predecessors in the white house, undoubtedly knows that John lost a three round bout to another student Wednesday night, but apparently has decided not to disclose his opinion of collegiate boxing and his son's first appearance in the ring.

RITOLA SETS NEW RECORD FOR 3,000 METERS RACE

SYRACUSE, N. Y., Feb. 26—(AP)—Willie Ritola, of the Finnish-American A. C., clipped four-fifths of a second from the world's indoor track record for 3,000 meters when he defeated Clinton Loucks of Syracuse university in a feature race of the university's track carnival here tonight. Ritola's time was 7 minutes, 44 1-5 seconds. Loucks was three-fourths of a lap behind at the finish.

Syracuse defeated Colgate in a special 1,200 yard relay.

SUZANNE LENGLEN WILL RETIRE FROM TENNIS PLAY FOR SEVERAL MONTHS

MONTE CARLO, Feb. 26.—(AP)—A return match between Mlle. Suzanne Lenglen and Miss Helen Wills, so far as the Riviera is concerned, is doomed, and Miss Wills must wait a few months for another chance to gain the world's tennis championship. Suzanne has definitely decided to lay aside her singles recquet until the French championships in June.

With tears streaming down her face, she announced, after a long consultation with her doctors that she must refrain from playing in the singles in the tournament at her home town, Nice, where it was hoped by tennis devotees that the American and French champions would meet across the net.

Just across the street from the little village where Suzanne makes her home, overlooking the courts of the Nice club, one hundred workmen were busy putting up five thousand extra seats to accommodate the crowds expected for a Lenglen-Wills match. Leon Garibaldi, president of the Nice club, to whom Suzanne communicated her decision, lost no time in ordering the foreman to stop work and tear down the stands they had already put up, saying: "If Suzanne and Helen do not meet here in the singles, we already have plenty of accommodations."

The announcement that Suzanne had definitely decided not to play in the Nice singles cast gloom over the thousand spectators watching Miss Wills play today. The American girl disposed of Miss Eileen Bennett, of England, 6-2, 6-2, in the semi-finals for the duke of Connaught's gold cup. As she walked off the courts Helen said: "I am sorry to hear of Mlle. Lenglen's poor health. I hope she recovers sufficiently to play in June. I have plenty of time. I feel better than I ever have."

When pressed for a further statement, all she would say was: "It is not for me to comment on Mlle. Lenglen's decision."

Dr. Roger Castelli, who has attended Suzanne in recent years, declared: "I take entire responsibility for my patient's decision. It is not a question of tennis with me, or world championships, but merely one of safeguarding health. Should she change her mind and play at Nice, she does so against my advice. I refuse to assume responsibility for the consequences."

When seen by the Associated Press correspondent at her home in Nice tonight, Suzanne, speaking as if she meant it, said: "My decision is irrevocable. I am not at the back and revocable. I am not at the beck and need rest and I will take it. I will meet Miss Wills either at Paris or Wimbledon, preferably the latter, as I favor grass courts.

"I am sure Miss Wills is not responsible for the noisy publication surrounding us. They can say I am afraid to meet her; let them. Those who know me intimately are convinced that I am not. I have proved it. When my time comes I will meet defeat smilingly and with a word of congratulation for the victor—but it will not be thus this year."

Despite the official announcements of both the Nice club and Mlle. Lenglen, there are many here who believe the match will take place. They feel that Suzanne, if she is in any sort of physical form, will play for her father's sake. As secretary of the Nice Tennis club, he occupies a villa built out of funds appropriated by the club, for general improvement of the courts and clubhouse. The club now is in debt for more than a million francs which, it has been reiterated, could be cleared by the receipts of a match between the American and French champions.

The tennis displayed by Miss Wills today was not up to the game she has played the last few weeks. She started listlessly against Miss Bennett and was down 3 to 2 in the first set. Then, with the determination which characterizes her when she is threatened, she ran off four games and won the set.

Again in the second set she was trailing 2 to 1, but soon had her heavy forehand drive working against Miss Bennett's weak backhand, winning five straight games, the set and the match.

TIGER FLOWERS TAKES MIDDLEWEIGHT TITLE FROM GREB IN FAST FIGHT

NEW YORK, Feb. 26—(AP)—Harry Greb, three year king of the middleweights, was dethroned tonight by the sensational Tiger Flowers of Atlanta, Ga., the first negro to hold the championship of the division in history. Flowers' victory came through a judges' decision at the end of a 15-round bout in Madison Square Garden witnessed by 18,000 persons.

Greb, to newspapermen at the ringside, was not himself. Appearing drawn and nervous at the start, but Flowers was in excellent condition, with a confidence that was not to be denied. Very seldom did the famous "windmill" onslaught of the great Pittsburgh battler appear to worry his challenger, one set-back for the negro coming in the fourth when Greb battered him to all corners of the ring and another in thirteenth. The Tiger, veteran of many encounters, his recent record marred only by two knockouts at the hands of the light heavyweight from Bridgeport, Conn., Jack Delaney, last winter, fought a steady, workmanlike battle throughout, a right hand slap introduced at the beginning of each round seeming to worry the champion. Flowers had the reach and with right foot forward he presented a style difficult for any boxer to fathom.

Boxing critics argued that the margin obtained by Flowers was too small for a title to change hands although it was generally admitted that the negro had won under the rules of the New York State Athletic commission which provides that all bouts must be decided by rounds gained. At the end both appeared to have been little damaged in the fray although each had gashes over the left eyes from jabs in the early rounds.

Continual holding by Greb after the ninth round may have influenced the judges to some extent in their decision and at several points it drew the loud criticism of the crowd. Flowers at times complained that the champion was using unfair tactics in pulling his head down for a blow but Gunboat Smith, former heavyweight boxer, who refereed the contest, would not heed.

In the opinion of newspapermen at the ringside Flowers captured six of the rounds, Greb five, and four were even, the negro having a comparatively narrow margin. What Flowers thought at the end of the bout is indicated in his actions when he mistook the plea of the announcer for silence to mean that the judges had declared a draw. He ran to the middle of the ring all smiles and was heading for Greb to shake hands when his second spilled him back.

Then it was some time before Joe Humphreys, veteran caller of programs, could announce: "The winner and new world's——" but the crowd needed no more and Humphreys' voice was drowned in the uproar. A new champion had been crowned and an enthusiastic sport public swarmed to the ring to congratulate. Greb seemed stunned by the verdict and looked about at the judges and referee but he said nothing, shook hands with his conqueror unsmilingly, then turned to the ropes and glared straight ahead. After several minutes he accepted his bathrobe and crawled through the ropes without the title which he had defended long and well.

Walk Miller, manager of the Tiger, said after the battle that his man would have made a much better showing if Greb had not used his holding tactics. Flowers was so excited that he was unable to explain his feelings. "Yes, yes," he laughed and that was all.

Total paid attendance for the bout was 16,311 and the gross receipts $105,134.70. It is estimated that Greb received $37,500 for his share while the new champion collected about $12,500.

WINDHAM HIGH BEATS PLAINFIELD TEAM EASILY

(Special to the Bulletin)

WILLIMANTIC, Feb. 26.—Not allowing Plainfield High basketball team to score a single point on field baskets the Windham High basketball warriors added another victory to their unbroken list here tonight winning by a score of 21 to 4. Plainfield's four points were scored onfour fouls. Coach Callaghan's charges were in fine fettle and Plainfield found that its team could do but little against the attack of the local five. Windham played a nice guarding game and the Plainfield attack was smothered before it fairly was under way.

J. Nichols and Saba featured for Windham with three field goals and one foul baskets each. The Windham coach used practically every man on his squad to give them a little workout.

In the class game the Sophomores trimmed the Freshmen who were their nearest rivals for class honors. The score was 25 to 16.

FAST BOUTS SLATED FOR WESTERLY NEXT TUESDAY

(Special to The Bulletin.)

WESTERLY, R. I., Feb. 26.—Another fast and, according to the line-up interesting boxing show will take place at the Lorraine Community club on Tuesday, March 2. In the main bout Tom Hartley, Watch Hill Coast Guard, is going to step over the six round route with Frank Burdick, another local boy with a hard wallop. Frank has not been doing much lately with the mitts but a month of hard and fast training has put him in fine shape. On the other hand, Tom has proven his speed by his last encounter with Micky Furey, the 170 pound champion from the Sub Base and is all set to meet and mix with the best of them. Therefore, a real scrap is looked for in the main bout.

The semi-final will bring together Kid Searles of the Sub Base and our local 130 pounder, Young DeLallo. Both these boys have met some fast company lately and have pulled through on the big end. Unless something unforeseen takes place, it is going to be difficult to pick the best man until the final bell.

The other four bouts are all local boys that are well known and liked by the fans as they always give some real action, especially Young Bruno, who is booked to meet Young Pancho, the hard hitting finish from Bradford. Some of the old timers say he will need the hard wallop and many flashes as he is up against a tough customer.

EDDIE PLANK'S FUNERAL WILL BE HELD TODAY

GETTYSBURG, Pa., Feb. 26—(AP)—Arrangements for the funeral of Eddie Plank, once famous Major league baseball pitcher, were completed tonight.

Public services will be held at three o'clock tomorrow afternoon after the body lies in state for two hours at the First Presbyterian church.

Representatives of the American and National leagues are expected here for the public services. Interment will be private in Evergreen cemetery.

Today two rooms in the Plank home overflowed with floral tributes from former associates of the famous Philadelphia Athletics moundsman.

MEHLHORN AND HAMPTON LEAD IN FLORIDA OPEN

TAMPA, Fla., Feb. 26—(AP)—Wild Bill Mehlhorn of Chicago and Harry Hampton, of Key West, Fla., head the field at the end of the first day of the Florida open golf championship which started here today with scores of 138 each for the 36 holes.

Y. M. H. A. JUNIORS TAKE MEASURE OF J. C. TIGERS

The Y. M. H. A. Jrs. added another scalp to their long list of victims when they defeated the Jewett City Tigers at Bijou hall, Jewett City, Friday evening, by the score of 31 to 23. It was a nip and tuck battle practically all the way, the count at half time being tied at 17 all.

The luminaries for the losers were Gilbert and Durda, while practically all of the winners played well, the local outfit exhibiting a wonderful passing game.

The lineup for the winners was: Henschel, center, Capt.; forwards Sharran, Tiger and Schwartburg; guards, Oguinick and Sackowitz. Bruckner ably officiated as sub.

Wednesday evening on the Y. M. H. A. floor, the Taftville Terriers were defeated by the score of 35 to 27.

Next Wednesday evening at the Y. M. H. A. floor, the Jrs. will clash with the Acme five of this city.

PONTIAC

"CHIEF OF THE SIXES"

$825

Coach or Coupe, at factory

General Motors' New Six is here!

GENERAL MOTORS now presents through its Oakland division the New Pontiac Six—the first six-cylinder car it has ever named and sponsored from the original design.

Representing the supreme embodiment of the corporation's almost limitless resources, this new Six is destined to compel a complete revision of existing ideas in motor car value.

The Pontiac Six is not another of the so-called "revolutionary" cars.

It is simply and solely a car of high quality developed to dominate a definite market . . . and as such represents an achievement no less significant, no less unprecedented, no less epochal than the invention of the first six-cylinder engine.

In the Pontiac Six you are offered a new order of beauty—that grace of line and balanced proportion characteristic only of Fisher craftsmanship. You are offered precisely the enduring body construction that is used on cars selling for $2,000 or more, finished in rich Duco colors.

You are offered a roadability of extraordinary scope—exhilarating power for hills, refreshing agility in traffic, a maximum speed you will use only in emergencies.

Add to this new order of beauty and this performance of unprecedented brilliance, the equally important matter of accessory equipment, and the preponderance of Pontiac value becomes literally irresistible—

—for the Pontiac Six comes equipped with full balloon cords, nickeled radiator, Fisher VV windshield, automatic windshield cleaner, indirectly illuminated instrument panel, rear vision mirror, high-speed window regulators and other important essentials to pride of ownership.

The Pontiac Six is now on display in our salesrooms. Demonstrations may be arranged for. We not only invite you to see this newest creation of General Motors at the earliest possible moment—we urge you to come prepared for a new and unique experience—for here at last is the Six you have always wanted . . . . at a price so unexpectedly low that only General Motors could possibly achieve it.

The Pontiac Six, companion car to the Oakland Six, is built and distributed by the

DELANEY MATCHED WITH ROSENBLOOM FOR MARCH 22

NEW YORK, Feb. 26.—(AP) — Jack Delaney, hard hitting light heavyweight, was matched today for a 10-round contest with Maxey Rosenbloom of New York at Philadelphia, March 22. At the same time it was announced that Rosenbloom's scheduled match in Boston March 19 with Tiger Flowers has been postponed two weeks at the request of Flowers.

AGGIE FROSH QUINTET TO PLAY R. I. STATERS

(Special to The Bulletin.)

STORRS, Feb. 26.—The Connecticut Aggie freshmen basketball team will met the Rhode Island State yearlings at Kingston, R. I., tomorrow in what will be the first of a two-game series. Starting for the Aggies will be Captain White and Anderson, forwards; Tarling, center; Ellovich and Dall, guards.

SAM RICE WINS ANNUAL GOLF TOURNEY AT HOT SPRINGS

HOT SPRINGS, Ark., Feb. 26.—(AP)—Sam Rice, outfielder of the Washington American league club, won the annual Washington anniversary golf tournament at the Hot Springs golf and Country Club today, defeating J. G. Stickney, of St. Louis, former Missouri amateur champion, 4 and 3 in the 18 hole finals.

The Preliminaries

K. O. Phil Kaplan, New York middle weight, scored a technical knockout over Mickey Rockson, of California, in the fourth round of a ten-round semi-final match. The referee stopped the fight after one minute and 59 seconds of the round with Rockson bleeding badly and hopelessly outclassed.

Kaplan floored Rockson with the first punch, jumping out of his corner and landing with his left. Rockson came up immediately without a count. Twice again in the opening round Rockson went down under the punishment which Kaplan handed.

Rockson scaled 161 1-2 when the fighters weighed in at the commission this afternoon despite the fact that the contracts called for 160 pounds.

Rather than accept Rockson's weight forfeit, Kaplan's manager insisted that Rockson make the weight. He was sent to the baths and weighed in at four o'clock at 160 1-4. This weakened him and accounted somewhat for his poor showing tonight. Kaplan weighed 158.

Johnny Filucci, of New York, won a judges' verdict over Frankie Lagona (Midget Kilburn), of Philadelphia, in a four-round bout. Lagona weighed 128 1-2.

Dick Conlon, of Altoona, Pa., won the decision over Jose Kaufman, of New York in a six-rounder. Kaufman substituted for Ruby Goldstein when the latter was taken ill last night. Both weighed 136.

In a four-round emergency bout, Tony Travers, of New Haven, Conn., and Eddie McLaughlin, of New York, fought a draw.

The men are welterweights.

Boston College Has 32-Game Schedule

NEWTON, Mass., Feb. 26.—(AP)—Boston college has thirty two games on its baseball schedule for the coming season, it was announced today. A southern trip during easter vacation and two holiday dates with Holy Cross are included.

LOCAL "Y" BOYS WIN FROM WILLIMANTIC ATHLETES

One of the season's most interesting local athletic contests took place yesterday, when the younger gym members of the Norwich and Willimantic Y. M. C. A.'s engaged in a dual meet, the locals defeating the Thread City boys by a single point, the score being 54-53. More than the usual interest was manifested in the competition and the young athletes worked hard to land the victory for their associations. Some good records were made in the contest, with Lynch and Burke starring for the local Y'ers while Ashton and Macomber led in points for the losers.

The events were as follows:

Standing Broad Jump—Babbitt 1st, 7 3 1-2; Bogue, Vallin (N)

Standing Broad Jump—(heavy class) Burke 1st, 7.11; Lynch, Ryan (N).

Chinning Bar—(lightweights) Anthony (W) 16 times; Hasting (N), Whelden (N).

Chinning Bar—(heavyweights) Macomber 16 times; Simmons, White (W).

Potato Race—(lightweights) Ashton (W), Anthony (W), Babbitt (N).

Potato Race—(heavyweights) Lynch (N), Simmons, White (W).

Basketball Shooting—(Lightweights) Ashton, Hibberd, Whiton (W).

Basketball Shooting—(heavyweights) White, Chenuitt, Cooper (W).

Basketball Free Throws—(lightweight) Tibbet (W); Rocke (N); Barrille (N); Ashton (W) tied for third.

Basketball Free Throws—(heavyweights) Lynch (N); Macomber (W) tied for first; Henchel, Burke (N).

Bar Snap—(lightweights) Lambert, Gillis, Dickerman (N).

Bar Snap—(heavyweights) Lynch, Burke (N); Macomber (W).

Another meet is being planned for the near future for the Willimantic association, when the events will consist of swimming activities and for which it is expected there will be some close and exciting competition.

Getting Old

As getting old is thinking back
Along life's winding, dusty track
And picking out a place or two
Where laughter was and memory grew;

If it is living bygone joys,
Recalling smiling girls and boys
You played with once, and wondering how
They are, and also where, right now;
Repeating tales you often told,
Then truly I am getting old.

If getting old is pondering o'er
The volume of what's gone before,
And walking hand in hand again
With pretty Nellie down the lane,
Or swimming in your favorite pool
With all your playmates after school,
Hearing glad voices, long since stilled,
When every day was laughter-filled,
Finding the past now tipped with gold,
Then it must be I'm getting old.

If getting old is looking on
To where the friends you've loved have gone,
And feeling God is holding you
Closer than as He used to do;
Talking and walking with you more,
Showing you things you missed before
When blindly as a youth you ran:
If it's to glimpse His larger plan
And catch the purpose Heaven must hold,
Then surely I am getting old.

Baby

Where did you come from, baby dear?
Out of the everywhere into here.

Where did you get those eyes so blue?
Out of the sky as I came through.

What makes the light in them sparkle and spin?
Some of the starry spikes left in.

Where did you get that little tear?
I found it waiting when I got here.

What makes your forehead so smooth and high?
A soft hand stroked it as I went by.

What makes your cheek like a warm white rose?
I saw something better than anyone knows.

Whence that three-cornered smile of bliss?
Three angels gave me—at once— a kiss.

Where did you get this pearly ear?
God spoke, and it came out to hear.

Where did you get those arms and hands?
Love made itself into bonds and bands.

Feet, where did you come, you darling things?
From the same box as the cherub's wings.

How did they all just come to be you?
God thought about me, and so I grew.

But how did you come to me, you dear?
God thought about you, and so I am here.

The Prisoner's Song

Oh! I wish I had some one to love me,
Some one to call me their own!
Oh! I wish I had some one to live with,
'Cause I'm tired of living alone.

Please meet me tonight in the moonlight
Please meet me tonight all alone;
For I have a sad story to tell you
It's a story that's never been told.

I'll be carried to the new jail tomorrow
(I'm leaving my darling alone!)
With the cold prison walls all around me
And my head on a pillow of stone.

Now I have a good ship on the ocean,
All mounted with silver and gold,
And before my poor darling would suffer
That ship would be anchored and sold.

If I had the wings of an angel
Over these prison walls I would fly,
And I'd fly to the arms of my darling,
And there I'd be willing to die.

GREETINGS FROM SHAMROCK

Dear Social Corner Editor and Sisters: Will try and write once in 1926. What a terrible month we have had so far. Guess the ground hog saw his shadow this time (or something worse). What a nice full page we had last Saturday in the paper.

Iola: I can see you and Mr. Iola doing cross word puzzles. Why haven't you been over to see me? Wasn't Mr. I in the fiddling contest?

Merry Farmer Boy: Glad your hubby is getting along so good and meant to call you up but it slips by me.

Papa's Boy: How is the little boy getting along?

Uncle Clarlie: Where are you? Ah ways supposed lions roared once in a while.

Hoping all the sick ones will be better. When we can all get out on the hard ground we will all feel better.
Yours as ever,
SHAMROCK.

ASKS FOR GAMES TO PLAY

Dear Corneritos: For years I have enjoyed your most interesting letters and home aids. Hubby likes the poetry. May I join you? I know who a few of the members are, but do not know the facts regarding the meetings.

May I take advantage of your generosity and ask a favor? Would like to know of a few simple games to be played by married couples at a home party.

My best wishes to everyone.

HELPING THOSE IN NEED

Dear Cornerites: Of late I have noticed a number of our old writers? Names appear and it seems nice to hear from them once more. We certainly have had some real old New England weather since February has come in. But day by day nearer real old spring comes to us, then we will forget about those terrible snow banks and being shut off from the out side world for three days at a time. Yet it gave us a chance to wonder if there were not some worse off than we. During one of these recent spells news came to my ears of a family where the whole five were ill, and in much need of food and in fact almost everything, so I informed my near neighbor and she joined with me in helping. She found two pair of good shoes that her children had outgrown and two girls' dresses and I from my stack of bedquilts took one, and packed a box of groceries and we started out on foot over some snow banks and at last we reached the family and found them some up and some abed but a little on the road to recovery. We visited about an hour and while there in came a woman, who brought a pair of overshoes along, so on our way home we decided that we had each done some good and if we looked around a little we could find enough right here among our own villages and we might remove quite a little from our store room. The other day I found a family of five struggling hard to make both ends meet and only one working on three days a week. The father had struggled all winter to and from work with out and overcoat. So I went to my storeroom and found one that was in perfect shape and luckily it fitted him fine. So one more heart was made a little lighter. Like Rural Aunty I have no time to make over so I will pass them on to some poor soul, who I hope and I know will be benefitted.

Cakkie: I am glad you liked the cake and am very grateful to you for letting me know. Several outsiders have tried it and report very favorably.

Balsam Fir: Many thanks for remembering me on my birthday, and the laundry bav was a dream, also very useful indeed. When I look at it I shall remember it as the hand work of Balsam Fir up in Dry Mills, Me.

I now will ring off and give space to those who can write something more interesting than I have.
With best wishes to all.
ROCHIE.

IN LAWS

Dear Editor and Social Corner Members: I have no calendar to thank that unknown friend for but the thrill and joy of receiving my prize dollar still lingers very pleasantly in my memory.

I have read with interest the letters written on in-laws.

I am an in-law and lived in the home of older in-laws for ten years. When I entered the home of the older in-laws I felt this is not my own home, that I am not to be my own queen at present and that the older in-laws wishes are to be thought of first. I also resolved that I would not be responsible for any difficulties that would make trouble between, the two families, above all I tried to practice the Golden Rule. I am quite sure that by practicing these mottoes, the older in-laws recognized the peaceful attitude felt toward them and tried to make life as happy as possible for me. When God called them to rest from their labor, grief and sadness filled our hearts. Great was the loss. We felt that we had done what we could, the last stone had been turned with nothing to regret. Some in-laws visit once a week or perhaps once a month or even once a year for a few hours at a time and get on beautifully. But to live in the same family year in and year out, 24 hours per day is quite another story.

Let the problems be what they may we daughter-in-laws do not have to feel as some of our maiden sisters perhaps do, who have refused several choice opportunities to become in-laws.

After several years of fruitless waiting and failing to find the perfect man, who is yet to be found, she exclaims.

"Oh, for a lodge in some old widower's nest."
Best wishes to all.
BUFFALO.

LOOKING AHEAD

Dear Social Corner: Snow, not very beautiful at the present time, but plenty of it at the door, also water, ice and slush.

But everything has an ending and soon the grass will be green. And how we will appreciate the warm sun and feel as if life was good after all!

Mr. Editor: I thank you for the slip. I am going to keep the money for a time of need, for no one can tell what is before us.

Fan Tan: Where art thou? You are so near and yet so far. If you are stuck in a snow bank give a Social Corner yell and some one will come and help you out. I am sorry to say I can't for I am snowed in but spring is on the way, so I live in hopes to get out and I am going to walk in the middle of the road for the rest of the year.

Silver Locks: I have danced with "All Ready Mr. Cady" and we were a sight. I five foot two and he ten feet — as it seemed to me at that time.

Here is a verse by E. A. Guest on getting married, and hope all who are expecting to read it.

And no man can say,
What awaits down the way,
What of anguish or sorrow,
Or loss you may bear.

What tests of the spirit,
May come to you there
But its certain not always
Your skies will be fair.

What is it that we often see made, but never see it after it is made? A noise.

What is that which no one wishes to have and no one wishes to lose? A bald head.

My sympathy to the sick and shut ins.

PISCES.

GREETINGS AND THANKS FROM TWICE TWENTY

Dear Editor and Social Corner Members: I have been very slow in returning thanks for the various things received from you, but my thanks are very sincere just the same and now that I have got started hope to include the entire list. First for the many cards and letters received during the holidays. It is a great pleasure to know I have made so many new friends just by becoming one of our large family.

I want the Social Corner Member who sent me the dainty little calendar to know that I enjoy looking at it every day and wishing we had the grandfather clock, spinning wheel and the fireplace with its various trimmings in the real articles in our home. Thank you, editor, for starting me off on the New Year with a prize. It was very pleasing to me. Thanks to all who remember that I am still having birthdays although the 40 year mark was passed a long time ago. Last but not least am thankful for all the nice letters we have to read each week end.

Deliah Deal: My sympathy goes out to you in the loss of your dear husband. Hope you have the strength and courage to carry you through your great trial.

Foxglove: Sorry to know your husband is not well. Trust the rest and southern climate will restore him to good health again.

Whirlwind: Are you whirling to "all ready Mr. Cady" dances this winter? Will write you later and tell all about the picnic we hope to have at O. B. in the early summer.

Last Rose of Summer: It was a pleasure to read your very interesting letter. What has become of Elsie A.? Am wondering who Grandma of Twin Oak Cottage might be.

Primrose: A long time between visits isn't it?

Ino and Uno: Hope you are enjoying raiding the letters of the sisters in Florida. Sisters, you sure are escaping some good winter weather.

Sassy: Tried your fudge recipe and find it fine. I use part white sugar with the brown as I am not especially fond of brown sugar.

Here is a nice
Walnut Custard Pie: Beat 2 eggs, add 1-2 cup sugar and a little salt and pour on two cups of hot milk, add 1-2 teaspoon vanilla and 1-2 cup of finely ground English walnuts. The nuts will rise to the top and form a tender crust to the custard. Pecans or almonds may be used.

YOUNG PEOPLE

Dear Social Corner Friends: Persis' subject for discussion, "What is the Matter with Young People," is a most important topic because it is only in human affairs that we still do things in the primitive way. The mental and social development of the child always has and always will depend on the kind of teaching the child receives.

We often hear some one speak of the superiority of people in former generations, but this is not true. We know that there has always been the same kinds of wrong doing and the same kinds of worthless and criminal persons—helping oneself to whatever one fancies in just the animal way.

It is only in teaching the young and in our attitude toward criminals that we are still living in primitive times.

We still expect our child will grow up all right without mental or social care and have continued the school as just a place to memorize, the same as when primitive conditions in the home naturally did furnish the child some chance to live the life of a useful adult.

In most living conditions we have reached the scientific age.

For the last few years public instruction in physical care has placed the physical treatment in the scientific schedule.

It would have seemed easy to have included mental and social welfare in the list also and now to have that generally understood too. All must be considered together, mental unbalance or failure in social development, not knowing how to get along with others, will spoil the life as much as lack of physical strength.

Every child needs to live his life in a normal way.

If it were not so serious it would be the most laughable thing to see and hear the absurd ways and ideas that people have with children.

The child has the same mind that he will always have, when does one think he will turn into a person? But they allow the child to behave in an impossible way. Every child has to be taught the same ideas, to take care of his health by eating and doing the right things, to be truthful and honest, to be reasonable, to get along pleasantly with others, to change his ideas constantly for more advanced ideas.

To understand a child just consider him a real, regular, ordinary normal person from the first day of his life.

An important trait of human nature is that people live in the herd—think and talk and do the same ideas and things.

To bring into use new conditions and new ideas we have to present them to everybody—make it the fashion to think and do in the new way. Everybody fell for the new system of physical care for infants.

In the same way will have to be brought into general use the mental and social care.

The old trait has prevented advancement in educational methods. Many writers and educators are trying to advance right ideas, but too many otherwise prominent people are still advancing the wrong ideas. Prominent men, who know no more about child development than they do about mechanical affairs could not be prevailed upon to write an article on inventions for fear of the mortifying ridicule their wrong ideas would bring to them, will write false ideas on child training and their articles will be printed and read and quoted with respect.

Parents bring up children to be incapable because they were brought up in the same ignorant way, or the parents may be superior people and think that all their superior ways will be inherited by their children.

If a child learns right ideas he knows them, but no child knows them without learning them.

Do you know what usually happens when school children were transported? The larger roughs pick on the small boy, pull off his cap and mittens and rough house every time.

Would a grown person like to be treated so, and what kind of a citizen will the rough grow up to be? Probably the tough who will rob and shoot some one. We raise our own criminals, the wild animals of the herd and as long as we do we must expect to suffer from their vicious habits.

GLORIFIED GINGERBREAD

Dear Social Corner Sisters: Well my month of February is coming to a close and I have not written this month yet so will try and get a letter in for Saturday.

We have had some great snow storms and lots of funny weather, warm one day and the next freeze sun. Well never mind there are better days coming and let us all hope we will be glad to see the spring with the nice green grass and the first spring flowers. I hope at our next meeting we will have a fine one and see a lot of new faces shining in and a nice pleasant day.

Well I am going to send in the recipe that was asked for in the Corner the other Saturday and hope you all will like it. Here it is:

Glorified Gingerbread: 1 cup sugar, 1 cup flour, 1-2 cup shortening, mix like pie crust. Take out 1 cup. To that remaining in bowl, add 1 egg, 1 cup sour milk with 1 teaspoon soda dissolved in it, salt, 3 tablespoons molasses, 1-2 teaspoon cloves, 1 teaspoon cinnamon, 1 cup flour. Beat well and pour in the pan. Then add mixture in cup scattered in crumbs over the top. Bake in moderate oven.

Let me know how this recipe is liked by the sisters and I will try and send you some different ones later.

Lois: Where are you? Wake up and come to the Corner next month.

Please Mr. Editor I would like a pin.
AUNT MARY JANE (Club No. 2.)

LIKED THE OLD DAYS

Dear Social Corner Sisters and Friends: First I wish to thank A Social Corner Member for the lovely calendar. Some one is surely thoughtful to remember the numerous writers.

The ground hog did not make a mistake this year as we are having real winter weather, but how the times have changed since I was young. Then a snow storm was welcomed with delight for it meant straw rides, coasting and sleighing parties; now all you hear is "this miserable snow!" and no one is happy until they can get their auto's going again. I enjoy the modern improvements but would it not be well if we could go back to some of the customs of 40 or 50 years ago? Then we did not depend on the butcher, baker and grocer to come to the house two or three times a week, but always bought a barrel of both bread and pastry flour, also a barrel of sugar and other things in proportion, put down our own pork, so would not starve if we did not get to town for a week. Now folks are so dependent on having everything brought to their door that we are fast losing our independence by the easy way of living in these days.

Don't Worry gave such a fine account of Aunt Sarah's Social Corner meeting that I will only say we all certainly had a fine time, was sorry not to see Pesky Anne, but Aunt Sarah has partly promised to have a church lawn social on her lawn when the roses bloom, so perhaps by that time Pesky Anne can be there.

I always enjoy reading Iola's letters. In speaking of apples how many of the sisters have seen the Mike apple? or have heard its history? I have not seen any for many years. We did not have a tree but one of our neighbors did and the apples always interested me to try and find one that did not have the drop of blood as they called it but I never found one yet without the little spot of red.

Grandma Gray: Your son-in-law has promised to have his family to call some day and hope you will be included in the number.

Sister Rachel, (Malvina's daughter) is a patient in the Hartford hospital where she had had both knees operated upon for floating cartilages and has suffered much pain and I am sure a post card shower would cheer her. Address: Miss Myra Geer, Hartford Hospital, Hartford, Conn.

Best wishes to all.
DORINDA.

STORY OF THE PRISONER'S SONG

Dear Social Corner Editor and Members: Guy Massey who composed the Prisoner's Song was a World war veteran. He was twice cited for bravery in France. Two decorations were awarded him. At one time he captured a German outpost that was pouring a rain of death on American soldiers. Another time he led an attack that carried the Yanks to a bloody victory. After the war he appeared as a navy entertainer and later went on the vaudeville stage. Massey enlisted when war was first declared. At that time he was keeping company with a girl in Brooklyn, New York. After returning from overseas, he found her love had grown cold, and Massey was unable to win it back, but he couldn't forget the girl in New York and one night when his ship was anchored on the Hudson, Massey went absent without leave, but the Brooklyn girl again refused to renew her courtship and when Massey returned to his ship he was courtmartialed and put in prison for six months. It was while imprisoned he wrote the song which made him famous. The girl who went back on him was his inspiration. Massey died recently from results of wounds received overseas. He was sent to a base hospital at Fort San Houston, Texas. Was there but a few days when he died.

PAPER BAGS NOT ALL ALIKE

Dear Social Corner Friends and Editor: I wish to send thanks for my Pin. I had a nice visit with you, Strawberry. Did you forget to put in how much sugar to use for the pie? I could not see where it said sugar. Please let me know as I want to make it.

Thanks, Maple Leaf, for my card. It was very pretty and the only one I received this year.

I read the letter Cally Lily wrote about the paper bag. I did the same as she till one day when I picked up the money I must have dropped one of the pennies. I did not look but gave him the change. He went downstairs but was soon back. He said you are one penny short. I said, "Why?"

He then said, "You did not give me my 3 pennies over the paper money. I looked at him and then found the penny where it had dropped off the book, so I gave it to him. I had done that to a lot of them and one boy used to throw it upstairs in the rain. It did not pay me to be kind to my paper boy but they are not all alike I know.

Ora: Hope you will be at the Corner dinner the 3rd of March. We will guess. Lo knows. Lo had a good time while at your house. Have you finished your mat? Will try to have the pieces of silk for you. Don't forget to come, and all the rest, as a good time is in store for all. Will say so long and thanks again for my pin.
MITTIE.

BATTLING SNOWDRIFTS

Dear Cornerites: It seems good to once more see bare ground if only in spots. I have seen autos battling through the snow drifts and I wonder if the occupants enjoy themselves more than we of other days when oxen were used, sometimes several pairs, to open the roads for traffic, and after good paths had been made the horses with the light sleighs would travel fast enough to throw snow balls each side of the sleigh. In those days accidents were not as today, just a little spill but no broken bones and the sleighing parties when the sleds were filled to capacity, what jolly loads they were and long to be remembered!

They tell me women are smoking in these days, when we are supposed to be more enlightened than in a former generation. I trust I will never encounted one for I fear I would speak my mind too freely. It looks bad to see the gentlemen high school teachers using the weed so freely.

Are there no teachers to be found who will set a better example to their pupils?

Received my pin; many thanks for same.
T. O. T.

NEVER TO BE FORGOTTEN REUNIONS

Dear Members of the Social Corner: It does not seem quite as many years ago as it really is, that on Feb. 22 a well known man of H. used to celebrate this day by giving a dance in the town hall, being his birthday, while tables were set in the school room below. Uncle Hen as he was sometimes called, cooked the oysters while his wife did her part supplying pies and cake for the dancers who came from the nearby towns. Randolf Bullard who passed away in Putnam last week usually furnished the music and Gurdon Cady did the prompting. As this dance was held annually for many years it became to some of us like a reunion, as there were eleven children in his family he being the middle child of the number and generally some of the nine who grew to manhood and womanhood made an effort to be present. Among the children were twin girls who waltzed to perfection. We did not think then the good times would ever end, but the promoters are all gone and the old homestead sold last fall. They have taken everything out of the house, chairs, tables, bedsteads, bedding, carpets, curtains, from the windows. They think they have taken everything but no one can take what I remember, sitting here in the twilight—the loved hours during the holidays and birthdays when we gathered there, when the kitchen was fragrant with spices and the dining room rang with laughter when the two brothers followed each other around the table with leg bone of turkey in the hand of each watching their chance to stir up each others tea with the "drumstick." When the act was accomplished the participants were or seemed to be well satisfied. It was an annual event and the mother, whose husband was killed by blowing up a log and she left with nine children youngest three weeks old at the time, lived to see them with homes of their own excepting the one in St. Louis.

It was amusing to hear them tell as they recalled their trick on each other in their younger days. Mother helped out too. I was privileged to go in and over the house last fall, and I thought people cannot take from our memory the happy hours spent in the now empty house. But I am pleased that with the coming summer the house will be improved and occupied by people of a younger generation but whose ancestors for three or four generations were always agreeable to the occupants in the sixties.

Thank you Persis, when weather is better may call.

Kochie: Tried your cake and liked it.

Foxglove—Certainly hope your husband is better.

INFLUENCE WASHINGTON

Dear Sisters of the Social Corner: Today (Monday) is the national holiday in observance of the anniversary birthday of one of the greatest leaders in American history. Although it requires but six years more to complete two centuries since the advent of that life, and 126 years since his passing to the Great Beyond his name is still so familiar, in every walk and turn throughout this country. Many are the towns and villages bearing the name of Washington throughout the United States, as well as the honor given the capital city.

Even streets and avenues are common as we enter cities in traveling about. From pages of history, we learn something of the character, and the ability which was the endowment of his successful career. There are many quotations of his words and deeds, during his private life, that are both interesting and amusing, whether they can be strictly verified is not essential, so far as the moral lesson is concerned. The story of the cherry tree has been sustained, and also doubted. Not to be guilty, of ever having uttered a falsehood has been the model idea, instilled into the minds of young Americans. We can hope these things are true, even if we fail to find actual proof. One incident of which I have read concerning the courtesy of Washington's manner towards others is worthy of consideration. It is said, that Washington, in company with a friend, was one day riding out along a southern country road. They were about to pass a colored man, who was walking. The latter politely bowed, and smiled at Washington and in recognition the great leader lifted his hat. His friend expressed some surprise at this response to which Washington explained, "I would not be a less gentleman than he."

There are many at the present time. We can find them everywhere, who when circumstances have elevated them to socalled higher conditions have dropped their courtesy of their own free will and they have become the less rather than the "great."

A slight error in the signature of my letter of last week. The Beautiful Snow. I would like to correct from Jeannie which should have been JENNIE.

HOME BUILDERS

Dear Social Corner Sisters: This is such a pleasant day that I wish to go out doors and enjoy the fine air, but will write this letter first, as I hope that I may help some shut in sister to enjoy the Corner. The pickles and pie were ready for the February meeting in "Willy" but the weather prevented me from going anywhere for nearly a week.

Mother wishes to thank A Social Corner Member for the pretty calendar which she received for her birthday. It is so pleasant to be remembered, especially when one is 90. She has just finished a rug and is making an apron with a pink crocheted edge. She had a wonderful birthday for which we are so thankful.

Now I will finish the story about labor which I began two months ago.

Men and women like to work under ideal conditions if that is possible. They like to have modern houses, a garden, good schools and churches for their families. A house which is owned by someone else is not thought as much of as one which is planned and worked for by the owner.

Building associations may be of great benefit to home builders and are often connected with manufacturing plants. One firm gives ten per cent of the profits of business to the employes; two-fifths of this goes to the individual workman and three-fifths to their account to support the mutual aid, the retiring and widows fund, to special aid and to pay for educational classes and the library.

The capital of the mutual aid society is used in making loans to the men who build houses for themselves. This plan has greatly increased material and moral progress. The taxes in surrounding towns are so much higher than in this, that it is quite an incentive to move to the town with low taxes and become a land owner.

Some firms set aside one or two per cent of the profits for the purpose of establishing a cooperative store, a kindergarten, a hospital or any other institution needed.

If we do the work we were meant to do, it will forever remain undone.

Best wishes to all.
ROSARY.

SUGGESTIONS FOR SHUTINS

Dear Editor and Corner Sisters: Some one asked suggestions for shutins to do. I will suggest as one thing, if they are not too sick, some games that are interesting, and nice too for the long winter evening, and those making rugs and knitting can keep on with their work just the same. Playing some game will make work seem lighter. For those who have played guessing games, here is one that is a change from I come she come.

The Rhyming Guess. One thinking of a word, announces to the rest of the company some other word with which it rhymes. The other players guessing at the word think of what rhymes with it. (For example, take thread.) One says I am thinking of a word that rhymes with head. Others ask, is it hard or soft or good to eat, white or does it grow or walk, etc? Any question that they think of until it is guessed. One way is to ask each individual and if they fail they pay a forfeit, but that is as you like.

The game of five vowels. A member of the company asks a question of the one on their right. The answer must not include the vowel mentioned by the one who asks the question. For example, Do you like apples? Answer me without an A. Or, where did you go yesterday? Answer me without an E.

Slander. If there are several in the room, one may leave and all the rest say something about the person who went out. For instance, I heard she likes to swim, I heard she had a sore foot, I heard she was cross eyed, etc. The person is asked to come in again and she asks of one what did you hear about me? The one asked says something that she heard some one else say, and, she turns to another and says did you say that about me? If the person last asked did not say that, then that one says so but I heard (mentioning what some one else said) and the one asking the questions keeps on until she gets the one who did say the question asked. Then that one goes out, etc.

Also these Bible games are interesting and help one to be more familiar with the books, etc. One may take a paper and write down several sentences and sayings of some book and have others guess what book those were taken from. Also prophets and other prominent men of the Bible. One may tell of several things they did and have others guess who they are, etc.

Alphabetical Character Guessing. One leaves the room and the others selecting some character, spell out the name giving a letter to each player, who in turn selects another character beginning with the letter received. The one absent enters and asks each one commencing with the one who has the first letters and questions him until his character is guessed and his letter and so on until enough letters are guessed to give a clue to the original character. The player who gave the most information then must go out. Example, the character chosen is Shakespeare. The one entering asks, is your character real or fictious? The one answers with a word the first letter being S, the next H and so on. One may take a person they know and name him or her all the same way which makes it more interesting.

I guess I have sent enough for once to keep you busy for an evening.

Olga: Yes I am thankful sister was ready and it is a comfort to know we shall meet her again sometime where pain and parting are no more.

Sister Barbar: Who is who, give us a clue? I have forgotten several pennames that once knew.

Aunt Jerusha: That is very true, Cricket and I would love to see you.

Jennie: I have heard sister speak of you several times.

Triple E: How are you?
Best wishes to all.
SPRY BIRD.

LIFE A FUNNY PROPOSITION

Dear Corner Sisters: When I read Zany's letter on man in last Saturday's paper it brought to my mind an article that I thought to send in, also on man. Man comes into this world without his consent and leaves it against his will. During his stay on earth his time is spent in one continuous round of contraries and misunderstandings by the balance of our species. In his infancy he is an angel; in his boyhood he is a devil; in his manhood he is everything from a lizard up; in his duties he is a fool, if he raises a family he is a chump; if he raises a small check, he is a thief, and then the law raises the device with him. If he is in politics, he is a grafter and a crook; if he is out of politics, you can't place him as he is an undesirable citizen; if he goes to church he is a hypocrite, if he stays away from church, he is a sinner, and damned; if he donates to foreign missions, he does it for show, if he doesn't he is stingy and a tightwad. When he first comes into the world, everybody wants to kiss him, before he goes out they all want to kick him. If he dies young there was a great future before him; if he lives to a ripe old age, he is simply in the way and living to save funeral expenses. Life is a funny road, but we all like to travel it just the same, even if we are not men. If he is a poor man, he is a poor manager and has no sense. If he is rich, he is dishonest, but considered very smart. This makes life a funny proposition.

Theoda: I was surprised to see such a death toll for the past 12 months. Some of the names I had missed seeing. Thanks for sending them in. I well remember the day you refer too in March years back when you met on Valley street. Aunt Abby and I were there that day and had the little mascot of Club No. 2 with us and I well remember seeing Papa's Boy there with her wee one. It must be eight or nine years ago.

Rural Delivery: Thanks for the pretty views I received.

Silent Partner: I have recently finished piecing a log cabin quilt, but have not lined it yet. Those rising sun quilts are very pretty. I never made one but I have seen them.

Golden Glow: I remain about the same. Yes we like the farm quite well. Do you remember the good times we have had together when you used to be a week end visitor? Do you remember our trip to Ledyard after the angora kitten? Some trip that day and how it did rain. Good thing you or I were not sugar.

E. L. M.: Yes, I am still at the rugs. I guess many men were glad the past two weeks to take off their hats to Dobbin, or else they would be sitting in the snowbanks yet. Thats where old Dobbin has the autos beaten to a frazzle. When you ask them to go they willingly do their best and they never freeze up, balk up and you don't have to feed them on alcohol in order to make them go. We have four and would not give them for the best auto on the market.
CRIMSON RAMBLER.

GREETINGS FROM VESTA

Dear Social Corner Friends: I will try and bring to Wurdy Belle a few feathers and perhaps a flower or two.

Aunty No. 1: I am glad you are not going to move out of town. I don't see you often but it is pleasant to know you are close by.

Truth: I hope you had a pleasant birthday and was well remembered.

I. J. B.: I have got heard from you in a long time. Hope you and hubby are keeping well.

I have a friend (who is not a member of the Social Corner) who has some feather beds which she would like to have made into a mattress. If any of the sisters know where and how to get them done will they answer through the Social Corner page and oblige.

ENDORSES LETTERS BY JEREMY AND PERSIS

Dear Corner Sisters and Editor: I have just finished reading the family letter box and did enjoy it so much. I wonder just how many of us read Jeremy's letter and what we think of it. It is all so true and if there are any of you who have had such a childhood you will realize this is so and also the unjustness of the parents who have so done.

Persis' letter on children is fine too, and although I have none of my own I do think anyone cannot be to careful where the little ones are for we never know how they are going to interpret our words and what we do. That is in what light they will look at us. Whether we see funny or too stern or how. Then too anyone of them might take us for ideal and woe unto us if we should unconsciously have an influence for the bad on them. Maybe if the grown folks were more fair we would have less flappers and cake eaters to criticise and a better ideal of life among us all.

Kitty Lou: Where do you ever get such a lot of knowledge? Your letters are always interesting.

Where have Joan and Thoughtful gone? Has someone carried them away from us all?

Deliah Deal: Am glad you are better and I'm sure you are too. My sympathy goes out to all those that are sick or shut in.

Roxanna Keables: Your experience in the street car sent us here into gales of laughter, although I don't know as you meant it to be funny.

Roberta: I have a pet blue jay that eats under my window every day and he certainly is a jolly fellow with his pretty blue and white coat.

West wishes to all the Corner.
MRS. DAN.

NEVER FAIL CAKE MAKING

I learned under a well known cheff how to make a fine grained cake. Measure your butter, place in baking dish, on this place two tablespoonfuls boiling water, beat until creamy and add sugar, beat this, beat egg whites add them and beat them up with sugar and butter. Sift flour, baking powder, and salt together about three times, then sift your cup full and even it off with your spatula, to one and one-half cups of sifted flour use 1-2 cup of milk if you use 2 eggs, if one egg, 3-4 cup of milk to 1 3-4 cups flour, add beaten yolks last to the beaten mixture, add a little flour and then a little milk, beat well until milk and flour are all beaten in.

When measuring your flour do not jar down as that packs it and makes heavier.

Here are a few discoveries I made in cooking. Sometimes my fishballs, creamed potatoes, etc., were sticky. I discovered I had boiled my potatoes too long, allowing the starch grains to burst. I was taught that potatoes should boil rapidly, but I found potatoes should not boil too rapidly, and remove from the fire as soon as the potatoes can be pierced with a fork. If your pie crust is rubbery when you roll it out, that is if it shrinks back and wrinkles, this is caused by using too much wetting. Use just enough milk to hold it together. A good recipe for your crust is three cups of flour (of course this you want to sift three times) to 1 cup shortening, 1 tablespoon of sugar, 1 teaspoon salt, 1 teaspoon of baking powder. This makes a good pie crust.

Another help of vast importance. I used to always buy my flour by the barrel, our family is small and it was months before it was used. I thought the flour deteriorated with keeping. I found that it would absorb odors as well as dampness. Sometimes my bread would be sticky and acted as if it was half baked, and yet it would be so brown over the top it appeared as if it was baked all through the center. I found that by setting my flour on the back of the stove and letting it dry, it was all right. Now I buy about ten pounds, sometimes 20 pounds at a time, and keep it in an enameled can. I have no further trouble and do not pester my grocer telling him he sells me musty flour.

I want to send you a potato dish that is different from any I have ever seen. Pare 8 medium sized potatoes and with your apple corer make a hole through the potato, boil these in salted water fifteen minutes, take eight sausages and place them in cold water, let them come to a boil, take them right off the stove and drain. Place the sausages in the hole of the potato, grease the potatoes then with the sausage grease that you have skimmed off the top of the liuor that was left in the pan, place these in the oven and bake 30 minutes, thicken the stock left in the pan with flour to eat over the potato. Very nice.
ETHELYN.

CLUB 5 MEETS NEXT WEDNESDAY

Dear Editor and Social Corner Sisters: Here I am to remind you all of the meeting March 3 of Club No. 5 and hope we have a nice day and all can come and have a good time. It seems each meeting we have is better than the other. Was glad to see so many new faces at our last meeting. Many thanks to all who helped to make the day one of so much good cheer and to Wurdy Belle for her wonderful letters which is always full of good cheer and so very interesting. We should all try and write as often as we can so as to swell our page. I enjoy so much reading the different letters for they are all instructive and full of helps. Had a nice letter from Ink who is very well this winter and wishes to be remembered to all the sisters. She is looking forward to meeting with you all when the summer comes. Rutland Vermont is her home and it has been very cold up there with very little snow. I think six inches has been the limit on the level at any one time. I am afraid if they were to see some of the big drifts we have had around here they would think we were having the winter they are used to having, whereas we usually have it so mild. I think King Winter was afraid we were forgetting that we were where they had winters so gave us this one to remind us we were still in the New England states. Winter will soon be gone now and the dear robins and other birds will be here and help us forget it has been cold. A speedy recovery to any who may be sick. Cheer and best wishes for any who may be shut in. Health and success for all and prosperity to our Social Corner sisters.
ALTA (Club No. 5.)

WANTS CLUB 4 MEETING SOON

Dear Members: I meant to have written before but have been shut in with a very severe cold. Am thankful to say I am feeling much better. Well how all you all? I read your nice letters every week and enjoy them very much. If it isn't too late I want to thank the editor for the yellow slip I received some time ago which came as a surprise. I wish I could write something interesting but a little will help to fill up the page. What a bad storm we had. Of late have just about got back to normal again but cheer up spring is on the way and will be here soon but all together we have not had a very bad winter.

We hear from the people down south what nice weather they are having out in their shirt sleeves and picking the vegetables. It is all right for a while in the winter but give me old New England. In the summer time you can't beat it. I was thinking today when I was listening in and hearing a few women what a blessing the radio is. Don't make any differenced what the weather is outside, or the traveling, we get some nice things, to give us something different to think about which does us all good.

Spark Plug: Am glad you have joined the Corner. You will never be sorry to belong to such a jolly company and I will give you a strong invitation to a picnic which I expect is the not far distance.

Cakkie: You reminded me in your letter of a similar case of not being noticed. I was in the church and some one came along and I was all ready to shake hands, which of course I expected she was going to do but do you know she almost crowded by and shook hands with some one else. Perhaps she thought she was dressed a little better. It hurt of course but we must keep right on smiling just the same. Life is too short to notice too much as we go along.

Twice Twenty: Am glad you are thinking of a picnic at Oakland beach some time next summer. I have been there and it is a very nice place. I have thought of something for the entertainment at some meeting to help out, as some one said those who have birthdays during the respective months can do a little for the entertainment.

I hope some sister of Club No. 4 will call a meeting soon. What is the matter with having one at Danielson? Was very glad to see the page so full last week. Let us try and keep it so. Best wishes to all.

TROUBLES OF ADAM RUFFNECK

Hello, Social Cornerers: This is Adam speaking, Station P. D. Q., sort of brother to Eve, who writes about birds and bugs, cats and dogs, and what she sees in the woods. The trouble with Eve is that she has always lived on a paved street before, and when she comes to U. S. A., she saw some ants, working, and it was all off. She remembered that bit in the "Good Book" about going to the ant, thou sluggard, and consider his ways and be wise. And she did, and docs. While it was warm weather one could not keep her in bed, and now it's cold one can't get her out of it. Takes a pet cat with her and I almost have to knock the door down to get her out for breakfast at 11 a.m. My spare time, I mean rib, says it is her astrological aspect that causes it, whatever that is. It's a new one on me. And I thought I knew all about women, same as Solomon did—not. I offered to get a doctor and have it cut out, or off. And the Missis says I am a Adam fool, which is not my name at all. How about that? But I know it's just plain old fashioned laziness, Runs in the family, too, like wood legs, and Scotch wives. Eve will warm up again in spring, like the other emmetts. If you are a cross word puzzler you will have come across that word. If you have not, wait till summer and go into the woods, and the emmetts, or ants will run across you. I can't read, or anything, any more for X word puzzles. I don't do 'em. Not by a long shot! It's the two of 'em. They keep my brain jumping, like the famed gazelle, from crag to crag, answering questions about things from Alaska to Siam, and all stops in between. I'm a sort of "information bureau" Darn it! And I can't enjoy being sick any more at all since they got this cross word stunt every evening. If it doesn't stop I shall have to get cured in self defense.

Speaking of Bugs 'neverything

The bug sharps say there's ten million bugs
Crowling all across the map.
And everything that happens
Is caused by one biting up some chap.
One bug bit Bill, and made him think
That he was born to be a "Cop,"
But he was too far around the middle
And not far enough on top.
His legs were barely long enough
To reach down to the floor
So they wouldn't have him on "The Force."
And Billy felt quite one.

He darned his luck. In Grogans
While buying next mornings paina,
And cussed the "Police Officials"
For hiring beef instead of brains.
He just knew he had the makings
To do a slick detecting job.
And be a holy terror
To those who kill and rob.
He only needed half a chance
To show those flat-foot guys
It is "quality and wits" that are counted
Not just quantity and size.

Then he thought of an advertisement
In some magazine he'd read

WESTERLY

PARTNERSHIP CASE TRIAL RESUMED ON FRIDAY

(Special to The Bulletin)

WESTERLY, R. I., Feb. 26—In the superior court for Washington county Friday morning, the fourth day of the Westerly adjournment of the February term with Associate Justice Arthur B. Sumner on the bench, trial was resumed in the case of LeRoy V. Bell vs. Edwin L. Northup, both of South Kingstown, R. I. This was for the recovery of an alleged balance of amount due for the settlement of a partnership business for the sale of automobile operation of taxis was continued with the plaintiff Bell on the witness stand under cross-examination by Attorney Brennan. The testimony had shown that the dissolution agreement, copies supposedly in duplicate drawn up by Judge James O. Watts of Wakefield, included a payment to Bell of $2400, one-half of the moneys in the possession of the firm and omission of Bell's name in the future by the continuing partner. The claim was made that the defendant had sold Ford automobiles of which the plaintiff through Howard E. Beamer, manager for the Ford Agency, had obtained a listing and that Bell had interviewed such alleged purchasers as Ellsworth Gray, Chester Burke, A. R. Sherman and James E. Tourgee. Witness testified that at the time he also assisted in the building and construction business and sign painting, but outside of the firm.

Louis E. Bell of Wakefield, father of LeRoy, testified to both Bell and Northrup visiting his home to arrange for the dissolution of the partnership, when he stated that Northrup wanted to buy or sell at $2500, within twenty-four hours, or lock up the premises. He said that he was interested in having automobiles on which he held notes insured, or he would save the business closed up in less time.

At 2 o'clock court resumed after the noon recess.

The Friday afternoon session was taken up with witnesses who had purchased automobiles. The case will be continued Monday morning next when additional papers will be put in, the lawyers will make their pleas and Judge Sumner will charge the jury.

In the Friday morning session of the Third District court, Judge Oliver H. Williams read the following:

New suit entered, Thomas H. Barber vs. Dukino Cassagne.

Criminal docket: State, Frank H. Brown, chief of police of Hopkinton, compl't, vs. Harry H. Ullman. Continued one week; State, Thomas E. Brown, chief of police of Westerly, compl't vs. Samuel A. Alaina. Continued two weeks; State, Amos L. Kenyon, director of public aid of the town of Hopkinton, compl't, vs. Richard Waters. Continued two weeks; State, Elmer A. Smith, chief of police of Hopkinton, compl't, vs. John Haberek. Continued one week for trial; State, Thomas E. Brown, compl't vs. Angelo Turano et alias. Continued one week; State, Thomas E. Brown vs. Henry P. Nafome of North Stonington, manslaughter. Continued one week; State vs. James E. Norman, R. I. State trooper vs. Charles Golden. Continued one week; Town of Westerly, Thomas E. Brown, compl't, vs. Anthony F. Flore, Ready T. E. Brown, compl't, vs. Anthony Flore, Ready T. E. Brown vs. Thomas Flore. Continued one week; T. E. Brown vs. Thomas Flore, alias. Continued one week.

Civil cases: W. E. Barrett Co., vs. Nathan E. Collins, Jr. Defaulted. Passed for proof of claim; Clifton D. Hall vs. Angelo Pasci, alias. Continued one week; supplementary entry, Frederick O. Cochrane vs. Wilbert Clark. Trespass and ejectment. Answered by M. Walter Flynn, Jr., and continued two weeks.

Anthony F. Flore, against whom there appeared two complaints for the violation of the hackney-carriage ordinance of the town of Westerly, appeared in court represented by Attorney M. Walter Flynn, Jr. Through his lawyer a change of plea was made by the defendant from not guilty to one of nolo.

Town Solicitor Ferguson told the court that on two cases pending, a discontinuance on payment of costs would be asked on the other of the two. He said that the defendant was tried in a previous session of the third district court when he was found guilty and claimed an appeal, and in the superior court a verdict of guilty was given and that this last judgment was appealed to the supreme court where it is pending. Now a changed attitude was taken, and in an agreement made defendant is to stay out of the jitney business for three months and then to renew his application for a license, at which time if all the conditions are complied with, the Westerly chief of police will issue him a license. A jail sentence was not asked for and his appeal to the supreme court is being withdrawn, but a fine is recommended.

For the defendant Attorney Flynn said that Solicitor Ferguson had made a fair statement and the agreement called for three months of inactivity which would amount to a substantial fine. The defendant will pay the costs and that his misdemeanor and violation had not been a malicious one, and considering all conditions the maximum fine could be $20.

Judge Williams on the plea of nolo adjudged respondent guilty and suspending sentence placed him on good behaviour. The other case was discontinued on the payment of costs. Court adjourned.

Miss Natalie S. Hazard of Pawtuck, accompanied by her sisters, Mrs. Amy Hazard Field of Attleboro, Mass., left Westerly Friday night on the Everglades Limited express for Jacksonville, Fla. They will be the guests of their brother James O. Hazard and family of Gainesville, Fla. Mr. Hazard being executive secretary for the Florida Forestry association, having left New Jersey for the southern state several months ago.

The funeral of Isaac Edward Frontis was held Friday at the Gavitt Home, Rev. G. Edgar Tobin rector Christ Episcopal church, officiated. The bearers were Thomas M. Kenzie, A. N. Nash, Samuel Girver and Frank L. Friend. Burial was in the Avery cemetery, Preston.

Kingston Fair, will be held this year. Fire on the grounds caused its omission a year ago. The middle of September this year the fair will be held by the recently reorganized Washington County Agricultural society.

Friday morning the funeral of Mrs. John D. O'Connell, was held at 8:30 o'clock from her home, 25 Prospect street. Requiem high mass was celebrated at St. Michael's church, at 9 o'clock by Rev. Michael Keating. During the service, Martin H. Spellman sang, "Thy Will Be Done." Burial was in St. Michael's Old Cemetery, where the committal service was conducted by Fr. Keating. The bearers were Timothy Connors, William Smith, William Murphy, Patrick O'Connell, Charles Murphy and Patrick O'Mara. Mrs. O'Connell was born in Ireland, but came to this country in her youth and had been a resident of Pawcatuck for many years. Besides her husband, she is survived by two sons, John A. O'Connell and Edward O'Connell, and two daughters, Misses Lena and Caroline O'Connell, all of Westerly.

Rev. Lewis A. Walker, pastor of Calvary Baptist church, gave an illustrated lecture Thursday evening, in the church parlors, when those gathered obtained an idea of the grandeur of the Pebble scenery. The pictures shown were camera snapshots and post card views which he and Mrs. Walker brought back from their trip to the Pacific coast last summer. The pastor's talk was preceded by a baked bean supper served by the Calvary Baptist Women's society.

Frederick Vining Fisher gave an entertaining and instructive lecture at Grace Methodist Episcopal church of Westerly, Thursday evening taking as his subject, "Ultimate America." Mr. Fisher illustrated his address with hand-painted art slides.

Mrs. Edwin A. Hall and Mrs. George E. Broughton entertained the Ladies' Aid society of Broad Street Christian church at Mrs. Hall's home on Spruce street Thursday afternoon at a Washington's birthday party, 33 being present. After the business meeting a one-act farce "The Reform Club," was presented by Mrs. Broughton, Mrs. Hall, Mrs. E. L. Gavitt and Mrs. Alexander Mitchell, affording much amusement. Music and a social hour followed. Refreshments were served by the hostesses.

Brevities

Miss Irene H. MacKnight of Pawcatuck was in Providence Thursday.

Ralph M. Briggs of Ashaway left Friday afternoon for Providence.

Police Officer Robert M. Kessel was in Bradford Friday morning.

Miss Viola Briar of Washington, D. C., is the guest of Miss Viola Stillman, in Pawcatuck.

NOANK

Miss Charlotte Hildreth King, 14, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Alfred King of West View, died Thursday morning. She had been ill about a year. She attended the public school in the village and this was her last year but she had to give up on account of poor health. Her schoolmates will miss her for she was always amiable and lovable. Besides her parents she leaves four sisters, all residing in Noank.

John Cowl who has traveled all over England and France, being an author connected with a large company in New York, has come to his cottage on Masons Island for a few weeks, hoping to regain his health.

A flock of wild geese flew over the village this week bound eastward. Some claim that when geese are seen so early winter is over, and it is a hint to plow the gardens next month.

The radio race between Lyle Chesebro and John Scroggins has the town all stirred up. Everybody wants to see who is the winner, which will be known next week. Scroggins tied Chesebro by getting Peru which came in fine. Chesebro thought he had a town across the water but found that it was a station in Florida. Each has two to his credit.

Walter Palmer has returned from Bridgeport, after a short visit.

Not many local lobster men have pots out in the winter months; only about three from here fish all winter for them in the Race.

Mrs. A. Balferback has returned to her home in Perth Amboy, N. J., after visiting Noank relatives.

Charles Olson has left for Edgartown, Mass. for the rest of the week.

Lewis Main of New York spent a day in the village this week.

Mrs. L. Sheffield of Saybrook was the guest of Mrs. Angus Morrison Thursday.

Dexter Holiday has gone to North Stonington for a visit.

Contractor George Carpenter has started work preparatory to building a dock on the Allyn property at Masons Island, which will take about two weeks.

The members of the World Wide Guild of the Baptist church were entertained Thursday evening at the home of Elenor Seaplan.

Mr. and Mrs. Rocco De Biasi and daughters, Dorothea and Marion are spending a few days in New York.

John Hancock has left for Brooklyn, N. Y., on a business trip.

Raymond Jones has returned from New Jersey.

Members of the Silver Link society of the Methodist church held an afternoon session at the home of Mrs. Otto Hendrickson on Pearl street. An hour's work followed the business session and later in the afternoon a social time was spent, during which refreshments were served.

Raymond Rathbun was a caller in Colchester recently.

many times. I don't know but procrastination would be a good name for one but will make schoolmarm for my pen name if no one else has it.

SCHOOL-MARM.

THE WINTER AT DRY MILLS, ME

Dear Comrades: I have been requested to write about the weather at Dry Mills. One thing is certain we have not had a very cold winter and hardly any winter until the first of February.

Up to that time we only had ten inches of snow. The first day of February it stormed. Then candlemas day the sun never showed brighter. Whether that makes any difference in the weather following is hard to tell for winter never rotted in the sky—an old saying and usually true one.

So far we have had very few pleasant days. Yesterday (Sunday) it was a lovely day. Mr. Willard was out to his camp here at the grove from South Portland. Came out on trolley and snow-shoed up from Gray. We have had it 40 above and the 13th of February it was 50 above.

There are from three to three and one half feet of snow on level. I wonder how many tried Kochie's ice cream cake. I did and found it o. k. I do enjoy all the good letters and those from Florida for I have many friends who have gone from Cumberland county this winter. But believe me I would rather stay at home. You see when I go to Portland for a week it is enough for me and I have so much sewing to do before the summer folks tell me that Crystal lake would not be worth living at were it not for me. Well, I suppose so. I am wondering what has become of Fan Tan and Blue Baby. I was pleased to see the words of The Dying Californian. I understand that he has a relative living in Jewett City. Pleased to learn it.

Well, Arica, I wonder if you are laughing at my letter. Hope so, for I am told I am a dandy to drive away the blues.

Well, Interested Reader, I have just made one of those quilts from tan pillow tops, but not the one with names of places on them—haven't forgotten quite enough yet.

Have enough of the tops with flowers on them. I am going to put them together with old rose sateen. The other one was set with dark blue. Those were very old ones such as Dutch Kids, Red Ridinghood, birds and baskets of flowers. Also a canoe with Indian girl in it and a pine tree background and mountain peaks. Yes call and see them, and before you come I will have some more. Nine pillow tops, with a sash of one finder wide and a piece to go around the whole quilt, make a good sized one.

Don't know as this is very interesting, but if you make one I know you will like it as well as I do.

I am looking for that letter, Joan. Trust you are not ill. I am pleased to learn Dom Pedro is so much better. Believe she has a birthday soon. Not long ago I received a card from Ninnette Lowater and I was overjoyed. Trust we may see her name on Social Corner pages soon.

Beets All.

Dear Sweet Potootie: Where have you been? Don't you dare! all for me? Mr. bear's been cuter since the sunshine on your radiant hair and glints off your turnip nose. If you cantaloupe, lettuce marry. We will make a happy pear. Let's orange it that way. Your Sweet Corn Cona Bob.

Best wishes to all invalids and shut ins.

Many thanks to Social Corner Member for the lovely little card. Best of luck for Corner and members.

Richie: Please don't forget that letter you promised to write to

BALSAM FIR.

READY FOR ANNIVERSARY CELEBRATION

Dear Editor and Social Corner Sisters: My letter in last week's paper about flag etiquette, was prompted by seeing our dear old flag, hanging from a flag pole on Main street, in a mess of rags and the halyards had broken and let it down so it hung at half mast. It was plain to be seen that someone had little respect for our grand old flag, to let it fly in such a condition. It should be hurried up, when it can no longer be used.

I do not intend to write so often, but I wanted to remind the sisters that our next meeting (March 2) will be Club No. 2's observance of the Social Corner page in The Bulletin and we hope to see all our sisters at this time. Odd Fellows hall is large enough for us all and all Social Corner Sisters are welcome. We had a very pleasant time at our meeting this month, plenty to eat and a good jolly crowd. The janitor was called out of town and forgot to open the closet where we keep our dishes, etc; but when he thought it was our day at the hall, he hastened back and the hostess with her helpers soon had everything in readiness, but it won't happen again as we have a nice large closet all our own now and Calla Lily has the key. Best wishes to all Social Corner sisters.

PLEASED WITH HOSPITAL SERVICE

Dear Social Corner Sisters: Well next Wednesday we will have another one of our meetings which I for one do enjoy, for I meet so many of the sisters and do have such good times. Since I have joined I have learned so many pretty things, not only to wear but to eat. Sorry to read of so many of the sisters being sick this winter. Hope those who have been on the sick list are better, and able to get out, for I too, have been sick this winter, My better half and I both had to go up to the Backus hospital the first of January for hard colds. It was quite a first time in a hospital. I will say if any one of the sisters feels as I did about going to a hospital why just you go up to Backus hospital and you will be ready to go any time. For I can not speak too highly of the hospital. Its nurses are fine, so kind and always ready to do for you in every way. Their food is served so daintily to their patients. The nurses are so jolly all the time. My better half fell in love with them all. If I were young I would love to go and train at Backus hospital for a nurse.

I hope we have a good number at Club No. 2 next Wednesday. I would be pleased to hear from any who likes to talk over the phone. My number is 344-5 Norwich.

Hope our Willimantic sisters will be able to meet with us next week Wednesday.

Don't Worry: I, too, tried that recipe for pineapple pie and found it fine, but all our sisters are good cooks.

I guess we all will be glad to see spring. I for one will because I go in the car about all the time in the good old summer time. Well I guess I had better say so long for now.

SISTER SLOW.

COLDS

Dear Social Corner Pals: Greetings to one and all. We certainly have had quality in this short month so far with two blizzards and other storms besides, with a few very beautiful spring like days just to give us hope.

We shall miss our dear departed sister. If their sterling qualities have left a lasting impression on our lives they will not have lived in vain. Our sympathy goes out to the loved and dependent ones left. Recently I was asked to prepare an article on a subject I wished to choose—Colds.

A cold is not a simple matter and is very contagious. It does not come from bad weather or wet feet but from germs that attack those whose physical condition makes them susceptible. Overheated, dry, dust laden air is the main causes as the germs lodge in the respiratory glands, nose and throat, where they thrive and multiply, sapping one's vitality, causing the power of resistance to be lowered, a high temperature or fever, and generally impaired conditions of the body.

Why and Who have colds? They attack young and old. A cold is no respector of persons and they are more prevalent in winter than any season on account of the low temperature of the outside air and the amount of moisture it holds is very low. When this dry air from the outside comes into the house it is warmed, which makes it capable of holding much more moisture than is already in it. Hence the relative humidity of the air in the home is very low. Relative humidity means the amount of moisture in the air in comparison to the amount the air could possibly hold. For example, if the relative humidity of a room is 50 per cent, we understand by that that the air in the room has just half as much moisture in it as it could possibly hold at that particular temperature. The ability of air to hold moisture increases as the temperature is increased. If the air in the home is very dry the results are that the perspiration from our bodies evaporates very rapidly making us cold, although the temperature of the room may be quite high. With a relative humidity in the home or room, of 50 to 60 per cent a temperature of 68 degrees is comfortable while with dry air a temperature of 70-75 is necessary for comfort. This hot dry air is very irritating to the nerves and injurious to the eyes. Its effect is harmful to the membranes of the nose and throat, making us very susceptible to colds. The humidity should never be allowed to drop below 40 per cent and should be above 50 per cent for the most healthful conditions. We may augment the supply of moisture, in a room by placing pans of water on radiators or in other convenient places. The highest prevalence of colds comes in October through March when there is a decline to June when a cold is least likely. There is no certain section or region where colds are confined, as an epidemic of respiratory disorders may be raging in New Orleans and San Francisco at the same time as in Boston and Chicago. To the facts of humidity as a cause for greater susceptibility a comparison between town and country dwellers the advantage is in favor of the person living away from congested centers as every place of assembly, street car, subway, theaters, schools, churches, factories, etc. are ideal places for the transmission. Even door knobs, hand shaking, the common habit of sneezing and coughing aid in the rapid distribution of germs. As to indoor workers and those whose occupation is outside the indoor worker is more likely to take cold. However, if the outside worker is continually subjected to the weakening effects of extreme exposure he becomes susceptible to a graver menace. How to prevent and why. We may avoid contact with those affected. Keep ourselves fit. First, by the right kind and amount of food. 2nd. Plenty of rest in a well ventilated room. 3rd. Keep clean by frequent bathing thereby keeping the pores open and drink at least six glasses of water a day. 4th. Take outdoor exercise. Thus we find a cold is not a simple matter but may lead to a serious disease.

HOPE COBWEB.

ANTICIPATING ANNIVERSARY MEETING

Kind Social Corner Friends and Editor: When I read the Corner pages last week, the new writers and all the nice letters, I decided I would write and not be a slacker, for in Peter Prose's letter it credits the Corner with no idlers or slackers. So let's all write. I do enjoy all the nice letters so much. Was surprised to read of so many deaths of writers last year. Hope the sick ones are all better and I extend my sympathy to all shut ins. What a blessing and God send the Corner page is to them; it cheers them so much to read the nice cheery letters from each one.

Dew Drop: You did not answer my question in my last letter to Corner, or else you have changed your pen name. Hope it is pleasant March 3rd. I intend to go to the anniversary to meet some of Club No. 2 and No. 5 members. The meeting always gives one so much happiness, and a time never to be forgotten.

Aunt Jerusha: How did you come out with your turkeys?

Photographer: Where was your camera the other day? Have it ready next time.

Crimson Rambler: Your letters are all so nice.

Calla Lily: Can I help you if I come March 3rd? That is the best part of it, take hold and help. Many hands lighten the labor sometimes you know.

Rural Delivery: Enjoyed your letter. Write again. You have another guess on who is who.

Violet; Your recipe for 10 minutes sponge cake, I cut from Corner page, is delicious. Also the chocolate whipped cream recipe a sister sent in a long time ago. I try the recipes I think I would like and if all do put it in my collection of Corner recipes. Have lost the mock angel cake. Lent it, and it never found the way home again. That was very nice.

Aunty No. 1. I do love your letters. Would like to meet you. Do you attend Club No. 1, 2, or 5.

Windham Blue Bell: Think I know you, but write again.

Spaybird: I extend sympathy. L. H. K.'s letters were always so nice. I miss them very much.

Wishing you all health and success for 1926 I will close this long letter with aurevoir.

TAKING CARE OF WILLOW FURNITURE

I have always had willow furniture, in some way. For certain purposes nothing is so suitable as willow furniture, it is ideal for the living room or porch and so patient of cleaning processes that it may be scrubbed with a brush and rinsed well when it becomes soiled.

They say the natural lifetime of a willow chair is four year. The knowledge that its usefulness may be greatly prolonged is quite worth having.

The method is simple, give it one or two coats of oil stain, and a subsequent coat of pure linseed oil. The willow strands of which the piece is woven will lose their dry brittleness and become softer and more pliable, so they bend under a blow instead of breaking. If it is desired to keep the natural light color of the willow, use the linseed oil alone; but for harmony, with a particular color scheme, or with furniture, most persons prefer to stain it. Green is particularly pretty, and gives the osiers the effect of living twigs; it also has the advantage of looking well with almost any color.

This treatment has another good effect besides making the chair last longer, it makes it less noisy. Almost every one has experienced the embarrassment of sitting in a willow chair which responded to the slightest motion by portentious creaks and snaps. A coat of oil allows the strands to slip more smoothly and easily, and therefore, more quietly upon each other.

All willow and straw basket work lasts longer if it is oiled. As for old settee chairs their youth may be practically renewed unless they are really broken, by scrubbing and rinsing, and after they are perfectly dry, dressing them with oil as described, on both the wrong and right sides. The oil should be put on with a stiff round paint brush, and worked well into the crevices. If new rattan furniture is thus oiled at first, and cleaned and oiled once a year, thereafter, it becomes as far as lastimate wear is concerned, practically indestructible.

I make cushions for my willow furniture, as it protects the seats. I make them in form of thin pads to fill the seat. These of course should always be considered in conjunction with the interior color scheme, and be made in either harmony of tone or contrast.

SHORE LINE CLUB STARTED

Dear Social Corner Sisters: Guess I'll be getting to neighborly if I don't look out, but I thought I must tell you interested Reader has been spending the day with me. So we feel we have had a Social Corner meeting. We had some of the Social Corner brown bread recipe by Tafts. Some months ago some sister, I think it was Bee, suggested a 'Shore Line' club but no one seemed to show their colors so Interested Reader and I are going to have one all our own.

Crimson Rambler: I was out scouting around the other days so now have your number all right. How about taking a turn where a barn was recently burned, then after passing a few houses take another turn and go about a mile. Think Mr. Rambler must have had a hard time during the snowy time getting out with his milk. I recently passed the T. place between T. and F. Can't remember whether it is Twice Twenty or Golden Glow who lives there. Did not see anyone around. Will not take up any more space this time.

WRITES AFTER ABSENCE

Hello Social Corner Members All: It has been a long time since I wrote the Corner, but I have been sick and with all this snow to battle with I have done very little letter writing, but I am glad to see a full page of letters from so many members, and do enjoy reading them. If the sister who wrote she was crocheting rugs, by making chain then sew together, will write to L. T. H., Baltic, Conn. I will write her how to make the rugs so much easier. I lost her name by mislaying paper. I have crocheted rugs over 25 years and have two of the first ones now in use, good as when new. Will some of the sisters send in the Ginsy's Warning? Seeing the dying Californian verses in the paper brings back happy days of over 50 years ago, hearing a blind man sing it and play tune on an accordian—with other songs. I think if O. D. of Westerly is who I think, her father must have heard the same blind man sing and play 55 years ago.

Aunt Hester: Would be so glad to get a letter from you. I wrote you last a long time ago. I have your dear letters now and read them; also Rural Delivery to Blue Bell. They are very interesting to a shut-in; have been in only one house recently since last October and the snow kept us from any mail most a week twice and when it did come Social Corner was like seeing some one.

Crimson Rambler: I like to read your letters. Remember Dro. picnic. I often look at the pictures.

Golden Glow: Miss your nice letters. J. E. T. has a birthday coming. I think on the same day mine is and Red Clover's was, Am I right? How are you and sister-in-law? Tell her to write me and I will answer it.

Violet: Am sorry you all have colds Take good care of them.

Aunt Jerusha: While you have the old name, I have an apron given me my 6th birthday by an old lady who had it when she was a little girl. The apron must be 115 years old or more for I don't know how old the lady would be if living, but think 125 now. I am glad to read about the old time fiddlers contest, for it is reviving the old time spirit in different things in Social Corner, which is so very interesting. I would like to meet with Club No. 2 and No. 5, as No. 2 was the only club I have ever been to and used to know so many of the members.

Where is Sunbonnet Sue and Crank; miss their cheery letters. Am crocheting rugs and piecing patch work odd times to pass away the time and get so very interested in rugs evenings it is dinner hour before it seems it is nine o'clock. Chores and snow shoveling take most of my time days am so glad to see the days longer, and will be so glad when real spring time is here. The robins have been here all winter so have the brown and black woolly worms. I feed hay seed on snow to the dear little birds and they are so glad to see me put it out come very close to me. The grackles don't seem to like anything I give them. The minute they see me come out the door mornings they whistle to me. If I answer them they keep it up, as long as I whistle back to them. They are very dear friends of mine and so pretty. With best wishes to all the Corner members also extend my sympathy to Spry Bird, while I did not personally know L. H. K. I still have the verses "Tell Mother I'll be There," and 'My Mother's Prayer" she sent in to Corner page for me. I knew her father well. Blue Bell used to do his blacksmithing. I also met her mother a few times but I did enjoy L. H. K.'s letters to the Corner so much and miss them so much, but God's will, not ours, be done. Is all I can say and hear my losses heat I can. He knows our heart aches as no

IN NORWICH FIFTY YEARS AGO

Claims of so called "old-timers" that winters now are not what they used to be, seem to be open to discussion if the files of the Bulletin for February 1876 are looked into. The writers of those days, just 50 years ago this week, tell of spring like weather for February, which, when a cold spell set in, caused people to shiver for they were not toughened to cold weather.

A glance down the column shows other things about the same and that the "good old days," when people were better, seem to be slightly over painted for these things have been taken in part from the Norwich Bulletin of the week of February 21, 1876 as follows:

Monday, February 21, 1876 — The congregation of Park Congregational church had the satisfaction of worshipping yesterday for the first time in an edifice entirely free from debt. Appropriate remarks were made in reference to the fact by Rev. M. M. G. Davis, pastor. When the church was originally projected it was estimated that its construction would cost about $60,000. The actual cost however, exclusive of the site, the chime of bells, the organ and the memorial windows, which were special gifts, was about $100,000. For some time past the subscriptions for the deficit of $30,000 had been going on and some $7,000 remained to be raised. A few days ago this amount was contributed by a man who had already given a large sum.

It was less than three years ago since the society was formed and but little over a year since the stately edifice was completed. There are very few societies of the size of Park church which have the spirit and the means to entirely pay in so short a time for so costly a structure as theirs and they are worthy of deep congratulation.

Messrs. J. L. Spencer & Co. of Providence, R. I., have sold their warp mill at Bissville, in Lisbon, to Messrs. D. Remington & Sons of Providence.

As this is a centennial year it is expected that Norwich, in common with other cities, will observe Washington's birthday by firing a salute of 100 guns.

R. H. Fillmore of Greeneville possesses an old deed issued by J. Joshua Elderkin of Norwich, made out in the sixteenth year of the reign of our Sovereign Lord George Ye Second of Great Britain and King Annoque Dominie 1742.

Tuesday, February 22, 1876—At a meeting of the Otis library entertainment committee held yesterday afternoon it was unanimously voted that Charles E. Dyer, treasurer of the fund, be authorized to pay the sum of $387.57 to a committee consisting of Mrs. Bates, Mrs. Seymour, Mrs. Mitchell and Mrs. Nichols, for the immediate use and benedit of the Otis library; and that $300 be paid to Mayor Osgood as trustee of the Citizen's library fund of the Otis library, as this is the nucleus of a fund which it is hoped will be increased in the future by entertainments similar to those given previously.

Engineers on the Norwich & Worcester road are to take one week off a month for the time being at least. The engineers are to work three weeks, then lay off a week, doing this in turns, thus keeping all at work steady for three weeks, when they get full pay, alternating on the off weeks.

Competitive examinations for teachers needed to fill vacancies in the West Chelsea school district have been held but the names of the qualifying teachers have not yet been announced.

A Mystic liquor dealer has left town and it is claimed that he did so because the people there liked his rum much better than they did the men selling it.

A New London woman was fined $5 and costs in court yesterday on a charge of intoxication, having been found on Bank street in a very drunk and riotous condition.

Wednesday, February 23, 1876—At the New London County Historical society held yesterday the report of the committee on monumental design was presented, with a fine diagram of a monument 33 feet high with a base seven feet square, with contracting base and a tablature, upon the dies of which are medallions representing: 1, The old fort; 2, an Indian chief; 3, the seal of the society; 4, a historical account of the battle, its actors and its consequences to the infant colony. Above this rises a doric column 18 feet high, surmounted by a statue of Capt. Mason, seven feet high. This design was accepted and a committee consisting of William H. Potter, R. A. Wheeler, Daniel Lee, H. P. Haven, L. F. S. Foster, Henry Bill and Captain William Cliff was appointed to provide funds and carry out the design.

New London has been swamped by receiving over 100 applications for the job under the $2,500 charitable appropriation.

The latest deed brought into this office is one signed on December 12, 1696, a deed from James Fitch unto Thomas Baldwin.

A local man remarked yesterday that there is nothing next to a seashell that nature takes so much pains to polish perfectly, as a bald head.

Thursday, February 24, 1876—A local man now comes to The Bulletin with a deed dated August 3, 1728, the full date reading, Monday before the Feast of St. Laurence the martyr, in the 2nd year of the reign of Edward III. The language in the deed is believed to be Norman-French.

Work began this week on the Narragansett branch of the Stonington & Providence railroad.

By cutting its telegraph report the Argus is now being sold for the sum of just one cent a copy.

New London thus far this winter had managed to escape without having a single fire.

Specie backers won their fight at the democratic state convention and the soft money men have been put to rout, the platform calling for repeal of the resumption act and the conversion of green backs into legal tenders being adopted.

Friday, February 25, 1876—Yesterday was one of the coldest of the season and for people accustomed to the spring like weather which has distinguished February, was a very uncomfortable one. The heavy wind made the cold more sensible, though the mercury did not get below zero and last evening at 6 o'clock was at 16 degrees above. Colchester reported 2 above zero, Stonington 4 above and other towns from 6 to 9 above as the temperature during the day.

We learn that Montana has started out to pass a bill which will exempt all woolen manufactories from taxation.

Suit for $800 damages has been brought against two local police officers by a man who was forced to use his wagon to bring a drunken man from Greeneville to the city lockup.

Saturday, February 26, 1876—A tug which came up the river yesterday to haul out a schooner, found that the schooner had run aground. While waiting here the tug was frozen in and is unable to break loose. It is expected that the City of Lawrence can break through tomorrow, but if not then the tug must remain here until mild weather sets in.

KEEP LOOKING YOUNG

It's Easy—If You Know Dr. Edwards' Olive Tablets

The secret of keeping young is to feel young—to do this you must watch your liver and bowels—there's no need of having a sallow complexion—dark rings under your eyes—pimples—a bilious look in your face—dull eyes with no sparkle. Your doctor will tell you ninety per cent of all sickness comes from inactive bowels and liver.

Dr. Edwards, a well-known physician in Ohio, perfected a vegetable compound mixed with olive oil to act on the liver and bowels, which he gave to his patients for years.

Dr. Edwards' Olive Tablets, the substitute for calomel, are gentle in their action yet always effective. They bring about that natural buoyancy which all should enjoy by toning up the liver and clearing the system of impurities.

Dr. Edwards' Olive Tablets are known by their olive color. 15c and 30c.

CLARK'S FALLS

There is plenty of snow here yet. About three times as much fell here as at Westerly about seven miles south of this village. The roads are not all passable yet as on the east roads detours are being made through the fields. There is also considerable ice in the roads.

Will Peckham who makes his home with his aunt, Mrs. Henry Babcock in this village, with his brother Guy Peckham of Potter Hill has bought a wood lot north of Laurel Glen and they are carting wood with their trucks.

Maurice Perry is employed at Pawcatuck (Stonington) for the Cottrell Machine Company.

Mr. and Mrs. Wilson D. Maine with their daughter June of Westerly were guests of their parents Saturday afternoon. Monday they were in Providence.

Arthur Babcock of Stonington and Mrs. Joseph Burdick of Mystic were guests of Mrs. Hannah Babcock Wednesday.

The Ladies' Aid society will not meet until the roads are in better condition.

The district school is closed for one week vacation.

Six school girls have received prize books for letters to Uncle Jed printed in The Bulletin. Their friends are proud of them and thank Uncle Jed. All here read and enjoy the letters.

GALES FERRY

A group of Methodist Men's classes, from Norwich, New London, Versailles, Westerly and Gales Ferry had a supper given under the auspices of the Ladies' Aid society, of the Methodist vestry here, Washington's birthday evening at 6:30. The tables were attractive with red, white and blue crepe paper runners, and candles. A centerpiece, from the ceiling was of the same ribbons, and flags were used for the room decoration. The menu, was sliced ham, potato salad, pickles, baked beans, brown bread, fruit jello, with whipped cream, cake and coffee. Upwards of 75 men attended. The largest group coming from Versailles numbering 21. After the supper an entertaining program was given in the church, opening with singing, Albert Boardman of Norwich being director of the singing, with Mrs. George Smith Brown at the organ. The address of welcome was given by Rev. George Smith Brown, pastor of the church, following which Rev. Mr. Brown presented District Superintendent, Rev. Myron E. Genter of Norwich, as chairman. Rev. Mr. Genter spoke briefly on Washington's birthday and told humorous stories, previous to his urge to the laymen to greater interest in the work of the church. The meeting was really a preliminary one to the Federation of Methodist Men's classes in New London county. In response to the call of Rev. Mr. Genter chairman, Mr. Tuttle spoke for the men of Versailles, Mr. Floyd for the Norwich group, Mr. Bates for New London and Fred Kennedy for Westerly, placing much stress on hospitality in holding men. Mr. Genter T. Clark spoke for Gales Ferry and it was evident he had given the matter much consideration. Mr. Clark was followed by Dudley C. Forbes in speaking. Familiar songs, Home Sweet Home, America and others, interspersed the speeches with Mrs. Eugene LaFontaine at the organ. Rev. Mr. Genter closed the evening with an inspiring address in the interest of the work.

WILLINGTON

A short service of prayer for Mrs. James W. Burdick was conducted by Rev. E. E. Sundt at the home of her daughter, Mrs. Joseph Dimock, last week Thursday morning. The bearers were Charles Amidon, Henry Amidon, Rudolph Amidon, Lawrence Amidon, Charles Korner and Joseph Dimock. There were beautiful floral pieces, which included a large pillow inscribed "My Wife," from her husband, a large wreath of pink roses from the sons and son-in-law, spray of calla lilies, her favorite flower, from the daughters; red roses from the grand-daughters also from great-grand daughters; carnations from the church; carnations from Mr. and Mrs. Oscar Hemmeter; narcissus spray from Mrs. Clifford Dimock; carnations and ferns from Mr. Drobney and family. When the funeral cortege arrived at New Hartford, they found the little chapel in the cemetery filled with relatives and friends, and the chancel banked with beautiful flowers. The funeral was held at one o'clock, and the body of Mrs. Burdick was placed in the vault until spring, for burial. Some of the flowers were taken to the hospital in Winsted where an old friend lies very ill.

Charles Fuller Lyon, son of Mrs. Mary Lyon and Blanche Elaine Mae Donald, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. John Merrifield, of Holyoke, Mass., were married Saturday afternoon at 2 o'clock at the Korner and Lyon home, by Rev. E. E. Sundt, the double ring service being used. Miss Elizabeth Gautreaux played the wedding march, and Mrs. E. E. Sundt sang O Promise Me. The bride wore a handsome gown of brocaded white satin, with pearl trimming. Only near relatives were present, and those included from out of town Mr. and Mrs. John Merrifield and Mrs. L. M. Hollis, of Holyoke, Mass., and Mr. and Mrs. R. B. White and Mr. and Mrs. Edward Lyon of Plainville. A luncheon of chicken salad, rolls, pie, cake and coffee was served. ECHOES FROM THE LODGE ROOMS

THAMES PAST GRANDS

The Thames Past Grands association had an all-day meeting Tuesday at Odd Fellows hall New London with an attendance of about 85 representing the Norwich, Mystic, Groton and New London Rebekahs, who were the guests of Osprey Rebekah lodge. The session started with a chicken pie dinner in the banquet room at noon. Table decorations were in the national colors and were in keeping with Washington's birthday. At 2 o'clock the meeting started and routine business was transacted. The session closed with a supper at 5 o'clock, held in the banquet rooms. The hostesses were Mrs. Lafayette G. Rudd, Mrs. Charles A. Lewis, Mrs. F. C. Burrows, Mrs. William C. Kingdon, Miss Ethel Barrows, Mrs. Abbie Brooks, Mrs. Adelle Corwin and Mrs. Wallace R. Johnson.

Present were: Mrs. Arthur Morgan, president of the association; Mrs. Charles A. Lewis, past president; Mrs. Lizzie Gardner, Mrs. C. S. Pembroke, Mrs. Cady S. Rogers, Mrs. William H. Bowker, Mrs. William J. Sparks, Mrs. W. H. Wilson, Mrs. Stephen J. G. Cullen, Mrs. Mary Payne, Mrs. Andrew Stewart, Mrs. Alfred Pahlberg, Mrs. Elmer E. Kennerson, Mrs. Hattie Firmin, Mrs. Annie Jordan, Mrs. F. C. Burrows, Mrs. Lafayette G. Rudd, Mrs. William Kingdom, Miss Ethel Barrows, Mrs. W. R. Johnson and Mrs. Adelle Corwin of New London; Mrs. Albert E. Ware, Mrs. Libby Dennison, Mrs. Etta Frink, Mrs. Irving Dowsett of Groton; Mrs. Charles Lewis of Poquonoc; Mrs. Burt Swaney and Mrs. Mary Beebe, Niantic; Mrs. Hattie Grimes, Mrs. Margaret Eldridge, Mrs. Bertha Ashcroft, Mrs. Alfred King of Mystic; Mrs. Abbie Brooks, Mrs. Adam M. Revell and Mrs. Mary E. Green of this city.

CLOVER TEMPLE

Clover temple, No. 9, held its regular meeting with the newly installed officers being placed in their respective stations, by Grand Chief Henrietta Curties, of Meriden, it being her official visit to the temple. She was ably assisted by Grand Manager Grace Fowler and Grand Senior Sister LaValle, of Middletown. Those installed were as follows: M. E. C., Clara Bush; Ex. Sr., Minnie Noyes; Ex. Jr., Goldie Herman; Mgr. Hattie Fowler, M. of R. & C., Charlotte Fowler; M. of F., Marion Fowler, guard, Anna Kenschel; protector, Anna Abelman.

The retiring chief was E. Grace Fowler. There is much interest being shown in the lodge. Five names for membership were balloted upon and accepted and it is expected that other new names will be submitted soon.

At the next meeting night, March 9th, the degree will be given to the candidates. Charlotte Fowler won the prize awarded during the evening. Refreshments were served. An invitation from the knights of Wauregan to meet with them March 22, for a social time, was accepted.

LADIES OF COLUMBUS

With a large attendance of members the Catholic Ladies of Columbus held a social meeting Tuesday evening at their rooms on Broadway. Mrs. Louis Combies, chairman of the social committee, assisted by the Misses Theresa Leonard, Lillian O'Brien, Rose Dennis, Loretta Lasch, Dora Paloquin and Miss O'Neill served refreshments. The musical club furnished a very fine entertainment.

DEGREE OF POCAHONTAS

Sebequanash council, No. 11, met in the tepee at 58 Broadway, Wednesday evening, with a large number present. There was a small amount of business to transact so it was quickly disposed of. It was decided to hold a public whist at the home of P. G. P. Nettie Kinne, in the Shannon building, in March. The meeting closed in the usual form by the minute to the flag.

MOOSEHEART LEGION

Women of Mooseheart legion Norwich chapter, No. 124, met at the Moose home Thursday evening and had a very pleasant meeting in spite of the weather. Senior Regent Mrs Teresa Watters presided and regular routine business was transacted.

A whist and pinochle is to be held next week at Moose home. Plans are underway for an entertainment and box lunch party Saint Patrick's night.

The next meeting is to be held Monday evening, March 8th, at which there will be initiation. A feature for the evening will be a mystery box of which Mrs. Irene Burns has charge. Refreshments were served after the meeting and a social hour enjoyed.

EASTERN STAR

The regular meeting of Shechem chapter, No. 57, O. E. S., was held in Masonic temple Wednesday evening. After the business session a colonial party was held in the banquet hall, the entertainment consisting of songs by Mrs. Walter M. Buckingham and Miss Hazel Banfield in colonial costume, accompanied by Miss Mary Gray. A feature was the minuet danced by Mrs. Buckingham and Miss Banfield. Refreshments were served of fruit salad, rolls and coffee under the direction of Mrs. Rebecca Turner, chairman of the supper committee. The hall and tables were decorated with cherries and streamers of the national colors. Miss Mary Crowe had charge of the decorations. Music for the old fashioned dances was furnished by Mrs. Olive R. Roberts, piano, and Orrin M. Price, violin. The costumes worn by the members were very handsome and of the colonial period.

Much interest is being shown in the dance to be held at the Wauregan hotel under the joint auspices of Shechem chapter and Nemrod Grotto. The advance sale of tickets is large.

JR. ORDER AMERICAN MECHANICS

Buckingham Council No. 14, Jr. O. U. A. M. held its regular business meeting Wednesday evening at Cadillac hall. State Past Councilor Marshall, State Secretary Wellington, State Deputy Marsdale and State Organizer Parmelee were present and each gave an interesting talk.

Mr. Parmelee had an interesting plan for a membership drive. His plan is to elect two teams and the team getting the most applications is to have a banquet at the expense of the losers. Fred Shappee and George Faulkner were elected captains. The degree team initiated a class of eighteen candidates at Noank Tuesday evening. They enjoyed a splendid banquet served by Noank council.

The members of the Norwich bowling team won the first league game by 138 pins having a pinfall of 1,421.

Norwich is now leading the league by 164 pins. New London is to play this council on next Thursday evening.

There were four applications for membership received and several committees appointed. The members were served refreshments and the meeting adjourned at 10:30.

PATRONS OF HUSBANDRY

Organization of a woman's auxiliary of Norwich grange, No. 172, was effected at a meeting held Wednesday afternoon in Steiner hall. The dues were set at the nominal figure of 10 cents a year and it is the hope that every woman in the grange will be enrolled as a member of the auxiliary. The following officers were elected: President, Mrs. Alida Boyens; treasurer, Mrs. Jennie Davis; secretary, Mrs. Irene Burns.

In the evening the regular meeting of the grange was held with the worthy master, Mrs. Ida E. Richardson, presiding, and an invitation was accepted from Killingly grange for March 15, to put on a 25-minute programme. The executive committee is to have charge of the renting and care of the new chairs which have been procured by the grange.

The lecturer's programme for the evening, which was enjoyed by an attendance of over 80, consisted of an Old Folks concert, which was in charge of Mrs. John E. Fanning and was given in capital form. The programme was carried out as follows: Ensemble, The Invitation; encore, One Fine Day As I Was a-Walking; duet, Beautiful Moonlight, Mrs. E. Grace Fowler, Mrs. Lena Pukallus; rounds, The Ferry, Scotland's Burning, ensemble; reading, Changeable Styles, Miss Reiji Rathbone; solo, Old Black Joe, given in costume by Lewis B. Aldrich; original paper, Reminiscenses of Styles, Past and Present, Mrs. Clotilda Worthington; solo, The Miller of Dee, William H. Rush; The Little Indians, ensemble; reading, Aunt Jemima's Courtship, Mrs. Fanning, assisted by Mrs. William Bode, William Noyes, William Rush; solo and chorus, Carry Me Back to Old Virginny, Mrs. Alida Boyens, Mrs. Lena Pukallus, William H. Rush, Herbert Spencer; solo and chorus, Johnny Schmoker, Mr. Rush and ensemble; song, We're All a-Noddin', ensemble.

Two of the especially fine numbers on the programme were the costume song, Old Black Joe, by Mr. Aldrich, and Mrs. Worthington's paper upon reminiscences of styles.

Those taking part in the entertainment of the evening were Mrs. E Grace Fowler, Mrs. Lena Pukallus, Mrs. Alida Boyens, Mrs. Gertrude Tootill, Mrs. William Bode, Mrs. Anna Woods, Miss Helen Moore, Miss Jennie Mitchell, William Rush, Charles Ellis, William Noyes, Herbert Spencer and Lewis Aldrich.

Following the programme, ice cream and cake were served by the feast committee, Mrs. Jennie Davis chairman.

The next meeting night is the competitive night when the programme for the lecturer's hour is to be provided by the men who promise to furnish an evening which will surpass anything the woman can provide.

WOMAN'S RELIEF CORPS

Sedgwick corps, No. 16, held its regular meeting Friday afternoon at the Buckingham Memorial with the president, Mrs. Mabel A. Moody, presiding, and the regular reports as well as general orders were read. There was one initiation. All members of the corps are invited to attend the school of construction to be held at Masonic temple, New London, Tuesday, March 2, at 1 o'clock in the afternoon. Mrs. Moody will go with Mrs. Althea Brown as alternate. Last December the 45 corps of the state, numbering 3,985 members, presented a victrola to the Newton home. The charter was draped for Past Department President Mrs. Florence L. P. Hayden, who, after months of sickness, passed away on January 27. Mrs. Hayden was department treasurer for more than 12 years. All the corps are solicited to contribute to the victory fund which is mostly used to care for World war veterans at Allingtown hospital. There is a movement to raise a fund so that all Civil war nurses still living may have $5 a month in addition to their small pension.

The Daughters of Veterans have extended an invitation to all members of the corps for a luncheon and Washington social next Tuesday evening at 6 o'clock at the Buckingham memorial.

Mrs. Annie Turner, the retiring instructor, had a short programme in observance of Feb. 22, which was given as follows:

Washington's Address to his Soldiers Before the Battle of Long Island, Mrs. D. Louisa Atterbury; Birthday of Washington, Mrs. Grace Fowler; Washington's Birthday, Mrs. Inez Hill; Washington, Mrs. Annie B. Newton; George Washington, by the color bearers and the patriotic instructor; Washington, Mrs. Annie B. Turner. Remarks past department commander of G. A. R., Orrin M. Price.

The meeting closed in the usual form with salute to the flag and singing of America.

Paper Fights Dust

Instead of fouling steams the waste from Swedist paper pulp mills is expected henceforth to help keep dust out of the air. Though the air in Stockholm is on the average ten times as free from dust as that of London in a heavy fog, for instance, a campaign has been started to make it as nearly dust-free as possible and in this a valuable ally has been found in the sulphite lye which the pulp mills of Sweden have hitherto poured away as worthless waste.

This summer all the macadamized or unpaved roadways and streets in Stockholm have been sprayed with the lye, to which lime water has been added to make it less soluble in rain. The city authorities of Malmoe and other places have also begun to buy the sulphite lye by the carload to use it on the roads, and a separate company has been formed to exploit the new dust-binding material.

The measurements of dust particles in the air have been made by the meteorologists and the Swedish government's official meteorologist, Prof. Andres K. Angstrom, has calculated that on the average the air in Stockholm contains 4,000 dust particles per cubic centimeter, while in London the usual figure is 10,000 and in heavy "pea soup" fogs runs up to 50,000. The number of dust particles inhaled each minute by a person walking through a London winter fog has thus been estimated at 450,000,000.

Testing Resistance

Although the impression that balloon tires cause a considerable loss of power in the automobile seems to have become quite widespread, the Bureau of Standards, according to Scientific American, has demonstrated as the result of an investigation that the rolling resistance of balloon tires is only slightly higher than that of high-pressure cord tires, and is substantially lower than the rolling resistance of high-pressure fabric tires.

As between balloon tires nd high pressure cord tires, therefore, on smooth roads, there is a slight difference in gasoline consumption in favor of the cord tires. This difference may decrease or disappear altogether, on rough roads. This is due to the tendency of balloon tires to reduce the losses of energy brought about by vertical movement of the car body.

While a blanket statement cannot be made that a change from high pressure to balloon tires to reduce the increase in rolling resistance, as the difference between the two types is comparatively small and individual balloon tires may show a higher or a lower rolling resistance than individual high pressure tires, as a class, balloon tires have a greater rolling resistance than high pressure cord, the difference depending upon the inflation pressure considered.

In the absence of a recognized standard for inflation pressures, comparisons are made on a basis of 30 pounds a square inch for balloon tires, 45 pounds for 3 1-2 inch cord, 50 pounds for 4-inch and 60 pounds for 5-inch cords. On this basis the average rolling resistance for high pressure cord tire is 11.8 pounds a thousand pounds axle load; for balloon tires, 13.5 pounds, and for fabric tires (except the 3 1-2-inch size) 17.1 pounds.

Thus it is seen that the gain in cushioning which is known to result from the use of balloon tires is obtained at an increase of 1.7 pounds in rolling resistance. If, on the other hand, the road is rough, the balloon tire favors a reduction in the loss due to energy absorbed by springs and snubbers, caused by a vertical movement of the car body.

It never reduces the size of a claim against an estate to file it.

From White House To Real Estate Office

Miss Laura Harlan, former Social Secretary to Mrs. Harding and Mrs. Coolidge has entered a new field, the Real Estate business. Miss Harlan, as the daughter of the late Justice Harlan of the U. S. Supreme Court, knew Washington Society from the inside and her wide acquaintance is proving most helpful now.

Mothers, Do This—

When the Children Cough, Rub Musterole on Throats and Chests

No telling how soon the symptoms may develop into croup, or worse. And then's when you're glad you have a jar of Musterole at hand to give prompt relief. It does not blister.

As first aid, Musterole is excellent. Keep a jar ready for instant use.

It is the remedy for adults, too. Relieves sore throat, bronchitis, tonsilitis, croup, stiff neck, asthma, neuralgia, headache, congestion, pleurisy, rheumatism, lumbago, pains and aches of back or joints, sprains, sore muscles, chilblains, frosted feet and colds of the chest (it may prevent pneumonia).

To Mothers: Musterole is also made in milder form for babies and small children. Ask for Children's Musterole.

New Pictures

Autumn was sold in Plymouth town;
The wind ran round the shore,
Now softly passing up and down,
Now wild and fierce and sore.
Wagering overhead,
Moaning in the narrow street
As one beside the dead.

The leaves of wrinkled gold and brown
Fluttered here and there
But not quite heedless where;
For as in hood and sad-hued gown
The Rose of Plymouth took the air,
They whirled and whirled, and fell to rest
Upon her gentle breast,
Then, on the happy earth her foot had pressed.

Autumn is wild in Plymouth town,
Barren and bleak and cold,
And still the dead leaves flutter down
As the years grow old.
And still—forever gravely fair—
Beneath their fitful whirl,
New England's sweetest girl,
Rose Standish, takes the air.
—Ellen Mackay Hutchinson Cortissoz.

Sing Again

You sang me a song:
'Twas the close of the year—
Sing again!
I can not remember the name
Or the words:
'Tis the same
We listen to hear
When the windows are open in spring,
And the air's full of birds!
One calls from the branch some sweet thing,
And one sings on the wing
The refrain.

You sang me a song
My heart thrilled to hear,
The refrain
Has run like a fillet of gold
Through the woof
Of the cold
Dark days of a year,
Tonight there's a year at its start,
All the birds are aloof,
Your eyes hold the sun for my part,
And the Spring's in your heart—
Sing again!
—Marie Van Vorst

HUMOR OF THE DAY

Magistrate—Is the woman related to you?

Man—No; she married my son.—Pit Bits.

Storekeeper—Dear me, did you fall down the steps?

Customer—Yes, but it's all right. I was going down anyway.—Progressive Grocer.

"That's the most egotistical man I ever saw," remarked the ticket clerk to his assistant.

I know it. He won't sit anywhere except in section I.—Life.

Lucy—Oh, Flora, I'm engaged.

Flora—Who to?

Lucy—I don't know his last name, but he goes to college, and he wore a black suit.—Oklahoma Whirlwind.

Desdemona—Aren't you going to take me to the movies this evening, Othello, dear?

Othello (gloomily, reaching for the pillow)—No; 'mother time.—Punch.

Marjorie—And Alice learned to speak French in two weeks! I can't understand it.

Maud—And I'll bet the French people can't understand it either.—Answers, London.

Your speedometer shows you have gone 25,000 miles. Been taking some long tours?

No, the 5,000 is the distance I have covered going back and forth to the office and the other 20,000 the distance I have covered looking for parking places.—Cincinnati Enquirer.

Two small boys stood in mute admiration before a wonderful mechanical bird which filled a toy shop with melody.

Gee, I'd like to have that! exclaimed one. But it costs $100, the other replied.

"I know," said the first boy, "but think how much you'd save on birdseed!"—Youngstown Telegram.

Some day ear specialists may fit patients with instruments suited to their particular form of deafness, just as eye specialists now fit glasses to patients with eye troubles. A first step toward this distant goal has been taken in the attempt to standardize the many hearing devices now on the market. A survey of these devices is being made by a committee of the American Federation of Organizations for the Hard of Hearing with the cooperation of the United States bureau of standards, which will test instruments submitted to it and will render a confidential report to the members of the committee. Dr. Wendell C. Phillips, president - elect of the American Medical Association, and chairman of the federation committee on research, has said that there are more than 75 varieties of hearing aids on the market.

NEW LONDON DEALERS ADVISING PUBLIC TO MIX SOFT WITH HARD COAL

(Special to The Bulletin.)

NEW LONDON, Feb. 26.—The coal dealers of this city, now that the scarcity of coal is ending find themselves with a large quantity of soft coal on hand, which they desire to get rid of. So they are urging the purchase of the hard coal substitutes that they may be helped out of their predicament of having coal that is unsalable while anthracite may be obtained. The dealers were in the same fix as the general public and they were forced to stock up with bituminous coal. They are now left with large quantities of the soft coal on hand. Hence they are urging consumers to mix their coal and to use as much of the soft quality as they do of the anthracite. The mixture, they say, is not one that will afford any trouble for users and the fire it makes is quite satisfactory. But the name of soft coal has become objectionable to people in general. They have had all the experience with that sort of fuel they desire to have, and they buy it only when they cannot get any other sort. It will be a few weeks, it is supposed, before anthracite is received here in quantities, but with mild weather consumers will drag along as best they can without adding to what they have. It is learned this afternoon that there is a project among a considerable group of house owners to purchase coal by the carload as soon as anthracite becomes plentiful and then to store the fuel for use next winter. Dealers who buy coal and sell it in twenty-pound lots are also contemplating the purchase of coal by carload lots. They represent that they can get a profit from the coal in that way which they do not receive now. The coal strike has taught its lesson to the public and they have learned that to depend on a supply in any other way than to store it is not reliable.

Walter Russell, of 883 Bank street; Arthur Voss, United States Coast Guard destroyer, Cassin, State pier; Mrs. Paul Sarinella and infant son, 15 Ledyard avenue, Groton, and Clifford Lane, United States Coast Guard patrol boat, 282, state pier, patients at Lawrence-Memorial associated hospital, were dismissed today.

Denton Brown, a sailor attached to local section base, 4, United States Coast Guard, state pier, in walking along Winthrop street during the storm of last night, slipped and fell upon an icy surface on a sidewalk at the approach to the Thames river highway bridge, in such a manner as to fracture his right leg. Pedestrians went to Brown's assistance and had him transferred to Lawrence hospital, where the fracture was reduced.

Lewis Fletcher, about 38, died this morning at his residence, 15 Walden avenue, after a brief illness with pneumonia. He is survived by his wife, Mr. Fletcher was formerly an enlisted man in the United States Coast Guard service, having resigned about a year ago, since that time Mr. Fletcher had been employed at the coast guard canteen. The body will probably be forwarded to Mr. Fletcher's former home, Kingsmpsen, Wash.

Alfred, 18 months' old son of Mr. and Mrs. Gaetano Strazz, 21 Grand street, died this morning at the residence of the parents, the child being ill for a week with pneumonia.

George Jones, sailor, attached to the United States Coast Guard, and stationed at the state pier, suffered the loss of his automobile operator's license today, when Commissioner of Motor Vehicles Robbins B. Stoeckel caused the license to be suspended.

Eager Faulkner, of Montville, was before Justice of the Peace Oscar Church, at Montville this morning charged with breach of the peace. He pleaded guilty and a fine of $5 and costs was imposed. Faulkner engaged in a row at Montville last night and caused such a disturbance that the state police barracks at Groton was notified of the brawl. Officer Glen Wetson was sent to the site of the trouble and took Faulkner into custody. He was locked up at the New London police station until this morning.

Andrew Rolf, of Hope street, Niantic, employed at the plant of the Thames Dyeing & Bleaching company, Niantic, suffered the loss of two fingers of the right hand late yesterday afternoon while at his work. Rolf was operating one of the mangles when his hand became caught in the mechanism. The middle and index fingers were terribly crushed. The man was attended by a physician, who dressed the crushed fingers and had Rolf to be removed to Lawrence hospital, where later the two fingers were amputated.

A touring car owned by Frederick Farrar, of Ocean avenue, had been parked on Water street two months until today, when the police were committed to because of the machine occupying space on that street day in and day out Farrar was ordered to have the machine removed from the highway and this he did.

An automobile of the public service type operated by Ferdinand Winzen, of Old Lyme, in passing through Bank street last night, collided with a motorless car, the owner of which was not identified, while the latter car was motionless beside the curb. The private automobile was damaged some.

The police this morning reported the existence of two dangerous places on the highways. One is located on Ocean avenue, near the corner of Bellevue place, where a deep depression exists. This report stated that within a day or two, two automobiles had been caught in the excavation and had to be hauled out. The other danger spot is in Jerome court, near Pequot avenue. Both reports were turned over to the highway department.

William H. Davidson, in charge of several small boats that are being wintered in a vacant lot on Hamilton street, complained to the police this afternoon that youths had done considerable damage by slashing the canvas covering of the boats with a knife.

Shippers here complain of the difficulty they experience in getting freight over the railroad lines that center in this city. In one instance freight that has been on the road some ten days or more has not been received here.

There was no session of the police court this morning, something that has not happened half a dozen times in the past year. The policemen say this condition is the lull before a storm and that a "break" is apt to come at any time.

Mrs. Harry G. Young, 118 Cedar Grove avenue, complained to the police this evening because of the annoyance she had been subjected to through the mischievous youths residing in the neighborhood. Mrs. Young declared that her dog, which is restrained in the yard, has been the target of the youths who use air rifles in shooting at the animal.

Michael and Mary Cameron have sold a building lot on Crystal avenue to Adam Winterwitz.

The condition of Mrs. Arthur Crouch of Mystic, who suffered extensive and fatal burns at her home a fortnight ago when her clothing caught fire while she was attending to a furnace, and who has since been under treatment at Lawrence hospital, is reported to be less encouraging.

Maynard E. Foster, Colfax street, and Miss Ruth Duncan, 87 Union street, were married last evening at the residence of the bride, by Rev. J. Rogers Danforth, pastor of the First Church of Christ, in the presence of relatives and intimate acquaintances. They were attended by Mr. and Mrs. George O. Pratt. Mr. Foster is a boilermaker in the employ of Speire Brothers.

Mr. and Mrs. H. N. Hall, 37 Washington street are in Troy, N. Y. visiting their son, Clarence Hall, who is a student at Rensselaer Polytechnic Institute.

Miss Jane Tennot, who has been spending several days in New York, has returned to her home, 718 Pequot avenue.

Mrs. Joseph O. Hammond of Hotel Mohican, is spending a few days in New York.

John L. Bennett of this city and Miss Alta F. Hall of 62 Bluxman street were married Thursday evening at the parsonage of the Methodist Episcopal church, the ceremony being performed by Rev. Charles D. Spaulding. They were unattended.

TWO BOYS ESCAPE MIRING ONLY BY OTHERS' HELP

(Special to The Bulletin.)

NEW LONDON, Feb. 26.—Eldridge A. Ball, colored, 1, of 457 Main street and his chum, Stephen Balgruni, 3, of 12 Stony Hill, had a close call from death by drowning, or suffocation, this afternoon when the youngsters were made prisoners in the marshy shore of Winthrop's Cove and were rescued only after other youths had gone to their aid with improvised contrivances, and while the police were speeding to lend a hand.

The boys had wandered to Winthrop street, which is but a short distance from their home and entering an open space near Crystal avenue, they walked to the shore of the cove. A short time later they decided to attempt to walk through the mire to the approach of the water As they did so, the weight of each caused him to gradually, but steadily sink in the mud. The boys attempted to turn back and reach the firm ground at the shore approach, but as they struggled their little bodies only sank deeper in the mud. A resident of Winthrop street observed the predicament of the children and notified the police. In the absence of the police speed car, two officers were dispatched to the cove in the patrol car, but by the time that the officers reached Winthrop street boys residing in the vicinity of the cove had been attracted to the place. Securing two pieces of planking, the timbers were stretched from the shore to the struggling boys who were imprisoned in the mud to above their hips. Clinging to the timbers the youths managed to extricate themselves and succeeded in walking along the planking to the shore, just as the police arrived. In the meantime the police speed car had returned to the station house and it was needed to Winthrop street with a long rope that might be used in the rescue of the lads, but this was not necessary. One of the boys was taken to his home, while the other was taken to the B. S. Learned mission to receive a complete change of clothing.

TUGBOAT EMPLOYE HURT WHILE REACHING WHARF

(Special to The Bulletin.)

NEW LONDON, Feb. 26.—Crosby Wade, an employe of the Thames Towboat company, is a patient at Lawrence hospital as a result of injuries sustained this morning. So far as could be determined by the examination of Wade today, he is suffering from a dislocated shoulder and abrasions of the right eye. Wade had been aboard one of the tug boats moored at the wharf of the F. H. & A. H. Chappell Coal company and in attempting to reach the wharf, slipped and fell, landing on his right shoulder and head. He was found lying on the wharf by employes of the coal company, who caused medical assistance to be summoned. When the nature of Wade's injuries were revealed, he was removed to the hospital.

SOMETHING IN THE WOODPILE IN SEWER AGITATION

(Special to The Bulletin.)

NEW LONDON, Feb. 26.—Information comes today that the recent sewer agitation started by a couple of residents in the vicinity of Mohegan avenue was in the hope that the city council could be scared into providing sewers for all that section, as the policy of the council appeared to be to treat all sections generously in this matter. The decision to sewer the section on outer Broad street created this opinion largely, and others decided that the time for them to get what they wanted was while the getting was easy. It turns out that only three or four property owners on Mohegan avenue and its vicinity are clamoring for sewers and that they did not have an adequate idea of what the sewers would cost them. It is represented that the authorities of Connecticut college are content to have the sewer facilities continue as they are at present. That property has not experienced any difficulty in taking care of the sewage and when they do encounter such they have a remedy in that they can have a cesspool at the foot of rapidly descending land near the river. With the use of septic fluids then the sewage can be taken care of without any difficulty whatever. The whole matter is in the hands of a committee of the people which will report on it next Monday evening.

APULIA IMPOVERISHED BY VAGARIES OF WATER

To conquer water with water is the program undertaken by a reclamation consortium in Apulia. Apulia, which before 1000 A. D. was perhaps the richest section of Italy, has in later centuries become one of the poorest because of deforestation, soil exhaustion and general neglect. Its particular curse has been water, both too much and too little of it.

The porous soil lets the rain pass through to a lower level, leaving the upper stratum parched during a large part of the year, while the subterranean reservoir reappears at the surface later, through periodic rising of the overspoil, and creates malarial swamps. Ordinary irrigation is thus a useless task. But the experts of the consortium have hit upon the idea of raising the needed irrigation water from the subsoil by means of many small electric pumps. And these pumps are to get their power from water impressed in an artificial lake in the nearby hills.

A threatened strike of Texas and Pacific railroad employes was averted by a settlement reached in St. Louis at a conference of brotherhood representatives with President L. W. Baldwin of the Missouri Pacific lines and President J. L. Lancaster of the Texas and Pacific.

ANNOUNCEMENTS

Broadway Theatre.

"Peacock Feathers," the Universal-Jewel to be shown Sunday at the Broadway theatre is unusual and exceedingly well done in both plot and acting.

The story is told dramatically, with episode building up to a strongly dramatic denouncement. Each scene is a perfect specimen and the story does not wander but drives relentlessly and at times ruthlessly direct to a smashing effective end.

Beginning in an eastern town, a young man, son of the village pastor, fall in love with a girl. The girl, proud and once rich, is bound up in the question of money and refuses to marry a poor man. Having returned to her home in St. Louis she is about to marry a rich man when the boy inherits his uncle's ranch which has been represented to him as being a vast valuable affair.

Jacqueline Logan and Cullen Landis have the leads with an admirable supporting cast including Ward Crane, George Fawcett, Edwin J. Brady, Carolyn Irwin, Emmett King, Prince Youcca Troubetskoy, Aggie Herring and Dunbar Raymond.

"The Fighting Cheat" featuring Wally Wales (The Cowboy Prince) will play at the Broadway theatre Sunday as the second feature.

It is difficult for any picture to beat this one for love, action, romance and pathos. There are some of the most exciting fights ever shown in movies in this picture. Wally Wales is as handsome as his many thousands of enthusiastic admirers proclaim him to be. The very pretty and competent Jean Arthur plays the heroine with Wally again.

You will also see a new comedy and Kinograms all for the one price of only 25 cents admission. Don't miss it!

Bond Theater

Marion Davies in her latest photoplay, "Zander the Great," will be the attraction at the Bond theater for three days, starting Sunday.

As Mamie the heroine of this famous stage play, which was adapted for the screen by Frances Marion, Miss Davies create a role that is said to place her in the very forefront of comediennes.

The entire play is based upon the search of Mamie for Zander, a mother in the west. Zander being a rich child, played by a newcomer to the screen, little Jack Huff, a youngster four who was discovered by Miss Davies.

Beginning with her childhood in an orphan asylum, and carrying her through a series of exciting episodes in the far west, Zander the Great provides Miss Davies with an opportunity for a whimsical, humorous characterization.

In the east are the following players: Hobart Bosworth, Harry Myers, Holbrook Blinn, Harry Watson, Jr., Hedda Hopper. Western scenery and the Great American desert provide pictorial backgrounds for this picture.

Harrison Ford, noted for his work in other Cosmopolitan pictures with Miss Davies, notably the last one, Janice Meredith appears opposite her in the character of a western hero.

Zander is a Cosmopolitan picture released by Metro-Goldwyn. It was adapted by Frances Marion from the stage play by Salisbury Field. George Hill directed the picture.

Palace Theater

Monte Blue in Hogans alley is making a hit at the Palace. Already the report has got around town that the picture at the Palace is good so if you're coming this afternoon, come early. It's a comedy melodrama of the side walks of New York with a prize ring punch and Monte plays the role of Lefty Corlen who licks the champ and then stages a thrilling rescue of a runaway train which his sweetheart is on with the villain who is taking her away into the mountains. One of the most thrilling scenes that we have seen on the screen in some time is the one where Monte jumps from an aeroplane to the top of a fast moving train and stops the runaway engine. There is plenty of comedy throughout the entire picture and if you want a good laugh along with a thrill see Hogans Alley. You'll get plenty of both. The vaudeville bill this week is headed by The Latin Quarter Entertainers which is a company of eight with a jazz band, singers and dancers. One of the big features in the act is the comedy numbers introduced by Barton of Barton and Young a comedy team that goes on just ahead of the Band. Barton is a clean shaven comedian who knows how to get the most out of his lines. His stage argument with his partner and the drummer is as funny a bit as we have seen in a long time and for a few minutes we thought that the drummer and this clever comedian were really going to mix it up. The Four Wilton Girls offer a unique acrobatic dancing act and Al Grant has a fine line of comedy songs and stories. The two immigrants offer a day in Italy and tell their story in song and comedy lines. It's a man and woman team and they both sing well and have some clever Italian comedy material. The Scarlet Streak is a hummer this week and we wish that they wouldn't leave us in such terrible suspense every week. The Kiddies Charleston is at again this afternoon and starts at three o'clock. Those who want to get in the act must put in their names this afternoon. This does not apply to those that have won a prize in the previous contest.

Conn. College Concert

Alternately adding new roles to his repertoire and having the Metropolitan Opera company revive operas in which he sang years ago, Giovanni Martinelli, the famous tenor who is to sing at the state armory in New London, Friday night, Mar. 5, under the auspices of Connecticut college, finds himself with a list of operas which keep right on growing and gives no indication of a stop. He likes his old favorites much and they include some of the parts in which he is most lived: in Aida, in Trovatore, Carmen, Tosca, Boheme, Masked Ball, Butterfly, Manon, Pagliacci, Faust, the Jewels of the Madonna, Rigoletto.

In addition he has sung in great revivals of Don Carlos, Otello, Le Prophete, Martha and has the principal role in Lucia in the Metropolitan yesterday of Benvenuto Cellini by the way. Martinelli made his debut in Italy. A few years ago he added the tenor role of Rudolf Onegin to his list and he is, perhaps, the most famous interpreter of the subtle leading tenor role in the Love of the Three Kings. In all, he has 40 roles or more ready and these include virtually the entire operatic works of Verdi, Puccini and the leaders among modern French composers. Martinelli sings in the two languages and has never been tempted to try Wagnerian roles.

The ticket sale begins tomorrow and tickets may be obtained at Starr Bros. drug store, State street, New London.

At the Y. M. C. A. Sunday,

The management of the Y. M. C. A. has arranged an exceedingly attractive programme for Sunday afternoon at 4 o'clock.

The following moving pictures will be shown: A two reel feature entitled "Hope," which is a dramatization of George Frederick Watt's painting "Hope." His art reflects the greatness of a soul vibrant with sympathy and understanding toward all humanity. It is a human tale of the fisherfolk of Brittany and of the lighthouse keeper's daughter who never lost hope through all her trials and tribulations. There will also be a full reel of "Burton Holmes travelogue, "Rolling Down the Rio" picturing the capital and metropolis of Brazil. The wonder harbor, magnificent avenues and old time streets; the Botanical gardens, on the peak of Colorado, looking down on illuminated Rio by night, sunrise mists surging over the Sugar Loaf, etc., etc.

In addition to these impressive pictures, a programme of readings will be rendered by the noted New York artist, Miss Pauline Mayo, whose reputation is wide and enviable; she will read several selections appropriate for Sunday afternoon.

To this unusual service men and women have been invited and boys and girls under fourteen, with the distinct understanding that they are accompanied by their parents.

Navel Radio Test

In the enforcement of automobile laws the Constantinople police have hit upon a novel test for automobile brakes. They throw across the path of the car being tested a board filled with nails. If drivers cannot check their machine in time they not only suffer loss from punctures but are conducted to repair stations by police, who see that brakes are properly adjusted or else condemn the cars.

George T. Sampson, an aged resident of Medford, died in a taxicab while on his way to the courthouse in Malden, Mass., to attend a trial. Relatives said he had suffered from heart disease.

DECLINE IN STOCK PRICES

NEW YORK, Feb. 26—(AP)—Professional bear traders, who have been hammering the market for the past three weeks, finally dislodged sufficient long stock in today's session to bring about a drastic decline in prices, both the rail and industrial averages dropped to new low levels, for the year with closing quotations disclosing a long list of losses ranging from one to nearly 12 points. Trading showed a marked expansion in volume, the day's sales of 2,314,700 shares being the largest of any session this year.

Like the reactionary movements which preceded it, the day's decline was not associated with anything in the day's news, although the heavy calling of loans to provide banks with funds for month end requirements, sending the call money rate from 4 to 5 1-2 per cent. Probably stimulated short selling. No uneasiness was felt in banking circles over the increase of $1,136,000 in brokers' loans reported by the federal reserve bank in the week ended February 17. In view of the fact that new security offerings of over $150,000,000 that week undoubtedly necessitated temporarily heavy financing, the bank's statement was interpreted as an indication that loans on marginal accounts must have been substantially reduced.

Some speculative disappointment may have resulted from the failure of the General Electric directors to take special dividend action, although declaration of only the regular rate was forecast by company officials. General Electric broke 10 points to 345 and then rallied to 349 as against a recent high of 386 1-2.

The weekly mercantile reviews disclosed little change in the busines situation. Dun's reports "the shortest month of the year made still shorter by holidays, brought a moderate slackening of business activity," but explains that "despite the fact that trade results this year have not met the most optimistic expectations, the future is regarded as undiminished confidence, basic conditions remaining sound." Bradstreet's states "trade conditions are somewhat irregular, but most signs are healthful ones," adding that "wholesale and retail lines, with goods being displayed, show some improvement."

United States Steel common, which had withstood several previous selling attacks, was offered in large volume during the afternoon, sagging to 123 3-4 as against the recent offering price of 136 to employes, but rallying just before the close of 124 1-2 off 1 1-4 net on the day.

High priced specialties were among the hardest hit. American Brake Shoe and Foundry broke 14 points to 158 and then rallied to 160 1-4. Foundation Company broke over 9 points to 133, but snapped back to 156. Net losses of four or more points were recorded by such widely diversified issues as Atlantic Coast Line, Brown Shoe, Du Pont, Electric Autolite, General Railway Signal, Manati Sugar, New York Canners, Pullman and Sears Roebuck.

Standing out prominently among the score or so issues to move against the current trend were American Safety Razor, Commercial Solvents B, Fox Film A, Union Bag and Paper, and United Fruit, up 1 1-2 to 5 points.

All the commodity markets lost ground. Wheat futures fell 1 1-2 to 2 cents a bushel; cotton yielded 16 to 23 points, with December option at a new low level for the year, and coffee futures sold off 22 to 30 points. Sugar held fairly steady.

Time money and commercial paper rates were unchanged.

A jump of 50 points to 12.50 cents in Polish zlotys was the only feature of the irregular foreign exchange market. Demand sterling held firm around $4.85 11-16 and French francs ruled 5 points higher around 3.68 cents.

Sales 2,313,700 shares.

TAFTVILLE

Mr. and Mrs. Amede Plon, of Hunters avenue, were in Hartford Thursday visiting their daughter, Miss Sherilda Plon.

A very enjoyable card party was given Thursday evening by the members of St. Veronica's T. A. and B. society at their rooms on Providence street. In spite of the inclement weather there was a very large attendance Miss Margaret Benoit won the first prize for ladies; Miss Rose Murphy, the second, and the consolation went to Miss Lillian Molleur. Joseph Phalen had a high score for the gentlemen, Antonio Caron the second and the consolation was awarded to Patrick Hartnett. Refreshments of cake and coffee were served after play. The committee in charge of the evening included Miss Agnes Dougherty, chairman; Miss Louise White and Miss Mayme Nolan.

Mr. and Mrs. Moise Durocher, of South Second avenue, have returned from Boston, where Mr. Durocher has been on business.

The kindergarten at the Wequonnoc school had no session Friday afternoon, as the teacher, Miss Mildred Ziegler, is in Boston.

Miss Roberta Vergason, of North Stonington, is the guest of Mr. and Mrs. Alfred Linderson, of North Third avenue.

Mrs. Alfred Chaput, of Norwich avenue, has been spending a few days with relatives in Plainfield.

There was a short business meeting of the knights, squires and pages of Castle Perilous Wednesday evening in the vestry of the Taftville Congregational church.

Mr. and Mrs. Leadore Paquette have taken a house on North A street and expect to occupy it next week.

Mr. and Mrs Paul Verville, who have recently sold their bungalow on Hunters avenue to Mr. and Mrs. Louis Gregory, Jr., have moved to a house on South B street. Mr. and Mrs. Gregory, after making some repairs to the property, are to occupy it as their home.

Louis Metivierre, who died Thursday in Norwich, is well known locally, having lived on South Fourth avenue for many years, when he was in the employ of the Ponemah mills.

A Rock Nook well child's conference was held Friday afternoon in the Red Cross rooms in the Ponemah building. Cards being received from Mr. and Mrs. Ernest C. Stranz, who were recently married in London, England, place them at Paris, France, on their way to Monte Carlo and the Riviera. Mrs. Stranz was before her marriage, Miss Elsie Seddon, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. John W. Seddon, of South B street.

Snow and ice vanished before the Thursday night storm, but in some places the gutters were unable to take care of the surplus water, and it overran the streets. Someone remarked that the gutter at the bottom of Post-office hill looked like a young Y. M. C. A. swimming pool. However, the wind that sprang up after the storm abated aided in drying up the streets so that they were all fit for travel Friday.

Andrew Patrylo and Stephen Patrylo, of Hallville, were visitors in town Friday.

NORWICH TOWN

Mr. and Mrs. Herbert Mitchell and five children, who for some time occupied the William Burdick house, on Huntington Greene, moved last week to Connell street, Norwich, to a house purchased by Mr. Mitchell about two years ago.

When Mr. and Mrs. William Weaver move from Huntington avenue March 1st, to the house vacated by the Mitchell family on Huntington Green, William Burdick is to make his home with them. Through misunderstanding it was announced that Mr. Burdick had located down town.

Theodore Sterry, who has been passing the winter in New London, is expected to return to his home on Otrolando avenue, this (Saturday) evening, to remain over Sunday, with his parents, Mr. and Mrs. Charles Sterry.

Mr. and Mrs. R. Day Fillmore (Katherine Bliven) are occupying the new home on Julian Terrace, recently purchased by Mrs. Fillmore's father, Beverly Bliven, of Lincoln avenue, having moved from Oak street.

The new house adjoining the Bliven house, both erected during the past year on what formerly was the property of Patrick J. Morley, is to be occupied the first of March, by Mr. and Mrs. Albert M. Van Wagenen, Jr., (Alicia Haggerty) for nearly a year residents of 364 Washington street.

Mrs. Wellington Miner, of Vergason avenue, and Mrs. William Weaver, of Huntington avenue, were guests Thursday at the home of Mrs. George Kahn, in Franklin.

Several members from the Home Missionary society of the Norwich Town Congregational church attended the Community House meeting, Norwich, Friday afternoon, to hear the address by Mrs. Frank Gaylord Cook, of Boston.

Not for several years has that stretch of the Yantic River running parallel to Town street, been so high as at present, due to the rain of Thursday afternoon and evening. The river is running such full stream that it extends on either side far beyond its ordinary width at many points.

SUPERIOR COURT HEARS MOTION TO SET ASIDE MORAN VERDICT

At the short calendar session of the superior court in New London Friday morning, Judge Allyn L. Brown heard the motion to set aside the verdict of $2,068.38 given about a week ago to John A. Moran, local real estate agent in his suit against the Central Building Company. The suit arose over the sale of the Central building this city, to William Murphy. Mr. Moran bringing the action to collect his commission for the sale of the building. After hearing the arguments for the motion to set the verdict aside Judge Brown took the papers.

NORWICH DISTRICT MEETING SCHEDULED FOR MARCH 12TH

District Superintendent Myron E. Genter of this city announced Friday evening that plans are being made for a meeting of the Norwich district to be held at Willimantic, March 12th. A large body of churchmen, ministers and laymen, will be present to hear several of the biggest statesmen of Methodism. Bishop William F. Anderson of Boston will preside and the speakers will include Dr. David D. Forsyth of Denver, Colo., and Dr. George H. Spencer of Boston. The programme arranged for the meeting follows:

9:30 a. m.—The Supreme Motive in Our World Task, Bishop Anderson; 10 a. m.—Facing the World Conditions' Dr. D. D. Forsyth; 11 a. m.—The World Service Council in the Local Church, Dr. H. G. Spencer; 2 p. m.—Facing Conditions in the Foreign Field, speakers; 3 p. m.—Missionary Education in the Local Church, to be announced; 4 p. m.—An Adequate Financial Program for the Local Church, speaker to be announced; 7:30 p. m.—Inspirational address. It is expected that a bishop home from a foreign field will be secured.

It is expected that every minister in the Norwich District and several laymen from each church will be present for the entire day. No appeal for money will be made as this is for educational purposes only.

The district superintendent said that he expected that this would be probably the most significant meeting in the district in many years, and with distinguished speakers as are only usually assembled at the annual meetings and in large cities.

MISSION WORKERS MEET AT COMMUNITY HOUSE

Members of the mission department of the United Congregational church, with mission departments of other local churches attended a meeting at the Community House Friday afternoon. The feature of the afternoon was a talk by Mrs. Frank Gaylord Cook, treasurer of the Woman's Board of Missions, who spoke at length on Missions as a Vital Force in the World of Today. Mrs. Cook particularly mentioned an article on missions which appeared in a well known magazine last July, stated that she wished to picture the other side of the subject. She spoke of the value of the work along social lines, welfare work and other constructive work being done by missionaries, her viewpoints being from actual observation of mission work, gained during her recent trip to the Orient.

Mrs. Cook's talk was most inspiring and much valuable information was gathered concerning the work of missionaries in far off lands. Another feature of the programme was a delightful play given by members of the Junior guild of the United Church, entitled, The Conversion of the Honorable Mrs. Ling.

Following the meeting a social time was enjoyed and refreshments were served by members of Charitable Circle, Kings Daughters. Tea was served later in the afternoon with Mrs. William B. Douglas and Miss Ella Norton pouring.

The meeting was in charge of Miss Nancy Lucas, chairman of the department and the devotional exercises were led by Mrs. Alexander H. Abbott.

NEAR EAST RELIEF HONORS FOR NORWICH PEOPLE

NEW YORK, Feb. 26.—(AP)—For performing duties "under dangerous and difficult conditions," 44 men and women workers of the near east relief will be awarded decorations at the organization's annual convention here March 4, Charles V. Vickery, general secretary announced tonight.

The decoration is the highest award for service conferred by the Near East Relief and is awarded only by unanimous vote of the national executive committee.

Leading the list in Connecticut are: Dr. and Mrs. John H. Evans, Norwich, Conn.

HOURIGAN POST HOLDS WHIST AND DANCE

The members of Richard E. Hourigan post, Veterans of Foreign Wars, held another successful whist and dance at their rooms on Main street, Friday evening. There were 25 tables in play and the prize winners were as follows:

Ladies—First, Mrs. A. J. Turner; second, A. Beauregard; third, Mrs. C. Prodell.

Men—First, E. Maynard; second, Alfred Duco; third, C. Hoelck; fourth, G. A. Turner.

The committee in charge comprised H. King, H. Richardson and E. Sheldon.

At Rockville during the storm of Thursday the town of Vernon sign post, a landmark on Park place for more than thirty years, was blown over. It is believed that a new sign board will be erected near the Memorial building.

LOSE LICENSES FOR BORROWING NUMBER PLATES

The use of borrowed marker plates or other improper markers on automobiles resulted in the suspension of thirty-eight operators' licenses by the state motor vehicle department during the past year. Transferring number plates from one car to another, at convenience, is a practice with which the department deals severely, and there were seventeen such cases in 1925. Seven who loaned licenses for that purpose were also suspended.

Thirteen operators lost their licenses, for varying periods, for driving cars equipped with otherwise improper markers. Only a few of these were cases of car owners who did so in an attempt to avoid registration entirely. In most cases, the car owners had lost one of their markers and had been content to prepare a substitute of cardboard or other material. The state law allows car owners to use such substitute markers for twenty-four hours in the event of the original markers being lost, mutilated or illegible. It requires the owner, however, to apply to the department under oath for new number plates and to surrender the plate which remains on his car, unless both of the registered plates have been lost. It is when automobilists put off their applications for the substitute plates and continue to drive with the temporary devices on their cars, that they are called to account by the department. In such cases, the owner's license is usually suspended for his failure to comply with the law.

One holder of a special dealer's marker lost his operator's license for misuse of it.

MORRIS HANDLEMAN GIVEN 60 DAYS IN JAIL

Morris Handleman, 24, of Norwich, was sentenced to jail for 60 days by Deputy Judge H. H. Pettis, when he was charged with selling liquor contrary to law, this sentence being given in the city court Friday morning. The case against Charles King, 19, of 46 Spring street was settled by judgment being suspended and the accused placed on probation for six months.

Both young men faced charges of perjury when court opened but the charge was withdrawn on recommendation of City Attorney Lee Roy Robbins. It was on advice of Public Defender Charles L. Stewart, whom the court called to handle the case for the accused, that Handleman and King entered pleas of guilty to selling liquor contrary to law. Both were severely reprimanded by the court for perjury.

Both young men were without counsel when court opened Friday morning and the public defender was called in to handle their cases. Handleman's father informed the court that his son had been threatened and that was why he refused to testify in court Thursday.

City Attorney Robbins said that the perjury charge was a serious one and that since both had pleaded guilty to violation of the liquor law the punishment would be sufficient. King, judging from his testimony, intended to be honest but had been misguided by Handleman, who was first to testify.

Judge Pettis told King that the only reason the court showed leniency was because of his youth, stating that King's previous record was none too good and that he had better find better associates.

King stated that he would try to make good and secure a suitable position and then Deputy Judge Pettis continued the case for six months, suspending judgment during that time.

In regard to Handleman the court stated that he had deliberately told many gross and deliberate lies, which is a state's prison offense. Handleman had kept a part of the money given him to purchase liquor with. The minimum handed out by the court would be $200 and 10 days, but this would mean seven months in jail for Handleman. A bind over to the superior court would also keep Handleman in jail for many months. The court then gave Handleman 60 days in jail without costs and the perjury charge was nolled. Handleman was taken to jail by Officer Charles Smith to begin his two months sentence.

TO SPEAK AT THE CENTRAL BAPTIST CHURCH

Dr. Edward C. Kunkle of New York city will be the speaker at the Central Baptist church on Sunday. Dr. Kunkle is an outstanding man, noted for his ability even in school days. He received the gold watch for his oration delivered at his college commencement. He is a graduate of the Divinity school of the University of Chicago. During the war he rendered fine service in his work with the soldiers. At present he is recognized as one of the leaders in the Baptist denomination in New York city.

His topic in the morning will be "Building the Fellowship," and in the evening "Psychology of Pentecost." The evening worship service will include an organ recital by Miss Louise Fuller, with a rendition of the following numbers: "Toccata from Fifth Symphonie" by Widor; "At Evening" Kinder; "Allegretto" Archer; "Elegy" Noble.

The Girls' chorus of the Four-Fold Comrades' club will sing: "Send Out Thy Light" Gounod-Lynes; "Hark! Hark, my Soul!" Baines.

GAVE SURPRISE WHIST FOR JUSTINE JACOBSON

A surprise whist was given in honor of Miss Justine Jacobson at the home of Miss Henrietta Herman, 205 West Main street, recently. Three tables of whist were in play and the prizes were awarded to Miss Florence Murphy, Miss Libby Solomon and Miss Bessie Shanker. Refreshments were served and an enjoyable time was had by all.

PLEASANT SURPRISE PARTY FOR ROSE HODKINSON

A pleasant surprise party was given Miss Rose Hodkinson at No. 327 Main street, Thursday evening. There was a very large attendance. Games were played and ukelele solos were rendered by George Rowbarge. Dancing was enjoyed and there were Charleston exhibitions. Refreshments were served by Mrs. Hodkinson, assisted by Mrs. Blanchard.

Don't think that because a soft answer turns away wrath that it will work the same way with a book agent.

BROTHERHOOD PRESENTS FARCE TO CROWDED HOUSE

"The Little Players" (most of whom turned out to be six footers) staged a farce, Friday Afternoon at a Village School, before an audience of 600 people at the Community house Friday evening. The production was given under the auspices of The Brotherhood of the United Congregational church. The Little Players, with their unique song numbers, dialogues, humorous essays and local hits convulsed the audience with laughter. The scene was a typical village school room. The "boys" appeared in all sorts of makeups from ragged overalls, bare legs and shirt to a dainty dress worn by the "school beauty."

The manikins, in the order of their several deficiencies (as per the programme) were as follows:

Teacher—Joseph French
Current distributor
Katie Smith—Walter Lester
Composer "Laurel Hill Lyrics"

Something new in Norwich

The audience was enlightened (and considerably amused) as to the composition of the committee on arrangements by the following which appeared on the prgoramme:

Stage Manager—Mrs. Lester; Costumes—Our Wives; Lighting Defects—Joe French; Musical Snores—Jimmy Dunn.

Explanatory notes in regard to the production and "momentous questions" for the serious consideration of the audience appeared on the programme as follows:

Explanatory: Our girls use only kiss-proof rouge. "Pickannie" gum used exclusively on account of superior durability and stretchability. Calisthenic drill supervised by Women's Auxiliary of Y. M. C. A. (The girls are members of the Business Women's Class)

Momentous questions: Shall the city hall be repaired or sold? Shall we move Chelsea Parade into Franklin square for additional parking space? A glassful a day keeps the microbes away: did you take your chlorine this morning? Two new families have moved into Norwich. Should we demand another shoe store?

GAVE ADDRESS ON POWER OF THE PRESENT

A larger audience of business men greeted Rev. J. Romeyn Danforth at the Norwich Y. M. C. A., Friday than the week previous. The parlors were filled to capacity, and the interest in the messages is obviously on the increase. After the luncheon, James M. Morton, a director of the Y. M. C. A., called the meeting to order by announcing the impressive hymn "Hiding in Thee," after which Rev. A. N. Foster offered a fervent prayer, and this was followed with a vocal solo, well rendered by Hugh Kinder, who is also pianist of the series.

Mr. Morton stated that the time had gone, when it was necessary to introduce Dr. Danforth to a Norwich audience, and he announced as the topic of the day "The Power of the Present." Mr. Danforth at once secured the attention of his fine audience. Among the many helpful thoughts of the speaker, the following are reported:

What a strange thing a day is! Our day starts at the date line in the far Pacific. But really that is an artificial line. It is the same day that has been revolving as the earth turns on its axis ever since it first began to turn.

Across the Mississippi there is a dam where the impounded waters turn a regiment of turbines and generate enormous electric power. The water that has gone by has ceased to do it. The water that has not yet arrived has it yet to do. So is time. Today is power for us. "Now" is a wonderful word.

Dead gods receive no prayers. A marble Appolo is a statue, not a deity for us. It is the ever-present Christ who means all in all to us. And it is today in which He means it. Our God is in the eternal now.

There are many ways in which we want the future to be different from the past. Now is the day to make the change. And we can do it. The past with all that was in it has ceased to be. The future with all its possibilities is not yet in being. This moment you and I are free; free from our yesterdays and free to plan out tomorrows.

Remember the motto of Connecticut? "Qui transulet sustinet". God brought us through the past. He sustains us today. Now of God for you and me is the moment of omnipotence. All things are possible now. "I can do all things through Christ which strengtheneth me."

The topic next week will be "The Power of the Future."

REV. BROWNELL GAGE BREAKS HIP IN A FALL

Rev. Brownell Gage, who has been principal of Suffield school since returning from missionary work at Chang Sha college, China, slipped on the ice at Suffield, the past week, and broke his hip. He is a patient at Hartford hospital, where his condition is considered very favorable. Rev. and Mrs. Gage (Helen Howe) were guests at the holiday time of the latter's parents, Rev. Dr. S. H. Howe and Mrs. Howe, of Norwich.

It is hard to make some coal dealers see the error of their weighs.

FAIRVIEW NEARLY UP TO FULL POND MARK

With the recent heavy rains, particularly the rain of Thursday when a total of 1.06 inches of rain fell, the two city reservoirs are rapidly nearing full pond, the best condition they have been in during the past two years. The rainfall for February has been 4.35 inches, an exceptionally large fall for that month.

On Friday morning Fairview reservoir was down eight inches from full pond and was expected to reach full pond within the next few days. Stony Brook reservoir was eight feet from full pond Friday morning but indications were that this would be lessened during the day by another foot as much water was running into the reservoir.

The rainfall for the month, 4.35 inches is about double that in February 1925, when the month produced a rainfall of but 2.60 inches.

HARD PIMPLES COVERED FACE

So Itchy Had to Scratch. Lasted About One Year. Cuticura Healed.

"My face was covered with large, hard, red pimples. They were so itchy that sometimes I had to scratch them. I lost sleep at night because of the irritation. The trouble lasted about one year.

"I tried many remedies but they failed to help me. I read an advertisement for Cuticura Soap and Ointment and sent for a free sample. I purchased more and after using four cakes of Cuticura Soap and three boxes of Cuticura Ointment I was completely healed." (Signed) Anthony Passono, 314 Admiral St., Providence, R. I., Oct. 20, 1925.

The Secret of Good Health is Largely in Good Eyesight

More than 70 per cent of all headaches are caused by eyestrain, and many other ills may be traced to the same cause. Headache tablets and indigestion syrups only postpone, they do not remedy anything. Too often the real trouble is not where you feel it, but begins with the eyes. The eyes contain more nerves than any other organ of the body. They therefore demand more nerve energy even when normal; and if the eyes are defective, they rob other parts of the body of needed nerve energy, thus resulting in nervousness, headaches, indigestion, sleepiness, irritation of the eyelids, etc. Pills cannot cure such troubles.

GLASSES ARE THE ONLY THING!

If you have any of the above troubles come and have your eyes examined at
